Strange to say, I am another Mrs. Baker. In 1907 I was married to a man who had a little boy of ten and I had a little girl of two. The first two years of our married life was miserable, and this is why: I tried to please everybody. I was afraid someone would find fault with what I did or what I did not do. We lived in the same town with my husband's people, also the child's mother's people so that of course made it worse, or so I imagined. I wanted so much to do the right thing till, as I said before, I made myself miserable trying to think what was expected of me by everybody in general. Finally I came to this conclusion,—do just as you would if he were really and truly your own, regardless of what other people say and think. I said to myself, "Do as your own judgment and conscience tell you and don't think so much about what other people will say," and since then I find that was much the better plan. When one tries to please everybody they can't please anybody. I was only twenty-one, not so very much older in years than the child, but I was chosen to fill his own mother's place, as far as it is possible for some other woman to do, and God knows I have tried and have, to the best of my ability. I believe he is about the same as the average boy; doesn't always do as I would like, but how many boys are there that always do as their own mothers would have them do? I had a friend say to me only this morning, "I think it is wonderful how your little family get along." I asked her why, and she said: "One that did not know could not tell that there were three sets of children (we have a little girl of four) if they did not know." She has lived next door to me for two years and seems to think it strange that we, or I rather should make no distinction. Husband has always treated my little girl just as he has the other children and she thinks "Daddy" is just about the only man.

So dear Mrs. Baker, do just as your conscience tells you to do and don't be influenced by outsiders. We all have to fight our own battles, and if you need help to decide some of your problems go to the Heavenly Father and not to some friend or relative. Our troubles are seldom ever made lighter by telling them to others.

With love and best wishes to Mrs. Wilkinson and COMFORT sisters, and stepmothers especially, MRS. J. A. BAKER.

CASTLE ROCK, WASH.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

I am nerved to face the wastebasket in support of "Grandma's" ideas about rearing children. I am thirty-five years old, grandma, so one not so old at least is with you. I often wonder why ideas are so changed regarding discipline. God's word tells us plainly we are to obey Him. Why should children be allowed to go to ruin because they are not taught to obey? I am sure no one likes to punish a child but is it not a duty if necessary? I enclose an article which expresses my opinion very clearly.

A Story of Royal Discipline

The following story relates to a bit of insubordination on the part of King Edward when a child.

One day at Windsor Palace he stood at a French window looking out upon the gardens when he should have been studying. His governess remonstrated with him, but to no avail. Finally she told him that if he did not learn his lessons she would have to put him in a corner.

"I won't learn," answered the youngster; "and I won't stand in a corner, for I am the Prince of Wales!" At this he kicked vigorously at the window and broke two panes. The governess at once sent for his father, the Prince Consort, and told him the whole circumstance.

"Sit down there," said Prince Albert to his son, pointing to an ottoman, "and wait 'till I return." When he came back he carried a Bible. "Listen now," he admonished the boy, "to what the holy apostle Paul says to you and other children in your position." He then read Galatians 4: 1, 2: "'Now I say, That the heir, as long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a servant, though he be lord of all; but is under tutors and governors until the times appointed of the father.'" "It is true," continued Prince Albert, "that you are Prince of Wales; and if you conduct yourself properly you may become a man of high station, and even after the death of your mother may become King of England. But now you are a little boy who must obey his tutors and governors. Besides, I must impress upon you a saying of the wise Solomon in Proverbs 13: 24: 'He that spareth his rod hateth his son; but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes.'" At this he gave the heir to the British throne a tingling chastisement, after which he stood him up in the corner, saying:

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 22.)

50¢ is all you need pay for your work shirt!

The UNCLE SAM WORK SHIRT proves it

Look for the Uncle Sam label in the neckband. It's your guarantee that you are buying the greatest work shirt ever made.

READ THESE TEN BIG EXTRA-VALUE FEATURES THAT YOU GET IN THE UNCLE SAM WORK SHIRT

Sleeves extra wide at elbows and extra long; extra large armholes; tails extra long enough; two extra large button pockets; extra big expanse of chest, with extra deep front opening that makes it extra easy to get in and out; extra big pearl buttons well sewed on by machine, and extra wide cuffs. And it's sewn extra well with double strength double stitching throughout.

A marvel for standing up to the hardest wear and hardest washing—there never was a shirt to compare with it. Fast Colors, guaranteed not to fade, and materials that are the best we can buy.

Get the Uncle Sam Work Shirt at Your Dealers

If he is out of them, send us your 50 cents direct and your dealer's name, and we will see that you are supplied.

SALANT & SALANT, Makers, 71 WORTH STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Made-to-Measure

Express Prepaid $2.75

Pants cut in the latest style. Made-to-your individual measure. Fit, workmanship and wear guaranteed.

No Extra Charge

for peg tops, no matter how extreme you order them.

Agents Wanted

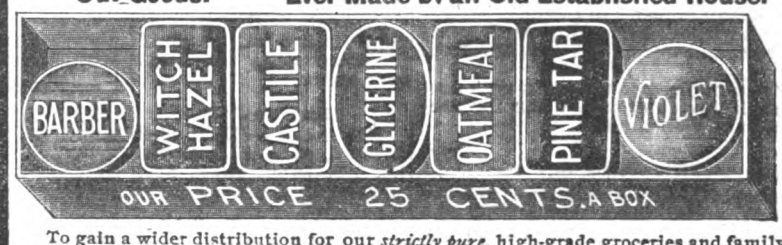
A good live hustler in every town to take orders for our celebrated made-to-measure clothes. Samples of all the latest materials FREE.

We Pay Big Money

to our agents everywhere. Turn your spare time into cash by taking orders for our stylish clothes. Write today for beautiful FREE outfit.

The Progress Tailoring Co., Dept. 800, Chicago

HANDSOME FULL-SIZE DINNER SET FREE TO EVERY LADY WHO WRITES US



YOU NEED NO MONEY. We Trust You with Our Goods.

THE MOST GIGANTIC OFFER OF THE CENTURY Ever Made by an Old Established House.

READ AND BE CONVINCED.

WE PREPAY FREIGHT On Soap, Dinner Set and Premiums.

To gain a wider distribution for our strictly pure, high-grade groceries and family supplies, we now offer ABSOLUTELY FREE, a handsome embossed, artistically floral decorated, full size of extra quality and finely perfumed, giving as premiums, with each box of 7 large cakes, Baking Powder, Perfume, Talcum Powder, Teaspoons, Shears and Needles, (as per Plan 400) illustrated above. QUALITY as well as QUANTITY are in this offer, as we buy in such large lots we can give you more good goods for less money than any other concern. OUR PLANS SELL AT SIGHT. One pleased customer brings another and with our other Baking Powder, Tea, Coffee, Spice, Extract, Perfume and Soap Offers, you will get duplicate orders and earn some of our many useful premiums such as Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Linen Sets, Silverware, Clocks, Furniture, Graniteware, Rugs, Dry Goods, Wearing Apparel, in fact, anything you need. We also pay large cash commissions. WE PREPAY FREIGHT on Soap, Dinner Set & Premiums, allowing plenty of time to examine, deliver and collect before paying us one cent. No license needed. We protect you. Our methods are honest. Satisfaction guaranteed. Reference: First National Bank, Provident Bank, Postmaster. Write at once for FREE SAMPLE OUTFIT and other things. If after receiving them, you decide not to get up an order, you may keep everything we send you FREE of charge for the trouble in answering this advertisement.

54-PC. DINNER SET for sale of 12 BOXES SOAP

We give Beautiful Presents for appointing one or more agents to work for us. You advance no money. You have nothing to risk. Remember, the Special Premium and Sample Outfit are both absolutely free. A 2c. stamp or post card is your only expense. WRITE TODAY.

Special FREE Present

We give a 26-Pc. Silverine Knife, Fork and Spoon Set, or 7-Pc. High-Grade Granite Kitchen Set, or Elegant 10-Pc. Decorated Toilet Set, FREE of all cost or work of any kind. Simply send us your name & address and ask for this FREE PRESENT.

THE PURE FOOD CO. ESTABLISHED 1897. 915 Pearl St., CINCINNATI, O.

☞ We can safely recommend The Pure Food Co. as being a thoroughly reliable and responsible firm.

IN & AROUND The HOME

CONDUCTED BY MRS. WHEELER WILKINSON

Terms Used in Crochet

Ch. st., chain stitch, simply a series of loops or stitches each drawn with the hook through the preceding one; s. c., single crochet, having a loop on hook, insert hook in work as indicated, draw loop through thread over, and draw through both loops; d. c., double crochet, thread over hook, insert hook in work, draw loop through, thread over draw through two loops, thread over, draw through two loops; tr. c., treble crochet, thread over hook twice, then work off as in double crochet, there being three groups of two loops to work off instead of two; h. tr., half treble, same as tr. c., only work off two loops, thread over and then through three loops; d. tr., double treble crochet, thread over three times, hook through work, thread over and draw through one loop, giving five on hook, thread over and work off by twos; sl. st., slip stitch, insert hook in work, draw loop through work and loop on hook at the same time; p., picot, a picot is formed on a chain by catching back in the fourth st., or as indicated and working a sl. st r. st., roll stitch, throw the thread over the needle as many times as indicated, insert hook in the work, thread over, pull through coil or roll, thread over, draw through the one loop on hook. The roll when completed is straight, with a thread the length of roll along its side. The length or size of a roll is regulated by the number of times the thread is thrown over; o., over, thread over hook the number of times indicated; k. st., knot stitch, draw out loop about one quarter inch, catch thread and pull through, then put the hook between the drawn loop and the thread just pulled through, catch the thread, draw through these two stitches to form the knot; blk., block, a st. in each of a given number of sts., preceded and followed by a space; sp., space, a space is formed by making a chain of 3 or 4 sts. and omitting the same number of sts. in preceding row; sk., skip, to miss or omit number of stitches indicated in preceding row; p. c., padding cord; * stars mean that the directions given between them should be repeated as indicated before proceeding.

Requests

Can any reader send Lillie Degroot, Tarlton Tenn. and Mrs. Belle Ingram R. 2, Leavenworth, Kans., directions for crocheted coat collar, grape design, square back having cluster of grapes in corners, or if same are sent to Editor we will be glad to publish in this department for the benefit of other readers.

Baby's Crocheted Bootees of Wool

Materials Required

ONE HALF skein of white, the same of blue or pink wool, No. 2 crochet hook.

With color chain 15 sts. and in Afghan st. or s. c. make 12 rows, then ch. 26 sts., and join to other corner of piece just made. Work around the ch. and across the front, putting 1 s. c. in each st., join with sl. st. Make another round of s. c., join with sl. st.

With white make 1 round of d. c., join with sl. st.

With color make 3 rounds s. c., join, 1 round d. c. with white, 1 round s. c. with color, 1 round d. c. with white, 1 round s. c. with color, 1 round d. c. with white. Finish the top with color, 1 s. c. in each of 5 sts., ch. 3, 1 s. c. in same st., ch. 3, 1 s. c. in same st., ch. 3, 1 s. c. in same st., 1 s. c. in each next 5 sts., repeat around.

For the Foot.—With white wool commence at center back and work a round of s. c., working through both loops of each st. and widening at the two corners of the front by making 2 s. c. in corner stitches.

Work 2 more rounds, widening as in first row.

Work 4 rounds, narrowing in each by skipping 1st in center of back.

BABY'S CROCHETED BOOTEES.

Work 2 rounds, narrowing once in each round at the center of the back, and at center of front. Join by crocheting two edges together.

With colors make cord and tassels or use ribbon ties.

Winter Hats and Caps

Outing Hat with Rolling Brim

This hat is made of the coarse eiderdown wool. About three skeins will be needed and coarse No. 8 or 9 crochet hook.

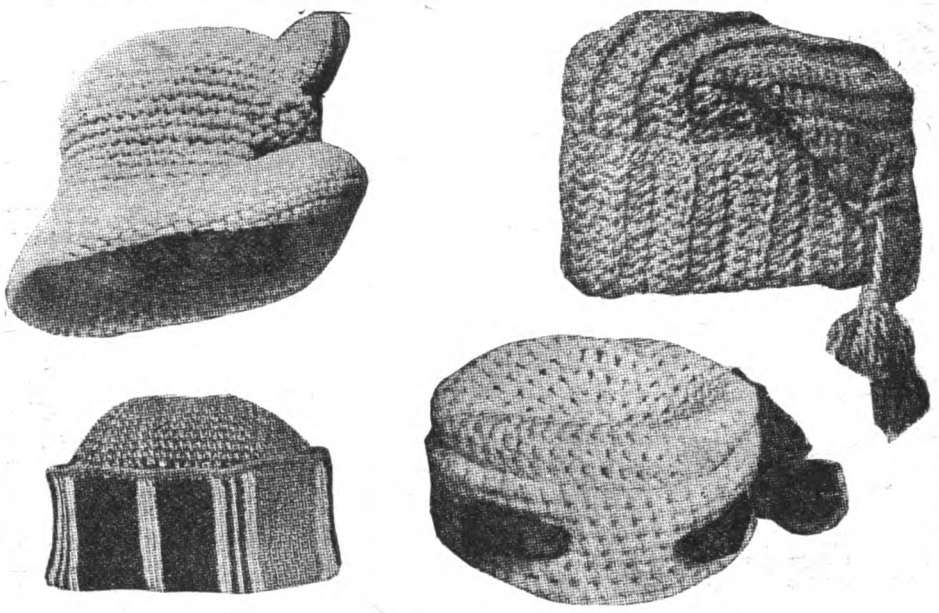
Begin in center of crown with ch. 3, join in ring, ch. 1, 9 s. c. in ring. Do not join as the crown is worked round and round.

2nd round.—Draw up loop on the needle and pick up a loop in each of the 2 first chains of the first row, wool over and through all 3, ch. 1. Pick up a loop in the same ch. with last loop of this first cluster and a loop in the next ch., thread over and through all 3, ch. 1, and repeat all around.

3rd round the same.

4th round.—Make first cluster as before, then pick up a loop in each of the next two chains, wool over and through all 3, ch. 1. *Pick up loop in the same ch. with last loop of the preceding cluster and a loop in next ch., wool over and through all 3, ch. 1, then pick up a loop in each of the 2 next chs., wool over and through all 3, ch. 1 and repeat from * all around, thus widening in every other cluster.

Continue in this way widening sufficiently to keep work almost but not quite flat. In the eighth round do not widen at all. Make 3 more rounds without widening. Then 5 rounds of the same wool or a different color as one prefers.



The brim is of 6 rounds, widened gradually.

8th round.—2 s. c. in every sixth st.

9th round.—2 s. c. in every eighth st.

The work should now measure about eight inches in diameter. Make 12 more rounds without increasing, and cap should be ready for border, if not, enlarge by working another row or two.

For the Border.—Make ch. 21 of dark rose, turn, 1 s. c. in second ch. from hook, 1 s. c. in each st., ch. 1, turn. Make a ch. 1 at end of each row and work as in crown of cap, through both loops. Make 16 rows. Then 1 row light blue, 1 row black, 1 row light blue, 16 rows light rose, 1 row black, 1 row tan, 1 row black, 16 rows canary yellow, 1 row light blue, 1 row light rose, 1 row light blue, repeat by next joining on dark rose. Finish top of this band with row of tan in s. c. to cover ends

CROCHETED HATS AND CAPS OF WOOL.

Trim with wing and rosettes crocheted of the colored wool. For the rosette begin as for the crown and work 4 rounds, drawing the last one in somewhat. For the ring make ch. 15 sts., work 1 round of same st. in hat, turn and work 1 round s. c., repeat alternate rounds in this way until wing is the desired size. Sew trimming in place on left-hand side.

Toque with Tassels

For this very easily made toque one will need three or four skeins of Germantown and a No. 7 crochet hook.

Begin with a ch. of 100 to 115 sts., according to size. This chain gives the length of the cap from front to back and allows for the 3-inch turn-up.

The work is simply rows of double crochet, taking up only the back loop of the stitch, and always making a ch. 2 to turn at the end of each row to keep the edges even.

Crochet closely in all of these caps, and if anything make them a trifle small as with constant wear they stretch out somewhat.

Enough rows of double crochet should be made to reach just half way around the head, and then the cap is seamed up on each side. The left side finished with cord and tassels as shown, while the right is folded in the same way but tacked town inside of the turn-up.

Auto Toque

The ribbon run through this toque ties it securely in place and also adds to its attractiveness. Five skeins of eiderdown or other coarse wool will be needed and bone hook No. 8 or 9.

Begin with chain 3, join in ring. Draw up the loop on hook, wool over and pick up loop under ring, wool over and pick up loop under ring, wool over and through all 5 loops, ch. 1, thus forming 1 cluster. Make 8 more clusters in the ring and join.

2nd round.—Draw up loop on hook, wool over and pick up loop through joining st., wool over, pick up another loop in same st., wool over and through all 5 loops, ch. 1. *Wool over, pick up loop in next space, wool over, pick up loop in same space, wool over and through all 5 loops, ch. 1 and repeat from * all around, increasing by putting an extra cluster in every other space, or 15 clusters in this round.

3rd round.—Make 2 clusters in every third space.

4th round.—Make 2 clusters between each group of two clusters in last row, thus making the increasing at 5 points.

5th round.—1 cluster on each cluster and 2 clusters at each of the 5 points of increase.

6th round.—Increase in every other point only.

7th round.—Increase in points skipped in last row or on 2 points only in this row.

8th round.—Without increasing at all, 2 rounds decreasing, 1 cluster in each.

Four rounds without increasing or decreasing. Then turn and work 6 or 7 rounds for the turn-up.

Finish by running either soft satin or velvet ribbon through this, as shown in our illustration, and tie in bow on the side.

Roman Bordered Cap

This little cap, while quite different from the others, is very pretty for a young girl who needs color and is very easily made, as the stitch is the simply single crochet.

About two skeins of Germantown wool will be needed for the crown, and one half skein each of four different colors.

The cap shown had crown of light tan, with band showing a broad space of dark rose, one of light rose and one of canary yellow. This made a very pretty combination but other colors could be selected. A dark blue bottle green, scarlet and yellow with a little black makes an effective cap.

Using the color for the crown make ch. 3 and join in a ring.

1st round.—Insert hook in ring and draw loop through, thread over and through both loops, thus forming 1 s. c. Make 8 more s. c. in ring. Do not join, work round and round.

2nd round.—Make 2 s. c. in each s. c. of first round, working through both loops of st.

3rd round.—2 s. c.. then 1 s. c., repeat once around.

4th round.—1 s. c. in each s. c., repeat once around. Then make 2 rounds, increasing by putting 2 s. c. in every fourth st.

7th round.—2 s. c. in every fifth st.

of wool. Join when band is right length and then crochet in place to edge of crown.

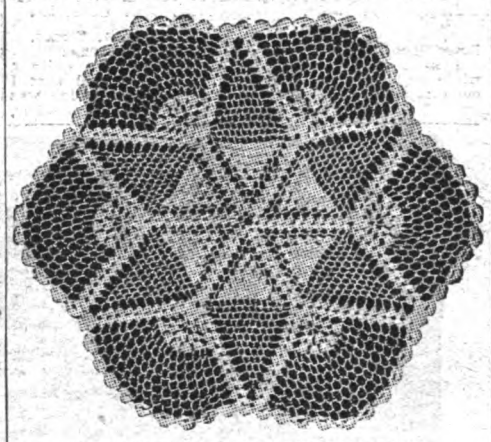
Hexagon and Star Centerpiece

Chain 8 and join.

1st round.—Ch. 3, 2 d. c., ch. 3, 2 d. c., until you have six groups, join.

2nd round.—Ch. 3, shell in shell with ch. 2 between, shell all around and join.

3rd round.—Ch. 3, shell in shell, ch. 2, 1 d. c., ch. 2, shell in shell all around and join.



4th round.—Ch. 3, shell in shell, ch. 2, 1 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 3, 1 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 2, shell in shell all around and join.

5th round.—Ch. 5, shell in shell, ch. 2, 1 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 2, 4 d. c. in ch. 3, ch. 2. 1 d. c. in ch. 2, shell in shell all around and join in 3rd st. of ch. 5.

6th round.—Ch. 5, shell in shell, ch. 2, 1 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 2, 4 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 3, 4 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 2, 1 d. c. in ch. 2, shell in shell all around and join.

7th row.—Ch. 5, shell in shell, ch. 2, 1 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 2, 4 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 2, 4 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 2, 4 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 2, 1 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 2, shell in shell all around and join in 3rd st. of ch. 5.

8th round.—Ch. 5, shell in shell, ch. 2, 1 d. c. in ch. 2, 4 d. c. in ch. 2, 8 d. c. in 8 d. c., ch. 2,

HEXAGON AND STAR CENTERPIECE.

1 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 2, shell in shell all around and join in 3rd st. of ch. 5.

9th round.—Ch. 5, shell in shell, 1 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 2, 4 d. c. in ch. 2, 14 d. c. in 14 d. c., 4 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 2, 1 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 2, shell in shell all around, join in 3rd st. of ch. 5.

10th round.—Ch. 5, shell in shell, ch. 2, 1 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 2, 4 d. c. in ch. 2, 22 d. c. in 22 d. c., 4 d. c. in ch. 2, ch. 2, 1 d. c in ch. 2, ch. 2, shell in shell all around and join in 3rd st. of ch. 5. This completes the Hexigon center.

For the Star

11th round.—Ch. 5, shell in shell, ch. 3, 12 d. c. with ch. 3 between, ch. 3, shell in shell all around, join 3rd st. of ch. 5.

12th round.—Ch. 5, shell in shell, ch. 3, 2 d. c., ch. 3, 2 d. c., ch. 3, shell in shell, all in shell of previous round, ch. 3, 11 d. c. with ch. 3 between in ch. 3 of previous round, join as before.

13th round.—Shell in shell, 3 d. c., ch, 5, 3 d. c. in ch. 3 of middle shell of 2 d. c., ch. 3 and 2 d. c. (of previous shell, last row), shell in shell, ch. 3, 10 d. c. with ch. 3 between (as before), ch. 3, shell in shell as in beginning of 13th row and repeat around.

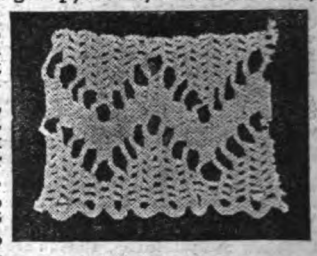
14th round.—Shell in shell, 3 d. c., ch. 5, 1 d. c., ch. 5, 1 d. c., ch. 5, 3 d. c., all in ch. 5 of last round, shell in shell, ch. 3, 9 d. c. with ch. 3 between, shell in shell, etc., repeat around.

15th round.—Shell in shell, shell of d. c., ch. 3, 3 d. c. in ch. 3, ch. 3, shell of 3 d. c., ch. 3, 3 d. c. in ch. 3, ch. 3, 3 d. c., ch. 3, 3 d. c. in ch. 3, shell in shell, ch. 3, 8 d. c. with ch. 3 between, ch. 3, shell in shell all around.

16th round.—Shell in shell, 6 d. c. in ch. 3 of shell, 6 d. c. in ch. 3 between shells until you have 5 clusters of 4 d c., with ch. 2 between shell in shell (this is the fan edge between star points), ch. 3 and decrease d. c. with ch. 3, 1 each time around, shell in shell, repeat around.

17th row.—Shell in shell, ch. 3, d. c. with ch. 3 between 11 times, ch. 3, shell in shell all around.

18th, 19th, 20th, 21st, 22nd and 23rd rounds are like above, decreasing point of star 1 d. c. each round and increasing fan, 1 each round.



For the Scallop

Fill ch. with s. c., ch. 5 and catch back and fill with d. c. all round.

Doily made of No. 40 crochet cotton and of this size thread makes a large centerpiece which is beautiful. MRS. LIDA DEARBORN.

Simple Crocheted Edge

Begin with ch. 36 sts. 1 d. c. in 8th st. from needle, ch. 1, sk. 1, 1 d. c., ch. 1, sk. 1, 1 d. c., ch. 1, sk. 1, 1 d. c., ch. 5, sk. 5, 6 d. c. in next 6 sts., ch. 5, sk. 5, 1 d. c., sk. 1, repeat until there are 7 d. c. in this group, ch. 9, 1 s. c. in end, turn, 10 s. c. under ch. 9, ch. 3, 1 d. c., between each d. c. last row. 2 d. c. under ch. 5, ch. 5, sk. 2 d. c., 6 d. c. on 6 d. c. work last 2 under next ch. 5, ch. 5, 3 d. c. ch. 3, turn. 4 d. c. last 2 under ch. 5, ch. 5, 6 d. c., last 2 under ch. 5, sk. 2 d. c., 7 d. c., with ch. 1, between each, ch. 9, turn. 10 s. c. under ch. 9, ch. 3, 5 d. c., ch. 5, 6 d. c., ch. 5, 6 d. c., ch. 3, turn. Continue zigzagging the center solid band of doubles back and forth through the center as shown by first skipping 2 d. c. on one side and then on the other.

SIMPLE CROCHETED EDGE

Oval Platter Doily

Begin in the center with chain of 66 stitches.

1st round.—A double in the 10th chain from the needle, ch. 3 and a double into the next 4th chain, repeat until you have 14 spaces.

2nd round.—Without turning make ch. 5 for a treble of throwovers. Three rounds in succession are done with crossed trebles, so will give the beginning in detail. The next treble is done behind the chain into the space without turning the work. Pass the needle below the ch. 5 into the back space and make the treble. The chain will be on top and make the cross. This is for the first in a row. The next is a treble in the end space before the ch. 5 a little, to make the cross the next is put back of the last, passing in under the treble, not over the top. Continue to make these crossed trebles all around, putting enough in the ends to keep the work flat. Join to top of ch. 5.

3rd round.—Ch. 5 and make the crossed treble as before. Go into both loops of the trebles below, and on the ends where you must increase you go twice in a stitch. Join on top of ch. 5.

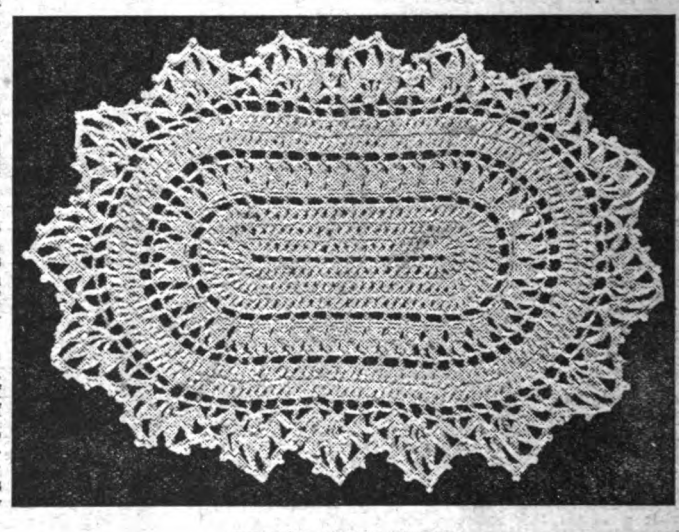
4th round.—Same as 3rd round.

5th round.—This is a round of spaces. The first made with ch. 7 and a double in the space after 2 crossed trebles; after this ch. 4 and a double after every 2 crossed trebles. This is for the sides where the edges are even; on the curved ends use ch. 5. Join on the 3rd of the ch. 7.

6th round.—A row of triangular patterns is next. (Ch. 9, work back on it to make the triangle, skip 1st chain, then 2 singles, 2 half doubles, 2 doubles and 2 trebles. Sl. st. on the next double to fasten). Repeat this for every space all around. Sl. st. up to the top.

7th round.—To go around the ends which are round and straighten up the triangles. (Ch. 3, then a treble down the side to the 3rd last stitch, work off treble twice, then a treble to opposite triangle to correspond with same stitch; work this off twice then thread over and draw through all the loops; now ch. 3 and single on top of next triangle). Repeat this all around, but on the straight edges use only 1 chain in place of 3. Join on first triangle.

8th round.—This is a round of spaces again. Begin with ch. 8 (and a double into the treble between the triangles, ch. 5, a double on triangle, ch. 5); repeat all around, but use ch. 4 on the straight edges.



9th round.—Repeat the 2nd round.

10th round.—Repeat the 3rd round.

11th round.—Repeat the 4th round.

12th round.—Scallops are started now. (Ch. 4, a long treble over the hook three times in the 2nd space), three times more, ch. 4, fasten down on second double, ch. 5, a treble in next double, ch. 5, fasten down with a single in next double. Repeat from the beginning all around.

13th round.—At the first scallop make a triangle as before and fasten on long treble. Do this until you have five, then fill the two chain of 5 to the next scallop with singles. Repeat over each scallop.

OVAL PLATTER DOILY.

14th round.—Pass with ch. 5 and singles from one point of a triangle to another.

15th round.—Fill the chains of 5 full of singles and at every 5th stitch make a ch. 3 picot.

A. O. L. WERTMAN.

The Independence of Country Life

What Science and Invention Have Done to Make Life Easier for the Women on the Farm

Copyright, 1914, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

By Adele Steiner Burleson

NO small proportion of the prosperity and happiness of the modern farm woman has been worked in the laboratories of the scientist and the workshop of the inventor.

The genius of mind has entered her life with a power a little short of revolutionary.

Remoteness and isolation no longer present effective barriers to the march of progress. With the coming of the automobile, the physical boundaries of her world have been widely extended. She need no longer wait for all things to come to her as was too often the case with the farm woman of yesterday. Now she can go far afield for profit or pleasure as the business or recreation needs of her life demand.

But rarely now are the plow horses required to take the family to church on Sunday or to participate in an evening's dissipation at some neighborhood dance or frolic or the all day picnic; such immunity results necessarily in their increased efficiency through the day. Not infrequently they are altogether relieved from the unduly heavy draft work by the traction engines in use on many of the larger farms.

Very pleasing to the ear of the farm woman must be the chug of the little motor engine that pumps the well's water into an elevated tank from which it is piped throughout the house for the convenience of the family. Getting water by simply turning a spigot may interfere with the poetry of the "Old Oaken Bucket" at the well, but it is certain that no farm woman whose duties have ever obliged her to traverse that weary trail from kitchen to well, and laboriously haul up hand over hand on a wet slippery rope, to a secure landing place, that ponderous, moss-covered article, representing the farm's sole supply of water for household use, will ever feel regret at its passing. No one will begrudge its measure of fame in song and story, if its actual existence may be eliminated from its ancient post and confined to poetry.

A sympathetic and observing friend of the farm woman has estimated that the distance she walks in her countless necessary trips between her house and the ordinarily placed well or cistern to be over a thousand miles during the course of a year. No farmer of today is justified in subjecting his wife to such drudgery, when by the expenditure of a little money, time and attention, he can provide his household with an abundant supply of running water.

For the asking he can get the instructive Farmer's Bulletins, issued free by the Agricultural Department of the United States, containing complete plans and instructions for an up-to-date bathroom and laundry, water tanks, the disposal of the sewage, besides directions for protection from contamination of the water supply and various methods of lifting the water. Write secretary of agriculture, Washington, D. C., for them; you need not even enclose postage.

Thus the farmer need not depend upon his own ingenuity to figure out plans to supply his house with modern conveniences. Experts have been employed by the government to work out along sanitary and economical lines all problems presented by country homes.

The situation of the house, the stables and the stockpens are thoughtfully and logically mapped out. The placing of the well or cistern is no longer a haphazard affair, but the result of a careful study of the topography of the farm, to determine where the source of water supply would be least exposed to infection through surface wash or seepage not only from the farm buildings but from any other possible source of infection in the neighborhood. Natural conditions should, of course, decide whether the water supply is to be obtained from a spring or stream or cistern or well. It can be raised by windmill, hydraulic ram or a hot air, gas, gasoline or kerosene motor engine, but whichever plan may happen to be most feasible full directions for its construction and operation, with diagrams, may be secured in the Department of Agriculture bulletins for the farmer.

Perhaps the gravest of the farm's problems is the disposal of the house sewage. For the solution of this also, the government offers valuable suggestions. Several systems, differing according to the size of the family and the natural drainage supplied by the land, have been evolved by these agents and are being successfully used.

Close attention to sanitation, by the farmer's wife is bound to bring large returns in the way of health and happiness for herself and her family. Many dangerous cases of illness, chiefly among the children, occurring on isolated farms and formerly of inexplicable origin, can easily be understood and traced today, when the unclean conditions too often prevalent on such numbers of them are considered. Now that so many of these unfavorable conditions can be combatted or prevented, and a knowledge of how to do so easily at hand, there is small excuse for their existence. A little child's life was and is now frequently the heavy price paid for carelessness and ignorance of home hygiene.

Among the greatest conveniences of the present-day farmer's wife are those of improved methods of lighting and heating. The primitive tallow dip has been relegated to the darkness it so inadequately relieved. Its somewhat but more dangerous successor, the common kerosene lamp, especially the glass variety, with its notorious record of grease, grime, soot, wrecked eyesight, arson and even murder, should be banished, as a nuisance and a menace to comfort, health and safety, and its place should be filled by some of the improved all-metal lamps that combine a greater degree of safety with better efficiency, brilliancy and cleanliness, or by the still more convenient acetylene gas system with its brilliant white light rivaling that of the electric incandescent filament. The kicking over of a lantern by a cow started the great Chicago fire, and hundreds if not thousands of farm buildings have been burned by lantern and hand lamp accidents; all those can now be avoided by use of the electric lantern. The blue-flame, smokeless kerosene stove should be substituted in place of the old, smoking, dangerous style for summer cooking.

The fireless cooker is one of the greatest aids to modern cookery. Provided with one of these the cook or housewife is spared many hot hours in her kitchen watching to see that her stews etc. do not boil over or go dry or that her chicken or roast does not burn up in the oven.

That every family may add a fireless cooker to its kitchen equipment, the government gives explicit directions for the construction of a simple and efficient kind which anyone can readily make at home without need of skilled carpenters or expensive materials.

A tightly covered tin or enamelled bucket or can, a wooden box, and hay or excelsior as packing materials are all that is needed. The box should be considerably larger in every direction than the vessel used for cooking. Line the box with several thicknesses of paper or asbestos. Over the bottom spread a thick layer of hay, crumpled newspaper or similar material tightly packed.

The cooking vessel is placed on the center of this and the spaces between it and the sides are packed as solidly as possible with the hay or excelsior or whatever packing is used. A thick cushion or pad of suitable size should be made for covering the top of the can and a wooden lid or cover for the box is desirable. These boxes may be made to hold two or three vessels just as easily as for one.

The cereal, soup, stew, vegetables or meats may be brought to the boiling point in the can or bucket and cooked on the stove an average of ten minutes. It is then covered tightly, removed to the nest in the cooker, covered on top with the cushion and the top of the box is closed and kept closed until the dish is to be served.

For all foods that require long slow cooking, this device offers a happy and economical solution. Printed instructions for making and using may be had free from U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The hot water or hot air furnace with its maximum of comfort and minimum of trouble is a delightful substitute for any other system of heating, no matter what. Its genial cheer, penetrates to every part of the house, dispelling cold and discomfort for each member of the family in his or her own particular habitat, instead of forcing them to be part of a helpless chilly group hovered over a community fireplace or a stove.

An open log fire, with its crackling and pungency, is a charming feature in a well heated room on a winter evening, but as a thing to stand between a family and zero weather, no greater fraud exists.

A rich heritage for the farmer's wife was the discovery of a way to separate cream from milk. By one simple process she saves enormously in both time and labor.

So interested has Uncle Sam become in the welfare of the farm woman that a special division in one of the bureaus of Agricultural Department has been established solely for her benefit. It is called the Office of Farm Management, and its object is to develop and enrich the life of the farm woman.

This is being accomplished in various ways.

The first step has been an effort to get in touch with farm homes and secure the personal co-operation of the housekeepers in the proposed work of the office. From among the six million farm homes scattered thoughout the length and breadth of the United States, a number of varying types have been selected for purposes of experimentation. The immediate object in view being to study present conditions on the farm, secure exhaustive accurate information as to the character and quantity of labor done by the farm woman, the cost or articles purchased or sold by her and the amount of farm produce used in the home.

To facilitate the collection of this data special blanks have been prepared and sent out from this office. The labor record reads as follows:

Preparation, serving and clearing up of meals;

Care of the House, including sweeping, dusting and house-cleaning;

Care of children;

Laundry work;

Sewing, mending;

Marketing;

Canned fruit;

Care of poultry;

Dairy Work, including milking, churning and washing the separator;

The garden;

The yard;

Miscellaneous labor.

The farm woman is also asked to record the time she devotes to recreation.

Already practical plans have been worked out in the office for the purpose of relieving the farm woman from many of the inconveniences against which she has been contending for centuries.

Designs for the farmhouse, a general plan for the grounds and, most important of all perhaps for the farmer's wife, a model kitchen, are supplied to those who choose to avail themselves of the valuable suggestions proffered by the government. Not only is the kitchen plan made to conform to practical economy in construction but the same idea is carried out in every tiny detail of the equipment, and arrangement of furniture.

The same beneficent power may also preside while the farmer's wife tests the scores of recipes formulated in the government's own kitchens where the food values from the standpoint of nutrition are analyzed and all combinations of foods judged by these standards.

The deep secrets of good bread-making stand revealed, from the working of the original yeast cells to the proper cooling of the finished product. Every step of the process is explained, and a formula given so that failure may be avoided or at least understood by the bread maker. Dozens of new, palatable preparations with cornmeal have been created by the scientific government cooks. They also offer explicit directions regarding temperature, etc., so that the veriest amateur may marshall her courage and go to work with a fair show of success with her bread, provided she pays strict attention to her recipe.

Tomatoes have been canned on the farm for many years, but recent experiments in the Bureau of Chemistry show that practically the entire surplus of the garden can be saved. With a proper outfit and intelligent methods, such vegetables as squash, egg plant, beets and succotash may be as easily canned for winter use as tomatoes.

If the garden and orchard overflow are too great to be saved by the farmer's family, a neighborhood club may be organized for its preservation. The members congregate in turn at the various farms and with the entire force of the membership at work, the surplus is soon stored away in glass jars and cans. The club sometimes becomes a business firm finding a sale for its products in adjacent towns. At the ring of that modern genii, the telephone, the distance between the club's business manager and the town merchant is bridged. The terms of contracts discussed and sales accomplished within the space of a few minutes. Lacking the telephone facilities, there remains always the telegraph and the now quick delivery of mail by the rural carrier. Another modern institution of yet unreckoned value to the farm woman is the Parcel Post. It removes practically every barrier between her and the city or town market, taking her products from her own gate, delivering them into the hands of the purchaser, collecting the price if desired and returning it to her.

A little study of the system in order to understand clearly the weight limit, the rates charged within the various zones, the regulations regarding the preparation of parcels, etc., would be very helpful to the farm woman. She can get this information for the asking from the rural carrier on her route or the postmaster. It is hoped that the system will work out so satisfactorily between producer and consumer that not a single product of the farm will go to waste.

Efforts are being made by the postmaster of the City Post Office at Washington to bring into close touch the people on the farms who have something to sell and the people in the towns who wish to buy. He advertises for the names and addresses of farmers who are willing to furnish country produce to town patrons by parcel post. Lists of these names are displayed in the Public Library and mailed to the various householders. To these farmers the postmaster sends a printed circular containing full information of the parcel post system, with instructions and suggestions as to its use. To aid in developing and perfecting this plan by which a town woman may do her marketing in the country and the farm woman not only dispose of her wares, but do so without sharing her profits with a middleman, the postmaster has secured the co-operation of the Housekeeper's League of Washington City whose members by actual personal transactions are testing its working qualities.

Each member sends an order to one or more of the listed farmers or farm women according to her own needs in the matter of eggs, poultry, vegetables, fruit, honey, home-made pickles, preserves sausage, hams, eggs, etc., and reports to the club and the postmaster as to the condition in which the produce was received, the promptness and conscientiousness with which the order was filled and the punctuality of its delivery by the post-office department. To facilitate the use of the parcel post large receptacles for packages are being installed all over the country. Good service on her part not only insures a steady market to the farm woman, but it brings within her reach something even more important from the standpoint of personal independence. And that is her own bank account. Some have already achieved one, but many women have felt that their savings were too small to offer to a bank. With the establishment of the Postal Savings Bank, where the very small sums are accepted, and the opportunities offered them by the Parcel Post for making money there is no real reason why every farm woman should not lay by something in her own name.

Unquestionably there has been during recent years tremendous impetus given farm life by the scientific solving of many of the most important problems and the publication and wide free distribution of these results.

It is no longer necessary for a man or a woman to have been born and brought up on a farm in order to become a farmer. If a woman, for women have become important farmers, feels a call to the farm, she has only to decide what crops she likes best to cultivate, provide herself with all the literature on the subject, buy the necessary number of acres for the cultivation of the selected crop and proceed to grow it. Intensive cultivation can do wonders on a very small plot of ground. There is one crop, the mushroom that calls for nothing more than a cellar.

The best cultural methods for valuable melon crops may be had from the government. Experience counts in farming as it does in everything else, but the beginner can escape the discouragement of total failure by supplying himself with Uncle Sam's accumulated experience set forth in the most complete work of farm literature ever compiled—the Farmer's Bulletins.

They not only instruct you how to spray your potatoes and why; how to dip and shear your sheep; and the best methods of packing the fleeces so that they will bring the highest market prices. The farmer's wife gets new ideas upon storing vegetables, and staples during the winter season, the most up-to-date instructions on the care and feeding of children and sick people, and the care of food in hot weather. Besides there are many valuable hints which may be turned to account in gardening, poultry and bird raising, and also raising of squabs and hares. Even the oldest, most experienced farmer has learned the value of the vast scope of work done on the government experiment farms and in the field work, and he is glad to get help from this reliable source when he is confronted with an obstinate case of soil drifting or an ugly wash that threatens to exhaust his soil resources.

Besides the value of Government instruction to the farmer, every rural housewife may be instructed in the anatomy of the beef; just where the tenderest cuts are to be found, and the actual food value of every part. She is given a number of recipes showing how the tougher, least attractive portions of the meat can be made into savory dishes. She is also told how to combine other fat with mutton fat so that it becomes as valuable for family use as lard. Then too mutton is exhaustively treated, as it does not receive the attention in this country that it deserves and gets abroad, which is largely due to the fact that we have not learned the secrets of cooking it appetizingly.

In fact a complete set of the Farmer's Bulletins furnish free a liberal education in domestic science and home economics, not only to the farmer and his family but to the urbanite as well. They not only teach new ideas and the use of the most modern practical appliances, the futility of wasting time and energy following obsolete methods, but they so present the theories of conservation and efficiency as to put many of the inventions of the age within the reach of people, to whom they were once, if not unwelcome, at least undesired, as much because of a narrow viewpoint as for financial reasons. Now the uses of the gasolene and kerosene engines are legion. The washing machine, the mangle, the churn, the sewing machine and in fact almost everything that requires motive power may now be run by the same force that pumps the water and does much of the field work.

Where electricity is available, farm life may be made the ideal existence, with an independence that is hard to excel. For there seems to be no limit to the achievements within its power, and by its use, comfort and convenience may, with the pressure of a button or the turn of a lever, become positive luxury.

With so many forces at work in her interest it is safe to predict a life of increasing usefulness and culture for the farmer's wife and all farm women.

Already they stand for much that is finest in our national life. It is not difficult to believe that at no distant day her environment will respond to her needs and desires and she herself will embody the highest of our country's ideals.

A Thorn Among Roses

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8.)

regarding Will and Alice which she had made in such a dishonorable manner.

"Have you never heard of rumors about her and Will?" she inquired, evasively.

"No; have you?"

"Yes; it is said that he has been a very constant visitor at the Weston cottage during his vacations, and her being here now looks very much like an—engagement."

"Impossible!" exclaimed Imogen, flashing crimson with anger.

"I know that you hinted a long time ago that he admired her, but I scarcely gave the matter a second thought. He can't be such a fool."

"Don't be too confident; auntie—I am sure he is very fond of her, and—it really seems as if Lady Marchmont must saction his choice, since she is a visitor here." Olive returned, with an ugly frown.

"I never will believe it," was the irritable response. "It would be a downright shame, for Will to throw himself away in any such manner. Olive—since it came out who he really is—I have set my heart upon his marrying you. I have long known that you loved him, but I never cared so much for the match as since he became the Marquis of Leith."

Before she had concluded, Olive had dropped her face upon her hands and burst into a passion of tears, thus betraying how strongly her own heart had been set upon the same thing.

Imogen allowed her to weep until the storm spent itself, while she sat with frowning brow revolving some deep scheme to frustrate the union of Will and Alice, if time should prove such a plan was contemplated.

When the girl recovered her composure, they fell to discussing the matter in a way that boded ill for the unsuspecting lovers below.

Several other guests were expected to arrive that afternoon, and carriages were sent to Riegate, the nearest railway station, to meet them.

CHAPTER XII.

A COWARDLY PLOT.

Lady Marchmont, with Alice, Olive and Mrs. Ingraham, were all assembled in the great hall as the hour of their coming drew near.

Alice was feeling very happy, for May was coming with the expected arrivals, and she could hardly restrain her impatience to see her. The sisters had seldom been separated for any length of time, and each missed the other sadly when parted.

Imogen and Olive were both elaborately dressed in silks; but Alice wore a cool-looking blue lawn, its ruffles edged with a narrow white lace. Her only ornament was a small locket, enameled in blue and studded with diamonds, which she wore suspended from her neck by a fine gold chain.

Will had given it to her that very morning, and it contained an excellent likeness of himself painted on ivory.

But in spite of the simplicity of her attire, with her wealth of golden hair crowning her beautiful face, and a bunch of crimson nasturtiums in her belt, she was a picture which a master would have loved to paint.

Presently the sound of hoofs and the rumble of wheels on the avenue announced that the visitors were near, and Alice slipped out upon the porch to greet May as soon as she should alight.

She was almost the first, and, springing up the steps, she gave her sister a joyous salutation.

"What an age it has seemed to have you away a whole week, Alice," she cried, giving her an affectionate hug, adding, breathlessly: "And, oh! where did you get that love of a locket?"

"You might know, dear, without asking," Alice replied, smiling, but flushing rosily.

The other guests followed, and were cordially received, and then the grooms began to take the luggage of the guests to the various rooms allotted to them.

The trunks were carried up first and these were followed by the hand baggage.

Imogen Ingraham was sitting near the stairway, chatting with some of the new arrivals, when one of the men paused close beside her to allow some one to pass him.

As he did so, a piece of luggage which he had in his hand swung against Imogen's dress, and a buckle caught upon the fabric.

She glanced down at it.

The next moment she started to her feet, her face paling to the hue of marble, her eyes almost starting from their sockets, while a low cry burst from her lips.

She swayed dizzily for an instant, then sank in a heap upon the floor, having fainted dead away.

* * * * * * * * * *

When Imogen returned to the ballroom, the first sight that met her eyes was Will waltzing with Alice Weston, and both lovers looked as if they were oblivious to everything save the presence of each other.

She found Olive sitting in a corner alone, and also watching the couple, while she was looking the picture of jealous despair.

"Don't be foolish, Olive," she whispered, as she paused before her, "anyone can see, if they choose to look, that you are eating your heart out with jealousy. Go to dancing yourself, and don't let people suspect the real state of things. Where is your father?"

"Over yonder," Olive responded, with crimson cheeks and a flash of anger in her eyes, and indicating, by a gesture, a window, where Mr. Fletcher stood conversing with some gentlemen of his acquaintance.

Imogen made her way slowly toward him, and finally slipped out of the window, which reached to the floor, upon a balcony that ran along that side of the ballroom and made a convenient promenade for the dancers when they desired to get a breath of fresh air.

She had made a slight signal to Mr. Fletcher as she passed him, and as soon as he could manage, he joined her.

"What is it, Imogen?" he asked, as he came to her side; "did you wish to see me for anything special?"

"Have you had your eyes about you this evening?" she curtly inquired.

"Well, yes, I hope so," he answered, laughing, "but I do not quite comprehend the drift of your question, which is decidedly ambiguous, to say the very least."

"Have you observed how outrageously Will is flirting with one of those Weston girls?"

"Well, I have noticed that he has been with Miss Alice a good deal; but I must confess that I have seen nothing outrageous either in his conduct or hers," the gentleman quietly returned.

"It is outrageous, nevertheless," his companion sharply retorted, "because it cannot fail to compromise the girl."

"How so?"

"Surely you do not need to ask that?" said Imogen, scornfully, "for when a young man in Will's position shows such marked attention to a low-born girl like Alice Weston, people begin to think something is wrong."

"And why?" persisted Roland Fletcher.

"Because, of course, he could not marry anyone so far beneath him——"

"Pardon me, Imogen, but I do not regard Miss Weston as one whit beneath Will, dearly as I love the boy and proud as I am of him," gravely interposed Mr. Fletcher. "She is a beautiful, accomplished and remarkably clever young lady."

"Yes, she is pretty and smart. I'll admit that, but she has no social standing whatever, and it would be a thousand pities to have Will mar his brilliant future by marrying a girl whom society would never receive. And besides——"

"Besides what?"

Imogen shot a quick, searching look into the grave face beside her—she knew she was daring a great deal.

"Oh! are you so blind?" she exclaimed, with an impatient gesture, "do you not know that Olive loves him—idolizes him?—that she is perfectly wretched because of this flirtation, and her whole life will be ruined if Will marries this girl?"

Roland Fletcher started slightly, and a spasm of pain shot athwart his features.

"Are you sure of this?" he questioned, in a low tone.

Imogen hesitated a moment before replying, and her heart beat almost suffocatingly when she spoke again in a low, impassioned voice.

"Yes—as sure of it as—I am of—what I betrayed to you six years ago," she said.

"Imogen! I thought that subject had been forever buried in oblivion," her companion returned, in a tone of surprise; "I told you at the time, you will remember, how deeply I regretted having surprised the secret from you, but I also told you that I could never give the place that my Alice once occupied to another. I—I am very sorry that you should have referred to it again," and he involuntarily withdrew a pace or two from her as he concluded.

"I know, and I suppose I should not have spoken of it," she responded, a pathetic sob escaping her, "but—I love Olive and I know, from personal experience, just how wretched she is—just how, like a cruel blank, the world seems to her in view of the fear that all her fond hopes will be blighted, if Will obstinately persists in ruining himself by making a low marriage."

"Is this the reason why Olive is so rude to Miss Weston," inquired Mr. Fletcher, and utterly ignoring the reference she had made to her own hopeless attachment to himself.

Indeed, there had swept over him a momentary feeling of disgust that she should have so boldly confessed her love anew. Six years previous he had come upon her suddenly one morning and found her weeping. Upon questioning her kindly as to the cause of her grief, she had appalled him by revealing the fact that she had loved him for years—ever since before his marriage with Alice.

He had gently told her that while he was greatly grieved to learn that he had been the innocent cause of so much sorow to her, his heart was still true to the love he had lost, and he could never make another woman his wife.

He had believed then that he had made the matter so clear to her that he had effectually silenced any further hope or reference to the subject; and now this second confession was a severe shock to the respect he had entertained for her.

"Rude to Miss Weston?" Imogen repeated, questioningly, while the indignant blood mounted to her brow, and she was filled with secret rage that her eloquence should have had so little effect upon him.

"Yes, positively rude," he said. "I have been deeply pained to observe that, upon several occasions, Olive has been very uncivil to both young ladies."

"Really, Mr. Fletcher, I cannot understand how you can take sides against your own daughter. One would suppose you were actually in favor of Will marrying Miss Weston," retorted Imogen, with a bitter sneer.

"Well, then, Mrs. Ingraham, let me tell you, frankly, that if Will chooses to marry Miss Weston, I see no reason why he should not do so. I believe she is a sweet, womanly girl—she is well educated and well mannered—an innate little lady, his equal in every respect excepting that of money and his newly acquired title, both of which count, to me, for very little in comparison with moral worth and virtue; and I have no patience with the so-called caste which would forbid a manly fellow choosing his moral and mental equal for a wife when both his own and her lifelong happiness depends upon such a union. I am sorry for Olive poor child, if she has given away her heart and is suffering the pangs of unrequited love," he continued, sadly, "and we must try to do something—go somewhere, perhaps, to take her mind from it."

"Oh, Roland Fletcher, do you for a moment think that, when a woman has once poured out the wealth of her heart in a hopeless love, her mind can be taken from the object of her affection?—that she can be pacified like a child with toys and shows, etc.?" Imogen blazed forth, in a voice that quivered with mingled anger and pain. And with that scathing retort, she turned sharply from him and passed back into the ballroom, leaving him alone and in no comfortable frame of mind.

But she had no heart to remain with the company after that, and she soon retreated to her own apartment, where she spent hours trying to concoct some scheme to wreck the happiness of Alice Weston and make Olive the lady of Leith.

But the gay music swept on, and nimble feet kept time to it; happy faces and gay laughter filled the great room; eyes looked love to eyes that spake again, and all was, literally, as gay as a marriage bell, and that one woman, sitting alone with malice, envy and hate rumbling in her heart, was not missed from the scene.

It was a late hour when the festivities came to an end, and everybody, save the guests of the house, departed, radiant with pleasure and wishing all manner of good to the future master of Leith.

The next forenoon most of the remaining visitors went away, leaving none save the Fletchers and May and Alice Weston, who were to drive to Windsor late in the afternoon, when the day should become cool enough for a comfortable trip.

Mrs. Ingraham had pleaded indisposition and had remained in her room all the morning.

She came down in season for lunch, however, and said, although she looked pale and seemed nervous, that she was perfectly well and able to take the long ride to Castleview.

Shortly after lunch, Nellie, her ladyship's maid, made her appearance in the library, whither the party had repaired, a troubled look on her face, and, approaching Lady Marchmont, said in a low tone:

"Your ladyship, I cannot find the money or the bill which you told me to take to the steward."

"Cannot find them, Nellie!" her mistress replied in surprise; "they are in the tray of that box in which I keep all my receipts—a roll of notes, with the bill wrapped around them."

"There is no money there, your ladyship," the girl said in a troubled tone, but speaking positively.

"You have not looked thoroughly, I imagine," Lady Marchmont remarked, as she arose, and a look of annoyance flitted across her face as she spoke, for she did not like personal affairs discussed before guests. She excused herself and followed the girl from the room, and, as everyone had heard the conversation, her return was awaited with some curiosity.

She was absent nearly half an hour, and looked grave and preoccupied when she rejoined her guests.

"Well, your ladyship," said Will, smiling up at her, as she passed him, "did the money come to light?"

"No, Will."

"Is that so?" he observed, in surprise; "was there a large amount?"

"About sixty pounds."

"Well, this is rather serious. Are you sure it was in your receipt box?" the young man questioned.

"Yes, I folded it in the bill, ready to give to Mr. Snelling; I put it in the tray and locked the box before coming down to breakfast. The box has been forced open with the sewing machine screw-driver, and both bill and money are missing," Lady Marchmont explained.

Will started to his feet.

"This is decidedly unpleasant. I think I will look into it," he said, gravely.

"Let the matter rest, my son, for the present," returned her ladyship, giving him a significant glance, "I have ordered Nellie to say nothing about it, and we will investigate it later."

Will understood that she did not wish the subject pursued until after their guests' departure, and he resumed his seat.

Indeed, Lady Marchmont was greatly annoyed that the matter should have been aired before her visitors, and was inclined to blame her maid for not having called her from the room before telling her of the loss; but the girl was frightened and acted upon the impulse of the moment.

A couple of hours later the gentlemen thought it would be well to be getting on their way, and the ladies repaired to their rooms to prepare for their drive.

The Fletchers were going in their own carriage, as they had come, while Alice and May were to be driven home in the Marchmont carriage, attended by Will, who was to return to Leith on the following morning.

Just as Alice was about to lock her trunk, she found that the dress she had worn the evening previous was not folded quite to her mind.

She removed it, laying it on the bed, and carefully refolded, in a way to prevent the delicate trimmings from being crushed. She was on the point of returning it to the trunk when she observed that some other articles needed straightening.

"Why!" she mentally exclaimed, "I am sure I did not leave my things in such disorder!"

She sank upon her knees, and began to rearrange them, changing the position of several garments, when, all at once, a sharp cry broke from her.

"What did you say, Alice?" May called out, brightly, from the dressing-room, and thinking her sister had addressed her.

The girl hesitated an instant before replying, while her face was as pale as snow.

Then she said in a cold, grave tone, as she arose to her feet: "May, will you go to Lady Marchmont and ask her if she will kindly come here for a moment?"

"Why, how queer, Alice, to ask her that! Why do you not go to her?" returned her sister, putting her head inside the door and looking the surprise she felt at the strange request.

But Alice was standing with her back towards her and looking down into the trunk.

"Never mind why dear," she said, with unwonted gravity, "but run away quickly, for I have something important to say to her; and please ask Will to come, too, but be sure you do not let anyone else hear you speak to them."

May did not half like her errand and Alice's manner sorely puzzled her, but she knew that her sister seldom acted without a good and sufficient reason, and she tripped unquestioningly away to do her bidding.

Five minutes later Lady Marchmont appeared upon the scene, and closely followed by Will and May.

"What is it, dear?" she smilingly began; then observing the look of horror on the girl's white face, she exclaimed in a tone of alarm: "Why, Alice, are you ill?—pray tell me what troubles you?"

"Lady Marchmont," she faltered, with trembling lips, "it is something dreadful, and I do not know what you will think; but I can only act as honesty and a desire to be perfectly straightforward prompt me. When I came up-stairs a few moments ago I found that some of my clothing had been disarranged in my trunk, which I purposely left open until the last moment; but, while I was attempting to straighten things, I—I found—these!"

She stooped as she spoke and, sweeping aside a dainty robe de nuit, revealed to the astonished gaze of her companions not only the roll of missing bank notes wrapped in the bill, but also some pieces of valuable jewelry belonging to Lady Marchmont, together with a handsome stick pin, set with diamonds, that had been missed by one of the guests who had left early that morning.

A cry of dismay escaped Will as he comprehended the situation. He flushed a vivid crimson, then became as pale as his betrothed, while May sank upon the side of the bed, utterly overcome and wretched beyond expression.

Lady Marchmont bestowed one glance of amazement upon the money and jewels, then her great, earnest gray eyes sought the colorless face of the girl standing before her.

TO BE CONTINUED.

"A Girl in a Thousand" and "A Thorn Among Roses"

BOTH BOOKS FREE!

The story "A Girl in a Thousand" does not complete the narrative. In order to get the climax you should read its sequel "A Thorn Among Roses" now running in COMFORT. If, however, you missed one or more installments of "A Girl in a Thousand" we will be glad to send you the story in book form just as it appeared in COMFORT. If you desire, we can also supply you with its sequel "A Thorn Among Roses" in book form. Large installments will appear each month in COMFORT but if you do not want to wait in order to complete the story, we will send you the book thereby giving you the opportunity to finish the story as soon as you like. Send us only one new 25-cent 15-month subscription (not your own) to COMFORT, or your own subscription, renewal or extension of your present subscription at 25 cents and 6 cents additional (30 cents in all) and we will send you either book—your choice of "A Girl in a Thousand" or "A Thorn Among Roses"—or for two 15-month subscriptions at 25 cents each we will send you both books free and postpaid

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Incomes of Taxpayers

"There are in the United States according to the income tax reports," said an official-looking personage, "only forty-four people who have an annual income of a million dollars or more and their names are not made public so the begging contingent can't write letters to them asking for money. There are ninety-one whose incomes range from $500,000 to a million and two hundred and twenty-two ranging from a quarter to a half million. From one hundred thousand to a quarter of a million they are so numerous as almost to be common, the number being twelve hundred and forty-one; and from fifty to a hundred thousand they run up to three thousand six hundred and sixteen, or about eighty to each state in the Union. From ten thousand to fifty thousand a year the woods are full of them, there being as many as forty-six thousand seven hundred and fifty-six men and women who have that amount of money to spend every year. From twenty-five hundred to ten thousand they seem to come in droves, though perhaps they don't come your way, for this the lowest class of the fortunate incomers numbers over a quarter of a million two hundred and ninety-five thousand six hundred and eight, to be exact. Think of all those having that much and how many of us talking here don't have any income tax to pay at all. Of the income tax payers, 6,682 were married women and 23,551 were unmarried women, but why women with incomes should remain unmarried when there are so many men looking for incomes, I don't quite understand. The number of unmarried men returning incomes was 55,212. In all there were 278,835 persons returning incomes, which is 146,828 less than should have reported according to estimates made by Congress. The Internal Revenue Bureau is after these dodgers and some of them will be run in and made to pay their little contribution to Uncle Sam. It was expected that the income tax would bring in about 45 millions, but only 28 millions were realized. While 278,835 seem like a mighty big number of people to have incomes from $2,500 a year up, we must remember that there are one hundred millions of us in this country and the vast majority don't pay income tax. But every man of us would be glad enough to pay the tax, as we feel now about it, but I guess if we had the income our feelings might change and some of us would dodge just as these other dodgers have done."

RUBBER GROWN TO FLESH.—An operation performed recently by a French surgeon, Prof. Delbet, on the finger of a patient, demonstrated that India rubber can be successfully incorporated with animal tissue. The flesh of the finger had adhered to the bone, rendering the member useless. Prof. Delbet interposed a thin sheet of rubber and now the finger can be used as freely as the others.

You Owe Your Face a Good, Clear Skin

And Stuart's Calcium Wafers in a Very Short Time Will Clear Up Your Complexion Naturally.

Just in a few days one may clear the skin of all manner of blemishes such as pimples, blotches, liver spots, etc., if one will use Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

Don't use pasty lotions and creams to fill up the pores when they are working constantly with the blood to throw off the impurities of your system.

"Before I rid my face of pimples I was not thought to be pretty. But all the change I made was to clean my blood and skin."

Many a face is made with beautiful contour and artistically lined, but when the skin is discolored one cannot see the beauty of the face lines. One notices only the skin blemishes.

It's because pimples and eruptions come from the inside—from impure blood—and you can't cure them by rubbing stuff on the outside of the face. Purify the blood and the blemishes will disappear.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers will often clear the complexion in a few days' time. That's the wonderful part of it—they act right off—in a hurry. That's because they're made of just the ingredients needed to drive all poisons and impurities from the blood. That's why doctors prescribe them so constantly.

You will speedily enjoy a beautiful complexion if you use these wonderful little Wafers. Your face will become as clear and pure as a rose. Nobody likes to have pimply-faced people around. With Stuart's Calcium Wafers you don't have to wait for months before getting results. Even boils have been cured in a few days' time with these remarkably effective blood cleansers. Your whole system will feel better in a marvelously short time, and my, what a difference in your looks!

You can get Stuart's Calcium Wafers of any druggist at 50 cents a box. A small sample package mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., 175 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

25 Valentine Post Cards 10c

THE BEST YOU EVER SAW — 25 NO TWO ALIKE

25 of the most beautiful post cards ever sold, 10 cents. All different, consisting of dainty Cupids, Hearts, Doves, Lovers, Text and Floral designs. Far better than our Christmas cards, and they were beauties. Some are embossed and in gold, lithographed in many colors on a fine grade of cardboard.

V. HERMAN & CO. 2430 North Halsted St., Dept. 126, CHICAGO

WATCH, RING AND CHAIN GIVEN

Stem Wind & Set

For selling thimbles and needles. We positively give a genuine American Stem Wind and Set Watch, beautifully designed case, warranted time-keeper, 5-Year guarantee, Sparkling Set or Plain Ring, all for selling 20 Silver-Aluminum Thimbles at 10c each. Paper of Gold-Eye Needles Free with each Thimble. Easy to sell. Write for them. When sold return the $2 and we will send the watch and ring. Ladies' or Gents' style Chain.

HOME SUPPLY CO., Dept. 212 Chicago Ill.

MUSIC TAUGHT FREE

At Your Home. Write today for our booklet. It tells how to learn to play Piano, Organ, Violin, Mandolin, Guitar, Banjo, etc. Beginners or advanced pupils.

AMERICAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC, 11 Lakeside Bldg., Chicago

UNCLE CHARLIE'S

Poems and Story Book, cloth bound, 50 cents each. Song Book 30 cents. Address

UNCLE CHARLIE, care Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

Genuine Weatherproof Garment

Utility Coat for Ladies, Misses and Men

Fashioned after the model of a "Great Coat," it covers the entire person from "Head to Foot," affording complete protection from the weather, be it wind or rain. Made of waterproof rubber sheeting, in two colors, Olive Drab or Tan and Gray with Plaid Lining, every seam is both sewed and cemented, has standing Military Collar, two side pockets and five large buttons.

For walking the coat is none too heavy, for riding it is the greatest rain and wind repellant imaginable.

Every person, especially schoolgirls, should be amply protected from the weather, and this coat provides a garment that covers all the outer clothes, providing warmth and keeping everything dry. Such coats usually sell for $5.00 but we can give them away free for small subscription clubs as we have bought a quantity at great advantage. Read the offer carefully. Premium No. 530.

Club Offer. For a club of twelve 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each or six three-year subscriptions at 50 cents each we will send you this coat by parcel post prepaid. Be sure to name color wanted, also give size or bust measure. Men's sizes are 34 to 44, length 51 inches, women's size 32 to 44, length 54 inches, misses' sizes are 14, 16 and 18. Address

COMFORT,
Augusta, Maine

The Pretty Girls' Club

Conducted by Katherine Booth

Something about the Bath

THE prettiest girl is always the cleanest girl. The reason for this is, that, unless all impurities are removed from the skin before they can be seized upon and retained by the pores, the result will be pimples and blackheads galore.

A bath is not only a necessity but a luxury, and the bath habit smooths one's temper and nerves almost as effectively as it wards off wrinkles.

For all of these reasons, make a January first resolution never to omit the daily bath. Perhaps some of us are a little careless, at times, feel tired or sleepy at night, hurried in the morning, and content ourselves with a half-hearted sponging or even just a face bath, except for the weekly "scrubbing."

This is all wrong. We need at least one good bath a day—and two, one at night and one in the morning, is even better for both health and beauty.

So, girls, let's choose the best for ourselves, and say quite firmly and out loud, "I belong to the Order of the Daily Bath."

If you bathe at night, choose a hot bath, and if there is running water in the house and a nice generous bathtub let the water run all the time you are in the tub, so that it will keep stirred up constantly and as warm and "comfy" as possible.

Rub yourself dry with a soft towel, and jump into bed without a minute's delay, because the only objection to a hot bath is that people foolishly wander around cold rooms afterward in too few clothes, get chilled, and, as a result, catch cold.

A hot bath is good for "nerves," for wakefulness, for that general tired feeling, and for congestion of any kind, periodical or otherwise. It relaxes the muscles, and rests one.

If you are very nervous, and perhaps inclined to either neuralgia or rheumatism, pour two ounces of turpentine in the bath water and three ounces of green soap. Green soap, you know, is not green at all, but in appearance something like old-fashioned soft soap. It is called potash soap by the druggist, and is about the consistency of custard.

It is a good soap to have on hand for the treatment of blackheads. For this purpose it should be rubbed on to the face, after the latter has been thoroughly washed in hot water and steamed with hot wet cloths.

The soap should stay on the face almost five minutes then the skin scrubbed with a camel's-hair complexion brush and hot water. Some of the blackheads will come away. Rinse thoroughly, dry, and rub in cold cream.

Make your bath a sort of "pleasure exertion," so that you will look forward to it in a restful part of the day. Carry your manicure things to the bath with you, and while you rest in the water for five minutes—or possibly ten (keep the water at an even temperature remember!) use your orange-wood stick to push the cuticle down at the base of the nails, your file to dispose of any little roughness at the tip, etc., etc., etc.

A bath mitten will stimulate the circulation when drying the body, or you can buy a bath strap (very much like a razor strop, only wider and make of heavy Turkish towelling) and, by slipping a hand in each end loop, friction the body with it.

When you want to be especially dainty, try rubbing the body with flour after the bath. It gives the skin a soft velvety surface. Do not use it on the face, however, as it might result in blackheads, the pores being open after the hot bath.

If you live in a more old-fashioned house, whose big drawback is the lack of a bathtub, it is little harder to compass the daily bath, but try to do so, even if you must restrict it to a quick sponge of the body from a bowl of hot, soapy water, and a rinsing from another. And, in any case keep the face well scrubbed nightly.

Choose pure soaps for bathing—not the strong lye soap used in the kitchen or about the housework. Oatmeal bags thrown into the water will soften it, or the water in which bran has been boiled will prove equally beneficial.

Even if you haven't a bathtub, you can use one of the cabinet baths as a substitute. I spent a winter once in a Southern town where the bathtub was conspicuous by its absence. But I had taken with me a bath cabinet—nothing more or less than a four-walled rubber-covered screen which folded into a box and fastened, after I was inside it, and which had rubber flaps at the top to button about my neck and close the opening.

A pan of water set over a small alcohol stove and placed below a cane-seated chair on which I sat after undressing for the bath, was what made me clean. The steam condensed, and as I got warm and warmer the little drops of water poured out of my pores. After ten minutes I could emerge, and, giving myself a good brisk rubbing with a rough towel, be spotlessly clean.

You could improvise such a bath from a low clothes rack and some blankets; but it is wise in using an alcohol lamp to put it in a deep iron kettle, so no flame could possibly do damage. Set a pan of water over this kettle and it will prove not only safe but effective.

A vapor bath like this, once a week, will do wonders for your complexion. Remember not to wander about your room afterward, but to make a bee-line for bed, and cover yourself up to the chin with warm blankets.

It is a pleasant practise to keep one's bath towel in a drawer or closet where violet sachets are laid. Then, when the warm body is rubbed with them, a very faint and delicate odor is left—not strong enough to be in bad taste, but giving just a pleasing suggestion of daintiness.

CHOOSE YOUR SOAP CAREFULLY.

There is a special gelatin bath which gives a luster to the skin, and is somewhat of a luxury, and if after you have done all the other things I have told you, you would like to try this, too, I shall be very glad to print the formula.

Answers to Questions

Ignorance.—I'm afraid you did not persevere in your exercises. You should practise the exercise night and morning, for ten minutes at a time, to reduce fat hips. Standing with heels together, toes turned out, place your hands on the back of a chair or any other object that may be convenient. Rise on your toes; then sink down to the floor, slowly bending the knees. Rise to the standing position again without allowing the heels to touch the floor. The object of placing your hands on the back of a chair is to help preserve your balance. Inhale when rising, exhale when squatting. For your too large bust, try binding it with wide strip of rubber sheeting, wound firmly about the body and fastened tight with strips of adhesive tape. It will induce perspiration and this brings about reduction.

Huron, S. Dak.—Yes, peroxide and ammonia is an excellent treatment for superfluous hair. That you have already used depilatories makes no difference. Dampen the hair one day with peroxide, the next day with ammonia. If your skin should be very sensitive the ammonia may irritate it a little after a number of days.

YOUR BATH BAG SHOULD HOLD YOUR MANICURE IMPLEMENTS.

If it does, stop the treatment for a couple of days, then resume.

E. R.—Skin food will not make your skin white—it only helps to put it in good condition. Scrub the face every night with hot soapy water and a camel's-hair complexion brush, afterward rinsing thoroughly many times. Then rub skin food or any other good cold cream into the face until it is practically absorbed. This will help your skin. If your face gets shiny after putting on cold cream and powder, it is probably because you do not rub the cold cream well into the face until the skin has absorbed all it will and then wipe the face thoroughly with a soft towel to get off any superfluous cold cream. Be careful about this in the future. Your red nose is probably due to poor circulation, but be careful that your bowels are in good condition, as they might be partly responsible. If your corsets, gowns, collars or sleeves were tight a red nose would result. Exercise a little night and morning to put the circulation in order. Try the exercise I prescribed for "Ignorance." Here is a formula for a good skin food:

Magnolia Skin Food

Spermaceti, one half ounce; white wax, one half ounce; sweet almond oil, two ounces; lanoline, one ounce; cocoa-nut oil, one ounce; tincture benzoin, three drops; orange-flower water, one ounce.

Melt the first five ingredients in a porcelain kettle, take from the fire and add the benzoin and the orange-flower water, fluffing it with an egg beater until cold.

Mrs. C. A. A. and Mrs. E. D. L.—Here are the directions for the use of Epsom salts paste to reduce: Take half a pound of Epsom salts and dissolve in a pint of rain-water, then shave fine one and a half bars of the best white kitchen soap and dissolve in a quart of boiling rain-water. When partially cool, beat in the Epsom salts solution. This preparation must be massaged heavily into the fleshy parts at night and allowed to dry on the skin. When morning comes, wash it off. Continue treatment until flesh disappears. The average loss in weight per week is two pounds. Twice a week, before taking above treatment, it would be a good idea to immerse body for a few minutes in a tubful of very hot water into which has been thrown half a boxful of ordinary baking soda. When you feel as if you were about to melt away, jump out of the tub and after drying yourself hastily, wrap up in a woolen blanket. When you cease perspiring, which may not be for half an hour, dry body and rub in the Epsom paste. For a dietary, absolutely refrain from eating between meals, cut out all sweets (which include using sugar on cereal or otherwise) and all fats (which means gravies, fat meats, and much butter); and the starchy foods, such as potatoes, rice, macaroni. Eat very little white bread. Lean meat, green vegetables, and fresh fruit should be your standby. Exercise will go a long way toward reducing flesh. See answer to "Ignorance."

Rose.—Gentle massage with cocca-butter will help to develop the bust. Get a cake at the druggist and hold it over a lighted candle until it melts a little. Then rub on the bust and using the hands lightly massage with a rotary movement—that is around and around, following the contour of the bust. Remember the massage must be gentle. Here is a good exercise for developing the bust: Take a correct standing position. With arms outstretched, try to have every muscle in body tense. Then force the hands together, holding the arms rigid. Then throw the arms back as far as possible; then to the front again. Keep the hands at the shoulder level throughout. Inhale as the arms are brought back and exhale as they come together. For increasing the size of the calf of the leg, practise this, night and morning. Take the correct standing position, with hands on hips. Then rise on the toes. Continue this exercise until a strain is felt in the calves of the legs.

Mildred.—I imagine the face bleach you mean is as follows:

Almond Meal Complexion Bleach

Buy a 50-cent jar of theatrical cream and a pound of almond meal. Beat together one teaspoonful of the cream and some almond meal and add enough hot water to form a thin spreading paste. Cut two squares of thin cheese-cloth big enough to cover the face and tear a hole in the center of each square for your nose, so you won't smother. Now dampen the squares and spread the paste between. Bathe the face in very hot soapy water, massage for a minute and then apply the pack, patting it down so it touches the face all over. Now lay on two medium-sized, hot, wet Turkish towels and as soon as they cool replace with others. Keep this up for fifteen minutes, then remove pack, wash face in warm, then cool, then very cold water. Take two of these treatments every seven days for three weeks, when your skin will be beautifully white and soft as satin.

Margaret.—See answer to "Ignorance and Mrs. C. A. A." You can take internally the Vaucaire remedy but personaly I prefer the use of rubber sheeting and exercise to reduce the bust.

Vaucaire Bust Tonic

Liquid extract of galega (goat's rue), ten grams; lacto-phosphate of lime, ten grams; tincture of fennel, ten grams; simple syrup, four hundred grams.

The dose is two soupspoonfuls in water before every meal.

Miss G. S.—To gain flesh, a tablespoonful of olive oil either just before or just after each meal and before going to bed is excellent. Drink quantities of water, eight to ten glasses a day between meals—no liquids at table. Chew your food thoroughly, and exercise night and morning. Do not eat fried foods.

Spring Valley.—See answer to E. R. for formula for good skin food. If you are using Castile soap, that is all right but do not rub it on the face. Make a lather and scrub the face at night as per directions to E. R. During the day do not use soap. Make yourself some cheese-cloth bags or squares about three by three inches, and half fill with crushed oats. When washing dip lightly in the water and use as a washcloth. Pat the face dry afterwards instead of rubbing. Keep some bran water at hand for your hands, made by boiling bran in water, with a little scraped soap, until it has boiled down somewhat, then straining and using the liquid to wash the hands. Be careful to dry the hands thoroughly after every washing.

For a brown neck, use this neck bleach.

Strained honey, one ounce; lemon juice, one teaspoonful; oil of bitter almonds, six drops; whites of two eggs; enough fine oatmeal to make a fine paste.

Spread this thickly on a piece of cotton cloth, three inches in width, and tie as a bandage around the throat. Four or five of these applications should bleach neck to a satin whiteness. Remember this is not a face bleach and that oil of bitter almonds is a poison and must not be swallowed or left in reach of children. I am sorry the rules of this department do not permit me to reply to letters by mail.

Agnes.—I'm glad you have been following my directions and getting good results. Hurrah for the Pretty Girls' Club. Here is a good freckle remover:

Horse-radish root, one ounce; boiling water, one pint; borax, three drams.

Apply at night to freckles. If skin is sensitive, test the strength of this preparation on the arm before applying it to the face.

R. S.—I am sorry there is no way of staining gold teeth to resemble white teeth. The only remedy would be to have the offending tooth taken out and a porcelain tooth inserted, which of course can be done. I wish I could help you out.

Mrs. M. F. D.—I am sorry I cannot answer letters by mail. See answer to Mrs. C. A. A. for the Epsom salts reduction treatment.

Elsie.—You won't be shocked, will you, when I tell you that the blackheads most of us have are nothing but dirt! Very true! Use a complexion brush and hot soapy water every night. Get a comedone extractor for twenty-five cents (a little instrument with a hole in the end about as big as a blackhead) and press out the existing blackheads, after they have been scrubbed nightly for three nights, and rubbed afterward with cold cream. Then touch the empty pore with alcohol to keep it closed up and dash with very cold water. Never go outdoors after washing with hot water—first close the pores by dashing on cold water. Massage the face every night with a good cold cream, and in the daytime never apply powder without first rubbing in cold cream and then wiping the face vigorously with a towel.

E. S.—The Portugal Bust Food is made by boiling two whole oranges for four hours in nine ounces of olive oil in a double boiler. Each night a piece of the orange is used with which to lightly massage the breasts. See also answer to Rose and Miss G. S.

Mrs. B. F.—I expect you mean the Epsom Salts Reduction treatment. See answer to Mrs. C. A. A. Massage your brows nightly with olive oil if you want them to be thick and luxuriant. Be careful to massage against the fall of the hair.

Mrs. L. D.—For a good skin food see answer to E. R. For a fat nose, massage with a gentle but rapid pinching motion from the bridge of the nose to the tip, using thumb and forefinger. Spray two or three times daily with an astringent lotion.

Astringent Lotion

Rose-water, six ounces; elder-flower water, two ounces; simple tincture of benzoin, one half ounce; tannic acid, ten grains.

Mrs. J. C.—I am sorry not to be able to answer by mail. The hair darkener you refer to contained California claret, did it not? You can get that at any big grocery department store as they usually have a wine section. But perhaps you could use instead this restoration:

Herb Tea Lotion

Green tea, two ounces; garden sage (last crop, dried), two ounces. Put in an iron pot which can be closely covered, and pour over the herbs three quarts of boiling water—preferably soft; let simmer till reduced one third; then take off the fire and leave in the pot for twenty-four hours; strain and bottle. Try massaging the scalp every night. Put the finger tips against the scalp and, without lifting them move the skin back and forth on the skull. Then changing the position of the fingers and repeat until the whole scalp has been gone over and it is all warm and glowing. Scalp massage alone, persisted in, will frequently restore hair which is not really gray from age.

Mrs. W. M. W.—Drink quantities of water to prevent deposits forming at the knuckles and be careful what you eat. Gently massage the knuckles every night with a little warm olive oil or cold cream. Be careful to dry the hands thoroughly after being in water. Use a dish mop when washing dishes, and keep the hands out of hot water as much as possible.

Address all letters containing questions to
KATHERINE BOOTH, care COMFORT,
AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Earn This Fur Set

No. 990173 Given for Selling 25 Boxes

Sell Only 25 Boxes of This Fine Toilet Soap

This Big Value 7 Bar Box Contains 7 of Our Most Popular Toilet Soaps—75c Value—
You Sell It for only 50c.

Or Sell 32 Boxes and Get This Fine Coat

S6069

FUR SET NO. 990173

This is an imitation Wolf set of long china Goat fur, resembling Wolf. Large Russian shawl scarf. Scarf is trimmed with tails, pillow muff has wrist cord. Lined with gray satin.

DON'T MISS THIS OFFER

WE will send this fine Fur Set and 25 Boxes of our Big Bargain 7 Bar Assorted Toilet Soaps, to any responsible person on 30 days' credit. Don't send money unless you want to—just the fur set coupon below. You sell the soap at 50c a box—send us $12.50 and you have the fur set as your reward. Or, if you want the Boucle Curl Coat, fill out the Coat coupon, and we will send you the Coat and 32 Boxes of the soap; when sold send us only $16.00 and the Coat is yours.

Soap Easy to Sell

Anyone can quickly sell twenty-five or thirty-two boxes of this high grade Toilet Soap and easily earn either of these handsome Premiums. Friends and neighbors will be glad to buy because of the big value.

Everybody knows that Crofts & Reed's Products are high quality. We have been making good goods for twenty-six years. People everywhere want Crofts & Reed's soap. You will be surprised how easy you can sell it. Remember, you take no risk—we take everything back if you are not perfectly satisfied.

Coat is of boucle curl; lined throughout with black sateen. Collar of black plush. Revers and cuffs of the material. Fronts are self-faced, and have wide lap over, fastening with three plush buttons and loops. Length 48 inches. Sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure.

CROFTS & REED CO. DEPT. B-29 CHICAGO

CROFTS & REED CO., Dept. B-29, CHICAGO

Please ship to my address 25 Boxes Assorted Soap and Fur Set No. 990173. I agree to sell the Soap and send you $12.50 within 30 days.

Name _____
Address _____
P. O. _____ State _____
Reference _____ Business _____
Reference _____ Business _____

CROFTS & REED CO., Dept. B-29, CHICAGO

Please ship to my address 32 Boxes Assorted Soap and Boucle Coat No. 56069. I agree to sell the Soap and send you $16.00 within 30 days.

Name _____
Address _____
P. O. _____ State _____
Reference _____ Business _____
Reference _____ Business _____

Free Box of Hair Remedy

If you are bald, if you are losing hair or are troubled with dandruff, you will be pleased to learn of a remedy that is accomplishing wonders in many cases wherein the usual lotions, tonics, etc., have failed. Try it for yourself. A box will be mailed to any man or woman, in plain wrapper, absolutely free. Write to Koskott Laboratory, 1269 Broadway, Y 359, New York City.

Agents 90c an Hour

Sell guaranteed hosiery for men, women and children. Every pair guaranteed to last four months or new pair free. All styles and sizes. Hosiery for everybody. Sells 52 weeks in the year. B. T. Tucker sold $277.84 last month. Steady income. Big profits. Good repeater. Don't miss this big chance. Write quick for terms and sample outfit to workers.
THOMAS HOSIERY COMPANY
9130 West St. Dayton, Ohio

For Testing Our named varieties of HARDY Foster Mother Root Apple Grafts make vigorous, early bearing, heavily fruiting, clean hearted, long lived trees. To prove their worth, we offer 6 Grafts (rooted) for testing, if you will send 10c to help cover cost and mailing expense. They will bear barrels upon barrels of apples in a few years' time. Catalogue telling about other Blizzard Belt fruits, EVERBEARING STRAWBERRIES, etc., FREE. Write today.
The Gardner Nursery Co., Box 818 Osage, Ia.

THIS WATCH RING AND CHAIN FREE

Gold ring, chain and watch—keeps perfect time and stem wind and set. Just send us your name and address. We trust you. Then we'll send you 20 packages Gold Eye needles and 20 thimbles. Sell needles at 10c package, giving thimble free; return $2 to us and we'll send watch, ring and chain. Write today.
GLOBE WATCH COMPANY, Dept. 100, Greenville, Pa.

1915 ART CALENDAR FREE

I will send you a pretty calendar and a choice assortment of pretty souvenir post cards for 4c postage if you say you will show my cards and explain my offer to 6 friends.
A. K. FOGELSANGER, 612 Chestnut St., Phila., Pa.

LEARN TO EARN

Learn ladies', children's hairdressing (incl. marcel waving), complexion improvement, manicuring, etc., by home correspondence course, easily. Many women, all ages, are earning $15 to $50 weekly. Book, 100 pages, FREE.
ELIZABETH KING, 76 C, Station F, New York City.

FREE

Violin Outfit for selling 20 pictures or 20 pkgs. post cards at 10c. Order your choice.
GEO. GATES CO.
Dept. 625 Chicago

DON'T MISS THIS. ALL FOR 10 CENTS.

To start you buying from us, we send this great combination pkge. all postpaid for only 10 cents. It contains Fancy Gold plated Ring, one cameo scarf pin, one pkge. Handsome Silk Remnants, one fine rose pin, one silvered Thimble, two gilt Collar buttons, one bird whistle, one colorado pan, one fancy bead necklace, 2 gold plate beauty pins, and home game all sent postpaid for only 10 cents just to get new trade. Address BUCHANAN & CO., P. O. Box 1528, NEW YORK, N. Y.

LEARN TO PLAY

PIANO OR ORGAN

IN A FEW HOURS

IN YOUR OWN HOME

Special Free Trial Offer

A Detroit musician has invented a wonderful new system which enables any person or little child to learn to play the piano or organ in one evening. Even though you know absolutely nothing about music or have never touched a piano or organ, you can now learn to play in an hour or two. People who do not know one note from another are able to play their favorite music with this method without any assistance whatever from anyone.

This new system is called the Numeral Method. We have secured the sole agency from the inventor, and, as we are desirous of at once making it known in every locality, we are making the following special free trial and half-price introductory offer to everyone.

You are not asked to send any money until you have tried and are satisfied with the new method. We are willing to send it to you on one week s free trial, and you will not have to pay one cent unless you desire to keep it. There are no express charges to be paid, as everything will be sent by mail. Simply write us a letter or postcard saying "Please send me the Numeral Method on seven days' free trial.' If you are satisfied after trying it, the Method and fifty different pieces of sheet music will cost you only $5, although the regular price of these is $10. You should not delay writing, as we shall not continue this special half-price introductory offer indefinitely. Later on, the Method and fifty pieces of music will be sold at the regular price Address Numeral Method Music Co., 111 B Trussed Concrete Building, Detroit, Mich.

21 RUBY JEWEL $25 GOLD WATCH $3.95

Here is the watch you have always wanted, sent to you at our risk, without your sending any money—not even a deposit. Write if you prefer open face or hunting case, ladies' or gents' size, and we will send this twenty-five year, fully guaranteed, thin model, American made, beautifully engraved watch for free examination and test. If you are satisfied with it and are sure it equals a $25.00 gold watch, pay us only $3.95 and the watch is yours. Write now.

RELIABLE WATCH CO., Dept. 103, CHICAGO

3 MEN'S SHIRTS—$2

Fine material, blue, black and lavender stripe, popular coat style, cuffs attached. Sizes 14 to 17½. No catalog or samples. Regular dollar shirt. Money back if not satisfied. Delivered free on receipt of $2.00. Order today.

Goodell & Co., Room 301, 136 East 34th St., New York

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 17.)

"You will stand there and study your lesson 'till Miss Hillyard gives you leave to come out. And never forget that you are now under tutors and governors and that hereafter you will be under a law given by God."

Grandma, your granddaughter's ideas about appealing being done in correctional homes I think she will find wrong if investigated. I was told by a girl that had lived in a Children's Home (not a correctional home either), that little time is spent appealing, and that frequently severe, and even cruel treatment was received. I agree with Grandma it would be much better to keep the girl at home and punish her there. If a child goes wrong the parents always are criticized regardless of their efforts to lead it aright. I believe if a child is taught from infancy to respect and obey its parents, it will require very little punishment at any age, but if one waits until children are sixteen years old and then attempts to control them I think they have waited fifteen years too long. Enough on this subject Grandma, I am on your side. I was reared thus and it never hurt me.

Another subject I want to say a few words on if allowed. So often I have read of people who have no children regarded as selfish and indifferent and being criticized for not opening their homes to the orphan child. I was talking with one of those selfish persons a short time ago, who said she would love to have a child in her home, if it were not for other people interfering and making the child dissatisfied and I know there are many homes that would gladly have children in them were it not for the interference of neighbors and outsiders. It seems whenever one takes a child into their home, the entire community consider themselves on the committee and they usually end by making the child dissatisfied and homeless. Now any sister who can give a child a home and has the love in her heart and is willing to mother a homeless waif ought to be helped instead of being meddled with and I hope this may be a warning to some at least to give a helping hand to the foster-parents instead of seeking to find a way to make the child unhappy and troublesome.

A few words about Washington. We moved to this state a short time ago and like it very much. This is a timber country. The soil is fine here, land very reasonable and everything put in the ground grows. We have considerable rain, but no extremely cold or hot weather and no crop failures here.

Love to Mrs. Wilkinson and all the sisters,

MRS. GEORGE BAIN.

CENTERVILLE, MISS.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTERS:

Will you let me join your circle?

I have been a subscriber to COMFORT for years and don't see how I could do without it as I get so many helpful hints from its pages. Have long wanted to join this band of helpers but there are so many better writers than myself that I have hesitated. I have gotten most of my education from books and papers and my reading has been limited for I have always been a hard working woman.

I have been married twenty-seven years and have five children living. I lost one dear little boy at an early age. My children are all grown and scattered, except one girl and my baby, a boy of eight years, who is a great help and comfort to me for my husband is and has been for some time an invalid, caused from stomach and heart trouble and just now my daughter is away on a visit so little John is all the help I have.

Will now add my little mite, perhaps it may help someone.

To those, who, like myself, cannot have ice all summer, as soon as you get through milking, cool the milk put it in pitchers or some deep vessel; now get a large zinc tub, place churn and pitchers in tub and fill as full of fresh cool water as vessels will allow, changing water about three times a day and when you mold the butter, drop in pan of cool water and change same as for milk, the cakes will retain their shape and keep nice and fresh for several days.

When you have a nice dish of vegetables or anything you wish to keep over for tomorrow's dinner put it on the stove, or in, as the case may require, and heat to the boiling point at night; repeat same while preparing breakfast and it is all right for dinner.

For frost bite or chilblain; make a liniment of turpentine, coal oil, camphor and laudanum and bathe the affected parts; two or three applications cured me nearly thirty years ago, and I have not felt anything of it since.

Thanking you Mrs. Wilkinson for your patience, will just slip out the back way for I think I hear someone say, "how tiresome." Good wishes for you and all COMFORT sisters. From MRS. J. H. ANDERS.

OXFORD, KANSAS.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON:

May I hope for a space in your interesting corner? I have been a silent reader of COMFORT for a number of years, having taken it at different times since I was married; in fact, I remember Aunt Minerva and her owls, as a child.

I certainly enjoy reading the Sisters' Corner and was very much interested in the letter written by "Grandma," as I was reared along the same lines as she suggested in her letter and I now realize how thankful I should be that my parents were strict. I have three small boys of my own to care for. I find each one must be dealt with according to disposition, and when an appeal to their better nature fails I resort to corporal punishment. As children are growing up they may fall from grace, but eventually that good early training all comes back. A child's early surroundings are the foundation of its future, just "as the twig is bent the tree's inclined." Grandma writes that in her days there were no Reform Schools. Of course time alters everything and in these days of hurry, greed and pleasure the responsibility of parents seems to relax and that is why our industrial schools become a necessity. I, for one, do not think Grandma's ideas old-fashioned and how I should love to chat with her.

I have never seen any letters in COMFORT written by anyone I knew though almost everyone takes the paper. I have a request to make before I close: If anyone who knew me when a girl reads this will they please write, also I would like a letter shower on my birthday, March 3rd.

MRS. MAGGIE MCINERNEY FISHER.

ORLAND, CAL.

OUR COMFORT:

Trusting there is room for one more, I beg for admittance.

I think "Grandma's" letter awakened a desire in me to write my thoughts. One must admit the world and its people change every day and though I am only a young mother, I, like the multitude, can see vast room for improvement. It is hard to say mothers are seemingly negligent, yet how many mothers are companionable to their daughters, share their secrets, their pleasures, etc. I think mothers are reticent in drawing their children into their confidence.

Why, oh, why, can't parents, even if it is hard to go at times, just a night or two a week go out with their daughters instead of trusting girl chums, or a smooth-tongued man. To my knowledge I have never as yet seen a girl but of the sweetest character who had her mother for her chum.

Having lived in a big city all my life I have had ample time for observation. I also speak from experience. I have only one boy of five but he is indeed my chum. I think I have started him right.

I live on a small farm now, in the northern part of the Sacramento Valley. Have government irrigation, citrus and all other fruits, nuts and Alfalfa. Dairying is the chief industry here. The Southern Pacific Railroad runs through here, also the new state highway. A thriving country, but takes finances to develop a place. Land sells at one hundred dollars up, and water from one dollar and fifty cents to two dollars per acre yearly until water debt is paid, after that we pay only a small maintenance fee.

Orland has a population of about two thousand and is growing rapidly. We have good educational advantages, good lodges, churches and a superior class of people.

With best wishes, I am, Sincerely,

MRS. R. F. BRANTLEY.

825 Dillard St., GREENSBORO, N. C.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTERS:

I have been a reader of COMFORT since I was a little girl and soon after my marriage I subscribed for it. That was nearly nine years ago and since then COMFORT has been a regular comfort in our home. My husband and I are both fond of reading and take quite a number of papers and magazines, but I like COMFORT best of all.

As I have never seen a letter from our city I suppose had best say something about it. We have about fifteen thousand inhabitants. It is quite a railroad center as well as being busy in industrial and manufacturing pursuits. Nearly all denominations are represented here and we have some costly and beautiful churches, also splendid graded schools. The State Normal and Industrial College is located here, where between five hundred and one thousand girls attend annually; also the famous old Greensboro College for Women, one of the oldest colleges for women in the South, the property of the M. E. church south. Here is also located the State A. and M. College and several other colleges for the colored race. About seven miles from the city is the historic old Guilford battle ground, it has been transformed into a beautiful park and there are to be seen there in the museum many relics of the Revolution. A few miles north of the city, and connected by trolley line, are the cotton mill villages. White Oak Mill is the largest of its kind in the world. We have many advantages as well as many disadvantages, cotton and tobacco as well as most all kinds of grain, fruits and vegetables are grown in this country. The past season we had quite a severe drouth, which cut off crops and prices for everything are high.

I am especially interested in all letters pertaining to the training of children as we have one bright litttle daughter, Annie Laura, who is the sunshine of our home, she is only four years old, but often asks daddy and mother many questions that would puzzle many older heads to answer.

I should be pleased to hear from sisters of the South, especially So. Carolina and Georgia, as my mother had many relatives in those states, her mother having been born and reared in Newbury County, S. C. Her name was Miss Joicie Sheppard and she married Rev. J. D. Schick, a minister of the Lutheran church.

With best regards to Mrs. Wilkinson and the sisters,

MRS. SUE LINEBERRY, nee CUMMINGS.

JACKSONVILLE, FLORIDA.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTERS:

Ever since I read one sister's contribution as to how she made pin money I have been fired with the desire to add my own experience, but never had the courage to venture, but now the fire has struck into a flame (if it did take a year), and here goes.

Of course all know the old routes of keeping poultry, selling canned fruits, sewing, services as nurse, agency work adfinitum.

Here are some of my plans for many long years, and I have been very successful. As one friend remarked of my work, that I "could make money out of a wagon track."

First, as a school girl, I used my spare time making up fancy articles for Christmas, and had a good stock when the season came to sell. In those days the advertising cards were scarce and hard to get, I wrote every house who sent out an attractive card that I could place one hundred of their cards and when my supply reached required amount one card from each house went into a collection which I gave to every purchaser of my Christmas goods; result, plenty of dimes in my pocket. Let me remark, fancy cards then were not as common as today.

Again I was the candidate to receive all scraps and pieces left in two dressmaking shops. Evenings I sewed up all nice pieces into fancy quilts and smaller scraps I cut into inch wide and inch and a half long bits and stitched them in long chains on the machine, folding once lengthwise. Then sew these chains one half inch apart on burlap for floor mats or rugs and all these too found ready sale.

In time I married, but still I clung to my money-making schemes. I moved from Michigan to Florida. How very different were things here than North. I was not slow to see the openings, then was when I did get busy, the first thing that caught my eye was the beautiful long silver gray moss that swayed from the tree tops. I wrote of it in several Northern papers and offered it free to anyone who sent postage at a certain rate per pound. This was a philanthropic move. I learned lots in a short time and hired help and started business from a commercial standpoint, and for eighteen years was eminently a success, the details of which I will not mention, as it might smack of personal interests. But this is in the past; eleven years ago my health broke and it did a first-class job. I closed out, but cannot be quiet. Of late health has returned and I pass the days still making pretty things. I will give a few hints if you will not think I am grinding an axe. One very remunerative way to earn pin money these days is in making up draperies, fringes, portieres, air castles, baskets, etc., by crocheting seed, shells, beads, etc., or anything that can be crocheted into chains. A polish I use is composed of one part of white varnish to three or four parts turpentine, in it immerse what you wish to polish, lift out, spread on papers to dry, then drill. Some seeds need a hot water bath to soften. Throw in a handful of salt in water, so the color will hold. Any old beads, with ordinary seeds colored make pretty necklaces. Experience will teach you. For a portiere for an ordinary door I use the mercerized silk and have nine long chains on each side, and eighteen short ones in the middle, just long enough to clear the head. Sea shell hand bags are now quite a fad; they too find ready sale.

But let me return back to Michigan for a bit. One of the very best things that I did there for pin money was selling of toy animal patterns. I bought every toy animal pattern I could hear of and had patterns for some eighteen different things then sold the whole menagarie for so much. Again the coins poured in.

But back to Florida; another way is I visit the stores and bazaars at near Christmas and get them to save the tiny ribbon bands, that come around handkerchiefs and lawns; they are very nice in fancy work. I used to drill bivalve shells and tie them with these ribbons. But I better stop and sign my name. Of course I'll do that; a part of an address always impresses me as unreal, like some medicine recommendations I have seen. I may venture the second time, until then.

Au revoir, ALICE WARNER.

RAWSON, N. DAK.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTERS:

I have taken COMFORT for nearly ten years. My dear old grandfather sent in my subscription ten years ago this summer when I was staying with him and I have taken it ever since for I am lost without it. I have received a great deal of help from it so will try and help someone else.

When my oldest boy was twenty-six months old he had nervous spasms and again the next year the same; brought on both times by indigestion. For the benefit of those like myself who had never seen spasms will say the first time he jerked all over, first his arms then his legs and his head and this is what I did: I rubbed his abdomen with olive oil and when I found out what was the matter we gave him a good warm mustard water bath in a tub. Don't get the water too hot, just warm, and rub briskly with the hands. He usually had a high fever before an attack. The second time he had them, he frothed at the mouth. Our doctor told me to always keep his bowels open so when his fever begins to come I give him one or two enemas to clean the bowels. I use a coffee cup of water and a teaspoonful of salt each time. By this treatment I have kept him from having any more for three years and hope he may outgrow them.

I am one of the lucky ones who have a good, kind husband. We have four children, two boys and two girls. We have been married nearly nine years and have only had a doctor in the house five times as we do our own doctoring, mostly.

Here is my remedy for a sore throat: Six drops of carbolic acid in a half glass of water; use half at a time as a gargle.

I send best wishes to one and all and especially to the poor shut-ins.

MRS. MORAN.

Best Ways of Doing Things Around the Home

To keep silver that is seldom used from becoming brown or tarnished, put it in a box and cover with wheat flour.

MISS AGNES C. HALPIN, Scotia, Nebr.

To clean mica in stoves when smoked is easily done by taking it out and washing it with vinegar, a little diluted. Let it soak, if the black sticks.—Ed.

If difficulty is found in threading the needle, especially when the light is poor, hold a white card behind the needle, this will bring the eye into view. It is a splendid help in threading the machine needle.

CLARA LARSEN, 431 W. 9th St., Los Angeles, Cal.

To prevent pump from freezing; take out the lower valve at the beginning of cold weather and drive a tack under it, projecting in such a way that it cannot quite close. The water will then leak back into the well or cistern.

Windows may be kept free from ice and polished by rubbing with a sponge dipped in alcohol.—Ed.

To avoid burns on the hands. Save the loops from stocking supporters and fasten one each to a pad of old cloth of any kind, and hang by the kitchen range for lifting hot handles to spiders, baking pans, etc. Put one in the right-hand pocket of your kitchen apron while you are working around the stove.

The United States Government at Washington, D. C., distributes free to farmers and their wives bulletins on canned and canning fruit, bread and bread making, butter making, bee keeping, eggs, the care of food in the home, and so forth. Write to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for a list of farmers' bulletins, send for those on the subjects which particularly interest you and study them. You can get a great deal of help from them.

MRS. ABBY SCHILLER, Browning Ave., Ignacia, Colo.

The best time to mend clothes is before you do the washing and then when the clothes are washed and ironed they are ready to be put away.

Put a pinch of salt in the kerosene if you wish a bright light.

Sprinkle a little salt on carpets before sweeping. This will help to brighten them and make them look like new. ELIZABETH DEFAULD, Sawyer, Minn.

To take spots off wall paper, take a teacup of bran and make it damp with gasoline and tie in a thin cloth, and rub the soiled spot.

Furniture polish. Equal parts of turpentine, boiled linseed oil and vinegar.

MRS. A. BRADSHAM, Jerseyville, Ont.

Remedies

How many of the sisters know that a raw egg taken immediately will carry down a fish bone that cannot be gotten up from the throat.

A mustard plaster mixed with the white of an egg will not leave a blister.

The white of an egg beaten with loaf sugar and lemon relieves hoarseness.

RETTA KERKPATRICK, Sumatra, Mont.

SLEEPLESSNESS.—Eat a buttered cracker, dusted over with cayenne pepper.

CAR SICKNESS.—Tie a wet cloth around the throat.

MRS. J. A. FAIRBANK, Helena, Mont.

Sweet cream and gunpowder is a sure cure for ringworm if applied freely and several times.

MRS. SLATON B. DENHAM, Sarah, Miss.

ERYSPELAS.—Boil white navy beans, mash and add corn-meal to make poultice. Apply hot and change often.

BAD BREATH.—One teaspoon each of powdered myrrh and camphor, put in pint of water; use as a wash for mouth.

FOR ACHING AND TENDER FEET.—Make a strong solution of white-oak bark, and soak the feet night and morning.

MRS. BULAH ZIEGLER, Junction City, Kans.

Requests

L. Mark, Redding, Cal., wants poems, "The Two Glasses," and "The Drunkard's Dream."

Mrs. Lena E. Knuth, Oxford, Nebr., would like to know how to dye a rain coat, rubber inside and seams glued.

Mrs. Agee Price, Ruleton, Kans., wants cure for Bright's disease.

Tested cure for use of alcohol.

Missing Relatives and Friends

We shall only require you to get a small club of subscribers to COMFORT for each request printed; so in sending your notice for insertion in the Missing Relatives' column, include a club of three 15-months 25-cent subscriptions, or if you are already a paid-in-advance subscriber, send only two new 15-months 25-cent subscriptions. This amount limits the notice to twenty-two words, making three lines; if longer notice is required, send two additional 25-cent 15-months subscriptions yearly for every seven words.

Wanted—Information of my father, Richard Johnson, or any of his relatives. They were raised in Tampa, Florida. Joe Johnson, Brashear, Texas.

Wanted—Information of my children, Oma, eleven; Cecil, ten; Dixie, six. Taken by father in September. Mrs. Myrtle Peterson, Caney, Box 192, Kansas.

Wanted—Information of James Albert Stanton, alive or dead, last heard from in Garfield, Washington, July, 1914. M. D. Stanton, Mansfield, Ga.

Comfort Postal Requests

How to Get a Lot of Souvenir Postals Free

Exchanging Souvenir Post Cards is no longer a fad but a custom as firmly established as letter writing, and more convenient and pleasing. By entering this Exchange list you are enabled to accumulate cards from every state in the Union and Foreign Countries. To secure the appearance of your name in the Exchange List it is necessary to send a club of two fifteen months 25-cent subscriptions to COMFORT and fifty cents to pay for same. We will send you a very fine Fifty Card Album for Post Cards, and your name will appear in the next available issue of COMFORT, and you will be expected to return cards for all received by you.

Miss Christina Beaver, Mound City, Box 366, Ill. Miss Anna Banlius, 623 Knower St., Toledo, Ohio. Mrs. Luen Wurtsbaugh, McMillan, Box 77, Mich. Miss Goldie Iverson, Vallejo, Box 146, Cal. John N. Ball, Spofford, N. H.

Express or Postage Paid

BIG JAN. & FEB. CLEARING

THIS BEAUTIFUL COAT of RICH BLACK PONY SKIN PLUSH NOW GOING IN THIS JAN. & FEB. CREAT CLEARING SALE At Only $3.95

We Pay The Express Or Postage To Your Home

Due to slack business we have left on hand over 2500 of these luxurious ladies' coats which we must quickly turn into cash, as we cannot afford to carry them over to next season. We need the money—chances are you need a coat, so to tempt you to buy now, we have cut the price way down to $3.95 and as an extra inducement for your immediate order WE WILL PREPAY EXPRESS OR POSTAGE anywhere in the United States, no matter how far you live from Chicago.

To You on Approval.

Furthermore, we will send you the coat on approval, subject entirely to your judgment. Simply send us $1.00 deposit, give size of coat wanted, state if we shall ship by express or Parcel Post, and we will send you this beautiful luxurious seal plush trimmed, rich black pony skin Plush coat C. O. D. either by express or Parcel Post, subject to your approval, with express or postage charges prepaid. The balance $2.95 and return money charges you pay the express agent, postmaster or R. F. D. carrier, after the coat reaches you and you find it perfectly satisfactory, a swell beautiful garment, a perfect fit and a coat you will be proud to wear and show your friends; otherwise return it at our expense and we will promptly and cheerfully refund all the money you sent us or paid, so you won't be out a penny. If you prefer to send cash in full payment, do so, for we stand ready to refund your money without question, if you are not satisfied with your bargain. THE COAT IS A BEAUTY, made from luxurious black pony skin cloth, the new wavy stripe effect material with a short nap rich mohair surface; a firm, strong, warm cloth. Finely tailored in latest 1915 Winter style with charming loose fitting lines, kimono sleeves, lovely turned over collar and cuffs of rich seal plush, closes in front with elegant seal plush ornament and pretty plush art buttons, lined throughout with highly mercerized sateen. Remember, the quantity of coats at $3.95 is limited; Act At Once, order to-day and be sure to get one. The style is conservative, just as good next winter as now. You can wear the coat a few months yet this season and start next Winter with a fine new, stylish coat at a wonder low price. Show Your Friends This Offer and let them too share in this great clearing bargain. They will surely appreciate your kindness. REMEMBER if you are not satisfied with the coat we will give your money back instantly upon request. Order now—write us today.

JOHN M. SMYTH MOSE CO., 150-151 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS

MEN AND WOMEN

Here's your opportunity to Make Money Quick—Sure and Easy selling the New STANDARD Self-Heating Iron. Positively the Best Self-Heating Iron made. No PROTRUDING TANKS—NO PUMPS—no hose or wires. PRICE LOW. Sells itself. All year business. Profits Large. No experience necessary. Elegant Sample Case for workers. Send No Money just write for full description and MONEY MAKING PLANS, and how to get FREE SAMPLE. Address C. BROWN MFG. CO. 4325 Brown Bldg., Cincinnati, O.

JAPAN ROSE BUSHES

The Wonder of the World.

Rose Bushes with roses on them in 8 weeks from the time the seed was planted. It may not seem possible but we Guarantee it to be so. They will BLOOM EVERY TEN WEEKS Winter or Summer, and when 3 years old Will have 5 or 6 hundred roses on each bush. Will grow in the house in the winter as well as in the ground in summer. Roses All The Year Around. Package of seed with directions and our guarantee by mail 10 cts. Japan Seed Co. Box 6 So. Norwalk, Conn.

FREE THESE 4 RINGS FREE

Just send name and address. We'll send 24 packages Gold Eye Needles and 12 thimbles. Sell 2 packs for 10c giving thimble free. Return $1.20 and we'll send rings. Guaranteed 5 years. We trust you. KEYSTONE NOVELTY COMPANY Box 400, Greenville, Pa.

Agents Wanted. Make $8 to $5 a day. Send 15 cents for sample and large catalog 500 articles. RICHARDSON MFG. CO., Dept. C, Bath, N. Y.

WILL PAY RELIABLE MAN OR WOMAN $12.50 to distribute 100 FREE pkgs. Perfumed Borax Soap Powder among friends. No money required. A. WARD & CO., 218 Institute Place, Chicago.

FREE VALENTINE SURPRISE-PACKET

WIN A PRIZE →	22	1	12	5	14	20	9	14	5
	16	15	19	20		WIN A PRIZE
	3	1	18	4	19
	6	18	5	5

Each one of these four lines of figures spells a word. This most interesting puzzle can be solved with a little study as follows: There are twenty-six letters in the alphabet and we have used figures in spelling the four words instead of letters. Letter A is number 1, B number 2, C number 3, etc., throughout the alphabet. IF YOU CAN SPELL OUT THESE FOUR WORDS WE WILL SEND YOU A SURPRISE PACKET CONTAINING FIVE BEAUTIFUL GOLD EMBOSSED VALENTINE POST CARDS, ALSO A CERTIFICATE OF ENTRY in our GRAND $5,000.00 PRIZE CONTEST. All you have to do is to enclose with your answer 2 two-cent stamps to cover cost of packing, mailing, etc. USE YOUR BRAINS. Try and make out the four words. ACT QUICKLY. Write the four words on a slip of paper, mail it immediately with your name and address and 4 cents in stamps. And you will promptly receive as your reward this SURPRISE PACKET, which is a handsome assortment of five beautifully colored Gold Embossed Valentine post-cards, together with a copy of a New York Magazine, also a CERTIFICATE OF ENTRY in our GRAND $5,000.00 PRIZE CONTEST which closes May 1st, 1915. Act promptly. This is your opportunity to enter this great contest in which we give away THREE AUTOMOBILES, PIANO, PHONOGRAPH, GOLD WATCHES, CASH PRIZES, etc. In case of a tie between two or more persons for any Prize a Prize identical in character and value will be given each person so tied. TRY AND WIN. SEND YOUR ANSWER AT ONCE.

E. WEST, Mgr., 649 West 43d Street, Dept. 201, New York

A NEW WAY
To Get Your Clothes Free

Make Big Money During Spare Time

Something Different, bigger, more liberal than any offer ever made. Lower prices—better clothes—bigger cash profits Express paid on everything.

Double Pay

FREE clothes and cash besides. We don't ask you to use your cash profits for your own clothes. Ours is a new and better plan. An Extra Present with every order. Not a prize scheme. Choose what you want, work for it and get it besides your Cash Profits. Complete Outfit FREE. 56 real cloth samples, 59 Fashion Plates. Inside wholesale prices. Get the big money. Your name on a post card brings everything FREE.

SPENCER MEAD CO., Dept. 304, Chicago

Rescue for RHEUMATISM

Thousands are being relieved by the wonderful Rescue Foot Drafts. All ages, all conditions, all durations of disease. So confident are we that Rescue Foot Drafts will relieve you of your Rheumatism and restore you to old time vigor that we will send you a

$1.00 PAIR FREE

Apply them according to our simple instructions and directions. If they help you, send us $1, in payment, otherwise they cost you nothing. You are the judge. Write for free pair today. Our interesting, illustrated book on the treatment of Rheumatism sent you free upon request. Write today.

Sterling Institute, Dept. 2, Kalamazoo, Michigan

Veterinary Course at Home

$1500 A YEAR and upwards can be made by taking our Veterinary course at home during spare time. Taught in simplest English. Diploma granted. Graduates assisted in getting locations or positions. Cost within reach of all. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Dr. E. H. Baldwin writes: "I took the course for my own benefit on the farm, but the success I had started me in practice and now I am going night and day. Your course has been worth thousands to me, and will be to any man."

Write for particulars

The London Veterinary Correspondence School, Dept. 11, London, Ontario, Canada

Fits Epilepsy Falling Sickness

If you suffer from Fits, Epilepsy, Falling Sickness or any nerve trouble, don't despair. Thousands have used W. H. Peeke's remedy with remarkable success. Send at once for a treatment and free trial of his great remedy. Hundreds of testimonials are on file from persons who have reported themselves cured. Give Express and Post Office Address. W. H. Peeke, F. D., 4 Cedar Street, New York City.

Underwood

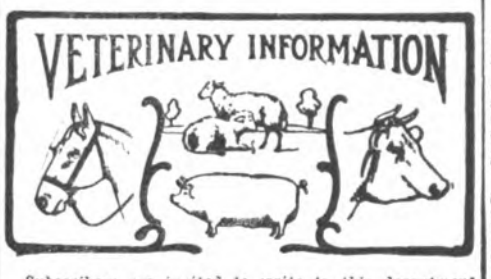
"The Machine You Will Eventually Buy"

TOBACCO HABIT You can conquer it easily in 3 days, improve your health, prolong your life. No more stomach trouble, no foul breath, no heart weakness. Regain manly vigor, calm nerves, clear eyes and superior mental strength. Whether you chew; or smoke pipe, cigarettes, cigars, get my interesting Tobacco Book. Worth its weight in gold. Mailed free. EDW. J. WOODS, 534 Sixth Ave., M 147, New York, N.Y.

SONG POEMS WANTED for publication. You may write a big song hit! Experience unnecessary. Publication guaranteed if acceptable. Send us your verses or melodies today. Write for free valuable booklet. MARKS-GOLDSMITH CO., Dept. 88, Washington, D. C.

Gleason's Horse Book

520 Pages Fully Illustrated



All That is Worth Knowing About Training and Treating Horses

Two volumes in one

EVERY person who owns, handles or manages horses and all livestock keepers and breeders should have a copy of this great book because it tells about all the known methods of treating diseases of horses and other domestic animals—methods that are based upon the results of actual practice and not mere theory. It also contains Prof. Gleason's famous system of horse breaking, taming and training therefore, it is in reality two books in one and positively the most authoritative work of the kind ever published. There are in all 520 pages, many of them illustrated and dealing with the cause and cure of practically every disease known to horses, cattle, sheep, poultry, swine and dogs with the right remedies for each disease. Among the many subjects covered in Part 1 of this book are causes of diseases, how to observe diseases, treatment of diseases, Cerebro, Spinal Meningitis, distemper, dysentery, eye diseases, fistula, glands, internal diseases, kidney diseases, poisons, stomach and bowel diseases, worms and literally hundreds of other horse and live-stock ailments, which for lack of space we cannot enumerate here. In Part 2 of this book Prof. Gleason gives to the world for the first time his method of breaking and training horses and there are are also special chapters on how to buy, how to detect unsoundness, feeding, breeding, horse-shoeing, general care of horses, etc. Gleason's Horse Book is actually worth its weight in gold to every horse owner or breeder in the land, yet by special arrangement with the publishers we are enabled to give it away without cost to all who will accept the following

FREE OFFER. For a club of only two 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you Gleason's Complete Veterinary Hand Book and System of Horse Taming exactly as above described free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 443.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Subscribers are invited to write to this department asking for any information desired relative to the treatment of animal troubles. Questions will be answered in these columns free by an eminent veterinarian. Describe the trouble fully, sign full name and give your address; direct all correspondence to the Veterinary Department, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. Should any subscriber desire an immediate, special opinion on any question privately mailed, it may be had by sending one dollar with a letter asking such advice, addressing as above.

No atttention will be given any inquiry which lacks, the sender's full name and address, but we will print only initials if so requested.

BLINDNESS.—I have a cow that gave birth to a calf in June. About four weeks ago I found her in the field apparently blind, sick at the stomach and as she walked reeled. E. C.

A.—We suspect that the cow has tetanus (lock jaw) from infection of a wound. The condition is hopeless and if so affected the cow no doubt has died since you wrote to the paper. It is barely possible that you mean that she has "pink eye" (contagious ophthalmia). If so that is curable if taken in time, the eyes being washed twice daily with a ten per cent solution of boric acid and the eyeballs dusted every day with a mixture of equal parts of finely powdered calomel and boric acid.

INJURED JAW.—Two months ago, my colt, four months old, was hurt under the jaw, I think was kicked. At first it appeared to be in the flesh. As the swelling went down it left a knot on the bone, which appears to grow larger. It discharges pus. M. V.

A.—Clip off the hair and wash the part, then inject a little tincture of iodine and swab with the tincture over the entire enlarged part. Inject every third day and once a day apply the tincture externally. If diseased or broken bone or a sliver is present it will have to come away before healing will take place.

CATARACT.—I have a mare fourteen years old. Her eyes look clear and bright, but she cannot see after sundown. Darken her eyes and they turn white. She can see a person or object fifty or seventy yards off, but cannot see anything on the ground near to her. She will stumble over a rail. M. J. J.

A.—The condition is incurable, cataract being present, and periodic ophthalmia (moon blindness) was the probable cause. She should not be used for breeding.

FISTULA OF EAR.—I have a colt five months old that has a bad ear. There is a hole about half way up. It looks natural but I can't find it on other colts. There has been a discharge for two months, the hair coming off where the pus falls. It doesn't appear sore. MRS. J. H. MCM.

A.—The fistula connects with the bursa mucosa and the only hope of remedy will come from opening up of the fistubus tract, dissecting out the secreting sac and then cauterizing the part. It will be necessary to employ a graduate veterinarian. If you cannot have the operation performed inject into the fistula twice daily, after cleansing perfectly, a solution of one dram each of sugar of lead and powdered alum in four ounces of water.

ABSCESS.—I have a milk cow, apparently in good health, six years old. When her calf was five months old a yellow blister came on one of the teats, growing so sore the calf could not suckle. The sore burst and is running. Ought the milk to be used? R. L. F.

A.—Infection caused the condition described and led to an abscess and bursting of the quarter. Tuberculosis is not probably present, but the only way of finding out would be to have her tested with tuberculin. The condition is incurable and the cow will not prove profitable in the dairy. It would be best to sell her to the butcher.

ECLAMPSIA.—I have a sow that had a litter of seven pigs two months ago. A month ago she got down and could not get up unless I helped her. She eats heartily. E. B.

A.—The strain and drain of the pigs nursing brings on this form of paralysis in pampered sows from pampered stock. Stuffing, growing and breeding hogs on corn and restricting exercise is the pampering to which we allude. If she is in good flesh slaughter her for meat as chances of recovery are poor and treatment would taint the meat. The meat may be used without fear.

INDIGESTION.—I have a cow about five years old, with a calf four months old, that has run in a pasture all the year. About ten weeks ago she was milked in the morning apparently well and at night had her head down and walked like she was stiff all over. She was in this condition about ten days and ate very little during the time. After ten days she began to improve and seemed to be all right in a few days. She has a light attack every two or three weeks that lasts about three or four days. I did not do anything for her as I did not know what to do. She is in fine shape and has been all the time. MRS. J. J. J.

A.—Indigestion is the probable cause of stiffness in such a case, the cow having been foundered at some time or another. At time of attack give her a pound of epsom salts in three pints of warm water and when she ceases to physic give her a tablespoonful of powdered alum twice a day in water. Greatly reduce the rich feed at times of attack.

PINWORMS.—I have a mare six years old that has had little white pinworms for three years. I have tried every kind of treatment with no good results. J. O.

A.—Pinworms inhabit the rectum and are killed by injecting soapy warm water containing a cupful of tobacco decoction to the half gallon. Make the tobacco decoction by steeping tobacco stems or leaves in boiling water. Give the injection three nights a week. There is no certain way of preventing the horse from becoming infested with worms. They are taken in on old pasture, from feed and from contaminated watering places.

PINWORMS.—I have a horse that is subject to pinworms. Can you tell me how to exterminate and prevent them? C. R. G.

A.—See answer to J. O.

LAMENESS.—I have a mare, and the first joint above the hoof is swollen. Some days she is unable to walk. Some say it is "grease heel." Am I doing right or wrong to use sugar of lead? MRS. M. K.

A.—Without an examination we are unable to say confidently what is wrong but the symptoms do not indicate grease heel. In that ailment there is a bad smelling discharge. In all probability the horse has interfered and caused a bruise which has become infected. Poultice the part with hot flaxseed meal for two or three days and then carefully open any soft spot that forms. After liberating the pus apply the sugar of lead lotion twice a day and every other day swab with tincture of iodine around the opening and on the enlargement.

EPILEPSY.—I have a cow six years old that has fits, she eats good until a short time before she goes into one. Then she puts her head up and commences to walk backwards in a circle, gradually walking faster until she falls on her side, then every muscle seems to quiver, her eyes roll and ears twitch, it lasts not more than half a minute then she is up eating again. She seems to be sound in every other way. She has had this trouble for about three years, first noticed it before her second calf came, which was dead, doesn't seem to make any difference whether she is with calf or not, she has them just the same. Is there any cure for it? If not, would her meat be fit for use, if butchered? E. P.

A.—There is no cure for the disease and if the cow is in good flesh and proved to be free from tuberculosis, by testing with tuberculin, the meat may be used.

CHOREA.—I have a Shepherd dog one and one half years old that is troubled with a jerking or trembling. At times he can hardly stand. He eats heartily, looks well and has never been sick. J. W. B.

A.—The disease is chorea (St. Vitus' dance) and it is practically incurable. Some improvement may take place if you make the dog live out of doors as much as possible and eat only plain feed.

WARTS.—I have a cow that was fresh last April. Just after the teats began to be covered with warts large and small and I have been unable to cure them. Will you advise me what to do? J. W. R.

A.—Snip off warts that have narrow necks and apply lunar caustic to the wounds, as soon as bleeding has ceased. Remove only a few at a time. If started as soon as warts are seen Castor oil usually proves effective, but it may fail after the parts have been irritated by strong medicine.

BLACK TEETH.—My pigs grow nicely until nearly two months old and then each pig has four black teeth appear and they stop growing. They are being fed ground hominy and water. MRS. D. K.

A.—The cause of these black teeth is not perfectly understood, but it is certain that they do no harm and are not the cause of lack of thrift. That no doubt is due to lack of feed or to worms. Feed mixed rations and if worms are seen in the manure mix copperas in the slop for five days in succession allowing one dram for every hundred pounds of body weight.

GRAVEL.—I have a cow seven years old in good flesh, giving a good mess of milk. After urinating a spoonful or two of blood follows, and once a couple of stones passed as large as peas. J. G.

A.—Gravel appears to be present in the bladder and could be removed by a skilled veterinarian. Acidulate the drinking water very slightly with dilute hydrochloric acid. Do not feed bran or Alfalfa hay.

TICKS.—I have a mare four years old that has ticks all of the time on her legs and in bunches on her body. I can't kill all of them. C. J. M.

A.—Soak infested parts with Beaumont crude oil and then use the currycomb. Afterward use the oil to keep the ticks off, adding flowers of sulphur freely if found necessary.

PERIODIC OPHTHALMIA.—I have a horse three years old in good condition. About every three months his eyelids become swollen, the lower part of the eyeball becomes milky and inflamed and gradually it works up over the eyeball. He becomes partly blind, the eyes water and a white substance forms and comes from them. The attack lasts from one week to ten days. He has had three attacks. MRS. G. Y.

A.—The disease is periodic ophthalmia (moon blindness) and it is incurable and will end in blindness of one or both eyes from cataract. Bathe the eyes twice daily with a ten per cent solution of boric acid to retard the progress of the disease.

HEAVES.—I have a mare eight years old. She has heaves. I know there is no cure, but could you tell me something to check them? How long does a horse live that has them?

A.—The disease may not greatly shorten life, but when badly affected a horse may die suddenly from heart failure. Feed wet oat straw in winter and green grass in summer instead of hay. Do not feed any bulky feed at noon if the mare has to work and do not work her soon after a meal. Give her half an ounce of Fowler's solution of arsenic night and morning until a quart has been used, then gradually discontinue the medicine unless little good has resulted from its use.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10.)

undermine your chastity and make you the victim of their lust. These are not marrying days. Men if they marry at all marry later than they used to do, a very good thing for both the man and the woman, if the man is a real man, and a very dangerous thing when he is not. Women are confiding and trustful and most girls are romantic and emotional. The libertine who is stalking them down, they will believe nothing bad about, no matter how often they are warned. Only when the cruel awakening comes, and the wrong of it all is seared into their souls like a branding iron, do they realize the truth and see the terrible results of their folly. There are girls and girls. No two are alike—all differ in some minor degree. No human is wholly good, no human wholly bad. Nature is a queer proposition. In some the forces of evil, the urge to wrong, have to be constantly fought and frequently by those who have no power to fight. In others, nature is a placid stream instead of a torrent. No locks or dams are necessary to check the flood for there is none. In one, nature is all storm, in another, all is peace. Some need constant watching, others are able to take care of themselves under any and all circumstances. Latent in all of us are certain instincts, impulses, passions and appetites that have come down to us from ancestors who lived tens of thousands of years ago, and most of these inherited tendencies have to be fought and must be conquered no matter how fierce the struggle or hell and ruin are the result. Parents today are too ignorant to study the psychology of childhood, girlhood or boyhood. To most parents a girl is a girl, a boy a boy. Now every child needs careful individual study, and sound moral and physical training. If children were thoroughly trained, mentally, morally and physically, they in turn could train their children, but the only training that has been handed down to us from the past is the training of force and suppression, the meting out of punishment. We, parrot like, keep telling children not to do this or that without explaining why they should not do certain things. Tell children what they may do as well as what they may not do. Don't nag, don't scold. Reason, counsel, and guide. Children of a certain age should be instructed in the mysteries of sex and life, and taught to regard with respect and reverence that wonderful piece of mechanism, the human body which is the habitation of an immortal soul. Today children learn the most sacred and holy things of life from vicious associates, through a channel of filth, with the result that the whole structure of body and soul is undermined and defiled, wrecked and ruined before the human plant has had the ghost of a show for proper and wholesome development. The things we need most in the school and most in the home—moral and spiritual training are almost entirely absent. That is why our public life is so rotten, that and the quest of bread which has driven millions of women into the industrial inferno, is why the libertine finds so many easy victims, and that is partly why there are three hundred thousand of our fairest daughters being done to death in the damnable white slave hells of fair, free and beautiful America, and a million more on the fringe of society, are clandestinely and immorally engaged in self traffic, the traffic of souls. That is why we have a double standard of morals which condones sin in the male jackal, encouraging him in his villainies, and damns the girl, his innocent victim to eternal disgrace and a living death. One of the reasons I hope and pray we shall soon have universal woman suffrage is that this detestable habit of whitewashing the male wrong-doer shall forever be abolished. If one is to be branded, let both be branded; if one is to be disgraced let both be disgraced. If one is to be sent to a white slave den, send the other to a reformatory or a colony for moral lepers. Vice is rampant in our cities to a degree that beggars all description. Immorality and the social diseases cost the nation three billion dollars yearly, nearly twice as much as the drink curse. A decent woman can scarcely ride in the conveyances of our big cities without insult, and the adoption of the fashions of the lewd women of Paris and New York by the more daring spirits in various communities, has lowered women in the eyes of the opposite sex and inflame' to whiter heat the baser instincts of those male degenerates whose whole lives are devoted to the ruin and destruction of womanhood. Of the influence of low wages and the economic stress upon public morals I've no space here to touch. My one desire however is to warn every decent girl who has a home to stay in it as long as she possibly can, and keep away from those sinks of iniquity the big cities, especially such cesspools of vice as New York and Chicago. In the city a man can do as he likes and so can a woman. In the city, the moral restraints which hold the hot-headed young people of the country in check, are entirely lacking. A man always respects a girl who has a home for he knows that in that home are those who will swiftly avenge an insult proffered to its women. The girl who goes to the city and lives in a boarding house or a furnished room is regarded as a sure prey by the sidewalk wolf. Most girls get furious when their parents try to restrain their actions and are ready to leave home when they are told they must not go out with this man or that. Now you poor silly little geese, remember your parents love you (and that is more than the male hawk does) and are your best friends. They love you more than any man ever will. If sick they will nurse you, provide for you, pray for you and if need be, die for you. Your parents have had what you silly boob girls have not had, experience. Mother remembers how she fought her mother who by the narrowest squeak saved her from destruction and kept her safe under the family roof tree until your good, honest father came along and married her. What grandmother did for your mother, your mothere is trying to do for you. If you think your mother is wrong, remember girls that in ninety-nine cases it is she who is right and you who are wrong. Mother may not have had as good an education as you, she may not be able to wear a hobble skirt or tango as well as you, but she can glimpse human nature better than you can, and she can see through that flashy, disease spreading drummer who occasionally comes to your town and who has turned your silly, empty little head. They know the result of folly and wrong-doing, something you do not. They know how fast the blood is coursing through your veins, they know the wild exuberance of your uncurbed animal spirits, and they have watched the fate that is waiting for you overtake many a girl, and that is why they have put their foot down hard, and that is why you must obey. Society is full of wolves looking for prey. You girls are the lambs and the only safe protection from a wolf is the home fold where the shepherds mother and father are on guard. One word more to you parents: If your daughter makes a mistake take her to your heart and don't throw her out of doors. Remember what narrow escapes you had in your young days, and above all warn the girl that if she falls a victim to the wiles of the social wolf, not only disgrace awaits her, but in most cases disease as well. Disgrace may be lived down, disease cannot. Young women should be warned of the frightful ravages of those diseases which accompany wrong-doing. Even those who cannot be deterred from wrong by the fear of disgrace are often saved from destruction by the dread of torturing and disfiguring diseases from which too often death is the only release. Even to kiss some men means a life of agonizing torture.

WILLOW SPRINGS, MO.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I am so glad you are yet able to cheer and help us and hope our love and kind wishes help you to bear your hard lot. Yes, your straight way of going after wrong is the only right way, and this family look forward to each new paper with eagerness to see how Uncle Charlie will go after some other great wrong. Oh, how you have helped me to bear a hard, heavy burden you can never know and I can never express. When I lay all drawn with rheumatism and couldn't use my hands or limbs, your answers to the letters were my solace. Of a family of eight boys I have been called to bury four. I don't see how I could have stood up if dear Uncle Charlie had not been always ready to say something encouraging, and point to our Father above for help in time of sorrow. Yes, you have been lots of help to me and my family, and a dear old Swiss lady who is my neighbor says, "Tell Uncle Charlie no one can tell him how much he has been to me for the last two years." So now dear Uncle may you be greatly encouraged to go after all the wrongs you have strength to fight. I particularly like the stand you take for wronged and ill-treated women of this old world. You sure had a good old mother and she had a good son and when you are again with her, what joy she will feel to know you did all you could to lighten women's burden here. Oh, how I enjoyed your article on our homes being kept clean and made beautiful. That was needed and needed to come from Uncle Charlie and I could mention half-a-dozen back yards that were immediately cleaned up. Oh, dear Uncle take new heart and just feel how much we of COMFORT need you and remember if we only get a few lines in the paper each month it brings forth a roar of thanks to the kind Father that Uncle Charlie is still able to encourage us.

My love to Maria and Billy and dear Uncle Charlie.

MRS. T. J. FERGUSON.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 25.)

SPECIAL

Would You Accept This 30 Day Offer?

25-Year Gold Case

17 Ruby Jewels

Standard of the World. Endorsed by Government and Railway Officials. Harris-Goar's enlarged easy credit plan enables you to own one of these superb Elgin Watches now.

17-Jewel Elgin!

Now, during this Special Sale, is the time to buy this elegant 17-Jewel Elgin. Thoroughly factory tested, fitted in a beautiful Gold Strata case, factory stamped and guaranteed 25 years, hand engraved, plain polished or with your own monogram, and our startling offer is to send you this celebrated 1914 Model free of charge for your inspection and approval.

No Money Down

Because we want to prove to you that the great volume of our business actually enables us to do better by you than any other watch or diamond house in the world and that on this particular watch, we save you nearly half, for it sells regularly at $20 to $22, while our

Special Price is only $12.75

We don't want you to send one cent. Not a penny. Merely give us your full name and address that we may send you this superb 17-Jewel Elgin on approval, and if after you receive it and want to keep it, then we ask you to pay us the small sum of

Only $2.00 a Month

But, if after you have worn it 30 days free and don't want to keep it, send it back at our expense. You assume no risk whatever. You do not buy or pay one cent until we have placed the watch right in your own hands for your own decision. We want no security, no interest, no red tape—just common honesty among men.

3 Fine Books FREE!

MR. HARRIS wants to send you his three latest BOOKS FREE—one the story of "THE DIAMOND," its discovery, where and how mined, cut and marketed, the other "FACTS vs BUNC" of all about the watch business, both at home and abroad; also our Big Free Illustrated WATCH AND DIAMOND BOOK. Write today—Do it now!

HARRIS-GOAR CO.

Dept. 1479, KANSAS CITY, MO.

The House that Sells More Elgin Watches than Any Other Firm in the World.

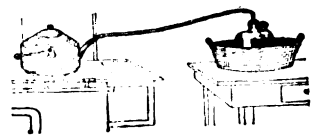
A Corner for Boys

By Uncle John

WELL boys, here we are again at the beginning of another new year, and I trust it finds you well and happy and with bright prospects for the future. It is a universal and time-honored custom, at this season, to make good resolutions for the betterment of conduct and the up-building of character; but how few live up to them or try to, even through the first month! The few who do set a high standard for themselves and, keeping it constantly in mind, persist in making a daily effort to govern themselves accordingly, become the prominent and influential men and women in their respective communities and attain a measure of success far beyond that of the masses which have not the will power to act according to the best lights of their own consciences and reason.

Look back and take stock of your achievements and failures of the past year, not in the spirit of useless regret or discouragement over your shortcomings, but for the purpose of discovering your own faults and with a fixed determination to correct them. Thus, and thus only, you may profit by your more or less costly errors and lapses of the past. Although "Experience is a hard teacher," few there are that heed her lessons.

Don't be one who is always going to do better; do it now, and keep on doing it every day, and soon it will become a habit with you to do the right thing at the right time.

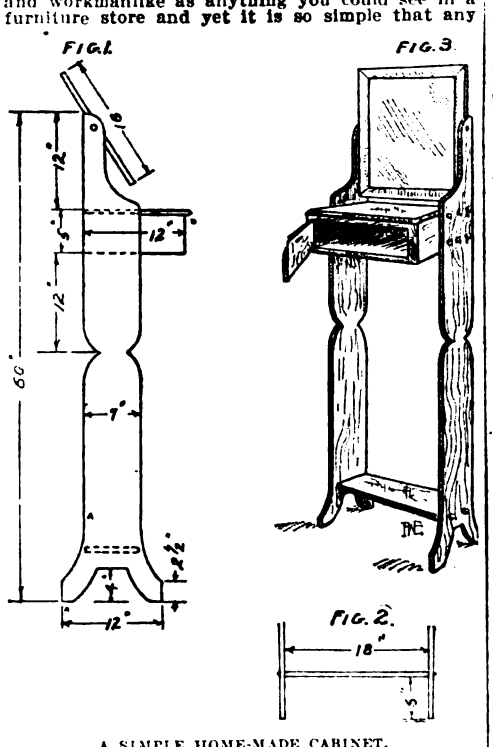


The past is beyond retrieve except so far as you profit by its lessons; the present is yours for action; you can act only in the present, and by your present acts is the only way in which you can influence your future. Look to the past for enlightenment, plan carefully for the future in order to act wisely today, but do not put off action to the future while dreaming away the present. If you neglect the work of today, of each day as it comes and becomes the present, you will drift down the river of life a victim of circumstances instead of steering your own course and shaping your own destiny.

For your mental, moral and physical development you will do well to apply the principles and rules of the Boy Scouts to your daily life. It will bring out the best there is in you, and you will "Be Prepared," according to their motto, to make the best of every turn of fortune, to meet and overcome adversity, and to seize and make the most of opportunity. If you have read and kept in mind the Boy Scout articles that have appeared in this department during the past year you have a general idea of the movement and its teachings and purposes. But what COMFORT printed was only a brief outline, and I advise every boy that can to join the organization or, if he cannot do that, at least to obtain the "Hand Book for Boys" which tells all about the order and describes a large variety of interesting and healthful out-door sports and games. By writing to National Headquarters, Boy Scouts of America, 200 Fifth Avenue, New York City, N. Y., and enclosing thirty cents, you can obtain a copy, postage prepaid, by mail.

As the season now, in most parts of the country, is unfavorable to out-door sports I believe you will like to try your hands at making some of the things that I am telling you, this month, how to build for yourselves.

A Water Still

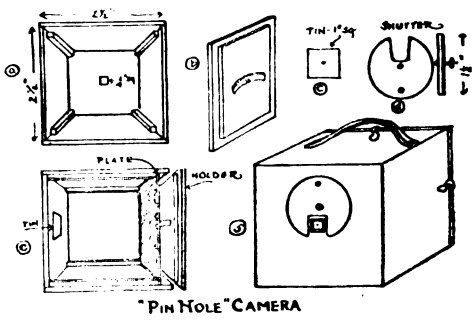


Throughout the whole country the word has been passed to beware of bad water. Your family doctor will tell you that the safest thing to do is to boil every drop of water that you drink. Herewith is shown a simple arrangement for distilling water. Slip one end of a hose over the kettle and let the other end pass down through a tightly fitting cork into an earthenware jug. The jug should be kept partly immersed in a vessel of cold water. The steam rising from the kettle spout passes through the hose to the interior of the jug and as the latter is cooled by the water outside the steam condenses or once more becomes water minus all impurities. Once the device is set up you will not need to pay much attention to it for the steam that usually goes to waste will be constantly forming into water. The water surrounding the jug need only be changed once a day. "A stitch in time saves nine," and this device may save some member of the family a spell of typhoid fever.

A WATER STILL.

A Simple Cabinet

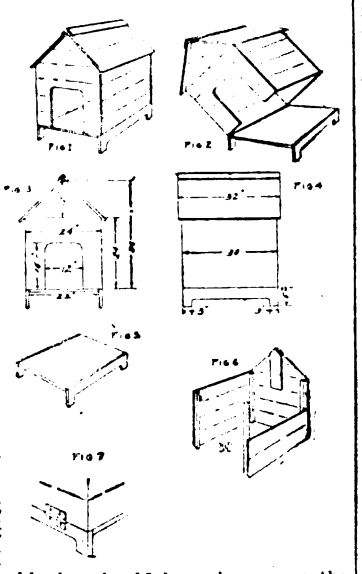
The piece of furniture shown herewith makes a dandy shaving cabinet or it may be used by young lads for a dressing table. The drawer furnishes a place for the clothes brush, collars and ties and handkerchiefs, and the glass is just the right height for finishing the toilet. You will agree with me that the finished article looks as neat and workmanlike as anything you could see in a furniture store and yet it is so simple that any



A SIMPLE HOME-MADE CABINET.

COMFORT lad can make it. The cutting of the side pieces is really all that need concern you. Too much care and pains cannot be expended in shaping them and the big trick is to get both alike. The shelf at the bottom and the box at the top are made of straight edged pieces. A glass of the right size should be purchased. Use oak or chestnut and finish with filler, stain and varnish. You can make this cabinet for about one quarter of what it would cost you at the furniture store.

A Boy Made Camera



This camera, although a little more difficult than the ordinary plans of this Corner may be successfully made and operated by the average boy. The box part of it is made of one or more cigar boxes. The first thing to do is to make a little box two and one half inches square, leaving one of the ends open, as in "a." Cut a hole one quarter inch square in the end of the box opposite the open end. Blacken the interior of the box with paint or ink or by pasting black cloth on the inside. Take a piece of tin one inch square (c) and paste it over the quarter inch hole with glue. In the very center of the tin bore a hole not larger than the point of a pin. This hole is to serve as the lens. The shutter "d" is a piece of tin fastened with a tiny screw and is operated as shown in "f" by simply swinging back or forth. The end or lid of the camera is made of two thicknesses of cigar box wood, and fits tightly enough to exclude light, see "b." Glue four small strips around the inside of the rear end of the camera to serve as a plate holder "e." Glass photographic plates placed in the camera in a dark room are used. The exposure is made by swinging the shutter to one side and letting the light come through the pinhole for about a half minute. If you do not have success at first in using this camera keep on trying. I know it will work for I have tried it. Amateurs with the very best and costliest cameras have many failures.

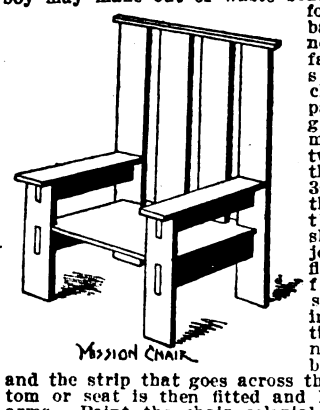
Doghouse

In this plan of a doghouse, sanitation and cleanliness are first considerations. By the scheme of putting hinges on the sides it becomes possible to lay back the whole upper part of the house in such manner that the sunlight and air can get at every corner. It is also much easier to scrub and clean the floor while in this position. The first thing to build is the raised platform Fig. 5. The sides Fig. 6 can be built separately and then nailed together. The roof is formed of boards that overlap a little. Roofing paper or shingles should be put on over the boards. The house is very simple but must be neatly made to look good. If you wish to cover crooked ends you can put upright strips on the outside of each corner. In painting you should paint those strips white and the rest green. Every question about measurements is answered by the drawings. I hope you will tell me how you like this plan.



An Indoor Game

Here is a quiet little game that will add much to the pleasure of an evening indoors. For want of a better name we will call it "Pointing." The one who suggests the game should be given the first chance and he begins play by pointing at some object in the room. All the others present try to guess the object at which his finger is directed and though it may seem easy you will find it difficult enough if you try it. For instance we will say John, who is in the center of the room, points directly in front. Some player will be sure to say, "It's the stove." Beyond the stove is a table with a lamp on it. Someone says, "The table," someone else, "The lamp." John still shakes his head. Looking more sharply, such answers as "The door, the door knob, the panel, the crack, etc.," will be shouted. At last when all are in a state of vexation and reluctantly give up John will divulge that he was pointing at the wall paper. If anyone should happen to guess correctly it is his turn to point. Your mother will like this game boys, and I know you will be thoughtful enough to give her first chance.

A Mission Chair

The mission chair pictured below is one that a boy may make out of waste boards that may be found around the barn or fence corner of every farm. The cut shows pretty clearly how the parts are put together. First make the legs, two long ones for the rear and two 30-inch ones for the front. Cut the necessary slots in those and join them with flat pieces which fit into the slots. Next put in the two additional pieces needed for the back of the chair and the strip that goes across the top. The bottom or seat is then fitted and lastly comes the arms. Paint the chair colonial yellow, stain it with light oak graining compound mixed with turpentine and last of all put on two coats of good varnish. It will then look quite presentable enough for the house. A cushion should be made for the seat. As a first attempt at furniture building I recommend it to the small boy.

A Guessing Game

When time drags heavy much quiet enjoyment may be had by playing the game which we will call "Eatable, Drinkable and Wearable." Any number of persons may play it, the more the merrier, and the older members of the family will get as much fun out of it as the youngsters. The player who has the first chance will give the initial letter of something and tell whether it is something to eat, wear or drink. He may also divulge the number of letters in the word. All the other players then try to guess the word. If three minutes pass without anyone being successful the second letter is told and so on until someone guesses the given word, which must be written down secretly before the guessing starts. As an example the beginner writes down the word "hash," and says, "It is eatable and the first letter is 'h,'" Soon such guesses as "ham, hominy, halibut, horseradish, etc." will be forthcoming. As no one hit it right he will say, "You are all wrong, there are only four letters in it." Now the guessing is more difficult and after three minutes of vain attempts the starter will announce that the second letter of the word is "a." This will throw someone on the right scent and the first to call out the word "hash," will be privileged to write down the second word to be guessed. This game will cheer up the family circle on some dreary winter night.

Strange Tales of the Sea

Some of the voyages of old-time slave ships were horribly grewsome. In 1826 the slaver Gloria commanded by Captain Ruiz, left Africa with five hundred negroes between the decks, but the captain forgot to fill his fresh water casks. Can you imagine the suffering of those helpless human souls. Within a week the entire five hundred had died of thrist and suffocation, and the ship became a festering inferno. Ruiz and the crew drank and caroused while the poor wretches were dying but a disease took hold of them and most of them died in four hours. Around the plague stricken ship a heavy fog, like steam, arose. It was the death mist, at least the surgeon on board said so, and he with the three only survivors left in a little boat and were rescued. Another almost unbelievable tale is that of the French slave ship Rodeur in 1819. All on board were stricken blind except the helmsman. As they sailed along he sighted another ship with sails set. When they got close enough to her they frantically begged for help and what must have been their surprise and terror to learn that the strange ship was afflicted in the same horrible way and had not even one man aboard who could see. It was the Spanish slaver Leon and she was never heard of again.

About Fishing

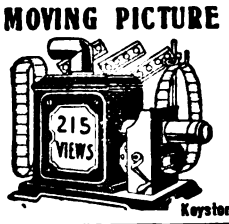
In China the boys do not have to coax their parents to let them go fishing but on the contrary get a little more fishing than they really want. If the Oriental lad's parents happen to live near the water the boy is taught how to fish when he is three and a half years old and thereafter must put in three hundred days a year at it. He may not paddle around and waste his time either because if he comes home without a good string of fish he will very likely get a flogging. How would some of you American lads like to be a Chinese fisher boy on a day when the wind is wrong and the water rough and you don't even get a nibble from morning till night?

Now my dear young friends, make your good resolutions for the new years and make an earnest effort every day to keep them. Try hard and see if you can make good until we meet again in the Corner for Boys in February. I wish you happiness and success this year and through life, but more and above all I hope that you do your best to deserve these blessings, which is the surest way to attain them. UNCLE JOHN.

Poultry Farming for Women

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12.)

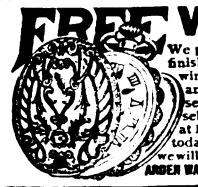
socket which holds the ring for suspending the cage should be unscrewed, and the two disks of metal divided and cleaned, for that is generally where vermin congregate during the daytime. If the cage is covered by a cloth at night, burn it and put a clean one in use, and it won't hurt to put a little good insect powder on the birds themselves. Of course, this same treatment will banish the mites which trouble your own birds.



L. H.—Will you please give the points of a pure bred Bourbon Red turkey?

A.—The Bourbon Red turkey was originally found, I believe, in southern Iowa, southern Missouri, and northern Arkansas. They have been domesticated and bred in Kentucky for many years, and are often called Kentucky Reds. A large breeder describes them as follows: "They are dark red, the gobbler being much darker than the hen, bordering on brown, with white wings and tail. The body feathers should have two narrow black bars running across them. The tips of the feathers have a bronze or metallic sheen which resembles the bronze turkey. The under color runs from buff to almost white." As they are not included in the Standard of Perfection, I cannot give you any more accurate description or any scale of points.

A. W.—I am a new subscriber to COMFORT and would like to ask a few questions. I shall winter about one hundred hens, and I use scratch feed for their supper, which costs me at present two dollars and twenty cents a hundred. Would it be enough cheaper to mix my own grain? For one bushel oats, one bushel cracked corn, what and how much other grain should I use? I feed ground corn, oats and wheat middlings as a wet mash in the morning, and have decided to use beef scraps this winter, as I cannot get ground bone that is fresh. Should the beef scraps be put into hoppers where they can eat at will, or be fed in their mash? If so, how much should I use to every ten hens? I always have a dry mash before them in the winter, called "Lay or Bust." Could I mix a dry mash that would be as good? I do not like the smell or looks of these ground grains at times, and as I have had no sickness, I thought I would rather mix my own grains and avoid sickness if possible. What would you use as a dry mash? What is bone meal, and how used? I keep six or eight inches of litter in henhouse in winter, chaff, hay, and what comes from the hay as it is pitched over. I put a fresh basket in each pen every few days. Is this sufficient green food in this line, or should they have something steamed in their mash? I feed raw apples, cabbage, potatoes, some beets and turnips, put on nails, and cabbage hung by ropes. I hatched out three hundred chickens under hens this year, and the chick feed costing three cents a pound, I found was very expensive. For one bushel corn, please send word what and how much other grains to put with it to make a good chick feed. One of my henhouses has three pens eight feet by ten feet. Would it be advisable to put twenty hens in each of these pens, or would they do better to keep less in them? I have a matched-board little henhouse, seven feet long, five feet to gable, three and one half feet to eaves, three feet three inches across end. How could I have this fixed to use as a brooder for chickens hatched from the middle of March to first of May? I hatch out all my hens, and so far, for four years, I have had no warm place for the little chicks in early spring. Would you advise keeping the hens with the early chickens if I could fix this house warm enough? In this locality everyone has heat in their brooders, but as I have had no experience with incubators or brooders I will thank you for any information you can give me. I have raised chickens with and without hens, and I find I have much better chickens where they have a good mother than where they don't. My hens are thoroughbred Barred Plymouth Rocks.



A.—During the cold weather I always use whole corn at supper-time, with one pint of small grain—usually a mixture of wheat and Kaffir corn to every two quarts of corn, and scatter it broadcast on the litter in the chicken-house. The birds are always so eager to get the whole corn that they rush about scattering the litter, so the small feed gets pushed down out of sight, and is there to attract the birds when they first get off in the morning; which means that they begin scratching and keep up a constant exercise as long as there is a kernel to be found. The exercise warms up their blood and gets them into good active condition early in the morning, when it is most necessary. But if you prefer to use scratch food, to one bushel of oats and corn add one bushel each of wheat, barley, Kaffir corn, half a bushel of golden millet, buckwheat and sunflower seed. When you first commence to use beef scraps, you must be careful not to give the birds too much, as it is apt to give them diarrhea until they get accustomed to it. Half a teaspoonful for each hen at noontime will be about right at first. After a week gradually increase the amount, until each bird is getting a tablespoonful, after which it will be safe to leave it before them all the time in a hopper. For dry mash, use equal parts of corn, oats, wheat middlings, old process oil meal, and wheat bran. Bone meal is composed of dried bones ground to a powder. It is sometimes used in mash mixtures. I don't care for it for laying hens, but think it especially good for growing stock. The hay which you use on the floor of the henhouse would not take the place of green food, but as you give vegetables at noon, it is all right. As you keep a dry mash before your hens all the time, the wet mash in the morning is a useless trouble but if you continue it, add one part of wheat bran and one part of ground clover or Alfalfa. Better cut it out altogether, and give about half a pint of small grain at noon to keep the birds busy scratching. For chick food, mix one bushel each of corn, hulled oats, barley, golden millet, and ten pounds of charcoal. All should be broken to the size of the golden millet seed for the first four weeks. For birds over four weeks of age, the oats need not be hulled, and the large grain need not be broken smaller than Kaffir corn, which is added to the mixture at this time. In winter, when hens even have to be confined to the house for days at a time, I think fifteen hens in each compartment would be more profitable than twenty. As you use hens to hatch the eggs, I certainly should let them do the brooding also. Try to set two or three hens at the same time, and then make one or two hens do all the brooding. A good-sized Plymouth Rock hen should be able to brood from fifteen to eighteen chickens, even in very cold weather, and as many as twenty when the weather moderates. If the small house you speak of faces south and has plenty of windows to let in the sunlight, artificial heat should not be necessary if the old hens are with the chickens to brood them. I should advise keeping the hens in small brood coops along the back of the house, or allow the chickens to run out on the floor, which should be covered with fine litter. If the water is extremely cold early in the season, you could use one or two lanterns or an oil heater early in the morning, or on dull days.

MOVING PICTURE MACHINE FREE

With four complete reels. Three special process films showing beautiful colored pictures, 250 other presents FREE for selling our gold eye needles. Easy to sell. 2 packages for 10c. with thimble FREE. Order goods today.
WE TRUST YOU
When sold return us $1.20 and receive premium entitled to select from our premium book.
Keystone Novelty Co., Box235 Greenville, Pa.

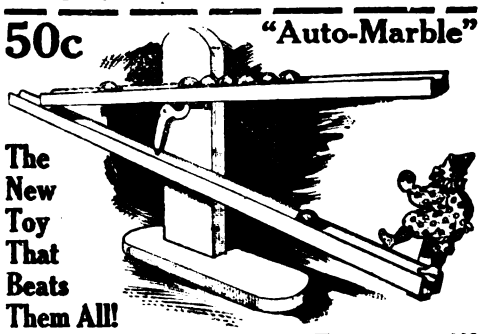
FREE WATCH RING and CHAIN

We positively give free a beautiful, gold-finished, engraved American made, stem wind, stem set watch, proper size, guaranteed five years. Also a beautiful ring set with three diamond cut brilliants for selling 20 jewelry articles at 10c each. Order jewelry today. When sold send $2. we will send watch, ring, chain.
ARDEN WATCH CO. Dept. 39 Chicago

FREE
POWERFUL ACCURATE AIR RIFLE

Steel barrel, walnut stock, peep sight. FREE for selling 12 exquisite Mexican Drawnwork Handkerchiefs at 10c. each. No money required.
R. W. ELDRIDGE, 29 ELDRIDGE BLDG. ORLEANS, VT.

RUPTURE FREEDOM



FREE TRIAL

No More Steel or Rubber Bands
A feeling of comfort and contentment as soon as Stuart's Plapao-Pad is applied. Then the Plapao-Medication in the pad is absorbed by the pores of the skin creating a wonderful feeling of relief and at the same time tending to strengthen the weakened muscles. SELF-ADHESIVE, so pad cannot slip, shift out of place or press against the bone and chafe skin.
PLAPAO-CERATE
No straps, springs or buckles attached. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive—no delay from work. Proved in thousands of cases to be the most comfortable support for rupture and at the same time most efficient aid to nature. Awarded Gold Medal, Rome; Grand Prix, Paris. We PROVE everything by sending trial of Plapao absolutely free. Write today.
Plapao Laboratories, Block 249 St. Louis, Mo.

All The Boys and Girls Want It!

50c "Auto-Marble"

The New Toy That Beats Them All!
Amusing! Interesting!! Fascinating!!!
BETTER than all other toys because the children never tire of it. Durable and practically unbreakable, made entirely of wood and metal. To be placed on table or floor and operated with ordinary marbles which automatically knock down the funny old clown causing him to perform the most comical antics. A perpetual source of fun and laughter for the boys and girls, and amuses the older folks as well. Sent by Parcel Post prepaid to any address in the United States for 50 cents. Agents, this is one of the greatest house-to-house sellers you ever heard of. Write for our special confidential prices in quantity lots.
SPECIALTY CO., 36 COLUMBUS AVE, BOSTON, MASS.

50 European War POST CARDS FREE!

REPRODUCED in natural colors from actual photographs depicting the excitement, the horrors, the pathos, the awful devastation and suffering attending the greatest, most stupendous armed conflict the world has ever known. In spite of the strict rules laid down by the different nations at war forbidding correspondents or photographers to approach anywhere near the firing lines, yet heroes with the camera have got in their daring work and the result is a series of startling photographs of actual scenes taken in the European War Zone, reproduced in post-card form and now placed on sale for the first time in this country. In this wonderful instructive, interesting and exciting set of views are scenes of French and British Infantry, Artillery and Cavalry in action, Refugees fleeing from stricken Belgian towns, desolate ruins of French and Belgian towns after German bombardment, Red Cross workers caring for the wounded, havoc wrought by Zeppelin bomb explosions, allies under fire in the trenches, British troops including Scotch Highlanders and England's famous "Indian" regiments, behind the German firing lines, German dirigibles, charges of German infantry, German prisoners on their way to Paris, Algerian "Fire-Eaters" of the French Army, Russian reservists off to join the Russian troops, the Czar reviewing his soldiers at the front, sick and wounded returning home, and many other views equally as interesting and all taken with the camera so that they are absolutely true and authentic in every detail. As these photographs were published very recently only a few of them have yet appeared in the newspapers and magazines, however by special arrangement with the publisher we can now offer free to COMFORT'S readers the complete set of fifty amazing war pictures, guaranteed to be exactly as described and every one of them reproduced from an actual photograph taken on the scene.

Offer No. 717 A For one new 15-month subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents, we will send you this set of 50 European War Views, free and postpaid.

Offer No. 717 B For your own subscription or renewal or extension of your present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all) we will send you the complete set free and postpaid. Premium No. 717.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

EVERY THIN WOMAN

Can Have a Superb Figure.—We Prove It ABSOLUTELY FREE.

Every woman wants a full round bust, a symmetrical figure and shapely limbs. So no woman who reads this generous offer should, in fairness to herself, fail to respond to it.

All you have to do is to write, saying: "Send me your free treatment and illustrated booklet."

By return mail we will send you, without a penny of cost, a sufficient quantity of Dr. Whitney's Nerve and Flesh Builder to give you the additional flesh that will add immeasurably to your style and attractiveness.

No matter whether your slimness is the result of sickness or inheritance, Dr. Whitney's Nerve and Flesh Builder will promptly build up and beautify your figure.

It acts directly on the fat producing cells and fills out the hollow places. It will enlarge your bust measurement from 2 to 6 inches. And being a purely vegetable compound it cannot possibly do you any harm. Instead it actually benefits the health.

"Treatment No. 1" is a general system flesh builder for both men and women. "Treatment No. 8" is for giving development to the bust. Please say which treatment you prefer. Only one can be had.

Please bear in mind that this offer may be withdrawn at any moment. So do not delay. Write to The C. L. Jones Co., 32A Friend Bldg., Elmira, N. Y.

SILK All Fancy Colors—Large Pieces—All PURE Silk Waste taken out. Best sort to make Quilts, Cushions, etc. Big lot 10c; 3 Big lots 25c; 7 for 50c; 16 for $1.00, postpaid. INDIA SILK CO., 326 MADISON ST., CHICAGO

PATENTS SECURED OR FEE RETURNED. Free reports as to Patentability. Illustrated Guide Book, and List of Inventions Wanted, sent free. VICTOR J. EVANS & CO., 41 Ninth, WASHINGTON, D. C.

LOTS OF MAIL If you want to get lots of mail from different firms—and we will put your name in our Directory. And we will also send you at once, 12 sample Cards, 14 fine Pictures, and a large assortment of curious and wonderful reading matter. Write today, send 10 cents, coin or stamps for postage, and you will get lots of mail—and the big list of presents besides. Williams & Co. 326 Madison St., Chicago

CROWN YOUR TEETH with our gold finished shells and fool your friends. Great fad; resembles dentists' work. Slips over the tooth; easily adjusted; removed at will. Over two million sold. Thousands of pleased customers. Price 10c each; 4 for 25c or 12 for 50c. C. B. FARGO, Dept. Y FRENCHTOWN, N. J.

This Razor FREE SEND NO MONEY

Just send us your name and address and we will send you this fine Razor, direct from our big Factory for a free trial. Use it for 15 days, if you then consider it the finest razor made, you may keep it free of charge, providing you send us $1.85 for our Shaving Set. Strop Hone and Brush. Send 2c Stamp. Bell Razor Co., Dept. 314 Geneva, N. Y.

$5. Prize Package 10c This big Game and Fun Package will amuse the whole family all winter. 100 Great Games, Checkers, Chess, Dominos, Fox and Geese, 9 Men Morris, Authors, Star Puzzle, Chinese Puzzle, 13 Puzzle, 25 Prize Puzzle, Roman Cross Puzzle, 7 Wonders of World, Marriage Looking Glass, Husband's and Wife's Commandments, 22 Popular Songs, 19 Comic Cards, 48 Magic Tricks, 70 Puzzles, 300 Jokes and Riddles, 12 Love Letters, 175 Ways to Flirt, How to Tell Fortunes, How to Make Others Obey You, &c. ALL the above and 500 other things to amuse, 10 CENTS, postpaid. Address STAR CO., 39 Clinton St., CHICAGO.

Throw Your Voice!

Into the next room, under the bed, out in the hall or ANYWHERE. Fool the Teacher, Parents, or Friends. Lots of FUN is a little instrument that fits in the mouth out of sight. BOYS or GIRLS can use it. A 32 page book on the Art of Ventriloquism sent with the Ventrilo for 10cts. ROYAL NOVELTY CO. Dept 23, South Norwalk, Conn.

The Ventrilo

Handsome Silk Velvet Ribbon

Premium No. 718

Your Choice of Black, Brown, Blue, Red, Green and Violet.

TWO inches wide with Duchess satin back, regularly retails at 40 cents a yard in the stores. Comes in all the popular colors—Black, Brown, King's Blue, Cardinal, Hunter's Green and Violet. Every woman and girl finds so many uses for this handsome velvet ribbon we feel that further comment is unnecessary. The thing for you to remember is that this is the very same grade of velvet that always sells for forty cents a yard, that it is a full two inches wide and the colors are positively guaranteed not to fade. We make you two separate offers on this ribbon so as to make it convenient for you to secure about as many yards as you would need for ordinary purposes.

CLUB OFFER. For a club of two 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you one and one half yards of this ribbon free by Parcel Post prepaid. For a club of four 15-month subscriptions at 25 cents each or two 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you three yards. When ordering be sure to mention color or colors wanted. Premium No. 718.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Conducted by Cousin Marion

In order that each cousin may be answered in this column, no cousin must ask more than three questions in one Month.

HAPPY New Year to you all and Happy New Year again, my dears! ! ! How many Happy New Years have I wished you and I wonder how many more I will wish? Anyway, I hope they have been all as happy as I wished them to be and that there will be very many more to us all and none any unhappier than those which are gone. Maybe they might have been better, and I know they might have been worse, so let us make an average and thank the good Lord for the many blessings He has conferred and the many afflictions He has not conferred. Now all I have to say by way of advice is that you try earnestly to have 1915 the very best year you have ever lived, and even if it isn't, the knowledge that you have done your best to make it so will make you glad in your hearts. After which I stop talking and go to work.

The first letter I open is from Laura of Ransom, Kans., who is worried because her friends say she should not marry the man she loves and who loves her, because they are both dark and both heavy-set. Now if there could be a sillier reason than that for not marrying, I don't know what it is. Still if Laura hasn't any better sense than to be influenced by such talk, perhaps it is just as well she marry somebody she doesn't love and who doesn't love her and be sure of being unhappy all the rest of her life.

Gray Eyes, Shawnee, Okla.—If you are engaged the caressing is permissible, but don't let the young man persuade you to have too much of it. Young men have a way of telling girls it will be all right if they are going to marry, but just the same, it isn't wise to believe all they tell you.

Peanut, Warrensburg, Va.—The best way to treat the young man is to give him snub for snub and by and by both of you will realize how silly you are and treat each other politely if not more so.

M. N., Lima, Ohio.—An eighteen-year-old girl weighing two hundred and ten pounds must expect more or less chafing from her friends and acquaintances, but what she should do is to make herself so attractive in every way to everybody that they will wish there was twice as much of her. You write and spell a lot better than a good many COMFORT cousins who aren't half as big as you are.

Sisters, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.—As the man is elderly nd eligible and you are in only "modern circumstances," and he has money, why don't the older of you encourage him, as neither of you have anyone in view? He may not be the ideal knight you have been dreaming of, but these dream husbands I don't think are half as nice and dependable as a good, sensible, kindly man who knows how to make married life worth living.

Serious Trouble, Leesburg, Va.—No, my dear, age doesn't much matter when only love is concerned and if you two are satisfied with your ages, then it is nobody's affair but your own. As to talking to your fiance on subjects not ordinarily discussed by young men and young women, there are some subjects that you should talk about pertaining wholly to yourselves and there are others that are just as well left undiscussed. Tell him so and when he brings up those you think do not concern you two, tell him you don't like them and ask him to skip them. Young people of today are much more free in their talk than was the custom twenty years ago, and it is well that knowledge should be widened, but care must be taken to have only the proper knowledge. Girls should talk with the women who are talking and working these days for the betterment of men and women and they will learn much they should know. Much valuable matter is also written on the same subject in numerous periodicals and some of this may be read with advantage. The innocent-ignorant girl of the past is fortunately giving place to the innocent-educated girl of the present and the future.

J's Darling, Russellville, Tenn.—If he loves you as he tells you and as you believe, he will restrain his desire to "kiss every girl he can reach" and will reserve his kisses exclusively for you. There are many just such men as he is, who think it is no harm to tease and kiss the girls, and possibly they don't mean any harm, but it is a bad habit to get into and is not gentlemanly, besides being likely to cause trouble. Show him this answer to your question, and insist upon his change of manners.

Dimples, St. Johns, Oregon.—Juliet, long ago, so Shakespeare tells us, said to her Romeo: "What's in a name?" and I suppose it doesn't make any difference to you whether you know the young man's name or not, knowing that you love him. Still, my dear, if I were you I wouldn't waste my young love on a nameless party. Suppose you wait in suffering silence and see if he will try to learn your name. It might scare him off entirely if you should ask him what his was. Just the same, some of you girls are awfully silly about young men, whether they care a snap for you or not.

Lonely, Carthage, N. Y.—Don't be foolish and miss spending your evenings in cheerful company when you would otherwise be so lonely, simply because there is a young man in the house who brings you home and you are afraid he will think you go there just for him to walk home with you. If you like the people and they like you, keep on spending just as many evenings with them as you please. If the young man didn't want to take you home, he wouldn't, and why deprive him of the pleasure just because of a foolish notion?

Two Lassies, Elmhurst, Pa.—I can't possibly do anything to help two girls of high school age whose hearts are broken over the same young man who went away from them without a word and hasn't written. There is no help in such a case, but to study so hard you will forget it. But wasn't it cruel of him?

Black Eyes, Adamsville, Ala.—When a young man doesn't know definitely which of two girls he likes better, I think he is inclined to like that one who shows her jealousy. Most young men of inexperience seem to think jealousy is a compliment to their attractive qualities. They change their minds when they marry a jealous woman. (2) I have no opinion at all of a girl who will cry before her beau because he had gone out with another girl the evening before. If she had good sense and the right kind of spirit she would "jolly" him about it and go out with another young man the next evening.

Country Girl, Mansfield, Ohio.—I believe as you do that young people should get out and meet other young people and I may be thought wrong by some parents, but I do think that if girls who are self-supporting are deprived by parents of the harmless association that all youth demands by right, they are quite justified in leaving home and being independent. Not always, but very often, parents are more to blame for daughters going wrong than the daughters are. Home slavery sometimes is very nearly as bad as white slavery, but some parents will not understand.

Violet and Rose, Winston, Conn.—My dears, don't worry over Charley whom you both love, but worry over your spelling-book which neither of you seem to love very much. And in Connecticut, too! !

Troubled Blonde, Camilla, Ga.—If he loves you so much, as he says he does, and talks about you as his "very very own" and all that sort of thing so handy with men talking to girls, why doesn't he propose to you and have some right to insist upon your kissing him? I'm older than you are and not at all sentimental as you are and I wouldn't let him kiss me unless we were engaged. You may do as you please about it.

Mildred, Colson, Ky.—You cannot believe him when he comes back to you after you had sent him away and were so very sorry you had done so, I don't see anything you can do except to send him away again. If you doubt him so, why did you want him back again?

There, my dears, all your questions are answered or sent to other departments except where they were simply too silly to be noticed, and I know that for the New Year you will say I am being just too lovely. Anyway, I wish you all a Happy New Year and that we may meet again soon. By, by.

COUSIN MARION.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 23.)

Thank you dear friend, for all the lovely and encouraging things you have to say about my humble efforts to fight the battles of the wronged and oppressed, through the medium of these columns. There is one thing in your letter that has tickled me immensely. You say as a result of my article "The Home Beautiful" in the March issue of last year that six families cleaned up their back yards. That's immense! A dirty back yard generally means a flowerless front garden, a sloppy kitchen and a dirty house. Every old tin can you scatter around the premises becomes at some time or other a receptacle for water and a breeding place for flies and mosquitoes. Once a year in New York (it ought to be once a week, or at least once a month) the police come around and deliver notices that all the junk in the cellar (and nearly all cellars are full of junk) and all the ossified bric-a-brac in the back yard, in the shape of bottles and tin cans, must be deposited in receptacles on the sidewalk where the street-cleaning department can remove them. Some of you folks in the country need a cleaning department and somebody to make you clean up those back and front yards, and if I had my way there would be somebody to make people clean the inside of their houses as well. We are far too uncivilized to be left to our own devices when it comes to sanitation and the health question. When I started to write my reply to Mrs. Ferguson, Maria went to our record department and brought out a stack of clippings which are all neatly pasted on big sheets of paper under the caption of "Health and Hygiene." If you were to study these papers it would upset a lot of your preconceived notions about things, and city people who go to the country for their health, if they read them, would be unpacking their trunks and staying at home, while country people who come to the city for pleasure would find that the greatest thing the city had to offer them, strange to relate, was health. In a Pennsylvania farmhouse, quite recently, nine people were found sleeping in one room and that room had scarcely any ventilation. Last summer my neighbors as usual went to the country for their "health." There were six in all, and in ten days four of the six were very ill. Three country doctors were called and not one knew what was the matter with them. The sick children were rushed home, and my physician who attended them, found them suffering from typhoid. The water they drank came from a well that had not been cleaned for many years. In the fall the New York hospitals are crowded with typhoid cases. The victims are people who have been to farmhouses in the country for their "health." Another family I know went to Long Island also for their "health." In two weeks scarlet fever developed among the children. When the fever ceased its ravages, the family disinfected the house. The country authorities took no steps to quarantine the family, disinfect the house, or prevent the spread of the disease. There is a tremendous amount of malaria in some sections of this country, and it is all caused by a malaria bearing mosquito, and vast numbers of mosquitoes breed in filthy back and front yards. Screen your houses and clean up your yards, and you who live in malaria districts should take quinine in five grain doses for adults, morning and evening on two consecutive days each week. Saturday morning and evening and Sunday morning and evening from May first to November or December the first. In highly malarious districts, three to five grains of quinine should be taken daily during the height of the malarial season. One hundred capsules of quinine, five grains, will only cost you fifteen cents. A single dose for a child should be one grain for each three years of age. A child of ten years should receive six grains a day or twelve grains a week. For less than a dollar you can keep free from malaria for a whole year. Quinine thus used is a good tonic and fine preventive. Before screening the house a family spent one hundred and seventy-five dollars a year, for medical attention, and after screening, less than twenty dollars a year. That family of nine members lives in Arkansas. Better to screen and save suffering and doctor's bills. Some people hoard rubbish as misers hoard gold. Have a clean-up day once a month outside and once a week inside the house. Don't take the junk out of the house and put it in the back yard—burn it. I have some facts before me about the little red schoolhouse, famous in song and story, not only for giving people a poor education, but also for giving them poor health. It would make your hair stand on end to study these facts. If you compare Orange Co., Va. school children with those in this hell hole of bricks, New York, you will find that in spite of all the wonderful country air that the Virginia children enjoy, there are nearly four out of every hundred children suffering from tuberculosis (that's consumption remember) to every one in a hundred here in New York. The country children, where food is produced, one third of them at least (31.2 per cent) have wretchedly nourished bodies, while only a little over three in a hundred in the city, are suffering from malnutrition. Where there is an effect there will always be a cause. The existence of the filthy back yard is due to the fact that inside the house are poorly nourished bodies. People whose bodies are poorly nourished have no strength, no energy, no ambition, and that is why the death rate is high and politics rotten, for unless you have a healthy body you're not likely to have a healthy mind, and it takes a healthy mind to develop an interest in state and national politics and all progressive measures. One of the reasons country children are badly nourished is that the mothers do not know how to prepare food when they get it. The American frying pan has put nearly as many people in their graves, as the American gin mill, and if all those women who are wild about wiping out the saloon will fire the frying pan and the whiskey bottle out of the window at the same time and broil the things they now fry, the country children will be nearly

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 29.)

REAL HAIR GROWER

Found at Last!

The Great English Discovery, "Crystolis," Grows Hair in 30 Days

$1000.00 Reward If We Fail On Our Guarantee. Try It At Our Risk—Mail Coupon Today.

Beautiful Hair and Lots of it, if You Use Crystolis.

In Europe "Crystolis," the New English Hair Grower, has been called the most wonderful discovery of the century.

The judges of the Brussels and Paris Expositions enthusiastically awarded Gold Medals to this marvelous Hair Grower.

Already since we secured the American rights hundreds of men and women have written telling of the phenomenal results obtained by its use. People who have been bald for years tell how they now glory in beautiful hair. Others who have had dandruff all their lives say they have got a clean, healthy scalp after a few applications of this wonderful new treatment.

We don't care whether you are bothered with falling hair, prematurely gray hair, matted hair, brittle hair or stringy hair, dandruff, itching scalp, or any or all forms of hair trouble, we want you to try "CRYSTOLIS" at our risk.

We give you a binding guarantee without any "strings" or red tape, that it won't cost you a cent if we do not prove to you that "CRYSTOLIS" will do all we claim for it—and what's important, we have plenty of money to back our guarantee. $1000 has been deposited in our local bank as a Special Fund to be forfeited if we fail to comply with this contract. Cut out the coupon below and mail it today to Creslo Laboratories, 12-N Street, Binghamton, N. Y.

FREE COUPON

The Creslo Laboratories,
12-N Street, Binghamton, N. Y.

I am a reader of COMFORT. Prove to me without cost how "CRYSTOLIS" stops falling hair, grows new hair, banishes dandruff and itching scalps and restores premature gray and faded hair to natural color. Write your name and address plainly and PIN THIS COUPON TO YOUR LETTER.

RING AND BRACELET GIVEN Sell 6 boxes Rosebud Salve at 25c a box (great remedy for burns, sores, eczema, piles, catarrh, corns, bunions, etc.), return the $1.50 and we will promptly send this gold shell weddingring and new style gold laid bracelet, warranted, or choice from large catalogue. Send No Money, we trust you. ROSEBUD PERFUME CO. DEPT. C, WOODSBORO, MD.

This offer made by old reliable firm established 22 years.

STEM WIND & SET WATCH RING and CHAIN FREE SELLING NEEDLE BOOKS

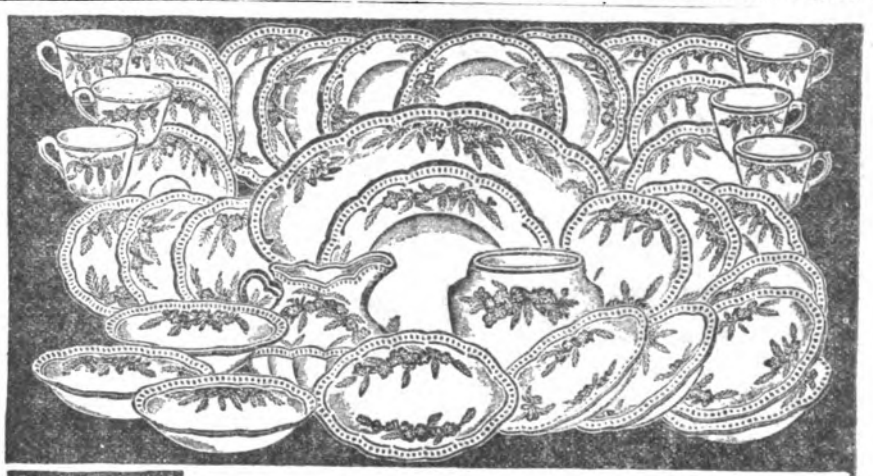
We positively give FREE a STEM WIND, STEM SET, RICHLY ENGRAVED WATCH, equal in appearance to Solid Gold Watch, Guaranteed 5 yrs. & beautiful Im. Diamond Ring for selling only 20 Needle Books at 10c. Each book contains 3 packs needles and 8 darning needles. Order 20 books, when sold send us $2, we will send you Watch, Chain & Ring. Willard Watch Co. Dep 153 Chicago

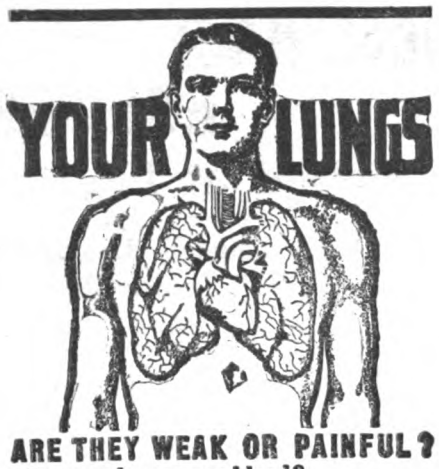


919 CARDS New Styles Gold Bevel Edge Hidden Name, Silk Fringe Envelope and Post Cards; 100 Rich and Racy Jokes; 1 Pack Fun, 1 Escort and Love Cards; Star Beau Catcher, Big Sample Book Cards, etc., all Two cents. UNION CARD CO., B 31 Columbus, Ohio.

ASTHMA REMEDY sent to you on FREE TRIAL. If it cures, send $1.00; if not, don't. Give express office. Write today. W. K. Sterline, 874 Ohio Ave., Sidney, Ohio.

Old Coins WANTED, $1 to $600 paid for hundreds of coins dated before 1894. Send 10c for our 72c Coin Value Book. It may mean your fortune. OLD COIN CO., 302 EAST 61st ST., CHICAGO

$10.00 per 100 earned collecting names and addresses. Enclose stamp for further particulars. Bostion Card Co., Dept. W, Legore, Md.



Underglaze Dinner Set Free

THIS magnificent dinner set is made up in 31 and 42 pieces, decorated in beautiful blue floral design with solid gold tracings, all decorations underglazed. We ship the dishes express paid by us. Given for distributing only 16 sets of our new art pictures at 25 cents a set on our new and easy plan. Many have done it in an hour.

Two Pair Lace Curtains Extra

WE also offer two pair of handsome full size lace curtains extra and in addition to the dinner set. You don't have to distribute any more pictures for this extra curtain prize. Send for the 16 sets of pictures today. We run all the risk. No harm trying. Est. 26 years. W. S. Murphy, Mgr., 141 W. Ohio St., Dept. T19, Chicago.

ARE THEY WEAK OR PAINFUL?

Do your lungs ever bleed?
Do you have night sweats?
Have you pains in chest and sides?
Do you spit yellow and black matter?
Are you continually hawking and coughing?
Do you have pains under your shoulder blades?
These are Regarded Symptoms of

LUNG TROUBLE

You should take immediate steps to check the progress of these symptoms. The longer you allow them to advance and develop, the more deep seated and serious your condition becomes. We Stand Ready to Prove to You absolutely, that Lung Germine, the German Treatment, has cured completely and permanently case after case of Consumption (Tuberculosis,) Chronic Bronchitis, Catarrh of the Lungs, Catarrh of the Bronchial Tubes and other lung troubles. Many sufferers who had lost all hope and who had been given up by physicians have been permanently cured by Lung Germine. If your lungs are merely weak and the disease has not yet manifested itself, you can prevent its development, you can build up your lungs and system to their normal strength and capacity. Lung Germine has cured advanced Consumption, and the patients remain strong and in splendid health today.

Let us send You the Proof—Proof that will Convince any Judge or Jury on Earth

We will gladly send you the proof of many remarkable cures, also a FREE TRIAL of Lung Germine together with our new 40-page book (in colors) on the treatment and care of consumption and lung trouble.

JUST SEND YOUR NAME

Lung Germine Co., 116 Rae Blk., Jackson, Mich.

FITS!

I have been treating Fits, Epilepsy and Falling Sickness with great success for over 20 years. Many who had given up all hopes say my medicine cured them. S. J. Myers of Dow, Ill., says: "I shall hold you in grateful remembrance as long as I live for saving the life of my son." J. E. White of Junction, Ill., says: "I took your medicine and it entirely cured me." Harriet Carney of St. Francisville, La., says: "I was subjected to fits about 15 years until I started your treatment. After using it I was entirely cured." W. N. Waggoner of Jamestown, N. Y., says: "I couldn't say enough for you and your medicine if I should write all day." C. Westphal, 76 Edson St., Buffalo, N. Y., says: "From the day I began to take your medicine I began to improve." Mrs. Kate Sisk, E. Prairie, Mo., says: "May God bless you and your wonderful remedy." G. A. Duckworth of Norwood, Ga., says: "Let those that don't believe write me."

$2.00 Bottle FREE!

I want everyone suffering with this terrible disease to try my wonderful medicine. Let me prove what I can do for you. If you, a friend or relative suffer from this disease, send me name, age, address, and describe case. I will prepare and send at once a FREE 16 ounce bottle of medicine, enough for two weeks treatment.

DR. FRED E. GRANT, Dept. 120, Kansas City, Mo.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me. Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 460A Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

RING AND BRACELET GIVEN

Free for selling 6 boxes Palmer's Wonder Salve at 25c a box. Great remedy for cuts, bruises, burns, scalds, eczema, piles. Sells fast. When sold send us $1.50 and we send you this Guaranteed Gold Shell Adjustable Bracelet and Ring FREE; or choice of other premiums from our catalog. We trust you. SEND NO MONEY.

HOWARD & CO., 40 Penn St., Palmyra, Pa.

FREE WATCH, RING AND CHAIN

Our fully guaranteed watch is highly engraved, stem-wind, stem-set, simulated gold finished; desirable size, late thin model, fancy bezel, new design; given free to anyone for selling 20 jewelry articles at 10c ea. Order jewelry now; when sold send $2. and we'll send you watch, exquisite, three-stone RING and fine Ladies' or Gent's Chain FREE.

DALE WATCH CO., DEPT. 12, CHICAGO

ECZEMA

IS CURABLE Write me today and I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing guaranteed treatment that will prove it. Stops the itching and heals permanently.

DR. CANNADAY, 106 Park Square, SEDALIA, MISSOURI.

APPENDICITIS

If you have been threatened or have ever had pains in the right side or in the abdomen, write for valuable Book of Information FREE

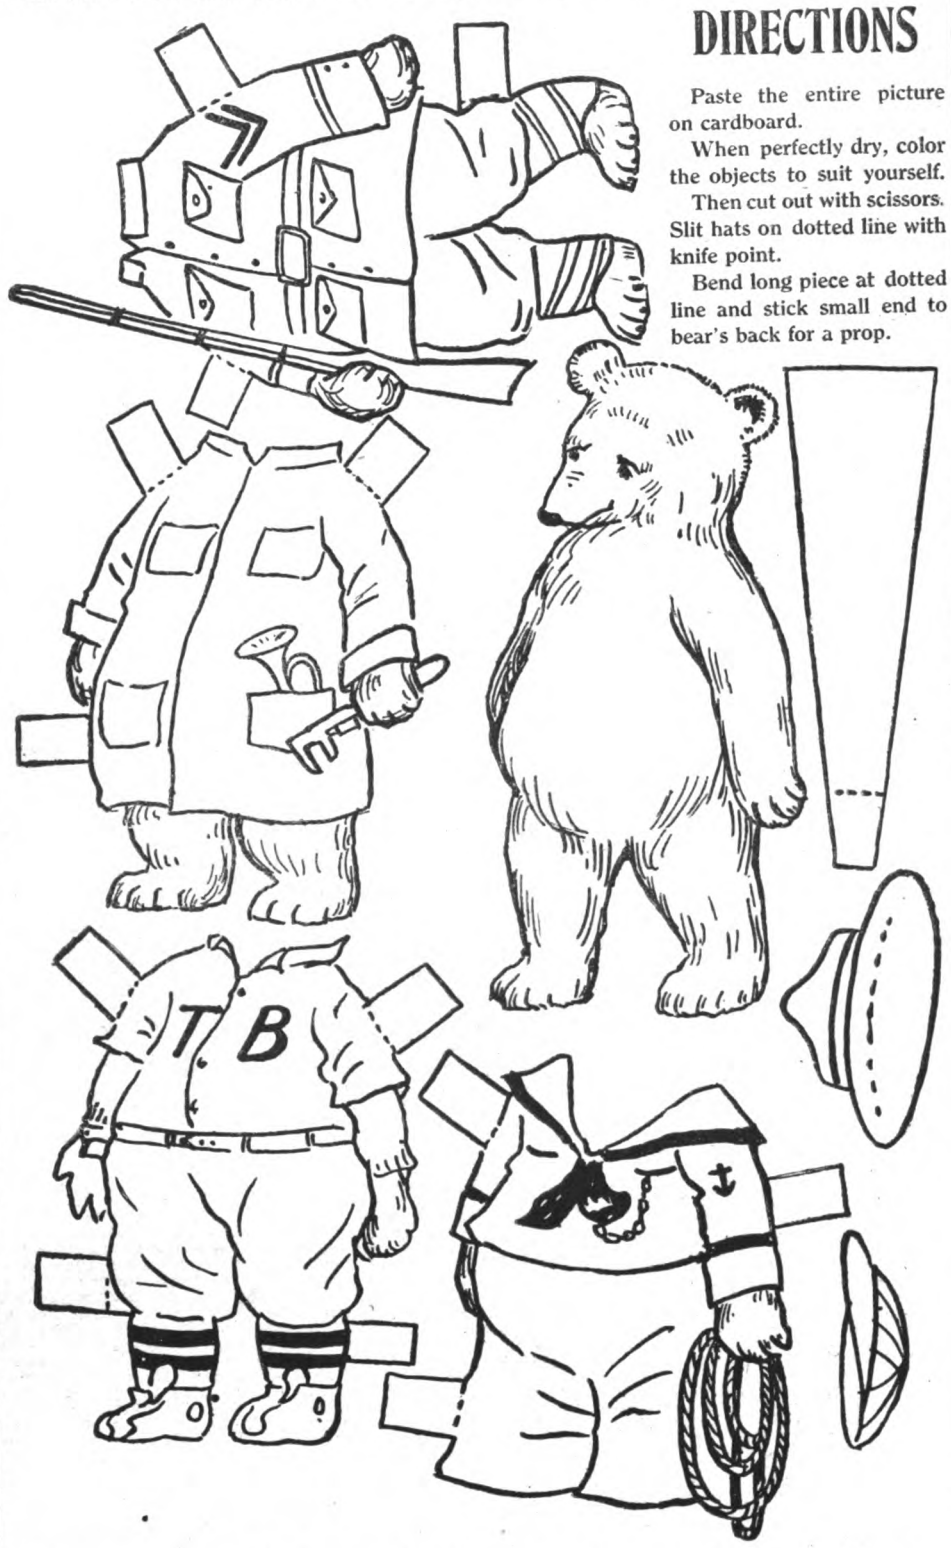
GALLSTONE REMEDY CO., Dept. A-15, 219 S. Dearborn St., Chicago

WANTED AN IDEA! Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect Your ideas, they may bring you wealth. Write for "Needed Inventions" and lists of "Patent Buyers."

RANDOLPH & CO., Patent Attorneys, Dept. 112, WASHINGTON, D. C.

FREE

Violin Outfit for selling 20 pictures or 20 pkgs. post cards at 10c. Order your choice.



GATES MFG. CO. Dept. 725 Chicago

Dress Up Teddy Bear

WELL, dear little children, how are you in this cold and snowy weather? Some of you are so far South that perhaps you do not know what snow and cold are, but whether you are North or South, East or West, I hope you are feeling well and having a good time, and I wish you all a happy New Year. Are you acquainted with COMFORT'S cut-out dollies? It is great fun to cut out the different dresses and put them on the cute paper dolls. Children all over the world are doing it and surely you do not want to be behind the times. If you have a little box of water colors, or colored pencils or chalk you can tint the suits and make them look very pretty. For a penny you can get a box of colored chalk that will last you a long time. The best place to keep your dollies is in a box or large envelope. As we shall have some others for you now and then, you should start your collection now so it will be complete.

Of course you all know by this time that you must first paste the picture on cardboard and allow it to dry before cutting out the dolls and dresses. Spread the paste evenly with a rag or brush on the cardboard and press the COMFORT page down, smoothing flat from center to edges. It will dry nicely if placed in the center of a heavy book.

This month we have a Teddy bear for your collection, but listen sharp and I will tell you how the Teddy bear came to be.

DIRECTIONS

Paste the entire picture on cardboard.

When perfectly dry, color the objects to suit yourself.

Then cut out with scissors. Slit hats on dotted line with knife point.

Bend long piece at dotted line and stick small end to bear's back for a prop.

Story About the Teddy Bear

ALONG time ago there were no such things as Teddy bears for children to play with. Your mother or big sister will tell you that they never saw any when they were young. Of course there were dolls of every kind and size, some bigger than you are and some so little that they only cost a penny. But even the latter were too dear for some poor children to buy, for in this world there are many, many children so poor that they cannot have even one cheap plaything. Such a child was Ragsy Dimple, so named because she could never even get a new dress. She lived in a big city, too, and every day she could see dozens of fancy dressed children going by her house with great, big dolls. Ragsy wanted a doll so much that at last, one day, she decided to make one. All she could find for this purpose was a pair of old brown stockings, and with the utmost care she cut and shaped and stitched until she had her dolly complete. The legs and arms, she made separately and then sewed them on so they could move. She was very proud of it when it was finished and ventured out for a walk. Just then a wealthy child with a great big doll passed and looking at Ragsy Dimple's pet said: "My goodness, do you call that thing a doll? Why it looks like a bear!" Ragsy had named her doll Teddy and she replied: "This is my Teddy doll and I love it." "It's a Teddy bear not a Teddy doll," said the other sneeringly, as she walked away. But other children saw and liked Ragsy's pet and pretty soon nearly every child in the country had one like it and was petting and loving their Teddy dolls or must I say Teddy bears. So you see the old brown stocking baby became the most famous doll in all the world.

UNCLE JOHN.

The Sorrows of Cubby Bear

By Lena B. Ellingwood

Copyright, 1914, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

CUBBY BEAR sat on the doorstone, his mouth drooping at the corners, his eyes fixed upon the ground at his feet.

Mamma Bruin laid a comforting paw on his head. "What makes my little Cubby Bear so sober?" she asked.

"If I tell, you will laugh at me."

"No, no, I would not do that!"

"Well, then, my little cousin, Bonniebelle Bear, has gone away. I have no one to play with, this forest is not a nice place to live in, I did not sleep well last night, my paws are cold, and my tooth aches!"

"That is hard," said Mamma Bruin, "but I think you will soon feel better. Perhaps you ate too much bees' honey. At any rate, you have looked down at that bit of brown earth long enough. Look up and see the bright sun shining, clap your paws to warm them, and take a little walk. Perhaps you will meet some of your friends."

"I will go," agreed Cubby Bear listlessly, "but I shall feel no better. You need not get any dinner ready for me, Mamma Bruin, for I cannot eat."

Cubby Bear walked slowly along the path. By and by he heard a little voice chattering sharply.

"That is Chirpy Chipmunk," he thought. "He is not feeling pleasant. I will see what ails him."

Chirpy was sitting on a log near his home, holding up one of his forepaws, which was carefully bandaged.

"Oh, is your paw sore?" asked Cubby. "I heard you scolding, and hurried to see what was the matter."

"Enough to make anyone scold, I should think," cried poor Chirpy. "A stone fell on my paw two days ago, and I cannot use it. It aches all the time! I would not mind that so much, but there was a beautiful frost last night, which opened the husks and let the nuts fall to the ground. Today I ought to be working hard, laying up beech and hazel nuts for the winter. The children will come after school and gather them all, and then when the winter days come and the snow covers everything, I shall starve."

"That will never do," said Cubby Bear. "I will help you. I can pick up the nuts, and you can show me where to pack them away in your winter home. It will be fun!"

He gathered the nuts and stowed them away, so many that Chirpy Chipmunk said. "I never had so many nuts before! I shall not be hungry now, thanks to you. You are a good, kind friend, Cubby Bear, and I will try to help you when you need me."

"I will come again tomorrow," said Cubby Bear, "and if you want me to, I will ask Squilly Porcupine, who is a good doctor, to come and cure your paw."

Then Cubby Bear walked on until he came to Bunny Rabbit's house. He could hear the Baby Bunnies crying, and went to ask if they were sick. Just as he came to the door, Woozie Weasel slipped out quickly, and ran past him into the woods.

"Bunny Rabbit is away from home," he thought, "and that bad Woozie Weasel has been teasing and frightening the Baby Bunnies—biting them, perhaps! They say he sucks the blood of Baby Bunnies and other young creatures and sometimes kills them. I will stay here until Bunny comes home."

So he stayed and played with the Baby Bunnies, who knew him and were not afraid, until Bunny Rabbit came hurrying home.

"How good you are," said Bunny, when he had heard about Woozie's visit. "The next time I have to be away, I shall lock the door, or get someone to stay with my babies."

As Cubby Bear was walking along toward the Big Brook, he met Wollie Woodchuck.

"Good morning, Wollie," he said, "you seem to be in a hurry."

"Good morning," answered Wollie, his small eyes blinking. "Oh, it is you, Cubby Bear! I have an errand to do, and was wishing I had someone to go with me. I should be so glad if you would go! Could you?"

"Oh, yes," answered Cubby, "if it is not too far, and you are sure you know the way. Mamma Bruin told me to take a walk."

They trotted along, talking of the pleasant weather and all the interesting things they saw along the way. The errand was soon done, and then they started for home. The bright sunshine had taken away the chill of last night's frost, the birds were singing cheerily, and they had a nice walk.

"See, see!" cried Cubby Bear, looking up into the sky. "There is Shinyblack Crow! He sees us, and is coming down!"

"Caw, caw! this is a fine day!" Shinyblack Crow greeted them. "I wish I could take you up into the sky with me, Cubby Bear! It is so good, so bright and beautiful—the free, pure air!"

"Yes," said little Cubby Bear, "but the earth is a good place, too, and there are many things to make us happy!"

When Cubby Bear reached home again, he was smiling and joyful.

"I am hungry, Mamma Bruin," he said. "I have had a nice morning."

"And how is your toothache?"

"Why, I had forgotten all about it!" he laughed. Then he told her all he had done.

"The surest way to be unhappy," said wise Mamma Bruin, as they were eating dinner together, "is to sit idly down, shut our eyes to all the pleasant and helpful things we might be doing, and think how many troubles we have!"

HEART DISEASE. $2.50 TRIAL FREE. Dr. Miles, the great specialist, will send a new and remarkable Special Personal Treatment Free to those having Enlarged, Valvular, Rheumatic, Dropsy, Weak, Fatty or Nervous Hearts; Short Breath, Palpitation, Smothering, Irregular Pulse, Pain, Swollen Ankles, etc. Wonderful success. Many, so-called "incurable," cured after 3 to 15 doctors failed. Write now for Free Trial, Book and Remarkable Cures from your state. Address, DR. FRANKLIN MILES, Dept. H, Elkhart, Indiana, 93 to 103 Main Street.

All the New Songs & Dances 10c

This Big Song Book contains all the latest and most Popular Song Hits of the day, such as LOVE, WAR, COMIC, COON, RAG TIME, IRISH, &c. Best and Biggest collection of Songs ever offered. Hum, Whistle and Sing the Latest and be popular in your town. We also send you a Big Cat. & List, a $1.00 Due Bill, a Gold Prize Ticket. Also How to Dance all the Latest Dances, THE TANGO, THE MAXIXE, THE HESITATION and DREAM WALTZ, &c., Illustrated with Full Instructions. All sent Post Paid for only 10c, or 2 lots 25c. Don't miss this Great offer, you'll be Delighted. Address IDEAL MUSIC HOUSE, HURLEYVILLE, N. Y.

IT CURED MY RHEUMATISM

I will gladly send Free to any sufferer a Simple Herb Recipe that CONQUERS RHEUMATISM. If convenient enclose 2-cent stamp. H. B. SUTTON, 2631 Orchard Ave., Los Angeles, California.

Free To Every Little Girl!

Golden Locks And Her Lovely Twin Babies!

All Three Dollies Given To You Without Cost!

Premium No. 463.

Mothers, Don't Fail To Read This Offer!

COMFORT wants to give free to your little girl and every little girl this handsome doll Family stamped in beautiful colors on strong cloth with full directions so that you can cut them out, stuff and sew them up in less than ten minutes. "Golden Locks" is almost as big as a real baby, for she stands one and one half feet high and her cute little twin babies which you see in the picture stand over half a foot high. These dolls cannot be broken no matter how much they are thrown around or dropped on the floor and you can make them bend their arms and legs, stand up and sit down in a chair and assume all sorts of natural positions. They have beautiful golden hair which hangs in the dearest curls you ever saw and fastened with a bright red ribbon bow that cannot get lost or become untied, handsome red cheeks, rosy lips and lovely blue eyes which smile at you in such a lifelike way that you would almost think they were ready to speak and say "Mama." As shown in above illustration they are dressed in dainty lace-trimmed underwear with bright red stockings and black buttoned boots. The three dolls together—'Golden Locks" and the two sweet Baby Dolls—make the cutest and prettiest Doll Family any little girl ever had to play with. They are lots better for the little folks than the more expensive bisque and china dolls because they will not break or snarl their pretty hair or lose their eyes. There is no little girl who will not instantly fall in love with this beautiful Doll Family and spend many happy hours with it, so we hope that every mother who reads this offer will take advantage of it at once. We will send you all three dolls free by Parcel Post prepaid on the terms of the following special offers.

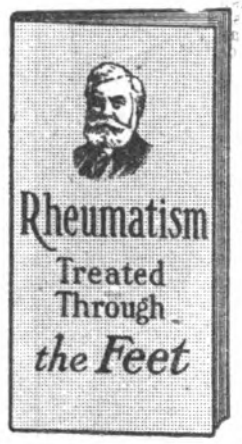
Offer 463 A. For one new 15-month subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents we will send you all three dolls free by parcel post prepaid.

Offer No. 463 B. For your own subscription or renewal or extension of your present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all) we will send you all three dolls free by Parcel Post prepaid. (Premium No. 463). Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Good for $1 Pair of Drafts to Try and New Book on

RHEUMATISM

When filled in and mailed to FREDERICK DYER, Dept. 156, Jackson, Mich.



Name .....

Address .....

.....

Read my extraordinary offer below.

Cut Off Here

Send Today for this FREE BOOK

Tells how to get rid of your Rheumatism

Without Medicine, Without Inconvenience, and Without Risking One Penny.

My simple method has brought comfort and happiness to thousands of sufferers from this pitiless curse of rheumatism. I can send you letters from nearly every civilized country on the globe telling of cures by my Drafts in every stage of the disease, even after 30 and 40 years of cruel pain, and after the most expensive treatments and baths had failed. Get my book and learn about my method. I have such faith in my Drafts that I gladly send them on approval to any sufferer who writes. Just send me your name. Try my Drafts when they come, and if you are satisfied with the benefit received then you can send me One Dollar. If not, keep your money. I take your word. You can see that I couldn't possibly make such an offer if I were not positive that my Drafts are better and surer than anything else you can get for any kind of Rheumatism, no matter where located or how severe. Send your address on above coupon (use postal card if you prefer) and you'll get My Free Book and Trial Drafts by return mail. Address: Frederick Dyer, Dept. 156, Jackson, Mich.

GOITRE

$2.50 TEST Treatment FREE

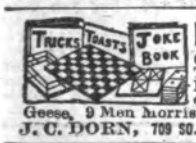
Don't suffer and be disfigured with Goitre. I am curing hundreds of old chronic cases that had resisted all other remedies. My patients everywhere are reporting cures. You may try one $2.50 treatment of my remarkable discovery at my expense. It's absolutely FREE—in plain package—send no money. You will be surprised at how quickly my treatment reduces the size of the goitre and relieves choking and other disagreeable symptoms. It is effective from the first trial. No interference with your work, no danger of any kind, no obligation. SEND AT ONCE.

$2.50 Treatment Free

Fill out and mail this coupon to DR. W. T. BOBO, 715 MINTY BLOCK, BATTLE CREEK, MICH., and get one $2.50 Treatment FREE by mail.

Age?.....How old is goitre?.....yrs.

Nervous?.....Hands tremble?.....



Do eyes bulge?.....Does heart beat too rapidly?.....Health?.....

Name .....

Address .....

OLD Sores and Eczema, New Remedy for Eczema, Fever and Leg Sores. Box FREE A Rones Remedy Co., Box 93, Milwaukee, Wis.

PILES PAY IF CURED— Write for postage and send FREE Red Cross Pile and Fistula cure. REA CO., DEPT. 80, Minneapolis, Minn.

Big Entertainer 103 Parlor Tricks and Games, 310 Jokes and Riddles, 73 Toasts, 15 Card Tricks, 4 Comic Recitations, 3 Monologues, Checkers, Chess, Dominoes, Fox and Geese, 9 Men Morris. All 10 CENTS POST PAID. J. C. DORN, 709 SO. DEARBORN ST., DEPT. 24, CHICAGO, ILL.

Gallstones Internal remedy (No Oil). Avoid an operation. No more aches or pains, sick stomach, colic, gas, biliousness, headaches, nervousness, catarrh, constipation, yellow or sallow skin, chronic appendicitis. Write for Home Treatment Medical book on Gall Troubles FREE GALLSTONE REMEDY CO., Dept. A-14, 219 S. Dearbon St., Chicago.

LEG SORES

Cured by ANTI-FLAMMA Poultice Plaster. Stops the itching around sore. Cures while you work. DESCRIBE CASE and get FREE SAMPLE. Bayles Co., 1823 Grand Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

To Women Who Dread Motherhood

Information How They May Give Birth to Happy, Healthy, Children Absolutely Without Fear of Pain—SENT FREE.

Don't dread the pains of childbirth. Dr. J. H. Dye devoted his life to relieving the sorrows of women. He has proven that the pain at childbirth need no longer be feared. Send your name and address to Dr. J. H. Dye Medical Institute, 106 Lewis Block, Buffalo, N. Y., and we will send you, postpaid, his wonderful book which tells how to give birth to happy, healthy children, absolutely without fear of pain, also how to become a mother. Do not delay but write TO-DAY.

In this department will be carefully considered any legal problem which may be submitted by a subscriber. All opinions given herein will be prepared at our expense by eminent counsel.

Inasmuch as it is one of the principal missions of COMFORT to aid in upbuilding and upholding the sanctity of the home, no advice will be given on matters pertaining to divorce. Any paid-up subscriber to COMFORT is welcome to submit inquiries, which, so far as possible, will be answered in this department. If any reader, other than a subscriber, wishes to take advantage of this privilege, it may be done by sending twenty-five (25) cents, in silver or stamps, for a 15-month subscription to COMFORT thus obtaining all the benefits which our subscribers enjoy including a copy of the magazine for fifteen months.

Should any subscriber desire an immediate, special opinion on any legal question, privately mailed, it may be had by sending one dollar with a letter asking such advice, addressing the same to "THE EDITOR, COMFORT'S HOME LAWYER," Augusta, Maine, and in reply a carefully prepared opinion will be sent in an early mail.

Full names and addresses must be signed by all persons seeking advice in this column but not necessarily for publication. Unless otherwise requested, initials only will be published.

H. M., West Virginia.—Under the laws of your state we are of the opinion that an illegitimate child has no rights of inheritance from the father's estate, unless some provision is made by will, or unless such child has been legitimized by the subsequent marriage of the parents.

A. M. O., Kansas.—Under the laws of your state we are of the opinion, that upon the death of a married man leaving no will, his estate, after payment of debts, would go one half to the widow and the remaining half in equal shares to the children, the descendants of a deceased child taking the parents' share; if no child or descendant, we think the whole estate, after payment of debts, would go to the widow.

Mrs. A. C., California.—Under the laws of your state we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married man leaving no will and leaving a widow and children the community property would go one half to the widow and the remaining half in equal shares to the children; we think that great care should be taken to distinguish community property, as under your laws we think that whenever any property is conveyed to a married woman by an instrument in writing, the presumption is that the title is thereby vested in her as her separate property; and property conveyed to a married woman and her husband or any other person is presumed to be held by her as tenant in common unless a different intention is expressed in the instrument.

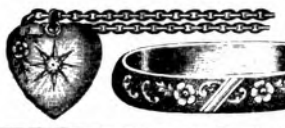
Curiosity, Pa.—Under the laws of Pennsylvania, we are of the opinion that a widow may always refuse to accept the provision made for her by her husband's will and elect to take dower of a one third interest for life if there be also issue, and if no issue a one half interest for life in her husband's real estate, but that such election must be in writing signed, duly acknowledged, and delivered to the executor or administrator, and should be recorded; we think a testator can disinherit children living at the time of the execution of the will; we think that in case the widow rejects the terms of the will and elects to take dower, the balance of the estate would go according to the terms of the will, unless the will was invalid and set aside; we think the usual grounds for contesting a will are, lack of testamentary capacity, undue influence, that the will is not legally drawn or executed, or that the will does not express testator's true intent.

A. B., Oklahoma.—Under the laws of your state we are of the opinion that a deed or will granting or conveying property to some person named therein his or her heirs forever, only gives title to the person named and does not grant or convey any title to the heirs, except in case such grantee dies without a will, and without having disposed of such property, in which event the same would go to decedent's heirs under the intestate laws of succession. Of course a slightly different wording in a will or deed may create an entirely different vesting, and it is therefore very important that all such instruments be drawn by competent persons.

Mrs. N. B., Alabama.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion, that upon the death of a married man, leaving no will, and leaving a surviving widow and lineal descendants, his widow would receive from his estate, dower of a one third interest for life in his real estate and an absolute interest in his personal property amounting to one half if decedant leaves only one child, if more than one child and not more than four, a child's part, and if more than four children a one fifth part; we think that the descendants of a deceased child count as one child and equally divide the parent's share; we think the children of a former wife have the same intestacy right from their father's estate as the children of the surviving widow; we think real estate in your state can be deeded to husband and wife in such a way that upon the death of one the whole property will go to the survivor, but that in taking property in that way some lawyer or other competent person should examine the deed to make sure it is properly drawn to accomplish such purpose.

May, Ohio.—We think the proper person to receive your complaint against the person who is annoying you, if the same amounts to disorderly conduct, is your nearest justice of the peace or petty magistrate having power to act in criminal matters.

M. C. S., North Dakota.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion, (1) that action brought upon contracts express or implied must be commenced within six years from the time when the same accrued; (2) That it is not legally necessary, nor customary to record wills during the liftetime of the maker who can change or revoke same at any time during his lifetime, and it is optional with him as to whether he shall inform his family that he has drawn one.



J. J., Oklahoma.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of your mother, leaving no will, and leaving a husband and five children surviving, her separate estate, after payment of debts, would go one third to her surviving husband and the balance in equal shares to the children, but if she left no separate property and the property you describe all stands in your father's name, we do not think you children have any interest in same during your father's lifetime and we think he can sell and dispose of same as he may see fit without the consent of any of his children, the only interest his children have in the same coming in case they survive him and in case he does not disinherit them by will. We do not think a parent can be compelled to support his children after they become able to support themselves; we think that in ordinary cases a child of eighteen years of age would be capable of self support.

E. B., Texas.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion (1) that papers to be recorded in the county clerk's office should be acknowledged; (2) that all actions of debt grounded on a contract in writing must be sued upon within four years after the cause of action accrues, action on verbal contracts must be sued in two years. Judgment and suits for specific performance of contracts to convey land are barred in ten years, but that no limitation runs against a claim during the period that the defendant is absent from the state; (3) that the holder of a properly assigned and legally assignable claim or instrument has the same rights of collection of the same against the debtor as the original creditor; (4) we think it important that text books on law subjects should be be up to date to be of much value.

M. S. F., Massachusetts.—Under the laws of your state we are of the opinion that a married woman cannot sell or convey her real estate and give good title to same without her husband joining in the deed, unless she is living apart from her husband for justifiable cause established by decree of court.

C. J., Kansas.—We do not think your brothers have any legal right to open your letters or in any way tamper with your mail, nor with the mail of anyone else.

Mrs. F. L. L., Oklahoma.—We are of the opinion, that the only way the endorser of the note you mention can enforce his claim for the payment of the same against the maker, is through an action brought for that purpose, and that if the maker has moved to another state it will be necessary to bring the action in the state where he resides unless he has property in your state or unless service of papers can be made upon him within your state.

ALL THESE FREE

Gold plated Locket set with sparkling stone and 22-inch chain, one Nethersole Bracelet to fit any arm and these 4 gold plated Rings ALL GIVEN FREE for selling only 12 pieces of our Jewelry at 10c each. Write for Jewelry today. EAGLE WATCH CO., Dept. J, East Boston, Mass.

Things the Modern Farmer Must Know

Questions and Answers

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 13.)

A.—These complaints are common in in-bred, pampered and under-exercised Belgian hares. These animals often are tuberculous and always they seem to be so delicate and liable to disease that we cannot advise anyone to waste time in keeping them for expected profit. All animals should have water. The abscess in the neck is a common form of tubercular gland or it may be a purulent goiter. The young will be likely to come alive if you let the doe have plenty of exercise every day and feed her lightly. The age of maturity differs acording to the condition and circumstances of the hares, but it is perhaps best to use yearling buck. See answer to preceding question regarding Belgian hares.

Corn Mixing in Field.—I have heard that corn mixes when different varieties are planted in the same or near-by fields through the pollen from the tassels of one variety being carried to the silk of the other variety and causing a crossed product. Is such a result likely to happen? For a number of years I have thrown away the tip ends of the seed ears, and this year my corn did not fill within an inch or two of the tips of the ears. Could it have been caused by my practise in selecting seed? A. T., Jeffersonville, N. Y.

A.—Corn hybridizes (crosses or mixes) in the way mentioned and all pure varieties should be planted separate and well away from other corn. The ears did not fill because there was a drouth, or lack of moisture, or lack of fertility to complete the growth. A big wind at flowering time also may help to prevent perfect fertilization of the plants. Discarding the butts and tips is the approved method and does not have the effect you suggest.

Foot-and-Mouth Disease.—Please tell us how foot-and-mouth disease got to this country and say whether it is prevalent abroad and what damage it does there. There is considerable interest at the present time as to these questions. G. W. A., Ill.

A.—The disease commonly is carried in hides from the Argentine Republic where the disease long has been present and is present now. The green hides are imported by tannery companies for tanning in this country. Such hides are supposed to have caused the initial outbreak of the disease in the Niles, Michigan district from which the disease has spread to some 14 or 15 states. We have had three previous outbreaks in this country and the one before the present outbreak was started by imported vaccine against human smallpox. That vaccine is prepared from calves inoculated with cowpox, the vaccine being taken from the vesicles. If perchance the vesicle is due to foot-and-mouth disease instead of cowpox it quickly infects the animal with foot-and-mouth disease. The disease may also be brought in with hair, wool, horns or hoofs and also by feed and forage. The disease has been known from time immemorial in Europe and never really becomes extinct. The present outbreak in America had cost $750,000 up to Nov. 17, for stamping out and preventive measures adopted by federal and state sanitary and veterinary officers. To give an idea of the cost of this disease to foreign countries it may be stated that in Germany in 1888-1892 the disease attacked 1,504,299 cattle, 2,193,187 sheep, 17,782, goats and 438,262 hogs. In Great Britain the losses from this disease in 1883 reached $5,000,000, in France those of 1871 were $7,500,000 and in Switzerland $2,500,000. In Germany over 7,000,000 animals were affected from 1889-94. It may be taken as about correct that the average economic loss is $10.00 a head in dairy and feeding cattle where slaughter is not compulsory.

How to Avoid Foot-and-Mouth Disease.—What precautionary measures should a farmer adopt against this disease? What animals does it attack? Should treatment be tried if stock becomes affected? Why do the authorities kill all affected and exposed animals? A. G., Mass.

A.—The federal and state authorities enforce strict quarantine when and wherever this disease is found to exist. All movement of cattle from infected areas is prohibited and milk from infected herds cannot be shipped. All milk has to be pasteurized. In infested districts the farmer should cease to visit other farms and should prevent others from visiting him. Cattle and other cloven-footed animals should be kept away from roadsides and running water. No feed should be brought in from neighboring farms. Skim-milk, buttermilk or whey should not be used, or at least should be pasteurized at the creamery before removal by farmers. Roving flocks of domestic pigeons should be shot. Vermin should be destroyed. Dogs should be kept chained. Tramps and pedlers should be kept off the farm and especially out of the feed lots. The infection may be carried on boots or clothing. The disease attacks cattle, sheep, swine, goats, deer and other cloven-footed animals. Man may become affected by drinking unboiled or nonpasteurized milk from infected cows, or butter or cheese made from such raw milk. Treatment cannot be given without consent of the federal and state authorities and the present policy is to kill both infected and exposed cloven-footed animals to stop the spread of the disease. This is done for the reason that it gives the greatest chance of quickly stamping out the contagion which otherwise would spread like wild fire. Instant stamping out was not done in Michigan when the outbreak was first detected, hence the general spread of the disease. There is a sensational rumor just now to the effect that the disease has purposely been spread by two foreigners to infect the food producing animals of this country and so lessen supplies of meat for the warring armies in Europe. Thus far we have seen nothing official to corroborate this rumor. England is the largest customer for the meats we ship abroad.

Who Pays for Slaughtered Animals?—When cattle or other animals have to be slaughtered on account of the foot-and-mouth disease now so prevalent in this country who foots the bill? Does it fall upon the owners of the stock or is the expense borne by the government? N. F. M., N. Y.

A.—The Federal government pays one half of the appraised value, on a commercial basis, and the state pays the other half. Cattle are appraised on ordinary market values; not on pedigree values. An exception has been made in favor of the fine dairy cattle now quarantined in the National Dairy Show buildings at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago. These animals are so valuable, on account of pedigree and fine lines of blood, that their lives have been spared, it being thought possible to absolutely restrict the disease to the quarantined buildings. Being carefully treated by expert veterinarians the majority of these cattle will recover. Some 832 are under quarantine and the owners value them at not less than $500 a head. Some of the animals are worth many times that figure each. In some of the affected Western states no funds are available at the present time for reimbursement of owners and their bills will have to be presented to their Legislatures when they next meet. In the New England states animals killed by state inspectors to stay the spread of a contagious disease are paid for by the state.

STOPS TOBACCO HABIT

Elders' Sanitarium, located at 698 Main St., St. Joseph, Mo., has published a book showing the deadly effect of the tobacco habit, and how it can be stopped in three to five days.

As they are distributing this book free, anyone wanting a copy should send their name and address at once.—Advertisement.

GREY HAIR

Let me tell you free about a Simple, Harmless Guaranteed Method, which causes Grey Hair to return to natural colour of youth by a NATURAL PROCESS. It restored my grey hair to youthful colour after I had been grey for years. I have never become grey since. No "staining" the hair by dangerous dye concoctions, but a scientific, safe method, free from sticky or other objectionable features. It speedily but gradually brings back the same shade as in earlier years. Send me your name and address stating whether Mr., Mrs. or Miss, with two stamps for postage, and I will send you free the full secret of my success FREE

Address Mrs. Mary K. Chapman, Suite 131, R Banigan Bldg., Prov. R.I.

Ladies' & GENT'S WATCHES FREE

Ladies' and gent's size, hunting and other styles. Free to anyone selling our jewelry at 10c each. Order 20 jewelry articles now. When sold send $2.00 & we'll send you a stem-wind, simulated gold finish, richly engraved, new thin model, guaranteed watch latest design, fancy bezel, choice size. Other styles described with goods. Also Stone ring and chain. (Ladies' or gent's style). HOMER JEWEL CO., Dept. 17, CHICAGO, ILL.

FREE WE TRUST YOU

Just send name and address on post card. We'll send you six boxes MENTHO-NOVA (Great Healer) Salve to distribute at 25c a box; also list of many beautiful premiums. After you distribute salve, send us $1.50 and beautiful gold signet bracelet and ring are yours. Write today. U. S. SUPPLY COMPANY, Dept. 702, Greenville, Pa.

ASTHMA CURED Before You Pay

FREE TRIAL I will send any sufferer a $1.00 bottle of LANE'S REMEDY on By mail prepaid. If it cures, send me $1. If it does not, don't send me a cent. Address D. J. LANE, 285 Lane Building, St. Marys, Kansas.

Be a Ventriloquist Throw your voice in the next room, down cellar, under the bed, etc. Imitate dog, bird, cat, etc. Fool your friends. Get our Ventriliophone, fits roof of mouth, cannot be seen. Boys and girls can use it. Wonderful invention. Sent with full directions and 32 page book on the Art of Ventriloquism. All for 10 cents. STAR CO., 31 Clinton St., CHICAGO

QUICK RELIEF FOR PILES.

Send postal with name and address for FREE sample tube Dr. Pettit's Quick Acting Pile Remedy. Sample will help you. Positive relief, lasting results. HOWARD BROS. CHEMICAL CO., Howard Bldg., BUFFALO, N. Y.

MEN WANTED

We positively teach you at home by mail to earn $25 to $50 weekly as Chauffeur or Repairman. Students assisted to positions. Best system, lowest price. MODELS FURNISHED. Write for Free Book. PRACTICAL AUTO SCHOOL, 70-F Beaver Street, New York.

BEAUTIFUL BRACELET FREE

Full size; fine GOLD PLATE, late design. Given for selling 12 packs Hair Tonic & Dandruff Remedy at 10c each, we trust you. SMITH DRUG CO., Box 56, WALKERSVILLE, MD.

FREE POWERFUL AIR GUN

Big lever action rifle free for selling 20 pkgs. Post Cards or 20 Art and Religious Pictures at 10c. Order your choice. GATES MFG. CO., Dept. 86G CHICAGO

BE A DETECTIVE

Earn from $150.00 to $300.00 per month; travel over the world. Write C. T. LUDWIG, 121 Westover Building, Kansas City, Mo.

MAKE MONEY by manufacturing and selling your own goods. We supply you special formulas by expert chemists. Government information obtained. Catalog Free. Temple Supply Company, Dept. D, Washington, D. C.

CASH paid for Old Coins and postage stamps. New Coin & Stamp book with prices paid 10 cents. May mean your fortune. Victor E. Co., Ottawa, Ill.

FITS I have cured cases of 20 years standing. Trial package free by mail. Dr. C. PERKY, BOX 1860, Los Angeles, Cal.

A BEAUtiful neck, face and arms Don't pay 50c. but send 10c. for sealed package to make your skin soft and white and cure pimples, freckles, moth, black head, wrinkles, &c. A perfect skin and food powder combined. Warranted absolutely pure. TOILET COMPOUND CO., Box 1927, Boston, Mass

3 BIG OFFERS IN THIS ISSUE

See other pages now. Ladies' Rich Black Plush PONY COAT, $3.95, prepaid—a sensation. On Approval! Also, Drop Head SEWING MACHINE, $8.75, one-third regular agents' price. Guaranteed. 30 days' trial. Nothing equal ever offered. BIG SPECIAL GAS ENGINE, 1½ H. P. $18.95. No better at any price! Greatest offer ever made. Act Quick!

JOHN M. SMYTH Mdse. CO., 150-151 W. Madison St., - Chicago.

THE BEE CELL SUPPORTER

A BOON TO WOMANKIND

Made from the purest, softest rubber. Six cups or faces render misplacement absolutely impossible. Endorsed by the medical profession. Send us $2.00 and we will mail you postpaid in plain package. Money back if not entirely satisfactory. Write for descriptive circular. It's FREE.

The Bee Cell Co., Dept. A, White Bldg., Buffalo, N. Y.

Great Japanese Rug about Six Feet Long

Given For a Club of Only Four

This unusual offering was gotten of a large importing house who make a specialty in dealing in big quantities of these Botan or Matting Rugs. It is closely woven of fine Japanese matting and is thus strong and durable. It has an elaborate Oriental design, which is brought out by the bright colors being interwoven with the finely shaded texture of the matting itself, of which our illustration gives but a faint idea. The colors are of such a blend and are so harmonious in the variegated shades of red, blue and green that it is appropriate to use in any room in the house, especially for the chambers or living-room. It will lay closely to the floor or fit nicely over a defaced carpet. They are of such good size, about 72 inches long and thirty-six inches wide, that two of them make a good covering for the floor of a fair sized room. They are a very serviceable rug to use as they do not easily soil and can be readily cleaned with a damp cloth and the color design thus be kept fresh and bright. It is guaranteed to give entire satisfaction and if you once have one of these rugs come into your home you will almost be compelled to get up another club and secure more of them, they are given on such easy terms and are so entirely wearable and give such a fine appearance.

CLUB OFFER. For a club of only four 15-months subscribers to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will deliver one of these Rugs by Parcel Post. Prem. No. 420. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

FREE TO ASTHMA SUFFERERS

A New Home Cure That Anyone Can Use Without Discomfort or Loss of Time.

We have a New Method that cures Asthma, and we want you to try it at our expense. No matter whether your case is of long-standing or recent development, whether it is present as occasional or chronic Asthma, you should send for a free trial of our method. No matter in what climate you live, no matter what your age or occupation, if you are troubled with asthma, our method should relieve you promptly.

We especially want to send it to those apparently hopeless cases, where all forms of inhalers, douches, opium preparations, fumes, "patent smokes," etc., have failed. We want to show everyone at our own expense that this new method is designed to end all difficult breathing, all wheezing, and all those terrible paroxysms at once and for all time.

This free offer is too important to neglect a single day. Write now and then begin the method at once. Send no money. Simply mail coupon below. Do It Today.

FREE ASTHMA COUPON

FRONTIER ASTHMA CO., Room 751-J.
Niagara and Hudson Sts., Buffalo, N. Y.

Send free trial of your method to:

.....

.....

.....

$10,000,000 A Year Wasted On Trusses

Wrong to Buy Anything For Rupture Without Getting Sixty Days Trial

A conservative estimate shows that nearly ten million dollars a year—in this country alone—is practically wasted on worthless rupture appliances—all because people trust to a mere try-on instead of making a thorough test.

Away With Leg-Strap and Spring Trusses

So far as we know, our guaranteed rupture holder is the only thing of any kind for rupture that you can get on 60 days trial—the only thing we know of good enough to stand such a long and thorough test. It's the famous Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss—made on an absolutely new principle—has 18 patented features. Self-adjusting. Does away with the misery of wearing belts, leg-straps and springs. Guaranteed to hold at all times—including when you are working, taking a bath, etc. Has cured in case after case that seemed hopeless.

Write for Free Book of Advice—Cloth-bound, 104 pages. Explains the dangers of operation. Shows just what's wrong with elastic and spring trusses, and why drugstores should no more be allowed to fit trusses than to perform operations. Exposes the humbugs—shows how old-fashioned worthless trusses are sold under false and misleading names. Tells all about the care and attention we give you. Endorsements from over 5000 people, including physicians. Write to-day—find out how you can prove every word we say by making a 60 day test without risking a penny.

Box 68—Cluthe Co., 125 E. 23rd St., New York City

GYPSY Fortune Teller

And Dream Book

Know thy future. Will you be successful in Love, Marriage, Health, Wealth, and Business. Tells fortunes by all methods. Cards, palmistry, tea cup, zodiacology, etc. Gives lucky and unlucky days. Interprets dreams. A large book by mail for TEN CENTS. Earn money telling fortunes.

ROYAL PUB. CO., Dept. 47 So. Norwalk, Conn.

MORPHINE FREE TRIAL TREATMENT

Opium and all drug habits. Hundreds of testimonials prove that our painless home remedy restores the nervous and physical system and removes the cause. Write us in confidence.

ST. PAUL ASSOCIATION, Suite 832—21 E. Van Buren St., Chicago.

X-RAY KATHODOSCOPE. Latest curiosity. Everybody wants it; tells the time on watch through cloth. Apparently see best girl, fellow, objects through cloth, wood or stone, any distance, all climates; lasts lifetime; always ready for use. Price, 25 cents. Stamps or Silver. D'Ark Instrument Co., 125 E. 25th St., N. Y. City.

Stylish Corset Cover Given For One Subscription

Premium No. 713

THIS is one of the new style Corset Covers which has been so popular the past summer and which is going to be in even greater demand this winter as it is just what every girl needs to wear under the dainty evening gowns. It is made of a straight piece of fine quality long cloth with ribbon as shoulder straps. The graceful floral design may be worked either in solid and outline stitch or solid and eyelet stitch. With this corset cover we also include sufficient embroidery cotton for working it. We are now giving away this attractive corset cover on the terms of the following free offers.

Offer No. 713 A. For only one new 15-month subscription to COMFORT at 25 cents, we will send you this corset cover free and postpaid.

Offer No. 713 B. For your own subscription, or renewal or extension of your present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all), you will receive this corset cover free and postpaid. Premium No. 713.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

"Virtue itself offends when coupled with forbidding manners."—Bishop Middleton.

In order to meet the demand for information made by COMFORT subscribers on the kindred subjects of Etiquette and Personal Appearance, this column will be devoted to them, and all questions will be answered, but no inquirer shall ask more than two questions each month. We would suggest to readers to cut this column out and paste it in a scrap book. Address letters to Etiquette Editor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Trouble, Mt. Alta, Pa.—If at nineteen you think you are too young to marry, as we think you are also, and your sweetheart threatens to go away and leave you if you do not marry him when he wants you to, we think you would be wiser than ever to wait a year or so and see if at the end of that time you were not very glad indeed you had not married such a man. You would better lose than win an exacting and selfish husband.

Blue Eyes, Allentown, Pa.—Your "lady friend" is quite right in not bothering about her brother and his friends and their affairs as long as they make her no part of them, and you have no right to interfere. If the lady is polite to you and encourages your attentions, that is all you can ask of her until you marry her and take her into your own house where you will have a right to say who shall or shall not come into it. Possibly the lady is not acting just as you would have her act, but as long as it is in her own house and her brother is with her, you cannot, or should not, expect to be boss. Make the best of it and be on friendly terms with the boys. They don't mean any harm. If we were the girl and a man with your disposition came around courting, we never would marry him.

Pony Pal, Fossil, Oregon.—When a girl is tired of being pestered by beaus and she is not old enough to marry, we don't know what else she can do except to be resigned to her sad lot and wait until she can condense all her troubles in one man. Cheer up, the worst is yet to come.

Blue Eyes, Nebraska City, Nebr.—A wedding breakfast or supper in January is about the same as it would be in any other month, less, perhaps, fruit in season. You may make it elaborate or simple according to your means, but the simpler is in better taste. Make your menu to suit yourself. You may also set your own time for the groom to cut the wedding cake, but after the breakfast or supper is the more appropriate time.

School Girl, Irma, S. C.—It is proper for a lady to ask a gentleman to call on her. It is also proper for a young lady of seventeen to go out with a nice young man if she does not go too often and she is through with her school duties. Girls of fifteen should not be corresponding with young men of any age.

Y. M. C., Attalla, Ala.—If you are engaged to the young man you should not only permit him to kiss you, but you should want him to do so and not object to it as you now do.

M. R., Fallsburg, Ky.—The fact that you and the man who married his first cousin have fallen in love with each other is hardly sufficient cause for him to get a divorce, but if he should get a divorce, for any cause, the law permits you to marry him, and etiquette has no rules against it, but a great many people will condemn the proceeding and you will not find your social life wholly without its troubles.

Worried, Cherokee, Iowa.—Your doctor may have saved your life when you were so ill, but if he did he is trying to destroy your character now and his own at the same time. As a sensible married woman you ought to know that his attentions are not proper. If he tells you they are, you tell him that you will ask his wife and get her opinion. We think that will straighten him out.

Troubled, Newton, Ga.—If you like the young man who comes to your church and he is good, it is quite proper for you to ask him to your house. (2) Do not accept presents from any young man if your parents object. Knowing their objections the young man has no right to offer them to you. A gentleman would not.

Blue Eyes, Rutledge, Tenn.—Because you do not live with your husband does not make you any the less his legal wife and until you are divorced you cannot properly accept the attention of other men, either in person or by correspondence. To avoid all gossip and slander you should make your conduct at all times most circumspect.

Troubled, Charlottesville, Va.—As your husband is so good to you, possibly if you told him that the presence of the wicked child he had taken to raise would drive you crazy or out of his home, he might arrange to have her sent to the Institute for Orphans. We think he would be a strange kind of a man if he would give up a wife he loved, rather than send a child away for whom he had no particular regard. Stop worrying in silence about it and go right to him with your trouble and talk it out with him. That's the only way to settle it properly.

J. H., Alden, Okla.—We are sorry for you, J. H., but handsome young men are always in trouble with the fair sex, but they don't usually begin at sixteen as you are doing. The Alden girls must be extraordinarily impulsive and emotional. However, restrain your impetuosity and do not make a slaughter-house of the battle-field, now that three beautiful sisters are on your trail. Take to the tall timber, John, and let a catamount scratch the beauty off of your face.

Hosfi, Mill Creek, Okla.—It is nothing unusual for young men of twenty-two to be desperately in love with one or more married women, but at that age it is always outgrown. Of course, in your case, it was cruel of your rival to report that you had been killed and then carry off the girl. But as you tell us she waited two years before marrying your rival, it is a hosfi on you, because if you made no sign in all that time that you were alive and loved her still, you quite deserve to have lost her. How long do you expect a lady to wait for a man who does nothing to prevent her waiting? Our advice to you is to forget it. If you don't, there may be a funeral on Mill Creek and you'll be riding in the front wagon, but you won't know it. Love is a dangerous proposition to fool with.

F. F., Lewisville, Ark.—A few old fogies remain who think that "friendship letters" should not be written on a typewriter, but the moderns do not. Of course, the writer of such letters should not dictate them to a stenographer, but he should write them with his own hand. In that case the typewriter is no more a machine than a pen is, because both are handworked. The pen and the typewriter are both writing implements, the only difference being that the typewriter is more complicated and writes legibly.

Y. T., Melrose, Texas.—Having accepted the gentleman's invitation to go to church with him, you were indiscreet in telling some other ladies that you didn't want to go and were sorry you had accepted and they were downright mean mischief-makers to have gone and told him what you said. But that was no excuse for him to drop you and go to church with another lady. You had a perfect right to think what you please, but he had no right to break an engagement because he happened to find out what you thought. You would be justified in declining to let him come back as he now wants to. And the next time, don't you say what you think. Anyhow, not to any ladies.

R., Des Plains, Ill.—Your parents have queer ideas of propriety if they have no objection to your walking on the street with a young man, but will not permit him to call on you at your home. If he is objectionable, do they want you to associate with him and advertise it to the whole town? The young man is quite right in declining to walk on the street with you. If you want to get him back you must first teach your parents the ordinary rules of propriety. You might ask the young man to teach them.

Anxious, Scranton, Pa.—The young man, who wanted your company and asked you if you cared for the one you were going with then and you said you did not and would let the other one know next day if you would change and he told the one you were going with what you said, showed himself to be a real sneak and you had better lose them both than go with him. (2) It is quite proper for a lady to receive a birthday, or Christmas present from an old beau and she may give him one in return if she pleases, though she need not do so.

Brown-eyed Beauty, Waynesville, Ohio.—You write "I have read Looks and Manners every month and am very much aposed to it and think it learns you a great deal." You also write, "I have never went in much company or have went to parties," and you still further write: "I would like to find out when the fellows bring you home or go buggy rideing what to talk about." An Ohio girl seventeen years old who writes like that, should not talk about anything except what to study in order to improve her spelling and grammar. You let the beaus and the parties alone until you have learned how to write. You have even failed to read the caption of this column correctly. We don't seem to have "learned" you a great deal.

R. E. B., Andrew, Iowa.—The "right side to write on stationery paper," is, if we may make a pun, the write side. In other words, as all sides are alike you may write on any side you please. The rule to be observed is not to write on both sides. The stationery that you like best is the best. We wish to congratulate you on spelling "stationery" correctly. Most COMFORT writers get it "stationary," which is something quite different.

E. G., Rochester, N. Y.—In meeting people, old or young, men or women, it is not necessary to be guided by strict rules of etiquette in speaking to them. The wise plan is to be sure before speaking that the person you are meeting wishes to be spoken to. Usually young persons should speak first to their elders, if they are much older, for older people sometimes are careless or forget and they are nearly always glad to have the young people speak to them. Make it a rule in meeting anybody who seems to show a wish not to be spoken to, not to thrust yourself upon them whether they want you to or not. Also don't be silly sensitive as many are, and resent not being spoken to by someone you think should have spoken to you. The sensible person can always tell when such a slight is intended. When that is the case you may resent it in any way you please.

Two Girls, Cochran, Ga.—Being engaged you should not receive presents or accept attentions from other young men unless with the knowledge and consent of your fiance. You shouldn't drop all your old friends because you are engaged to be married, but an engagement does impose certain obligations to the man which you must observe. (2) There is no impropriety in a gentleman kissing a lady's hand, but the courtly custom is almost obsolete now. (3) It is proper to call to see your sick friend confined to his bed, but you must not go alone. Any other friend, man or woman, with you will fulfill the requirements of propriety. (4) The same rules of etiquette apply to a widower as to a bachelor, and you may receive presents from either, provided they are not expensive presents of jewelry or things of that sort. Flowers, candy, books and so forth are all right, in moderation.

THIN FOR YEARS—"GAINS 22 POUNDS IN 23 DAYS"

Remarkable Experience of F. Gagnon. Builds Up Weight Wonderfully.

Plump, well developed men and women attract attention at the beach as well as in the city.

"I was all run down to the very bottom," writes F. Gagnon. "I had to quit work, I was so weak. Now, thanks to Sargol, I look like a new man. I gained 22 pounds in 23 days."

"Sargol has put 10 pounds on me in 14 days," states W. D. Roberts. "It has made me sleep well, enjoy what I ate and enabled me to work with interest and pleasure."

"I weighed 132 pounds when I commenced taking Sargol. After taking 20 days I weighed 144 pounds. Sargol is the most wonderful preparation for flesh building I have ever seen," declares D. Martin, and J. Meier adds: "For the past twenty years I have taken medicine every day for indigestion and got thinner every year. I took Sargol for forty days and feel better than I have felt in twenty years. My weight has increased from 150 to 170 pounds."

When hundreds of men and women—and there are hundreds with more coming every day—living in every nook and corner of this broad land voluntarily testify to weight increases ranging all the way from 10 to 35 pounds given them by Sargol, you must admit, Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Thin Reader, that there must be something in this Sargol method of flesh building after all.

Hadn't you better look into it, just as thousands of others have done? Many thin folks say: "I'd give most anything to put on a little extra weight," but when some one suggests a way they exclaim, "Not a chance. Nothing will make me plump. I'm built to stay thin." Until you have tried Sargol, you do not and cannot know that this is true.

Sargol has put pounds of healthy "stay there" flesh on hundreds who doubted, and in spite of their doubts. You don't have to believe in Sargol to grow plump from its use. You just take it and watch weight pile up, hollows vanish and your figure round out to pleasing and normal proportions. You weigh yourself when you begin and again when you finish and you let the scales tell the story.

Sargol is just a tiny concentrated tablet. You take one with every meal. It mixes with the food you eat for the purpose of separating all of its flesh producing ingredients. It prepares these fat making elements in an easily assimilated form, which the blood can readily absorb and carry all over your body. Plump, well-developed persons don't need Sargol to produce this result. Their assimilative machinery performs its functions without aid. But thin folks' assimilative organs do not. This fatty portion of their food now goes to waste through their bodies like unburned coal through an open grate. A few days' test of Sargol in your case will surely prove whether or not this is true of you. Isn't it worth trying?

50c BOX FREE

To enable any thin reader ten pounds or more underweight, to easily make this test we will give a 50c box of Sargol absolutely free. Either Sargol will increase your weight or it won't, and the only way to know it is to try it. Send for this Free Test Package today, enclosing 10c in silver or stamps to help pay postage, packing, etc., and a full size 50c package will be sent by return mail free of charge. Mail this coupon with your letter to the Sargol Co., 12-A Herald Bldg., Binghamton, N. Y.

COME EAT WITH US AT OUR EXPENSE

FREE COUPON

This Coupon entitles any person to one 50c package of Sargol, the concentrated Flesh Builder (provided you have never tried it) and that 10 cents is enclosed to cover postage, packing, etc. Read our advertisement printed above, and then put 10c in silver in letter today with coupon, and the full 50c package will be sent to you by return post. Address: The Sargol Company, 12-A Herald Bldg., Binghamton, N. Y. Write your name and address plainly and PIN THIS COUPON TO YOUR LETTER.

MAKE PILLOW TOPS FROM FLAGS OF ALL NATIONS

Ten assorted nations to package, size 5 1-2 x 8 1-2 and one large one, size 8 1-2 x 12, for 25c. 3 pcks for 60c. Eight million sold. C. STAR CO., 2109 WILLIAM STREET, TRENTON, N. J.

"LET ME" read your character from your handwriting. Mind you get a good reading that will help you in love, health, business and domestic affairs. Price 10c. Money back if dissatisfied. G. A. Beauchamp, 2583 8th Ave., New York.

Sister: Read My Free Offer!

I am a woman.
I know a woman's trials.
I know her need of sympathy and help.

If you, my sister, are unhappy because of ill-health, if you feel unfit for household duties, social pleasures, or daily employment, write and tell me just how you suffer, and ask for my free ten days' trial of a home treatment suited to your needs. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any man. I want to tell you how to cure yourself at home at a cost of about 12 cents a week.

If you suffer from women's peculiar ailments causing pain in the head, back, or bowels, feeling of weight and dragging down sensation, falling or displacement of pelvic organs, causing kidney and bladder weakness or constipation and piles, painful or irregular periods, catarrhal conditions and discharges, extreme nervousness, depressed spirits, melancholy, desire to cry, fear of something evil about to happen, creeping feeling along the spine, palpitation, hot flashes, weariness, sallow complexion with dark circles under the eyes, pain in the left breast or general feeling that life is not worth living.

I INVITE YOU TO SEND TODAY FOR MY FREE TEN DAYS' TREATMENT

and learn how these ailments can be easily and surely conquered at home without the dangers and expense of an operation. When you are cured, and able to enjoy life again, you can pass the good word along to some other sufferer. My home treatment is for young or old. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain how to overcome green sickness (chlorosis), irregularities, headaches, and lassitude in young women and restore them to plumpness and health. Tell me if you are worried about your daughter. Remember it costs you nothing to give my home treatment a ten days' trial, and does not interfere with daily work. If health is worth asking for, then accept my generous offer and write for the free treatment, including my illustrated booklet, "Women's Own Medical Adviser." I will send all in plain wrappers postpaid. To save time, you can cut out this offer, mark your feelings, and return to me. Send today, as you may not see this offer again. Address

MRS. M. SUMMERS, BOX 315 - - - NOTRE DAME, IND., U. S. A.

$2.00 A DAY earned at home writing: send stamp. Address Art College. LAPORTE, IND.

MONEY $25 per day certain, or money refunded. Send $1. bill. J. Copeland, Wolfe City, Texas.

CARDS, Dice, Magic Goods, Novelties, Catalog Free. D. M. SMYTHE Co., Newark, Mo.

Money $ $ FOR WISE MEN $ $ KEY FREE. J. Warren Smith, Ottawa, Ill.

12 LOVE LETTERS AND 48 HOT AIR CARDS 10c. D.S.Sun Co., Harrison, Mich.

MONEY Made quickly by smart men. T. ARTOL Co., 115 Nassau St., N.Y.

$10 Cash Paid PER 1000 FOR CANCELLED Postage Stamps. Send 10c. For Price List Post A. SCOTT, CONOES, N. Y.

MOTHERS Use Zemeto and your children's beds will be dry. BOX FREE. Zemeto Co. D 11 Milwaukee, Wis.

I WILL start you in the MAIL ORDER BUSINESS furnish everything if you will handle my goods. CREST COMPANY, 66, Atlantic City, N. J.

C. S. A. Money I guarantee what I handle is not Reprints of Confederate Money. Will send $80 for $1. Frank S. Shilling, Navarre, Ohio.

SILK REMNANTS beautiful colors, big Pkge. 10c, 3 for 25c, one pound 75c. M. STEINBERG, Dep. C, 430 E. 141 St., N. Y.

Old Coins WANTED, $1 to $600 paid for hundreds of coins dated before 1894. Send 10c for our Ill. Coin Value Book. It may mean your fortune. OLD COIN CO., 902 EAST 63rd ST., CHICAGO

CANCER Treated at home. No pain, knife, plaster or oils. Send for Free Treatise. A. J. Miller, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

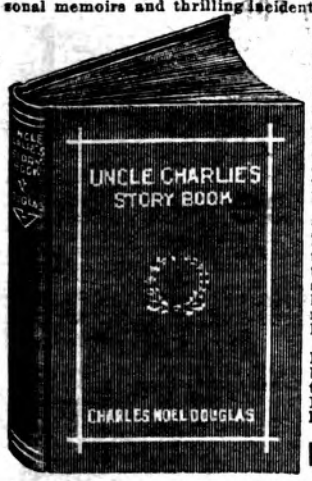
Great Special Bargain
Beautiful birthstone ring for any month, guaranteed 6 years; send us the names and address of three friends with only 20c and we will send ring for your birth month. Order yours by mail today. State month and size. Arden Watch Co., Dept. 532, Chicago

FITS A sample of my remedy has cured cases of Falling Sickness, or Epilepsy. Prompt relief guaranteed. I PAY EXPRESSAGE on FREE TRIAL BOTTLE, if you cut out and RETURN advertisement. Sworn statements and hundreds of testimonials on file. Give AGE and FULL PARTICULARS. Dr. F. Harvey Roof, Dept. 1295, Station N., New York

A Physician Cures His Wife Of Consumption

With A Simple Home Treatment. Book Fully Describing The Treatment Sent Absolutely Free To Any Lung Sufferer.

DR. W. J. KNIGHT of East Sangus, Mass., writes: "My wife was down with Consumption, when I ordered the Lloyd treatment. She was very weak from night sweats, cough, and in a feverish condition. I noticed a change for the better after ten day's treatment, and from that time on up to three months, when the cure was completed. The Lloyd Treatment kills the Tubercle Bacillus in the blood and tissue, and it is the only remedy so far discovered that will do this. It is a preventive as well as a cure. It should be used by those who are run down, or those who fear the approach of Consumption. It can be truthfully said that for the cure and prevention of Consumption, it is the most wonderful treatment of the present age."



This is only one of hundreds of letters received from physicians and others reporting cases of consumption and lung trouble restored to health in all sections of the United States. We want to send every lung sufferer absolutely free the startling statements of Dr W. H. Kiester of Dayton, Ohio, Dr. C. G. Pinckard of Kansas City, Mo., Dr. J. H. Ward of Troy, Mo., and many others who report results almost beyond belief, together with a valuable booklet on the cause, prevention and treatment of consumption and lung trouble.

If you are suffering from weakness, blood-spitting, pus-filled sputum, night sweats, chills, fever, loss of flesh, painful lungs, distressing cough, wasted body, loss of strength—write me today and I'll send you ABSOLUTELY FREE the sworn testimony of many who, after suffering with just such distressing symptoms, now state that they ARE CURED, strong, able to work, without ache or pain, happy, full of praise, after a few month's use of this simple home treatment. Send your name and address TODAY. LLOYD CHEMICAL CORPORATION, 501 Franklin, St. Louis, Mo.

NEW EDITION
Uncle Charlie's Story Book
51st Birthday Souvenir

A Beautiful New Edition of Uncle Charlie's Story Book is now offered as a souvenir of his fifty-first birthday which occurred September 25th. This splendid book of 187 pages printed in good, clear type on fine paper, was gotten up by Uncle Charlie regardless of trouble and expense as a worthy memorial of his fiftieth birthday a year ago.

Besides six unique stories, a dramatic sketch and personal memoirs and thrilling incidents of his remarkable life, all from his inspired pen, there are chapters by "Billy the Goat" and Maria which throw interesting side lights on his character and let you into the mysteries of his daily life. Illustrated with new pictures of him and Maria and Billy.

The immense popularity of this book has exhausted the previous editions and this handsome new edition has been printed to meet the continued large demand for it.

This edition is limited, so this may be your last chance to obtain a copy. Every home should have one.

FREE Premium Offer

It is bound in two styles, both handsome and either good enough. One in heavy, fancy opal blue paper covers known as "cloth of gold paper," will be sent post-paid as a free premium for a club of two new subscription to COMFORT at 25 cents each, 50 cents in all, or for your own 2-year renewal at 30 cents and one 25-cent subscription, 55 cents in all.

The other, beautifully bound in lilac silk with stiff covers, will be sent post-paid as a free premium for a club of four subscriptions at 25 cents each, one dollar in all, or for your own 2-year renewal at 30 cents and three 25-cent subscriptions, $1.05 in all.

In either offer 2-year renewals at 30 cents each will count the same as 15-month subscriptions at 25 cents each.

This offer holds good while the supply of books holds out.

Probably this is the last edition that will ever be printed.

BE QUICK and secure a copy while they last.

These are the best and most costly premiums that we give for such size clubs.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Comfort's Information Bureau

Under this heading all questions by COMFORT subscribers on subjects not related to the special departments elsewhere in the paper will be answered, as far as may be. COMFORT readers are advised to read carefully the advertisements in this paper, as they will often find in them what they seek through their questions addressed to this Bureau. They will thus save time, labor and postage.

NOTICE.—As the privileges of this Bureau and of all other departments of COMFORT are for subscribers only, no attention will be given any inquiry which does not bear the writer's correct name and address. Initials only, or a fictitious name, if requested, will appear in the published answer, but the inquiry must invariably be signed by the writer's true name.

Puzzled, Dallas, N. C.—Now that you are married and have a good husband, forget the old sweethearts you used to have and don't let any of them talk to you about the other times unless they do so jokingly. Your first duty is to your good husband who is no doubt much better than any of the others would have been.

L. V. B., Dora, Ala.—Your "Betrothed wife," hardly played fair with you by going to church with another "Boy" whom you had already called for and she was not at home. She might at least when she did come home have found out whether you wanted to go with her or not. She should apologize if she considers the betrothal any good at all. If she does not, you should unbetroth her at once.

Bab, Nevis, Minn.—Possibly a girl of seventeen doesn't know any better than to marry a man she does not love, but she ought to, and when she learns by marrying, the lesson is a bitter one. Now that you are so unhappy and your former sweetheart is still unmarried, and wants you, we do not feel that our services as mediator can do much good so we leave it to you to settle to suit yourself.

B. J. H., Wolfe City, Texas.—Some of the famous chefs—when they are famous you must not call them "cooks"—are now the proprietors or managers of famous hotels and restaurants and it would not be polite to mention names. We may tell you, though, that the salaries paid to high-class chefs, or cooks, are not small. In very plain side-street restaurants in the big cities they get from $1,500 to $2,500 a year and in the big hotels and restaurants salaries run from $5,000 to $15,000 a year. In several private families in New York they are paid from $3,500 to $10,000 a year. Rich men with incomes ranging from half to a million dollars a year find it as easy to pay amounts like that as you would to pay an ordinary hired girl two dollars a week. Nor do these chefs do all the cooking. They have a force of men or women or both, under them who have special departments, as meat cooks, pastry cooks, bread cooks and the rest of it. It may seem to you to be a snap to do the cooking at ten or fifteen thousand a year, but it is not, and the men who do it are born artists in their line and are as scarce as any other great artists. One man in New York who used to be a meat cook in a small restaurant had the ability to be something higher and today he has an income of over a hundred thousand a year from the restaurant business. Another as a manager of a big hotel has $25,000 a year and a percentage of the business. A third died not long ago leaving an estate of over a million. You see it isn't an ordinary man who can hit the top notch over a kitchen stove. We may add that while women seem to assume the kitchen as their own particular sphere in life, it isn't the women who make the big successes.

In response to our request for a good recipe to remove grass stains, Miss Wilsie Morris of Rutledge, Tenn., writes that if the stained spots are saturated with molasses and the garment let lie a while before washing the stains will disappear when washed.

M. D. C., West Medford, Mass.—We believe the late Cy Warman, poet and railroad man and author of "Sweet Marie," was buried at Chicago. "Sweet Marie" still survives him and will for a long time. Particulars may be had by writing to General Passenger Agent, Grand Trunk Railway, Montreal, Canada.

Mrs. R. S., Coshocton, Ohio.—For copyright blanks and information write to Librarian of Congress, Copyright Division, Washington, D. C. You do not have to pay regular publishers anything for publishing a book. They will pay you for the privilege of publishing if they think it is worth the risk. They will also secure copyright if they accept the manuscript. The cost for copyright is from fifty cents to a dollar. We advise you to submit your manuscript to publishers and let them have it copyrighted when accepted. Do not pay anything to have it published.

P. M. B., Ashland, Wis.—The U. S. senator, elected in Ohio at the November election, is Hon. W. G. Harding, Republican. (2) For all details regarding enlistment in the U. S. Army write to Secretary of War, Washington, D. C. Unless you have a good job, or have a family, we recommend that you enlist in the army and take its discipline and other advantages to a young man for three years. Or if you like the water better than the land, enlist in the navy. If a man has the real stuff in him, either the army or navy service will bring it out and put it in good shape for future use. If he elect to remain in the service until the age of retirement he will not be turned out on the world to shift for himself, but will be provided for in his old age. Of course, promotion is always in order for men of ability and character and the right kind may retire as commissioned officers.

M. F. G., Urich, Mo.—If you have been living in your neighborhood for any length of time and have not learned whether there is a school near you where civil engineering, or any other special branch, is taught and you write clear to Maine to find out, we don't believe you have the qualifications to become much of a civil engineer, even if the school is next door and is the best school on earth. You also want to know if it could be studied at home and would it cost very much, how long would it take to learn and if "these occupations is profitable." All of which indicate plainly that you are not fitted to become a civil engineer. There are other COMFORT inquirers just like you and we want to say to all of them, that before going so far from home to learn what is near them they try first to learn about things directly on the spot. School teachers are plenty everywhere and they are always glad to help ignorant inquirers to any needed knowledge to start with.

M. G. N., Briercrest, Sask.—To the best of our knowledge and belief a young lady is of age in Canada at twenty-one. Was there no one in Saskatchewan who could have told you and saved you a lot of time?

E. H., Moscow, Ida.—The artograph has been put out of commission by the snap-shot camera and other modern photographic applicances which do the same work much quicker, much better and at less expense. You might find one on a back shelf in a second-hand optician goods place, but we doubt it. You might write to the old New York address you had and see if you get an answer. Put your own address on the outside of your envelope for return if not delivered.

Miss C. R. B., Fremont, Mich.—The American Forestry Association was organized in 1882 and incorporated in 1897, its objects being the businesslike conservation and treatment of our forest resources with all the matters pertaining thereto. It wants members among all those who are interested and the fees are three dollars a year, including subscription to the magazine, American Forestry. Headquarters are at 1410 H. St., Washington, D. C., P. S. Ridsdale, Ex. Sec. We are glad to know you are interested in forest conservation and hope all COMFORT readers will wake up to the fact that our forests are a national asset which can never be replaced when they have been destroyed.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 25.)

as healthy as those in the city, where the women have a better knowledge of food values, are better cooks, and have a greater variety of food to choose from. The sanitation of country schools on the whole is scandalously neglected. Wash basins will be found stuck next to drinking pails, and at times covered by the hats and combs and soiled towels of the children. The poetic red schoolhouse, too, is drafty and over heated, and if the roof leaks, a chunk of lumber from an empty egg crate will often be used to patch the hole. The stoves are unjacketed, so the children are roasted one side and frozen the other. The water closets, which are unspeakably filthy, are as a rule put close to the water supply, and so with every rule of sanitation neglected, up goes the death rate. Any attempt to improve country life that is not based on the improvement of the health of the country children will be abortive and useless. There are 294,427 country school children in Pennsylvania, and three fourths of these need medical attention. Now do get busy and clean up the house and clean up the school. It is useless to clean up the home without cleaning up the school or vice-versa. Uncle Sam should take this matter in hand. State and county officials at the best are a mediocre, indifferent class of men. It is too bad that the people are too ignorant to see the necessity of cleaning up their bodies and their homes, but most human beings are like children. You have to stand over them with a club if you want to get anything done.

Comfort's League of Cousins

The League of Cousins was founded as a means of bringing the scattered members of COMFORT'S immense circle of readers into one big, happy family. Its aim is to promote a feeling of kinship and relationship among all readers. It was primarily started as a society for the juvenile members of COMFORT'S family, only, but those of more mature years clamored for admittance so persistently that it was deemed advisable to impose no age limit; thus all are eligible to admittance into our League provided they conform to its rules and are animated by the child spirit.

Membership is restricted to COMFORT subscribers and costs thirty cents, only five cents more than the regular subscription to COMFORT which is included. The thirty cents makes you a member of the League and gives you an attractive League button with the letters "C. L. O. C.," a handsome certificate of membership with your name engrossed thereon, and the privilege of having your name in the letter list, also a paid-in-advance subscription to COMFORT. You continue a League member as long as you keep up your subscription to COMFORT. There are no annual dues, so after you have once joined all you have to do to keep in good standing is to keep your subscription to COMFORT paid up.

Please observe carefully the following directions which explain exactly

How to become a Member

Send thirty cents to COMFORT'S Subscription Department, Augusta, Maine, with your request to be admitted into COMFORT'S LEAGUE OF COUSINS, and you will at once receive the League button and your membership certificate and number; you will also receive COMFORT for 15 months if you are a new subscriber; but if you are already a subscriber your subscription will be renewed or extended two full years beyond date of expiration, if you remit 35 cents.

Or, if your subscription is already paid in advance, you can take a friend's 15-months subscription at 25 cents and send it in with five cents of your own, thirty cents in all, with your request for membership, and we will send you the button and membership certificate, and send COMFORT to your friend for 15 months. League subscriptions do not count in premium clubs.

NEVER apply for membership without enclosing thirty cents to include a new subscription or a renewal.

The League numbering over forty thousand members, undoubtedly is the greatest society of young people on earth. It costs but thirty cents to join, and that gives you at least a 15-month subscription to COMFORT also, without extra cost.

Never in the world's history was so much given for so little. Never could thirty cents be invested to such advantage, and bring such splendid returns. Don't hesitate. Join us at once and induce your friends to do likewise.

All those League members who desire a list of the cousins residing in the several states, can secure the same by sending a stamped addressed envelope and five cents in stamps to Nellie Rutherford, 1299 Park Place, Brooklyn, New York, grand secretary.

Special Notice

Never write a subscription or renewal order or application for membership in the body of a letter. Write your subscription or renewal and membership application on a separate sheet of paper, separate from your letter. We have to put all subscription orders on our subscription file at once; so if it is written on the same sheet as your letter, the whole letter has to go on to the subscription file at once and thus can receive no attention from Uncle Charlie.

Never send subscriptions to Uncle Charlie nor to the Secretary of the League; they bother him and cause confusion and delay.

Address all letters to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine, and they will promptly reach the head of the department for which they are intended.

League Shut-in and Mercy Work for January

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me."

Written references from postmaster or physician must positively accompany all appeals from shut-ins. Appeals unaccompanied by written references will be destroyed.

Frank Showers (60), Wayland, N. Y. Crippled with rheumatism. Hasn't walked for forty-four years. Aged mother takes care of him. Very needy and worthy. Highly recommended. Send him some cheer. Lulu Thornburgh, Patterson, Wayne Co., Mo. Shut-in for twenty-six years. Needy and worthy. Send her something that will brighten the New Year for her. Elmer Dahlgren, 5019 Wadena Street, Duluth, Minn. Has both legs amputated. Lovely character. Aged mother his only support. Very worthy case. Send them some cheer. Isaac Price, Lenoir, N. C. Invalid for forty-four years. Tied in knots from rheumatism. Needy and worthy. It is two years since his name was listed in COMFORT. Send him some help. Cornelius Meek, White House, Ky. Sick and helpless with rheumatism. Unable to walk or do anything to support himself. Wife worn out waiting on him. Do something for them. Mrs. A. C. Hottinger, Hebron, Ohio. Helpless invalid. Confined to her bed. Poor, needy and lonely. Send her a dime shower, and so brighten the New Year for her. Lester Wesson, Florence, R. R. 4, Ala. Invalid. Send him some help. Well recommended. Mrs. Lizzie Ellison, 409 Gould St., Hillsboro, Texas. Helpless for three years. Well recommended. Send her some of the sympathy that buys bread. Mrs. Minnie Hillyard, Phillipsburg, Phillips Co., Box 184, Kans. Invalid for eleven years. Can only use one hand. Husband sick with tuberculosis. This is a sad case. Remember her. Wm. A. Barger, Uhrichsville, Ohio. Had to have his leg amputated below the knee on account of tubercular ankle joint. Needs money for an artificial limb. Mrs. Ellen Van Camp, Tionesta, Pa. Invalid for twenty-five years. Her daughter who is sickly her only support. They are needy and worthy. Send them some cheer. Nathan L. Tart, Benson, North Carolina. Invalid for over twenty years. Not able to even feed himself. No means of support. Send him some help. H. J. Snook, Beaver Springs, Pa. Invalid fifty-four years of age. Would like cheery letters, postal cards and reading matter, and if anyone could pass him on a talking machine would be grateful. Daisy R. Messeh, 336 Essex St., Bangor, Maine. Invalid. Would like cheery letters and postal cards. Alston G. Shaffer, Philippi, R. R. 3, Box 37, W. Va. Little crippled boy. Send him picture postal cards, toys or anything that will amuse a child. Mrs. M. A. Strickland, Box 767, Union City, Mich. Invalid. Would like cheery letters and postal cards. Mrs. John Towery, Spencerville, Okla. Shut-in. Would be grateful if someone could send her disk phonograph records. Laura Jones, Cambria, R. R. 2, Box 52, Va. Deformed from birth. Unable to do anything. Her aged mother (71), takes care of her. They are very poor. Have pity on these afflicted souls, and send them some of the sympathy that buys bread. Well recommended.

The appeals for assistance from invalids in North Carolina are numerous and persistent, and a large number have accumulated, because of our policy not to list more than two appeals from the same state in one month. If we list more none receive help enough to be worth while. These are hard times for the well, but for the sick they are a tragedy. Do your best for our needy ones, and God will bless you. Lovingly yours,

Uncle Charlie

This Wife and Mother
Wishes to Tell You FREE
How She Stopped Her Husband's Drinking

By all Means Write to Her And Learn How She did it.

For over 20 years James Anderson of 602 Elm Ave., Hillburn, N. Y., was a very hard drinker. His case seemed a hopeless one, but 10 years ago his wife in their own little home, gave him a simple remedy which much to her delight stopped his drinking entirely.

To make sure that the remedy was responsible for this happy result she also tried it on her brother and several of her neighbors. It was successful in every case. None of them has touched a drop of intoxicating liquor since.

She now wishes everyone who has drunkenness in their homes to try this simple remedy for she feels sure that it will do as much for others as it has for her. It can be given secretly if desired, and without cost she will gladly and willingly tell you what it is. All you have to do is write her a letter asking her how she cured her husband of drinking and she will reply by return mail in a sealed envelope. As she has nothing to sell do not send her money. Simply send a letter with all confidence to Mrs Margaret Anderson at the address given above, taking care to write your name and full address plainly. (We earnestly advise every one of our readers who wishes to cure a dear one of drunkenness to write to this lady today. Her offer is a sincere one.)

Uncle Charlie's Poems Will Help You to Start the New Year Right!

No matter how gloomy the world is Uncle Charlie's Poems are sunnier than ever. They make you laugh, yell, scream and forget your troubles. They are the best medicine in the world. Uncle Charlie's Poems, a gorgeous lilac silk bound, gold top, autumn leaf lined, 100-page volume of riotous fun. No home can be complete without this excruciatingly funny book. You will yell with delight as you peruse its entrancing pages. Among the laughs you will find a few tears, and an absorbingly interesting sketch of Uncle Charlie's life, with some superb pictures equal to photographs which show Uncle Charlie and Maria preparing the monthly talks you enjoy so much. This superb volume free for four fifteen-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25c each. These subs count toward our grand cash prize contributions.

Uncle Charlie's Song Book Contains 28 of the Dandiest Songs!

You can't beat Uncle Charlie's songs. Everyone is a hit and the book is a cracker jack of beauty, big and handsome, with full music for voice and piano. Worth a hundred dollar bill to anyone who loves real, classy melodious music; lovely melodies, entrancing words. Superb pictures of Uncle Charlie decorate the artistic cover. Free for a club of only two fifteen-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25c each. Both books free for a club of six. WORK FOR THEM TODAY.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

For years I was sorely troubled by hideous Superfluous Hairs. My face and arms were a sight. I tried everything advertised but only wasted my money and burned my skin. Finally, a friendly Scientist, Professor of Chemistry in an European University, told me how to get rid of it safely and easily so that it has never returned. Today there is no sign of Superfluous Hair anywhere on my body. I will send free to any sufferer the full secret of my lasting success, if you send me your name and address (stating whether Mrs. or Miss) with 2c stamp for postage. Address Mrs. Kathryn B. Jenkins, Suite 501, B. R. No. 623 Atlantic Ave., Boston, Mass. FREE

BEAUTIFUL 14K. GOLD filled Bracelet with secret catch and this handsome ring given for selling only a few pkgs. of our pretty post cards. Write for cards today. I. BOYER, 612 Chestnut St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

ART CALENDAR FREE
Send name and address with 2 cent stamp for mailing expenses and receive lovely colored calendar, free. H. GRIGGS, 610 So. Dearborn Street, Dept. 4, CHICAGO, ILL.

FREE 16tem wind and set watch, guaranteed 5 years, for selling 20 art and religious pictures or 20 pkgs. post cards at 10c each. Order your choice. GATES MFG. CO. Dept. 425 Chicago

St. Elmo an absorbing novel by Augusta J. Evans
With The American Woman 6 Months Only 20 Cents

St. Elmo stands as one of the greatest novels in the English language, and as a story of love, adventure, cross-purposes, reckless ambition, steadfast self control, personal sacrifice, and final triumph of good over evil, it has never been equalled. We have had printed a special edition of this fascinating novel which we are offering with a six months' subscription to The American Woman for 20c., postpaid. The book we offer is printed from clear type on good paper and firmly bound in a substantial colored paper cover. There are 379 pages, over 150,000 words, and it contains the complete and unabridged story.

Edna Earl, a poor orphan girl left alone after the death of her grandfather, seeks employment in a nearby city. The train is wrecked and she, severely hurt, is taken home by Mrs. Murray, St. Elmo's mother, who decides to give Edna a home and an education. St. Elmo has one of the very finest intellects but is dedicated to the work of scoffing at and blaspheming the truths of religion. He is feared by all his neighbors and servants, but his great wealth permits him to do as he wishes. The sincerely pious Edna can not bear his presence; and as the days go on, her detestation increases. When St. Elmo departs on an extended trip to the South Sea Islands she reluctantly accepts from him, for his mother's sake, the key to the small marble temple in his private sitting room which contains his will and other papers that he keeps secret, even from his mother. Edna promises not to tell anyone she has the key, or to open the vault unless he fails to return within four years. What St. Elmo's secret was, how Edna kept her promise and what resulted from always keeping about her a souvenir of the man she detested, is all told in this most interesting book.

We are making this offer to induce new readers to try our paper six months. THE AMERICAN WOMAN is a monthly paper filled with the best serial and short stories we can buy. There are also household departments with "tried and true" receipts, helpful editorials, pages of fancy work, up-to-date fashions, etc. Remember, just send us your name and address with 20c. In coin or stamps and we will send you The American Woman 6 months and a copy of St. Elmo, postpaid. Address THE AMERICAN WOMAN, 201 Court St., Augusta, Maine.

Generous $2 Bottle Free by Mail

EPILEPSY AND FITS

If you suffer from Epilepsy, Falling Sickness, Spasms or have children that do so, my New Treatment will relieve them, and all you are asked to do is to send for a FREE $2 Bottle of Dr. May's Formula. It has relieved permanently the very worst cases, when everything else has failed. Please write and give AGE and complete address.
DR. W. H. MAY, 548 Pearl St., New York.

Sport's Joke Book Just what you want boys. This great big book is full of sporty talk, funny sayings, witty remarks and funny jokes. Your friends will laugh till they cry when you spring these. Every true sport must have a copy. Just the kind of jokes to tell the boys and girls, as they all enjoy a good laugh. You'll be a real popular fellow. Over 1000 Jokes, Funny Stories and Pictures. Only 10 cents postpaid. Address STAR CO., 37 Clinton St., CHICAGO.

ECZEMA is Only Skin Deep
No internal medicine will cure ECZEMA. Only by the application of Cranolene can the Eczema microbe be destroyed. You pay us no money until you say you are cured. WRITE TODAY.
MILLS CHEMICAL CO., 414 Mills Bldg., GIRARD, KANSAS

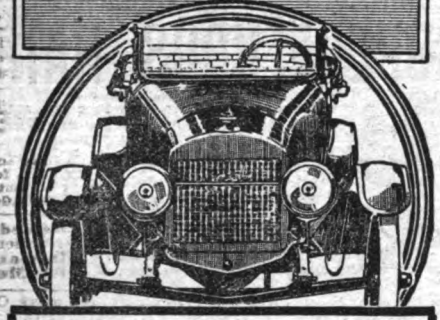
FREE 4 RINGS
Order 12 pkgs. Gold Eye Needles. Easily sold at 10c with thimble free. Return $1.20 and all 4 beautiful rings are yours. No money needed. Order today. GLOBE CO., Dept. B, 801, Greenville, Pa.

16 Lovely Pictures Free
Send your name and address with 2 cent stamp for mailing expenses and receive a sheet of 16 lovely miniature pictures in colors, free. The Hearthstone, 612 So. Dearborn Street, Dept. 61, Chicago, Illinois.

Big Entertainer 163 Parlor Games and Tricks, 310 Jokes and Riddles, 73 Toasts, 15 Card Tricks, 4 Comic Recitations, 3 Monologues, Checkers, 9 Men Morris, Chess, Dominoes, Fox and Geese, etc. All for 10 CENTS
S. G. ABERNETHY, Box 517, Myrtle, Miss.

ALL THIS 10c 70 Games, 35 Puzzles, 196 Riddles, 16 Magic Tricks, 20 Songs, 12 Curious Letters, 19 Fun Cards, 14 Flirtations, 116 Jokes. Great catalog and lots of other things 10c. NOVELTIES CO., D7 WINONA, MINN.

PILES If you are afflicted with piles in any form write for a FREE trial treatment of Infallible Pile Tablets and you will ever bless the day you read this.
Infallible Tablet Co., Dept. 177 Marshall, Mich.



CARDS Send 2c Stamp for large Sample Album of Hidden Name, Silk Fringe, Envelope, Friendship, Joker's, Lover's and all other Kinds of Cards, Post Cards and Premiums. Star Beau Catcher and list of 2000 Songs given Free. OHIO CARD CO., 14 Cadiz, Ohio.

SILK REMNANTS for Fancy Work, Crazy Quilts, &c. Sample package postpaid 10c. 3 for 25c. 1 lb. $1.00.
The S. & D. Co., Dept. 60, Brunswick, Maine.

GOLD shell Spectacles $1 a Pair Send for catalog. Agents wanted
Coulter Optical Co., Dept. B, Chicago, Ill.

Yes! It's Free

This $850 Overland Will Be Given Away!

YES! We are going to give away this fine big 1915 Model Overland Automobile Free. It is fully equipped with top, electric self starter and lights, speedometer, horn, etc., and will be sent to some industrious person Free of Charge. All you will have to do to earn this fine automobile is to take subscriptions to our popular magazine The Household. Each subscription will count so many points and if you have the most points March 25th, the automobile is yours free of cost. Isn't that an easy way to get an auto?

We Have Given Away Twenty-Three Automobiles

During the past few years we have given away twenty-three automobiles, as many motorcycles and numbers of other prizes in our popular prize offering. We will send you the names and addresses of these winners and you can write them if you wish. One of our recent contests was won by a little boy at Nolan, Tex., named R. F. Oakley. He is only twelve years old and earned a Studebaker Automobile. You can do as well. Write your name and address on the coupon below and mail it to us today. It won't cost you a cent and we will tell you all about our free offer.

THE HOUSEHOLD
824 Jackson St. Topeka, Kansas

"Overland 30"

ENTRY COUPON
The Household, 824 Jackson, Topeka, Kan.
Gentlemen—Please send me full particulars of your free automobile offer. This does not obligate me in any way.

Name.....
Town.....
State.....
R.F.D..... Bx.....

The Family Doctor

So many inquiries are received from COMFORT subscribers concerning the health of the family that this column will be devoted to answering them. The remedies and advice here given are intended only for simple cases; serious cases should be addressed to physicians, not to us.

Address The Family Doctor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

NOTICE.—As the privileges of this and all other departments of COMFORT are for subscribers only, no attention will be given any inquiry which does not bear the writer's correct name and address. Initials only, or a fictitious name, if requested, will appear in the published answer, but the inquiry must invariably be signed by the writer's true name.

A. M., Cullman, Ala.—The breaking out on your hands as it is recurrent and you have had it for some time is probably some sort of eczema which is a skin disease and usually very stubborn. It is not curable by yourself, nor by any physician except one who can make a personal examination and determine its character. No doubt there are many COMFORT readers whose hands have the same breaking out as yours and who like you, go on suffering year after year trying to cure themselves instead of letting a doctor examine them and prescribe properly. Our only advice to all these is that they consult a physician at once.

A. C., McEwen, Tenn.—So-called wild hairs in the eyes are really turned-in eyelashes and they should be removed, not improperly by yourself or some other awkward and unskilled person, but by a physician who after removing the cause of the trouble will treat it properly so that the eye may regain its normal condition. You can't be too careful with your eyes. Other inquirers who ask our advice in eye troubles are respectfully and firmly advised that no proper treatment of the eyes may be given except by a physician who can examine them personally. We have no desire to injure or destroy anything so valuable as sight by guessing at conditions of the eye and prescribing treatment on guesswork.

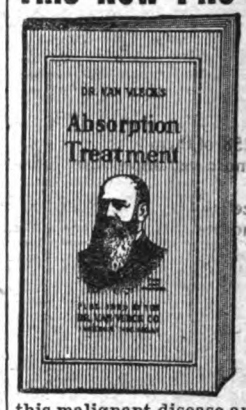
A. B., Crosland, Ga.—Your catarrh has not only affected your ears, but your stomach as well and your digestion is all out of order which produces the various other ailments which are troubling you. If you live in a climate where catarrh prevails you should move away to the dry warm air of Arizona or the dry cold air of Colorado. As long as you live where the air is damp you will have catarrh. See a doctor and ask him to tell you what kind of diet you should have to establish your digestion. But whatever you eat chew every mouthful to a pulp before you swallow it. Drinking hot water is good for the stomach.

Peggy, Lesterville, S. Dak.—The swelling which you think is in the parotid gland may be there, or may be some simple swelling from other than glandular causes. As you have had it for so long we would suggest that you have an examination by a competent physician in personal attendance.

X. Y. Z., Vienna, S. Dak.—For your cold hands and feet massage thoroughly, always rubbing towards the body. Practise deep breathing in the open air, or before an open window, to get the blood properly oxygenized. You are probably anemic and should eat the most nourishing food you can get that is digestible. A homely remedy for cold feet is to sprinkle a little cayenne pepper in your shoes. It is simply a counter irritant. Before trying to strengthen your nerves you must know what weaknens them and remove the cause.

Subscriber, Yonkers, N. Y.—We think if instead of closing the window and preventing the fresh air from getting to your coughing boy, you should let him sleep out on the porch where he could get all the air there was, you would find that his coughing would soon be cured. If there is any consumption in the cough the open air is the best treatment known. Ask your doctor what he thinks of your boy sleeping out of doors, or with his head at the open window.

Mrs. E. B., Wood Lake, Nebr.—If you had been reading this column at all you would have seen repeated suggestions and advice on the subject of indigestion because more people suffer from that than any other known ailment. They do so, too, because they take no care of their eating so as to prevent it, but eat without any regard to health rules and then cry to be cured. Now if your children have it, you should begin at once to give them simple and nourishing food, making them chew every mouthful thoroughly before swallowing and see to it that they do not over-eat, nor eat at irregular hours. Maybe they won't like it, but it will not be half as painful to them as to suffer later for years with indigestion. Of all diseases indigestion is the easiest to prevent and less effort is made to prevent it. (2) Bunions are practically incurable, but they may be relieved by wearing shoes that fit and are easy, and a bunion plaster or salve will be found quieting if the pain is severe. Chilblains result from poor circulation generally induced by wearing tight garments or shoes. Care should be taken to prevent the beginning of the trouble. If the skin is not broken a liniment of equal parts of turpentine and copaiba may be applied night and morning. If the skin is very tender it may be painted with a mixture of collodion, two ounces; Castor oil, one half ounce, and turpentine, one ounce. The itching may be relieved by bathing in hot water with a little mustard in it.



L. T., Ironton, Ohio.—You are like all the rest of the people who are ignorant of their needs and try to teach themselves. You say you had throat trouble so severely that you almost choked to death, but it got well and, to quote your own words, "since I have worried about the way I breathe. I think that I don't breathe deep enough and worry about it all the time and can never get it off of my mind. I think if I could get it off of my mind I would be all right. I worry so much that sometimes I think I can never get it off of my mind. Could you please tell me something? I would just be glad to get anybody's advice." Now consider yourself a minute. You are worrying yourself sick and would be glad to get anybody's advice, when by going to a doctor and getting his advice you would stop all the worry and learn what to do to be well and strong. What we would like to know is, why don't you go to a doctor instead of groping around for help and advice among those who are as ignorant as you are and don't know how to give it to you? You live in a city where good doctors are plenty and where you could easily get the right kind of advice and treatment if you would pay the small sum necessary.

Parnie Gallipolis, Ohio.—Simple sulphur ointment or ointment of mercury will be sufficient in ordinary cases of ringworm. It is a local skin disease and no internal treatment is required. (2) You cannot reduce the size of your ankles unless you reduce the size of your body generally. Standing on your feet so much you should wear the easiest kind of shoes, or if possible heavy felt slippers, or even go barefoot. The circulation is bad in your feet and then heat and cold result. Massage from your ankles up to your knees night and morning. Always massage towards the body. A strong mustard bath night and morning will help. Let your feet remain in it for several minutes.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off. —Advertisement.

CRUEL PILES
After 40 Years Study, Dr. Van Vleck Found Genuine Relief Which is Healing Thousands
This New Pile Book Tells How SENT FREE

Write for it TODAY

Don't neglect Piles or even the first signs of Piles, for untold misery often follows delay. Get this New Book and learn the causes and effects of this malignant disease and learn how you can, by yourself, check and overcome it, without suffering and at little cost. The information in this Book has saved hundreds from costly operations and has brought back thousands from lives of cruel pain to comfort and happiness. It is illustrated with color plates, and tells the experiences of men and women from everywhere, some of whom have suffered 30 and 40 years, who have been made glad for the rest of their lives through the work of Dr. Van Vleck, the ex-army surgeon. If You have Piles, Fissure, Fistula, Constipation or any kind of symptoms of coming trouble write for this Free Book now and learn what every person ought to know about taking care of himself or herself. Fill out and mail coupon or send your address on a postal—either brings the Book at once.

FREE BOOK COUPON
Fill in your address and mail this coupon to Dr. Van Vleck Co., Dept. 156, Jackson, Mich.

Name.....
Address.....
.....
Return mail will bring you the Illustrated Book free and prepaid, in plain wrapper.

PARCEL-POST PACKAGE OF $5,000,000.—An parcel-post shipment of gold coin was recently made from the mint at Philadelphia to Boston. The parcel contained $5,000,000. The use of the parcel-post system for the shipment of gold from government mints is gradually increasing. Formerly the express companies did this for the Government but they are being rapidly supplanted.

A SEVEN-TON CHEESE.—An enormous cheese was recently made at West Martinsburg, N. Y., for exhibition at the Panama-Pacific exposition to be held in California this year. It weighs nearly seven tons, measures more than four and a half feet in height, is over twenty-five feet in circumference and 106,000 pounds of milk were required in its manufacture.

ESTABLISHES BIRD REFUGE.—In order that another wild fowl refuge may be established on the northern shore of the gulf of Mexico, the Rockefeller Foundation has purchased an 85,000-acre tract of land in the parishes of Cameron and Vermillion, La., at a cost of approximately $225,000. The tract is intended as a feeding and nesting ground for the use of birds during the winter and as a preserve where they may be protected from hunters and other enemies all through the year.

Did You Win A Cash Prize?

THOSE of our readers who won a November Cash Prize in COMFORT'S Seventh Grand Prize Contest will find their names somewhere in this list. These prizes have already been paid to the winners and now we are almost ready to pay the December Prizes. The names of the winners in our December Contest will be printed in February COMFORT. All who have not yet entered this Cash Prize Contest should remember that there is still four months of it left. Each month's contest is separate and distinct from another and has a separate list of Cash Prizes which are paid promptly at the end of the month. At the end of the four remaining months we will also pay a list of Grand Prizes. Every Monthly Prize you win helps you win one of the Grand Prizes. These Monthly Cash Prizes and Grand Cash Prizes are extra and in addition to the premiums we give you. You are sure to get a premium for every club you send in and in addition any Monthly Prize you win is paid to you promptly at the end of the month in which you win it. All of our readers who have not yet done so should by all means enter now for the January prizes. It costs you nothing to try. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose. Read all about this Grand Cash Prize offer on another page. Also write us for our latest Premium Catalogue. We want to show you what splendid premiums we will give you in addition to any prize money which you may win. And while you are waiting for the catalogue start securing a club of subscriptions to be placed to your credit on the January Prizes.

Here Are The Names Of Our November Prize Winners!

The 133 contestants whose names appear below have been paid the following November Monthly Cash Prizes. Any of them who win a December Monthly Prize will be paid just twice the amount of the prize they win, whatever it may be.

Mrs. Ruth Crow, Ill.,	1st Prize,	$30.00
Mrs. Alice Warner, Minn.,	2nd Prize,	20.00
A. B. Nutting, Mass.,	3rd Prize,	10.00
Bacon A. Green, Tenn.,	4th Prize,	5.00
Sybil Paris, Kans.,	5th Prize,	5.00
Mrs. J. D. Oatts, Ky.,	6th Prize,	5.00
Byrda Evans, Missouri,	7th Prize,	3.00
Emma Jane Ward, Ohio,	8th Prize,	3.00
Mrs. J. Williams, Wash.,	9th Prize,	3.00
Ora B. Mohon, Ky.,	10th Prize,	3.00

The Next Eight Received $2.00 Each!

E. Wagoner, Ill.; Mrs. Ella Benham, Oregon; Mrs. Mary F. Crothers, Ill.; C. A. Brown, Mich.; Mrs. Ellen Fox, Idaho; Mrs. S. E. West, Wash.; C. T. Shelburne, Texas; Miss Ruby Ellison, S. Dak.

The Next 115 Received $1.00 Each!

Mrs. Leroy Hardin, S. C.; Mrs. Ella Baxter, Ohio; Susie Edward, N. C.; Mrs. Fred Hesbon, N. Y.; Chas. A. Hurst, Okla; Mrs. Sarah E. Williams, Ky.; Mrs. E. Corder, Missouri; Mrs. George Kurtz, Kans.; Mrs. Grant Taintor, N. Y.; Pearl A. Young, Ohio; C. E. Jewell, Calif.; Miss Emma Magdeburg, Okla.; Mrs. P. M. Card, Mich.; Mrs. Lena T. Taylor, Texas; Mrs. Prentice Beach, Pa.; Miss Goldie May Todd, Wyo.; Miss H. Fondy Thornberry, W. Va.; Minnie Haynes, Texas; Miss Linda Troyer, Ohio; Odessel Sams, Ga.; Mrs. N. J. Conroy, N. Y.; Mrs. Lee Floyd, Texas; Hannah Dean, Ky.; Miss Florence Burtz, Ala.; W. W. Calverd, Ill.; Clarence Perry, Wash.; Mrs. Sue Cornelius, Ill.; Lulu Joyce, Texas; Mrs. J. E. Hawley, Missouri; Mrs. Hattie Ambler, Kans.; Mrs. Lezim Verrier, Wash.; Eva Clair Moon, N. Y.; Gus Gibson, N. C.; Mrs. Roy Harvey, Ohio; R. C. Cox, Texas; Mrs. M. M. McClure, Ohio; Jeneva M. Smith, Conn.; Miss Nanny Anderson, N. Dak.; Carl Sjungberg, Wyo.; Mrs. Mae Halbrook, Iowa; Mrs. C. R. Greene, Tenn.; Mrs. W. C. Fite, Pa.; Mrs. W. H. Morris, Wis.; Mrs. E. M. De Coster, Fla.; Mrs. E. Finch, Miss.; Mrs. T. Morrie, Ill.; Mrs. Lillie F. Hall, Indiana; Mrs. M. M. O'Neil, N. Y.; Mrs Annie Pierce, Iowa; Mrs. L. W. Jarrett, Tenn.; Mrs. C. A. Purtle, W. Va.; Ethel B. Fletcher, W. Va.; Bryan Dildine, Ohio; Mrs. J. A. Groves, N. C.; Mrs. J. F Schottel, Missouri; Mrs. P. E. Johnson, Fla.; Mrs. Arthur Krueger, Wis.; Mrs. Clifford B. London, Ky.; Hazel Kussman, Wis.; Mrs. May Burke, Pa.; Miss Mary Ryan, Va.; Frank S. Mildram, Maine; Elizabeth Correll, Nebr.; Mrs. E. A. Knight, Mont.; Mrs. A. M. Corey, Ill.; Mrs. Elinor Birckhead, Va.; Miss Laura Balliett, Ohio; John Edwin Burke, Calif.; Mrs. Lucy Bowers, Ohio; Mrs. J. N. Bybee, Texas; F. R. Duvall, Wis.; Gertie Moorhead, Ala.; Mrs. Harry Giarth, Pa.; Miss Mattie Rooks, Ga.; Leonard L. Rust, Calif.; Mrs. Frederick Smith, N. Y.; Mrs. S. W. Gerow, Mich.; Mrs. Annie Inman, Missouri; Mrs. M. J. Blair, Okla.; Viva Weiles, Calif.; Mary Burges, Texas; Mrs. Flora Cookson, Maine; Miss Genevieve Malcuitt, Conn.; Mrs. J. G. Dandridge, Miss.; Mrs. Mary Paxton, Okla.; Mrs. Harry T, Brown, N. J.; Mrs. Minnie Copple, Indiana; Miss Mollie M. Elliott, Kans.; Mrs. Eliza J. Bagley, Ohio; Lora Burcham, Ohio; Mrs. Lillie Craft, Calif.; Mrs. Sam Bolyard, Kans.; Mrs. Alva Copemen, Mich.; Mrs. Minnie F. Malone, Ohio.; Mrs. Zelma Boone, Indiana; Mrs. Frank Tabor, Wis.; Mrs. A. Hutson, Idaho; Mrs. S. A. Rucker, Ky.; Miss Ethel Emery, Missouri; Miss Vivia Bedard, Kans.; Mrs. Sebella Spillers, La.; Mazie Quackenbush, N. J.; Mrs. M. R. McIntosh, Oregon; Mrs. Alice Altic, Ohio; Mrs. R. L. Falls, N. C.; Lora Powell, N. C.; Mrs. L. J. Schoonover, Ohio; Mrs. S. M. Osborne, Iowa; Mrs. Anna Wade, Wis.; Mrs. M. M. Akens, Ark.; Mrs. Chas. Dilley, Pa.; A. J. Rathburn, M. D., Ohio; Hugh Bartle, N. Y.; Sadie Denham, Missouri; Miss Martha Swisher, W. Va.

We Paid Each Of These Women A $1.00 Consolation Prize!

Mrs. John Lund, Nebr.; Emma Prothro, Ark.; Mrs. Ira Mecham, Missouri; Mrs. Effie Ruke, Texas; Mrs. Della Gardner, S. C.; Elsa Smith, W. Va.; Mrs. J. E. Dunn, N. Y.; Mrs. Alice Rivers, Mich.; Mildred Stevens, Ark.; Mrs. R. C. Stone, Pa.; May Palm, Minn.; Miss Fern Beavens, Indiana; Mrs. Wm. Franz, Missouri; Sallie Fuller, N. C.; Miss Mabel R. Royer, Pa.; Rosalie Whipple, Pa.; Mrs. Samuel J. Huntley, Maine; Fannie King, W. Va.; Lucy Alice Thuma, Ohio; Missouri Goudy, Ill.; Mrs. Allie Pagenhardt, Maryland; Nellie A. Clopper, Maryland; Mrs. G. H. Holt, Tenn.; Miss Margaret McAdam, Conn.; Mrs. G. W. Wheeler, Ga.; Mrs. J. G. Woemer, Ky.; Mrs. N. M. Lilley, Ill.; Miss Nettie Ray Wills, Ky.; Mrs. J. D. Oliver, Va.; Mina Stevenson, Tenn.; Mrs. George White, N. C.; Mrs. Ida Barton, Nebr.; Sallie Dean, N. Y.; Mrs. T. I. Macon, Ga.; Bessie Rankin, Indiana; Nellie Thompson, Ohio; Lillian Haessley, Wis.; Mrs. Eunice McManus, Ala.; Miss Jennie Smith, N. C.; Minnie Woolery, Okla.; Mrs. H. L. Asbury, S. Dak.; Mrs. I. M. Moore, Ill.; Mrs. Verna Sholl, Ill.; Margaret H. Kephart, Pa.; Jennie Martin, Wis.; Martha Pate, Texas; Mrs. C. V. Mitchell, Ohio; Mrs. Rose Robinson, W. Va.; Mrs. Lee L. Hefley, Ill.; Mrs. C. A. Mitchell, Tenn.; Miss Josephine Thibodeau, Mont.; Mrs. Frank Wiggins, Mich.; Mrs. John Neal, Mich.; Miss Mildred Hamilton, Wis.; Mrs. Edyth Fry, Iowa; Miss Gladys Hopkins, Pa.; Katie Potts, Texas; Florence Kline, Ill.; Ora Galloway, Indiana; Mrs. Ed. Kantop, Iowa; Mrs. Sadie Davenport, Ohio; Mrs. Iva Gipson, Colo.; Mrs. Amy Fox, Mich.; Mrs. Elsie Seat, Okla.; Mrs. David K. Henry, Kans.; Nellie Fulton, Kans.; Mrs. W. H. Moore, Ohio; Mrs. Bettie Harris, Ky.; Mrs. Bessie Price, W. Va.; Miss Annie Snider, Ky.; Mary S. Williams, N. J.; Emma Stephens, Okla.; Miss Daisy Martin, Missouri; Annie Fitzpatrick, Ky.; Clara Lee Pace, Ky.

Start Your Club Now And Enter For A January Prize!

GIVEN 5 Year Rolled Gold Plated Bracelet for selling 20 pictures or 20 pkgs post cards at 10c
Gates Mfg Co. Dpt 526 Chicago

BOYS Get a bundle of our STAGE GREENBACKS and have the time of your life. Looks like the real stuff. Yellow on one side and green on the other. Flash a roll on your friends and be popular at once. The girls will be after you too. Big roll of 25 bills for 10 CENTS; 3 rolls for 25c. Address STAR CO., 23 Clinton St., CHICAGO.

Cancer Book
Entirely New Book on Cancer. The most comprehensive explanation of cancer and its successful treatment without the knife ever published. The Book is FREE. Send for a copy today and Learn the Truth about cancer.
O. A. JOHNSON, M. D., Suite 440, 1320 Main St., Kansas City, Mo.

GOITER
No need to suffer longer. Aunt Emma's Goiter Treatment is the one remedy that is guaranteed to cure or money refunded. Used sucessfully for years and endorsed by leading business men of this city. Easy to take, results certain. Ask for free circular.
Aunt Emma's Co., 1 Madison St., Waukegan, Ill.

OLD SORES
Since 1869 ALLEN'S ULCERINE SALVE has healed more old sores than all other salves combined. It is the most powerful salve known and heals sores from the bottom up, drawing out the poisons. By mail 55 cents. Book free,
J. P. ALLEN MEDICINE CO., Dept. B25 ST. PAUL, MINN.

YOUR HEART

Does it Flutter, Palpitate or Skip Beats? Have you Shortness of Breath, Tenderness, Numbness or Pain in left side, Dizziness, Fainting Spells, Spots before eyes, Sudden Starting in sleep, Nervousness, Nightmare, Hungry or Weak Spells, Oppressed Feeling in chest, Choking Sensation in throat, Painful to lie on left side, Cold Hands or Feet, Difficult Breathing, Heart Dropsy, Swelling of feet or ankles, or Neuralgia around heart? If you have one or more of the above symptoms, don't fail to use Dr. Kinsman's Guaranteed Heart Tablets. Not a secret medicine. It is said that one person out of every four has a weak heart. Three-fourths of these do not know it, and hundreds wrongfully treat themselves for the Stomach, Lungs, Kidneys or Nerves. Don't take any chances when Dr. Kinsman's Heart Tablets are within your reach. 1000 endorsements furnished.

FREE TREATMENT COUPON
Any sufferer mailing this coupon, with their name and P. O. Address, to Dr. F. G. Kinsman, Box 862, Augusta, Maine, will receive a box of Heart Tablets for trial by return mail, postpaid, free of charge. Delays are dangerous. Write at once—to-day

Three Wheel Chairs in December

258 is COMFORT'S Total to Date

This makes 41 wheel chairs that COMFORT'S Wheel-Chair Club has earned and I have sent during the past year to relieve the distress of that number of worthy, suffering shut-ins. 258 is the total number of wheel chairs that we have provided and distributed since the club started.

But thousands of other destitute cripples dependent on public charity, friends, relatives or neighbors for food and shelter are confined to the house or, worse still, to a single room or even to the bed, because they and their friends are too poor to buy a wheel chair. Hundreds of them have applied to COMFORT, and we have provided 258 of them with wheel chairs, but there are hundreds more yet unprovided on our waiting list.

A number of our wheel chairs have gone to inmates of county poorhouses. It is a disgrace that these public institutions are not furnished with wheel chairs which for a cripple's comfort are as necessary as a bed—even more so because the wheel chair, when extended in the horizontal position, is a very good substitute for a bed to sleep in, and being adjustable to any position is far more comfortable than a bed for other purposes, besides being the means of getting about both indoors and out.

When one of our wheel chairs goes to an inmate of a poorhouse I never mention that fact in announcing the name of the recipient, for it is bad enough for the poor unfortunate to be there without the added humiliation of having it published to the world.

It is a shame that in this country there should be any cripples without wheel chairs, for COMFORT'S wheel-chair department provides the means whereby they may be obtained free for any and all shut-ins whose friends will make a reasonable effort in their behalf.

I appeal to all COMFORT readers to make a New Year resolution to do something to help provide wheel chairs for the large army of poor shut-ins, and to begin at once to put your good resolution into action. If you know of any person that needs a wheel chair, begin getting subscriptions for him yourself and get others interested to do likewise.

There is a shut-in needing a wheel chair in nearly every community, but if none in yours, help the good work by getting the subscriptions for the benefit of those whom the Wheel-Chair Club is assisting. Bear in mind that every subscription you send to credit of our wheel-chair department helps to provide another shut-in with a necessary comfort.

The three December chairs go to the following named persons. The figures after the names indicate the number of subscriptions which the friends of the respective recipients sent in their behalf. In each case the Wheel-Chair Club has furnished the subscriptions to make up the difference between the respective numbers stated and the 200 requisite to provide a wheel chair.

Miss Odessa Rasure, Binger, Okla., 114; Mrs. Mattie Pemberton, Buffalo, Ill., 111; Mrs. Sarah Varner, Cross Rock, N. C., 111.

Poor little Odessa Rasure, though seventeen years of age, is no larger than a child of seven years should be. Ten years ago she was stricken with paralysis which almost completely crippled her and checked her growth and development. Although able to sit up only part of the time she is a very patient and uncomplaining sufferer. Hers is a sad case, with her youth made miserable by disease and no hope of betterment in future years. Although too weak to propel it herself, the wheel chair will add much to her comfort.

Mrs. Mattie Pemberton is nearly sixty-nine years old and badly paralyzed. Her wheel chair comes late, but better than never, to help cheer her declining years.

Mrs. Varner, seventy-seven years old, has been an invalid for twelve years since she was stricken with paralysis, as though that were not enough for human endurance she also suffers from rheumatism.

There are many equally sad cases on our long waiting list, and I beg all you who are well and strong to consider it your duty to do something toward providing them the one thing they most need and desire.

I have space for only one letter of thanks, but you will find the Roll of Honor interesting.

I wish you all a Happy New Year.

Sincerely yours,

W. H. GANNETT, Publisher of COMFORT.

P. S. For the information of our many new subscribers let me explain that for each and every 200 new 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT sent in either singly or in clubs by persons who direct that they are to be credited to COMFORT'S WHEEL-CHAIR CLUB instead of claiming the premiums to which they would be entitled, I give a FIRST-CLASS INVALID WHEEL CHAIR to some worthy, destitute, crippled Shut-in and pay the freight, too. It is a large and expensive premium for me to give for that number of subscribers, but I am always glad to do my part a little faster each month than you do yours.

Subscription price is 25 cents, but if sent in clubs of five or more for the Wheel-Chair Club, I accept them at 20 cents each.

COMFORT'S Wheel Chair Enables Her to Go to the Table for Her Meals

RED BAY, ALA.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I received my wheel chair, and I could never find words to tell you how delighted I am with it. I can now go to and from the table for my meals, something I was not able to do before I got my chair, and in so many other ways it is such a comfort and help to me. I want to thank you Uncle Charlie, Mr. Gannett, and all the good people who helped me get it. May God bless you all. Sincerely yours, LOUCINDA SMITH.

The Roll of Honor comprises the names of those who have sent five or more subscriptions to credit of the Wheel-Chair Club during the month previous. Following each name is the number of subscriptions sent.

COMFORT'S Roll of Honor

Miss Sybil Pharis, Kans., for Mrs. Mattie Pemberton, 111; Mrs. Mattye Russell, Okla., for Odessa Rasure, 50; E. A. Dame, Iowa, for Russell Harrison, 48; S. J. Varner, N. C., for Sarah Varner, 35; Mrs. W. C. Harrison, Iowa, for Russell Harrison, 34; J. P. Wellwine, Va., for Mrs. Woolwine, 26; Elmer Bell, N. Y., for own wheel chair, 23; Mrs. I. D. Sealey, S. C., for Sarah Varner, 16; Mrs. D. H. Gillis, N. C., for J. L. Brown, 13; O. J. Harrison, Iowa, for Russell Harrison, 13; Sarah Martin, N. M., for N. M. Hogg, 12; Elizabeth and Doris Moore, Ill., for Edgar Corman, 11; Anna Whitman, Tex., for Miss N. M. Hogg, 10; Mrs. H. White, Cal., for Carmel Knorr, 10; Carrie Dampl, Ark., for Bama Leslie, 9; Mrs. Elijah Grisham, Okla., for Elwin Hale, 9; Mrs. Alma Campbell, Nebr., 6; Katye Saunders, Miss., for own wheel chair, 7; Mrs. S. A. Kurtz, Okla., for Mrs. Henry Crowley, 7; Mrs. Alden B. Williams, Wash., 7; Mary Berry, Ga., for own wheel chair, 7; R. T. Pearson, N. M., 6; Mrs. S. E. Thomas, Ark., for Suda Catnam, 6; Ruby Wimberly, Tex., for Mrs. J. F. Wimberly, 6; Mrs. Henry Henken, N. Y., 6; Naomi Rell, Ind., for own wheel chair, 6; Emma Cheaney, Ill., for own wheel chair, 5; Mrs. Suda Catnam, Ark., for own wheel chair, 5; Mrs. Wilfred Boudex, Canada, 5; Mrs. W. W. Hodge, Tex., for J. C. Carter, 5; Mrs. Charles Odom, Fla., 5; Mrs. Mary F. Grothers, Ill., 5; Mrs. Homer Yeager, Okla., 5; Mrs. Florence Tuell, N. Y., for Fitzhugh Lee Johnston, 5; Mr. Willie Prewe, Wash., 5.

The Fox's Skin

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 2.)

yesterday morning, Miss Heath. When I asked you for tea I did so because I was hungry."

The girl gasped. "Not eaten! What do you mean? Why haven't you eaten?" With trembling fingers she began to fill a cup.

"I haven't eaten because I haven't a cent, and because, except for this check that I have just received, I would not have a cent till tomorrow—Saturday night—when I would receive my munificent wages of twelve dollars a week."

"Wages? Twelve dollars a week? What do you mean? Your uncle——"

"My uncle and I have quarrelled, Miss Heath. He turned me adrift six months ago. * * * * * Thank you! * * * * * * Your tea is always delicious. And these crackers—more than once they have served me for lunch!"

"But—but—Good Heavens! You don't mean ——" Miss Heath was staring at Rutherford aghast, her pretty eyes filled with tears. "Why! That is terrible."

"It's delightful enough, now, in retrospect. It wasn't delightful when the old man turned me out with the customary avuncular curse."

"But——"

"He wasn't nasty about it you know. He had just paid a year's rent in advance for my studio and had bought me plenty of paints and brushes to play with, and he let me keep them. He let me keep everything he had given me. I don't know why he did let me. It isn't customary in the best melodramatic circles you know."

"Yes! Yes!" The girl seemed to understand.

"Well," Rutherford went on, "he did let me keep them and I saw a chance. I knew how to paint pictures that my friends said were 'really not half bad, don't you know,' and I had an idea I could win out. Don't misunderstand me. I never had any illusions about 'art.' I guessed that friends who gushed over the productions of the heir to a million wouldn't look at the productions of the heir to thirty cents. But I did have a knack for drawing, and I believed that in time—perhaps before the end of the eleven months the lease had to run—I might earn a living by illustrating, especially if I could conceal the fact that I needed the money—yes! thank you, I will have another cup.

"So I decided to bluff it out. Light and heat were included in the studio lease, and I had clothes in plenty. But I didn't have any money; that is, I had only twenty dollars, and I had made up my mind not to borrow. But I had to eat and I had to pay my club dues and I had to be always handing out tips, and I was reasonably sure that twenty dollars couldn't be made to last till I began to sell my stuff. Obviously I had to earn money in some other way for a time. But if I did so openly it would queer my chances at the art game. My only chance of getting the prices that would let me live as I wanted to was to live as if I had the prices already. The Columbian, for instance, wouldn't have paid me five hundred cents for those cover designs if it had thought I was starving for the money. That's why I became a night baggageman at twelve dollars a week.'"

"A night baggageman!" Miss Heath echoed the word poignantly. She seemed stricken with horror.

"Exactly. For five months I have been on duty from four in the afternoon till twelve at night. After which——"

"But—but—has no one recognized you?"

"Of course not? I met plenty of people that I knew, but none of them every really saw me. To them I was merely part of the machinery of existence. Besides, I painted a large and artistic birthmark close above my right eye and——"

The girl uttered a cry.

Rutherford nodded. "Yes! I did it very artistically. I'm really proud of that birthmark. I—er—— Oh! yes! At twelve, when I came off duty, I usually dropped in somewhere for a plate of beef stew. Beef stew tastes mighty good, you know, and they give you a lot of bread with it. And it only costs fifteen cents. Lately, I've been getting it at Alexander's!"

"Alexander's?" The girl's lips moved.

"Yes. Alexander's Lunchroom—a tremendous big place on the east side. Well! It's all over now. I can make a living by my painting. But I wanted to tell you all about it before—before I asked you to be my wife." For the first time Rutherford faltered. He flung out his hands and caught the girl's. "You—you will, won't you, girlie?" he pleaded. "I—I never could have stuck it out if it hadn't been for your being here. But I couldn't go away from this building so long as you were in it—not until I had to, dear, not until I had to."

Miss Heath's face became set in sudden resolution. Resolutely she withdrew her hand. "Did you ever meet anyone—anyone who—any girl in—in—Alexander's or anywhere——" she stammered.

Rutherford's eyes sparkled. "Yes!" he answered. "I met one. She was night cashier at Alexander's. She was a mighty nice girl. Being a girl cashier in a place like that isn't easy, you know. She's got to know how to handle fools and sneak-thieves and flim-flam-men and mashers and several dozen other sorts of alleged men, all without making them mad and losing their custom. It takes a clever head and a ready tongue. It——"

"What was she like?"

Rutherford looked at Miss Heath appraisingly. "She looks very much as you look today," he said. Trim and neat and clean cut. She had yellow hair, too——"

"Too!" Miss Heath sprang up, clutching at her head. Then she hurried to a mirror, looked at herself, and snatched off the yellow wig that hid the nut-brown hair that Rutherford knew so well.

"You knew?" she gasped.

Rutherford nodded. "Yes," he said. "I guessed that you were the cashier when I saw you in your working suit and your peroxide curls. But I wasn't sure at first. Later I was." Rutherford reached out and caught the girl's hands once more. "You will marry me, won't you, dear?" he pleaded.

The girl made no effort to draw away. But she stared at Rutherford strangely. "You would marry me?" she said. "You would marry a girl who works in a night cafe, a girl whom you found masquerading here?"

Rutherford laughed happily. "You bet I would," he declared.

"But—but I haven't told you all. Where do you think all this luxury comes from?" Her glance swept the perfectly appointed room. "Night cashiers can't afford this sort of thing."

Rutherford laughed again. "It comes honestly, I know," he declared. "Of course I don't know just how. Tell me if you like." His tone expressed interest but not the least disturbance.

"It comes from your uncle!" The girl gasped a little.

"My uncle!" Rutherford dropped the girl's hands. He was startled at last.

"Yes! * * * * * * Why did your uncle turn you out?"

"Why?" Rutherford laughed. "Oh! The usual reason," he answered. "He wanted me to marry a girl he had picked out for me, and I preferred to do my own picking, thank you. I told him I couldn't. He said I must. I said I wouldn't. He said he'd make me—that he'd made young fools do his bidding in the past and that he'd make me. * * * * * * Well, it ended with a break-up. But he hasn't made me yet, and he never will, now that I have met you?"

Helen smiled. "Don't be too sure," she cautioned. "Perhaps your uncle is nearer than you think to making you do what he wants. I—I am the girl."

"You?" Rutherford drew back a pace.

"Yes! I beg you to believe that I knew nothing of your uncle's plan. He appeared to put an absurdly high value on what I had done for him. He wanted to do things for me, but I refused to accept them. He said he'd make me accept. And in the end he did. Mother was ill; our home doctors said she couldn't live a year, and when Mr. Fox wrote to me to bring her to New York to see the great specialists and said that he would pay all expenses I couldn't refuse. When we got here he did so much for us that I was frightened. I was a working girl—I had to be after father died—and I guessed there might be a price to pay. But mother was getting better and I shut my eyes and went on. Then your uncle asked me to spend my days in this studio pretending to be an artist. Later he wanted me to spend the evenings in a yellow wig acting as cashier at Alexander's Lunchroom, and to get acquainted with a drayman who came in there every night—a drayman who had a birthmark over his right eye. I did this, too. Mother seemed almost well and happy and I would have done more than that to make and keep her so. Besides, it was not hard. I was cashier in a lunchroom in New Orleans when your uncle first saw me. I knew the work, and—oh, well, the first time I saw the drayman I thought I knew him and I was frightened. Later, I concluded that I was mistaken. But when you came in a few moments ago I knew that I had made no mistake."

"The old man's beaten us fairly," he said. "Let's go see him and own up." He held out his hands and after a while the girl took them.

Rutherford's eyes widened. "You knew that I was the drayman?" he asked. "How?"

The girl took his hand and led him to the mirror. "Look!" she ordered.

Rutherford looked. His face, reflected in the glass, bore a great purple birthmark over his right eye. He had painted it on preparatory to going to his work and had forgotten it.

Dismayed, he looked around to see Helen laughing; and after a moment he laughed, too.

HIS EXCESS WEIGHT GONE

Prominent Idaho Physician Says He Reduced 25 Pounds in 3 Months

Salmon, Idaho, Special.—Dr. W. C. Whitwell of this city, former candidate for Governor of this state, has let it become known that his remarkable experience in reducing 25 pounds in three months was due neither to dieting, medicine nor exercises. He says that a simple, invisible device weighing less than an ounce did it. This, when worn as directed, acts as an infallible flesh reducer and many prominent men and women have adopted this easy means of reducing superfluous flesh, and it is stated the inventor, D. O. Burns, of No. 17 West Thirty-eighth Street, New York, is sending these outfits on free trial to all who write him. Advertisement.

A Simple Inexpensive HOME REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM Send 2c for printed directions. Total cost of trial treatment need not exceed 50c. Frank W. Sebring, 1009 South Division Ave., Grand Rapids, Mich.

FREE We will send you this beautiful GOLD PLATED RING absolutely Free if you will send us the names of five of your neighbors and 10 cents to pay postage, etc. GEM CITY SUPPLY CO., Quincy, Illinois

SONG POEMS WANTED We will compose music to your verses and arrange for publication immediately. Write today. Dugdale Co., Studio 158, Washington, D. C.

PARALYSIS Conquered at Last. Write for Proof of Cures. Advice Free. DR. CHASE'S BLOOD AND NERVE TABLETS Does It. DR. CHASE, 224 North Tenth St., Philadelphia, Pa

CROWN YOUR TEETH with my gold fin'shed shells and fool your friends. A great fad; remarkable real decoist'e work. Slips on over teeth, easily adjusted or removed with ease. Thousands in use. Price 10c ea., 4 for 25c postpaid. A. A. Rockwell, 326 W. Madison St., Chicago

I Can Save YOUR TEETH

Let Me Tell You How FREE

If you have Pyorrhea or so-called Riggs disease, which causes terrible suffering, loss of teeth, loss of looks, loss of power, loss of health, I will give you relief without pain, quickly and easily. Aching Teeth, Sore and Diseased Gums, Foul Breath corrected by my simple, pleasant, home treatment.

Loose, twisted, aching, painful teeth, sore, swollen, bleeding, tender, receding gums, bad taste and bad odor in the mouth and general sore mouth conditions are all symptoms of terrible Pyorrhea known for years as because for ages no dentist could cure it or prevent its development. Today I can offer you a harmless home treatment that has had remarkable success and brought relief to thousands. The torture of the dental chair is unnecessary. The heavy expense of treatment by a dentist is unnecessary. I can save your teeth by my home treatment without a pang of pain. I will tell you how.

The Dread Mystery of Dentistry

Dr. F. W. Willard Chicago's prominent physician dentist, who has given the world a simple, harmless home treatment that conquers Pyorrhea—supposed to be an incurable disease.

My Book Sent FREE to All Sufferers

It Has Saved Thousands and CAN SAVE YOU

Don't neglect early symptoms of Pyorrhea. They are not always troublesome. Sometimes it is only manifested by bleeding or tenderness of the gums and teeth, cankers and sore spots on the gums, which shrink away from the teeth. In time the teeth become loose and twisted. It hurts to chew food. Pus then forms in the socket of the teeth, and this poisonous pus being swallowed causes stomach trouble, indigestion, and other dangerous ills. But even in this advanced state your teeth may be saved by my treatment and your mouth made healthy and normal again. Pulling the affected teeth won't save the other teeth. They are doomed once this dread disease attacks you, unless treated as I treat them with my painless home method. Don't hesitate; it costs you nothing to get this book. It will save you enormous expense, untold agony, perhaps your life.

Hundreds of Grateful Letters

"My gums quit bleeding the second or third day. Apparently new gums growing up next to my teeth. If I had known you 10 years ago, no doubt I would have all my teeth today."
Frank C. Griffen, Oakland, Kans.

"I am writing to tell you of the wonderful cure. My teeth are firm and feeling fine. I am so happy."
Mrs. A. A. Castle, 21 Haxzard St., Jamestown, N. Y.

Your method cured me as well as my mother of very sore mouths." Joe L. Douglas, Prairie Des Roches, Ill.

"I am completely cured and it's a marvel to me."
Stanley Wheeler, Ionia, Mich.

Fill Out this Coupon—or Write To-day

DR. F. W. WILLARD,
B-45, Powers Building, Chicago, Ill.

Dear Doctor: Please send me free of charge, postage paid and without obligation on my part, your New Book and full instructions regarding your Painless Home Treatment for the teeth.

Name.....

Address.....

GENUINE DIAMOND RING FREE Solid gold filled, guaranteed for 2 years, set with small genuine Diamond chip. To introduce our catalogue we will send this Ring on receipt of 12c to help pay adv. EAGLE JEWELRY CO., Dept. 22, East Boston, Mass.

MOTHERS Don't let your child suffer from Urinary Troubles when URI-STOP cures. Trial free. Describe case. I. BOETTGER CHEMICAL CO., PEORIA, ILL.

FITS I CURED MY DAUGHTER by simple discovery. Doctors gave her up. Will send FREE T. LEPSO, Island Ave., MILWAUKEE, WIS.

32 NICE POST CARDS different sorts, and a Good Magazine for one year. The WHOLE THING for only ten cents. ROBERTS & CO., 526 MADISON ST., CHICAGO

Asthma Prompt relief. Remedy Guaranteed. Trial treatment mailed free. Dr. Kinsman, Box 618, Augusta, Me.

CANCERS We Guarantee to remove CANCERS or no pay. Health Herald FREE. Address, Dr. S. A. Boynton, & Co., Lawrence, Mass.

ECZEMA can be cured. A trial of our mild soothing treatment should convince. No matter how severe. Dare us to prove it. Stops that terrible itch instantly. Write BARRY CHEMICAL CO., DEPT. 20, 64 E. VAN BUREN ST., CHICAGO.

Big Valentine Package 10c

25 Valentine, Love and Frost Cards, 30 Good Luck Hearts, 30 Greeting Mottoes, 30 Lover's Seals, 30 Pennant Mottoes, 30 Love Mottoes, 75 Gummed Greeting Seals, 73 Love Verses and Toasts (material for 50 Valentines), all in bright colors, hearts, cupids, pretty girls, doves, bows and arrows, etc. Biggest and prettiest collection of Valentine Cards and Favors you ever saw. ALL post paid 10 cents—8 lots 25c. Address STAR CARD CO., 29 Clinton St., CHICAGO

BIG SURPRISE BOX Full of Presents FREE!

WE buy thousands of dollars' worth of premiums every year and carrying such a large stock at all times we naturally have a great many odds and ends left on our hands—not enough to make special offers on, yet a sufficient quantity to cause us a big loss unless disposed of in some manner. So, in order to close out at a sacrifice this large accumulation of premium merchandise which consists of Jewelry of all kinds, Rings, Brooches, Hatpins, etc., different kinds of Fancy Work, Crochet and Embroidery Outfits, German and Japanese Novelties and Musical Toys, Games, and a host of other articles too numerous to mention, we will upon receipt of Only One 15-Months Subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents send you a Surprise Box containing not less than six different premium gifts in one nice box by Parcel Post prepaid. We guarantee that you will be both pleased and delighted with what we send you, if not you have the privilege of sending everything back to us and we will send you by return mail your choice of any other premium offered for one subscription in our Premium List. Remember only one new 15-months subscription to COMFORT at 25 cents brings you this Box of Surprise Gifts—a variety of up-to-date, seasonable merchandise which might cost you quite a sum of money in any store. If you prefer you may send your own subscription or renewal or extension of your present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 5 cents additional (30 cents in all). But whichever offer you accept you should send your order in quick because this is a great odd lot bargain offer of remnants and our supply is limited. Don't delay but send in your order today.

Address COMFORT, Dept. C. S. Augusta, Maine.

Thousands Of Dollars In Cash Prizes!

Start NOW If You Want To Win YOUR Share Of The Prize Money Which We Will Distribute Among COMFORT'S Readers This Season. Contest Is Now On So GET BUSY!

EACH AND every month of the six months beginning with November 1914 and ending with April 1915 we shall award a series of Cash Prizes to those of our readers who send in the most 25-cent subscriptions to COMFORT during each month. At the close of the contest April 1915 we shall further distribute 44 Grand Cash Prizes ranging from $5.00 to $150.00 to the 44 contestants who send in the most subscriptions during the entire six months. Also we shall pay 525 Consolation Prizes of $1.00 each to women who enter the contest and fail to win a regular monthly prize. The prizes for each month will be paid on the 8th day of the month following and the names of the prize winners will be announced in COMFORT month by month. Read all about our surprisingly liberal prize offer explained below and enter now for this month's prizes.

You Cannot Lose—You Get Your Premiums Sure

From now on any club you send in will bring you a fine premium sure and may help win a Cash Prize for you also because the same clubs you get up for any of our premiums are also placed to your credit on the Monthly Cash Prizes and Grand Prizes too, if you request it. It only remains for you to send in enough subscriptions to win a Cash Prize any one month or each month for the six months. And remember that every Monthly Prize you win puts you just so much nearer one of the Grand Prizes to be awarded at the close of the contest April 1915. And you still get your regular club premiums just the same. All this money which you may easily win if you will but make the effort is extra and in addition to the premiums which you may select from our catalogue or any issue of COMFORT and which will be sent to you immediately upon receipt of every club you send in.

How Monthly Prizes Double

If you win a monthly prize one month we pay you at once; if you win any monthly prize the next month we pay you double the amount of your second month's prize, and we will continue to pay you double each successive month that you continue to win any monthly prize. The doubling begins with December.

How Monthly Prizes Thribble

If you win the same Monthly Prize three months in succession we pay you double the amount the second month and three times the amount the third month and we continue to pay you three times the amount each successive month that you continue to win the same monthly prize. If, however, you should win the first monthly prize each month for the whole six months, then we will pay you four times the amount of that prize the fourth month, five times the amount the fifth month and six times the amount the sixth month. The thribbling begins with January.

The Consolation Prizes

In addition to the regular Monthly Prizes we shall also in November award 75 Consolation Prizes of $1.00 each, and in the months of December, January, February and March 100 Consolation Prizes of $1.00 each and in April 50 Consolation Prizes of $1.00 each to such women entering the Monthly Contests of those months and failing to win as we think worthy of reward for their unsuccessful efforts. Remember however that these Consolation Prizes do not double or thribble like the Monthly Prizes.

Opening and Closing Dates

Each Monthly Contest (after November) opens on the first day of the month and ends at midnight of the last day of the same month. If you mail Subscriptions on the last day of a month they will be counted to your credit in the contest for that month, providing the postmark on the envelope shows it. This gives an equal opportunity to all of our readers who enter these contests no matter how far off they live. The monthly prizes, each month, are paid to those who send in the most 25-cent subscriptions to COMFORT during the particular month for which the prizes are offered, the first monthly prize for the largest number of subscriptions, the second Monthly Prize for the next largest number, and so on down the list for the month.

917 Cash Prizes In All!

EVERY ONE of the Cash Prizes offered in this contest will actually be paid to the men, women, boys and girls who enter and who send in a sufficient number of subscriptions to COMFORT before April 30, 1915. No partiality will be shown to any contestant. Every subscription sent in by you will, if you so desire, be placed to your credit on the Monthly Prizes and Grand Prizes also and whatever prize you win each month will be paid to you in money promptly at the end of the month in which you win it. And at the close of the contest if there is also a Grand Cash Prize coming to you it will be paid to you immediately after the closing date. There will be no unfair treatment, no waiting, no disappointments for you in this contest. You will be given a square deal first, last and all the time. But when sending your subscriptions be sure to say you want them entered to your credit on the cash prizes otherwise we will not know that you are in the contest. Following is a complete list of the prizes to be awarded:

NOVEMBER MONTHLY PRIZES

1st Prize,	$30	Next 3 Prizes,	$5 each
2nd Prize,	20	Next 4 Prizes,	3 each
3rd Prize,	10	Next 8 Prizes,	2 each

115 Prizes of $1.00 each.

DECEMBER MONTHLY PRIZES

1st Prize,	$30 or $60	3 Prizes,	$5 or $10 each
2nd Prize,	20 or 40	4 Prizes,	3 or 6 each
3rd Prize,	10 or 20	8 Prizes,	2 or 4 each

25 Prizes of $1.00 or $2.00 each.

JANUARY MONTHLY PRIZES

1st Prize,	$30 to $90	3 Prizes,	$5 to $15 each
2nd Prize,	20 to 60	4 Prizes,	3 to 9 each
3rd Prize,	10 to 30	8 Prizes,	2 to 6 each

25 Prizes of $1.00 to $3.00 Each

FEBRUARY, MARCH and APRIL PRIZES are the same as those for January except that the FIRST PRIZE is $30.00 to $120.00 for February, $30.00 to $150.00 for March and $30.00 to $180.00 for April as explained elsewhere on this page.

525 CONSOLATION PRIZES

November. - -	75 Prizes of $1.00 each
December. - -	100 Prizes of $1 00 each
January. - -	100 Prizes of $1.00 each
February. - -	100 Prizes of $1.00 each
March. - -	100 Prizes of $1.00 each
April. - - -	50 Prizes of $1.00 each

44 GRAND PRIZES

Capital Grand Prize,	$150	5th Grand Prize,	$35
2nd Grand Prize,	100	6th Grand Prize,	25
3rd Grand Prize,	75	7th Grand Prize,	15
4th Grand Prize,	50	4 Grand Prizes, each	10

33 Grand Prizes of $5.00 each, $165.00.

A Few Of The Many Prize Winners In Our Previous Contests!

E. WAGONER, Illinois,	$1,300.00	MRS. C. S. HARKNESS, Ohio,	30.00
ADA HUMPHREY, Kentucky,	850.00	MRS. L. J. HALLEY, Wash.	30.00
MACON A. GREEN, Tenn.,	620.00	MRS. LOUIS KOCHER, N. J.	30.00
JAS. R. McCREADY, Pa.,	350.00	LULU E. BLACKMAN, Ga.,	28.00
ALICE WINTERS, Ohio,	350.00	MRS. ROLLIE FORSHA, Pa.,	26.00
MRS. ALICE WARNER, Minn.,	202.00	MRS. AGNES GNESS, Tenn.,	25.00
MR. J. W. RULISON, Kans.,	187.00	M. G. CHRISTENSEN, Minn.,	24.00
SYBIL PHARIS, Ill.	185.00	S. R. HARKNESS, Mo.,	23.00
MRS. FRANCIS D'ARCY, Wash.,	157.00	MRS. MARY CROTHERS, Ill.	23.00
MRS. CLAUDE MILLER, Pa.,	151.00	SOPHIE SCHWEIR, N. Y.,	21.00
C. F. CLARK, N. Y.,	139.00	MRS. F. E. MULKEY, Ill.,	20.00
MRS. J. F. POULISEN, N. Y.,	122.00	D. W. ROWE, N. Y.	20.00
HENRY N. McCORD, Ga.,	110.00	EVA CLAIR MOON, N. Y.	18.00
FAIRLENA RILEY, Ky.,	103.00	MRS. RALPH DOOLITTLE, W. Va.,	17.00
ANNA MOELDERS, Ill.;	77.00	MRS. FREDA M. LOGAN, Pa.,	17.00
MRS. E. BUTLER Ill.,	71.00	JOS. L. WISMER, Pa.,	17.00
CREED B. MORRIS, W. Va.,	70.00	C. A. BROWN, Mich.,	17.00
MRS. L. E. McCARVER, N. C.	68.00	ELLEN LARZ, Minn.,	16.00
EDNA SNEAD, La.,	62.00	L. S. WHITMAN, Mass.,	15.00
S. V. CARPENTER, Wis.,	55.00	L. L. LEONARD, Ind.,	15.00
DOROTHY MILLER, S. C.,	46.00	MATILDA IHRK, Wis.,	15.00
HANNA BONFIELD, Can.,	43.00	MARY BERRY, W. Va.,	15.00
REV. LEVI ELLIOTT, Kans.,	37.00	RUDOLPH FISCHER, Pa.	15.00
LOUIS ASENBAUER, W. Va.,	36.00	JOHN HESS, Pa.	15.00
LAURA LINDSAY, Va.,	$33.00	MRS. MAGGIE McPHERSON, Wash.	15.00

Address Prize Contest Orders To Comfort Prize Dept., Augusta, Maine.

Prize Contest Entry Coupon

Date_____191

COMFORT PRIZE DEPARTMENT, Augusta Maine.

I enclose $ or cents to pay for the following list of subscribers or renewals to be credited to me in your Subscription Prize Contest. Send COMFORT to the following addresses:

NAME	POST OFFICE	Street, Box or R. F. D.	STATE	Whether RENEWAL or for 15 Mo	2 Yrs.	SUB- 3 Yrs.	AMOUNT

Send me as my Club Premium_____

Name_____P. O._____St., Box or R.F.D._____State_____

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:—15-months subscription 25 Cents; 3-years 50 Cents; 2-years RENEWAL subscription by OLD SUBSCRIBERS, 30 Cents. 50 Cents a year in Canada.

How The Grand Prizes Are to be Awarded

Promptly at the close of the contest April 30, 1915 we shall also award 44 Grand Prizes as published elsewhere on this page. The Capital Grand Prize of $150.00 will go to the contestant who sends in the largest number of 25-cent subscriptions from the first day of October 1914 to the last day of next April. The second Grand Prize of $100 will go to the contestant who sends in the next largest number and so on. Remember these Grand Prizes come on top of the Monthly Prizes and the premiums that you are sure of anyway. Please bear in mind that you do not have to stay in the contest the entire six months in order to win a Grand Cash Prize. In addition to your Monthly Prize you may also win a Grand Prize in a single month—the first month, last month or any other month. Several contestants have done this in our previous contests.

Small Clubs Win The Prizes

Remember that small clubs win the Cash Prizes in these contests. Contrary to what you may have believed and what some people may try to tell you, you don't have to send in big clubs and lots of clubs in order to win the Monthly Prizes and perhaps a Grand Prize also in addition to your regular club premiums. Lots of people in our last year's contest carried off prizes month after month with clubs as small as 15 subscriptions, 20 subscriptions and so on up to 25 subscriptions. You are just as likely to be as fortunate in this contest, but of course you realize that the more subscriptions you send in each month, the better will be your chances.

You May win as Much as $780

The contestant who wins the first Monthly Prize each month for the entire six months will of course also win the Capital Grand Prize of $150.00 thereby winning a total of $780.00. To this fortunate contestant we will pay $30.00 for November, $60.00 for December, $90.00 for January, $120 for February, $150 for March and $180 for April which amounts to $630 and this added to the Capital Grand Prize of $150 makes the splendid sum of $780.

Rules and Conditions

1. Send subscription clubs, large or small, as often as you like. Name the club premiums you want.
2. In mailing subscriptions intended for the prize competition, be sure to address them to COMFORT Prize Department, Augusta, Maine, or we shall not know they are for the prize contest.
3. Subscriptions mailed on last day of a month will be counted into that month's contest provided the postmark on the envelope shows it. This makes it fair for all, no matter how far off they live.
4. The prizes will be awarded on the basis of fifteen-month subscriptions, but other subscriptions will be accepted and counted in this prize contest as follows: A 50-cent three-year subscription equals two fifteen-month subscriptions. One two-year renewal equals one fifteen-month subscription. So send in either kind of COMFORT subscriptions or renewals and they will all count.
5. In case of a tie, the prize or prizes for which contestants are tied will be divided equally between them. Thus, if two are tied for first prize, we shall add first and second prizes together and give half of the total to each, and double the share of either contestant entitled to double.

Mail The Coupon With A Small Club

You will earn a fine premium and you may start a Cash Prize your way also simply by sending us the coupon printed at the left along with two or more subscriptions to COMFORT. Then follow up your first club with another club as soon as possible. We will send you the premiums which you select from any issue of COMFORT or from our regular catalogue just as fast as you send in your clubs. They alone will more than pay you for your trouble. But remember that you may also win a Cash Prize every month. Start a club today. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose. You cannot possibly lose because you are SURE to get a premium anyway for every club you send in. Start now and win a January prize and a Grand Prize too.

Engraved Gold Bracelet

THIS Round Bracelet with artistic engraving and unique Spring Fastening is the most attractive pattern we have seen this season. Not too large but large enough and as it is perfectly round, it fits well and becomes all ages and wears like Solid Gold. There is a demand for bracelets of enormous size, but this style is medium large and nearly three inches in diameter; we consider it a beautiful pattern. This bracelet is the very latest style so you will want one while fashionable, and as we guarantee fit and wear, you need not hesitate to order.

Special Offer: For one new 15-months subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents or for your own subscription or renewal or extension of your present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents extra (35 cents in all) we will send you this Bracelet free by parcel post prepaid.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

COMB AND BRUSH SET

Malachite Green Finish all Boxed in Fitted Green Case Safely Delivered Free by Parcel Post

THERE has been no Premium offer in years that has been so pleasing to our friends as this new Comb and Brush Set. The great beauty of this latest style dark green or Malachite finish on the back of brush with the SILVERINE shield for engraving initial or monogram has made this set one of the best as a present for birthday, wedding or any special occasion. The brush is nine inches long over 2 1-2 inches wide with splendid firm white bristles well fastened and should last for years. The Comb is black, seven inches long and one & one half inches wide with coarse and fine teeth.

A Remarkable Offer: For a club of only two 15-months subscribers to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send this Set No. 262 Free as a Premium for your work.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Dress or Coat Collar

THE new style high hair dressing demands that the collars stand very high at the back to cover the long neck line and roll away in the front. We illustrate such a collar here and it is one of the most popular designs because it is so simple and requires very little time and labor to embroider. The material is fine lawn and there is enough of it so that it can be made double as it should be to lend the required stiffness. In making this collar you should use the solid and outline stitch. We include free a sufficient quantity of white embroidery cotton for working. You can secure this collar by accepting one of the following offers.

Offer No. 714 A. For one new 15-month subscription to COMFORT at 25 cents, we will send you this collar with embroidery cotton to work either free and postpaid.

Offer No. 714 B. For your own subscription, or renewal or extension of your present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all) you get this collar and embroidery cotton free and postpaid. Premium No. 714.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Wizard Water Pistol

Given For One Subscription

TO all appearances this is a regular, full size, "six shooter" but instead of shooting the deadly bullet it squirts a solid stream of water 30 feet straight to the mark you aim it at. To load this pistol you stick the muzzle into water and pull the trigger three or four times. After it is loaded you discharge it by pulling the trigger just the same as you would an ordinary revolver. After it is loaded it is good for ten shots (of water) before it is necessary to load it again. Boys and girls can have loads of fun with this water pistol by giving their friends surprise "shower baths" and as it shoots nothing but water it is of course perfectly harmless to the smallest child. The "Wizard" is shaped exactly like a regular revolver; is 5 inches long, handsomely nickel plated and beautifully finished. You can obtain this water pistol free upon the terms of the following special offers:

Offer No. 716 A. For one new 15-month subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents, we will send you the Wizard water pistol free by Parcel Post prepaid.

Offer No. 716 B. For your own subscription, or renewal or extension of your present subscription, to COMFORT for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all), we will send you the Wizard Water Pistol free and prepaid. Premium No. 716. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

European War Stops Importation Of Dolls

And Our Stock Is Nearly Exhausted!

Send For YOUR Doll NOW

It Is Your Last Chance To Get A Dressed Doll FREE!

No More Dolls After This Lot Is Gone !!!!

Don't Put Off Getting Up Your Club. We Have Less Than Three Thousand Dolls On Hand.

WE feel that it is our duty to inform all COMFORT readers that owing to the great European conflict there is going to be a doll famine in this country within the next few weeks. No dolls have been imported into the United States since the European War began and no dolls can be imported until the war is over and no one knows when that will be. What few dolls there are in the stores in this country today will be sold for high prices that are beyond the reach of the ordinary wage earner. It is going to be a doll-less Christmas for thousands of little tots this year and realizing this fact we think it best to admit that we have on hand but a limited quantity of the big, beautiful talking and sleeping dolls which we imported from Germany before the war broke out and only those of our readers who send in their club orders at once will make sure of getting one of these dolls before our stock is completely exhausted. This is the same doll which has delighted thousands of little girls in homes where COMFORT goes—a handsome, fully dressed, life size, talking and sleeping doll, nearly a foot and a half tall with a beautiful picture hat of latest style, handsome lace-and-ribbon trimmed gown and complete wardrobe of pretty lace-trimmed underwear, elegant openwork stockings and dainty low shoes with bright, shiny buckles. She says "Papa" and "Mamma" just as plain as can be, closes her blue eyes and goes to sleep when you lay her down and is wide awake again the minute you pick her up. Her cheeks are like red rosies, her beautiful golden hair hangs in long clustering curls and she shows her pearly white teeth in one of the prettiest smiles you ever saw. She can be dressed and undressed as often as you wish and is so well made with fine bisque head and strong body that she cannot possibly become broken if you take good care of her. Remember we have only a limited quantity of these dolls on hand—less than three thousand in fact—and that while they last it is going to be a case of first come, first served. If you put this off you may have to buy a doll and pay a war price for it; indeed, the stock in the stores may be completely sold out before you get around to it, so to be on the safe side you had better send in your club right away. Following is our free offer. Read it and start getting up your club today.

Club Offer. For a club of only six 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or three 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you free by Parcel Post prepaid this beautiful fully dressed, talking and sleeping doll, carefully packed in a strong box so that she positively will not get broken. Premium No. 621.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Genuine Gold-Filled Ladies' Rings!

WE show here six of the latest styles in ladies' and girls' rings. They are not solid gold rings but they are genuine gold filled so that they are just as handsome and will wear just as well as if they were solid gold. They are beautifully made and finished and set with imt. stones so exquisitely cut and mounted that only an expert can distinguish them from the real gems which would cost from $5.00 to $25.00. Remember that these are not cheap "electro-plated" rings which always look brassy after you wear them a little while. They are filled with enough real gold to give them genuine wearing qualities, and being fashioned in style and design to exactly correspond with the latest styles of expensive solid gold rings not one person in a thousand will realize that you are wearing anything but the solid gold article. Please read the following descriptions then you can easily tell which one of these beautiful rings you prefer to have us send you as a gift.

No. 52005

No. 52005. A very elaborate genuine gold-filled chased design set with one beautiful Imt. Sapphire and two sparkling Brilliants.

No. 51429

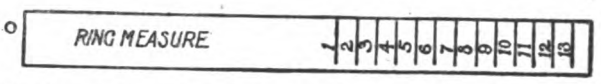
No. 51429. Genuine gold filled, set with beautiful Imt. Amethyst.

No. 52028

No. 52028. Genuine gold filled, handsomely engraved, set with finest cut Imt. Ruby.

No. 52137. The new popular Cameo ring, genuine gold filled with handsome chased design on either side of mounting.

No. 52137



No. 51726. Genuine gold filled, set with a single brilliant Rhinestone with beautiful scroll design on either side of mounting.

No. 51723. A Round Signet ring gold filled, chased and beautifully engraved.

No. 51726

BE SURE TO SEND YOUR RING SIZE!

By using the above diagram you can tell exactly what size ring you wear if you will follow these directions: Put a stiff piece of paper around the second joint on your ring finger. Cut the paper off so that when drawn tight around your finger the ends exactly meet. Then lay the paper flat on the diagram, one end at the line O and the other end will indicate correct size. By following these instructions your ring will be a perfect fit.

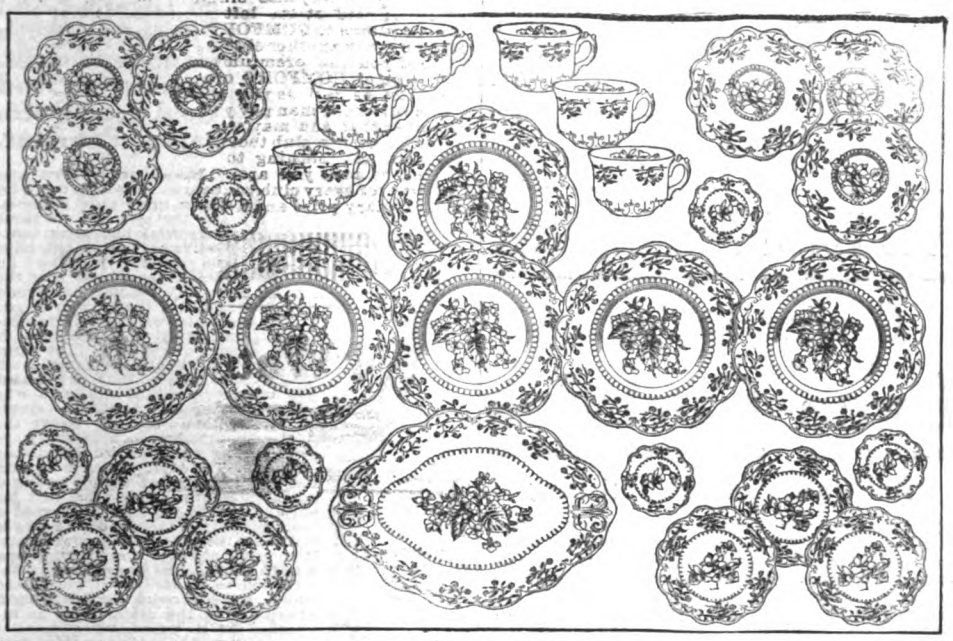
No. 51723

Free Offer! By buying a large quantity of these rings direct from the manufacturers we did not have to pay two or three middlemen's profits but secured them at the factory price and this enables us to make a great offer that none of our readers can afford to overlook. Send us only two 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or one 3-year subscription (not your own) at 50 cents and we will send you FREE AND POSTPAID your choice of any one ring illustrated and described above. Remember our guarantee that these rings are genuine gold filled and that they will wear indefinitely and give splendid satisfaction. Do not forget to specify by number the ring or rings you want.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Beautiful Tapestry Table Cover

NEARLY ONE YARD SQUARE



Given to You For 2 Subscriptions

This beautiful, fringed Tapestry Table Cover is nearly one yard square which is a size large enough for any stand or small table and is very elaborately made up in different handsome colors on an interwoven background which is of a color that harmonizes with the fringe which extends entirely around the cover. Add one or more of these beautiful colored covers to the furnishings of any room in your house and it will enliven and cheer up the whole atmosphere of your home. They are just as durable as they are handsome and taken altogether are something any woman should be pleased to own and display. We will send you this large handsome Table Cover, exactly as described if you will accept the following

Club Offer. For a club of only two 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this beautiful Tapestry Table Cover free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 664.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

31-Piece Princess Violet Dinner Set

Free And Express Prepaid For A Club Of 12

THIS splendid set of dishes is full size for family use and consists of 6 Plates, 6 Cups, 6 Saucers, 6 Cerial or Fruit Dishes, 6 Individual Butters and large Meat Platter all handsomely decorated with clusters of purple wood violets surrounded with rich green foliage and bordered with lovely tracings of gold. Unlike the ordinary dishes that are usually offered as premiums, every piece in this magnificent set is (with the exception of the decorations) snowy white in color, dainty in design, light in weight and finish with a Havfland glaze which gives it that smooth, velvety appearance so much admired by every woman. The decorations will last a lifetime because being burned into the ware and underneath the glaze it positively will not wash, rub or wear off. Our illustration does not give you any idea of the real beauty of these dishes because it fails to show up the pleasing color combination of purple, green and gold which is so finely set off by the flawless white of the ware itself. This is by far the handsomest, daintiest dinner set we have ever offered to COMFORT readers and we are positive that it will more than please every woman who secures one of them on the terms of our very liberal offer. No matter where you live, we will ship you this set direct from the pottery in Ohio by express, all charges prepaid and guaranteed against breakage. If you find any piece or pieces cracked or broken when you receive your set, we will send you free and prepaid new pieces in their place so you may feel sure of owning the set complete and best of all without a cent of expense.

OUR FREE OFFER For a club of only twelve 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or six 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you this handsome 31-Piece Violet Decorated Dinner Set carefully packed to prevent breakage, by express all charges prepaid. Premium No. 461.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

PREMIUM No. 427.

Soft Warm Bed Blankets

Sent Prepaid For A Club Of Six

THIS IS an offer which no good housewife can afford to overlook. It is your opportunity to secure as many large comfortable bed blankets as you may need without a cent of expense. These fine double blankets are 72 inches long and 55 inches wide, extremely well made and finely finished. They are pure white in color and come with either blue or pink borders. Please notice that they are large enough for any standard size bed being of sufficient length to come up well on the pillow and wide enough so that they may be snugly tucked in at the sides. This is in reality one of the best bargains in a premium we have ever offered on account of the fact that we have bought a large quantity of these blankets direct from the mill at a special low price and therefore are enabled to offer them to our readers for a very small club of subscriptions. When you think of this big warm blanket on your bed or lying on a closet shelf ready for use when wanted, we believe that you will want to start a club at once for the sake of securing one or more of them free of all cost to you. We will gladly send you one or more of these splendid blankets upon the terms of the following

Club Offer. For a club of only six 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or three 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you one of these large, double bed blankets free by Parcel Post prepaid. You may have your choice of either blue or pink border.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

EBONIZED BRUSH, COMB AND MIRROR SET

THREE ARTICLES IN BOX

Latest Pattern Silverine Shields for Monogram. Beveled Mirror and Fitted Case

Delivered Free by Parcel Post Paid foronly Five Subs. to COMFORT.

There does not live a girl whose heart would not fairly jump with joy at the sight of this swell dull black finished set. A man's heart is pleased, realizing well the beauty of work in the brush with its fine white bristles, the excellent fitted beveled mirror and fine hand made comb. A woman is still a girl, only grown up, and to think of really owning this set seems in many cases the realization of some fairy's dream.

The brush is nine inches long, 2½ wide, firmly set white bristles, with shield of Silverine Mirror, is eight and one half inches long, 4½ inches wide on back, with a four-inch clear, finely beveled glass set with rich Ebonyoid frame. Comb is seven inches long, 1½ inches wide, with fine and coarse teeth. We will guarantee that there is not one person in one hundred who can tell this set from real $12.00 Ebony, so closely has the rich, black, dull finish been represented. This is a really excellent Premium No. 260.

New Offer: For only five 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send this Set Free as a premium by Parcel Post.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Big Package Silk and Satin REMNANTS FREE!

Large Piece of Plush and 5 Skeins Embroidery Silk

Remnants of real silk, stamped satin and beautiful plush in all shapes and all colors of the rainbow. For years COMFORT has made this offer to its thousands of friends and subscribers and this year we can do more for you than ever before because the factories have on hand an enormous accumulation of these rich goods and in order to get rid of them are willing to sell them to us for little or nothing. We now have a whole room full of these beautiful pieces of silk and satin which are of good size and carefully trimmed and just what you need for making up beautiful quilts, tidies, pillow tops and all kinds of "crazy patchwork." Remember these remnants are not the small, insignificant, worthless pieces that are advertised as "a rare bargain" by irresponsible firms, but large, well-shaped pieces of fresh, new silk and satin in all the beautiful colors which were in style this season and we send you a big package containing from one hundred to two hundred pieces besides a large, elegant piece of plush and 5 skeins handsome embroidery silk of different bright colors. If you order at once we will also send you, in addition to everything else, an Instruction Book with eight full-page illustrations showing how to ornament seams of crazy patchwork and other work where fancy stitches are used. It tells you how to put pieces of patchwork together to get the best effect, how to cover up seams with fancy stitches, how to join the edges, etc. This book illustrates over one hundred and fifty of these besides containing full and explicit directions for working the Outline and Kensington Stitch, Arrasene and Chenille embroidery, ribbon work, plush or tufted stitch also directions for Kensington painting. Remember you get one big lot of these Silk and Satin Remnants (over 100 pieces), 5 skeins handsome Embroidery Silk of different colors, one big piece of Plush, and an Instruction Book, as above described, all sent to you free by Parcel Post prepaid if you will accept the following special

Club Offer: For a club of only two 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you one big package of Silk and Satin Remnants, Plush, Embroidery Silk and Instruction Book, as described above, free by Parcel post prepaid. For a club of three we will send you two packages, or five packages for a club of four.

SPECIAL: If you wish you may send in your own subscription, renewal or extension of your present subscription for 12 months at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all) and receive one package of these Remnants free. Premium No. 556.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Wonderful New Stereoscope AND 100 ENTERTAINING EXCITING VIEWS

Lions, Tigers, Bears and all kinds of Wild Animals, Home Scenes, Domestic Pets and Happy Childhood Days.

Here is something as good as a circus for the children the year round—an indestructible, new style, Stereoscope made of all metal with powerful, magnifying lens, and with it we give you free a big collection of 100 Views of home scenes, domestic pets, farm scenes, all kinds of trained and wild animals, hunting scenes, views from the Arctic and tropical countries, and happy childhood scenes—the biggest and finest assortment of the most delightful and entertaining stereoscopic views for children ever gotten out. Boys and girls need not be obliged to hunt for something to occupy their active minds indoors with one of these Scopes at hand because it will give them a never-ending, joyful entertainment keeping them amused, instructed and out of mischief. Aside from the pleasure they will derive from the fifty beautiful scenes of home life, the fifty exciting animal views will furnish them with a regular circus, the lions, tigers, bears, buffalo, and all kinds of wild and savage animals as well as horses, dogs, cats and other domestic animals standing out real and life-like when looked at through this Scope. Any boy or girl would be delighted to have one of these wonderful Stereoscopes together with the big collection of 100 entertaining and exciting Views that come with it and knowing this we have purchased a large quantity of them direct from the factory and because we bought so many we got them at a price low enough to enable us to give them away on the terms of the following

FREE OFFER. Send us only one new 15-months subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents, or your own subscription, or renewal or extension of your present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all) and you will receive by Parcel Post prepaid this fine Stereoscope complete with the 100 Views exactly as described above. Premium No. 646.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

TWO YARD LONG SILK MUSLIN SCARF

A dainty shoulder throw and head covering for Summer, or for evening wear the year round. For trimming Summer Hats there is nothing so practical or so easily and attractively arranged. Each Scarf is two yards long and 24 inches wide, with deep hemstitched edge, and we have them in white, black, light blue and light pink.

For every-day use such a scarf is indispensable and for car or boat riding, pleasure or otherwise one or more of these scarfs will be found useful. Being ready to wear, the saving of time in hemstitching is worth something to every woman, and the busy Mothers will find them so convenient for a quick method of trimming the children's hats.

In the cities the stores all show these scarfs and everyone is wearing them.

Heretofore retailed for one dollar, while we give one for only two subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each for 15 months

Premium No. 331.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine

Chatelaine Watch

Given for a Club of Eight

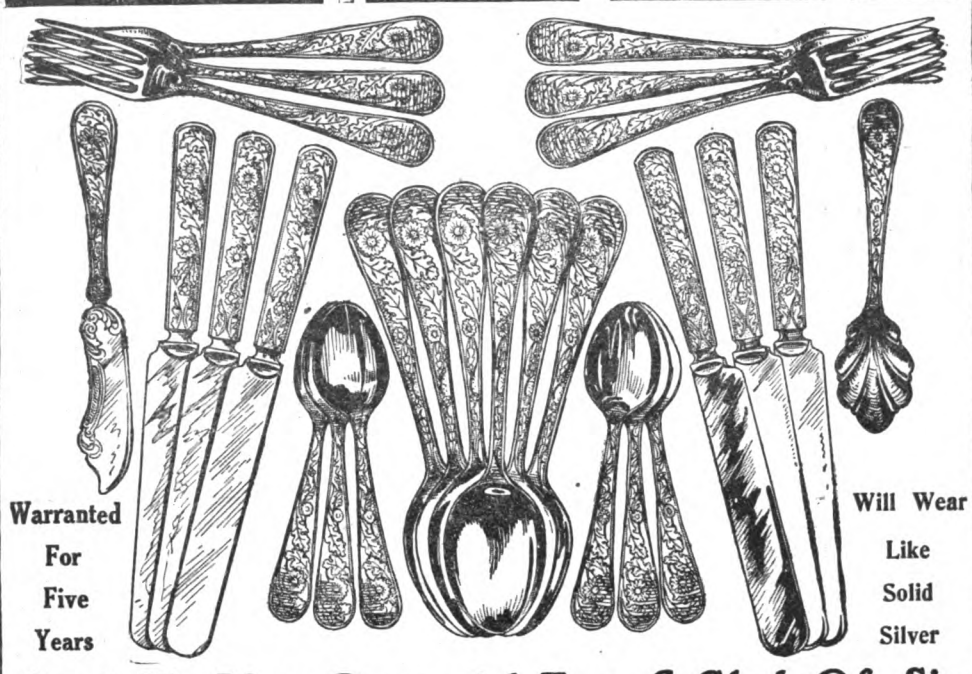
THIS beautiful little Chatelaine Watch with Fleur-de-Lis Pin is one of the finest premiums we have to offer. For any woman or girl it is the queen of all gifts. The watch is about the size of illustration, a thin model with a handsome silver finished dust proof case and pure white dial with Arabic numerals. It is a guaranteed timekeeper being fitted with one of the best American movements, stem wind and set. With this dainty little timepiece we also give you the always popular "Fleur-de-Lis" pin with which to fasten the watch to the dress in true chatelaine style and both Watch and pin will come to you in a handsome black leatherette, satin lined case. You can have this chatelaine watch with pin and case complete free by taking advantage of the following

Club Offer. For a club of only eight 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or four 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you this handsome chatelaine watch with pin and case free by Parcel Post prepaid. (Premium No. 359.)

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Me.

French Pearl Pendant With Chain

Prem. No. 7202



Given For A Club Of Two

FRENCH Pearl Pendants and Chains (also called "Lavallieres") are always in style and many new handsome designs are being worn this season. One of the prettiest designs we have yet seen is shown in the accompanying illustration. The pendant is made up entirely of a large number of tiny French pearls and set with either four Emeralds or four Rubies whichever you prefer. The gold-plated chain is 15 inches long and fastens with a reliable safety catch. We will give you this handsome Lavalliere free upon the terms of the following

CLUB OFFER For a club of two 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this stylish French Pearl Pendant and Chain free by Parcel Post prepaid. When ordering be sure to say whether you want emerald or ruby setting. Premium No. 7202.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

26-Piece Daisy Silver Set

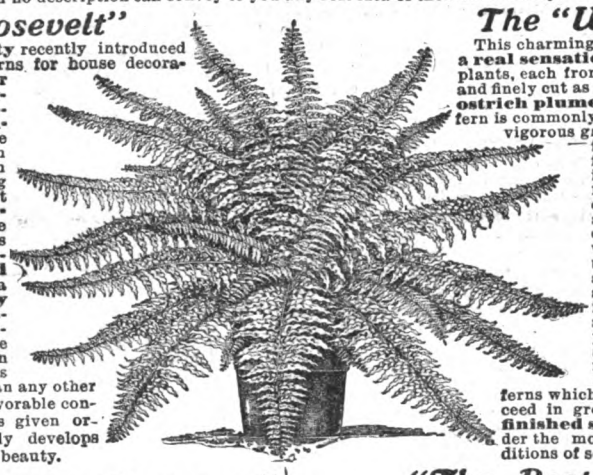
Warranted For Five Years

Will Wear Like Solid Silver

Sent To You Prepaid For A Club Of Six

WE have in the past made many fine premium offers of silverware to readers of COMFORT, but this is the first time we have ever been able to offer a complete silver set in return for such a small club of subscriptions. And please don't think because we are giving away this splendid set on such liberal terms that it is the ordinary cheap silverware which is plated on a brass base and consequently changes color and has that "brassy" look just as soon as the plating wears off. This Set which we offer you here is silver plated on a white metal base therefore each and every piece is the same color all the way through and will never show signs of tarnish or wear, even after years of constant use. As shown in the above illustration there are 26 pieces in this set—6 Knives, 6 Forks, 6 Teaspoons, 6 Tablespoons, Sugar Shell and Butter Knife. Each piece is full regulation size for family use the handles are handsomely embossed and decorated with the beautiful Daisy design which is now so popular and the blades of the knives and bowls of the teaspoons and tablespoons are perfectly plain and bright polished. It is only because we buy this set in large quantities direct from the factory that we are able to secure it at a price that enables us to offer it as a premium for so few subscriptions. It is by far the greatest value we have ever offered, in fact we are so sure that it will please and satisfy all who accept our offer we are going to guarantee every Set sent out for a period of five years. We will send this beautiful 26-Piece Daisy Silver Set exactly as illustrated and described to any address upon the terms of the following special

Club Offer. For a club of six 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or three 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, you will receive this 26-Piece Daisy Silver Set Free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 680. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.



FREE Four Beautiful Ferns

EVERY ONE GUARANTEED TO GROW

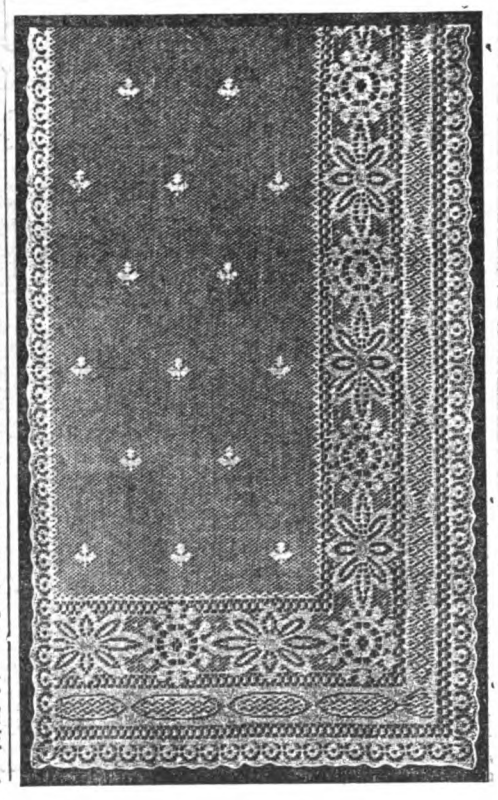
THERE is nothing that will make your home more bright and cheerful especially through the long winter months to come than beautiful charming ferns and the superb collection we offer you here comprises four of the handsomest, most popular varieties ever grown for house culture. They will thrive beautifully in any dwelling room near a window and require almost no attention except a little sprinkling of water now and then. The same growers who have in the past furnished COMFORT'S famous rose collections are to supply us with these ferns each one of which is guaranteed to be absolutely free from all injurious insects or diseases which destroy foliage plants of this type, and they will be packed carefully and mailed to you by Parcel Post so that you will be sure to receive them in just as good condition as though they were fresh from the greenhouse. Owing to lack of space we are able to illustrate here only one variety. "The Roosevelt," but remember you get all four ferns free on this offer each one of which we will briefly describe to you as follows, although no description can convey to you any real idea of their rare beauty.

The "Roosevelt"

This is a new variety recently introduced and one of the finest ferns for house decorative purposes ever grown, of compact vigorous growing habit producing in great numbers wide massive fronds of good length beautifully tapered from base to tip and drooping gracefully over the pot hiding it completely from view. The pinnæ, or leaves, of this magnificent fern are distinctively undulated giving the whole plant a most beautiful wavy appearance. The "Roosevelt" has without exception proved to be the strongest growing fern ever produced and seems to withstand better than any other variety the most unfavorable conditions, while if it is given ordinary care it quickly develops into a specimen of rare beauty.

The "Whitmani"

This charming creation has caused a real sensation among lovers of plants, each frond being as delicate and finely cut as the most perfect ostrich plume by which name this fern is commonly known. It is a very vigorous grower constantly unfolding new fronds from six to eight inches wide of fine feathery foliage entirely distinct from any other variety quickly growing to a width of from ten to twelve inches and of such good substantial texture that it withstands the abuse to which house plants are sometimes subjected. The "Whitmani" is one of the few feathery foliage ferns which everyone can succeed in growing to a superb finished specimen even under the most unfavorable conditions of soil and treatment.



The "Asparagus Plumosus"

There is always a place in every home for this magnificent fern for it is one which really adapts itself to all conditions making the most rapid and vigorous growth with the least care and attention. Its bright, rich green fronds are as fine and delicate as the most beautiful lace by reason of which it is sometimes given the name "lace fern." The rapid sturdy growth of this fern combined with its exquisite lacy foliage makes a plant of such airy grace and value as to be desired by everyone.

"The Boston"

This fern is one of the oldest and best known varieties grown and in the long years of its growth has proved well worthy of a place in every home. It is known by some as the "Fountain Fern" which name is derived from its graceful drooping habit of growth and until the recent production of the "Roosevelt Fern" was acknowledged the finest of its type. It is a very rapid grower producing fronds frequently measuring from six to eight feet long and its freedom of growth without special care has made this fern extremely popular with all who admire beautiful house plants.

CLUB OFFER. For a club of only two 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you by Parcel Post prepaid the above described collection of four beautiful ferns each one of them a strong, healthy, well rooted plant, ready to pot and guaranteed to grow and develop into a fine specimen beauty. Premium No. 611. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Free For 4 Subscriptions!

Genuine Nottingham

Lace Curtains

Full Width And Nine Feet Long

This is a brand new offer and much more liberal than our previous offers of Lace Curtains because we are now enabled to buy the genuine Nottingham Lace Curtains direct from the mills cheaper than ever before in the history of our business. The curtains we now offer you are full width and three yards long which is large enough for the largest window, and are designed after the latest up-to-date pattern, with handsome wide border and firm well-finished edge. These beautiful curtains are suited to any room in your house whether it be parlor, sitting-room or chamber and there is an air of elegance and refinement about them which will dress up any room in your house no matter how richly furnished it may be We guarantee that every woman who accepts this offer will be proud of these curtains—proud of their real beauty and value and proud of the fact that she secured them without paying out one cent of money. We are now giving away these curtains free upon the terms of the following

CLUB OFFER. For a club of only four 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or two 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you one pair of these curtains free by Parcel Post prepaid. Or we will send you two pair for a club of seven 15-months subscriptions, or three pair for a club of ten. Premium No. 409.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Six Rogers' Silver Spoons

Warranted to Wear Ten Years

Given for Club of Four Subscribers

Guaranteed each and every one to be Strictly Pure A 1 Brand made by the famous Wm. A. Rogers and every teaspoon is so stamped on back.

This silverware comes in the popular Grape or Vintage Pattern, which is the very latest and prettiest design in Silverware. The picture hardly shows you the great beauty of the dainty, bright, clean clusters of Ripe Grapes or the finely executed leaves growing on the delicate vine seen on the front and back of every spoon. Rogers' Silverware has a world-wide reputation. We can hardly add more. These A 1 Rogers' teaspoons are guaranteed to be full standard extra plate upon the finest quality of 18% nickel silver base, and with ordinary care will last ten years. Some families are using Rogers' ware twice this time.

Everybody loves new, bright silverware. Nobody ever had too much, especially of Wm. A. Rogers' manufacture, as the expense has always and is now, too high, but COMFORT'S plan for sub premium workers make it possible to not only own these six Rogers' teaspoons free but the entire set of table spoons, dessert spoons, knives and forks, sugar shell and butter knife, all in the same delightful grape or vintage pattern to match, without costing you really a penny.

First send in your four subs to COMFORT at 25c each and receive this set of six Rogers' teaspoons by Parcel Post, then later earn the entire set of Rogers' Silverware to match the spoons. You can do it just as easily for only a few more COMFORT subscriptions as per new plan we will tell you about after you get the 6 spoons.

Prem. No. 386. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

FIVE-PIECE MANICURE SET

French Ivory Finish

For A Club Of Six

Premium No. 7016

THIS complete manicure set comes in a handsome white box which does not show in illustration. It consists of cuticle knife, nail file, cream jar, powder jar and buffer. Each piece is full size and has the popular Parisian Ivory finish. While this set is not as large as some manicure sets yet it contains all the necessary articles for the proper treatment and care of the finger nails. We know that every woman or girl who receives one of these sets will be highly pleased with it. We are giving it away as a premium on the terms of the following

CLUB OFFER. For a club of six 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or three 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you this handsome 5-piece Manicure Set in a dainty white box free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7016.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Austrian Bead Necklace

The Latest Imported Novelty In Necklaces

Hand Made From Strings Of Beautiful White Austrian Beads Woven Together And Finished With Handsome Imit. Amethyst And Gold Bead Decorated Pendant.

Bead necklaces are more fashionable than ever this season. For the last two or three years these handsome, inexpensive neck ornaments have been steadily growing in popular favor and now the style has become so firmly established that no lady or girl can really call herself "up-to-date" in dress unless she is wearing one of them. The most beautiful necklaces come from Austria where they are hand made by skilled workmen who first string the beads in single strand then cleverly weave the strands together in different ways producing many varied handsome effects. The style shown here was the prettiest one we found among a dozen different samples submitted for our approval so we have purchased a large quantity of them and are going to distribute them free among our readers. It consists of three strands of pure white Austrian beads woven together so as to form a single strand which fastens with gold-plated clasp and in the center there is attached as a pendant a smaller double strand of beads decorated with a beautiful large imit. Amethyst, an imit. gold bead and a large pear-shaped bead at the extreme end. This necklace when unclasped is 15 inches in length while the lower part, or pendant, is 2½ inches in length. The real beauty of this handsome new necklace does not appear in our illustration but we hereby guarantee that every lady or girl who receives one from us on this offer will be more than delighted with it. Be sure to read the following free offer then send in your order today.

This Is "THE" Style This Season. Don't Fail To Send For One.

For One Subscription!

Send us only one new 15-months subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents or your own subscription, renewal or extension of present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all) and we will mail you free and postpaid this beautiful and stylish Austrian Bead Necklace exactly as above illustrated and described. Premium No. 679.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Ostrich Plumes

16 Inches Long And 6 Inches Wide

Positively Guaranteed as to Workmanship, Quality and Color

Given For A Club Of Six!

THESE beautiful Ostrich Plumes are of the highest quality and are guaranteed for brilliancy and permanence of color. They are just what every lady wants for the upright trimmings now in vogue as they have thick, strong flues and a large full, graceful, French head with the latest fashionable flat curl. Each plume is a full 16 inches in length and over 6 inches in width and made of the best African male stock, will last for years and always look well. We can furnish these plumes in colors of either Black or White and be sure to mention color wanted when ordering.

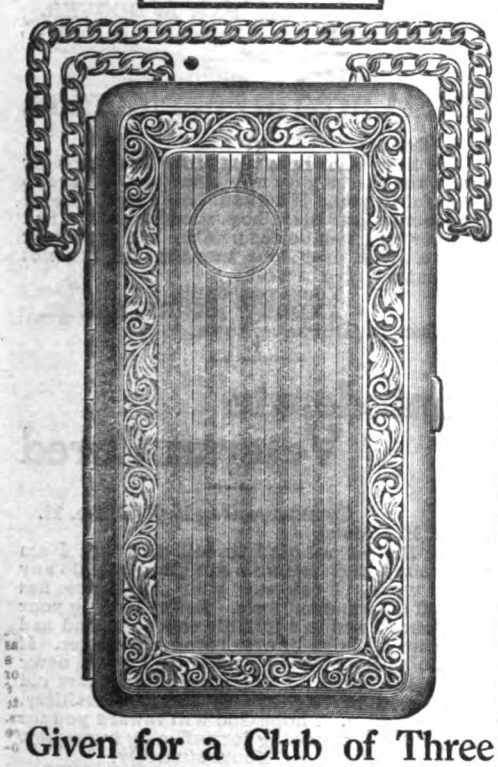
Club Offer. For a club of only six 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or three 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you one of these handsome Ostrich Plumes free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 698.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Girl's Waterproof Cape

A Great PROTECTOR From WIND and RAIN

Made of striped rubberized cloth with suitable lining, and the best feature of this cape is the hood. Girls going to school do not like to carry an umbrella, and this cape can be worn either in hot or cold weather. If in winter a sweater or coat can be worn underneath, and the child is not only dry but perfectly warm. There are two openings in the cape for the arms, but the garment is large enough so the books or packages can be carried underneath, which makes it much better than a Rain Coat. The shoulders are shaped so as to give it a very attractive look. This cape comes in a very dark drab color with lighter drab stripes. They are so pretty any girl will be proud to wear one. Sizes 6 to 14 years. When ordering better order it larger than necessary so to have it of sufficient size to go over a heavy coat or other garments. Boys can easily get up clubs and thus get one of these Rain Capes for their sisters. Girls like to get subscribers to COMFORT where they can so easily earn such a sensible premium so as to keep warm and dry during the rainy season. We are prepared to fill all orders promptly.



Special Club Offer:

For a club of only seven subscribers to COMFORT at 25 cents each for 15 months, we will send you by Parcel Post one of these serviceable Rain Capes. Premium No. 529.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

The Latest Vanity Case

Premium No. 711

Given for a Club of Three

EVERY lady and girl should have one of these handsome German Silver Vanity Cases because it is the latest style and design having a thin Model case like that of a thin model watch. As shown in illustration the outside of the case is beautifully Embossed and if you want to you can have your jeweller engrave your Monogram initials in the little round panel which is perfectly plain and bright polished. This case is very light, weighing a little over over 3 ounces but it is of good size being 4½ inches long and 2½ inches wide with a 12-inch chain. On the inside of the case on one side is a place for visiting cards, bills, postage stamps, etc., etc., and on the other side is a powder puff in a little compartment which closes with a hinged cover, a good sized mirror, a compartment for nickels and another one for dimes. This new case is one of the prettiest designs we have yet seen so we have bought a quantity of them to give away among COMFORT readers. We will send you one of them if you will accept the following

Club Offer. For a club of only three 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you this Vanity Case free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 711.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Look At Me!

I Have Real Eye-Lashes!

I Go To Sleep Like a Real BABY!

MY ARMS and LEGS are JOINTED!

Whose Little Girl Wants ME?

I Am The Cutest Sweetest Baby Doll In Toyland And You Can Have Me FREE!

YES, this beautiful, curly-haired doll is free to any little girl and on such liberal terms that we expect to give away thousands of them during the next few months. Don't think she is anywhere near as small as she looks to be in the picture for she stands nearly a foot and a quarter high. She has a real kid body and her beautiful head is almost indestructible because it is made of bisque. You can make her stand up or sit down in a chair, or bend over or assume all sorts of natural positions because her arms are jointed at shoulder and elbow and her legs at hip and knee. When you lie her down she closes her eyes and goes to sleep and when you pick her up she is wide awake again. Her beautiful brown hair hangs in luxuriant curls, her eyes are blue as the sky, she has real eyelashes—not the "make-believe" kind—and taken altogether she is certainly the cutest and sweetest baby doll in all toyland. With exception of her handsome black openwork lace stockings and cunning little slippers with bow and buckle she comes to you undressed so that you can make your own dresses for her and dress and undress her to your heart's content. Fathers and Mothers—just look at this beautiful doll in the picture as she stands smiling with arms outstretched waiting for someone to pick her up, hug her, kiss her and put on her gay little dress! Don't you think your little girl would just love to have her for her own? We will send her to you free packed in a strong box so she cannot possibly get broken if you will accept the terms of the following special offer.

For Only Six Subscriptions!

FOR A club of only six 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or three 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each we will send you this handsome Doll exactly as described by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 466.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

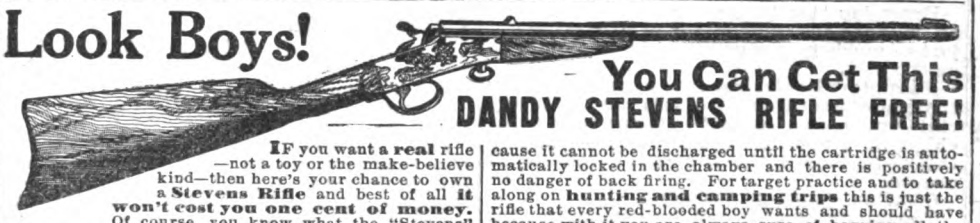
NOTICE! This is the same doll which we formerly offered for a club of four. Owing to the scarcity and high prices of dolls brought about by the European War, we are obliged to raise the offer to a club of six. Please bear this fact in mind when ordering the above doll and remember that our former offer has been withdrawn and that from now on we cannot give this doll for a club of less than six 15-month subscriptions at 25 cents each or three 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each.

Photo-Button Camera

Will Produce A Finished Picture In Two Minutes

Premium No. 703.



You Don't Have To Know Photography—You Don't Need A Dark Room Or Ruby Light—Or Other Accessories—The Camera does it all!

JUST think of it! A camera with which you can take, develop and finish a picture in just two minutes. To you this may seem impossible, but it is true nevertheless. Think of the amusement and pleasure to be had taking photographs of your friends and neighbors with this camera and deliver them the finished pictures while they wait. And the beauty of it all is, this wonderful camera does all the work itself. You don't have to know anything about photography in order to take pictures with this camera—you don't need to spend money fitting up a dark room and buying ruby lights and chemicals and the dozens of other conveniences which are absolutely necessary to have with the ordinary camera. This new Photo-Button camera does away with all that trouble and expense because you can take, develop and finish the pictures in broad daylight. You can commence to take pictures just as soon as you receive it for we also give you a complete outfit consisting of One Dozen Plates, One Dozen Brooch Frames, a Bottle of developing fluid, developing tank and complete instructions how to go ahead and be successful from the very start. You can then take pictures of any of your folks or your friends, and you can mount the pictures in the pretty Brooch Button frames like those illustrated above. The pictures are perfectly round and of good size measuring 1¼ inches in diameter. And after you have used up what plates, brooch frames and developer we give you, you can send to us for another supply as we have the extra plates and everything else in stock and can let you have them free in return for one, two or three new 25-cent subscriptions to COMFORT, according to what you order and how much. Or, if you prefer, we will sell you the plates, developer, etc., at a low price. You may have this Camera and Complete Outfit without paying a cent, if you will accept the following

CLUB OFFER. For only four 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each or two 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you this Photo-Button Camera and Complete Outfit Free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 703.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Look Boys!

You Can Get This DANDY STEVENS RIFLE FREE!

IF you want a real rifle—not a toy or the make-believe kind—then here's your chance to own a Stevens Rifle and best of all it won't cost you one cent of money. Of course, you know what the "Stevens" Rifle is. It is acknowledged to be one of the very best makes in the world manufactured by the famous Stevens Firearms Co. of Massachusetts. The rifle we offer you here is their "Little Scout" model and is the take-down pattern—that is by simply turning a screw you can remove the barrel from the stock which is a great help in cleaning the gun or packing it for travel. It shoots C. B. caps., .22 short, .22 long, or .22 long rifle rimfire cartridges, has an 18-inch round all-steel barrel, casehardened frame, blued steel butt plate, German silver knife-edge front and open rear sights, polished black walnut stock and weighs 2¾ pounds. This rifle is absolutely safe because it cannot be discharged until the cartridge is automatically locked in the chamber and there is positively no danger of back firing. For target practice and to take along on hunting and camping trips this is just the rifle that every red-blooded boy wants and should have because with it you are always sure of bagging all the small game that comes your way such as rabbits, squirrels, hawks and all kinds of game birds. We want every boy who reads this offer to have one of these splendid rifles and we are going to make it very easy for you to get one without spending a cent for it. Here's our free offer. Just read it.

Club Offer. For a club of only twelve 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or six 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you this genuine Stevens Rifle free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 692.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

A Real Typewriter For Real Work!

Small In Size But Perfect In Operation. Adapted To Either Personal Or Business Correspondence

Within the Purse of All

THIS is not a toy, but a practical, satisfactory machine that writes very distinctly and almost as fast as some typewriters costing $10.00 and more. It is a great deal larger than it appears to be in the above illustration, has every letter in the alphabet, all the numerals from one to ten, and the punctuation marks. You can use any size letter paper on this machine up to 5 inches in width and any length desired. For personal or business correspondence, making out statements, bills, addressing envelopes, etc., this machine answers every purpose. It is very easy to understand and operate, in fact a child can write on it after a few hours' practice. It is practically indestructible as it is made all of metal and positively cannot get out of order. We are sure that this typewriter will give the best of satisfaction because it is a real machine that will do real work. We will send you this practical typewriter guaranteed to be exactly as above illustrated and described with full directions for operating and a good supply of the best quality copying ink, carefully packed in a strong compact box upon the terms of the following

Club Offer. For a club of only four 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or two 3-years subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you this typewriter and complete outfit free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 586.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Large Shaggy Teddy Bear

The Best Playmate A Boy or Girl Ever Had

10 Inches High And Full Jointed

FREE FOR A CLUB OF TWO!

EVERY little boy and girl wants a Teddy Bear and here is an opportunity for every father or mother who reads COMFORT to get one without expense. "Teddy" looks exactly as you see him in the picture above. He is a big shaggy fellow, nearly a foot tall, made of rich, handsome brown plush, paws lined with felt, carefully stitched and finished and his head, arms and legs are jointed in such a manner that you can place him in almost any position. He will stand up, sit up, stand on his head, go on all four feet, in fact, you can make him assume all kinds of positions that are so comical and lifelike that it makes the children scream with delight just to look at him. "Teddy" is so well made that no matter how roughly he is handled he cannot become broken and with ordinary care should last for years. Teddy Bears like this one generally cost a good round sum in the stores, but as we have imported a large quantity of them from Germany at a special low price we can well afford to give them away on terms so liberal that there is no reason why every boy and girl should not have one of them at once. We will send you "Teddy" free if you will accept the following special

Club Offer. For a club of only two 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this big shaggy Teddy Bear free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 699.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Silk Wrist Bag

Given For Two Subscriptions

Premium No. 7002

ONE of the latest styles is this handsome black moire silk wrist bag with nickel plated frame, patent snap fastener and fancy lining. As shown in illustration it is carried suspended from the wrist by means of a sixteen-inch strap which is made of the same material as the bag. This bag is of good size being over 5 inches wide at the widest part and 7¼ inches long. It is well made of fine material and will certainly please the most fastidious. We will make any lady or girl a present of this bag upon the terms of the following

Club Offer

For a club of two 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you this handsome moire silk wrist bag free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7002.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Drawnwork Scarf

67 Inches Long 16 Inches Wide

Made of PURE FLAX woven into a silver damask of superior quality, finished with heavily fringed ends

EVERY woman reader of COMFORT who wants a handsome, serviceable dresser or sideboard scarf should answer this offer at once. We have imported from Germany a large quantity of these large sized, pure linen scarfs, 67 inches long and 16 inches wide, and thanks to the new tariff law secured them at a price so low that we can well afford to give them away for less money in subscriptions than you would have to pay outright for a much inferior scarf in any store. As shown in illustration, the pattern is a large attractive zigzag drawnwork design and both ends of the scarf are finished with a handsome wide combed and knotted fringe. Being made by skilled workmen of pure flax, the texture of this scarf is such that it should last a lifetime and in appearance it is one of the most beautiful dresser or sideboard covers you ever saw. We are giving away this scarf free on the terms of the following

CLUB OFFER. For a club of only two 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this large handsome, pure linen, imported scarf free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 332.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

A Genuine Rupture Cure Sent On Trial To Prove It

Don't Wear A Truss Any Longer.

After Thirty Years' Experience I Have Produced An Appliance for Men, Women and Children That Actually Cures Rupture.

Are You Ruptured?

If so, the BROOKS APPLIANCE is made for You; You and all other Men, Women and Children who are sufferers from this annoying and dangerous trouble. That truss you have been wearing—one of many you have tried—chafed and irritated you and was worse than nothing. It had springs and pads and harness and straps and fixings galore and was continually getting out of shape—slipping down or working up and always needing attention. Then, there were salves and washes and ointments to make the case worse and harder to bear. I want to say that you will find none of these annoyances and vexations in the BROOKS APPLIANCE. At least they are reduced to a minimum. This APPLIANCE was made with a view to eliminate, to do away with, just such trouble. I would have been foolish to work half a lifetime, thinking out and perfecting a thing that had no advantage or was not better than scores of other inventions upon the market. In my APPLIANCE you will find the old objectionable features LEFT OUT. You will find it easy to wear. You will scarcely realize you are wearing it. There is no binding, drawing and slipping out of place. It does its work effectively and with comfort to the wearer. I want you to read my book, in which I have taken pains to give full particulars about it. Then, there are a few letters printed in it—selected at random from among hundreds written by men and women who have been cured. You can write these folks and see what they say. If I were you I would see to this matter without waiting. You can put off some things without running much risk, but a rupture is a dangerous proposition to neglect. A rupture is not only bad and serious of itself, but it leads to things infinitely worse. Fill out coupon and mail TODAY. Tomorrow will do, but today is better.

Don't Make The Child Wear a Truss Through Life

I Want to Reach the Parents of Every Ruptured Child in the Country.

The Truss Is a Flesh Torturing Invention Fit Only As a Relic of Barbarity.

I want them to know about the Automatic Air Cushion Rupture Appliance that I make for children who are afflicted in this way.

The Brooks Appliance Cured His Rupture Now He Is As Sound And Whole As If He Had Never Been Ruptured.

My appliance can be put on any child with perfect safety to the little one. For growing children there is nothing better to be had—no matter how much you pay—than my Appliance. I want the parents or others who may have children in their care to understand that there should be no delay in getting proper help for ruptured children.

The above is C. E. Brooks of Marshall, Mich., the Inventor, who has been curing rupture for over 30 years. If ruptured write him today.

If you have tried most everything else, come to me. Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Send attached coupon today and I will send you free my illustrated book on rupture and its cure, showing my Appliance and giving you prices and names of many people who have tried it and were cured. It is instant relief when all others fail. Remember, I use no salves, no harness, no lies.

I send on trial to prove what I say is true. You are the judge and once having seen my illustrated book and read it you will be as enthusiastic as my hundreds of patients whose letters you may also read. Fill out free coupon below and mail today. It's well worth your time whether you try my appliance or not.

Every day that the rupture is allowed to go on without the right means of correcting it—just so much harder will it be for the child to get rid of it.

No ruptured child can ever be free from the thought of the rupture and it is not fair to any child not to have an equal chance with other children. No matter what we may wish to think—ruptured children do not have an equal chance.

Common trusses do not help.

Thousands of men and women know that from their own experience with such trusses.

But it is not necessary for children to wear harsh, cumbersome, steel trusses any more.

You may have had to wear something like this but don't make your child do it. Give the child something better.

My Appliance is better and I want to prove it to you.

I will make an Appliance to the child's measure, send it on TRIAL—put it into your hands to see and use and then you can say whether it is what I claim or not.

The Automatic Air Cushion conforms with every movement of the child; there is an even, gentle pressure which gradually binds the broken parts together—as you would bind a broken limb—and then no matter how much the child jumps, runs, rolls over or falls down—the pressure is kept up just the same—always drawing the parts together.

Write me today and get all the information—send the coupon.

Others Failed But The Appliance Cured

C. E. Brooks,
Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

Your Appliance did all you claim for the little boy and more, for it cured him sound and well. We let him wear it for about a year in all, although it cured him 3 months after he had begun to wear it. We had tried several other remedies and got no relief, and I shall certainly recommend it to friends, for we surely owe it to you. Yours respectfully,

WM. PATTERSON.

No. 717 S. Main St., Akron, O.

Pennsylvania Man Thankful

Mr. C. E. Brooks,
Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

Perhaps it will interest you to know that I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your Appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on; it just adapted itself to the shape of the body and seemed to be a part of the body, as it clung to the spot, no matter what position I was in.

It would be a veritable God-send to the unfortunates who suffer from rupture if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They would certainly never regret it.

My rupture is now all healed up and nothing ever did it but your Appliance. Whenever the opportunity presents itself I will say a good word for your Appliance, and also the honorable way in which you deal with ruptured people. It is a pleasure to recommend a good thing among your friends or strangers. I am,

Yours very sincerely,
JAMES A. BRITTON.

80 Spring St., Bethlehem, Pa.

Remember

I send my Appliance on trial to prove what I say is true. You are to be the judge. Fill out free coupon below and mail today.

Ten Reasons Why

You Should Send For Brooks' Rupture Appliance.

1. It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market today, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.
2. The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.
3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.
4. Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.
5. It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.
6. The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.
7. There is nothing about it to get foul, and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.
8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.
9. All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.
10. My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon today.

Cured at the Age of 76.

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

I began using your Appliance for the cure of rupture (I had a pretty bad case) I think in May, 1905. On November 20, 1905, I quit using it. Since that time I have not needed or used it. I am well of rupture and rank myself among those cured by the Brooks Discovery, which, considering my age, 76 years, I regard as remarkable.

Very sincerely yours,
SAM A. HOOVER.

High Point, N. C.

Child Cured In Four Months.

C. E. Brooks,

Dear Sir:—The baby's rupture is altogether cured, thanks to your appliance and we are so thankful to you. If we could only have known of it sooner, our little boy would not have had to suffer near as much as he did. He wore your brace a little over four months and has not worn it now for six weeks.

Yours very truly,
ANDREW EGGENBERGER.

21 Jansen St., Dubuque, Iowa.

Confederate Veteran Cured

Commerce, Ga., R. F. D. No. 11.

Mr. C. E. Brooks,

Dear Sir:—I am glad to tell you that I am now sound and well and can plough or do any heavy work. I can say your Appliance has effected a permanent cure. Before getting your Appliance I was in a terrible condition and had given up all hope of ever being any better. If it hadn't been for your Appliance I would never have been cured. I am sixty-eight years old and served three years in Eckle's Artillery, Oglethorpe Co. I hope God will reward you for the good you are doing for suffering humanity.

Yours sincerely,
H. D. BANKS.

FREE Information Coupon

C. E. BROOKS, 1702 C State St., Marshall, Mich.

Please send me by mail, in plain wrapper, your illustrated book and full information about your Appliance for the cure of rupture.

Name .....

City .....

R. F. D. ..... State .....

COMFORT

The Key to Happiness and Success in over a Million and a Quarter Homes

DEVOTED TO ART, LITERATURE, SCIENCE AND THE HOME CIRCLE.

VOL. XXVII NO. 4

FEBRUARY

Published at

AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Copyright 1915 (Trade-Mark Registered), by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Incorporated.

COMFORT

The Key to

Happiness and Success in over

A Million and a Quarter Homes

In which is combined and consolidated

THE NATIONAL FARMER and HOME MAGAZINE.

Devoted to

Art, Literature, Science, and the Home Circle.

Its Motto Is "Onward and Upward."

SUBSCRIPTION.

United States and Cuba, - - 25c. for 15 months
Canadian Subscriptions, - - 50c. per year.

Subscriptions for England and Foreign Countries, 75c. per year.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are entered on our books as soon as received, and are always dated from the current issue, unless otherwise ordered.

POSTAGE to all parts of the United States and to foreign countries is prepaid by us, but owing to high postage rates Canadian or Foreign subscriptions can only be accepted singly, and at the full 50c. or 75c. price. All club offers giving Premiums or Prizes apply only to the United States.

If you do not get your magazines by the 15th of the month, write us and an extra copy will be sent you free of charge. We do NOT continue subscription after the expiration of the time subscribed for.

When making a change of residence, in order to insure the uninterrupted delivery of COMFORT, it is essential that we be advised of the change in address IMMEDIATELY. We must have former as well as present address before change can be made. As Postmasters cannot forward second-class matter without stamps, your missing copies of COMFORT will not reach you and we do not supply back numbers.

TO CONTRIBUTORS. All literary contributions should be accompanied by stamped and addressed envelopes for their return in case they are not available. Manuscripts should not be rolled.

Special Notice. We do not supply back numbers.

Entered at the Post Office at Augusta, Maine, as second-class mail matter.

Published Monthly by
W. H. GANNETT, Incorporated,
Augusta, Maine.

New York Office, Flatiron Bldg. Chicago Office, Marquette Bldg.

February, 1915

CONTENTS

	Page
CRUMBS OF COMFORT	2
THE MIRACLE OF LOVE Short Story Mary Chapman Bennett	2 & 13
MONTHLY LESSON IN HISTORY C. B. Irvine	2
EDITORIAL	3
COMFORT SISTERS' CORNER	5, 9, 12 & 24
A THORNE AMONG ROSES (continued) Mrs. Georgie Sheldon	6 & 28
A HUMAN PLEA Poem Charles Noel Douglas (Uncle Charlie)	6
HOW TO ARRANGE FOR SPARE TIME Adele Steiner Burleson	7 & 12
REDEEMED BY A VALENTINE Short Story Lydia M. D. O'Neil	8
TOUGHEY: Childhood Adventures on a Texas Ranch (continued) Adele Steiner Burleson	9
THE IRON CROSS OF GERMANY Short Article	9
IN AND AROUND THE HOME Fancy Work Conducted by Mrs. Wheeler Wilkinson	10
COMFORT'S LEAGUE OF COUSINS Conducted by Uncle Charlie,	11, 22, 32 33 & 34
PRETTY GIRLS' CLUB Conducted by Katherine Booth	13
HOME DRESSMAKING HINTS Geneva Gladding	14
JOKES AND ANECDOTES OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN	15
POULTRY FARMING FOR WOMEN Mrs. Kate V. St. Maur	16 & 25
MODERN FARMER	17 & 27
EDNA'S SECRET MARRIAGE (continued) Charles Garvice	18, 29 & 36
GENERAL MARION WHO MADE GOOD HIS MOTTO "LIBERTY OR DEATH"	20 & 21
SONG OF MARION'S MEN Poem By William Cullen Bryant	21
LITTLE STORIES ABOUT GEORGE WASHINGTON	23
A CORNER FOR BOYS Uncle John	26
VETERINARY INFORMATION	27
MANNERS AND LOOKS	29
INFORMATION BUREAU	30
TALKS WITH GIRLS	31
CUBBY BEAR IN BAD COMPANY A Bed-time Story for the Little Ones Lena B. Ellinwood	32
SIX WHEEL CHAIRS IN JANUARY	32
HOME LAWYER	33
FAMILY DOCTOR	34
DECEMBER PRIZE WINNERS	34

Crumbs of Comfort

God may delay, but He never forgets.

Take things always by the smooth handle.

A mule and a woman do best by fair means.

The husband must not see and the wife must be blind.

The wound that is never given is the easiest one cured.

A great deal is ill wasted and a little would do as well.

We weep when we are born and every day shows why.

Custom is the plague of wise men and the idol of fools.

A blunt edge will sometimes do what a sharp axe will not.

The good you do is not lost although you may forget it.

Away goes the devil when he finds the door fast against him.

Your looking glass will tell you what none of your friends will.

When two friends have a common purse one sings and the other weeps.

Since you can bear with your own, bear with the failings of others as well.

If you get vexed or lose your temper you will have two troubles instead of one.

It is not your posterity, but your actions, that will perpetuate your memory.

None more impatiently suffer injuries than those who are the readiest to do them.

Before you walk into the front door of a saloon, look at the bloat that went out at the back door.

Go not to your doctor for every ill, nor to your lawyer for every quarrel, nor to your bottle for every thirst.

The Miracle of Love

By Mary Chapman Bennett

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

"DON'T you think it will rain before night? The air seems so heavy," and Kathie raised her arms wearily above her head, and looked up at the cloudless sky streaked with the gold, and purple, and pink tints of the setting sun.

"Fred," said the invalid, half petulantly, "can't you put aside your paper and talk to me? I am so tired of this hot weather."

The young man at the other end of the veranda put down his paper and seated himself on the top step near the couch.

"What is the matter with my little sister to-night," he said, with caressing tones. "Has the heat upset your nerves?"

"I don't know," said Kathie. "I try not to be selfish and complaining, but I am so very tired of being sick," and a few tears welled up into the violet eyes of the girl who, day in and day out, was doomed to lie on her back.

This was too much for the tender-hearted brother who gathered the girl into his arms murmuring, "My precious sister."

For a long time they sat quietly watching the stars come out, one by one.

Kathie nestled in the shelter of his arms, her head pillowed against his breast, a grateful change from the position she was obliged to be in during the many hours of the day.

"Fred, are you going to marry Miss Jessie Lane?" the sick girl asked at length.

If Kathie had not been so wrapped up in her own thought, she would have felt the start of surprise, heard the rapid pounding of his blood through his veins, heard the quickened beat of his heart.

It was with a supreme effort that the young man replied, in a voice calm and gentle, "No, dear. Why do you ask?"

"Oh, I don't know. But you remember last winter she sent me that beautiful basket of fruit, when everything was so high and scarce; and now today, those lovely roses from her own garden, and it made me think that perhaps she sent them because you were in love with her."

"Miss Lane is always trying to bring happiness to those who are suffering. She very likely does the same thing every day to some one. She never thought of me," quietly said the young man.

In his inmost soul he knew that he lied, and the knowledge that it was a lie brought a strange calm to his sad heart.

"Some way I should hate to have you marry her. I don't know what I should do. I think I should die," and Kathie nestled closer while her voice died away in a little trembling sob.

Now Kathie had absolutely no idea that she was selfish. Sick people rarely have the same view point as those who are well, and the thought that her words might help to deprive him of a joy, which was as necessary to his best happiness as his presence was essential to her very life, did not occur to her. Not for worlds would she have added a single drop more to the already full bucket the young man was bearing.

A fall from a hammock when she was a child had injured her spine so that her legs were paralyzed, and when, just entering her teens her mother had died, Fred took up the burden, not only of support, but tender care. Everything that heart and mind could invent was done for the sufferer. Some days she was able to be carried out to the shady lawn at the rear of the house, but usually the long hours were spent on the broad veranda, screened and shut in when necessary. Here, summer and winter, was her sun parlor.

It was here that she watched the autos speed by and saw the lights of the trolley a block away. It was here that she suffered and thought; here that she listened to the chatter and songs of the birds; here that she dreamed of the days when she would be well and strong; here that she received her friends and learned of the big world outside; and it was here that she fought her battles and won. At nineteen it is hard to acknowledge that death alone can made one well, and that life here on this beautiful earth must always be lived on one's back, and full of pain.

The house was on a quiet street far from the center of the city, and in the garden were old-fashioned flowers which Kathie's mother had planted and tended. But Kathie never seemed to care so much for them as for the flowers she could not see growing—some of the things that grew where the other girls lived—where she could never go. Oh, the pain of it!

Yet the doctors said that Kathie was an unusually happy invalid, and doctors learn to know the real character, not only of their patients, but of the other members of the family as well.

After the lights were out, Fred stood by his open window as he had done many a night before; stood with his head turned toward a distant home, straining his eyes to see when his mind told him he could not. Into his heart, as he stood, came a deep peace, and across the city, through the tree tops, via wireless, went the unspoken message. Perhaps it was a prayer, perhaps, the longing of a soul calling to its mate. Who shall say?

And Jessie Lane, in her sleep, dreamed that someone said to her, "Peace be with thee, Jessie, My love."

A few days later, Fred went out to spend the evening. Only once in many weeks did he call on Miss Lane. If anyone came in, he made only a formal visit, but if he chanced to find her alone, which was rare, he remained as long as he dared. Not being able to marry, he felt that he had no right in any way to compromise her, or place her in any position where their names would be linked. So his calls were few and far between.

On this evening Jessie was home and frankly glad to see him.

"You have not been to see me in many weeks, and I was beginning to wonder if you had forgotten my existence," she said playfully as she took up some light work.

Somehow Fred always found her busy with her needle and he often marveled over the piles and stacks of work that she must have accomplished. Men have the idea that nothing ever wears out, and, naturally, Fred deemed the work must of necessity by now be well nigh to the ceiling.

"I suppose Kathie needs you," she continued as she adjusted her needle. "How is she these warm days? Is she able to be out in the garden?"

"Not over strong this weather," Fred replied as he settled himself in the easy chair close by the table upon which rested the work basket of his hostess. "She is cheerful though and tries to make the best of her hard lot. She was deeply appreciative of your kindness in sending the roses the other day," he added after a pause in which he watched the fingers readjust a loop and thread a needle with the floss near at hand.

Then remembering his sister's remark and his own pain, he said in an apologetic tone, "But I would rather you do not do it again. I don't want to hurt your feelings."

"But you most certainly do hurt my feelings when you speak in that way," quickly responded his hostess, cut to the heart by the cruel words, and thinking only of the selfish ways of mankind. "What possible reason can you give, because I cut a few of my roses and sent them to a suffering girl, for refusing her the right to receive and me the joy of giving. What right have you to dictate in a matter entirely outside of your domain?" concluded Jessie, by now thoroughly angered by his tactless and wholly unnecessary words.

For a moment the young man was staggered by the storm of protest and in a laughing way stammered some apology.

"But I—I didn't mean it in just the way you thought."

"Well, I should hope not!" exclaimed Jessie with the angry color still glowing in her cheeks.

Then the thought of what he really did mean gave Fred courage to say quietly, but sadly, "I am afraid I was extremely rude to you, Miss Jessie. For that I crave your pardon. My little sister, being ill and shut out from the social life of the world, looks at deeds in a somewhat different light from those of us who live in the glare of the day. When you have time to think it over, you will agree with me, that for her sake—as well as my own"—he added in a lower tone, "it is wisest not to disturb her peace."

As the full meaning of his tone, more than his words, penetrated her mind, a deep flush overspread her features, and with ready tact she turned the tide of speech in other channels.

But although the conversation flowed on smoothly enough, there was a little constraint felt by both. Jessie was conscious of the eyes of love bent upon her whenever her own were turned away, but she could not understand the strain of sadness, both in them, and in his voice.

And the man, knowing the ache in his own heart, grieved over the hurt he knew he had inflicted upon the girl who was to him the one woman in all the world. And he wondered why it was that over and over again we wound those we love the most, wound them when we would gladly protect them from all harm within the shelter of our love—wound them through that very love.

And the longing for her grew so insistent that he dare not linger over the good night, but hurried out into the street. And there, on the street, during that long walk home, a battle waged.

Why do we always think of a field and two large armies when we use the word battle?

The biggest battle ever fought is between a man and his own soul—between the force of right and the power of wrong in one human breast.

And the struggle caused the young man to cry out in his misery, "Oh, Jessie, my love, I need thee."

But his soul grew calm as, there in the darkness, he stretched out his hands to the one woman, whispering, "My love, I dare not ask thee to share my life. Fare—thee—well."

And in another part of the city a woman knelt by an open window. Gazing up at the stars she said softly, "He loves me, I am sure of it. And

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 13.)

IMPROVE THE HOME

FOR HEALTH, HAPPINESS AND THRIFT

Unattractive, untidy homes in which slovenly housekeeping and bad cooking prevail produce discontent, sickness, poverty and mental and moral degradation among the members of the family, especially the children that grow up under such blighting influences. Such conditions are too common and are largely due to mismanagement and not knowing how to do better, how to make the most of the means at hand. It is not a question of money but of what to do and how to do it.

The humblest home, especially in the country, can be made attractive, comfortable and sanitary by care, good management and a little effort by the family with little or no expense, and it will yield big returns, not only in happiness and contentment but also in health and prosperity.

Household COMFORT

The Big March Number

will contain a lot of valuable information on best methods of housekeeping, domestic economy, cooking and improvement of the home for health, comfort and convenience, also articles on kindred home topics such as

"The Home Medicine Chest,"

and How to Use It, by Dr. C. F. Reade, giving a list of valuable home remedies to be kept on hand, and telling how to use them for the prevention and cure of the common ailments. This article alone, by a physician of high standing, is worth many times the price of a year's subscription.

Don't Miss March COMFORT with all these extra good specialties besides all the regular departments, serial stories and some splendid short stories, too.

Now is the time to get your friends to subscribe or renew their subscriptions and help you earn a nice premium and win a good cash prize. Everybody wants to read March COMFORT. It will pay you big to make a hustle after these subscriptions and renewals this month. But RENEW YOUR OWN subscription first, if you have not already done so.

REMEMBER, THE SUBSCRIPTION PRICE is soon to be RAISED, both for new subscriptions and for renewals.

If the number over your name on the wrapper in which this paper comes is 317, or any less number, you should renew your subscription at once. Send us 30 cents today for two-year renewal, using the coupon below and taking advantage of the old subscribers' special low renewal rate.

New subscribers pay regular subscription rate of 25 cents for 15 months in U. S. and Cuba; 50 cents a year in Canada.

SPECIAL RATE SUBSCRIPTION COUPON FOR RENEWAL OR EXTENSION ONLY

Publisher of COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.
I enclose 30 cents for renewal and extension of my subscription two full years from date of expiration. (75 cents for 2 years in Canada.)

Date.....Name.....

P. O. or R. F. D......

County.....State.....

February, 1915.

Monthly Lesson in History

By C. B. Irvine

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

FEBRUARY, the month of expiration, took its name from februare, which means to purify. Ordinarily it has twenty-eight days, but during leap-years is given an additional day. Originally among the Romans it had twenty-nine days, but when it was decreed that the eighth month should bear the name of Augustus Cæsar, a day was taken from the shortest month and given to August, which then had but thirty, that it might not be inferior to July, so named for Julius Cæsar. The name February was given because it was during this month that the Romans celebrated the festival of Februalia. The month was introduced into the calendar along with January when Numa Pomilius decided that the year should have twelve instead of ten months. The amethyst is the gem-stone symbolical of the month, and stands for deep and pure love. One of its supposed powers is that of preventing intoxication and the Greeks and Romans drank wine from amethyst cups. The flower which represents February is the primrose, representing youth and sadness, and its motto, "Believe me." The month was notable in having brought two of the greatest Presidents of the United States in the world—Washington and Lincoln—and in many of the states their birthdays are celebrated as legal holidays. Other notable events of the month are here given:

1st—Mary Shelley, novelist, died 1851.

2nd—Candlemas day.

"If Candlemas is fair and clear,
There'll be twa winters in the year."

3rd—John of Gaunt, died 1399. Horace Greeley, born 1811. Mendelssohn, born 1809.

4th—Porta, inventor of the camera obscura, died 1615.

5th—Galvani, discoverer of galvanism, died 1799.

6th—Anne, Queen of England, born 1665. Charles II, King of England, died 1685.

7th—Charles Dickens, born 1812. M. Bourrienne, secretary to Napoleon, died in a madhouse 1834.

8th—Mary, Queen of Scots, beheaded 1586. Napoleon in Battle of Eylau, 1807. Last earthquake of any consequence in England, 1750.

9th—Henry Lord Darnley, consort of Mary Queen of Scots, murdered 1567. Treaty of Luneville between Germany and France, signed 1801. President W. H. Harrison, born 1773.

10th—James Nares, composer, died 1783.

11th—Princess Elizabeth of York, born 1466. Elizabeth Plantagenet of York, died 1502. Battle of Montmirail, 1814.

12th—Abraham Lincoln, born 1809. Cotton Mather, born 1663. Lady Jane Gray, beheaded 1553.

13th—Cotton Mather, died 1728. Celebrated as St. Valentine's eve.

14th—St. Valentine's Day. Richard II, King of England, died 1400.

15th—Galileo, astronomer, born 1564. John Hadley, inventor of the sextant, died 1744.

16th—Lindley Murray, grammarian, died 1826.

17th—Michael Angelo, died 1563.

18th—Mary I, Queen of England, born 1517. Martin Luther, died 1546. Balzac, died 1654. In the Nile campaign, Gen. Gordon arrived at Khartoum, 1884.

19th—Copernicus, astronomer, born 1473. Poe, poet, born 1809.

20th—Voltaire, born 1694. David Garrick, born 1716. Andreas Hofer, shot by the French 1810.

21st—Agrippa, died 4 A. D.

22nd—President George Washington, born 1731. Charles, Duke of Richmond, born 1735. Rev. Sydney Smith, died 1845.

23rd—President J. Q. Adams, died 1872. John Keats, poet, died 1821. Handel, composer, born 1685. The Battle of the Alamo, in which Col. David Crockett was butchered by Santa Ana.

24th—Charles Lamb, essayist, born 1775.

25th—Robert, Earl of Essex, beheaded 1600.

26th—Victor Hugo, born 1802. Thomas Moore, poet, died 1852. Napoleon quitted Elba, 1815.

27th—Henry W. Longfellow, born at Portland, Maine 1812. The first Russian embassy arrived in London.

28th—Montaigne, essayist, born 1533. Susan Cromwell, last of the descendants bearing the name of the Lord Protector, died 1834. She was the daughter of Thomas Cromwell, the great grandson of Oliver Cromwell, Lord Protector of Puritan England, under whose leadership King Charles I was defeated and beheaded.

29th—Rossini, composer, born 1792. Every year whose number is not divisible by four consists of 365 days; every year so divisible but not by 100, as 366 days; every year divisible by 100 but not by 400, 365 days; and every year divisible by 400, 366 days. Thus you may determine the leap-years as far in the future as you like.

EDITORIAL

THOUGHTS THAT BREATHE AND WORDS THAT BURN

Liquor Banished by a Nation of One Hundred and Seventy Million People

IT is an ill wind that blows no one any good, and out of the fearful conflict in Europe, war has brought about in a day a mighty reform, that peace might not have accomplished in a century. Russia has stopped the sale of vodka, France has banished absinthe, and the hours in which strong drink can be purchased in Great Britain have been so materially cut down that saloons find it hardly profitable to do business.

It is in Russia, however, that the most astounding change has taken place. Vodka, the national drink, a fiery liquor which had reduced the Russian peasantry to besotted apathy and chronic poverty, has been shut off by the government at its source. An altruistic, humane and self-sacrificing act, probably never before equalled by any government on earth, and the more remarkable from the fact that it is from the manufacture and sale of vodka, which is a government monopoly, that Russia largely realizes the enormous revenues which are needed for the upkeep of her military and imperial establishments. With every liquor den in Russia closed and sealed with the Czar's seal, which none dare break, the hundred and seventy million subjects of the Romanoff autocrat have of necessity become sober.

There is an old saying that you cannot make men good by an act of parliament, but it has been proved that you can at least make them sober, which is a ninety per cent step toward making men mentally, morally and physically sound, for it is temperance that builds character and intemperance that destroys it, and it is to character building that we must look for permanent racial uplift.

The improvement in the Russian people in the five months since vodka has been banned is astounding. Men who looked as though every worthy impulse had been crushed out of them, have been transformed as though by magic, from blear-eyed physical wrecks to upstanding, vigorous humans, rejoicing in a new outlook, conscious of new hope, inspired by new ambitions.

As to the evils of intemperance Europe did little more than talk in time of peace, but when the great nations became involved in a life-or-death conflict of arms, and keen eyes, strong arms, steady nerves, sound judgment and stout hearts were required for the game of war then the belligerent powers took drastic action to put their soldiers and their people in the best of trim, by putting alcohol, man's greatest enemy, beyond their reach.

We Need Nation-Wide Prohibition as Much as Russia Does

Cannot Congress learn the lesson to do for our people in time of peace what Russia has been moved by the exigency of war to do for her people?

State prohibition has done much, but its limitations are such that it falls far short of being an effective and thorough remedy for intemperance, as experience has painfully demonstrated.

Only nation-wide prohibition, with the Federal government taking upon itself the manufacture and sale of such alcoholic products as are necessary for mechanical and medicinal purposes, will rid this nation of the fearful curse which the drink demon has imposed upon it.

In spite of the strenuous efforts of men and women of high purpose who have devoted their lives to fighting this insidious evil, in spite of laws, regulations and preachments and vast expenditures of time and money, the consumption of alcoholic beverages steadily increases in the United States.

As a people we are the greatest law makers and law breakers on earth, and so long as some of the States permit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor and the Federal government allows its importation enormous quantities of strong drink will still find their way to every corner of the land despite local and State prohibitory laws. Not until the drink question is made a national instead of a State issue and Uncle Sam becomes the sole manufacturer and purveyor of alcoholic liquor in this country shall we see a similar condition here to that which today obtains in Russia.

The plea that prohibition interferes with personal liberty is very true; so do our laws against burglary, theft and murder and every other form of crime. Alcohol is a destructive poison and its effects, whether taken in large or small quantities, are disastrous and appalling.

Anything that strikes at the health and welfare of the individual and the nation (and alcoholic drink does this to an extent greater than any other evil) must be taken severely in hand, even to the extent of depriving the individual of the "liberty" of that means of self-destruction.

Decadent China has shown the courage and ability to grapple with the plague of opium, and has abolished it as thoroughly and completely as the Czar has abolished vodka in Russia. Who dares say that our government shall be less progressive and must not grapple with the demon alcohol?

If rum slew or injured only those who indulge in it, one might regard its use with complacent toleration, but drink is the promoter of vice and crime which inflicts the misery of poverty, disease and destruction on the innocent; it is the servant of the white slave traffic, the arch enemy of the human race.

No drunkard goes to his miserable grave until he has ruined the life and wrecked the hope of one or more heart-broken innocent victims of his vile appetite.

And the horror of it all is that this accursed appetite is handed on to generations yet unborn who must suffer from the sins of the fathers (and often the mothers), and suffer as acutely from cravings inherited from moderate drinkers as immoderate drinkers, until the third and fourth generations.

We want children born into the world, now damned into the world. Dr. L. Maus, Colonel of the U. S. Medical Corps, says: "Society must prevent its own ruin and degradation at any cost and defend the innocent members of the community against the ravages of the great destroyer, alcohol. When the general public learns that the diseases and evil traits we possess were transmitted by those who are mouldering in the grave, thousands of defective sons and daughters will curse the memory of their dead parents who fastened upon them the seeds of degeneracy.

Ex-Governor Patterson of Tennessee, once a fiery advocate of personal "liberty" and a friend of the saloon, saw drink strike down his first-born. He says:

"At last I have felt its foul and stealthy blows. It turned upon me in its deadly and shaming wrath—upon me who had pleaded before the people for its very existence.

"If we had no sorrows liquor creates them; and if we have them it increases them and makes them harder to bear.

"It blights the young man as lightning does the trees, and leaves him stripped of his heritage.

"It is the thief of character.

"It invades the ballot box and corrupts it.

"It weakens the administration of justice.

"It is the polluted stream that mingles with the current of public affairs and poisons all it touches.

"Whenever it comes it brings a sorrow, and whenever it goes it leaves remorse.

"Liquor dulls the edge of endeavor; it dethrones the reason; it enters and stains the cloisters of spirituality and becomes the foul and stealthy murderer of human souls.

"I hate it for what it has done to others, to the State and to my country.

"I hate it with every fiber of my being—with every passion of my soul."

The evils of drunkenness are obvious and many drunkards, in their sober intervals, favor prohibition as their only means of deliverance. But it is the so-called "moderate drinker," the man who takes a social glass or two whenever occasion offers or takes his daily drinks with a regularity and measured accuracy which never exceed the bounds of sobriety, that is hardest to reach and convince. He is the worst stumbling block in the path to prohibition and temperance. Because he never gets drunk he parades as a man of "temperate" habits and a model of self control, one who can "use liquor without abusing it." He strenuously objects to any law that will abolish his supposedly innocent and innocuous use of liquor; and in this he manifests a selfish and contemptuous disregard for the consequences to his weaker brothers who cannot imbide without running the gamut of intoxication.

But his belief that he is not injured or endangered by liquor, as he uses it, is a delusion, for extensive scientific research and experimentation have proved beyond question that even a single drink of alcoholic liquor has a depressing effect on the brain and nerve centers which appreciably lowers the speed, accuracy and endurance of the working powers of mind and body, and that it requires a day or two for nature to recover and repair the damage; also that where the drink is taken habitually, even no oftener than once a day, the deleterious effect is cumulative, producing a weakening of the constitution and a permanent and progressive diminution of mental and physical capacity. Furthermore, moderate drinking weakens the power of resisting acute attacks of disease and is directly productive of chronic and fatal diseases of the arteries, liver, kidneys and other vital organs, and last, but not least, may doom the moderate drinker's child to an inherited propensity for liquor which may ruin him body and soul.

Thus we see that the word "moderate" does not properly apply to the use of alcoholic liquor as a beverage under any conditions. We frequently hear the friends of the saloon draw a distinction between temperance and total abstinence, but in the drinking of liquor, which is poisonous and injurious even in small quantities, there is no such thing as temperance; every drink is an intemperate use, an abuse, and temperance consists only in total abstinence. Therefore the so-called "moderate" drinker has no right to complain of a law which deprives him of the "personal" liberty of slowly poisoning himself.

Appalling Growth and Magnitude of the Liquor Evil

The alarming extent to which drinking in the United States has grown is apparent in the Internal Revenue Department's figures which show that more than two billion gallons of intoxicating liquors were consumed by the people of this country in one year, 1913; that is more than two thousand million gallons (to be exact 2,128,452,226 gallons) which, if equally distributed, would be about ninety quarts to every man, woman and child in the United States. But of course it was not equally distributed, for most of the children, the larger part of the women and many of the men had no share in it, and therefore those who did drink it, constituting less than half the population, must have averaged near about two hundred quarts each. Imagine, if you can, its destructive effect on them and the calamity to their families, even though a considerable part of it consisted of wine, lager beer and ale.

Then the money spent for this drink was one billion seven hundred and twenty-four million dollars, enough to have ruined most any other nation, to say nothing the indirect loss occasioned by the drunkenness, idleness, sickness, pauperism and crime which it produced.

These figures prove conclusively that State prohibitory and local-option laws are ineffectual and that

A National Prohibitory Law is Necessary to Suppress Drunkenness

Congressman Richmond P. Hobson, of Alabama, introduced a resolution in Congress to amend the U. S. Constitution so as to prohibit the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquor throughout the United States, except as made and distributed by the Federal government for necessary medicinal and mechanical purposes.

To adopt this amendment requires a favorable vote of two thirds of the members of both branches of Congress and the consent of the legislatures of three quarters of the States. It was acted on by Congress just before Christmas and received a favorable vote from a majority of the members in the House and Senate but fell short of the necessary two thirds.

This was so near a victory that it has greatly encouraged the promoters of the cause of nation-wide prohibition. They will make it an issue in the next Presidential and Congressional campaign in 1916 with strong hopes of success.

We appeal to COMFORT readers to support this movement as the most vitally important one before the country and we shall tell you more about it in our March issue.

COMFORT'S EDITOR.

The Emporium of Bargains and Opportunities

Pithy Little Advertisements that are Interesting, Instructive and Profitable to Read, for they put you wise to the newest and best in the market and keep you in touch with the world's progress.

AGENTS WANTED

Agents—Here's The Best Line of food flavors, perfumes, soaps, toilet preparations, etc. ever offered. No capital needed. Complete outfits furnished free to workers. Write today for full particulars. American Products Co., 633 Third St., Cincinnati, O.

Photo Pillow Tops, Portraits, Frames, Sheet Pictures, Photo China Plates. Rejects credited. Prompt shipments; samples & cat. free to agents. 30 days credit. Jas. C. Bailey Co., Desk X3, Chicago, Ill.

Agents. Sell rich looking 36x68 imported Rugs, $1 each; Carter, Tenn., sold 115 in 4 days, profit $57; you can do same. Write for sample offer selling plan; exclusive territory. Sample rug by parcel post prepaid 98c. E. Condon, Importer, Stonington, Maine.

Every Household on Farm in small town or suburbs, where oil lamps are used, needs and will buy the wonderful Aladdin Mantle Lamp; burns kerosene; gives a light five times as bright as electric. One farmer cleared over $500.00 in six weeks; hundreds with rigs earning $100.00 to $300.00 per month. No cash required. We furnish capital. Write quick for wholesale prices, territory and sample lamp for free trial. Mantle Lamp Co., 852 Aladdin Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Magic Ink Eraser—No blade, no acid; removes ink like magic. Sold as easily as bread in a famine. Sample 10c. Sells 35c. Offices buy 1 to 12. S. Mfg. Co., 20 W. Warren St., N. Y.

Now Is The Time To Sell guaranteed hosiery, underwear and sweaters. Biggest money making proposition ever offered. Something entirely new. Complete sample line free. Madison Mills, 588 Broadway, New York City.

400% Profit—Evergrip Gliders. Samples free. Anyone can attach. Costs 3c. sells 15c. Homes buy dozens, hotels hundreds. Save floors, carpets. S. Mfg. Co., 20 Y. Warren St., N. Y.

Earn Money Showing Queen Fabric Dress Goods. Honest, ambitious women wanted. Salary or com. Whole or part time. Mrs. Grace earns $1,200 a year. Experience unnecessary. Instructions ready. Be first in your locality. Queen Fabric Mfg. Co., Dept. 408, Syracuse, N. Y.

Agents Wanted—To advertise our goods by distributing free sample to consumer. 90 cents an hour. Write for full particulars. The Favori Company, 1019 West St., Dayton, O.

Agents wanted to sell our granite and marble monuments and headstones. Good commissions. First class work. Write for terms. Moore Monument Co., Sterling, Ill.

Agents—150% profit selling new Easy Wringer Mop. Every home buys. Martin sold 131 in 2 days. One man orders $2650 one month. Get details. U. S. Mop Co., 234 Main St., Toledo, Ohio.

Agents—208% profit. Wonderful little article. Sells like wildfire. Can be carried in pocket. Write at once for free sample. H. Matthews, 1919 Third St., Dayton, Ohio.

Agents—$25 a week for two hours' work a day. A brand new Hosiery proposition that beats them all. Write for terms and free sample if you mean business. Guaranteed Hosiery Co., 1019 Third Street, Dayton, Ohio.

New Patented Articles. Different from the rest. Used in every Home. Big profits. Ed. Hutchison, Winsor Ave., Elmira, N. Y.

Koko-Wheat Crisp. $10.00 Daily Profit. New confection. 5c package costs 1½c. samples 10c; particulars Free. Machine $7.50 prepaid. Corneau Co., 544 No. Parkside, Chicago

I Need Branch Managers for my worldwide mail order business. Operate from your own home in spare time. No canvassing or peddling. Experience unnecessary. You should make $50 weekly. Butler, 209 Factories, Toledo, O.

Agents—Get Particulars Of One Of the best paying propositions ever put on the market. Something no one else sells. Make $4000 Yearly. Address, E. M. Feltman, Sales Mgr., 632 Third St., Cincinnati, O.

Make $21 Next Saturday. Brand new proposition, patented last January. Amazing invention, compressed air washing machine, weighs but 2 pounds; excels work of high-priced machines. Customers excited; agents coining money. A sale at every house. Price only $1.50; 200% profit. Cleans tub of clothes in 3 minutes; works like magic. F. Hughes made $21 first 8 hours. No charge for territory. Wendell Co., 643 Oak St., Leipsic, O.

Sell a line of Monogram Stationery and Calling Cards. Big profit. Samples Free. F. D. Leder, 109 S. Charles, Baltimore, Md.

Agents earn $2.25 on each sale of our Special $5.00 Raincoats. Why don't you try it? Boston Raincoat Company, Boston, Mass.

Young Man, would you accept and wear a fine tailor made suit just for showing it to your friends? Then write Banner Tailoring Co., Dept. 952, Chicago, and get beautiful samples, styles and a wonderful offer.

Agents Wanted to devote all or part of their time selling lubricating oils and paints direct to the consumers. Salary or Commission. The Harvey Oil Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

Agents make $10 a day selling rugs at $1 each, cost agents 55c. Size 36 x 68. Sell from one to six at every house. Something every housewife wants. Full size rug for sample, 98 cents by parcel post. Commerce Specialty Co., Commerce, Tex.

$61.50 Weekly. Introducing and selling a new gas light burner for kerosene lamps. No chimney. No mantle. Samples free. Luther Manufacturing Co., Dept. 419, Cincinnati, Ohio.

20 Choice, Easter, Birthday, Greeting, Etc. Postcards 10c. Special offer to agents. Palmer Postcard Co., North Ferrisburg, Vt.

Free Offer. A 25c box of Eg-Save—substitute for 40 eggs for baking and cooking. Send 10c in stamps to pay for postage and wrapping. Agents wanted. Parmelee Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Sells Like Hot Cakes; Laundry wax perfumes clothes with lasting Violet perfume; outfit 5c; Perfume-Gloss, 13 Water St., N. Y.

Big Textile Mills will employ everywhere reliable people to take orders for dress fabrics, hosiery, underwear and neckwear from samples. Factory prices. Many making over $30.00 weekly. Spare or all time. No experience. Permanent. Steadfast Mills, 34 Remsen St., Cohoes, N. Y.

AGENTS WANTED

Agents—Pair Silk Hose Free. State size & color. Beautiful line direct from mill. Good profits. Agents wanted. Write today. Triplewear Mills, Dept. G, 112 So. 13th St., Phila., Pa.

Agents are coining money selling our Big 10c Packages of 20 Assorted Postal Cards. "5000 Varieties." "Big Profits." Sell everywhere. Sample Pkg. 10c. Particulars Free. Sullivan Card Co., 1234 Van Buren St., Chicago.

Engeaser Made $42.50 in 8 hours with Plateless Daydark taking Photos direct on cards, finishing instantly. Experience unnecessary. Trial proposition Free. Daydark Specialty Co., Dept. A, St. Louis, Mo.

Man Or Woman of good character in each town to distribute free goods as advertising; experience unnecessary; references required; $15 a week to start. Address Hudson, King & Co., Dept. A, 9 South Clinton St., Chicago.

Large Profits. Manufacture "Barley Crisp." New confection. Five cent package cost one cent to make. Machine and instructions, prepaid $7.50. Send ten cents for samples. Barley Crisp Co., 1202 Broadway, San Francisco.

Soap Agents Make more money selling Linro Products. Coffee, flavorings, spices, soaps, perfumes—135 other items. Big commission. Exclusive territory. Freight allowed. Extra free premiums besides cash given. Free Sample Case. No deposit required. Particulars cost nothing. Write today. Linro Company, 14 Linro Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

Operate Profitable Mail Order Book Business, 700% profit each sale, everything furnished. Folders free. Rollins Co., Dept. B, Boston

Hosiery And Underwear—Agents write for terms on best line. Free outfits this month. If you have never sold before write anyhow, and let us put you next to a winner. Tremont Mills, 102 Fifth Ave., New York.

We start you in business, furnishing everything; men and women, $30 to $200 weekly operating our "New System Candy Factories." Book free. William Ragsdale, East Orange, N. J.

Agents—New Mighty Money Making marvel. World startled. New marvelous clothes washing crystal. Clothes washing ideas revolutionized, positively abolishes rubbing, washboards, washing machines—women astounded, wild over it, absolutely harmless, $1,000 guarantee goes with it; make $50 to $100 weekly easy. Exclusive territory, no experience necessary; credit granted; own a business, supply customers; pocket big profits; nature's mighty elements do work. Hurry! Write today—get overwhelming proof, all free. Equitable Corporation, Dept. T, 215-217 W. Superior, Chicago.

$15 Week Salary and commission paid one person each town selling non-alcoholic flavorings. Linton Co., H-Kansas City, Mo.

Wanted: Lady Agent. 100% profit selling our brand new Sanitary Drawers; every lady will buy; first time offered to agents; not sold in stores; send postal for particulars. The Moss Company, 22 Moss Bldg., Rochester, N. Y.

FEMALE AGENTS WANTED

Women Make Money Introducing Priscilla Fabrics, Hosiery, Raincoats, etc. All or spare time. Samples free. Get particulars. Fitzcharles Co., Dept. 65, Trenton, N. J.

FARM LANDS WANTED

San Joaquin Valley, California—What Another Man Did: At Riverbank, Stanislaus County, California, he bought 12 irrigated acres at $150 an acre. A small farm? Yes, but ¼ acre of strawberries realized $265 and other small fruits brought his returns to over $500, in addition to the living for the family. This was from less than half of the twelve acres—just think how much more he will obtain as the balance of the farm is put into crop. Hundreds of small farms like this have made their owners independent of hard times or a "boss." Do you want to abundantly provide for Your family in the heart of Sunny California? Then write for our free booklets about "Poultry Raising", "Dairying" and the "San Joaquin Valley." Write Now, Today, to C. L. Seagraves, Gen. Colonization Agent, AT & SF Ry., 1809 Ry. Exchange, Chicago.

Wanted to hear of good farm for sale. Send description and price. Northwestern Business Agency, Minneapolis, Minn.

Productive lands, crop payment or easy terms—along the Northern Pacific Ry., in Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon. Free literature. Say what state interests you. L. J. Bricker, 22 Northern Pac. Ry., St. Paul, Minn.

Fertile Farms near Phila., fruit, poultry, truck, dairy; mild climate, excellent markets; catalog. W. Stevens, Perkasie, Pa.

How Much Do You Want For Your Farm? Let me know at once. A. Mohler, 1059 N. Calif. Ave., Chicago, Ill.

"California Homesteads Free. Send stamps or dime for New Booklet. California State Land Information Bureau, Sacramento, California.

POST CARD CLUBS

Why Be Lonesome? Exchange post cards. Members everywhere. Membership 10 cents. Golden West Club, 141 So. Alma St., Los Angeles, Cal.

If you really want to exchange postcards or letters, join the Halcyon. Lists circulate in many countries; Membership ten cents. The Halcyon. Box 133, Erie, Pa.

Parents. Let your children join our Post Card Club. Receive post card views from all parts the United States. Will teach them more about our country. Membership only 25 cents. Hundreds are joining. Also a large pack Beautiful Post Cards Free. Charles Tanner, Pres., Pleasant Valley, N. Y.

STAMMERING

St-stu-t-t-tering And Stammering cured at home. Instructive booklet free. Walter McDonnell, 606 Windsor Building, Wash., D.C.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

We Pay 25c cash each for farmers' names. Any number taken. Send dime for contract. T-Sun, LeRoy, Michigan.

Wanted—Names and addresses. All kinds. We pay 25c each. Send dime for contract. Directory Co., 9460 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago.

Free—6 Months—Investing for Profit, a monthly Guide to Money-Making. Tells how $100 grows to $2,200—how to get rich quickly and honestly. H. L. Barber, Pub., 470, 28 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago.

Big Profits in Home Gardens. Plant Ginseng and Golden Seal. Small plot brings more money than many farms. Booklet telling how. Rising Sun Ginseng Nursery, Box 310, Narrows, Ky.

Make Money gathering all kinds Medicinal Roots, Barks, Herbs etc. Write for circular. Grund Co., Logan Sta., Philadelphia, Pa.

We Buy Weed Roots, Barks, Herbs if properly cured. War prices. October Dandelion 18c. Leonard Drug Co., Bradford, Pa.

Best Yet! Get 60 to 100 letters daily with a dime in each. We do, so can you. No matter where you live. Particulars 10 cents. Eureka Co., Drawer D, Station A, Detroit, Michigan.

Make $2500 A Year in spare time. We teach you and start you in business for yourself. You can learn on the side and make money hand over fist. Your friends will wonder how you do it. Particulars free. National D. Co., 4313 Lincoln Av., Chicago.

HEIRS WANTED

Thousands of families are wanted to claim fortunes. Many now living in poverty are rich, but don't know it. Our 400-page index, entitled "Missing Heirs and Next of Kin," alphabetically arranged, contains authentic list of unclaimed estates and heirs wanted and advertised for in America and abroad to claim fortunes. Also contains Chancery Court of England and Ireland lists, and Bank of England unclaimed dividend list. Thousands of names in book. Yours or your ancestors' names may be among them. Send 2c stamp at once for free booklet. International Claim Agency, 2, Pittsburgh, Pa.

MALE HELP WANTED

Government Farmers Wanted—Age 21 to 50. $75 to $125 monthly. Ozment, 8-F St. Louis.

Railway Mail Clerks, Carriers and Rural Carriers wanted. I conducted exam. Can help you. Trial exam. Free. Ozment 8-R St. Louis.

I Want A Reliable Man in each county to give away premiums advertising Rogers 20 year Silverware. Pay $52 monthly, also commission. Chance for advancement. A. A. Cline, Advertising Manager, 809 Rogers Bldg., Philadelphia.

Be a Detective—Earn $150 to $300 monthly. Easy work; travel; we show you. Write Wagner, 1243 Lexington Ave., New York. Dept. 371.

Wanted—Railway Mail Clerks. $75 month. Sample examination questions free. Franklin Institute, Dep't P-9, Rochester, N. Y.

A Money Proposition—Co-operate with me in a profit-sharing mail order business. Will place trial advertisement, furnish printed matter, goods to fill orders and divide the profits. Particulars Desk 152, Hazen A. Horton, Tekonsha, Michigan.

BOOKS

Herb Doctor Recipe Book and Herb Catalog 10c. Reveals rare Indian herb secrets. Ind. Herb Gardens, Box 5X, Hammond, Ind.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

How To Play Mouth-Organ (harmonica). Anybody can learn; write for circular. Montfort Bros., 20 Maritime Bldg., New York.

TRAVEL

Free Exposition Guide Book—Indispensable in planning trip. Profusely illustrated with Exposition and Western Views. Authentic information regarding hotels, restaurants, side-trips, stop-over privileges. Enables you to plan definitely cost of trip. Send Today for this Free book and any other information. Gerrit Fort, P. T. M., Union Pacific Railroad Co., Room 8, U.P.Bldg., Omaha, Neb.

FOR PHOTOGRAPHERS

Have You A Camera? Write For Samples of my magazines, American Photography and Popular Photography, which tell you how to make better pictures and earn money. F. R. Fraprie, 669 Pope Bldg., Boston, Mass.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Will pay reliable Woman $250.00 for distributing 2000 Free packages Perfumed Soap Powder in your town. No money required. A. Ward & Co., 218 Institute Pl., Chicago.

Women With Tender Feet Should Wear our unlined vici kid Pillow Shoe. Fits and feels like a kid glove. Soft, durable, handsome. New shoes easy as old ones. No breaking in required. Write for free catalog and self-measure blank. Pillow Shoe Co., 184 Summer St., Dept. P., Boston, Mass.

Spend Summer Gathering Insects. I pay big prices. Instructions. Send Stamp. Sinclair, D. 30, Los Angeles, Cal.

Absolutely Free. Send postal. Sample superb sachet in silk bag, Orange Blossoms. Austin Chemical Co., Centre Harbor, N. H.

REAL ESTATE

Little Farms In Valley Of Virginia. 5 and 10 acre tracts, near R. R. town, $250 and up, good fruit, and live stock country. Send for literature. F. LaBaume, Agr'l. Agt., N. & W. Ry., 269 Arcade Bldg., Roanoke, Va.

Farms Wanted. Have direct buyers. Don't pay commissions. Write describing property, naming price. We help buyers locate desirable property Free. American Investment Assn., 77 Palace Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.

Real Estate Wanted. Sell your property quickly for cash, no matter where located, particulars free. Real Estate Salesman Co., Dept. 11, Lincoln, Nebr.

Money-Making Farms thruout 17 states; one acre to 1,000 acres, $500 to $50,000, many with livestock, tools and crops included. Big illustrated list sent free. E. A. Strout Farm Agency, Station 3027, 47 W. 34th St., New York.

Profit Making Farmlands in best districts of South, growing greatest variety of crops, giving best home locations. Shall we give you information? M. V. Richards, Ind. & Agri. Commissioner, Room 19, Southern Railway, Washington, D. C.

$100 Building Lots $50. Size 50x100 ft. Limited number. Forced sale. P. O. Box 305, Pen Argyl, Pa.

MOTION PICTURE PLAYS

Write Moving Picture Plays. $50 each. Constant demand. Devote all or spare time. Correspondence course not required. Details free. Atlas Pub. Co., 326, Cincinnati, O.

I guarantee $10 for first photo-play you write after taking my lessons. Obtain free booklet "How To Write Photoplays." Elbert Moore, Box 772, KN, Chicago.

We Accept Mss. In Any Form; Criticise Free; Sell on commission. Quick sales; Big Prices. Don't waste money on instructions. Write us. Story Rev. Co., Box 39, Smethport, Pa

$50 to $100 Weekly Writing Moving picture plays. Free book, valuable information and special prize offer. Chicago Photoplaywright College, Box 278 T. X. Chicago.

We Buy Plays. We tell how to write them. Details Free. C. Frye Publishing Co., 15 West 107 Str., New York City.

COINS AND STAMPS BOUGHT

$50. paid for Half Dol. 1853 no arrows; $5. for 1878 Half S. Mint; $100 for 1894 Dime S. Mint. Many valuable coins circulating. Send 4c. Get our Illus. Coin Circular. Send now. Numismatic Bank, Dept. 6, Fort Worth, Tex.

$4.25 Each Paid for U. S. Eagle Cents dated 1856. Keep all money dated before 1896, and send 10c at once for New Illustd Coin Value Book, 4x7. It may mean a fortune. Clarke & Co., Coin Dealers, Box 20, LeRoy, N. Y.

I pay from $1 to $1500 for thousands of rare Coins, Books, Paper Money, Stamps to 1901. Certain Mint Marks bring over $100. Get Posted quickly. Ill. Circular for 2 stamps. Vonbergen, (Est. 1885) Dept. (9), Boston, Mass.

FOOD BY PARCEL POST

Constipated? You're In Danger! Eat your way to Safety via Fidara the new Fruit Food. Delicious, Nourishing, Healthful. Send 10c for liberal sample and valuable folder. Cosnett Company, Sole Makers, Norwalk, O.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Guaranteed Boy's Watch or Girl's Gold-plated Bracelet given boys and girls for placing sample packet seeds with friends. P. Peoples Co., B-77, York Haven, Pa.

HOW TO GET PATENTS

Ideas Wanted—Manufacturers are writing for patents procured through me. Three books with list 200 inventions wanted sent free. Advice Free. I get patent or no fee. R. B. Owen, 18 Owen Bldg., Washington, D. C.

POST CARDS

Send Ten Cents for 20 Assorted High Grade Post Cards; One Flag Rug Free. Nichols Specialty Co., Whitehall, N. Y.

FOR POULTRYMEN

$500.00 Yearly Profit Out Of 12 Hens; Send for circular. Gen'l Products Mfg. Co., 807 Perkiomen St., Philadelphia, Pa.

SALESMEN WANTED

Wanted. Hustlers to take orders for made-to-measure high grade men's tailored suits from $9.00 to $22.00. Elegant large book outfit free. Experience unnecessary. No pocket folder affair. Splendid opportunity. Handy Dandy Line, Dept. H, Sangamon St., Chicago.

Traveling Salesmen Wanted—Experience unnecessary. Earn big pay while you learn by mail during spare time, only eight week's time required, one or two hours a day. Steady position, easy work, hundreds of good positions to select from. Write today for free book, "A Knight of the Grip," containing full particulars and testimonials from hundreds of students we have recently placed in good positions and who are earning $100 to $500 per month. Address Department B-28, National Salesmen Training Association, Chicago, New York, Kansas City, San Francisco.

POULTRY

Poultry Paper, 44-124 page periodical, up to date, tells all you want to know about care and management of poultry, for pleasure or profit; four months for 10 cents. Poultry Advocate, Dept. 112, Syracuse, N. Y.

Gibson White Leghorns, R. I. Reds, Barred Rocks, White Wyandots are properly bred. They lay and pay. Baby Chicks, Strong, livable, safe delivery guaranteed. Eggs for Hatching, guaranteed 80% fertile, give large hatches. Breeding Stock, large size, vigorous, healthy. Write for free catalog—Today. G. P. Gibson, Galen Farms, Drawer D, Clyde, N. Y.

Reliable Eggs For Hatching. Ringlet B. P. Rocks, Lt. Brahs. R. C. B. & S. C. W. Leghorns I. R. Ducks. Circular. Lackawanna Poultry Farm, North Water Gap, Pa.

Poultry, Ducks, Geese, Turkeys, Pigeons, and Dogs. Send 10 cents for book (fowls in color) tells how to make money with Poultry. Largest producers of poultry in the world. United Poultry Farms, Box 60, Hope, Ind.

43 Varieties, poultry, pigeons, ducks, geese. Incubators, feed and supplies. Catalog 4 cents. Missouri Squab Co., Kirkwood, Mo.

Poultry Raisers Succeed with Mandy Lee Incubators, Lee's Lice Killer, Germozone, and Lee's Egg Maker. Sold by dealers or direct. Send for Catalogs and Lee's Poultry Book. Free. Geo. H. Lee Co., Mfrs., Dept. 41, Omaha, Nebr.

60 Varieties Chickens, Ducks, Geese, Turkeys, Guineas and Hares. Stock and eggs. 60 page catalogue free. H. A. Souder, Box 4, Sellersville, Pa.

Barred Rocks, Silver Laced Wyandottes, Reds or Br. Leghorn eggs. Book Free. Sunnyside Poultry Farm, Box 7, Owensville, Mo.

EGGS FOR SALE

Buff and White Orpingtons. Winners at leading shows. Eggs for sale. Send two-cent stamp for circular telling how settings may be had free. A. J. Streett, Forest Hill, Maryland.

BY PARCEL POST

Ky. Tobacco—Old and sweet; natural leaf; guaranteed best chewing and smoking. 30c a pound, postpaid. J. L. Workman, Mayfield, Ky.

HELP WANTED

Wanted—Men prepare as Firemen, Brakemen, electric motormen, train porters (colored). Hundreds put to work—$65 to $150 a month. No experience necessary. 500 more wanted. Enclose stamp for application blank and book. State position. I. Railway C. I., Dept. C, Indianapolis, Ind.

Investigators Work In Every County in the United States. Be One. $15 to $75 per week to start. Write, Fidelity Secret Service, Desk 177, Wheeling, West Va.

$25 Weekly collecting all kinds names and addresses. No canvassing. Send stamp. Superba Co., A., Baltimore, Md.

15,000 Government Jobs Open To Men and women. $65.00 month. Write for list. Franklin Institute, Dep't P-12, Rochester, N. Y.

MUSIC AND SONG WRITERS

Song Poems Wanted. Prompt Decision. Splendid proposition. National Manuscript Sales Co., Suite 333, Broadway & 40th St., New York.

WEDDING INDITATIONS AND CALLING CARDS

Wedding Invitations or Announcements. Exquisite and cheapest in market. 100 calling cards, with case 50c. Write for samples. Franklin Art Co., Little Falls, N. Y.

PHOTO FINISHING

Kodak Films Developed, 10c. per roll, any size. Prompt attention given mail orders. Prints 2¼x3¼ to 3¼x4¼, 3c.; 4x5 to 3¼x5½, 4c. J. M. Manning, 1062 Third Ave., New York City. Box S.

Have You A Camera? Let us do your developing and Printing. Send for our price list. Do you want a camera or supplies? Send for our bargain sheet. The Coster Photo Supply Co., 19 E. 8th St., Holland, Mich.

SCHOOLS

Telegraphy—Wire & Wireless & Station Agency Taught. Largest School. Catalog Free. Dodge's Institute, L St., Valparaiso, Ind.

FEMALE HELP WANTED

Ladies send stamped envelope for particulars, testimonials and prices we pay to others working for us. Many have been with us for years. Pay sent weekly. No canvassing. Address Universal Co., Dept. 5, Phila., Pa.

Wanted. Tea aprons by dozens. Will buy all you can make. Send 15 cents (no stamps) for pattern and prices. Kenwood, 442 E. 61st St., Chicago, Ill.

Ladies Wanted for many different kinds of work; full or part time. Enclose stamp. Rankin & Dodson, 11 Oak St., Hillsdale, Pa.

Lady Agents—Daley pays big cash commission for spare time. Sample and premium list free. Daley Mfg. Co., St. Louis, Mo.

GAMES AND AMUSEMENTS

Tricks. Large List. Puzzles, Games, Novelties, Household Articles. Catalog Free. Wright & Son, 601 Ind. Ave., Peoria, Ill.

This Department is conducted solely for the use of COMFORT sisters, whereby they may give expression to their ideas relative to the home and home surroundings, and to all matters pertaining to themselves and families; as well as opening a way for personal correspondence between each other.

Our object is to extend a helping hand to COMFORT subscribers; to become coworkers with all who seek friendship, encouragement, sympathy or assistance through the interchange of ideas.

Any abuse of this privilege, such as inviting correspondence for the purpose of offering an article for sale, or undertaking to charge a sum of money for ideas, recipes or information mentioned in any letter appearing in this department, if reported, will result in the offender being denied the use of these columns.

Do not ask us to print letters requesting patterns, quilt pieces, etc., for the purpose of, or with the expectation of receiving the equivalent in return, for this is not an exchange column.

Do not ask us to publish letters requesting money contributions or donations of any sort. Much as we sympathize with the suffering and unfortunate, it is impossible to do this as we would be flooded with similar requests.

Do not request souvenir postals unless you have complied with the conditions which entitles you to such a notice. See postal request notice in another column.

We cordially invite mothers and daughters of all ages to write to COMFORT Sisters' Corner. Every letter will be carefully read and considered, and then the most helpful ones chosen for publication, whether the writer be an old or new subscriber.

Please write only on one side of the paper, and recipes on a separate sheet.

Always give your correct and full name and address, very plainly written; otherwise your letter will receive no attention.

Address all letters for this department to MRS. WHEELER WILKINSON, Care COMFORT, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

WE learned in our youth that "Cleanliness is next to Godliness," and if I may be permitted to add to that worthy, if somewhat worn, axiom I would say "and to health."

With the chill breezes of February blowing about us this may seem an inopportune time to speak of housecleaning, but when the health is at stake I do not believe in waiting until the day prescribed and set forth in the annals of housewifely lore and as I am a firm believer in getting at the bottom of things and working up, the first step in the right direction is toward the cellar.

Much of the sickness families suffer can be traced to that necessary adjunct to a house but as we cannot for a moment entertain the thought of getting along without one, the only thing to do is to keep it in a state of such spick-and-span cleanliness that no germ, no matter how courageous, would dare venture therein. Usually the cellar opens into the kitchen, the kitchen is heated, the cellar is not; therefore, following natural laws, the colder air of the cellar will rush to take the place of the warmer and, of course, lighter air of the kitchen whenever the door is opened. Too often the air is laden with the odor of partly decayed vegetables and other germ-producing matter. Remove everything of that nature, brush down the cobwebs and with a bucket of lime give the walls and ceiling a coat of whitewash. If you do not possess a brush of the latest and most approved pattern, do not let that deter you from your good work for an old broom will answer the purpose quite as well only be sure and spread the whitewash on thick and strong. Let in all the sunlight possible for it is one of the greatest health producers and germ killers known and certainly the cheapest. Make sure of proper ventilation and drainage and then if after following these simple but effective rules, you are afflicted with fevers, diphtheria and kindred diseases, you may know that it is through no fault of yours and your cellars and can look elsewhere for the cause. —Ed.

GUY, KY.

DEAR COMFORT SISTERS:

I have wondered in all the many letters I have read in dear old COMFORT that someone has not written on the "working girl." I wonder how many of the sisters earn their living behind the counter, in the office or factory as the case may be.

The working girls to my mind, need more care and protection than any other class of people in public life. Especially the pure country girl, who has been reared in a Christian home, and longs for the pleasure of city life. If she has a beautiful face, fresh with the roses of youth, she needs more protection than the ordinary boarding house can give. After a day in the office or shop, weary of the tread wheels of life, we are often tempted by the five-cent theaters, or car rides, which are offered.

For six long years I have known what the life of the working girl means. I know what it means to be a saleslady; I know what it means to be a stenographer; I know what it means to be a dressmaker, in one of the largest dressmaking establishments in the United States, and I know what it means to accept the cross words of some, and reject the smiles of others, but to those who do not, I would say, bear it all silently. The place of difficulty is the place of power. Often the burning tears caused from ill-spoken words, rightly received will bring us at last to our goal.

The problem of so many working girls, is the cost of living, board, laundry and incidentals exceed the salary, nothing being left for clothing, much less, little luxuries which every girl longs for and needs. Twelve months ago, a girl friend of mine, being employed in the same house as myself, mentioned a better way of living, than in the public boarding houses. She stated how she and another girl had been successful in "light housekeeping." I soon became interested, and we quietly established ourselves in a home of our own. We rented two rooms and a hall (furnished). The front room faced the street; we used it as sitting-room and bedroom. The hall we used as storeroom for groceries. It also contained a refrigerator and wash-stand. The back room we used for dining-room and kitchen. The rooms were furnished with modern conveniences and were easily kept in order.

The landlady was a dear, good woman, and we used her parlor on Sundays. Every working girl knows what it means to try to receive company in a public parlor in a boarding-house. That is the reason so many accept invitations to places not approved of by mothers.

My roommate, as well as myself, were reared in good country homes, consequently we were taught economics and cooking. We did our cooking and housecleaning and had plenty of time for little home pleasures. During our summer vacation we canned our fruit and prepared other things for our comfort. By so doing our expenses were less than half our board bill, and our pleasure far exceeded our extra work. Our evenings were spent in reading or needlework, which we were deprived of, in the boarding house.

We feel we have the protection of home life, which is so dear to a home-loving girl.

To every girl having a good country home, I would say, try and make the most of every opportunity. While the city has many an opportunity it also has many an obstacle. It takes almost every cent one can make to "keep in style," and after all it is one ceaseless struggle.

To the girl who longs for city pleasures, think first of the pleasures of country life; the broad fields, meadows, hills and babbling brooks speak a language that brings more pleasure than you will ever find in a city. There is nothing in all the world so lonesome as being in a city without friends.

Would you like to know what this working girl is like? If you could see her in her country home, on a summer day, swimming, rowing, horseback riding or indulging in other outdoor sports, you would say: "A mere girl, full of life," but in the workroom you find, a quiet reserved character, with hazel eyes, fair complexion and a wealth of auburn hair.

With very best wishes to Mrs. Wilkinson and sisters,
I am sincerely,
LAURA CLARK.

Miss Clark. We are glad to make your acquaintance and almost envy you your cozy home. I knew of several girls who tried a plan similar to yours, only on a larger scale. Each girl turned in so much money every week and they took turns planning and serving the meals. Much good-natured rivalry existed as to which girl could do the best for the least amount of money. Not only were they able to enjoy the home privileges and shelter, but all learned much of practical value in household affairs. I hope this will meet the eye of some homesick country girl and enable her to do likewise.—Ed.

Comfort's Sisters' Recipes and Everyday Helps

CORNED BEEF SOUP.—When the liquid in which the beef and vegetables were boiled is cold, remove all the grease that has risen and hardened on top, and add tomatoes and boil half an hour, thus making an excellen tomato soup; or add to it rice or sago, or turn it into a vegetable soup by boiling in the liquor any vegetables that are fancied; several varieties of soup may have this "stock" for a basis and be agreeable and nutritious.—Ed.

CELERY SOUP.—Five heads of celery, one pint of stock, three pints of water, one half pint of cream or good milk. Any ends of celery you may not care to use on table will do for soup. Cut them into inch pieces and cook till very tender, then press through a sieve. Add the stock and let it cook slowly half an hour; then stir in the cream and let it get very hot but not boil.—Ed.

FISH CHOWDER.—Take a small piece of pork, cut into squares, and put it into the bottom of the kettle. Then add the fish, cut into larger pieces than the pork (three pounds make a good-sized chowder), then a layer of potatoes, next a layer of crackers, onions if desired, and pepper and salt. Above this put a layer of pork and repeat; let the top layer be buttered crackers. Pour on boiling water until covered, cook for half an hour. Five minutes before serving add a pint of hot milk.—Ed.

ESCALLOPED CHICKEN.—Butter a baking dish. Arrange alternate layers of cold sliced chicken and boiled macaroni or rice. Pour white sauce over this and cover with buttered cracker crumbs and bake in a hot oven till crumbs are brown.

ESCALLOPED CHICKEN.

WHITE SAUCE.—Two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one cup milk and one quarter teaspoon salt.

FISH CROQUETTES.—Take cold fish of any kind, separate it from the bones and mince fine; add a little seasoning, an egg, a very little milk and a teaspoon of flour; brush with an egg, roll in bread crumbs, shape and fry brown in hot lard.—Ed.

MINCED LIVER.—Cut liver into small pieces and fry with salt pork; cut both into square bits, nearly cover with water, add pepper and a little lemon juice; thicken the gravy with fine bread crumbs and serve.—Ed.

SPICED SALMON.—Place in the cooking dish the liquor from one can of salmon with two tablespoons of butter, two of lemon juice, four of water, a half dozen cloves. When it begins to boil add the salmon free from skin and bones. Season with cayenne pepper and salt to taste. Boil for several minutes and serve on crackers. This is a good chafing dish recipe.—Ed.

SALMON SAUSAGE.—One cup of salmon and mix with corn-meal until of proper consistency to mix into cakes. Fry in hot fat. Salt to taste.

MRS. CARRIE COOPRIDER, Herrin, R. R. 1, Ill.

SHEPHERD PIE.—Season well some cold mashed potatoes; chop and season well some cold meat, ham is excellent. Put in a well-greased earthern dish in layers until the dish is filled with a layer of potatoes on top. Place bits of butter on top and bake a delicate brown.—Ed.

ESCALLOPED ONIONS.—Boil till tender six large onions; afterward separate them with a large spoon; then place a layer of onions and a layer of grated bread crumbs alternately in a pudding dish; season with pepper and salt to taste; moisten with milk; put in oven to brown.—Ed.

BROILED TOMATOES.—Take large, round tomatoes, wash and wipe and put in gridiron over lively coals, stem side down. When brown, turn and let cook through. Place them on hot dish and send quickly to table where they may be seasoned to suit individual tastes.—Ed.

DUTCH CABBAGE.—Slice one small red cabbage, wash and put on to boil with six tart apples, pared and quartered, and one quarter pound of fat salt pork. Cover with boiling water, boil one and one half hours. Drain, remove pork and serve.—Ed.

CINNAMON ROLLS.—Requested. When making bread, as you knead it the second time for the oven, take a quantity of the dough and roll it out on the cake board until about three quarters of an inch thick, spread over with melted butter, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon; roll up as for jelly roll and cut in slices about an inch thick; put in a well-greased pan and let rise until light, then bake in a hot oven. When done frost with a little powdered sugar moistened with milk.—Ed.

LEMON CRACKERS.—(Requested.) Two cups sugar, one cup butter, two eggs, one cup sweet milk, one teaspoon oil of lemon, five cents' worth baker's ammonia. Warm milk a little and dissolve ammonia in it; mix all together. Add flour to roll, and pound hard for ten minutes with rolling pin before cutting out. Prick with a fork after putting in the pans to bake.

MRS. BERTHA STOVALL, Freeburg, Mo.

OATMEAL COOKIES.—Beat two eggs with a cup of sugar, one cup butter or lard, two cups flour, one scant teaspoon soda, one scant teaspoon baking powder, two thirds cup sour milk, two cups oatmeal, one cup raisins, one teaspoon cloves and one of cinnamon. Drop from spoon in pan, couple of inches apart.

MRS. JOHN W. NOONAN, Leo Valley, Nebr.

CORN FRITTERS.—To a can of corn, add two eggs well-beaten, two tablespoons of flour, one teaspoon of salt, one half teaspoon of pepper; mix thoroughly; have the pan hot; put in two tablespoons of lard, and drop in the corn in large spoonfuls. Cook brown.—Ed.

TOMATO TOAST.—Rub tomatoes through the colander, and cook to taste; toast three slices of bread, butter and place on hot dish; just before serving add a cup of cream or milk and a pinch of soda to the tomatoes and pour over the toast.—Ed.

POTATO CHEESE PUFFS.—Take some grated cheese, some cold mashed potato and a beaten egg, with a little butter; mix well, adding salt and pepper; put into patty-pans and bake in a quick oven. Serve hot.—Ed.

MOLASSES CAKE.—Two cups of molasses, one cup of butter, four eggs, one heaping tablespoon soda, one scant cup of hot water, one teaspoon ginger, five cups of flour.

YELLOW CAKE.—Yolks of eight eggs, one cup of sugar, half a cup of butter, half a cup of sweet milk, one and one half cups of flour, two teaspoons of baking powder; flavor with lemon.

MRS. LAURA B. GABBARD, Eversale, Ky.

SURPRISE CAKE.—One egg, one cup sugar, one half cup butter, one cup sweet milk, one teaspoon soda, two teaspoons cream of tartar. Flavor with lemon and use enough sifted flour to make the proper consistency and you will be surprised at the result.

POUND CAKE.—One pound flour, one pound butter, one pound sugar, eight eggs and three teaspoons rose water.

MRS. CLAUDE SELLARS, O'Neils, Cal.

BLACK GEORGE CAKE.—Yolks of two eggs, two cups of flour, one tablespoon of cloves and one of cinnamon, one cup of dark molasses and one teaspoon of soda dissolved in a cup of boiling water. Mix and bake in slow oven.

ICING.—Take the whites of eggs and beat until hard then stir them into a cup of sugar that has boiled until it threads; beat until cold and spread over cake.

MRS. CLARA VAN CLEVE, Houston, Ark.

SOFT CHOCOLATE FILLING.—Take six tablespoons of thick, sweet cream, thicken with powdered sugar, beating all the time. When sufficient chocolate to taste is melted, add to sugar and cream and add one half teaspoon vanilla; beat well and spread on while cake is hot.

SPONGE CAKE.—Four eggs beaten separately, then beaten together, two cups sugar slowly beaten in, two cups flour, two tablespoons baking powder, a pinch of salt, last of all one cup boiling water and one teaspoon lemon; heat the pan.

ANNA BAILEY, McGregor, Texas.

COLONIAL GINGERBREAD.—Colonial gingerbread is the name of a delicious loaf cake which is served at certain well-known dining resorts in Southern California and which has done much to make the places known among epicures. To make this cake put a cup of New Orleans molasses in a mixing bowl with half a cup of butter and half a cup of sugar. Over this pour a cup of boiling water, in which a dessertspoon of soda (just level) has already been dissolved. Stir well and let the mixture cool. Then add a cup of chopped walnuts and a cup of seeded raisins, a teaspoon each of ginger and cinnamon, two and one half cups of flour and lastly two well-beaten eggs. Bake in a shallow pan and serve while still warm.

DEVIL'S FOOD LAYER CAKE.—First part. Half cup brown sugar, three quarters cup grated chocolate, one quarter cup sweet milk. Let come to a boil and cool. Second Part. Half cup brown sugar, and quarter cup butter creamed together. Add yolks of two small eggs and beat well with sugar and butter. Add half cup milk, a pinch of salt, vanilla to taste and the first mixture (thoroughly cooled), two cups flour, half teaspoon soda and quarter teaspoon cream of tartar. Put boiled frosting between layers.

CHOCOLATE LAYER CAKE.—One cup butter, two cups sugar, one cup milk, five eggs, leaving out the whites of three, four cups sifted flour, two teaspoons baking powder, or one small teaspoon soda and two of cream of tartar in the flour. Bake in three layers in deep jelly tins. For icing take whites of three eggs, beaten stiff, one and one half cups of powdered sugar, six tablespoons grated chocolate, two teaspoons vanilla.

SPICE CAKE.—Take two cups of brown sugar, one half cup of butter, two and two thirds cups of flour, one cup sour milk, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon of baking powder, two teaspoons ground cinnamon, one teaspoon ground cloves, one half nutmeg grated, white of one egg and yolks of two eggs. Use the other white of egg for icing. Bake either in layers or in a loaf.

CHOCOLATE SPICE CAKE.—One half cup butter, one cup sugar, one half cup milk, one quarter teaspoon allspice, one quarter teaspoon cloves, one quarter teaspoon nutmeg, one and one half cups flour, two eggs, one and one half teaspoons baking powder, one half teaspoon cinnamon, four teaspoons ground chocolate. Put spices in flour. Cream sugar and butter, add yolks of eggs well-beaten. Sift together flour, baking powder and spice and add to mixture alternately with milk and white of eggs beaten stiff.

COOKIES.—Two cups sugar, one cup butter, one cup sour cream or milk, three eggs, one teaspoon soda; a scant half teaspoon baking powder. Mix soft, roll thin, sift granulated sugar over them, and gently roll it in.

MRS. C. M. HILL, 1121 Guerro St., San Francisco, Cal.

FRUIT CAKE.—One cup sugar, one half cup butter, two cups flour, one half cup raisins, one egg, one half teaspoon soda, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon cloves; mix as for plain cake.

IDA NIEMANN, Washington, R. R. 2, Mo.

JELLY CAKE.—Two eggs, well-beaten, one cup of milk, one and one half cups sugar, two cups flour, three tablespoons of butter, and three even teaspoons of baking powder. Bake in thin layers, cover with jelly and roll.

NETTIE POWELL, Pearlington, Miss.

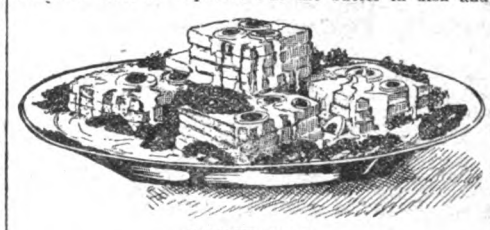
CHOCOLATE CRACKERS.—Melt half a cake of chocolate and sweeten with a scant half cup of sugar; spread on thin crackers. To vary this, mix chopped nuts in part of the melted chocolate.—Ed.

MOLASSES DOUGHNUTS.—One cup molasses, one egg, one cup sour milk, one half cup sugar, two teaspoons butter or lard, one teaspoon soda, ginger and nutmeg, a little salt and flour to roll.—Ed.

MOCK MINCE MEAT.—One peck tomatoes, one half peck apples, five pounds brown sugar, one cup suet, one cup vinegar, one tablespoon salt, one teaspoon of cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg, two pounds of raisins. Chop tomatoes and boil one and half hours, then chop the apples and add with all other ingredients and boil one half hour; then can. Try it sisters, it's fine.

MARY DEARDURFF, Newark, Ohio.

STEAMED CHOCOLATE PUDDING.—One egg, one half cup sugar, one half cup sweet milk, one cup flour, butter size of an egg, one teaspoon cream of tartar, one half teaspoon soda, one square melted chocolate; steam one hour. Serve with whipped cream.—Ed.



PORK PIE.—Line a deep dish with pastry, put in one layer of cut apples, two tablespoons of molasses, spice to taste, some sugar, a little salt and a slice of fat salt pork cut as thin as a knife, a layer of the pastry and so on until dish is full. Before covering the top put in three quarters cup of molasses and bake in a slow oven four hours. Serve with whipped cream. —Ed.

SWEET POTATO PIE.—(Requested.) Scrape clean two good-sized sweet potatoes; boil, when tender rub through the colander; beat the yolks of three eggs light; stir with a pint of sweet milk into the potato; add a small teacup of sugar, a pinch of salt; flavor with a little fresh lemon, or extract will do; bake as for a pumpkin pie; when done make a meringue top with the whites of eggs and powdered sugar; brown a moment in oven.

TAPIOCA CREAM.—Soak three tablespoons of tapioca in one quart sweet milk over night. In the morning put the milk and tapioca to boil in double boiler, add salt to taste; beat the yolks of three eggs and one cup of sugar together and when the tapioca comes to a boil stir in eggs and sugar. Beat the whites to a stiff froth and stir in the hot mixture. Flavor with vanilla and serve cold.

MISS WILHELMIA STRAHL, Danville, Sta. A., Gen-Del., Ill.

CREAMED EGGS.—One tablespoon butter, one cup milke one tablespoon flour, three hard-boiled eggs, one half teaspoon salt, one half teaspoon pepper, as many slices of toast as required. Put the butter in dish and when boiling, add the flour, salt, pepper and gradually the milk. Add the eggs, cut in thin slices. When hot, pour over toast and garnish with parsley.—Ed.

CREAMED EGGS.

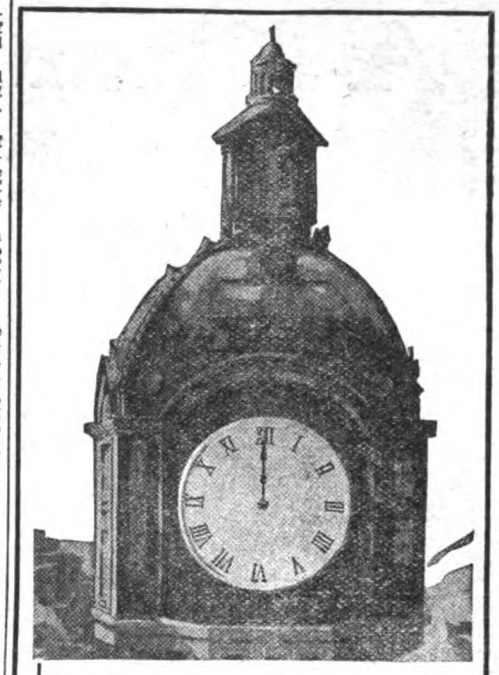
EMERGENCY DESSERT.—Warm the leftover biscuits in the oven, split them and cover with canned peaches or any fresh or canned fruit, cover with whipped cream and you have individual shortcake on short notice.

LEMON PIE HINT.—Instead of grating off the rind of the lemon, squeeze out juice and put the rind on to boil in water to be used for making the filling. When boiled, remove and strain and proceed to make the custard exactly as you would if you had grated the rinds. Think water is much better for lemon pie than milk.



MRS. A. B. WEDGEWOOD, Dutch Flat, Cal.

SPICED APPLES.—Three pounds of apples, pared; four pounds of sugar, one quart of vinegar, one ounce of stick cinnamon, half an ounce of cloves; boil the sugar, vinegar and spices together, put in the apples when boiling and let remain until tender; take them out, put into a jar, boil down the syrup until it is thick, and pour over.—Ed.

SALAD CREAM DRESSING.—One cup fresh cream, one tablespoon fine flour, whites of two eggs beaten stiff, three tablespoons vinegar, two tablespoons olive oil or melted butter, two tablespoons powdered sugar, one teaspoon salt, one half teaspoon pepper, one teaspoon made mustard. Heat cream almost to boiling, stir in flour previously wet with water, boil two minutes, stirring constantly; add sugar and take from fire; when half cold beat in whites of eggs; set aside to cool; when cold whip in the olive oil or butter, pepper, mustard and salt. Add vinegar about ten minutes afterwards.

FLORENCE RIEGLE, Lyons, Kans.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 9.)

At Noon Today

Countless thousands will lunch on Van Camp's Pork and Beans. All over America, in restaurants and homes, they will meet to enjoy this dish.

A few years ago it was old-style Baked Beans—the kind our mothers baked. Now it's the new-style—Beans mealy and mellow, uncrisped and unbroken, with a zestful sauce baked in.

This new dish is our chefs' creation. They have spent 20 years in perfecting it. And nowhere today is a dish like Van Camp's baked outside these model kitchens.

VAN CAMP'S
PORK & BEANS BAKED WITH TOMATO SAUCE

Also Baked Without the Sauce

10, 15 and 20 Cents Per Can

The time is past for home-baked beans. It took too long to prepare them. Some were hard, some crisp, some mushy. All were under-baked.

It is recognized now that modern steam ovens are essential to right baking. Even big hotels with their chefs and facilities buy baked beans from us.

These kitchens largely brought that change about—our methods, recipes and chefs. Van Camp's revealed how good baked beans can be. Let them show you—that is all we ask. A single meal will win you.

Buy a can of Van Camp's Beans to try. If you do not find them the best you ever ate, your grocer will refund your money.

A Thorn Among Roses

By Mrs. Georgie Sheldon

Copyright, 1898 and 1899 by Street and Smith. Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING EVENTS.

Alice and May Weston receive an invitation to a farewell reception, given to William Curtis Marchmont, the adopted son of Roland Fletcher, who is engaged to Alice, and is to enter Yale College. Alice is to study law with Judge Ashburton, whose daughter was the wife of Roland Fletcher. Her health failing their daughter Olive is sent, when a baby, to her grandfather, Judge Ashburton, living then in Philadelphia. Imogen Ingraham's mother, Mrs. Farquahar, marries Judge Ashburton. She dies, and Imogene, as the widow of Robert Ingraham and homeless, is invited by Judge Ashburton to accept a home with him and care for Olive. She conceals the birth of her child.

Roland Fletcher, assisted by Olive and Imogen on his left, Judge Ashburton and Will on his right receive their guests. Imogen and Olive, jealous of the attentions given to Alice, ignore her half-extended hand. Mr. Fletcher mortified and displeased receives her most cordially and welcomes her to Castleview. Later he leads her in a quadrille, after which they go into a long corridor. Stopping before a painting Alice learns it is the portrait of Mr. Fletcher's wife. He wishes nothing better for her, than she may be as happy with his boy, as he was with his wife. Will joins them and Olive passes without a word of greeting. Mr. Fletcher follows Olive and requests that she be more courteous to her guests. Will goes to Yale. Judge Ashburton opens his office in town with Alice as his clerk. May is busy. Olive and Imogen out driving. Olive proposes they call for her grandfather. Imogen orders Buxton to drive to the office. Olive takes the lines, Judge Ashburton insists that Alice, who is suffering from a headache, shall ride home. A newspaper caught in the wind, frightens one of the horses and both spring forward. Olive drops the lines and Alice, with rare presence of mind secures them and controls the horses. Judge Ashburton and the driver take Alice home. He reprimands Imogen and Olive for their indifference and failure to thank Alice and realizes a phase in Imogen's character, hitherto concealed. Mr. Fletcher calls upon Mrs. Weston and Alice and expresses his gratitude.

Will's last vacation comes. Judge Ashburton arranges a little excursion which includes Alice and May Weston. Arriving at their destination, they meet Arthur Stamford, in love with Alice Weston, his father Sir Arthur Stamford, Mr. Tom Radcliffe and his sister, Miss Grace. Tom Radcliffe proposes a visit to the caves. Alice Weston and Grace Radcliffe become separated from the party. Alice stopping to tie her shoe Grace goes on. Alice's candle goes out. She feels a grip on her arm and a gruff voice inquires if she knows a woman by the name of Ingraham who lives at Castleview and requests her to send a letter, which he thrusts into her hands. Arthur Stamford returns to find Alice and asks her to be his wife. She admits her love for and engagement to another. In the meanwhile Sir Arthur evinces unusual interest in Will Marchmont and learns to his astonishment that his middle name is Curtis. His mother, Mabel Randal Curtis, was Sir Arthur's second wife, whose first husband was the second son of Lady Marchmont—the Marquise of Leith. A visit to Lady Marchmont confirms Will's parentage and his right to Marchmont Court. He visits Alice, assuring her that nothing can part them and in one year she will be his wife, the future Marquise of Leith. Lady Marchmont exacts much from the future Marquise of Leith, and at her grandson's suggestion she writes a note to Alice, inviting her to come to Leith for a week preceding a reception she is to give in honor of Will and before his departure for Yale College. In the meanwhile Olive is invited to visit at Marchmont Court. She resolves to win Will at any cost, and to his astonishment and regret admits her love for him. Imogen, receiving the letter, given to Alice, by the mysterious stranger, determines to accomplish the union of Will and Olive, and plots to place Alice in a false position before her hostess. Nellie, Mrs. Marchmont's maid, discovers the loss of sixty pounds. Alice, in packing her trunk notices an unusual disorder. Lifting some clothing she finds the missing money and valuable jewelry. Speaking to May, she requests her to call Lady Marchmont and Will, and admits to them where and how she finds it. Lady Marchmont looks amazed.

CHAPTER XIII.

ALICE IS VINDICATED.

ALICE met the look which her ladyship bent upon her with one as steadfast as her own.

Her face never wavered beneath that searching gaze, but there was an expression of pathetic despair within their blue depths and her sensitive lips quivered with suppressed agony.

"I am so glad to have found them before leaving the court," she said, unsteadily, "but, oh! what does it mean, and how came they here in my trunk?"

"It is certainly very strange," Lady Marchmont observed, with slow gravity, while her glance dropped and rested again upon the stolen articles, a perplexed expression sweeping over her face.

Will now sprang forward and caught both Alice's hands in his.

"My darling, don't look so wretched," he said, tenderly, "some enemy has done this, and we will sift the matter to the bottom; we will get at the truth—no shadow of suspicion shall rest upon you."

Alice flashed a look of loving gratitude up at him. She was inexpressibly relieved to find that there was no question of doubt in his mind.

"Grandmother, surely you do not believe that Alice could be guilty of such an act," the young man added, as he turned to her ladyship.

She was still gazing intently into the trunk, and appeared to be absorbed in thought.

Before replying to Will, she stooped and picked a short piece of narrow flat braid from a garment, and which had been partially concealed beneath the jewels.

She studied it thoughtfully for a moment.

Then she turned once more to Alice and gently laid her hand upon her shoulder.

"No, Will, I am sure she could not," she said, and there was a soothing note of conviction in her tone that was like balm to the girl's wounded heart.

"Oh, thank you!—thank you!" she faltered, in a scarcely audible voice, and then, unable to maintain her self-possession a moment longer, she dropped her head weakly upon the woman's shoulder and a great sob burst from her overcharged heart, although she could not shed a tear to relieve her burning brain.

"Hush, dear; don't break down now—you have done a brave thing; be patient and everything will come all right. Will, take her out on the upper veranda until she becomes more calm," her ladyship said, as she softly smoothed the girl's shining hair with a caressing hand. "Meantime," she added, "I will take charge of these things and you may trust me to manage this affair for the best interests of all concerned."

She laid Alice's hand within her lover's, then, stooping, she gathered up the money and jewels and hastened from the room.

Going directly to her own chamber, she unlocked her jewel case, the key having been left in it—for it was seldom that anyone save herself or her maid entered that apartment—thrust the notes and jewels within it, and was about to close the cover and relock it when her eye lighted upon something that stayed her hand and caused a cry of surprise to break from her. With a peculiar gleam in her eye, she carefully detached two or three threads that had caught in one corner of the box where the wood had started a trifle, and which looked like strands of silken fringe that had broken away from some garment.

Lady Marchmont laid the small piece of flat braid which she had found in Alice's trunk beside them, and a cold, scornful smile curled her lips.

"The real thief was a bungler," she murmured, "and the girl is guiltless; but it must have tried her very soul to send for me, as she did, and show me where the money and jewels had been concealed. Under ordinary circumstances, suspicion must inevitably have fallen upon her—but for these strands of fringe the affair would have seemed inexplicable. That girl is one in a thousand. She need not have sent for me—knowing the house as well as she does, she could easily have slipped into my rooms and returned the stolen property, and no one would ever have been the wiser; but no—even at the risk of becoming implicated in the theft, she adopted a perfectly straightforward course. She is a sweet, noble girl—a gem of the first water and worthy in every way to be Will's wife; but—I wish she were better born," she concluded, with a sigh of regret, although there was a very tender light in her gray eyes.

She carefully straightened out the strands of fringe, folded them in a piece of paper and pinned it together, and then turned to leave the room.

She had almost reached the door when she caught sight of a tiny glittering object that had rolled under a chair.

She stopped to secure it and her face grew rigid and stern as she examined it.

"Now I am sure," she muttered as with a firm step and resolute air she passed out of the apartment.

She encountered Nellie in the hall, just outside her door, and she was still looking pale and anxious.

"I have found it, Nellie," said her mistress, in a kind, reassuring tone.

"The money; oh, I am so glad!" exclaimed the girl, looking inexpressibly relieved.

"Yes, both the money and the bill," said her ladyship, who thought it unnecessary to say anything about the jewels, "they are in my jewel case, very carefully locked away with my jewels." Then she inquired: "Have you spoken of the matter to anyone?"

"No, your ladyship."

"That is well, do not mention it—it has been an awkward blunder, and I do not care to have it talked of. And you need not have been so miserable over it, either, Nellie," her mistress added, kindly, "for you have been with me long enough to prove to me that you are above suspicion."

"Thank you," returned the girl, gratefully, her face at once breaking into smiles.

Her ladyship passed on her way, and upon reaching the library, explained the matter to the gentlemen in the same way that she had done to the maid.

It was not necessary to say anything about the jewels; the money was safely locked in her jewel box, and the real thief had made an awkward blunder in leaving traces behind which would not fail to result in detection.

Both the judge and Mr. Fletcher congratulated her upon the satisfactory result of her investigation, and never gave another thought to the matter.

Half an hour later the party were all assembled in the drawing-room and ready for their departure.

"Will," said Lady Marchmont, turning to him, as if with sudden thought, "while you are waiting for the carriage, suppose you take the young ladies into the conservatory and have the gardener cut whatever they would like. Send something nice to Mrs. Weston, and yesterday I heard Miss Fletcher admire the orchids—let them choose for themselves."

Will led the way to do her bidding, while Mr. Fletcher and the judge went out upon the veranda to wait for the appearance of the carriages and see that the luggage was properly disposed of.

When all were beyond hearing, Lady Marchmont turned gravely to Imogen, who alone had remained with her, and remarked:

"Mrs. Ingraham, I have here one of the little charms which I think I have seen you wear on a bangle—one of those you have on. Let me see—yes—there is one missing from the one on your left wrist, and I am sure this must be it," and she produced the tiny glittering object which she had found beneath the chair in her room.

"Yes, it is," said Imogen, innocently, as she took it, "and I am glad to get it, for the bangles were bought in Italy more than twenty years ago. But I had not missed the charm until this moment; where did you find it?"

"Under a chair in my chamber, less than an hour ago, Mrs. Ingraham," composedly replied her ladyship, "and," she continued, without appearing to observe the woman's flush and guilty start, "here is something else which perhaps may interest you; part of it I found in Miss Alice Weston's trunk, with my missing money and jewels, the rest was caught in the corner of my jewel box. They are some strands which exactly match the fringe on the dress you wore this morning, and which has been the means of solving what might have proved to be a very perplexing mystery."

While she was speaking, she had unfolded the paper in which she had wrapped the threads and quietly laid it, with its contents, upon her companion's lap.

The guilty woman had not a word to say in self-defense.

She sat white and dumb, overwhelmed with shame and despair, staring with a horror-smitten face down upon those evidences of her treachery, and feeling, for the moment, as if life were not worth the living.

"There is but one construction that I can put upon this exceedingly unfortunate occurrence," Lady Marchmont continued, her delicate nostrils dilated with scorn, as she emphasized the word, "and that is, that, for some reason best known to yourself, you were determined to ruin the lovely girl who, I trust, will some day become the wife of my grandson, and who has proved herself, in this instance, a veritable heroine; for, the instant she discovered what had been put into her trunk, she sent for me, and, regardless of the consequences, showed me what she had found. As I have told you, I found one strand of that broken fringe with the money and jewels and recognized reason to be very proud, as well as fond, of her girls. Good by, Miss May," she continued, with smiling cordiality, as she shook her warmly by the hand, "you will come again sometime and make us a longer visit."

Then the Fletcher carriage drove away, but Imogen and Olive had seen and heard enough to destroy their last hope and to prove to them that Alice Weston would some day reign as mistress at Marchmont Court.

Alice herself was very quiet during her homeward drive, but she was not unhappy, although she had been inexpressibly shocked to learn that some enemy had endeavored to ruin her in the estimation of Lady Marchmont and her lover.

Not a word had been said to explain how the matter regarding the stolen money and jewels had been settled, but she knew well enough from her ladyship's tenderness at parting with her and her frigidity toward Imogen, that it had been settled in a way to exonerate her completely; while she also, having recognized the bit of fringe found in her trunk, had drawn her own inferences regarding the identity of her enemy.

She knew, too, that Will understood, for when Lady Marchmont had bowed to Imogen without offering her hand, he had shot her a significant glance that spoke volumes.

It was nearly dark when the Marchmont carriage passed through Windsor and turned into the road leading to Beechcote.

Just as it swung slowly around this corner, it passed a rather shabby looking man, who appeared to be lounging there. His shrewd eyes scanned every face in it with a rapid, comprehensive glance, and then swept the vehicle with a look no less keen.

Hello! he suddenly ejaculated, in a tone of astonishment, and then he sprang forward and laid hold of the rack which held the luggage, walking swiftly to keep pace with the horses. "I'll be blamed if I don't believe I've seen that thing before."

CHAPTER XIV.

ALICE WINS A SIGNAL TRIUMPH.

That thing was the perforated extension.

Keeping directly behind the carriage, to escape observation, he followed it as best he could until it turned into the yard at Beechcote, when he dropped back, concealed himself in a hedge by the wayside, and watched while the occupants alighted and the luggage was carried inside the house.

A few moments later the equipage returned and swept past him and away toward the town.

"Well, I swear!" muttered the man in ambush, as he crept forth from his hiding place, "that beats the record, and one of those girls must be that missing baby that I've been hunting for all these years!—and now we've got the whole business right here in a nutshell, so to speak."

Will spent the night at Castleview, although, after what had occurred at Leith, he shrank from meeting Imogen again; but he knew that both Mr. Fletcher and Judge Ashburton were ignorant of the circumstances attending the recovery of the stolen money and jewels, and he did not wish to wound them by remaining in Windsor at a hotel.

The next morning he returned to Leith, when he had a long and confidential chat with Lady Marchmont regarding the excitement of the previous day, and during which her ladyship had remarked that, if he was of the same mind, after completeing his law course, she would oppose no obstacle in the way of his marriage with Alice.

"She is a lovely girl, and will make a noble woman," she said. "I could not ask for one more worthy to be your wife; all the same, I should be better pleased if she had been better born, for people are so prone to gossip, you know," she concluded, with a regretful sigh, yet glad, from the depths of her heart, that the lovable maiden would ere long, come to Leith to brighten her declining years.

A few days later found Will on his way to America, and Alice once more at her desk in the office of Judge Ashburton. "It seems almost a loss of time for you to keep on with your readings," he remarked to her one day, as they sat down to their books.

"Why?" Alice inquired, with some surprise.

"Because, judging from the way the finger of fate is pointing, they will never be of any practical use to you. It will not be so very long, my dear, before you will be occupying a position, the duties of which will entirely preclude all thought of law practise. Nay, there is no need to blush," he continued, as she flushed vividly and turned away to hide her burning cheeks, "for surely you do not imagine that I have been blind during the last three years, even if I am an old man and supposed to have outgrown such youthful experiences. Besides," his kind eyes twinkling, "Will as good as told me, before he went away, that I should have the pleasure of drawing up the settlements before a certain event that is to occur next summer. Now, seriously, why do you not lay aside your books for this year? There really is no need for you to work so hard, and you will want to be bright and fresh when he returns."

"You are very thoughtful for me, my good friend," Alice returned, and lifting a shy but appreciative look at him, but I think I will make the most of my last year with you. I suppose, as you say, I shall not be able to test my knowledge of law in a practical way; still, no one can tell what may happen in a year, and I prefer to be prepared for any emergency. Besides, the twelve months of Will's absence will pass much more quickly if they are filled full of work."

"Very well, my dear, let it be just as you wish. I am sure it is only a pleasure to me to keep you as a student," her friend responded; but neither he nor Alice dreamed at that time how wise her decision would prove to be, nor how great was the fast approaching emergency for which she was preparing. Several months slipped quickly by, during which Alice studied and worked as faithfully as if all her future depended upon the examination which would come at the close of the year.

One morning, during the last of February, Judge Ashburton returned from the post-office, whither he had been to send a special delivery, and bearing in his hand an open letter, which evidently contained some interesting news.

"There is going to be quite an exciting event in New York, during the spring recess," he observed to Alice; "something unusually unique and interesting in our line."

"Ah!" the young girl observed, as she glanced up from her work, with an inquiring smile.

"Yes, it is no less than a legal contest for which an enterprising woman of the Empire State is arranging," the judge went on to explain. "This Mrs. Voss is prominent in society, and is quite a philanthropist, as well, and claims that sex makes no difference in the mental capacity of humanity; that woman is just as capable of excelling in the various professions as man. To prove this, she solicits application from both sexes to take part in a law debate which is to occur in New York City about the first of April. The points to be discussed involve some international questions; there are, of course, certain rules and conditions to be observed in the contest, and a prize of one thousand dollars will be awarded the winner in the debate."

"Really, this is decidedly interesting," Alice remarked, as she laid down her pen and turned with animation to her friend; "but what are the conditions and how will the affair be conducted?"

"In this way, my friend writes me: Applicants must send in their names and addresses at once; then, on a certain date, to be named later, they will present themselves before a committee, when each one's eligibility and knowledge of law will be thoroughly tested, and the four most promising candidates—two gentlemen and two ladies, who are preparing for the bar—selected for the contest, which will take the form of a mock trial, before an eminent judge and twelve smart lawyers to act as a jury."

"Oh! would not I like to be there to hear it all," exclaimed Alice, with gleaming eyes.

"Would you?" inquired the judge, as he earn-

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 28.)

A HUMAN PLEA

By Charles Noel Douglas (Uncle Charlie)

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

Oh, the children! Oh, the children! don't you hear their bitter cry
From the mine and mill and factory, where the wheels of commerce fly?
Do you see their wan white faces, as they toil amidst the gloom,
Robbed of youth and joy and pleasure, swiftly hastening to their doom?
Ah, what have these frail innocents e'er done that they should be Ground 'neath the heel of profit, sold into slavery,
Then hurried by disease and want to fill untimely graves?
Oh, for another Lincoln to free the poor child slaves.

Oh, our daughters! oh, our daughters! heed their cry of wild despair.
It seems to freeze the coursing blood, and pierce the startled air.
Unceasingly to heaven that anguished cry it rolls,
Up from the loathsome haunts of sin, the cities of lost souls.
And there our fairest daughters, like beasts in some vile pen,
Are sacrificed to satisfy the lusts of bestial men.
Ah, in their hour of torment, one thing the spirit craves,
That Heaven will send a Lincoln to free the poor white slaves.

Oh, the mothers! oh, the mothers! oh, listen as they plead,
For their eyes are wet with weeping, and their hearts with anguish bleed.
For drink, the evil monster, has robbed them of the ones
That best they loved in all the earth, their husbands and their sons.
And now in ruined homes they sit, grim pictures of despair,
And hear again the drunkard's step upon the creaking stair.
Somewhere there is a Lincoln,—God grant he soon may come,
And break the thrall, for once and all, of vile destroying rum.

List to the ceaseless murmur, now it breaks into a roar,
Like the wild waves of the ocean dashing madly on the shore.
'Tis the clamor of the masses, tired and weary of the strife,
With frenzied voices pleading for a larger, freer life.
They are tearing at the shackles which, through the ages long,
Have made them hapless victims of privilege and wrong.
On poverty's grim rack they lie, of greed and power the spoil,
Waiting for a Lincoln who will free the slaves of toil.

Oh, the tramping! oh, the tramping of the mighty hosts of war!
They are strewing death and ruin the smiling country o'er.
There are brothers, killing brothers, while the clash of battle rings,
And they're lying, bleeding, dying to make sport for wanton kings,
And the women and the children watch the flick'ring embers burn,
And murmur prayers for loved ones who will nevermore return.
O Heaven touch the hearts of men, and bid the slaughter cease,
And usher in God's kingdom of justice, love and peace.

O Providence, kind Providence, our supplication heed,
O send the healing balm of peace to wounded hearts that bleed.
Send men, strong men and noble, to end vile greed and strife,
And give mankind a vision of a nobler, purer life.
Slay ignorance, the beast that blights the mind and kills the soul,
Let truth and right illumine bright the path to heaven's goal.
Drive out vile superstition, the error and the sin,
Rend wide apart man's selfish heart and let the Christ come in.

How to Arrange for Spare Time

And What to Do With It, for Pleasure, for Profit and for Self Culture

By Adele Steiner Burleson

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

SPARE time is something we should earn if we hope to enjoy it. The best philosophy of living includes plenty of work of the right kind and some leisure in which to prepare for the work. Life itself means something limited and to get into its span all of the things that thoughtful people think they should, necessitates a careful arrangement of time.

In most lives, system is the secret of achievement, just as failure follows the haphazard and the disorderly. A definite working outline is just as essential for life as it is for a theme.

The baby no sooner arrives than it becomes, or should become subject to rule. Its schedule is carefully arranged and any attempt on its own part to interfere is conscientiously checkmated by the doctor, the nurse and the mother, who form themselves into a benevolent trust for the baby's welfare.

A wonderful free school system makes education possible to all of the boys and girls in the country. Every big business concern depends for success upon the wisdom and the efficiency of its methods.

It is the men and the women who control their own time and do it badly that make up the sum of the world's failures. Not only does the world's work suffer through their inefficiency, but they themselves do not attain personal happiness. Many of these have no desire to obey the most insistent law of life which is work, but some of them realize their own weakness, deplore their own waste of time and with help could acquit themselves more worthily. To this class belong those who through the easy circumstances of their lives have too much leisure with too little responsibility.

There are also the schoolboys and girls who need a summer of rest and recreation but not one of idle drifting. What to do with them, the boys, especially, during the summer holidays is a question that many anxious parents ask themselves and are not always able to answer satisfactorily.

How one mother met and solved this problem may prove helpful to others.

Of one thing she was quite determined from the beginning; they must leave the city. Although her means were small she put aside the temptation to let the half-grown boys take any of the little jobs that offered and promised what seemed to them good pay. Most of the money, she reasoned, would go for small pleasures like moving picture shows, ice cream, chewing gum and soda fountain drinks. Meanwhile their companions could not always be of her choosing, their habits would be more or less beyond her restriction and most dangerous of all, the possibilities that they might obtain glimpses of knowledge of the seamy side of life, from which at their age they should be altogether protected. To keep them out of doors and give them natural, healthful pleasures was her idea. To this end she rented a simple farmhouse in a quiet farming neighborhood on the bank of a small river. The property belonged to an estate and the tillable ground which consisted of some fifteen acres was rented to the owner of an adjoining farm. There was no furniture in the house and this wise woman made no effort to supply it with any but a camping outfit. Canvas cots, bedding and a box of kitchen and dining-room essentials and a roll of wire screening completed her list of household effects. The boys' tool chest was not forgotten and at the end of a few days the house was screened and various benches and chairs of odd shapes and sizes had made their appearance, testifying to the practical value of mechanical training for boys in the schools and the varied uses to which packing boxes may be put by ingenious and economical people. Comfort and order had been established in the little home and the next step was to arrange their time for the things they had planned to do.

For the boys, of course, the river was the greatest thing in their summer, and for that matter, the mother wanted it to be, but she had no idea of sitting at home all day wondering where the boys were and half of her time terrorized by the thought that they might have been drowned in one of the deep holes of the river. So it was agreed that the boys should go to the river only within certain hours, morning and evening. This plan worked out most happily as the boys became more expert at swimming and their mother acquired more confidence in their ability to take care of themselves in the water. There were enough small perch quarantined in the big holes to provide some fishing, and the numerous mussels in the river proved an unexpected source of profit to the boys before the summer was over. Two strange men appeared on the river bank one day and began to collect and open the mussel shells. The boys were curious and deeply interested when they discovered that fresh water pearls were the game the men had in view. To avoid the establishment of a rival business, the men employed the boys to work for them and after their departure, the boys continued to search for the little treasures for themselves, meeting with some success.

But this mother wished her children to get something more than strong muscles out of the long summer days. She felt that there was also time for a little self culture. To accomplish this without letting the boys feel any of the drudgery of work, she put into her trunk, with a few other books, a botany, a book on birds and a star map.

Every day they spent two hours in the woods. The rule was made that they should devote themselves to one thing at a time. For instance, for a week, they would have eyes only for flowers and it was a prideful family when a patient pursuit of some common variety ended in its proper analysis and safe landing, scientific name, included, in their herbarium. This, by the way, consisted of a simple blank book into which the carefully pressed specimens of flowers were pinned with a description of each written on the margin of the page.

Bird days were perhaps the most popular with the boys. The silent stalking of the little feathered things, the breathless waiting and watching to get close to the wilder ones to snapshot them with the camera, brought them nearer to the mystery of life in the woodland.

For a guide and text book, they used the wonderful article which appeared last summer in the Geographic Magazine where pictures of the birds in their natural colors were given, making it not only possible but exceedingly easy for the earnest student of birdlife to distinguish the various kinds and become acquainted with some which he never knew before. The article was a reprint of a government bulletin previously issued by the Department of Agriculture. A description of the nests and their eggs were a further aid in their classification and nothing pleased the boy hunters so much as an investigation of the actual dwelling places of the birds with their occasional store of dainty speckled eggs. In addition to the knowledge of the flowers and little feathered friends of the woods, the trees and underbrush soon yielded their names and identity to this diligent trio of nature students and to them a walk through the woods became more and more a pleasure as their acquaintanceship with growing things increased.

Their evenings were short for they all began their days very early. There were always books and magazines and at times an especially interesting article would tempt someone to read aloud.

It was on the clear nights that the star map came into use. By setting its revolving rim for nine o'clock on the current day of the month, the map would show the exact position of the stars at that time. And many were the constellations they were able to locate in the beautiful fields overhead. They came to have at least a speaking acquaintance with the more striking groups and it gave them a friendly feeling to sit on their front porch and recognize by name so many of the brilliant inhabitants of the skies. It was rather difficult at first to trace a big constellation by the tiny little pattern on the map, but frequent and careful inspection by lamplight of the one and the cultivation of an enlarged vision of the other, out of doors, eventually resulted in success.

New worlds arose gradually out of the east, to charm and delight them. By September, some of their first friends had disappeared and others had taken their places, but at all times the boys watched the wonderful procession of the stars with a growing interest that never flagged and which their mother hoped would some years later culminate in a special college course in astronomy.

With all of these new diversions added to their regular quota of games and sports, the end of the summer found the boys in splendid shape for their winter's work. Physically fit, they were mentally alert, their interest and ambition aroused in several new directions, yet everything in line with the study ahead of them. In addition to all that they had learned they had their treasured specimens and their collections of pictures to refresh their memories. Perhaps the most important of all the lessons they learned was that of the proper use of time.

The value of time is so great that it is astonishing how much of it we allow to slip away from us unmeasured and unappreciated. Most people use time as if they possessed it to an inexhaustible degree. To keep tab on it is perhaps the wisest method of learning not to waste it.

I once knew a girl who by reading Tennyson, Browning and Longfellow during roll-call at the school she attended, acquired an unusual knowledge of their works; also, I knew a woman who used her husband's dressing hour in the morning as a time to do the family mending and darning and to discuss with him the finances of their household. Rescuing such odds and ends of precious time from the general waste and putting them to some small practical use, sometimes bring in surprising results, in accomplishment and progress. It is much like dropping one's pennies into a saving's bank instead of spending them, and presently finding yourself the astonished possessor of a substantial sum of money.

But the systematizing of your work and planning for time in which to do it is no more important than a proper personal preparation for its performance. To find yourself with plenty of time and work but with no initiative or capacity with which to take hold of it is an unfortunate state of affairs. Investigation will doubtless reveal the fact that your habits are bad. That you impair your efficiency as a working machine either by not doing what you should or following practises which you should not. The trouble may be any one of several things all equally simple and easily remedied, if discovered in time. It may be a wrong system of diet. You may take a heavy breakfast, although you could do better work on a lighter meal or else you may perhaps, need an ample breakfast with which to begin your day's work and instead, endeavor to get along on a simple orange or roll or other equally light fare. Then again it may be a case of nerves, and you over stimulate your already highly sensitive, nervous system with those household drugs—tea and coffee. Still, possibly you may deny yourself the one little morning cup that seems to serve as a starter for your mental machinery.

The question of sleep is a vital one. On how many hours do you thrive best? At what time do you feel most inclined for work? How long can you work before the quality of your work begins to be impaired? And when should you stop in order that your general efficiency as a working machine shall not be affected?

All of these matters should be decided for one's self. No one else can possibly know so well as you must, or should know under what conditions the inspiration for work comes to you. Nor to what extent interruptions distract you or whether you most need the quiet silence of the night or the stimulus of the daylight and sunshine with the hum of life and traffic for your particular task. Or, more especially than anything else if you happen to be a good worker, no one can tell you when you ought to stop the work pressure and go off fishing or lie down on the sitting-room rug before the fire and read Conan Doyle, or even just have your breakfast in bed and doze away the hours, until that jaded weary feeling is gone and you can return to your duties realizing that work is your salvation as well as your burden.

But be sure to take this recreation when your nervous system warns you that it is needed. Beware of the iron rule. Do not go to pieces on something you, yourself created for your use and benefit, not your undoing. There is danger, of course, in making a rule and deliberately ignoring it, but whenever a plan of work ceases to meet your needs, it is much better to abandon it than to adhere to it as if it were a religious creed or a moral standard to be safeguarded against any possible change.

My husband opens his eyes early in the morning, while the stars are still bright, and before turning on his light to read or study, he carefully arranges in his own mind the program for his day's work. This is a good idea taken by itself. The mischief lies in the way it most frequently works out, for no matter how long the list happens to be, everything on it must be checked off by night. Unexpected interruptions unforeseen and important matters demanding immediate attention are not accepted as reason or excuse for leaving undone one single item on that schedule. The result is what even the stupidest person could have foretold a super-weary, overtaxed man every night in the year instead of one normally tired from a good day's work. The remedy, of course, is allowing the surplus to go over to the next day or the day after that. Mental order has an outward manifestation that is very attractive. It is no small virtue to have a definite place for everything, whether it be an important document or a tapeline. The woman who can find anything she has as easily in the dark as by day is a treasure to her family. This comfortable virtue may sometimes be pushed too far, as in the case of the housekeeper who always put the morning paper in the waste basket because she thought it made the house look disorderly to have newspapers laying about.

But it is doubtful if anything wastes more time in a household than chronic disorder. To need a thing and have to look for it all over the house means lost time and usually lost temper and frequently quarrels with the other members of the family, to whom you have probably appealed for help, in your wild search, and whom you have openly accused or at least strongly insinuated, are responsible for the disappearance of the hunted article.

I recall hearing years ago of a woman, who, instead of having a place for everything, changed the order of things and put everything in one place. This place was a large open umbrella suspended from the ceiling upside down. If this receptacle or catch-all failed to produce at the moment of need, father's sheep-shears, mother's thimble, the children's overshoes, and catechism or a serviceable dish-rag for the cook, the search was at once abandoned. At least, so the indictment of the woman's neighbors read. I always

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 12.)

You Should See How We Make These Biscuit

You should see the selected materials which are used—flour, sugar, butter, eggs, nuts, spices, fruits and flavors.

You should see the large, airy bakeries, with their new apparatus for mixing, their evenly heated ovens and their white-clad attendants.

These, together with ceaseless care and newest methods, make each variety of National Biscuit Company biscuit—sweetened or unsweetened—whether known as crackers or cookies, wafers or snaps—the best of its kind.

You will find the attractive packages in the grocery near you, always oven-fresh, for the National Biscuit Company distributes from Coast to Coast.

Buy biscuit baked by

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

Always look for that Name

Uneeda Biscuit
Perfectly baked soda crackers—perfectly kept. Five cents.

Graham Crackers
The nation's strength food. Always crisp and good. Five and ten cents.

Baronet Biscuit
Thin and tender. Serve with beverages or desserts. Ten cents.

Snaparoons
Delightful biscuit with the cocoanut flavor. Always fresh. Ten cents.

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

By Lydia M. D. O'Neil

THERE had been a growing coolness between them for some time, but an open breach did not occur until the afternoon when Evelyn had busied herself preparing the list of guests to be invited to their fifth wedding anniversary celebration. She had completed the list, and, at Stephen's request, handed it to him. He scanned the names swiftly, and then, picking up a pencil, added one name and returned the paper to her.

Her face crimsoned to the neck as she read the name he had inscribed—Mildred Jocelyn. A period of silence followed—shamed silence on her part, defiant silence on his. Then, in a pained but determined voice, she said:

"I cannot invite that woman, Stephen!"

"Why not?" he demanded.

"You know her character; I cannot insult my guests by including her presence at our anniversary dinner. Besides, Stephen——" she paused irresolutely, then, deciding that the disagreeable duty had better be over and done with, she continued firmly:

"You are probably aware that people have been talking about you—and her—recently. You have been seen much together; do you want to give color to the rumors which have been floating about?"

"On the contrary, I want to put an end to those rumors; that is one reason why I want you to invite her. When people see that she is here as your guest, by your invitation, they will realize what they should have done long ago—that our friendship, is a matter of business aspiration on my part, more than anything else;—and on her part, an artistic interest in a man who possesses at least a small amount of genius in the field of architecture."

"Genius needs no patronage," replied Evelyn. "And you know her reputation, Stephen. She herself has been three times divorced, and has been the cause of the disruption of several homes. If I were a leader of society, perhaps I could afford to entertain a woman of her character; as it is, I cannot."

"There's gratitude for you!" said Stephen angrily. "It is due entirely to her influence, that I am now at work on the plans of the Waverly Club's new building; to her influence that I was selected to design the Spaulding Hotel; to her influence, that I am acquainted with some of the most prominent people in the city; and the least you might do, to express your gratitude, would be to invite her to our celebration, yet you sit there and talk to me about her character—her reputation!"

Evelyn looked at him calmly.

"Do you mean to say, Stephen, that you are really willing to progress in your work by means of this woman's direct influence? I admit that you have, through her, met wealthy and prominent people who might never have heard of you otherwise; but are they really the people whom it is desirable to associate with, these men of the Waverly Club, and the owner of the Spaulding? Do you want to look back, in after years, and say that all you have accomplished you owe to a woman of infamy—to Mildred Jocelyn?"

And as she spoke she slowly drew a blue pencil through the name.

The reproof stung, but Stephen Chappell was thoroughly angry now.

"At least she's done more for me than you ever have," he retorted. "What have you done to advance my interests? You might have worked your way into the swellest society in this city, if you had wanted to; you had the ability, but you left it to another woman to see that people worth knowing were made aware of my existence on earth. You could have made up that list of millionaries and their families, instead of the same old bunch we've always known, if you had a spark of ambition in you!"

"I am not a climber," she replied quietly. "Not a parvenu, Stephen. I am quite satisfied with the friends of our youth—yours and mine. I find them congenial—I doubt if I could say as much of the Spauldings, and the others whose patronage you so much desire."

He glared at her savagely. "A wife like you—you seem to be doing your best to hold me back! With a woman like Mildred, a woman who takes an interest in a man's work—what couldn't I accomplish? I'd be five times a millionaire in a few years, but as it is, I suppose I'll go on to the end of the chapter on a few beggarly thousands a year!"

She rose and faced him calmly, though inwardly she was trembling. Her face was very pale, but her eyes glowed feverishly.

"Do I understand you to say, Stephen, that I am in your way—that you would be happier or more successful, with Mildred Jocelyn as your wife?"

"If you want to put it that way, yes!"

She tore the long sheet of paper in half, and then tore it crossways again.

"Then there will be no celebration," she replied. "I had been expecting something like this for some time—I wondered how long it could be delayed. I shall go at once and supervise the packing of my trunks, and this evening I shall leave for an extended visit with my aunt, at Cranbrook. Unless you want me, I shall not return. You can attend to the legal side of the affair; willful desertion—there need be no scandal of any sort, you know."

She left the room quietly, and though she paused a moment at the doorway, before dropping the portieres, there was no softening of the grim, angry lines about his mouth—no paling of the smouldering fire in his eyes.

"You comprehend what I have just said, Stephen?" she queried, in the same even tones she had used throughout the entire scene.

"Yes. Let me alone, will you! Go on and pack your trunks, if you're going!"

Up-stairs, a few minutes later, he could hear her crossing and recrossing the floor—the opening and closing of dresser drawers, the clinking of silver and china, as she packed her toilet articles carefully away in their respective cases—and instead of sorrowing, he was glad. Mildred—what a different woman she was! Vivacious, if sometimes undignified; jolly, "prancy," as the members of the Waverly Club expressed it—not discreet in dress, either;—inclined to the wearing of much satin and heavy lace, and the conspicuous use of perfumes; but—she was interested in his work; she tried to advance his interests on every occasion; she never failed to speak of "my friend, Stephen Chappell, the brilliant architect." If she were the mistress of this house, it would not be so deadly dull. There would be lots of lively folk about—not the quiet, refined people in whose presence Evelyn delighted, but people who would make the house ring with loud laughter and singing—people with money to spend—people who were not strait-laced and narrow in their views, as Evelyn and her friends were inclined to be.

Mildred's character! What of it? If a woman was not happily married, wasn't a divorce the logical remedy? Wasn't Evelyn herself leaving him now for the purpose of giving him grounds for divorce? yet she dared to assail Mildred's character! Of course, the woman was not well-bred, but that was a trivial matter.

By and by he heard Evelyn descending the stairs, and was conscious that she had thrust the portieres aside, but he did not turn to look at her.

It was in her heart to speak to him—to tell him that she was sorry they had made such an unfortunate mess of things, and that she hoped he would win the success he craved, but realizing that it would be embarrassing to him, she turned away quietly and left the house. For a long time Chappell sat silent, after he heard the closing of the front door; then he rose and went to the telephone and called up Mildred Jocelyn's apartments, to inquire if she cared to attend the production of the Gay Girls of Gotham that evening.

* * * * * * * * * *

Many months had passed by, and Chappell had sued for divorce. The case would soon be heard in court, and then—then he would be free to marry Mildred. Strangely enough, he felt no great joy as he thought of it, sitting alone in the drawing-room tonight. True, he still felt that much of his success in a business way was due to her—but he sometimes wondered if he had not lost as much as he had gained.

His friends—the people who used to call and chat with him, give little dinner-parties to him and Evelyn, encouraged him in his work,—passed him now with the briefest salutations, and never invited him to their homes as they had formerly done; never stopped to inquire how he was getting along and to suggest that the next-door neighbor, who was intending to build a new house, might be interested in some of his plans of "Ideal Homes."

Even the men at the Waverly Club had not been of as much assistance to him as he had anticipated; true, they drank the wine and smoked the cigars that he paid for, and sometimes had him draw up plans for a bungalow or a town house; but these commissions had been far from numerous, and he observed that very few of his patrons cared to have him meet their wives and daughters. Mildred, too:—of late she had not seemed to be quite so enthusiastic about his career—so intensely interested in his ambitions as she had formerly been, and he wondered if she were growing tired of him, as rumor said that she had grown tired of her three husbands, married and divorced one after another.

He shook himself impatiently, as if to dismiss all the thoughts that perplexed him; then, touching the bell that stood on a stand near by, he summoned his man-servant.

"Joseph, will you go up-stairs, to the room next to my sleeping-chamber, and bring me down the box of blue-prints that you will find on a table there? It is a large oak box, with the key in the lock."

The servant returned a few minutes later, with the box in his arms.

"Place it on the table," directed Chappell. "Notify me when it is seven-thirty, as I shall be leaving for the theater. Thank you—that is all."

Joseph withdrew, and Chappell drew his chair close to the table and unlocked the oaken box. He lifted a paper, but instead of a blue-print it was—a valentine.

Yes, a valentine—a frivolous bit of a thing, covered with Cupids and doves and forget-me-nots,—the first valentine that he had ever sent to Evelyn. Of course it was the wrong box—it was the box which contained all the souvenirs of their courtship and their wedded life, until the last year—until he had met Mildred Jocelyn.

A wave of tenderness swept over him suddenly—regret, and loneliness, and reverence, as if he were touching the belongings of some beloved departed one. Instead of closing the box, and putting it away from his sight, he sat silent, gazing long at the little valentine, and the fond message that he had inscribed on it.

Then, laying it tenderly down, he drew forth, one after another, the other articles which the "Chest of Golden Memories," as they had called it, contained. There was a dance program—his name inscribed on it; the first dance he had ever had with Evelyn; there was a pressed rosebud—one of a bouquet he had given her long ago; there were more valentines, dainty bits of lace and satin, fashioned by skillful hands into sweet tokens of a lover's thoughtfulness and devotion; then came a pile of letters, worn from frequent handling, tied with a narrow bit of ribbon; several photographs, both of Evelyn and himself; little souvenirs of their marriage—a piece of the wedding-cake, and a remnant of the material of which Evelyn's gown had been made. Then, tenderly wrapped in an envelope of white silk, he found a little photograph—that of the tiny morsel of humanity that had been given into their keeping on the second Valentine's Day following their marriage, only to be taken from them, back to the Heavenly Father's keeping, a few months later. The wide eyes of the pictured face gazed into Chappell's own, and his face reddened with shame and remorse. The mother of this beloved little one—how had he treated her? Neglected her—discarded her—replaced her in his affection with a woman whose name was notorious throughout the continent!

Stephen could have wept, but he was a man to whom the luxury of tears was denied; so he sat, dry-eyed, his hands clenched tightly and his lips compressed, throughout the agony of the hour in which he realized for the first time the depths of his shame and degradation. Mentally he asked himself, was it too late? Would she return to him, if he begged her forgiveness and told her how much he missed her—how badly he needed her?

Raising his head, his eyes fell upon a calendar that hung on the wall; the thirteenth of February! And tomorrow was St. Valentine's Day!

Again he summoned the man-servant. "Joseph, I want you to go to the post-office, to register a letter for me. No! Wait! I will go myself! Bring me my hat and overcoat."

"It is seven-thirty, Mr. Chappell," reminded Joseph.

"No matter! I'm not going to the theater tonight. Should anyone call, tell them I'm out—I don't want to see anyone tonight."

But as he was leaving the house, a carriage drew up at the curb, and a woman, radiant with jewels, alighted. He needed no second glance to tell that it was Mildred Jocelyn.

"Good evening, Stephen," she said. "Going out? You can give me a few moments, though, can't you?"

He opened the door and followed her into the room he had just left. He placed a chair, for her, but stood impatiently himself, without removing his overcoat or gloves.

"In a hurry, are you?" she began. "Well, I won't detain you long. I just wanted to cancel our engagement for the theater this evening—though it looks very much as if you had canceled it yourself, without notice to me—or forgotten it, perhaps."

He made an attempt at a formal apology, but she interrupted him with an impulsive gesture.

"Never mind! It doesn't matter in the least. I'm not going anywhere tonight. Yes," as he looked significantly at her gorgeous apparel, "I had intended to go to the theater and then to dinner with you, but I changed my mind, and now I'm going home. I leave for Europe tomorrow, and I want to do some packing."

"To Europe?" he said in surprise.

She nodded, watching him narrowly. Amazement was written on his face—but no signs of a broken heart, such as she had anticipated—no anger, or dismay.

"I hope it doesn't interfere with any of your plans?" she said.

"Certainly not; not in the least." Then, after a moment of silence, he continued: "Then you were simply amusing yourself with me?"

"Yes," she admitted shamelessly. "I had heard people say that you were an iceberg—wrapped up in your home and your work, and didn't care for anybody outside of that. I wanted to see if I couldn't make you care for me. I thought the best way to do it was to assume interest in your work—and I guess I did it. But I'm getting tired of it. I want to see all the gay cities of Europe that I've heard so much about, so I'm going away."

"That is very nice," he commented. "I hope you will enjoy the tour."

Very nice! It was she who was amazed now. Actually, the man didn't seem to care whether she came or went! Had he, too, been simply amusing himself with her, without caring for her at all?

"People say I broke up your home," she said. "Shall I say I'm sorry?"

"Not at all. People are mistaken, Mrs. Chappell will be home in a few days. This," and he drew an envelope from his inner pocket, "is a valentine that I am sending her."

He fervently hoped that he was telling the truth when he said that Evelyn would soon be home.

"It is I who am sorry," he continued; "sorry that I gave people an opportunity to say the things they did about you—and me."

"Oh, never mind me!" she said bitterly.

"I have to thank you for your interest in me," he resumed. "The interest which led you to introduce me to many influential people—which was of much assistance to me in my work."

She laughed mirthlessly. "I told you what inspired that interest, didn't I? And I know just as well as you do that I've hurt you more than I've helped you. But I'm not sorry. I'm not sorry for anything! I admit I'm surprised to learn that you've been just amusing yourself, the same as I have—but I don't care! Good by, Stephen—run along and mail your valentine!"

"Good by, Miss Jocelyn."

He saw her safely into her carriage—then turned and walked briskly toward the post-office.

The next evening the papers were filled with an account of the latest scandal—the elopement to Europe of Robert Hilliard, a prominent member of the Waverly Club, and Mildred Jocelyn, the notorious breaker of hearts and homes.

* * * * * * * * * *

Evelyn Chappell carefully opened the registered letter that had arrived by the early morning mail, and drew forth its contents—a photograph, carefully wrapped, accompanied by a letter.

She gazed wonderingly upon the pictured features of the little child whom she had cared for so tenderly for the three short months that the little one had dwelt on earth. With tears in her eyes she unfolded the sheet of note-paper that lay beside the envelope.

"Evelyn my wife! St. Valentine memories have awakened me to a realization of what I have been—what I have done. No words can express my penitence, but—is my awakening too late?

"For the sake of this little one whom we both loved so well, will you grant me another chance? Unworthily, but faithfully, yours.

"STEPHEN."

* * * * * * * * * *

Stephen Chappell's hand trembled as he tore open the little envelope brought him by a messenger, and extracted the telegram that it contained. Had his awakening been too late? What would her answer be?

A cry of joy escaped his lips as he read the four short words inscribed on the sheet of yellow paper:

"I am coming home."

Thrift—
Economy—
Saving

Let your spring clothes reflect the charm of spring newness and let your shopping combine thrift, economy and saving. The cost of beautiful, stylish clothes need no longer hinder you. You, too, can now enjoy the wonderful "Standard" bargains. And, madam, you'll positively be delighted with our remarkably low prices. You owe it to yourself to at least see the famous "Standard" Bargain Bulletins. They are issued every two months and are always brimful of such excellent values as is represented in the dress offer here.

Send at once for your FREE copies of the money-saving "Standard" Bargain Bulletins. It is still time to get the Mid-Winter Cut-Price Bulletin. Send postal today—NOW. The Bulletins are FREE.

Satisfaction Guaranteed or your Money Back.

Season's Biggest Value!
Striped Gingham Dress 59c.
$1.00 value

DD59—Half-price offer. Women's and Misses' pretty street or house dress of good quality, splendid-wearing Gingham in neat black or blue stripes. Bodice becomingly bloused has the popular turned-down collar and is appropriately finished with pipings. Skirt is fashioned with correct width and the dress buttons conveniently in front. (Ladies' sizes 34 to 46 Bust; Misses' 14 to 18 years. A good valu at $1.00). Special price, postpaid in the U. S. . . . 59c

We pay Mail or Express Charges in the U. S.

Standard Mail Order Co.
Dept. 531 New York City

HENDERSON'S SEEDS FREE

To get our new 1915 catalogue, "Everything for the Garden" (204 pages, 1000 engravings, 8 beautiful color plates, devoted to vegetables and flowers) send us ten cents, naming this magazine, and we will send you free our famous 50c Henderson Collection of Flower and Vegetable Seeds of one packet each: Ponderosa Tomato, Big Boston Lettuce, White Tipped Scarlet Radish, Invincible Asters, Mammoth Butterfly Pansies and Eckford Giant Sweet Peas—all enclosed in coupon envelope, which will be accepted as 25 cents cash payment on any order of $1.00 or over.

PETER HENDERSON & CO.
35-37 Cortlandt Street New York City

$3.75 SUIT NO EXTRA CHARGES

Made to measure in latest style. Not $3.75, not even $1, not even one cent cost to you under our easy conditions. No Extra Charge for fancy swell styles, extra big, extreme peg-tops, pearl buttons, fancy belt loops, no extra charge for anything, all free. Before you take another order, before you buy a suit or pants, get our samples and new offer. Write and say "Send Me Your Offer" the big, new different tailoring deal. Costs nothing and no extra charges.

KNICKERBOCKER TAILORING CO.
Dept. 196 Chicago, Ill.

Wedding Invitations

THE CROWELL COMPANY
115 Orleans Street, • Springfield, Mass.

LADIES! EASE YOUR FEET
Send postal for free catalog telling all about our Neat, Noiseless, Flexible, Comfortable, unlined Vici Kid O'Sullivanized PILLOW SHOE. New shoes easy as old ones. No breaking in required. Fit and feel like a kid glove. Customers everywhere. Trade-Mark Registered.

$3.25 Postpaid

PILLOW SHOE CO., Dept. P,
184 Summer Street, BOSTON, MASS.

TOUGHEY

Childhood Adventures on a Texas Ranch

By Adele Steiner Burleson

Copyright, 1913, by Adele Steiner Burleson.
Serial right by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

"Toughey" is a true story in which the author narrates the actual exploits and adventures of her three children and her own experiences during a summer, some dozen years ago, happily spent in rusticating on her ranch in a remote and somewhat wild part of Texas, far from their city home. This large domain, known as Steiner Valley, was inherited by Mrs. Burleson from her father, Dr. Steiner, who as surgeon in the U. S. army served with distinction through the war with Mexico which added Texas and an empire besides to the territory of the United States.

In mentioning herself and her husband (now Postmaster General, but then member of Congress) in the story she has modestly assumed the name of "Deering" which our readers are at liberty to change to Burleson.

The ranch, which is several miles in extent, is in part cultivated as a cotton plantation and the rest is used as a range for Mr. Burleson's great herd of Hereford cattle. The plantation is worked entirely by convict labor supplied by the state in return for a certain per cent of the crop, and besides the manager's house and the owner's summer cottage there is a cluster of buildings called "the camp" occupied by the convicts and guards.

All this is new and of somewhat startling interest to the children who are accustomed to city life.

According to the habit of the family, the two younger girls, with only a year's difference in their ages and being fast friends and playmates, are classed together under the generic designation of "the children." The eldest daughter, who, though only twelve years old, is several years their senior and bears herself toward them with a patronizing air of elderly dignity and wisdom that at times is somewhat galling to the little girls, is nicknamed "Toughey." This pet name had been conferred on her in babyhood by a college girl aunt in admiration of the child's coolness, grit and self-reliance manifest even at that tender age.

Len, the manager's son, is a bright boy and proves a faithful and efficient guide and assistant on excursions and outdoor sports.

CHAPTER V.

BABY SQUIRRELS FOR PETS.

THE protracted dry spell was bringing satisfaction only to the children. The monotony of clear days was no hardship to them. While their elders anxiously discussed the chances for rain, they sat contentedly in the shade of big trees, ate watermelons in the creek bottom, and fashioned playhouses in the thicket behind the house, heedless of the fatal dryness that was putting furrows on the Manager's brow and making the cotton crop the shortest in the history of its production.

Out of the little forms thrown off by the exhausted cotton plants and now to be found in melancholy profusion in the field, the children made nests and doll beds.

It is true they shared in the general excitement when a promising wind blew up a rack of clouds that threatened to end the drought, and they were active in dragging their playthings from the creek bottom safe from the expected flood, but there was no sorrow behind their exclamations that "there never was going to be any more rain!"

Time and again the clouds would rally to the relief of the simmering fields and parching prairie, now showing long heat cracks, and time and again they were vanquished by the brazen might of the sun.

Papa talked scientifically about the non-precipitation of moisture, the Manager referred gloomily to noted droughts in the past, reasoning that their recurrence at stated intervals was certain, and that a record-breaker was now upon them, while old Uncle Isum openly blamed the children.

"Shoo as hit fixes toe rain, dem chilluns gyrants roun' and throws all de ole cans and trash what bin pilin' up, intoe de creek bottom, expectin' de watah to kerry hit off, and by de time dey gits everything ready, de rain is done skeert away."

And he would go off to his cabin grumbling about the way "white folks" would fly in the face of Providence itself.

But whatever the cause, one burning day after another continued to come until the fear that it would not rain changed into a dread of the rain when it did come. For the brazen skies, now so unhappily familiar, could hardly be replaced by gentler ones except through some mighty convulsion of nature, bringing with it a destruction equal to that of the drought itself.

Its growth effectually checked, the only hope for the cotton was in continued clear weather, which would permit the gathering of the crop, now almost dropping from the open bolls. A rain would knock it out, beat it into the ground, and make of it, where it could be recovered at all, hopeless "dogtail," a thing of scorn to the cotton buyer in the market, and a profitless crop to the planter.

One night the storm broke. It came up just after the children had gone to bed. A thick curtain of clouds spread over the sky from horizon to horizon, casting upon the earth a shadow of inky blackness. Now and then great sheets of lightning, without a note of thunder, would sweep over the entire heavens. An hour later the storm burst upon the Plantation with such a rage of wind and rain and hail, and such furious cannonading of thunder that even Mr. Deering wondered if the frail little house could live through it.

The children sat bolt upright on their pallet, with clasped hands and frightened faces, and then shuddered down under the blanket which the sudden cold made it necessary for their mother to spread over them, trying to shut out the terrifying voices outside. They lay awake for a long time as quiet as mice, and finally fell asleep exhausted by their own fears and lulled by the monotonous sound of the rain which subsided at last into a steady downpour.

Mamma did not disturb them when a new roar made itself heard and looking through the screened door she saw, in the glare of the lightning, a black, swirling flood racing through the creek bed. It was a fearful picture and her own heart quaked when she thought of the little girls playing day after day where now raced an irresistible torrent.

The next morning the children awoke to a world of magic. They did not see the torn and desolate cotton field, for between it and them lay a little stretch of prairie abloom with white lilies. These dainty, scented flowers are the children of the rain, springing up during the course of a storm and perishing at the touch of the sun. To the little girls they seemed the work of fairies, and before the early breakfast was ready bunches of the delicate blossoms were already fading in their hot little hands.

Another land of enchantment awaited them at the creek bottom, whither their eager pursuit of the lilies soon led them. The storm waters of the night had subsided, and in its place flowed a shallow, limped stream over the pebbly bed. Throwing aside their sandals they spent the rest of the day building dams and bridges, constructing lakes and canals, sailing boats and rafts.

Only when that evil Genius, Toughey, came to drag them away to their meals did they cease for a moment from their fascinating labors. The rubbers, which mamma insisted upon, were the single flaw in their day of perfect happiness.

By the following morning every trace of the brook had disappeared. Only holes and ditches remained to show where their lakes and canals had been. Their disappointment was great, but it led to an investigation of other storm products—fallen trees. In one, a big pecan, which had been completely uprooted, they discovered a squirrel nest, a warm, soft, bag-like affair constructed of twigs and leaves, and containing three blind, ugly young squirrels with bare, rat-like tails. Their immediate adoption followed, and in return for Toughey's assistance in arranging suitable quarters for them and taking charge of the difficult task of feeding them on milk, the children gave her one.

The box serving for a nest was placed in the children's room, where the little animals became the object of so much unwise attention that Toughey threatened to return them to the woods or abandon the care of them herself unless the children would promise to let them alone. Either suggestion was calamitous and the children struggled hard against their restless affection for the little creatures, but with such poor success that one of Toughey's direct predictions came to pass no later than that same afternoon when the smallest squirrel died!

"Of course, the squirrel that died was mine," said Toughey calmly, but with the kindling eye of a prophetess.

"Of course!" agreed the children with such callous injustice that Toughey could not find words with which to reply. At feeding time, Toughey was as usual called upon to perform the difficult duty.

"My squirrel don't need milk, he's dead," said Toughey, lowering her book for a moment and then quietly continuing to read.

The children looked blankly at each other.

"All right for you Miss!" they finally stammered.

"All right," echoed Toughey indifferently.

Then followed a howl from the children which was met on Toughey's part by such a frozen exterior that a compromise whose terms gave her an equal share with the children in the remaining squirrels, and made her absolute dictator in regard to their management, was quickly effected.

"We must name them," said Toughey, decidedly, when the children began to call them "squirel-ly;" "that sounds ridiculous, and besides it's too long and you couldn't tell them apart; they'd have the same name."

The children then suggested "Goldenrod" and "Sunflower."

"Why not call them 'Gum Drop' and 'Sugar Lump?'" asked Toughey in scornful amusement.

"Who ever heard of such names for squirrels! You must think of something suitable."

So the children tried again and again, but each name in turn was rejected by Toughey as quite out of place for just everyday, frisky little squirrels.

"Now, I've said that you may name them," said Toughey liberally, "but you must get something that fits them."

But it proved impossible for the children to please themselves and at the same time Toughey, too. They could not be won to her way of thinking the squirrels ordinary beings, nor from their own position that they were on the contrary the most extraordinary creatures that ever lived and entitled to the most romantic and beautiful names that could be thought of.

When it became evident that their differences were eternal, Toughey settled the matter in her most imperious fashion.

"They shall be called Tom, Dick and Harry," she said.

To the children's grieved protests, she answered uncompromisingly.

"I'm willing to let the dead one be Harry, I think," she added composedly, "it's a very nice name for him."

And so the question was settled.

TO BE CONTINUED.

The Iron Cross Of Germany

SHORTLY after the outbreak of the pan-European war dispatches from Berlin conveyed the information, that Kaiser Wilhelm had revived the Order of the Iron Cross and was decorating certain officers and soldiers who had distinguished themselves on the French frontier with the insignia of the noble order. The militant crown prince was one of the first German officers to receive the coveted badge of honor. His father, who hitherto had tried to hold the crown prince's warlike tendencies in check, had deemed the son's activities around Metz, worthy of recognition.

To many the revival meant nothing, for it had never existed to their knowledge. There is little written about it. Nevertheless it is one of the oldest military honor legions in existence.

Although it is recorded that on March 10, 1813, Frederick William III founded the order of the Iron Cross, the origin of the legion dates back to the Crusades.

During the siege of Acre, in 1190, Barbarossa's army of crusaders was at a disadvantage in comparison with the Templers and the Hospitallers, as the English and French military orders were called. The latter had well organized corps for taking care of the wounded, sick or dead. The Germans did not. They fought without shelter, medicine, and with little food.

To relieve the situation, a company of ship captains, headed by a certain Walpot von Bassenheim, citizen of Bremen, was organized to render assistance as they could to the fighting Teutons.

They used canvas tents for hospitals and went first under the name of "Knights Hospitallers of Our Dear Lady of Mount Zion."

This cumbersome title was later changed to the "German Order of St. Mary" or "Teutsche Ritter von der Marie-Orden" and finally abbreviated to "Teusches Ritterthum."

The chivalric order then bound its members to fidelity and fortitude by a sacred vow. It became powerful through rich bequests until its main interests were no longer in Palestine but in Venice. Here its headquarters were transferred in A. D. 1210 by Herman von der Salza. The order was in great favor with the Pope at the time.

Sixteen years later the Crusaders, no longer having to prosecute their mission in the direction of Palestine, turned their attention to Prussia. Prussia was inviting the attention of the order by reason of the fact that it was anti-Christian. The bishop of Prussia was only titular; he dared not live in Prussia. He lived in Liefland, among the Bremen trading settlers.

The titular bishop, worrying over the anti-Christian state of Prussia, persuaded the order to come to Prussia and convert the Prussians by force. The work was carried out, the two races intermingled, and Prussia became thoroughly Christian.

Since the order had assumed the chivalry of chivalric orders, a symbolic emblem of a black cross was adopted for use on the white cloaks of the members. The black was supposed to represent the cross of iron, the metal which best represented the grim age in which they lived.

After a while the order acquired so much honor that the emperor allowed the members to add the imperial eagle to their arms, and St. Louis granted them the fleur-de-lis.

There was also a superior decoration of double size, called the grand cross. This was reserved for officers of high rank who had successfully carried out a campaign, won a decisive battle, or conducted a brave defense.

The insignia of the order as it now exists is a cross on the shape of a cross pattee, which is like a maltese cross or plus sign, except that the arms of the cross become wider as they extend further. The cross is made of iron with silver edgings and mountings. One side is entirely plain. The other has on its upper limb the initials "F. W.," which stand for Frederick William. Above the initials is the imperial crown. The center of the cross bears oak leaves, the meaning of which seems to be lost. On the bottom limb is the date of the founding of the order, 1813.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5.)

GRAND SALINE, TEXAS.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTERS:

Will you permit a girl from this part of the world to join your merry circle? I am a very mischievous, noisy little country lass but I will promise to be quiet while I am with you married ladies and then I won't tarry long.

I have nut-brown hair, eyes of the same shade, a round face, a rosy complexion and everyone says I possess an amiable disposition.

My grandmother was of Irish nationality so I suppose I get my sense of humor and sunny disposition from her. I am the youngest of seven children, all married except me. I am very fond of small children.

I live almost a mile from town on a high hill. How many of the sisters have their homes named? Mine is named "Sunny Side," and I like and appreciate the place much more since I gave it a name. Try it and see.

I think girls should take an interest in church work. I attend church and Sunday school regularly and enjoy it.

We have six churches, no saloons and a population of three thousand five hundred. We have four salt plants, which employ a great number of hands and have an output of thousands of barrels of salt daily.

I like the idea of a person being cheerful in time of trials. "A person who faces the sun never sees his shadow." And then a sunny disposition will drive wrinkles from the brow.

Speaking of boys "sowing wild oats," I have known of the wildest boys making fine men. I believe a child reared under Christian influence will not depart from it when he is old even though he does "sow wild oats" in youth. But I will leave that subject for an older and more gifted writer. I do not approve of a girl being too much in love with the other sex. To accept a boy's attentions in a friendly manner, I deem enough for any girl. My mind runs to things of more importance than to get "ratty" about a boy, still there are some fine boys, and boys in general are as good as girls and some are much better than some girls.

I think COMFORT is just the grandest paper. I have had many helps from its pages and some of your good talks have brought out some of the best instincts of my nature and has developed many good morals within me that will never die. I enjoy reading and books, like friends, have an influence; therefore we should exercise as much care in the selection of reading matter, as in the choice of companions.

I pity those who live in great cities, shut off from the beauties of nature. I, for one, am a lover of nature and nothing is more pleasing to me than the swaying back and forth of the trees to the gentle breeze and the singing of the birds to greet me on arising in the morning.

Then to take a day off and go fishing! Isn't that grand? But hush, I fear someone will grow envious and think I am boasting and exaggerating on this topic.

Praying the blessings of our Heavenly Father upon each and everyone of you and thanking you for the kind attention and this space I will be going if Mrs. Wilkinson will hand me my rain coat.

Lovingly, MISS FANNIE LINDSEY.

Miss Fannie. There is no need for such marvelous self restraint as you are prepared to display, even if you are with us "married ladies" for I think you will find that we are quite human and able to appreciate good, wholesome fun. In a book I once read, the Irish heroine, in quoting her father said that "a sense of humor was like a shillaly,—an iligent thing to have round handy, especially when the joke's on you," and I hope your sense of humor will permit you to laugh even if you are the victim of a joke. I have but little use for these one-sided jokers.

It is well to remember that the inevitable result of sowing is a harvest and if young men will persist in sowing "wild oats," sooner or later they must reap, even as they have sown. Fannie dear, even if you did use slang, I can forgive you, since it so well expressed my own ideas. Boys as a rule, have twice the respect for a girl to whom they feel free to talk in a friendly, chumming way, than for the girl who expects a lot of sentimental mush. Keep right on being good friends with all and try to live each day so that you can feel that the world is a better place for your presence in it.—Ed.

BUSHYHEAD, OKLA.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTERS:

I have just been reading my October COMFORT and have been thinking for a long while I would write but have put it off. I think COMFORT is about as good as it can be. Mother and grandmother both took it and now that I am in my own home I take it. I get much good from the Sisters' Corner.

Nearly all describe themselves but as I am deformed with curvature of the spine, am neither tall nor nice looking, so will not describe myself.

I was married two years ago to a kind loving husband, and one year ago our home was blessed with a

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 12.)

FURNISH YOUR HOME

WITHOUT COST!

We want to give you, without cost, this handsome Music-Cabinet, and this splendid comfortable Rocker! You can get pieces of furniture like these every few weeks, without cost, if you buy direct from us, the manufacturers, the home-supplies you now buy at stores—foods, soaps, toilet preparations, kitchen sundries, notions, etc.

At ordinary store-prices, we give you Larkin guaranteed "Satisfaction—or Your Money Back" quality, and in addition, your choice of a catalog full of fine furnishings, as your saving by dealing direct with us, the manufacturers. Two million homes receive regularly these costless furnishings, through the

LARKIN FACTORY-TO-FAMILY PLAN

Our 700 supplies for the home are the best that high-grade materials, and modern manufacturing methods can produce. Your saving on each order almost equals the value of the supplies bought. We give you this Music-Cabinet, or Rocker, which would cost $9 in a store, representing the middleman's saving on a $10 purchase of supplies. And these supplies alone would cost $10 at retail.

Try the Larkin Plan at Our Expense

We will send you without money, your selection of $10 worth of Larkin Products, and any article given therewith as bonus (our Catalog shows hundreds of them). You need send no money. If at the end of 30 days, you find our goods wholly satisfactory, send us $10. If they do not please you, return them. We will refund the money you paid for freight.

Mail Coupon for FREE Catalog

Our Catalog shows over 700 home supplies, and many hundreds of Premiums given with them. Mail the Coupon for it, NOW, or a postal mentioning this magazine.

Larkin Co.
Buffalo, N. Y. Chicago, Ill. Peoria, Ill.

Send Coupon Today to Nearest Address.

Larkin Co.: Mail me, postpaid, your Catalog No. 76.

Name .....

Address .....

G. P. 265 .....

SEEDS

Fresh, Reliable, Pure
Guaranteed to Please

Every Gardener and Planter should test the superior merits of Our Northern Grown Seeds.

SPECIAL OFFER
FOR 10 CENTS
we will send postpaid our FAMOUS COLLECTION

1 pkg. 60 Day Tomato	20c
1 pkg. Princess Radish	10c
1 pkg. Self-Growing Celery	20c
1 pkg. Early Arrow-head Cabbage	15c
1 pkg. Fullerton Market Lettuce	10c
Also 12 Varieties Choice Flower Seeds	25c
	$1.00

Write today! Send 10 cents to help pay postage and packing and receive the above "Famous Collection," together with our New and Instructive Garden Guide.
GREAT NORTHERN SEED CO.
211 Rose St. Rockford, Illinois

For Testing Our named varieties of HARDY Foster Mother Root Apple Grafts make vigorous, early bearing, heavily fruiting, clean hearted, long lived trees. To prove their worth, we offer 6 Grafts (rooted) for testing, if you will send 10c to help cover cost and mailing expense. They will bear barrels upon barrels of apples in a few years' time. Catalogue telling about other Blizzard Belt fruits, EVERBEARING STRAWBERRIES, etc., FREE. Write today.
TheGardner NurseryCo., Box 818 Osage, Ia.

Work at Home

Weaving Rugs and Carpet
NO EXPERIENCE NEEDED
$4 a Day
Easily Made
We start men and women in a profitable business on a small investment. Write quick for prices and Loom Book.
REED MFG. CO.
Box 5 Springfield, Ohio

10 Cents a Day
Pays for this Cornet
An astounding offer! Only 10c a day buys this superb Triple Silver Plated Lyric Cornet. FREE TRIAL before you decide to buy. Write for our big offer.

WURLITZER
200 years of instrument making

Free Band Catalog

Carrying Case Free
If you act at once, we will give you absolutely free a handsome genuine leather carrying case with cornet offered here.

Write for our big new 250-page Band Catalog. Rock-bottom, direct-from-the-manufacturer's prices on all kinds of instruments. Pay for them at the rate of only a few cents a day. Generous allowance for old instruments. Free trial. We supply the U. S. Gov't. Write today.
The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., Dept. 3042 4th St., Cincinnati, Ohio 8. Wabash Ave., Chicago

IN & AROUND The HOME

CONDUCTED BY MRS. WHEELER WILKINSON

Terms Used in Crochet

Ch. st., chain stitch, simply a series of loops or stitches each drawn with the hook through the preceding one; s. c., single crochet, having a loop on hook, insert hook in work as indicated, draw loop through thread over, and draw through both loops; d. c., double crochet, thread over hook, insert hook in work, draw loop through, thread over draw through two loops, thread over, draw through two loops; tr. c., treble crochet, thread over hook twice, then work off as in double crochet, there being three groups of two loops to work off instead of two; h. tr., half treble, same as tr. c., only work off two loops, thread over and then through three loops; d. tr., double treble crochet, thread over three times, hook through work, thread over and draw through one loop, giving five on hook, thread over and work off by twos; sl. st., slip stitch, insert hook in work, draw loop through work and loop on hook at the same time; p., picot, a picot is formed on a chain by catching back in the fourth st., or as indicated and working a sl. st. r. st., roll stitch, throw the thread over the needle as many times as indicated, insert hook in the work, thread over, pull through coil or roll, thread over, draw through the one loop on hook. The roll when completed is straight, with a thread the length of roll along its side. The length or size of a roll is regulated by the number of times the thread is thrown over; o., over, thread over hook the number of times indicated; k. st., knot stitch, draw out loop about one quarter inch, catch thread and pull through, then put the hook between the drawn loop and the thread just pulled through, catch the thread, draw through these two stitches to form the knot; blk., block, a st. in each of a given number of sts., preceded and followed by a space; sp., space, a space is formed by making a chain of 3 or 4 sts. and omitting the same number of sts. in preceding row; sk., skip, to miss or omit number of stitches indicated in preceding row; p. c., padding cord; * stars mean that the directions given between them should be repeated as indicated before proceeding.

Terms Used in Knitting

K. knit plain; o. over; o. 2, over twice; n. narrow 2 stitches together; p. purl, meaning an inversion of stitches; sl. slip a stitch; tog, together; sl. and b., slip and bind; k. p. knit plain; stars and parenthesis indicate repetition.

Woolen Outfit for the Winter Girl

Consisting of Knitted Coat Sweater, Crocheted Hat with Rolling Brim in Tam-o'-Shanter Stitch, Crocheted Scarf and Knitted Gloves

THESE hand-made garments are light, warm and for every variety of open-air sport, whether skating or snow-shoeing, nothing could be more attractive, comfortable and sensible as they give entire freedom of movement. Any girl can knit this outfit in odd moments during the summer.

The Coat Sweater

Materials.—Two pounds of Germantown or Saxony fourfold yarn, one pair needles No. 5 and six button molds, size of half dollar. A "needle" means only working once across the work. Two needles or forward and back make one row.

The sweater is begun at the lower edge of the back. Cast on 86 stitches and knit 18 rows plain for the border. Then for the dice pattern which forms the body, knit as follows:

Dice Pattern—One Design

1st needle.—K. 3, p. 2, repeat this 4 times, * k. 16, p. 2, k. 3, p. 2, k. 3, p. 2, k. 3, p. 2, k. 3, p. 2. Repeat from * to end of needle.

2nd needle.—K. 2, p. 3, repeat 4 times, * k. 12, p. 1, k. 2, p. 3, k. 2, p. 3, k. 2, p. 3, k. 2, p. 3, k. 2, p. 3. Repeat from *.

3rd needle.—K. 1, p. 2, k. 3, p. 2, k. 3, p. 2, k. 3, p. 2, k. 3, * p. 2, k. 16, p. 2, k. 3, p. 2, k. 3, p. 2, k. 3, p. 2, k. 3. Repeat from * ending with k. 2.

4th needle.—P. 2, k. 2, p. 3, k. 2, p. 3, k. 2, p. 3, k. 2, p. 3, * k. 2, p. 1, k. 12, p. 3, k. 2, p. 3, k. 2, p. 3, k. 2, p. 3, k. 2, p. 3. Repeat from * ending with p. 1.

These 4 needles form 1 design. Knit 5 designs. Now decrease 1 st. at each end of needle, every 8th needle 5 times. Be sure to keep your pattern straight. Knit 22 designs to armhole. Now decrease 1 st. at each end of needle, every other needle for 5 times. Knit 32 needles to neck. Take 23 stitches from each end of needle for shoulder and bind off the center 20 sts. for neck.

Working on right front k. 2 designs on the 23 stitches for shoulder, then at neck increase 3 sts. each beginning of needle for 5 times. In neck beginning of needle at neck add 14 stitches for band down center front. The 14th stitch from edge is knit plain on the wrong side and purl on the right side of work, the other 13 sts. are always knit plain forward and back.

Knit 6 designs without increase, then at armhole increase 1 st. each beginning of needle for 10 times, in the next needle at armhole increase 10 sts. for under arm.

Knit 37 designs to lower edge of front. Knit 18 rows plain for border. Bind off loosely. Make other front to correspond. Sew up the under-arm seam.

For the Sleeve

Cast on 30 stitches and carrying out the design (k. 3, p. 2 to end of needle) increase 1 st. at each beginning of needle until you have 60 sts. K. 28 designs, or until sleeve is desired length. Next needle k. 30, k. 2 together 15 times. Knit last 30. Then knit forward and back 20 rows for cuff. Bind off loosely. Sew up sleeves and sew into coat.

The Pocket

Cast on 25 stitches, k. 8 designs, k. 5 rows plain for top pocket. Bind off. Sew in place.

The Belt

Cast on 2 stitches and knitting plain increase 1 st. at each end needle every other needle until you have 12 sts. Knit forward and back until belt is length desired, then make point to correspond with beginning. Tack to coat on under-arm seams.

Collar

Cast on 24 stitches.
1st row.—K. plain.
2nd row.—K. 8, turn, k. back.
3rd row.—K. 16, turn, k. back.
Now knit plain forward and back for 68 rows. Make end to correspond with beginning. Sew shaped edge to coat, so that the edge of collar is in center of plain knit band down front edge. Turn back to form revers and tack lightly if desired.

For the buttonholes, with medium hook make 1 s. c. in first 18 rows, * ch. 9, sk. 9 rows, make 1 s. c. each in next 12 rows.

Repeat from * until you have 5 buttonholes. With needle threaded with wool, buttonhole stitch over each ch. 9 or cover with s. c.

To cover buttons.—Make ch. 2, make 6 s. c. in first ch. made, next row using both loops at top of st. make 2 s. c. in each s. c., next row make 2 s. c. in every other s. c. with 1 s. c. between. Make 3 rows of 1 s. c. in each s. c., then sk. every 3rd s. c. until cover fits button mould.

Crocheted Scarf

Material.—Four skeins any kind of medium heavy yarn. Crochet hook No. 4 or 5. Begin by making ch. 10 inches long, without stretching.

1st row.—1 d. c. in third st. and 1 d. c. in each of the others to end of ch., ch. 2, turn.

2nd row.—Pick up loop in 1st st. of first row, wool over and hook up a loop in next st. Wool over and pull through all loops on needle and ch. 1. * Pick up loop in next st. of row, wool over needle and pick up a loop in next st. Wool over and pull through all and ch. 1. Repeat from * to end of row. Ch. 3, turn.

3rd row.—Two short double crochet (wool over needle, draw loop through next st., wool over needle and through all three loops) in each space between clusters in previous row. Finish row with 2 s. d. c., after the last cluster in previous row.

Repeat 2nd and 3rd rows and again repeat 2nd row. Then repeat from beginning of 1st row until the scarf is four and a half or five feet long.

Finish the ends with a heavy knotted-in fringe.

Jaunty Crocheted Hat

Material.—Four skeins Germantown or Saxony wool used double, No. 4 or 5 crochet hook. The hat is very easily made as Tam-o'-Shanter stitch is same as single crochet excepting that you put the hook over the yarn to draw up the loop instead of under the yarn, and always use both loops at top of stitch.

Chain 2. 1st row.—Make 10 Tam-o'-Shanter stitches in the first chain made.

2nd row.—Widen by making 2 stitches in every other stitch with one stitch between. The widening is always made in the second stitch of the widening in previous row.

3rd row.—Widen in every 3rd stitch.

4th row.—Widen in every 4th stitch.

Continue this, making 1 stitch more between the widenings in each successive row until there are 13 stitches between the widenings. For each size larger increase 1 row more. Make 15 rows, making 1 stitch in each stitch. Now, widen in every 10th stitch for 4 rows. Make 5 rows of 1 stitch in each stitch.

Finish with a slip stitch in each stitch.

For the cord, using yarn double, make a chain 1 1-4 yards long, turn, work back making a slip stitch in each chain stitch made.

Sew around crown and knot as desired.

KNITTED COAT SWEATER, SCARF AND GLOVES.

Knitted Glove with Fancy Back

Materials.—Four skeins threefold Saxony, 2 pair needles No. 14. These directions are for the right hand. Cast on 68 stitches and k. 2, p. 2 for 39 rounds. This forms wrist.

For the back of the hand knit on the first 25 stitches of the round as follows:
1st round.—P. 1, k. 2, repeat to end.
2nd round.—K. 2, p. 1, repeat to end.
Repeat first and second rounds.
5th round.—K. 1, p. 2, repeat to end.
6th round.—K. 2, p. 1, repeat to end.
Repeat fifth and sixth rounds.

Now repeat from the beginning of the first round.

On first round, after the pattern has been knit, work as follows: K. 5, p. 1, k. 3, p. 1. (The last 5 stitches are the beginning of the thumb gore and purled stitches are to be purled on every round.) Knit plain for the remainder of the round. Widen on the thumb gore—on the stitch inside of the purled sts. on every 5th round until there are 23 sts. in the gore. Knit 1 round, then take thumb sts. off on a cord and at end of the needle before them cast on 6 sts. Join the round and knit until there are 20 rounds below the thumb gore.

Hereafter the pattern will not be knitted at the back of the hand. Knit 3 rounds plain.

For first finger now take the last 9 sts. of the pattern for back of hand, then on second needle run next 15 sts., 24 sts. in all.

Put all the remaining sts. on a cord. At end of the 15 sts. cast on 6 sts., join and knit 2 rounds plain.

3rd round.—K. plain to the 6 sts. cast on. K. 2 tog., k. 2, k. 2, tog.

4th round.—K. plain.

5th round.—K. plain to cast-on sts., k. 2, tog., k. 2 tog.

6th round.—K. plain to narrowed sts., k. 2 tog., knit 32 rounds plain.

Next round K. 2, k. 2 tog., repeat throughout round.

Next 32 rounds plain.

Next round K. 2, k. 2 tog. and repeat throughout round. Then k. 1, k. 2 tog. throughout the round, and draw the thread through sts. that remain, fastening on the wrong side.

For second finger, take 8 sts. from each end of the cord, pick up 8 sts. on the sts., cast on for the first finger, and at the other side. Next to the end of the cord, cast on 5 sts., join and knit 2 rounds plain.

3rd round.—On the 8 sts. picked up along the first finger work as follows, k. 1, k. 2 tog., k. 2, k. 2, tog. Knit plain to the cast-on sts., and there k. 2 tog., k. 1, k. 2 tog.

Knit 1 round plain.

5th round.—Knit to the cast-on sts., k. 2, tog., k. plain for 39 rounds, then narrow same as in first finger.

For the third finger take 8 sts. from each end of the cord. Pick up 8 sts. on the sts. cast on for the second finger, then at the other side, next to the ends of the cord, cast on 4 sts, join and k. 2 rounds plain.

3rd round.—K. 2 tog. twice along the sts., picked up on the second finger and twice on the cast-on sts.

4th round.—K. plain.

5th round.—Narrow twice on the sts. picked up on the second finger. Remainder of round plain. Then knit plain for 33 rounds and narrow as the other fingers were narrowed.

For the fourth finger take the 15 sts. that remain on the cord and pick up 9 sts. on those cast on for the third finger. Knit 2 rounds plain.

3rd round.—On the cast-on stitches work as follows. K. 2, k. 2 tog., k. 2, k. 2 tog. Work remainder of round plain.

4th round.—K. plain.

5th round.—K. plain until the narrowings are reached, then k. 2, k. 2 tog., k. 2 tog. and k. plain to end, k. plain for 23 rounds, then narrow as before.

Now take the thumb sts. on to the needles again and on the cast-on sts. pick up 9 sts., k. 2 rounds plain.

3rd round.—K. plain to the picked-up sts. Then k. 2, k. 2 tog., k. 2, k. 2 tog., k. plain to end.

4th round.—K. plain.

5th round.—K. plain to the first narrowing, then k. 2 tog. twice.

6th round.—K. plain to narrowings, then k. 2 tog., k. plain for 23 rounds, then narrow for the tip.

The left hand is made to match, but for it the thumb gusset is begun on the sts., before the pattern for the back of the hand, instead of on the sts. after it.

Crocheted Edging

Cotton No. 30 or 40 and No. 12 steel hook will make an edging about three inches wide and which is most desirable for wearing qualities. This pattern is also very pretty for ends of scarfs or edging sofa pillows, if made of very coarse ecru crochet cotton or ordinary carpet warp which is so much used at present for bedspreads.

Begin with chain 40 stitches, turn.

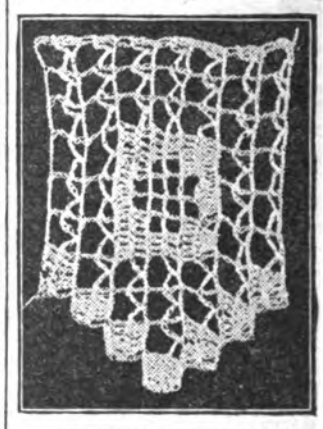
1st row.—1 d. c. in fourth st., 1 d. c. in each of the next 4 sts., ch. 3, sk. 2 sts., 1 s. c. in next st., ch. 3, sk. 2, 1 d. c. in next st.; this forms 1 closed lacet. Make 5 more, finishing with 2 d. c. in last 2 sts., ch. 4, turn.

2nd row.—1 d. c. on second d. c. in first row, ch. 5, 1 d. c. on next d. c.; this makes 1 open lacet. Make 5 open lacets over the 5 closed lacets, then 5 d. c. on the 5 d. c., ch. 6, turn.

3rd row.—1 d. c. in fourth st., 1 d. c. in each of next 4 sts., 1 closed lacet over the 5 d. c., *6 more closed lacets, 2 d. c., ch. 4, turn.

4th row.—Same as 2nd row, only making 7 open lacets; finish row same as second.

5th row.—Same as third row to star; then 1 more closed lacet, 5 d. c. under next ch. 5, d. c. on d. c., 5 d. c. under next ch. 5, d. c. on d. c., 5 d. c. under next ch. 5, d. c. on d. c., 3 closed lacets, 2 d. c., ch. 4, turn.



6th row.—Same as second, making 3 open lacets, then 7 d. c. on 7 d. c., ch. 3, sk. 2 d. c., 1 d. c. on next, ch. 3, sk. 2, 7 d. c. on 7 d. c., 2 open lacets, d. c. on d. c., ch. 6, turn.

7th row.—Same as third row to star; 2 more closed lacets, 4 d. c. on next 4 d. c., * ch. 3, sk. 2 d. c., 1 d. c. on next d. c., repeat from * making 3 more spaces, 4 d. c. on d. c., 3 closed lacets, 2 d. c., ch. 4, turn.

8th row.—Same as 7th, only making open lacets instead of closed. Finish this row by slip stitching back over group of doubles, then ch. 3.

9th row.—1 d. c. on each d. c., 2 closed lacets; finish same as 6th row.

10th row.—3 open lacets, 18 d. c., 2 open lacets, d. c. on d. c., sl. st., at back over doubles, ch. 3.

CROCHETED EDGING.

11th row.—1 d. c. on each d. c., 7 closed lacets, 2 d. c., ch. 4, turn.

12th row.—1 d. c., 7 open lacets, 1 d. c. on each d. c., sl. st. back over double, ch. 3.

13th row.—Same as 11th row, only making 1 less lacet.

14th row.—Same as 13th, making 6 open instead of closed lacets.

This completes the pattern; repeat from 3rd row.

Table Mat.

This is the largest of a set of coarse cotton table mats. The size is regulated by the number of chain stitches used in starting. For this large one make chain 52 stitches.

1st round.—The solid part is made with roll stitches, but simple double crochet stitches may be substituted. The roll stitches in this case are somewhat different from the ordinary ones. In this case they are made like this: Wind the cotton ten times over the needle and insert in the chain and bring up a loop through, cotton over needle and draw through the coil, (in the other you would now throw cotton over needle and draw through the loop on the needle.)

Keep on winding ten times and taking the cotton through coil, this keeps the string more on the back and can easily be done when the coil is not long.

Work 49 of these rolls in 49 chain stitches beginning on the 4th, now ch. 2, sk. 2, a scallop of 9 rolls in the end stitch; ch. 2, sk. 2 (going back on the same string), 49 rolls in base of 49 rolls, ch. 2, sk. 2, a scallop of 9 rolls in end, ch. 2 and fasten on top of roll.

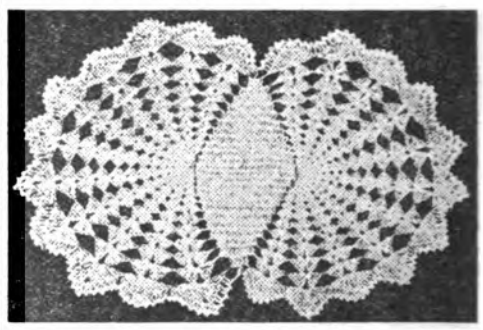


TABLE MAT.

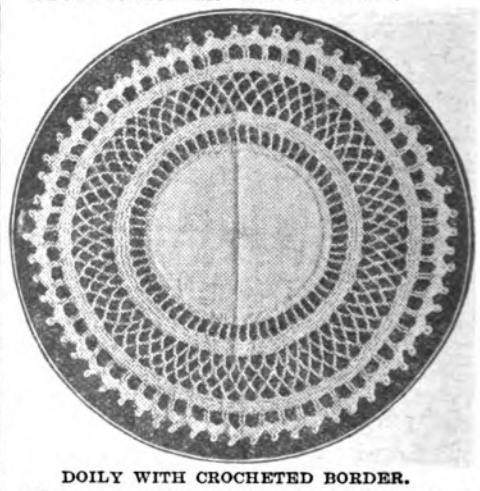
2nd round.—Slip st. so you start between 2nd and 3rd roll; ch. 3 and 45 rolls, on 45 rolls; ch. 2, work 22 rolls around scallop, ch. 2, 45 rolls on 45, ch. 2, 22, rolls around scallop; ch. 2, and join on top of ch. 3, at beginning of round.

3rd round.—Slip st. to between 2nd and 3rd; ch. 3 and 41 rolls on 41, ch. 2, now start the shells, make 22 around scallop of 4 doubles with ch. 2 in centers, ch. 2 and 41 rolls on 41, ch. 2 and same shells again, ch. 2 and join on ch. 3.

The next nine rounds are on the same order, only the shells increase in doubles and are made looser the larger they get. In the 4th round the shells are 6 doubles with ch. 2, in center, the 5th round the same: the sixth and seventh has 8 doubles with ch. 2 in center; the eighth and ninth has 10 doubles with ch. 2 in center; the tenth and eleventh has 12 doubles and ch. 2 in center; the twelfth has 14 doubles and ch. 2 in center, The thirteenth which is the last is double with a ch. 3 picot between every 2 doubles.

A. O. L. WERTMAN.

Doily with Crocheted Border



Cut from linen which has been shrunken a circle of any size, turn the edge in and either crochet or buttonhole over it.

1st round.—Ch. 4, sk. 2 sts., tr. in next st., ch. 1, repeat all around.

2nd round.—Ch. 7, sk. 1 tr. c., fasten in next tr., repeat all around.

3rd round.—Sl. st. to 4th st. of ch. 7, ch. 7, fasten in 4th st. of ch. 7, repeat all around.

4th and 5th rounds.—Like 3rd round.

DOILY WITH CROCHETED BORDER.

6th round.—Sl. st. to 4th st. of ch. 7, ch. 5, 1 s. c. in 4th st. of ch. 7, repeat all around.

7th round.—Ch. 3, 1 tr. c. in 2nd st. of ch. 5, ch. 1, tr. c. in 4th st. of ch. 5, ch. 1, 1 tr. c. in s. c., ch. 1, repeat all around, fasten last ch. 1 in 2nd st. of ch. 3.

8th round.—Ch. 4, 1 tr. c. in ch. 1, 1 tr. c. in tr. c., repeat all around, fasten in 3rd st. of ch. 4.

9th round.—Ch. 7, sk. 2 tr. c., 1 s. c. in next tr., ch. 3, repeat all around, fasten last ch. 3 in 4th st. of ch. 7.

10th round.—Ch. 3, 2 tr. c., ch. 2 and 3 tr. c. under ch. 3, ch. 2, sk. 1 space, shell of 3 tr. c., ch. 2 and 3 tr. c. under next ch. 3, ch. 2, repeat all around, fasten last ch. 2 in 2nd st. of ch. 3.

11th round.—Sl. st. to ch. 2, ch. 3, 1 tr. c. under ch. 2, ch. 5, fasten in 1st st. to form a picot, 2 tr. c. under same ch. 3 times, *2 tr. c. under ch. 2 of shell, ch. 5, fasten in 1st. st. to form a picot, repeat 3 times, 2 tr. c. under same ch., repeat from * for each shell, fasten in 2nd st. of ch. 2.

NIDA HOPE.

LEAGUE RULES: To be a comfort to one's parents. To protect the weak and aged. To be kind to dumb animals. To love our country and protect its flag.

CONDUCTED BY UNCLE CHARLIE

COMFORT for 15 months and admittance to the League of Cousins for only 30 cents. Join at once. Everybody welcome.

NEVER send a subscription to Uncle Charlie, nor to the Secretary of the League.
NEVER write a subscription order or application for membership in the body of a letter. Write the order on a separate sheet from the letter, and then both may be mailed together in the same envelope.
ADDRESS all letters to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. See Instructions at the close of this Department.

WHEN a child is born instead of being born a citizen of the world, it is unfortunately born the citizen or the subject or the slave of some particular country, and from its earliest years is given drum, trumpet and toy soldiers to play with. Often it is put into some military uniform and straddling a piece of wood, which represents a battle charger, your embryo hero dashes wildly around cutting off the imaginary heads of the hereditary enemies of his race, with his little toy sword. Of course by this time if he is a German he has been taught to hate the French and the Russians; if of French parentage he has learned to loathe the Germans; if American he has been taught that he can whip creation; if British he has been taught that he rules the waves. Nearly every child that is born sucks militarism and racial hatred in with its mother's milk. Oh, the horror of it, oh, the pity of it. In school for five days a week, the child reads history, and such history! ! ! In history you read of scarcely anything but the doings of kings and high mucky mucks, and the blood of battle is spued over nearly every page you turn. Of how the masses of the people lived, of the simple annals of the poor, you learn nothing. Historians of the common people though are at last springing up, and when you read these works all the tinsel of military glory, all the sham and shoddy that cluster round the names of famous warriors and statesmen vanishes. The great and the near great become very ordinary people and those who have forced their way into the limelight of history, achieved their fame usually more by infamous than worthy acts. All the unpleasant facts are hidden from sight. Only one side of the story is ever shown. Our country is always right, the other fellow's country always wrong. If we shoot down Indians it's a great battle and a glorious victory, if the Indians round up our troops and wipe them out it's a "massacre." All American boys are taught to hate the British, for what the Britishers' grandfathers did, and especially for burning the Capitol at Washington, but they are not told as they should be, that this act was in retaliation for our twice pillaging the Canadian Capital of York, Ontario, now Toronto, and the destruction of its parliamentary buildings. We are not told that a century or two ago cruelty was the fashion and killing the chief business of men. The great truth that should be hammered into the head of every American child is, that the colonists English, Irish and Scotch, in fighting crazy King George, were fighting the cause of the British, their own people, who were not responsible for the trouble, and were possibly even greater gainers by the triumph of the colonists than were the colonists themselves. The crazy old half German King George the Third, got a lesson that a certain gentleman in shining armor might well take to heart, and British statesmen learned how colonies should be governed, with the result that the freest and most democratic commonwealths in the world today, Australia, New Zealand and Canada, came into existence.

The German people are very proud of Frederick the Great, but what did he think of them, and what do kings as a rule think of their subjects anyway? In royal eyes they are nothing but clowns and clodhoppers, flesh for cannon, meat for bayonets. A courtier once addressing Frederick the Great tried to impress on him that men were on the whole more good than bad, that the human race was improving, that the worst of individuals had some redeeming traits: "Ah," said the king with fine scorn, "my dear Muller, you don't know the damned breed." Now if all the people who are getting excited over this war in Europe, and maybe too some of those who get excited on the Fourth of July, would remember that hereditary kings, and too often industrial kings, still regard the masses of the people as the contemptible "d—— breed, "they would get less hot around the collar when discussing matters that are really more the concern of kings and a ruling class than any concern of their own. Before me lies a book entitled "The Workers in American History," and I would to heaven this and similar works could be read by the school children of every land, and the old drum and trumpet histories thrown out. Nations brag about the glories of the past, but as a matter of fact few nations have anything to brag about unless we elevate wholesale murder to a fine art and worship uniformed butchers. In what we call the glorious period of our history, white men were put on the block and auctioned off as though they were cattle. In one of these United States when a perjurer was released from the pillory, instead of removing the nails which had pierced his ears, they freed him by cutting off his ears. Half a century after the Declaration of Independence, which declared that all men are free and equal, the sale of white flesh still continued. But there, why quote history? In the memory of many of you black slavery lingers, and today we have white slavery in its most awful form and industrial slavery in more or less acute degree in nearly every land on earth. Let not the spirit of mortals be proud. Let not the German shriek about his Kaiser, the Britisher about his king, the Frenchman about his president, the American about his republic. Not one of us has anything to brag about, and all of us have so much to be ashamed of that we had better hold our tongues when racial matters are discussed. If I had my way I would hypnotize the whole world, and burn every history in existence. When humanity came out of its sleep it would have a future but no past. It would have no racial animosities seething in its veins, no knowledge of past wrongs, past hates, past differences. Its future would not be mortgaged with the crimes of fool kings who lived generations ago; and it is wicked to saddle present day humanity and force it into the battle arena to settle differences incurred by a people of a bygone era. Shakespeare puts into the mouth of one of his characters these words: "What fools these mortals be." I wonder if those who stand in the water-soaked trenches of the old world ever repeat that remark to themselves. Nothing is too good for the soldier now, but when the fighting is over, those who have been lucky enough to survive the carnage will be treated with scant ceremony. Back they will go to mill, mine and factory, farm and workshop, to commence anew the old heart-breaking struggle with low wages, for a miserable existence. The Russian will return to his rye bread and hovel, the German to his occasional sausage, the Frenchman to his thin soup, the Englishman to his bloater. Each too with a new heritage of hate to hand on to generations now unborn. Once more, what fools these mortals be!

The masses of the people, no matter whether French, English, German, Russian, Austrian or Belgian have no quarrel with one another. Bernard Shaw suggests that the men in the warring ranks abroad shoot their officers and then they could all go home. Startling and repugnant though his suggestion is, the odds are if it were carried out the war would end abruptly, and the cannon fodder would go home and wonder why they ever left home, and what they had been fighting about. The great enemies of nations are hunger and want, privation and starvation and disease. These are the enemies that men should fight and not one another. Unfortunately for all humanity they turn their lives and their destinies over to a few men, and these men play with these precious human pawns as they play with pieces on a chess board, and with no more consideration than if they were chips of wood, and the poor boobs seem to revel in the glory of being slaughtered. Race hatred is kept alive and stirred up so that the ruling privileged class can saddle itself upon the backs of the masses of the people. Once more will the people never wake up!

If you haven't a set of Uncle Charlie's three wonderful books your home is not complete and you are not equipped for the full enjoyment of life. Start in at once to obtain them,—they cost you no money, only a very little time and effort,—and keep at it until you have the entire set. The book of Poems is beautifully bound in ribbed silk stiff covers; the Story Book is bound in two styles, the one in ribbed silk stiff covers like the Poems, the other in paper covers; the Song Book is bound only in heavy paper covers. All can be had free as premiums; the Book of Poems or the Story Book in ribbed silk stiff covers, either one for a club of four subscriptions; the Song Book or the Story Book in handsome paper covers for a club of only two subscriptions. See full particulars at the end of this department. These three books are a library of endless joy and merriment, the best medicine to drive away the blues.

Now for the letters.

RUMBERTS, S. C.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I am a girl of seventeen years. I am five feet eight inches tall. My weight is one hundred and twenty-three pounds. I live in the country with my auntie. This is my first letter to the cousins. I have a boy call and see me and the first time he saw me he wanted my ring, and he went home and wrote me a letter and told me how he loved me and asked me if I loved him. He is not my kind to go with. Must I answer his letter or not. (Certainly not. Uncle C.) He is not game enough to ask me to go to church with him, he sends someone else. I can keep house and do anything in the field. I will close hoping to see this letter in print.

Your loving niece, MARIE M. TRUESDALE.

Marie, your questions had better been addressed to "Cousin Marion" as she gets all the money this side of Wall street tipping off the love lorn, but Cousin Marion being a nice respectable lady (some would call her an old maid) can only talk theoretically of love, while I know from a basis of actual experience more about love than any old geezer living. I know so much about love that in a frivolous moment I compiled a book about it, but what can one book tell about love? It would take a chain of books that would girdle the earth a billion times to tell what even I know on that delightful but often painful and harrowing subject. That boy who called on you was some swift to want to appropriate a lady's entire collection of jewelry on his first visit. It's a wonder he didn't ask for the family organ, the cream separator, the porch rocker and the kitchen stove. If I were your parents Marie, I would not allow you to wear such expensive jewelry. You can hardly blame a fellow for getting envious when with only three cents in his pocket, a susceptible girl springs on him a diamond that looks like the flashing headlight of a freight locomotive. Of course if you go around with a diamond searchlight on your finger people may ask you for it for fear of getting blinded. In my youthful days I never bothered to ask for a lady's ring. I wanted her whole hand or nothing. I remember once asking for a girl's hand and she presented it to me right in the eye. A little later her father, a very kind old gentleman, gave me his foot. Honestly I didn't know what to do with it. I told the old gentleman he was too generous, and as I didn't want to start an anatomical museum, and already had a couple of my own, I had no possible use for his foot. It was useless discussing the question. I got the old man's foot and after being in the air for two or three hours, I came to the conclusion that I didn't want to be an aviator again. It's never safe to ask for a lady's hand unless father's foot is in the next county. You should have invited that impetuous boy to have called the following evening Marie, and had your brothers or father drop a few pre-historic eggs on his classic brow and introduced him to a few buckets of water. It would have been a real charity to have done that, especially if other boys could have seen him wandering home in a half drowned condition. The greatest pest in all the world is a fresh youth, and the only thing that will teach these pests a lesson, and make them respect the girls of the community is to humiliate them in a way that will make them feel like three and a half cents with a hole in it. Even from the trashiest love stories you girls can learn something, but you don't. The hero in the cheap novel can't make good even with the worst low brow unless he wooes the heroine of the story as a gentleman wooes a lady, and that is not by football or rush tactics. A woman isn't a citadel to be wooed and won by sudden and violent assaults. There are some women with enough of the primeval savage in them, the troglodyte cave dweller of old, to prefer being knocked down and dragged out, but they as a rule are not women of a high order of intelligence or any intelligence. Of course if a woman throws herself at a man's head, he may, if he wants her, grab her much as he grabs his dog, when he wants it to go back to its kennel, by the scruff of the neck. A man never thinks much of a woman who throws herself at him, because he knows mighty well that she doesn't think much of herself. She holds herself too cheap, and nobody thinks much of cheap goods, human or otherwise. It is in his wooing that a man betrays his true character, and it is in the way a woman accepts a man's attentions that she betrays her character. Many a foolish girl who has thrown herself at a man's head and been used as a toy and plaything for a few months and then discarded, has had her heart broken by watching the man who mauled her as though she were a rag doll the first time he met her, treat another girl as though she were a precious piece of Dresden china that would break in a million pieces if he looked at her. For months she watches with anguish the delicate and assiduous attentions that are paid to her rival and notes the anxious look on her erstwhile sweetheart's face because he is still uncertain as to whether he can win the object of his adoration or not. Whatever value girls, you place on yourselves, that same value men will place on you. If you act like thirty cents you will be treated like thirty cents, for most men are in the habit of handling thirty cent propositions and can get away with them. Now ticket yourself at fifty thousand dollars, and the first worth while man that comes along will add another fifty thousand to it, and though humanity does not care a rap for the cheap and shoddy, because that as a rule is all that it sees and has to be content with, it fairly prostrates itself at the feet of that which is classy and expensive. A woman does not need lands or gold to make her priceless in the eyes of the world for nature has endowed her with far more precious jewels, purity, sincerity, love, character and truth. It's the high-priced article that draws the crowd. Don't put yourself on a thirty-cent basis with a view to winning a three-cent man. If there is any leveling to be done, level up and not down.

BRIGHTON, R. R. 3, TENN.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I live on a farm among the hills and hollows in Tennessee. I am fifteen years old, five feet tall, weigh about one hundred and thirty-five pounds. I go to school which is about one quarter mile from where I live. I like to read the cousins' letters. My mother has taken the COMFORT several years. I think it just a fine paper. I like to read the advertisements and stories because COMFORT always has such fine ones. I like to read the letters and the answers for some of them seem very comical, others are quite sad. I think my home is in a very beautiful place. I can play the French harp and guitar, but I like to play hymns best. I like gardening but not farming. I live on a farm of fifty acres. We have two cows, two calves, three horses and hogs, and chickens. I have a pet dog, he is a Scotch collar. I am quite fond of flowers. I am peaceing me a silk and velvet quilt. I will ask some of the cousins to send me some silk and velvet peaces, if they be so kind.

Your niece, MARY E. DAVIS.

Mary, I am glad to hear you say you like gardening. Gardening as a business or rather a profession for women offers many attractions. Thousands of women in Europe make a good living by raising garden truck. Every plant received individual attention. Intensive or scientific gardening they call it. Plants have to hurry up and produce so that several crops can be raised in a year. Women can't afford to have expensive glass conservatories, but they have little individual conservatories, glass arrangements like bells which fit over one or two plants and which force and stimulate growth in a remarkable degree. Women working in these gardens are in their element. All creative work is interesting and inspiring and outdoor work with its freedom and health and the absence of the inevitable boss makes life worth while. The world must eat and there is always a market for food. Of course the middleman will steal all your profits if you give him a chance, but if you are near your market there are lots of ways of fooling the middle man. I advise women to look into this field of endeavor. Men can't marry today and the number of unmarried men and single women is going to increase steadily. Women have got to live and as men can't provide homes, women will have to provide their own homes, and they will have to earn a living either by individual or collective effort. Don't forget the possibilities of gardening, girls, when factory, store or domestic work palls, and the twelve-dollar-a-week man can't afford to marry because he wants half his income for beer and cigarettes. You say you have a pet dog and he is a Scotch "collar." A dog that is a Scotch "Collar!" For the land's sake, Mary, what do you mean? A dog can't be a dog and neckwear at the same time. I've seen a man collar a dog and put a collar round a dog, but I never saw a dog that was a collar, especially a Scotch collar. If you've a dog that's a fifty dollar bill you might send it on to me. That's the only shape in which a dog would prove acceptable by the way. The Goat and Maria both think that you have a dog that is a Scotch collie. I do hope the Goat's solution of the mystery is correct, though a Scotch "collar" has a good many advantages over a Scotch collie as it doesn't bite, bark, play in filth or have hydrophobia. As regards silk and velvet "peaces," Mary, there are no such things in existence, and if there were I should strongly advise that instead of being sent to you they be forwarded at once to Europe, for silk or velvet peace or any old peace is greatly needed over there. If you could only send a few square miles of velvet peaces to wrap round Billy Hohenzollern's mailed fist, maybe it won't hurt so much when he jabs it in our eye a little later on. Maybe too you might send that Scotch collar along with the velvet peace, and if he didn't accept the peace you could sic that new-fangled, dry-goods dog of yours on to him. He'd fix him, you bet.

PLOLA, WASH.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE AND COUSINS:

I live in the southeastern part of Washington at the foot of the Blue mountains on a grain and stock ranch. I like to ride after and handle stock better than work on the grain ranch, but I do quite a bit of both, and would rather do either than live in the city. Uncle Charlie I have taken a homestead and am going to batch this summer and winter. My land is nearly all on a hillside but is good pasture. Just think, I'll stay there this winter in the snow and hunt coyotes and rabbits. Don't you think I'll have a good time? Well, everyone in this country is buying automobiles and there are some men that I think will have to scratch their heads when pay day comes. Uncle Charlie don't you think this is what ruins lots of people? It looks that way to me, all that I can do towards buying an automobile is forty-five dollars, and I spent that for a saddle. But of course I figured that I needed the saddle as I have lots of riding to do, but as far as automobiles are concerned I think a team is good enough for me. I don't care to get there as soon as I start.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 22.)

A Year to Pay! Mail the Coupon TODAY!

FREE BOOK COUPON
Please send the "Home Makers' Book" to
Name _____
Address _____
P. O. _____ State _____
Dept. 436

4863 BARGAINS

Send the FREE COUPON for Fish's Great 224-page Book of 4863 Bargains. We give you wide open credit for anything you want for your home. A YEAR TO PAY! No interest—no notes—no bothersome investigations. Absolutely confidential credit! You pay just a few cents down, and the balance in little monthly payments. Select your goods, and we ship them right off, so you can use and enjoy them while you are paying for them. Since 1858—57 years ago—we have supplied over a million happy homes on free and unlimited credit.

$4.85 No. 212
50c Cash 50c Month
Iron bed 1 1-8 in. continuous post, 4 ft. 6 in. wide, in white, pea green also Vernis Martin (gold finish). Has 6 decorative panels. Head is 53 in. high, foot end 38 in. Very handsome. State color wanted.

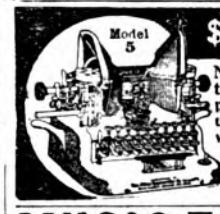
No. 218 Kitchen Cabinet
$1.00 Cash $1.00 per Month $11.85
This Cabinet is Solid Golden Oak, 71 in. high; base 23 x 42 in. Top section has big tilting flour bin, holding 40 pounds. Roomy china closet with art glass doors. Sugar and salt bin, cutlery drawer, shelf for spice cans, etc. Base has white poplar top, sliding pastry board, bread box, cupboards, 2 drawers.

30 DAYS FREE
We ship everything on 30 Days' Free Trial. You can take goods home and see how you like them. If dissatisfied, we will take the goods right back, refund what you have paid, and pay the freight both ways.

LOOK At These Big Sample Bargains
Here are a few of the 4863 bargains offered in our Big Free Book. You can order direct from this advertisement. Just a few cents brings the goods without delay. We take all the risk.

Home Makers' Book FREE
Send the Coupon
This mammoth book is filled with the most wonderful bargains and choicest styles in home furnishings — chairs, tables, beds, dressers, couches, rockers, carpets, rugs, stoves, ranges, baby carts, etc., etc.—all at lowest money-saving prices, and liberal, easy terms. Tear off and mail the coupon right away for this grand, big bargain book. You will be delighted to see how easy we make it to beautify your home.

No. 211 Stylish Rocker
50c Cash 50c Month $3.85
This rocker is Solid Oak, strongly constructed throughout, carefully reinforced and braced. Seat has guaranteed steel spring construction, consisting of 6 oil-tempered coil springs and heavy corrugated steel wire. Back and seat covered with Royal leather. 46

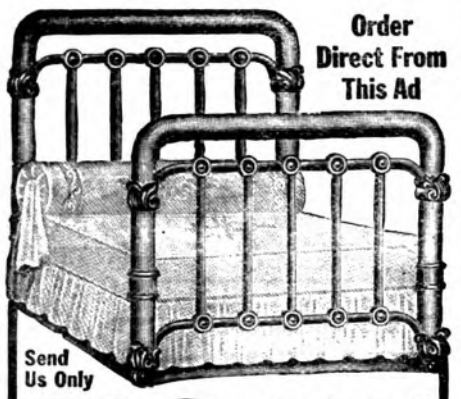


If I Send You this Suit

made to your measure, in the latest style, would you be willing to keep and wear it, show it to your friends and let them see our beautiful samples and dashing new styles.

Could you use $5.00 a day for a little spare time? Perhaps I can offer you a steady job. If you will write me a letter or a postal card at once and say "Send me your special offer." I will send you samples and styles to pick from and my surprising liberal offer.

Address: L. E. ASHER, President
BANNER TAILORING CO. DEPT. 937 CHICAGO



$4 Per Month!
Nothing Down—Free Trial. Less than agents' prices. Shipped on approval. If you want to keep it, send us $4 a month. Our booklet is worth sending for because it tells you how to save $48.00. It's FREE.
Typewriters Dist'g Syndicate
166 Z-21 Michigan Blvd., Chicago

MUSIC TAUGHT FREE
In Your Home
By the Oldest and Most Reliable School of Music in America—Established 1895.
Piano, Organ, Violin, Mandolin, Guitar, Banjo, etc. Beginners or advanced players. One lesson weekly. Illustrations make everything plain. Only expense about 2c per day to cover cost of postage and music used. Write for FREE Booklet which explains everything in full.
AMERICAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC, 15 Lakeside Bldg., Chicago.

PATENT YOUR IDEAS
$9,000 offered for certain inventions. Book "How to Obtain a Patent" and "What to Invent" sent free. Send rough sketch for free report as to patentability. Patents advertised for sale at our expense in Manufacturers' Journals.
CHANDLEE & CHANDLEE, Patent Att'ys
Established 16 Years
989 F. Street, Washington, D. C.

Order Direct From This Ad

Send Us Only

50¢ and we will ship you this Beautiful Bed

An astounding bargain. Only 50c down then only 50c monthly. Only $3.95 in all for this elegant continuous post all-steel bed. Use the coupon below. This picture cannot show what an elegant bed this is. Send for it on free trial. The bed has 1 and 1-16 inch Pillars, 5-16 inch filling rods. Full size 4 ft. 6 inch, only. Finished throughout in the famous Vernis Martin finish — looks like a brass bed. Order this wonder bargain direct from this ad if you wish by No. A118. This is only one of the great bargain offers we are making now. Send for our big bargain book. No obligation. Send today sure.

30 Days' Free Trial

We allow you 30 days free trial on every purchase. Send the coupon now for this luxuriously comfortable bed. If it fails to please you, ship it back, charges collect, and we will refund your deposit and any freight charges you paid. But send today.

Easy Payments If you want anything in rockers, furniture jewelry, carpets, rugs, curtains, washing machines, crockery, silverware, baby carriages, go-carts, Men's, Women's and Children's apparel, stoves, ranges or any other article of home-furnishing don't fail to get our sensational easy terms. Only a small deposit—then pay the balance at the rate of a small amount per month.

Send This Coupon Today

Read this free trial coupon and send it today. Get one of these elegant beds for only 50c down while this remarkable offer lasts. Have the bed shipped right to you. Just your mere request accompanied by 50c brings this bed. And we will send you at the same time our giant catalogue, also our special bargain bulletins. Or ask for these books on a postal. Write today. Do not delay on this. Send the coupon while you have the chance.

Straus & Schram, Inc.
Dept. 3042
35th Street, Chicago, Ill.

Straus & Schram, Inc.
Dept. 3042
35th Street Chicago, Ill.

Please ship me your Bed No. A118. I enclose 50 cents as first payment. I am to have 30 days free trial. If at the end of 30 days I like this bed I will send you 50 cents each month thereafter until $3.95, the full price of the bed has been paid. If I do not like the bed I will send it back at your expense and you will return my 50 cents together with any freight charges that I paid. Please also send your big catalog.

Name.....

Address.....

Play Piano or Organ in One Hour

A Detroit musician has invented a wonderful new system which enables any person or child to learn to play the piano or organ in one evening. People who do not know one note from another are able to play their favorite songs in a few hours. It is called the Numeral Method—numbers instead of notes are used. We have secured the sole rights from the inventor and are desirous of making it known at once in every locality.

Send at once for our Free Booklet, which will be sent postpaid at our expense and which will explain our special offer and tell you all about this successful method that has already brought pleasure and happiness to thousands of homes in all parts of the United States and Canada. Simply write us a postal card or letter saying "Please send me your Free Booklet." This will cost you nothing and put you under no obligation to us whatever.

Address NUMERAL METHOD MUSIC CO.,
111-C Trussed Concrete Building, Detroit, Michigan.

Made-to-Measure

Express Prepaid $2.75

Pants cut in the latest style. Made-to-your individual measure. Fit, workmanship and wear guaranteed.

No Extra Charge for peg tops, no matter how extreme you order them.

Agents Wanted A good live hustler in every town to take orders for our celebrated made-to-measure clothes. Samples of all latest materials Free.

We Pay Big Money to our agents everywhere. Turn your spare time into cash by taking orders for our stylish clothes. Write today for beautiful FREE outfit.

THE PROGRESS TAILORING CO.
Dept. 622 Chicago, Ill.

GO INTO THE MOVING PICTURE BUSINESS

Write For FREE Catalog

On Our Easy Payment Plan

Make $20 to $50 per night

With our Moving Picture Outfit We sell everything—Films, too.

National Moving Picture Co.
Dept. 1-C Ellsworth Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Southern Office: MONARCH FILM SERVICE, 228 Union Ave., Memphis, Tenn.

FREE "Linene" COLLAR

State size on postal and whether you want collar like cut or low turnover style.

Reversible Collar Co., Dept. E, Boston, Mass.

Don't Throw It Away MENDETS

Mend leaks instantly in all utensils, graniteware, aluminum, tin, brass, hot water bags, etc. No solder, cement or rivet. Any one can use them. Send for sample box, 10c; large box, all sizes, 25c, postpaid. Agents Wanted. Collette Mfg. Co., Box 452 Amsterdam, N. Y.

Bargains In Seeds

2¢ Per Pkg. and Up. Hundreds of special offers in Surplus seeds and plants at bargain prices. Don't buy until you have seen our fine large catalog and bargain list, mailed free.

IOWA SEED CO., Dept. AA Des Moines, Iowa

PARK'S FLORAL GUIDE—all about Flowers, a Surprise Mixed Flower Seed Pkg., 1000 sorts, a 10c Seed Coupon, and copy Park's Floral Magazine the oldest and most popular Floral Magazine in the world, all for 5 stamp. Don t miss it. Geo. W. Park, LaPark, Pa.

Large List, Dialogs, Entertainments, Recitations, Drills, PLAYS Catalogue Free. T. S. DENISON & CO., Dept. 8 Chicago, Ill.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9.)

dear baby girl and so now though we are "poor folks" and I, not very strong, we are a happy family.

Have not some of you wished you could make good pancakes sometimes when you had no sour milk? Well, I have many times, and a short while ago I run across a recipe in another paper and now we have cakes whenever we want them, milk or no milk.

One pint flour, one heaping teaspoon baking powder, one tablespoon sugar, a little salt, and warm water enough to make a thin batter. Beat it up good and pour, do not dip it, into your hot griddle. I make mine up in a pitcher, take the spoon out and I can pour out handy what I want.

When cooking turnips or potatoes that have a strong or bitter taste, if a little sugar, about equal to your salt, is added they will be good.

Well, baby has woke up and here come my chickens for their supper so I must run.

God bless all of you and the COMFORT staff. Your sister, MRS. JAMES COLLINS.

RECTOR, ARK.

DEAR COMFORT SISTERS:

I have been a silent reader of COMFORT for many years, but have never made any attempt to enter with the great staff of writers. I dearly love every page of COMFORT. It is always looked for with eagerness by all my family.

I have three dear children living and two gone to Heaven. I can sympathize with all who have lost loved ones. We know our little ones are with Jesus and why should we grieve? I try to live daily so that when I am called I will be ready. I am not very strong. During the months of August and September I was sick seven weeks with the dreaded typhoid fever which left me with a cough and throat trouble. I have been very hoarse for five weeks and can hardly speak above a whisper. Have tried several remedies and also doctors' treatments, but have received little benefit. If any of the COMFORT readers can tell me of anything that will cure my cough, I will greatly appreciate the favor.

There are so many people talking "hard times" and "what will we do if things don't change?" Just stop and think what would we do if we were in Europe, living among shot and mobs. Think of the daily death list and people left homeless and starving while we are living in a free country, the good old United States of America.

We are not blessed with a fortune, but with a happy little home. We have been married ten years and we are still sweethearts. We always tell each other our secrets. I have heard so many women say, "I never know what my husband is going to do until the last moment; he never tells me anything." It may be that the wife is to blame; there are so many that can't keep a secret. I heard a man say once, "I can't tell my wife anything I don't want told for she can't keep a secret," and she made the remark, "I can keep a secret from you." That made me feel badly, not for the man but his wife. I am thankful I can keep a secret not from my husband but from my neighbors. A tattler is always looked upon with scorn and forever having trouble with someone. I have lived in town seven years and never had any trouble with my neighbors. I never was quick to form acquaintance with strangers as I want to know them first. I always learn the ways of my neighbors before I visit. I may be wrong in my way but I was taught this while I was a child.

I am a dear lover of fancy work and have made several very pretty patterns of crocheting.

If the sisters who have the misfortune to scorch their clothes while ironing will keep a bottle of hydrogen peroxide near by and saturate a cloth spread over the scorched place and iron with a hot iron she will find the scorched spot will disappear.

I always keep mending tissue on hand to mend husband's coat and pants for I am a poor hand at mending pants with a needle and thread.

I don't want to wear your good patience out but perhaps I will come again, when the roses bloom.

MRS. MOLLIE WINCHESTER.

Mrs. Wincester. What you say in regard to secrets is largely true but there are occasions when I think it is perfectly right for a husband to have secrets from his wife, or vice versa. By this I mean secrets of a professional or business nature. The man who tells his wife things along that line lowers himself in my estimation, as does the woman who asks for or listens to what cannot concern her.

In defense of my own sex,—admitting that women are prone to talk more than is wise,—we are no worse than a great many men.—Ed.

LAMPASAS, TEXAS.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTERS:

I have been a silent reader of COMFORT for many years, and would like admittance into your happy circle. I enjoy the sisters' page, and think it grows brighter and better each year. Our dear Mrs. Wilkinson is kind, noble and helpful to all. I also enjoy Uncle Charlie's letters to the young people. We have only one child, a girl of fifteen. I have the COMFORT sent in her name. She reads a great deal, and looks forward to each issue of COMFORT with delight. She says Uncle Charlie is simply grand. He is indeed marvelous. Just to think how long he has been an invalid, and gives to the world so much that is joyous, hopeful and beneficial. His writings bring sunshine to our little home. They are not only informing on all important topics, but uplifting as well, and interwoven throughout with wholesome humor, enabling one who is capable of enjoying innocent fun to be lifted in spite of themselves out of despondency and gloom. Long may Uncle Charlie live to cheer and help saddened humanity.

I cannot close these remarks until I express some appreciation of our noble editor, Mr. Gannett. His "heart-to-heart" talk in November issue was fine; but "the halt is not told" for my belief is that eternity alone will reveal the good he and his staff of editors are doing, scattering seeds of kindness, love and hope in the hearts and homes of the millions of COMFORT readers. I take several magazines, but none are so welcome as COMFORT. Its pages are filled with things of interest to one and all alike. The contributions from the able pen of Mrs. Adele Steiner Burleson, afford me much pleasure, especially her recent article entitled, "The Farmer's Wife of Today." It proves to my mind so clearly the real blessings, as well as advantages of farm life. Dear sisters, you that once lived in the country and are living now in the city, or like myself in a little town, does it not make you homesick, and I might say "hungry," to move back to the dear old farm? It does me—and I believe such a beautiful and true portrayal of country life by one who knows and loves such a life, is calculated to arouse the desire to answer the call "back to the soil." We have lived mostly in the country, and I am looking forward to the time when we can once more live "where the birds sing, and the cow bells ring." There is where all poor people should be, but it is a blessing and luxury few are able to afford.

Well, sisters I haven't taken any special subject, but if Mrs. Wilkinson sees fit to print these scattering remarks, I hope to write again.

I enjoy the letters on subjects like poultry raising and farming, child training and education, but especially those on religion. Like Mrs. H. C. Crawford I haven't much of this world's goods, but I trust a "heart full of love and sympathy for all." I think those who will live Godly in this world, meet with trials and temptations, and the promise is, if we are faithful unto the end, will receive a crown of life. Sometimes the way looks dark, but as the sister said, "if we have Jesus for our friend and try to make others better and happier our lives will not have been in vain." I know how to sympathize with those who have given up loved ones. My oldest sister died Oct. 4, 1891. Just about one year after we came from Tennessee to Texas. It nearly broke our hearts as none of us were with her. She had married and remained in Tennessee. Then on March 10, 1910, our mother was taken. Sisters, you that have given up mother, know the sorrow and loneliness of such a separation. The sun has never shone so bright to me since my darling mother went away to be with God, but I am striving to follow the worthy examples of Christianity she left and have the consoling promise of meeting her pure soul in Heaven. My dear father is still living and lives with us part of the time.

My husband is afflicted with muscular rheumatism, also has stomach trouble. Will someone send remedies for same?

Miss Azubuh Lee might get the books wanted by writing to Postmaster at Wellington, Mo. Thomas Lockhart, the author, lived there, but is now dead.

If Mrs. Rosa Bryant of Baxter Springs, Kans., will send stamp I will send her the song requested, "The Ship That Never Returned."

Long may COMFORT's workers and readers live, and with love to each one of you, I beg to remain a COMFORT sister, MRS. J. EDNA WHITE.

DIAMOND RANCH, DIAMOND, WYO.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

Here I come again but this time to answer the many inquiries about this country.

First I want to thank the many, many, kind people who wrote me about teaching a small child at home. My little girl is learning wonderfully, can write and spell her name, also several small words, and knows quite a few numbers. Again I thank you all and will try and answer all the letters I received.

To describe land, country and work! The homesteads around here that can be farmed have all been taken and all farming is dry farming. Crops were not very large this year on account of the drouth. Corn does not grow well here, as the seasons are too short. People are foolish to leave the East for a dry farm. Of course I don't say farming is all a failure in Wyoming, but it is not the best in the West either. A person who has not homesteaded before can take three hundred and twenty acres homestead land. As to work on ranches, I don't know much how it is on any other ranches but there are plenty of men here for the work on this place.

The weather in the summer is pleasant, winters are very severe, so many blizzards and lots of snow. We had a lovely fall, this year, and all are enjoying good health at present.

Now Mrs. Wilkinson, I want to ask your opinion on what some sisters have said of Christmas and Santa Claus. Do you think it a sin to tell children there is a Santa and do you believe in telling them the truth about everything when small. I, for one, think the happiest time in a child's life is when Santa comes. Why should we deprive them of that happiness? I know many children who were told there was a Santa, who have grown up good men and women. I don't call it lying or desceiving a child. Let us have some more sisters with their opinions.

For pneumonia in children take flaxseed, make a good hot poultice and spread it on flannel and change as often as it cools.

For rheumatism rub affected parts with common coal oil. This is a tried remedy.

I wonder if any of my girl friends around and in Salt Lake City will read this and remember Millie Rodgers. I'd like to hear from any of the girls or boys.

Wishing sucess to all with love to COMFORT's noble staff and all the sisters, MRS. S. F. FRIDELL.

Mrs. Fridell. Here is where we get the benefit of other mothers' ideas on the Santa Claus question. Personally, I agree with you for I know I experienced more real pleasure from Santa Claus' visits, anticipated and realized, than I have since from any source. In a way it is deceiving a child, but it is such a pleasant way to be deceived that I hardly think children will lose faith in their parents for it, provided they are told the truth in other respects and I insist on the necessity of that. With the others I am glad your little girl is progressing so well in her studies.—Ed.

DRY FORK, Box 50 B., R. R. 2, VA.

DEAR COMFORT SISTERS:

If permitted by Mrs. Wilkinson, I will make a short call on you all in our dear and appreciated "corner." It is nearly two years since my last visit and much has happened to many of us since then. I wish I could send in as many helps as some do, but as I cannot I beg you to accept the good intentions for the deed.

I have been quite a shut-in for the last eight months or more, with that dread disease, cancer of the cheek. Have spent a large part of the time in the hospital. Have been operated on six times since January, 1914, twice for the cancer, and the other operations were to close the hole in my cheek (skin grafting) and dear sisters I sympathize with all the afflicted ones for I too have suffered. I am feeling better than I ever at one time expected to feel, although my jaws are clinched or locked and the doctors say I will have to be operated on again in the near future to have my jaws unlocked. But somehow or other I feel that they will be opened without an operation, and I think my faith will be rewarded, so all of you please remember me. Still if I have to undergo another operation I shall not give up or despair, for I see many that are in a worse condition than myself. I am of a cheerful disposition and can always see the funny side of every situation even on the most solemn occasions, and I believe there is a silver lining to every cloud. No matter how dark the cloud I know the sun is shining.

Now dear sisters, a word of praise for my dearly beloved state, dear old Virginia, the garden spot of the world to me. We have a delightful climate and no other state can raise a greater variety of things than Virginia and she can compete with any in scenery and natural beauties of nature. It has to be seen to be appreciated.

Grandma, your letter in September number was grand.

Mrs. Schiller. Like you I think it would be pleasant as well as profitable for the sisters to discuss their favorite books and those they take the most pleasure in. I am a great reader and take a lively interest in a variety of reading matter, though Rosa Nouchette Carey is my favorite author of fiction. I have read and have a great many of her books and have never read one but what had noble and grand ideals; yet told in a simple every-day style. Sisters, you who have never read any of her books have missed something good in life. I have quite a little library but will never be satisfied until I have all of my favorite author's books. You need never be afraid to let any of your children read her books as there is nothing in them but what is noble and uplifting.

Try steaming your lamp chimneys, instead of washing them and see how much longer they last and give a much clearer, brighter light.

For inflammation of the bladder use water as hot as can be borne, once or twice a day and drink water that has been boiled. I have tried this and found much relief.

Sisters, my birthday is Feb. 18, I would enjoy and appreciate a shower or an avalanche of the white-winged messengers. Will answer all who wish if a stamp is enclosed, as my pocketbook is limited.

I won't tell you how old I am, will leave you to guess. I am under fifty and over thirty, and have no children living. Will call again if I am welcome.

Yours for dear old COMFORT, MRS. E. J. STUTZ.

Mrs. Stutz.—Most assuredly you are welcome for we all admire courage and you seem to possess an abundance of that much-to-be-desired quality and I am positive that you will have the prayers of all readers for your recovery. Rest assured of mine. I, too, am an admirer of Rosa Nouchette Carey's works, though it would be hard to determine my favorite author. While I am deciding suppose we hear from other sisters as to their favorites and why.—Ed.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 24.)

How to Arrange for Spare Time

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7.)

thought this umbrella scheme evidenced an obscure sense of order in mother although, of course it might have been father's brilliant idea. System was at least more developed in her than in the college boy who shed his belongings from the front door to the attic, and when his mother complained, insisted that everything was just where he wanted it.

There is a favorite man-made rule that affects the girls of the house and as I look at it, is particularly injurious to them; but no man who ever made this law for the discipline of his daughters ever failed to consider it heaven born. Parents who look upon dancing as a legitimate pleasure and permit their daughters to indulge in it, should remember that it is a severe exercise and that extra sleep and rest should follow, yet many a devoted father will make his daughter pay a heavy penalty as the price of attending a ball, decreeing that she appear at breakfast the following morning, and perform every accustomed duty throughout the day. It would be cheaper for the girl to stay at home than to be deprived of the sleep needed for the repair of tired muscles. If the father does not consider it a waste of time for the daughter to attend late evening parties, he should grant her time in which to recover from them, for social pleasures produce just as much fatigue as digging in the garden and considerably more strain on the nervous system. The trouble is that father doubts the righteousness of the dance for his daughter or at least he thinks he should, and as a salve to his own conscience, or to avoid reproach for appearing to let mere pleasure take precedence of home duties, man's particular fetish, he sacrifices the poor young girl to his mistaken sense of duty. Most assuredly he has no idea of doing this and would be decidedly shocked at the suggestion that he had.

Notwithstanding the unquestionable benefits to be derived from sane and regular exercise, it is nevertheless a fact that exercise is one of the most popular of the present day idols, whose zealous worship frequently brings about undesirable consequences, so far as they stand for wasted time. Take, for instance, the young man, who is just starting out in his business career. If his occupation confines him to the indoors for the greater part of the day, he is keen for the relaxation which exercise in the open gives, when he gets out. He may join a baseball team a tennis club, a boat crew, or if he can afford it, a country club where he can play golf. Perhaps, in his enthusiasm for the particular sport which he chooses o follow, he exercises so long and so violently that he sleeps late in the mornings, and must ride to his place of business after rushing through or possibly entirely omitting even a scant breakfast, to avoid being late.

But if his vision is clear, this will not be likely to occur for he will look ahead and estimate to what extent he can indulge himself in the delights of this sort without endangering his success in life. Then too he thinks about the young man whose desk is next to his, and who walks to and from his work for exercise, spending the unspent carfare on the technical magazines bearing upon his particular line of business and the metropolitan newspapers needed to keep himself informed of the big world events.

In his deliberation of the question of exercise, he reminds himself of the young married man on his other side who took all of his exercise in his own garden, raising wonderful crops of tomatoes and sweetpeas, snap beans and roses. This young man had told him that finding himself necessarily away from home during most of his recreation hours, he abandoned golf and went in for gardening. The returns were far greater than he had dreamed that they could be and more than repaid for the personal sacrifice. For almost half the year there were no vegetable bills. During all of the year there were no doctor's bills for him and best of all there was a happy, contented wife, smiling at him from the garden bench and two little children learning to be comrades with their father.

Also, the young man who reflects, tells himself that the successful men he knows did not become so through self-indulgence even though its pursuit led them along healthful athletic paths.

The road that leads to the pinnacle of achievement which we term success does not often follow pleasant, easy places. More often each tiny step upward and forward is hardly won over many difficulties that prove the mettle of the man or boy.

There is, in fact a sane middle course between the people who must always be driven to work and those who must likewise be driven into rest and recreation, but this course does not suggest itself to the heedless or indifferent. Its advantages present themselves gradually to the careful, diligent and ambitious wayfarer about to embark upon his or her life work.

A wise investment of time, a careful conservation and expenditure of mental and physical force, are questions that every young person ambitious to do his best should consider above all others at the beginning of his career.

But they are important to all persons at all times, and to no one is the art or science of conserving time of greater value than to the man or woman who unexpectedly faces the necessity of earning a livelihood for herself or himself and perhaps a dependent family, close upon the heels of some financial disaster or domestic bereavement. It may be that the question of dollars and cents and their relation to bread, butter, shelter and clothes, has never before required the personal attention, but the outlook is not nearly so appalling nor the future so entirely devoid of the rainbow of promise if the afflicted one has the courage to look his condition squarely in the face, take the measure of his assets of education, brains and strength of purpose and then mark out a definite plan of daily life and labor. True it no doubt will be beset with hardships, since those unused to privations and self denials are not inured to the grind of poverty, but the bread of independence is very sweet and the consciousness that one is actually wresting, by the labor of one's own hands, from it the living that the world is supposed to owe each one of us, goes a long way in compensation for the comforts that may have been lost.

Start Now —I'll Show You How You Can Easily Make $25 per Week At Home

W. B. STARK who will help you start a money-making business.

No Experience Necessary

Let me send you some samples of the work you can do on a Newcomb Loom. The more you need the money the more I can and will help you to get started to making it.

Now is just the time—start this easy work at home in your spare time. I will tell you how you can make your time most profitable—how you can engage in a delightful and fascinating occupation in your own home, that will not interfere with your other duties and assure you big profits. I promise that you'll be interested. I say, and I know that every word I say is true, that you can make more money and make it more easily by weaving on a Newcomb Automatic Loom than at any other kind of home employment. My 20 years' experience with others and their letters prove what you can do. The

Newcomb Automatic Loom

is made especially for home workers. A simple movement of the hand is all it requires of the operator. No treading—no stooping—no shuttle throwing. No experience is necessary. You will be delighted with the ease with which you can make the finest and most durable carpets, rugs, mats, draperies of every kind, and even beautiful portieres, chenille curtains, hammocks.

Bear in mind also, that no cash outlay for supplies is required. Old carpets, sacks, cast-off clothing and rags all furnish material for the loom. You can be sure when you own a Newcomb, that you will have more than enough work to keep you busy. Many of our customers make from $25 to $30 a week. You can do likewise.

Do not neglect this opportunity. Write me today for my free catalog, "Weaving Wisdom," which tells all about our looms and the extremely reasonable prices on which you can obtain one of them.

W. B. STARK, Secretary
NEWCOMB LOOM CO.
44 Taylor St. Davenport, Iowa

Read What This Woman Does

"Made over 11,000 yards of carpet on my loom in spare time the past three years," writes Mrs. Sadie E. Taggart, West Plains, Mo. "I never weave a day that I don't make 20 yards and I do my own housework. I weigh only 115 pounds—don't tire of weaving. Loom as good an investment as an 80-acre farm."

The Pretty Girls' Club

Conducted by Katherine Booth

Bringing Down the Weight

THE fat girl! The girl who measures a little too much about the hips; who takes up her hand-mirror disconsolately to view the unpleasant cushion of fat just below the nape of the neck; whose gowns look too soft and shapeless across the bust, and who tips the scale at—but let's keep that a secret!

It is she to whom I mean to talk this month, for the burden of too much flesh is truly uncomfortable as well as unbecoming to one.

There are two royal roads to a slimmer, more graceful figure; one is diet; and the other, exercise.

I am quite aware that neither of these sound at all attractive to the girl who weighs too much, because if it had not been for her neglect of both she would not now be needing my advice. Yet I am going to assume that she is thoroughly in earnest in her desire to reduce her figure to normal size, and that she will therefore be willing to pay the price—which, in this case, means a little self-denial and some effort.

She must realize at the very beginning that certain foods make fat, and certain ones do not. Sugar, starch and fat produce fat in the body, and therefore should be eaten in very small quantities.

Under sugar come candies, cakes, rich sauces and puddings; under starches come bread, potatoes, rice; under fat come butter, cream, fat meat, gravies.

All of these that can be cut entirely out of our "fat girl's" diet, should be; and then others should be taken in minimum quantities.

It is easy to cut out all the articles I have named under sugar. "Easy to cut out candy!" cries Betty. Yes, easy, Betty dear, when you stop to think of what a graceful figure you mean to possess. But it is not as easy to omit sugar, itself, on oatmeal and fruits and in every other way. Try it, though dear girls, for this is the shortest road to reform!

Of course, fat meats and gravies you can cross off the list without a pang, but when it comes to potatoes—yes, I was sure Betty liked potatoes. How did I know? Why, the scale she weighed on told me! Nevertheless, Betty must stop eating potatoes for a time; eat only a very little butter; and if you can get along entirely without bread, so much the better. She can eat lean meats, green vegetables and fruit, but even here she must not gorge herself. If you were to put a big piece of meat on a plate, a saucer of string beans, and a helping of turnips, and some lettuce salad, and two dishes of berries, and a banana, and mix them all up, you would be appalled at asking any stomach to take them all at one time. Yet many Betties eat very much more than this, and don't think about it at all. Try to be moderate in the amount you eat, and eat only at the table. Do not drink while eating, but masticate every mouthful of food until it is practically liquid.

In the morning take the juice of a lemon in a glass of water on rising.

With these precautions as to diet, Betty will have taken the first step toward the goal of her desires.

The next thing for her to do is to exercise off some of those superfluous pounds which constitute her grievance.

The thing she must remember, here, is that perspiration is her most potent ally. The more she perspires, the sooner her pounds will flee away. Exercise will produce perspiration, and will help to burn up the superfluous tissue.

Almost any exercise will help Betty in her project, but the more arduous it is, the better will be the results. For this reason, the Beauty Crawl is perhaps the most effective. For this Betty should don bathing suit or pajamas—or even a union suit of underwear—and getting down upon her hands and knees crawl around her bedroom as fast as her plump little knees will take her. Many a fashionable society maid or matron has spent a strenuous fifteen minutes every morning for a month, doing just the same identical thing, so Betty will not be alone in her endeavors.

THE BEAUTY CRAWL.

She should not weary of well-doing, but keep the exercise up until she is dripping from every pore. Then into the bathtub she should jump, if there is one at hand, and have a hot bath followed by a quick rub, a cool sponge, and another rub. If there is no bathtub, Betty must seize on some warm Turkish towels and give her body a good rubbing.

You think, perhaps, she should lie down and take a nap after this? No, indeed! What we want to do is to wear Betty's flesh away, not give her a chance to relax and grow fat; so on must go her clothes and she must set to work at whatever duty is awaiting her.

Some time during the day, she is to almost smother herself in warm underclothes, a warm dress, a sweater, and a heavy coat, and set out for a brisk walk, swinging her arms vigorously. She will be very warm—perhaps uncomfortably so—but we don't care, because the warmer she is the more she will perspire and that's what we want Betty to do.

Is some one particular part of Betty's body—such as hips or bust—over-fat, while the rest of her figure is normal, then Betty should practise an exercise which applies to that one portion of the body. Arm exercises reduce the bust; bending exercise and a great many leg exercises reduce the hips.

Betty can help these special exercises by buying some rubber sheeting at the store, and cutting a strip big enough to go around the part of the body she wishes to reduce, and wide enough to cover it. This strip she should bind about the offending part of the body very firmly, and fasten with strips of adhesive tape so that it may not slip or loosen. It will feel uncomfortably hot—let me whisper!—that is what we want; for soon the flesh beneath will begin to perspire, and with each little drop of water that oozes forth goes a tiny fraction of Betty's weight.

All these exercises and precautions will lessen Betty's present flesh, but only attention to diet will keep new flesh from coming. Here's hoping that Betty may have courage and perseverance to follow these directions, and that I may hear, soon, how many pounds she has lost.

Answers to Questions

Schoolmarm.—After bunions have once arrived, their best remedy must be found in different footwear. A too short shoe or too short stocking must be avoided, although the shoe should fit snugly in width. You will have to wear low flat heels and wide shoes for a long time to come. Gentle massage of the large joints with cold cream, and the wearing of a pad of cotton between the great toe and the next toe will help to get the toe gradually back into shape. Only the change of shoes you are wearing will do any real good. For fat feet, vigorous massage every night is essential and active exercise of the foot. Here is an exercise, for fat feet:

Stand with hands on hips, heels together. Then rise slowly, let the heels sink very gradually to the ground again. Rise slowly and continue until the legs and feet begin to feel tired.

C. R. P.—There is no objection to your using the formulas in COMFORT to put up creams, powders, etc., for sale.

A Southern Girl.—Yes, the constant use of a strong astringent is injurious to the skin. What are you using it for? If to close up open pores, it would be better to dash cold water on the face and to do this at intervals during the day. If you are using it to "reduce," it is not a desirable thing. Rather, cut down the amount of food you are eating, and omit fried foods and sweet things from your diet for a time. In answer to your question, the toilet vinegar is to be applied to the nose with a bit of absorbent cotton at night. If the skin is sensitive in the morning, rub in a little cold cream.

M. E. M.—You can buy toilet ammonia at your drug-store. Tell your druggist you wish to use it for toilet purposes.

Clarksville.—Aqua ammonia is obtainable at any drug-store and is diluted ammonia.

Blue Eyes.—You can remove hairs from the arms by anointing them with peroxide of hydrogen one day and aqua ammonia the next. If the ammonia irritates the skin, stop for a couple of days and resume again. Peroxide will bleach the hair and the ammonia after some months will kill the root.

M. F. M.—See answer to Blue Eyes. I am sorry it is against the rules of this department to express an opinion of proprietary articles such as you inquire about. Try the horseradish lotion for freckles.

Horseradish Lotion

Horseradish root, one ounce; boiling water, one pint; borax, two drams.

Apply at night to freckles. If skin is sensitive, test the strength of this preparation on the arm before applying it to the face.

Bessie L.—See answer to Blue Eyes. Blackheads are the result of letting the pores become clogged with dirt. To get rid of them scrub the face nightly with hot soapy water and a complexion brush, rinsing many times. Rub a little cold cream on the blackheads after scrubbing and use a comedone extractor to press them out. You can buy one at your drug-store for twenty-five cents. Then touch the pore with alcohol to close it up. Perfect cleanliness is essential to get rid of blackheads. For pimples, drink plenty of water, eat only at meals, avoid fried foods, greasy foods and sweets.

C. F. M.—Massage your nose nightly with a light pinching motion, beginning at the bridge of the nose and extending to the tip—the fingers being anointed with cold cream. This will help to reduce it.

Little Dove.—If you will pay particular attention to your diet and to seeing that the bowels move freely daily, your brown spots may be improved. Drink, before breakfast, a glass of water in which has been squeezed the juice of one lemon without sugar. Eat fruits as much as possible—apples, stewed prunes, canned fruits (but the rich preserves), oranges, pineapple, etc. Pineapples either fresh or canned, would be good for you at least twice a week. It helps digest food. Take eight to ten glasses of water a day. Do you get plenty of exercise? You need it. Here is a good exercise to stimulate the liver:

Stand with your feet a little apart, arms extended above head. Then sweep forward with the body, extending the hands in which you may hold balls or dumb-bells as far back as possible between the calves. I would suggest that you take one or two tablespoonfuls of Castor oil once a month.

Just Twenty-six.—Your drawn skin and the fine wrinkles need some skin food and nightly massage. Use any good cold cream or the magnolia skin food (given below) and rub into the face thoroughly at night. Remember to rub the cheeks always away from, not toward the chin, to massage around and around the eyes with the tips of the fingers, using very light touches under the eyes. You can use a rotary movement on the cheek, also, and always finish by gently and rapidly slapping the cheeks with the tips of the fingers. Do this every night. Every morning rub on cold cream, after washing and rinsing the face, but be sure to wipe the face, afterward very thoroughly with a towel. Are you being careful to eat plenty of good nourishing food and drink lots of water?

Magnolia Skin Food

Spermaceti, one half ounce; white wax, one half ounce; sweet almond oil, two ounces; lanoline, one ounce; cocoanut oil, one ounce; tincture benzoin, three drops; orange-flower water, one ounce. Melt the first five ingredients in a porcelain kettle, take from fire and add the benzoin and the orange-flower water, fluffing it within an egg beater until cold.

Perplexed.—You will probably outgrow those freckles. If they are just under the eyes, I would not try to use a bleach on them, but just keep the skin well cared for with a complexion brush each night, and a good cold cream in the daytime. Then when summer comes again, be careful about wearing broad-brimmed hats or carrying a parasol.

For the oily hair try this: The night before shampooing use a medicine dropper or a small-mouthed bottle and drop olive oil all over your scalp. Spread it around the scalp gently with the finger, then put your hair up in a bath towel. In the morning, shampoo the hair thoroughly, and rinse many times. The olive oil will help get rid of the dandruff and in time help the oily condition of your hair. Shampoo regularly once in two weeks. Use a soap jelly instead of soap, made as follows:

Pare one cake of Castile soap into three cups of water to which has been added one teaspoonful of powdered borax, boil until mixture jellies, then add two drops of geranium oil, put in covered jar and use as wanted.

Irene.—Yes, you weigh all together too much for your height. You need to lose at least fifty pounds. I expect you eat too many sweet things—now don't you? You've simply got to cut out all candies, cakes, sweet puddings, sugar, and for a little while eat only very sensible things. Especially you mustn't eat between meals and you mustn't drink anything at meals,—and, let me whisper, you should also reduce the amount you eat. All you need for breakfast is an orange, two soft-boiled eggs and some crisp dry toast. Of course you ought to eat it without butter, but, if you think you must have butter it should be the littlest bit. For lunch—let me see, tomato toast and a dish of peas and a baked apple without sugar or cream, and no bread and butter; or a lamb chop and some string beans and some stewed prunes; or some other lunch which hasn't creamed things or gravies or sweets as a part of it; and for dinner you can have some lean meat, roasted or broiled, but no potatoes, some spinach or onions or stewed celery or squash; and for dessert, some pineapple or other fruits, or—just none at all! ! You see you've really got to work quite hard to get rid of these extra pounds. And you ought to join a gymnasium or a basket ball club, or a walking club or something else where you get a lot of good healthy exercises! Tell me just what you find yourself brave enough to do.

Address all letters containing questions to
KATHERINE BOOTH, care COMFORT,
AUGUSTA, MAINE.

The Miracle of Love

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 2.)

I have learned to love him, but he is not going to tell me of it. I don't understand," and the thickly falling tears blurred out the stars and all thought of the beauty of the night, leaving only misery where there should have been light and peace.

The knowledge that two people love each other with all the intensity of their natures is as often the cause for tears as it is for radiant joy. And the woman who can understand the workings of a man's mind when she knows his love for her is strong as the "everlasting hills," has solved as large a problem, perhaps, as will ever be presented to her.

Jessie Lane could not understand and her days were full of questionings and her nights full of bitter weeping.

So the days slipped into the weeks and the weeks in turn became months.

Then one evening in the early winter he came to call.

Jessie was dressing to spend the evening with some friends, when his card was brought to her. Stepping at once to the telephone, she explained that she was detained and could not join the group at cards.

When she entered the room where her caller was impatiently awaiting her, she seemed to radiate warmth and light and cheer.

In thinking of it afterwards, Fred wondered how much of it was due to her dress of soft rose pink.

Throughout the evening he was conscious, as never before, of her radiant personality. The very air of the room was charged with it. Every word she spoke, every tone of her voice was alive with this new quality. Her voice was a caress, her laughter full of contagious warmth.

He yearned to take her into his arms and hold her close, but he must turn the lock upon his heart and stifle his desire.

And when he was gone, Jessie threw herself upon her bed in an agony of weeping. How long she lay there she never knew but after a while she grew more calm. When she finally fell asleep, it was the deep slumber of sheer exhaustion. No dreams to disturb, no visions of delightful happenings—only a deep and restful sleep.

Those who have been under great strain of mind often wonder how they could have slept on with no restless dreams. But nature supplies her own remedies in our hour of extreme need.

The yearning for the woman he loved grew with the passing days, and as Fred sat, evening after evening, with his crippled sister it seemed sometimes as though he could never stand it. And yet how could he ask that peerless woman to take up his burdens? Ah, no! He would call once more and then efface himself from her life.

But what he utterly forgot was that the little atom called love often frustrates our best laid plans. Even Cupid is better to us than we deserve.

When Fred therefore was ushered into the cheerful living-room, Jessie was busy tying up Christmas packages which by now was only two weeks away.

"You are just in time, Mr. Bettinger, to help me," Jessie said gayly as she greeted him. "I wanted a good strong hand for these express boxes."

So they went to work, sorting out and wrapping up, and joking and laughing between times, and it was not until the table was entirely cleared and all the packages placed in an immense pile in the hall, that the two workers sat down to rest.

Something had been said about a gift sent to a bride who was to be married on Christmas Day, and Fred stated soberly, "That is something I must cut entirely out of my life."

"What is," said Jessie, unconsciously aiding him in his determination to kill any interest in him which may have been awakened in his mind.

"Marriage," replied Fred.

"Marriage?" questioned Jessie in a dazed tone. Don't you ever expect to marry?" she asked a moment later with her heart beating wildly and her throat parched and dry with the effort she was making to keep her voice from betraying her emotion.

"No, I can never hope to marry," said Fred in a tone of sadness, "I cannot afford such a luxury. I should want to place the woman I loved in a home befitting her rare beauty. I would desire to take her on a wedding journey to some foreign land where she had never been, and my life is already full of burdens I could not ask her to share. Kathie needs all my spare time. Not since mother died have I had any vacation, but when Kathie needs me most I take a day or two off. My work is always planned ahead, so that if I am forced to stay at home, the business does not suffer in consequence. I am carrying a large life insurance, so if anything happens, my sister will never want for the comforts of life. My income is small and my expenses very large so I cannot get much ahead. I should desire to surround my loved one with every luxury and I cannot. No, the luxury of matrimony is not for me." Fred's tone had been growing stronger and his last words were uttered in a triumphant key. She knows everything now, he thought.

The fire had been burning low and Jessie arose to put on another log. No one ever touched the fire but Jessie. She loved to do it, she said, and others only made a bad matter worse.

So Fred sat still and watched her as she worked over the blaze, until the flames shot up and the room was again full of light.

He thought of course she had resumed her seat, and he was waiting to hear how she would receive his speech.

Suddenly he was conscious of a peculiar stillness. A stifled exclamation burst forth from his lips and he sprang to his feet.

Jessie was standing near his chair, though not touching it, and a wondrous beauty glowed in her features.

"You men seem to leave the woman entirely out of your reckoning," she began, in her sweet voice, "which is more than selfish, I think. You declare you will not marry or you will or will not do this or that, and you never seem to think the woman has any right to be heard. No, I am not a suffragette, only a woman who desires, as every true woman must, that in those things which make or mar her own happiness, she has a right to be heard. You say you will not marry. Yet you love me. I have known it for a long time. And I have learned to love you. How could I help it?"

Fred took an impulsive step forward but a gesture from her made him pause. He leaned his hand heavily on the table for he was still dazed by her opening words.

"And you very likely are aware that my greeting, when you call, is more than the mere cordiality of a hostess for her guest. Yet you calmly tell me that you will not marry, and forget that I have a right to be heard."

A little break in the sweet voice now and then, and a nervous pressure of the clasped fingers were the only outward signs of an intense inward emotion.

"You do not even ask whether or no I can put up with the conditions of your life. You deliberately and selfishly deny to yourself the home life you crave; you deny to your suffering sister another woman's love and devotion; and you deny to me, the right of choice. Oh, how blind and selfish you are!"

In her vehemence, she threw out her hands, and her voice grew firm, yet with the strain of an affable sweetness undiminished.

"You think of marble palaces and grand wedding trips and costly jewels and rare treasures. They are not the essentials of life! They do not make happiness!"

Still gazing into the glowing fire, as she had done ever since she began, she continued in a lower tone. "Happiness is within you. There is no man or woman living who, having known the real joys of life, would exchange them for palaces, jewels, or any of the many non-essentials of our existence."

Fred still stood by the table leaning heavily upon it. Although still dazed, his mind was alert to every word uttered by that sweet voice. His eyes never left her face made radiant by her own high ideals. Tall and straight with her head carried proudly, she needed no support save her own moral courage.

"Shall I tell you what a woman considers essential and from what conditions of life she draws her happiness? First the home life, whether it be in her father's house or in the home of the man she loves. The life of serving those she loves, kind deeds and merry laughter, cheery words to those who need comfort, the hands that help, the lips that smile, the voices of prattling little ones, the tender ministrations to those who suffer, and the loving care of the aged. Self-sacrifice, self-denial and duty. The faith that draws its supplies from the inexhaustible mines of the Infinite, and the love, mercy, justice, truth and character which are the natural results. These are the things which make for happiness; these are the essentials of life."

"There is a line of an old song which reads, 'Home is where the heart is,' and it is very true. It is for the home in all its deep and sacred meaning that we women plead, for it is there that our truest happiness is found."

The man could bear it no longer. With one step he was by her side, his face working with the intensity of his passion, and his whole soul awed by the revelation of the miracle of a woman's love.

"Jessie, my beloved!" he exclaimed, in a voice choking with emotion and with arms outstretched, "Will you love me like that?"

Slowly the girl turned her eyes from the glowing flame and looked long and steadily into the eyes pleading for her love.

A rich color came into her face and her own eyes drooped beneath the fire in his, until, with a little cry and "Yes" scarcely above a whisper, she sought the shelter of his arms.

© 1915 M. L. A.

148 Pages of Styles

By Martha Lane Adams

Again I offer you my Style Book—my new Spring Book. It pictures 1,000 coming styles—the styles I like the best. It shows the new fabrics in colors. It tells all the news about dress. It quotes you

Suits—Coats—Dresses—Waists
Skirts—Hats—Shoes—Underwear
All that Women and Children Need
Also 300 Kinds of Piece Goods

It shows you the savings I make by good buying and by selling direct. It quotes you prices which will average one-third less than elsewhere.

It tells you how I fit to measure and guarantee the fit. How I send all goods on approval, charges prepaid. And how I help you by my good advice.

All-Summer Credit

I open charge accounts with every customer. There is no red tape. I will open yours when you write for my Style Book, and will mail your credit card with the book.

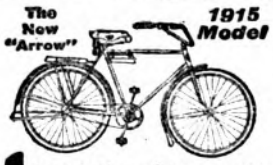
Then you may order on credit. You may have things sent on approval. You may pay in seven payments 30 days apart, which means all-summer credit.

I do all these things for thousands of women. I have done them for years. They consider this the best place in America to buy clothes—and it is.

Let me show you. Write for my Style Book—a postal will do. Write today. (818)

Martha Lane Adams
3451 Mosprat Street, Chicago

Adler's
Famous No Money Down—Free Trial
Adler Organ Offer
Saves You $48.75
Your Own Time to Pay



My Remarkable Offer Breaks all Sales Records—Banishes Competition

Send today for my Free Organ Catalog—learn how you can have World's Best Organ—winner of highest prize at St. Louis World's Fair—also winner of Gold Medal at National Conservation Exposition, 1913, Knoxville—sent to your home, without paying a cent down, for a FREE 30 Day Trial Send no money. Have it a month free. If you want to keep it, then pay me in Small Easy Payments small amounts as convenient. No Interest—No Collectors. —No Burden To You 50-year Guarantee. I save you $48.75, because I sell direct from $1,000,000 Adler Organ Factory (greatest in existence) wiping out all in-between profits.

C. L. ADLER, Pres, ADLER ORGAN CO., 3776 W. Chestnut Street Louisville, Ky.

The New "Arrow"

1915 Model

New Motorcycle Type

Remarkable new improvements make the 1915 "Arrow" a positive wonder for speed, comfort and easy riding. Latest Eagle easy motorcycle saddle—New Departure coaster brake—special motorcycle pedals—motorcycle handlebars with long rubber grips—imported anti-friction chain—reinforced motorcycle frame—beautiful finish. All sizes for boys, men and women.

Wonderful Offer Write today for the low direct offer we are making on the splendid Arrow bicycle. Get our free catalog. A small amount down brings you the Arrow—pay for it while you ride—then just a little each month.

Write Today Do it now, and we will send details of the remarkable new machine and rock-bottom offer.

Arrow Cycle Co., Dept. 3042 19th St. and California Ave. Chicago,

Home Dressmaking Hints

Forecasts for Mid-Winter Fashions

By Geneva Gladding

FULL and flaring as personal taste desires, or long or short, with straight lines are the winter coat models.

This season's modes are unusually smart in style. New surplice basques are shown, with plain or bishop sleeves. There is also a new redingote known as the "chemise" redingote, that is excellent for slender figures. It may be worn over a blouse of net and skirt of self or contrasting material. One sees sleeveless evening bodices, and some with just a touch of drapery at the armscye. With the snug-fitting evening basques, one sees in "quaint" style, full flounced skirts of lace, net and other soft fabrics.

. Princess effects are noticeable and there is a possibility of short-waisted styles in the near future.

Fur-trimmed waists, tunics and wraps are shown, and braid in abundance is used on gowns of every character.

Skirts are becoming shorter and fuller, with extra width gained by plaits, gathers or circular shaping. Then too there are other models in plaited effects flaring out in bell like forms. These plaited styles are usually hung from yokes.

Moyenage gowns are smart for young girls for evening wear.

Popular long-waisted dresses for little girls have gored or plaited skirts.

Pattern Descriptions

ALL PATTERNS 10c. EACH
Unless Other Price Is Stated

1164—Ladies' Coat. This design will look well in any of the many new coat weaves, in reversible plaids, cheviots, astrakhan cloth, caracul and similar cloakings. The coat is cut in redingote style, with flaring skirt sections. The sleeve is set in the armscye.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires four and one half yards of 54-inch material for a 36-inch size.

9886—Ladies' House Dress in raised or normal waistline, with long or shorter sleeve. This design would be pretty in figured lawn or dimity, or in a neat percale pattern.

Cut in seven sizes; 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires five and one quarter yards of 40-inch material for a 34-inch size.

1157—Ladies' Waist with or without chemisette, and with long or short sleeve. For a trim, neat and becoming style, nothing quite equals a smart tailored shirt-waist. It lends itself so well to most dress materials, and is ever comfortable and desirable. The sleeve in either length effect, is stylish, and the pattern provides a chemisette for high neck effect.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires three and one eighth yards of 36-inch material for a 36-inch size.

1169—A Simple Up-to-date Model. The lines of this attractive design are simple and it is easy to develop. The closing is in coat style. The model will be equally suitable for charmeuse, satin, velvet, lace, net, madras, linen or flannel.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires two and one half yards of 36-inch material for a 38-inch size.

1168-1117—A Simple Dress of Quiet Elegance. Ladies' Skirt Pattern 1117. This smart model is Comprising Ladies' Waist Pattern 1168 and good for serge, velvet, corduroy, cashmere, crepe or voile. The waist is in simple shirt style with a new collar and coat closing. The skirt is trimmed with a tunic portion over the back, that forms a flounce at the sides and front.

The waist pattern is cut in six sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure, and the skirt in six sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. It requires seven and one quarter yards of 40-inch material for a medium size. Two separate patterns, 10c for each pattern.

1148—Boys' Russian Blouse Suit and Knickerbockers. This trim little suit is splendid for serge or flannel, and equally good for galatea, linene or gingham. The blouse is finished with a "Dickens" collar, and the sleeve is plaited at the wrist.

Cut in four sizes; three, four, five and six years. It requires two and seven eighths yards of 44-inch material for a four-year size.

1144—Ladies' Apron with Princess Front. This desirable model has shoulder straps that extend over the front and form deep convenient pockets. The model is good for gingham, sateen, cambric, lawn, percale or drill.

Cut in three sizes: small, medium and large. It requires four and seven-eighths yards of 27-inch material for a medium size.

1166—Ladies' Skirt with Yoke. For broadcloth, cashmere, serge, satin, poplin, or crepe this model is equally desirable. The front and back portions are stitched in tuck effect over panel sections. A shaped yoke is added, that may be omitted.

Cut in six sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. It requires four and one quarter yards of 4-inch material for a 24-inch size.

1145—A Practical Comfortable Apron. This attractive model is cut with raglan sleeve portions to which the back and front portions are joined. The pattern is good for percale, lawn, seersucker, gingham, drill, alpaca or sateen.

Cut in three sizes; small, medium and large, and requires four and one half yards of 36-inch material for a medium size.

1167—Girls' Dress in high or square neck outline, and with long or short sleeve. This style is equally good for serge, cashmere, corduroy, messaline, plaid or checked suiting, challie, voile or wash materials. The back laps over the front at the shoulder, where it forms pointed tabs, that may be omitted. A deep plait in panel effect outlines the front and forms part of the skirt, which has plaits also at the sides and back.

Cut in four sizes; four, six, eight and 10 years. It requires three yards of 44-inch material for an eight-year size.

1160—Girls' Dress with Sleeve in either of two lengths. Plaid suiting, serge, voile, poplin, wool mixtures or neat Shepherd checks, are equally appropriate. The skirt, a three-piece model, has a lap tuck in front.

Cut in four sizes; six, eight, 10 and 12 years. It reouires three and one half yards of 44-inch material for a 10-year size.

1158—Ladies' Costume for Maternity or Invalid Wear. This design is graceful and effective. It is made with surplice fronts and yoke portions to which full sections are added. The large armscye is most comfortable, and a good style feature. The plaited tunic is joined to the waist, and the entire garment is so arranged as to give ease and comfort and also to admit of extending the waist size. The underskirt is a two-piece model.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires five yards of 44-inch material for the waist and tunic, and two and one half yards for the skirt for a 36-inch size.

9881—Girls' One-piece Dress in Balkan Style. This design is effective for linen, chambrey, ratine, voile, crepe, seersucker or percale. The sailor collar and simple bishop sleeve are popular style features.

Cut in five sizes; four, six, eight, 10 and 12 years. It requires three and one half yards of 36-inch material for an eight-year size.

1146—A Comfortable Negligee or Lounging Robe. The shaped yoke is cut with the sleeve combined, and is joined to the body portions. Flannelette, silk, lawn or organdie are all suitable for this design.

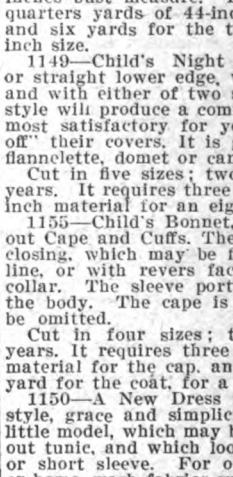
Cut in three sizes; small, medium and large. It requires five and one eighth yards of 36-inch material for the medium size, in full length style, or two and one half yards of 36-inch material for the medium size, in sack length.

9811—Ladies' Shirt-waist with long or shorter sleeve. Lingerie materials, madras, crepe, flannel, satin, silk, velvet or corduroy may be used for this design, which shows some new style features.

Cut in seven sizes; 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires two and one half yards of 36-inch material for 36-inch size.

1163—Ladies' House Dress, with sleeve in either of two styles, and in raised or normal waistline. This garment is cut on simple lines, and

Special Offers. Solicit and send one new 15-months subscription to COMFORT at 25 cents for one pattern free 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each secures three patterns. These must be A club of two bona-fide subscriptions, not your own nor renewals. The cash price of each pattern is ten cents unless other price is stated. Order by number and state plainly size or age.
Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.



Have You Too Forgotten How to Play

An Ohio customer writes: "My wife doesn't play and I have nearly forgotten how, so I want the Symphonic." Perhaps there are similarly situated music lovers of your household who are unable to personally play the many pieces they would like to. The Symphonic, playable with music rolls or by hand, brings to your home the riches of all the world's instromental music. Hymn, Popular, Patriotic, Classical, Operatic, Dance selections may all be played by any member or friend of your family. Mr. Ernest J. Knabe, Jr., and Mr. Wm. Knabe, III., formerly makers of the Wm. Knabe pianos, are the Symphonic's makers.

Symphonic Player-Piano
With Larkin Groceries and Home Supplies

Our offers permit you to reduce your family's living expenses and at the same time save a large sum on the Symphonic Player-Piano at our rock bottom Factory-to-Family price of $375. You will save as much as 30c to 50c on the dollar in buying Larkin Products and Larkin Groceries. Flour, Sugar, Coffee, Tea, Canned Goods, Soaps, Toilet Articles are among these 900 household supplies.

Symphonola
The Home Entertainer

Larkin Factory-to-Family dealing, proven exceedingly profitable by our two million customers, also brings you this beautiful Symphonola at only $60—a price far below the usual price for such instruments. A comparison of the Symphonola with other similar instruments will show that you ought at least to try this instrument in your home.

1 to 4 Years to Pay

Take a year, if you desire, to pay for the Symphonola or four years for the Symphonic Piano or Symphonic Player-Piano. No extra interest or rent charge. At the same time you will save large sums in buying Larkin Products or Groceries.

Let us now make known all the details of these offers and send our new book. This illustrates and describes the Symphonic and Symphonola. Send the coupon now.

Send Today

LARKIN CO., Buffalo, N.Y.
Dept. Ct 215,
I am interested in the instrument checked. Send your Catalog and offer.
Piano ☐ Player-Piano ☐ Symphonola ☐
Name .....
Town ..... State .....
R. D. or St. Address .....
Piano or Symphonola Book FREE

with a view to practical service and comfort. The pattern is good for gingham, seersucker, galatea, chambrey, linene, poplin, voile, serge or cashmere. The skirt is a simple three-piece model and the style is easy to develop.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure, and requires six and one quarter yards of 36-inch material for a medium size.

1152—Girl's Blouse Dress with attached skirt. The yoke facings and shield may be omitted. The shield may be finished in round neck edge or with the standing collar. This model is easy to develop, and will look well in galatea, or gingham, poplin, crepe, linen, or linene. The skirt is a three-piece style, with a lap tuck at the center back.

Cut in four sizes; eight, 10, 12, and 14 years. It requires three and one quarter yards of 44-inch material for a 10-year size.

1172—A Smart Afternoon Gown. The waist is cut on simple lines, and joins the tunic under the girdle. The skirt has plaited fullness at the side seams. There is a choice of sleeve finish, and a chemisette for high neck effect.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires two and three quarters yards of 44-inch material for the skirt, and six yards for the tunic and waist for a 36-inch size.

1149—Child's Night Drawers with gathered or straight lower edge, with long or short sleeve, and with either of two styles of neck finish. This style will produce a comfortable sleeping garment, most satisfactory for young children, who "kick off" their covers. It is good for cambric, muslin, flannelette, domet or canton flannel or linene.

Cut in five sizes; two, four, six, eight and 10 years. It requires three and one half yards of 36-inch material for an eight-year size.

1155—Child's Bonnet, and Coat with or without Cape and Cuffs. The fronts are lapped at the closing, which may be finished in high neck outline, or with revers facings, to meet the rolling collar. The sleeve portions are cut in one with the body. The cape is most becoming, but may be omitted.

Cut in four sizes; two, three, four and six years. It requires three quarters yard of 27-inch material for the cap, and three and three eighths yard for the coat, for a four-year size.

1150—A New Dress for Mother's Girl.—Good style, grace and simplicity characterize this neat little model, which may be developed with or without tunic, and which looks equally well with long or short sleeve. For ordinary wear, for school, or home, wash fabrics such as galatea, gingham or percale are very desirable. If warmer material is liked, there are half wool suitings, in plaids and checks, also serges, repps, voiles and cashmeres.

Cut in four sizes; six, eight, 10 and 12 years. It requires three and one half yards of 44-inch material for a 10-year size.

1165—Dress for Misses and Small Women. The new basque lines, flaring tunic, and becoming vest, are atttractive features of this model. Its youthful and becoming lines will assure its popularity. The tunic is joined to the waist in redingote style, and so forms a separate garment, that may well be worn over any skirt. This dress is good for serge, cashmere or broadcloth, and may be effectively combined with satin, velvet, fraille, poplin, plaid or checked suiting.

Cut in four sizes; 14, 16, 17 and 18 years. It requires two and one eighth yards of 44-inch material for the skirt, and three and seven eighths yards for waist and tunic for a 14-year size.

ALL PATTERNS 10c. EACH
Unless Other Price Is Stated

SUDAN GRASS A SUCCESS.—Sudan grass, a plant from the African Sudan, is causing a sensation in agricultural circles throughout the United States. It grows eight or nine feet high, adjusts itself to almost any variation of moisture and thrives surprisingly in the semi-arid plains of southwestern United States, and also in humid sections. Its quick jump into popularity is one of the romances of farming developed through the activities of the Department of Agriculture. The first seeds were sent to this country only five years ago. Seed of Sudan grass this year brings $1 to $1.50 a pound.

Sent $1.00 For 1= On Credit

3-Piece Outfit

Our biggest offer. Three handsome pieces—all sent to you for only $1.00 down. Order direct from this ad. We will let you have anything to wear on credit. Open an account with us. Pay while you are wearing.

Made to Measure Skirt of double twisted heavy all-wool serge, guaranteed quality. Newest style with yoke and split tunic effect. Button trimmed. Beautifully tailored. Regular $5 Skirt Navy or black. Furnished. 22 to 30 belt; 37 to 44 length.

White Washable Waist of fine Organdy. Front handsomely embroidered. Gladstone collar finished with silk cord. Back and cuffs embroidered to harmonize with front. Sizes 32 to 44.

Petticoat Fine silked sateen. Roman stripe effect. New accordion plait flounce—Splendid style. Navy orblack.

Give bust, belt, hip and length measurements; also color desired. Extra sizes 10 per cent additional. Order by No. A-9. $1.00 cash, then 85c monthly. Total—special price $5.95

Pin a $1.00 bill or money order to letter and send now. Just say, "Send me your 3-piece outfit No. A-9." Be sure to give your bust, belt, hip and length measurements. Your money sent back at once if you are not entirely satisfied. You take no risk. This is a special—so send your order today. We pay express.

Elmer Richards Co.
Dept. 1072—35th Street, Chicago
Spring Style Book for Women or Men on Request.

Send For Elaine

The pretty and charming girl on the

Coca-Cola 1915 Calendar

Your name, address and a 2c stamp will bring to you this beautiful calendar. "Elaine" was painted especially for us and we have had the picture exquisitely reproduced.

If you would like to know more about Coca-Cola ask for booklet.

THE COCA-COLA CO., Atlanta, Ga.

35c PAPERS A BIG ROOM

OVER 100 SAMPLES WALL PAPER 5c DOUBLE ROLL UP

Just think—only 35c for enough beautiful 4 color bronzed sidewall, ceiling and border to paper a big room. Write today for our free book of over 100 BIG SAMPLES of wall paper and see this dandy paper; also, our exquisite 1915 papers consisting of plain and rich heavy embossed gold, oatmeal, grass cloth, leather, tiffany, silk and creton effects at 6c to 40c a double roll of 16 yards. Finest varnished tiles 22c a double roll. Combination matched with cut-out borders ready for hanging at 1 1-2c a yd. up. Wall paper for all rooms direct to you cheaper than dealers buy at in carload lots. See for yourself—Don't wait. Get the samples now—today—and see our wonderously beautiful art papers, marvelously low prices, and grand free premium offer.

$8.40 PAINTS A BIG HOUSE

If you intend to paint the inside or outside of your house, barn, garage, fence, roof, buggy, or if you need paint or varnish for any purpose whatever, before you buy, write us and say, "Send me your special paint color sample book," which will show you over 125 SAMPLE COLORS of Smyth's 5 year guaranteed paint and varnish for every purpose. No better paint made, regardless of name or brand. 1 gallon will cover 250 square feet with 2 coats. Prices lowest; house paint 89c a gallon, barn Paint, 59c a gallon, floor paint 99c a gallon, and paints, varnishes and stains for everything at world's lowest prices. WRITE NOW—TODAY

MIXED PAINT HOUSE PAINT 89c Gal.

JOHN M. SMYTH MDSE CO. 150-151 W. Madison St. Chicago

GET THIS CAR AND THE AGENCY FREE

ABSOLUTELY FREE. Regular Price $425

The demand for capable automobile men is increasing every day. Our graduates are always in demand to fill fine positions as Salesmen, Demonstrators, Garage Managers, Repair Men or expert drivers. You will know how to actually build a car. You can get this car Free. We pay freight.

Learn how to make $100 to $400 every month and be your Own Boss

You can go into a big paying business for yourself. No need to leave home. Write today for 40-page Catalog giving all details. This is the only auto school actually building cars.

C. A. COEY'S SCHOOL OF MOTORING
284 COEY BLDG. 2010-12 WABASH AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.

VIOLIN MANDOLIN GUITAR or CORNET FREE FINE TONE

To introduce our wonderful new system of teaching note music by mail, Violin, Guitar, Mandolin, Piano, Organ or Brass Band, will give you a dandy instrument absolutely FREE and guarantee to make you a player or no charge. Complete outfit FREE. Special offer to first pupil. Write at once. SLINGERLAND'S CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL OF MUSIC, Dept. e, Chicago, Ill.

MAKE PILLOW TOPS FROM FLAGS OF ALL NATIONS

Ten nations to package, size 5 1-2 x 8 1-2 and one large one, size 8 1-2 x 12, for 25c. 5 pcks for $1.00. Eight million sold C. STAR CO., 2109 WILLIAM STREET, TRENTON, N. J.

Jokes and Anecdotes of Abraham Lincoln

Lincoln's Letter to a Little Girl

AMONG the stories that never fail to please the patriotic American boys and girls is one of the President of the United States carrying a trunk on his shoulder to the depot, for a little girl whom the cab driver had forgotten and who was about to miss her train.

Another equally pleasing is that of this same great statesman, Abraham Lincoln, letting his whiskers grow to please a child who wrote asking him to do so, suggesting that she thought that he would be better looking.

Recently visiting a friend in Delphos, a small town in central Kansas, I was very much interested when my hostess told me that Grace Bedell who wrote this letter, lived in Delphos, the wife of Mr. Billinger, the banker of that town, and that Mr. Lincoln's reply was still in her possession.

So, before leaving, I went to see this lady, hoping that she would show the letter to me, so that I could tell all the boys and girls about it who read the children's page.

Mrs. Billinger was very courteous and answered all my questions as politely as if I had been the first person that had visited her home on this mission, although I was told that hundreds of people call on her every year.

It was during Mr. Lincoln's first campaign she told me, that, when a child of twelve years, her father, a radical Republican, brought her a picture of his favorite candidate. It was a coarse exaggeration, of a type common at that time, and certainly anything but handsome.

Two Democratic brothers twitted her unmercifully on the homely face of her choice for the presidency.

"I was both grieved and annoyed," says Mrs. Billinger, "so I finally decided to write to Mr. Lincoln and tell him that I thought that he would be better looking if he would let his whiskers grow. Adding that if he would do so I would try to induce my two brothers to vote for him. Can you imagine anything more ridiculous?" laughed this lady pleasantly. "Then, thinking that he would have no time to bother with me, I told him to let his little girl answer my letter. My triumph, on receiving a reply in Mr. Lincoln's own hand, knew no bounds. But this was not all. When, as president-elect, he passed through our home town, on his way to the inauguration, he asked a man who accompanied him, whose home was also at Westfield, if he knew our family. He told of my letter and said it was so different from the multitude of letters that came to him daily—asking for office or threatening assassination—that it was a real pleasure to receive it.

"Mr. Lincoln made a short speech at Westfield and at its conclusion, he said that he had a little friend in the town and asked for me. Of course there was a great crowd present but kind friends helped me through the multitude and lifted me on to the platform.

"Mr. Lincoln, touching his whiskers, said: 'You see, I am wearing these for you Grace.' Then he shook my hand, heartily and kissed me."

Mrs. Billinger also told me that so many people had requested to see the letter that it was in danger of utter destruction. So she had had it framed and hung in the window of her husband's bank, in full view of the public, so that all who wished might see it.

"Did you succeed in inducing your brothers to vote for your candidate?" I asked as I was leaving.

Mrs. Billinger laughed pleasantly.

"No, I did not," she replied, "but you may be sure in after years they wished that they had. So I had my revenge after all."

We found the much sought souvenir, whither we had been directed, in the bank window. Of course I made a copy of the letter to show my boys and girls. Here it is:

"SPRINGFIELD, ILL., Oct. 19, 1860.

"MISS GRACE BEDELL:

"My dear Little Miss:—Your very agreeable letter of the fifteenth is received. I regret the necessity of saying I have no daughter. I have three sons, one seventeen, one nine, and one seven years of age. They, with their mother, constitute my whole family. As to the whiskers, having never worn them, do you not think people would call it a piece of silly affectation if I should begin now?

"Your very sincere well-wisher,

"A. LINCOLN."

Lincoln and the Bible

His intimate friend, Judge Joshua Speed, who was skeptically inclined, says he once called on Lincoln and found him reading the Bible.

"Yes," said Lincoln, "I am profitably engaged in reading the Bible. Speed, take all of this book on reason that you can, and the balance on faith, and you will live and die a better man."

In replying to a delegation of colored people from Baltimore who had just presented him with a large, beautiful Bible, he said: "In regard to the great Book, I have only this to say, that it is the best gift that God has given to man. All the good from the Savior of the world is communicated through this Book."

A Beautiful Sentiment from Lincoln

In concluding his address at an agricultural fair in Milwaukee, September, 1859, Mr. Lincoln said: "It is said an eastern monarch once charged his wise men to invent him a sentence, to be ever in view, and which should be true and appropriate in all times and situations. They presented him the words, 'And this, too, shall pass away.' How much it expressed! How chastening in the hour of pride! How consoling in the depths of affliction! And yet, let us hope that it is not quite true. Let us hope, rather, that by the best cultivation of the physical world beneath and around us, and the intellectual and moral world within us, we shall secure an individual, social, and political prosperity and happiness whose course shall be upward and onward, and which, while the earth endures, shall not pass away."

Lincoln and the Office-Seekers

On one occasion the friends of Governor Curtin waited on Mr. Lincoln to press the claims of the Governor for a foreign mission. The President expressed a willingness to favor them, but said their request reminded him of a story. Said he: "I am in the position of young Sheridan when his father told him he must cease his rakish life and take a wife. To which he answered, 'All right father, but whose wife shall I take?'"

He added that, as the missions were all full, he did not know whose "mission he should take."

Lincoln Coins a Word

Some gentlemen who had just returned from a trip through the West came to Washington and paid Mr. Lincoln a visit. During their visit one of the men spoke of a body of water in Nebraska which bore an Indian name. "I cannot recall its name now," he said in a vexed tone, "but it signified 'weeping water.'"

President Lincoln instantly responded, "As 'laughing water,' according to Longfellow, is 'Minnehaha,' this evidently should be 'Minnebooboo.'"

Lincoln a Liberty Pole

At a levee at the White House, during President Lincoln's term, the Russian Ambassador stood talking to the President, when the President asked him this question: "Would you have taken me for an American if you had met me any where else than in this country?"

"No," said the distinguished Muscovite, who, like Abe, was a bit of a wag. "I should have taken you for a Pole."

"So I am," exclaimed the President, straightening himself up to his full height, "and a liberty pole at that."

Lincoln and the Kittens

President Lincoln was as sensitive to external impressions as the test paper of the chemist. The results of a battle pained him as though he himself were among the wounded, or had lost a brave son. This sympathy, that is, this power of putting himself in another's place, extended even to animals.

The day on which Grant's army began the final advance, the President sat in a small telegraph office at City Point, receiving telegrams and examining a pocket chart. Three little kittens were running about the hut, in which was the office. The President of the nation whose fate was in the scales, picked up the kittens, placed them on the table, and said: "You poor, little, miserable creatures; what brought you into this camp of warriors? Where is your mother?"

"The mother is dead," answered the colonel in charge.

"Then she can't grieve for them," said the President with a sigh. "Many a poor mother is grieving for a son who has fallen in battle. Ah, kitties, thank God you are cats, and can't understand this terrible strife. There, now, go, my little friends," wiping the dirt from their eyes with a handkerchief; 'that is all I can do for you. Colonel, get them good milk, and don't let them starve; there is too much starving going on in this land, anyhow; let us mitigate it when we can."

The great President, even at such a crisis, could, as Admiral Porter said, "Find time to look at God's creatures, and be solicitous for their comfort."

Mother of Three Soldier Boys Blesses Lincoln

The following is an unfamiliar story that shows how human grief and human sympathy overleaped all the barriers of formality when Lincoln was really touched:

"Is that all?" Lincoln asked of Edward the usher, after the usual multitude of daily visitors had entered and presented their requests, petitions, or grievances.

"There is one poor woman there yet, Mr. President," replied Edward. "She has been here for several days, and hasn't had a chance to come in yet."

"Let her in," said Mr. Lincoln.

The woman told her story. She had a husband and three sons in the army, and she was left alone. At first her husband had sent her regularly a part of his pay, but now no more remittances came. Her boys had become scattered among the various armies, and she was without help. Would not the President discharge one of them that he might come home to her?

When the woman had ended, the President's lips opened, and he spoke as if he were in abstracted and unconscious self-communion:

"I have three and you have none."

That was all he said. Then, taking a blank card, he wrote upon it an order for the discharge of one of the sons; and upon another paper he wrote out in detail where she should present it.

A few days later Edward said, "That woman, Mr. President, is here again."

"Let her in," said Lincoln. "What can be the matter now?"

For the second time he heard her story. The President's card had been a magic passport. But she had arrived only in time to follow her son to the grave. His wounds, his death—the story came in eloquent fragments through her half-stifled sobs. And now would not the President give her the next one of the boys?

Once more Mr. Lincoln responded as if talking to himself, "I have two and you have none." Then he again walked to his little writing-table, sat down and took up his pen to write for the second time an order that would give the pleading woman one of her boys. And the woman, as if moved by an impulse she could not restrain, followed after him, stood by him, and with the fond familiarity of a mother, placed her hand upon the President's head, and smoothed his rumpled hair as she blessed him for his kindness.

The ruler of a great nation was truly the servant, friend and protector of this humble woman, clothed with the paramount dignity of loyal sacrifice.

Lincoln as a Prophet

General Daniel E. Sickles relates an affecting incident, demonstrating the intensely devout character of Lincoln, which, he says, has never before been told to any man:

"It was on the 5th day of July, 1863," says General Sickles, "that I was brought to Washington on a stretcher from the field of Gettysburg. Hearing of my arrival, President Lincoln came to my room and sat down by my bedside. He asked about the great battle, and when I told him of the terrible slaughter the tears streamed from his eyes. I asked him if he had doubted the result. He said 'No.' Then he continued:

"'This may seem strange to you, but a few days ago, when the opposing armies were converging, I felt, as never before, my utter helplessness in the great crisis that was to come upon the country. I went into my own room and locked the door. Then I knelt down and prayed, as I had never prayed before. I told God that He had called me to this position, and that I had done all that I could do, and that the result was now in His hands; that I felt my own weakness and lack of power, and that I knew that if the country was to be saved it was because He so willed it. When I went down from my room I felt that there could be no doubt about the issue. The burden seemed to have rolled from off my shoulders; my intense anxiety was relieved, and in its place came a great sense of trustfulness, and that is why I did not doubt the result at Gettysburg. And, what is more, Sickles,' he continued, 'I believe that we may hear at any moment of a great success by Grant, who has been pegging away at Vicksburg for so many months. By tomorrow you will hear that he has won a signal victory as important to us in the West as Gettysburg in the East.'

"Then, turning to me, he said, 'Sickles, I am in a prophetic mood today, and I know that you will get well.'

"The doctors do not give me that hope, Mr. President," I said; but he answered cheerily, 'I know you will get well, Sickles.'" And he did.

House Where Lincoln's Mother Was Born

DEAR MR. GANNETT:

Your last February COMFORT speaks of Lincoln's love for his mother. I wonder if you know where she was born. I have seen the old house many a time. She was born at Hat Creek, Va., and lived there until she was twelve years old. The house was always called the old Hanks house. It was a small cabin of one room downstairs and one up. It was on the creek opposite old Hat Creek church where I went to church every Sunday until I was twenty-nine years old. She has a brother, Abraham Hanks buried in Hat Creek churchyard. Before her father moved away he took a soapstone and carved the child's name and dates of birth and death on it. As a child I have scraped the moss away and read it. I didn't know then that it was Lincoln's uncle, and it was so covered with moss last time I was there that I couldn't read anything. My father told me that his father knew the Hanks family well. He said they were respectable but very poor. I don't know that this will be of any interest to your readers but so little is known of his mother it seems a pity for anything to be lost.

A friend of COMFORT,
MRS. BEN CABANISS, Brookneal, R. R. 1, Va.

You Cannot afford to make Mince Meat at Home When

NONE SUCH MINCE MEAT

"LIKE MOTHER USED TO MAKE"

Is Selling at 10¢ [Except in the Far West]

Send your name for a free set of None Such Poster Stamps

Fruit Cake, Pudding and Cookies. Recipes on each package....

at the grocery

MERRELL-SOULE Co.
SYRACUSE NEW YORK

Because of the war, English manufacturers and consumers of wood pulp have been caused considerable uneasiness. Production is at a standstill in the countries at war, and in Norway and Sweden, principal sources of supply, mills have been greatly hampered because of a lack of coal and of chemicals. England has practically no domestic sources of pulp.

SEEDS

Reliable and Full of Life

SPECIAL OFFER

Made to build New Business. A trial will make you our permanent customer

PRIZE COLLECTION Radish, 17 Varieties, worth 15c; Lettuce, 12 kinds, worth 15c; Tomatoes, 11 the finest, worth 20c; Turnip, 7 splendid, worth 10c; Onion, 3 best varieties, worth 15c; 10 Spring Flowering Bulbs, worth 25c—65 varieties in all; worth $1.00.

GUARANTEED TO PLEASE.

Write today; mention this paper.

SEND 10 CENTS

to cover postage and packing and receive this valuable collection of seeds postpaid, together with my big instructive, beautiful Seed and Plant Book, tells all about Buckbee's "Full of Life" Seeds, Plants, etc.

H.W. BUCKBEE
Rockford Seed Farms
Farm 64 Rockford, Ill.

SEEDS GRAND TRIAL OFFER

$2.50 Worth to Test only 10 cts.

We will mail the following 25 Packets choicest Fresh, Reliable Vegetable and Flower Seeds for 10c. Money returned if not satisfactory.

BEET, Crosby's Egyptian, best, sweetest early sort.
CABBAGE, Lightning Express, early, sure header.
CABBAGE, Danish Ball-head, best, solidest winter.
CARROT, Perfect, Half-long, best table sort.
CELERY, Self-blanching, best, crispest.
CUCUMBER, Family Favorite, fine for family use.
LETTUCE, May King, tender, popular heads.
MUSKMELON, Rocky Ford, best garden melon.
WATERMELON, Deposit Early, earliest, sweetest.
ONION, Prizetaker, weight 3 lbs., 1000 bus. per acre.
PARSLEY, Triple Curled, best, most ornamental.
PARSNIP, Improved Guernsey, smooth, sweet.
PEPPER, Crimson King, early, large, sure.
RADISH, White Icicle, best, early, long, tender.
TOMATO, Earliana, best, extra early, smooth.
TURNIP, Sweet German, large, sweet, keeps.
ASTERS, Show mixed. PANSY, Giant mixed.
ALYSSUM, Little Gem. PINKS, 50 Grand Sorts.
COSMOS, Early Giant. POPPIES, Showy Sorts.
KOCHIA, Grand foliage. ANNUALS, 500 Sorts.
MICRONETTE, Sweet. Catalog and 10c check free.

DEPOSIT SEED CO., Deposit, N. Y.

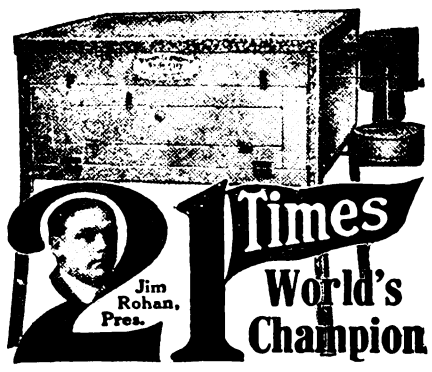
☞ 20 packets Grand Large Flowering Sweet Peas, 10 cts.

Home Weaving PAYS

$50.00 To $150.00 A MONTH making new Rugs, Carpets, etc. out of old carpets, carpet rags, old clothing, etc. on a Deen Steel Built Automatic Fly Shuttle Loom. Beginners make money from the start. This Loom Requires No Previous Experience. Our FREE BOOK, "Weaving For Profit" tells all about what is needed, what to do, how to buy the loom, gives prices on lots of looms and all kinds of Rug Machinery. Send for it today. Costs but little to start right in your home.

Deen Loom Co., 755 Seventh St., HARLAN, IOWA

Rider AGENTS Wanted



in each town to ride and show a new 1915 model "RANGER" bicycle. Write for our liberal terms on a sample to introduce.

DELIVERED FREE on approval and 30 days' trial. Send for big free catalog and particulars of most marvelous offer ever made on a bicycle. You will be astonished at our low prices and remarkable terms.

FACTORY CLEARING SALE—a limited number of old models of various makes, $7 to $12. A few good second-hand wheels, taken in trade by our Chicago retail stores $3 to $8. If you want a bargain write at once.

Tires, lamps, wheels, sundries, parts, motorcycle supplies of all kinds at half usual prices. Do not buy until you get our catalog and offers. Write Now.

MEAD CYCLE CO., DEPT. C-3 CHICAGO

21 Times World's Champion

Get the whole story of the Belle City's World's Championship Hatches in my great Free Book "Hatching Facts." The winners of the 21 World's Championship Hatches tell the story of their money-making, prize-winning success in their own words, with their besides giving you full information, facts, proofs, about these wonderful hatching machines. 327,000 in use.

21 Times World's Champion Belle City

Write for "Hatching Facts" Today—A Postal Brings It

It tells everything. Illustrates the Belle City Incubator and Brooder in actual colors—shows what makes the Belle City the 21 Times World's Champion—gives facts about hatching success, bigger and better than you have ever heard of before. Book gives my $800 Gold Offers.

These offers open the way for you to greatly increase your poultry profits this season. Book gives full particulars of my 1-2-3 months' HomeTest Plan, my 10 year money back guaranty, and my low prices—Freight prepaid—will surprise you. Write today to Jim Rohan, Pres.

BELLE CITY INCUBATOR CO., Box 135, Racine, Wis.

BIGGER HATCHES-BIGGER PROFITS

The incubator with hundreds of dead air cells. Gets 100% hatches. Copper boiler. Hotwater heat.

$7.35 LOWEST PRICE YET FOR 155 EGG INCUBATOR

With brooder $9.85. Wood parts California Redwood. Best regulator and tester. Frt. pd. E. of Rockies Book free. Progressive Incubator Co., Box 169 Racine, Wis.

155 EGG CAPACITY

$7.75 For 150-Egg Size Reliance INCUBATOR With 150 Chick Brooder, Only... $10.50

Guaranteed better than $15.00 machine. —Larger Hatches and Uses Less Oil— 30,000 sold last year. Recommended to beginners. Order from ad or write.

Freight paid east of Mo. R. and North of Tenn. Other territ'y terms on request.

RELIANCE INCUBATOR CO., Dept. 3 FREEPORT, ILLS.

GREIDER'S FINE CATALOGUE

and calendar of pure bred poultry; 70 varieties illustrated and described, many in natural colors. A perfect guide to poultry raisers—full of facts. Low prices on stock and eggs for hatching. Incubators and brooders. 22 years in business. You need this noted book. Send 10c for it—today.

B. H. GREIDER :: :: :: Box 63 RHEEMS, PA.

130-Egg Incubator and Brooder Freight Paid East of Rockies Both for $10

Hot water; double walls; copper tank—best construction. Write for Free Catalog.

Wisconsin Incubator Co. Box 18 Racine, Wis.

SHOEMAKER'S POULTRY BOOK AND ALMANAC FOR 1915

Over 200 pages; with many colored plates of fowls true to life; tells about chickens, incubators, poultry houses, etc. Price 15c. Money back if not satisfied. C. C. Shoemaker, Box 936, Freeport, Ill.

50 Best Paying Varieties

Pure-bred Chickens, Ducks, Geese and Turkeys. Hardy, Northern raised highest quality. Fowls, Eggs and Incubators AT LOWEST PRICES. Large poultry book of valuable information 4c. Poultry Headquarters.

W. A. WEBER, Box 941, Mankato, Minn.

Latest Book "Profitable Poultry," finest published; 144 pages; 210 beautiful pictures; complete volume, how to succeed with Poultry; describes busy Poultry Farm with 53 varieties of pure-bred birds. Gives lowest prices on fowls, eggs, incubators, grain sprouters, etc. This book 5 cents.

Berry's Poultry Farm, Box 31, Clarinda, Iowa

57 BREEDS Fine pure bred chickens, ducks, geese and turkeys. Northern raised, hardy and very beautiful. Fowls, eggs and incubators at low prices. America's greatest poultry farm. Send 4c for fine 100-page 21st Annual Poultry Book.

R. F. NEUBERT CO., Box 871, MANKATO, MINN.

140 Egg Incubator and 140 Chick Brooder both for $10

Made of California Redwood, covered with asbestos and galvanized iron, copper tanks, double walls, self-regulating, complete, ready to use. 30 days trial. Money back if not O.K. Order direct. Catalog free

Freight paid east of Rockies

Ironclad Incubator Co., Box 21 Racine, Wis.

FOY'S BIG BOOK FREE

POULTRY AND SQUABS FOR PROFIT. An encyclopedia of poultry information. Written by a man who knows. Leading varieties of poultry and pigeons in natural colors. Low prices on fowls, eggs and incubators. Frank Foy Poultry Farm, Box 5, Clinton, Iowa.

58 BREEDS, Fine, pure-bred Chickens, Ducks, Geese and Turkeys. Hardy, northern raised. Choice Fowls, eggs and incubators at low prices. America's Pioneer Poultry Farm; 20 year exp. Send 4c for large fine Poultry book and Catalog.

F.A.NEUBERT, Box 642, Mankato, Minn.

Money Making Poultry

Our specialty. Leading varieties pure bred chickens, turkeys, ducks and geese. Prize winners. Best stock and eggs. Lowest prices. oldest farm. Fine 30th Anniversary Catalog FREE.

H. M. JONES CO., Box 102, Des Moines, Iowa

MONEY IN POULTRY Start small. Grow big. Get winter eggs. Keep healthy fowls AND SQUABS Save your chicks. Foy's big book tells how. Describes largest poultry and pigeon plant. Shows fowls in natural colors, how to feed for eggs, how to select best layers. Mailed Free. F. FOY, Inc., Box 2, Des Moines, Iowa farm-raised Land and Water-Fowls. Eggs in season. Illus. Catalogue, and "Grower's Guide," 2c. An honest deal. Write today. HENRY PFILE, Farmer-Poultryman, Box 706, Freeport, Ill.

PFILE'S 66 VARIETIES

57 Varieties Chickens, Ducks, Geese and Turkeys. Prize-winning, pure-bred, hardy, northern raised Fowls, eggs and incubators; low prices. Most successful farm; 15th year. Large fine catalog free. Larkin & Herzberg, Box 91, Mankato, Minn.

WE PAY $36 A WEEK AND EXPENSES TO men with rigs to introduce poultry compound. Year's contract. IMPERIAL MFG. CO., DEPT. O PARSONS, KANS.

Strawberry PLANTS FREE To introduce our Pedigreed Everbearing strawberries we will send 25 fine plants free. PEDIGREED NURSERY CO., St. Louis, Mo.

25 ASSORTED HIGH GRADE SOUVENIR POST CARDS Valentine, Birthday, Greetings, &c. Postpaid 10c. 10c

THE S. & D. CO., Dept. 60, Brunswick, Maine.

Agents Wanted. Make $5 to $5 a day. Send 15 cents for sample and large catalog 500 articles. RICHARDSON MFG. CO., Dept. C, Bath, N. Y.

Farmers Sons Wanted with knowledge of farm stock and fair education to work in an office: $80 a month with advancement, steady employment, must be honest and reliable. Branch offices of the association are being established in each state. Apply at once, giving full particulars. The Veterinary Science Association, Dept. 22, London, Canada.

BY KATE V. SAINT MAUR.

Egg Formation

I AM asked so frequently why hens lay soft-shelled eggs, eggs with blood specks in them, odd-shaped eggs, etc., etc., that I am going to give our readers an explanation of the formation and process of producing eggs, and some of the causes of the abnormal results which surprise amateur poultry keepers from time to time.

Anyone, upon opening after death the body of a hen, will find a cluster of eggs in formation much like a bunch of grapes, and called the ovarium. These, however, are but rudimentary eggs, and are in size from a pin's head to the full-sized yolk of an egg. Each of these eggs is contained within a thin transparent sac and attached by a narrow pipe or stem to the ovary, and during the laying period of the hen these eggs are maturing and thus keeping up the supply which she lays.

These rudimentary eggs have neither shell nor white, consisting wholly of yolk, on which floats the germ of the future chicken, and as they become larger they arrive at a certain stage when, by their own volition, weight, or other cause, they become detached from the bunch and fall into a sort of funnel leading into a passage called the oviduct—this organ in the hen being from 22 to 26 inches long.

During the passage of this egg or ovum to the outer world, it becomes coated with successive layers of albumen—the white—which is secreted from the blood vessels of the oviduct in the form of a thick glairy fluid, and is prevented from mixing with the yolk by the membrane or sac which surrounded it before it became detached from the cluster. It is also strengthened by a second and stronger membrane, formed around the first immediately after falling into the funnel, and having what is like two twisted cords of a more dense albuminous character, called by anatomists chalazes, which pass quite through the white at the ends, and being, as it were, embedded therein, thus preventing the yolk and germ from rolling about when the egg is moved, and serving to keep the germ so that it may best receive the heat imparted during incubation.

It is during the passage of the egg through the lower part of the oviduct that it gets covered with the two skins which are found inside the shell. These, although lying close around the egg, at the thick end become separate, and form what is called the air bubble or chamber. This, in newly laid eggs, is a mere speck, and is that portion which shows the result of the evaporation previously referred to. This speck of air space becomes daily larger as the egg gets older, and is frequently equal to one quarter of the entire egg. This egg chamber, if perforated with the finest needle, will prevent the egg hatching.

When the egg has advanced more than half way down the oviduct, it is still destitute of a shell, which begins to be formed by a process of secretion, and when about completed, the various shades of brown and tinted coloring matter are imparted in those breeds in which colored eggs are peculiar. When the shell and coloring are complete the egg continues to advance along the oviduct till the hen goes to the nest and lays it.

Eggs are produced from the surplus food, which is that over and above what is required for the sustenance of the hen, and, if such is too stimulating, or given in excessive quantities, the result is that in the former case the ova are produced so rapidly that sometimes two of them drop into the oviduct together, which results in the eccentricities which frequently puzzle the poultry keeper. These ova travel along together through the passage and receive the white separately, but become enveloped in one shell, and when laid are commonly known as double-yolked eggs, but more properly it is a double egg, the white being duplicated as well as the yolk. Should these yolks be fertilized and the egg hatched, we get the occasional four-legged or other chicken monstrosities.

A further result of stimulating food is varied from the above when the ova mature in excess of one day. In place of falling into the passage in pairs, as above, the two drop in separately, but on the same day. This results in soft eggs, not from the want of shell-forming material, but rather because the shells cannot be formed as fast as the mature egg is ready for such covering.

Crooked eggs are no uncommon thing in the poultry-yard, and are attributable as follows: Twenty-four hours are usually sufficient for the formation of a perfect shell, but when by stimulation a second ovum falls close on its predecessor, reaching it before laid, the second egg, which is up to this time soft and is lying against the hard one, becomes covered with a shell, and when laid presents a flat or crooked side, the result of its position against the hard one.

To over feeding is also attributable the further irregularity of one perfect egg being found within another, and caused by irritation of the oviduct, which contracting in front of the perfectly formed egg instead of behind it, forces it back until it meets another yolk, when the two join and again become coated with the white and the shell, thus producing another wonder. Other abnormalties are occasionally seen, and particularly in the smaller poultry-yards. Sometimes when the ova are nearly exhausted by continuous laying, the secreting organs may be most active, which results in small marble-sized but perfect-looking eggs, which are merely a shell covering a portion of albumen. Such "eggs," when laid, have the peculiarity of never having been at any stage attached to the ovary, but are a product only of the oviduct.

To the internal fatness of the hen are due other eccentricities than those mentioned, including the apparently paradoxical feat of laying rotten new laid eggs, this being a not infrequent occurrence. The egg, being unable to force its way through the fatty oviduct, is retained two or three days near the mouth of this organ, and, if a fertilized one, the heat of the hen's body tends to putrefy it, and when ultimately laid it is in an addled condition. To other causes, but principally diseased organs, is due a departure from normal in the way of color. A hen which lays white or brown eggs, on rare occasions produces one almost black, and in most instances, the shells are rough, wavy, corrugated, or otherwise irregular. Then there are instances of foreign matter being found in eggs, clots of blood being nothing unusual. This is the result of the breaking of a blood vessel internally, and, again, possibly the effect of overfeeding.

Fowls from whatever cause producing any of the above misshapen or otherwise faulty eggs should at once be got rid of, for although in some cases a reduced diet may bring them back to their normal production, still the slightest cause will frequently prompt the organs to their previous irregularities.

Correspondence

M. M. M.—I am writing you in regard to pheasants, as I am thinking of going into that business. Where can one obtain them, and what do they cost? Do you think it would be best to get eggs the first year or a pair of the birds? Would one have to keep them in a closed pen? What kind of feed do they require?

A.—The addresses of pheasant breeders were sent you last month. Unless you can get stock in your immediate neighborhood, it will be advisable to buy eggs the first year and hatch them under bantam or small hens, for shipping birds a long distance in the spring would unsettle them, and probably none of the eggs would be fertile. Both old and young birds will have to be kept in covered runs, but any rough shelter over the perches will do in place of real houses, as they can stand any amount of cold, and are healthier when they roost outdoors. Feed mature birds wheat and a mixture of small and broken grains, and every other day from the first of March until June give them a little mash made of ground oats, corn, wheat bran, and freshly ground green bone or finely chopped liver.

O. P.—I have taken COMFORT for over a year. I think it a grand paper. I have looked through its columns for a remedy for my chicks, but failed to find any, so am coming for advice. I have eighteen R. I. R., nine White Leghorns (eight hens, one rooster.) I have nine Highland geese, two Indian Runner ducks. They all run together. I have a nice, warm, roomy house. I clean my chicken-house every other day and spray kresodip once a week. I feed oats, corn, bran, and Kafir corn. I change their food so they don't get tired of one thing. Always plenty of water and grit. About three weeks ago my hens had white sores on their combs, wattles and gills, and then turned black. I caught one at a time, and gave one teaspoonful Castor oil, one drop turpentine, and greased their sores with vaseline, and fed a hot mash of bran with salts, and put pokeroot in their water. They seemed to be getting better—all but one white hen. She has a yellow, hard something in the roof of her mouth, and the left eye runs water all the time. I give her a dose of oil every morning, and grease her, but she doesn't seem to get any better. I gave three doses of salts about three days apart or between the doses. Is it bad for geese, ducks and chicks, to run together? I live in town, and give them all the garden ground, and never throw soapsuds of any kind in the yard. Two of my neighbor's chickens have the same.

A.—It is a decided mistake to have geese, ducks and chickens housed together. Ducks and geese should have a good range on sod ground to be healthy and profitable. I think your hens have a roupy cold. Your method of treating was good, but the vaseline should have been mixed with carbolic acid or flour of sulphur. For all such cases there should be some germ-killing quality in any grease which may be applied. Personally, I prefer using a solution of peroxide, or permanganate of potassium.

L. W.—Will you please tell me how to care for Indian Runner ducks. I have six females and eight males. They are brown and white. They have full range, and I feed corn and wheat bran mash. They mate but but don't lay. Please tell how they should be fed and housed to make them lay. I haven't running water, but plenty of gravel. How many males should I have for six females?

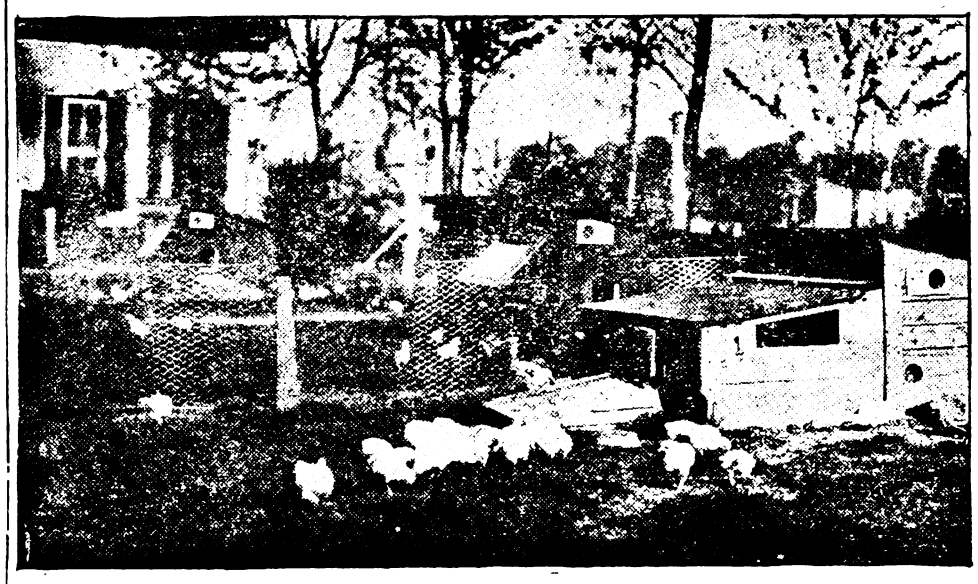
A.—Keep the duckhouse dry and heavily bedded with clean straw or coarse hay. Keep drinking water in vessels that they can only get their heads into. Feed very little corn; they do best on mash made of equal parts of ground oats, wheat bran, and cut clover hay. Steam for several hours and allow it to cool before feeding. Give them all the vegetables you can. One drake is sufficient for the six ducks. Get rid of all the other males at once.

N. P.—Kindly advise me how to preserve eggs for at least one year. A few years ago you published an article in your paper about a man who started to preserve eggs, and succeeded so well that he made a big business of it. I read it then, but have lost the paper. Would appreciate it very much if it were possible to have it reprinted.

A.—I can't remember the particular article to which you refer, but the following is a method of preserving eggs recommended by the Cornell College of Agriculture: Get three pints of water glass from a drug-store—the cost will be about thirty-five cents—and add it to about eighteen quarts of pure water. It is well to boil the water before mixing. Have two eight-gallon stone jars ready; fill with the solution, and carefully lay in the eggs, which must be strictly fresh and perfectly clean. The liquid should go a full two inches above the top layer of eggs. Keep in a cool, well-ventilated place. Eggs can be placed in the jars from day to day as they are collected. Have clean nesting material, so that the eggs are not soiled in any way, for it spoils them to wash them before placing them in the mixture of water glass. When the eggs are removed from the jars for use, they should be rinsed with fresh water, and used within two weeks. It is advisable to remove the roosters from the houses where the laying nests are kept, as infertile eggs keep very much better than fertile ones.

H. T.—There is something wrong with my turkeys. They have free range of stubble ground of either wheat, oats or barley, and plenty of pasture ground. I have not fed anything to them. They look healthy and are busy all the time. Then some morning when I open up the henhouse one of them stands around and droops his head some. They will keep on eating, but not so much. They will drink all the time. They keep on getting weaker all the time, till finally they die. I cut one open and his liver was spotted. Some were large spots and some were small. They get a diarrhea of a light yellow color. Their heads turn a lighter color and they soon become feverish. I gave some Castor oil but it did not do any good. Let me see this in print as soon as possible.

A.—As turkey raising has become very difficult, because they are so subject to disease of late years, the government is endeavoring to assist every one to a better understanding of the business, and I advise you to write to the president, J. H. Worst of the North Dakota Agricultural College, and ask him if he would accept the carcass of one of the affected birds for examination. By doing this you will get an expert diagnosis of the case. Please let me know if you follow this advice, and what report you have seen.



E. J. S.—I wrote you last spring, and now come to you again for information. How old should a capon be? Do the heavier kinds do as well as a small bird? Will they mother any after the first ones are given them? When should they be given to them, night or day? If given at, say, in early February, would they be apt to chill before he got attached to them? Will you please tell me what you can of this new but extremely interesting business. Now, may I, in return for your kindness in the past, send you a remedy for yellow diarrhea—the same I asked you about last April? I found this a cure, and harmless. This for a germ disease. Tablets of mercury bichloride, each one thousandth of a grain, drug strength. Dissolve twelve of these in each quart of spring water. Allow no other drink. Or, give the affected chicks one tablet night and morning (I didn't try this last way.) I also asked about little chicks that would scratch on each side of their necks. This I found to be indigestion. I gave a little cooking soda to each and cured it immediately.

A.—I have not had a very varied experience in using capons as brooders, but of the few I used, only one refused to play mother. Young males should be about three months old when operated on, which means that they will be about eight or nine months old when spring hatching commences. Accustom the capons to being confined in small brood coops without perches for a few days, then put the chickens under them at night. I should not care to try outside coops in your part of the country until the middle of March or first of April. Thank you for the prescriptions, which I am sure will be of use to some of our readers.

L. M.—I will be very glad if you would let me know in next month's COMFORT if a rooster two years is better than a one-year-old. My old one runs very light, but I have a young one growing up, and will be a year old next spring, very dark, and I would like to keep him if he would answer the purpose. I also want to know if this year's pullets will be as good to batch from next year as two-year-olds? Quite a few of my chicks this spring are short-sighted. I wondered if you could tell me why. P. S. The chickens are S. C. R. I. Reds.

A.—The cockerel will be quite old enough to use in breeding pens this year. Personally, I like eggs from two-year-old hens mated to cockerels, but many people consider pullets' eggs just as good for hatching, especially when they are mated to two-year-old cocks. I can't account for the chickens being near-sighted.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 25.)

OUTDOOR BROODERS AND YARD.

Kresge's Free Katalog Is Full of Bargains Like This!

10¢ FOR SPLENDID QUALITY PERCALE DUSTING CAP

AX38. The Dusting Cap shown in the picture is a wonderful bargain and is an article that every woman should have who has house work to do. It keeps the loose hairs from falling from the head, and also keeps dust and grit out of the hair. It is made of good quality percale in medium dark colors in stripes, neat checks and dotted effects. Made full size to fit any head. Elastic in the back to insure a close fit over the hair. Be sure to order one of these durable quality Dusting Caps before you begin your Spring House Cleaning. A regular 15c value, our special price only 10c postage 1c extra, 11c in all.

FREE Write for Kresge's Katalog of the World's Best 5 & 10¢ BARGAINS

Write Today

Kresge's Katalog illustrates thousands of the world's best 5 and 10 cent bargains in linens, embroideries, dry goods, notions, enamelware and household necessities—nothing over 10 cents. It doubles the buying power of your nickels and dimes. All orders shipped promptly.

Kresge guarantees to please you or return your money. Write to nearest point. Dept. 85 Detroit, Mich., or 84 Pearl, Milwaukee, for a copy of Kresge's Free Katalog of the world's best 5 and 10 cent bargains.

Our References: Any Bank in the world and millions of customers

Address: Office Box A-6

S. S. KRESGE CO., Detroit, Mich. St. Paul, Minn.

The Original Parcel Post 5 and 10c Store

With over 100 Branches

$15.95 AND UPWARD SENT ON TRIAL AMERICAN CREAM SEPARATOR

Price, On Trial, Guarantee, Reliability and Protection are features which make the American Cream Separator stand supreme in its field today. $15.95 buys a new easy running, perfect skimming separator that skims warm or cold milk and makes heavy or light cream. Sanitary "marvel" bowl, easily cleaned. Thoroughly protected gears. Picture illustrates our larger capacity machines. 20 Year Guarantee Backed by a reliable company. Western orders filled from western points. Whether your dairy is large or small, write for catalog at once. Address

AMERICAN SEPARATOR CO., Box 2135 Bainbridge, N. Y.

Things the MODERN FARMER must know to MAKE THE FARM PAY

This department, which is conducted by eminent specialists and experts in the various branches of agricultural science and practical, business farming, will keep our readers posted on the latest scientific discoveries and teach them the best methods of operating in order to obtain GREATER FARM PROFITS AND BETTER HOME LIVING.

Any COMFORT subscriber can have the advice of our Agricultural Staff free on questions relating to farming, live stock and dairying. The answers will be printed in this department and will be interesting and instructive to all who are concerned in farming.

Write your questions plainly on one side of the paper only; give your full name and address, and direct your letter to COMFORT'S MODERN FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

Selecting Garden Seeds

HOW about the garden this year? Now is the time to plan it. When it is planned then order the seed so as to have it on hand. Select a reliable seedsman and order from him. But before you plant the garden test your seed. How many times have you been disappointed with a poor stand of vegetables because you planted poor seed? Many people argue that the way to insure a good crop is to plant the seeds too thick and thin the plants later. But even this plan does not insure a good stand. If old seeds are used every one of them may fail to grow; hence the wisdom of ordering early and testing seed. If orders are left till the last and the seeds are needed in a hurry, ten chances to one the seed will be purchased at the nearest grocery store. This may be all right, but even if you escape buying old seed you will have no time to test it. Buy early and test your seed before planting.

How to Test Garden Seeds

It is a very easy matter to test garden seeds and it takes very little time. Take blotting paper and cut it to fit the bottom of an ordinary dinner plate. If thin paper is used several sheets will be needed. Place this in the bottom of the plate and pour over it boiling water to kill the mold spores. When this has been cooled drain off the water and place the seed on the wet paper. Before wetting the paper, circles about an inch in diameter may be drawn on it and underneath these circles the words cabbage, turnip, cauliflower, etc., may be written to aid in the distinguishing of those seeds not easily recognizable.

When preparing the tests, ten or twelve of each kind of seed to be tested should be removed from the package and placed in the ring correspondingly labeled. When the plate is ready it should be covered with another plate of the same size turned up-side down over it and set where it will keep at living-room temperature for five or six days. If the room is very dry it may be necessary to dampen the paper once or twice with two or three teaspoonfuls of water. At the end of the time the cover should be removed and the results noted, for good seed ought to sprout in that time under proper conditions. If the tests show low vitality the seed should be discarded. But in making the test be sure to keep the paper moist and in a warm place.

This test, of course, only shows the vitality or sprouting power of the seed, indicating whether or not the seed will come up when planted in the garden. But there are other important qualities which cannot be tested in advance of planting, such, for instance, as whether or not the seed is pure-bred and from vigorous, hardy, prolific stock; if not, the crop grown from inferior seed is likely to be mongrel in character, poor in quality and small in quantity. Seed tends to run down and lose the valuable traits or qualities characteristic of the variety to which it belongs unless the utmost care is taken in propagating it from season to season, as is done by the reliable seed houses. It is of great importance to plant only pure-bred seed, and for this quality you must rely exclusively on the seedsman that produces it.

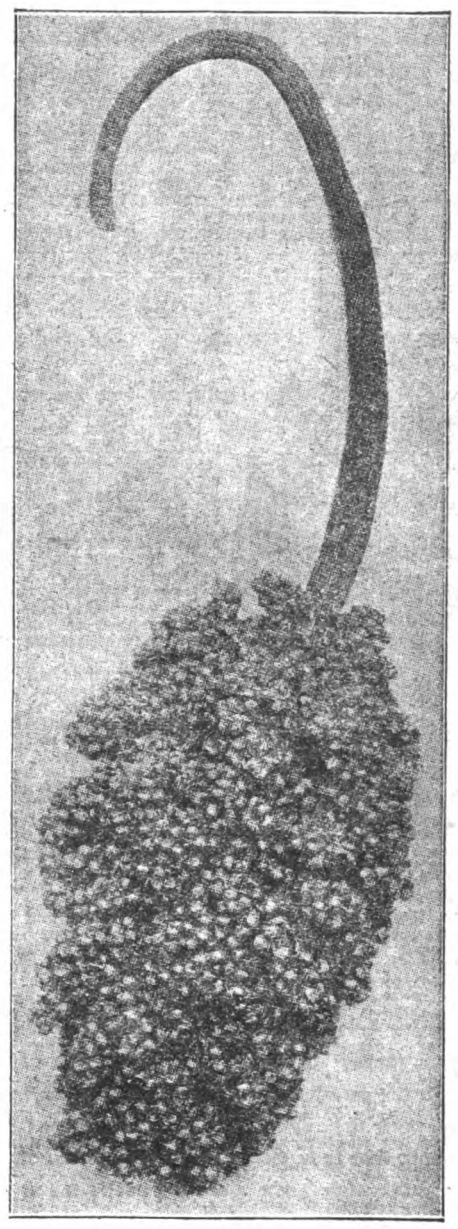
Time to Test Seed Corn

It is necessary for us again to remind the readers of COMFORT'S Modern Farmer that the time of seed-corn testing is at hand. Last year we pointed out in some detail the reasons for making seed-corn tests so that it will be unnecessary at this time for us to repeat them. We will briefly summarize them for our readers as follows:

1. Good seed means a good stand.
2. A good stand is the first essential to a good crop.
3. Good seed means among other things seed that will grow.
4. No one can tell by the appearance of a seed ear whether it will grow or not.
5. This can only be determined by test.

If you are going to have a good crop of corn get good seed and test it. Do it now.

The Hunter Nuisance



We continue to receive complaints of damage done by hunters. They still are leaving the gates open, pulling down wires, breaking top rails, building fires in the back wood lot, throwing empty bottles into the pasture, to say nothing of shooting turkeys, ducks, hens and cats, and "yesterday they got my pet squirrel." But there is no use of allowing this nuisance to go on. Every farmer should put up signs stating that trespassing is prohibited, or "hunters are not allowed on this farm." It would be best to organize a local farmers' protective association and register it with the secretary of state, then put up the signs and by law be able to arrest and prosecute offenders. A sign must be shown on each forty acres. It is a good plan to post a sign on each corner of the farm and another at the front gate and another at any place where hunters are most likely to enter the premises or start shooting. Now and then we hear of a cow or horse being killed by a rifle bullet, but not until this week have we received authentic information regarding damage done by shot-guns. A man told us that he had been talking to the superintendent of a big tannery and was informed by him that when hides are run through the splitting machine birdshot often are so numerous in the hide that the cutting knives are blunted by the lead. When the hide is stripped off a steer in the slaughter house the inspector rarely pays attention to little red spots seen dotting its fleshy surface, nor does he take much account of like red spots on the flesh. These spots indicate bird shot punctures and often are numerous. The superintendent is alleged to have asserted that one per cent of the value of the entire number of hides tanned each year in his work is destroyed by the birdshot and holes due to such shot. As five tanneries in his city use 5,000,000 hides a year the loss may be readily estimated and if that is true of this one city, in which there are other tanneries, what must be the aggregate loss in all the tanneries of the country? This deals only with the financial loss. Who shall estimate the misery and suffering of animals injured by gunshot wounds? Who shall estimate the loss to farmers in lack of thrift, loss of flesh, shrink in milk and failure to put on fat and flesh affecting animals they own and feed? We shall be glad to hear from readers who can tell of actual experiences in this connection. Besides all the damage the hunters do, they kill the quail and other birds that are the farmers' best friends. Until the birds were killed off to such a large extent we had much less trouble with insect pests. Protect the birds.

Milo Maize

Milo maize is one of the Kafir corns and is grown quite extensively in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas and other regions of the semi-arid Southwest. All the Kafirs are adapted to regions of light rainfall and under proper dry farming methods may be brought to maturity with very little rain.

The Kafir corn family is made up of three members,—Kafir, milo and feterita. They are very similar to sorghum or broom corn in appearance. The heads of the milo are crooked, the stalk bending over when ripe. This makes it impossible to harvest the seed with any machine yet perfected, hence the seed must be gathered by hand.

The dwarf milos mature in a short season and in Kansas are frequently grown on the wheat stubble after the wheat crop has been harvested. The seed is planted in rows three and one half feet apart with the seeds from five to eight inches apart in the row. In those sections where it can be grown it is a very profitable crop to raise, yielding from 25 to 75 bushels of seed per acre worth from $1.50 to $2.00 per bushel. The Kansas milo crop this year averaged about 40 bushels per acre on the best farms and the seed is now selling for around $2.00 per bushel.

RIPE MILO MAIZE HEAD CROOKED OVER.

Its feeding value for horses and mules is about the same as that of corn. It takes a little more Kafir to make pork than it does of Indian corn. In a test made at the Kansas Experiment Station Kafir silage made 28 per cent more profit than did corn silage when fed to beef cattle, but was practically equal to corn silage for dairy purposes. Under ordinary farm conditions but one crop can be grown per season.

On account of its habit of bending over as soon as ripe and its uneven ripening it is a difficult crop to harvest for seed.

It is a dry weather crop and has been grown in seasons of as little as seven inches rainfall. For these reasons the crop has not been introduced outside of the regions mentioned above.

As to the Ewe Flock

See to it that the ewes are made to take abundant exercise every day. This is managed by spreading the clover hay for them along one side of a distant pasture and making the ewes walk there and back again each day. The exercise is absolutely necessary if the ewes are to have an easy time at lambing, strong lambs and plenty of milk for their reception. Note that we said clover hay. Timothy hay is poor stuff for pregnant ewes and swale hay, or marsh hay, is much worse. So, too, old, weathered corn stover and dry straw is unsuitable feed for such ewes. They need some succulent feed, or laxative feed. Give them roots or silage and some whole oats and wheat bran along with good clover or Alfalfa hay and they will do fine. Fed coarse, dry, bulky roughage, such as we have mentioned and confined to sheds or houses they will be sure to do badly at lambing time. Many ewes will die before that time, or if they live their lambs will be weak at birth, or die from lack of nourishment. It pays to feed and care for ewes well at this time of the year.

The Brood Sows.

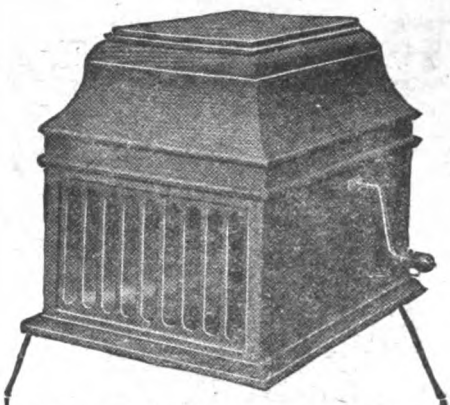
Is it not a fact that they are confined to pens and being heavily fed on ear corn? That is all wrong. They need plenty of exercise every day and the way to manage that, if the ground is deeply covered with snow or mud, is to sprinkle whole oats on a big barn or shed floor, cover it with litter and then let the sows root for the grain. Shelled corn fed in this way will prove safe and suitable in cold weather, but oats is better feed for the sows. Feed no corn or oats unless the sow has to hustle for the grain in the way we have suggested. Very little grain is necessary or safe. Let the sows have plenty of Alfalfa or clover hay, or allow a pound or so of fine corn silage, or feed roots freely in winter. The bowels must be kept active and the muscles in good tone if the sows and the pigs she is to have are to do well. Loss of pigs and sows at farrowing time often comes from stuffing on corn or other rich, constipating feed while restricting exercise. The pig forceps may be thrown away if the sows are properly fed and exercised and remember too that the sows need not have any dope and will do far better without medicines, condition powders or stock feeds. Give them good shelter, kept clean and well ventilated. The sow that lives in the old stack bottom will not be likely to have a profitable litter.

The Brood Mares

The principles involved in what we have said about ewes and sows apply with equal force to the care of mares which are to work in spring and then bear foals. Make them muscular and robust by outdoor exercise. Feed mixed rations, rather than stuffing them on corn. Let them have bright oat straw, corn stover and mixed clover hay in winter and reduce the roughage as spring approaches. Oats and bran may then take the place of ear corn and the oat straw and fodder be dropped out of the ration. At all times, however, the bowels must be regulated by slightly laxative feed. Bran is good for that purpose, or feed carrots or parsnips, or rutabagas. The mares must not be made to scour, neither must they become constipated. Watch the manure and feed accordingly. It also is highly important to see that no moldy feed is given and no hay or grain that contains ergot. Anything irritating to the kidneys is dangerous. See also that the mares are worked light, if worked at all, and that they are not allowed to haul or wade through deep manure, soft mud, or deep snow drifts. Jerking or straining from any cause may prove disastrous. If the mares do not go on green grass in spring as soon as grass is ready, increase wheat bran, omit corn and feed whole oats to get the winter coat quickly and fully shed. The mare then should have little trouble at foaling time, but be careful to have the foal born on grass, or in a clean, fresh bedded whitewashed box stall.

Grubby Hides

We take it for granted that every farm reader of this paper has seen "warbles" or "wolves" in the skin of the backs of cattle at this time of the year; but not all of them know the cause or have thought of the amount of damage possible from these "grubs." The grubs are the larvæ of the ox warble fly (hypodermis lineata) and come from eggs deposited by the fly in summer. The fly is known as a gad fly or bot fly and is as large as a small bee. It causes cattle to run and kick, or even stampede, but it will not cross water, so cattle like to stand in streams or ponds for that reason as well as coolness. The fly was thought to deposit her eggs on or in the skin of the loins and it was for that reason that the Latin name hypodermis was given to the fly, for that means "under the skin." The new theory, put forth by scientists some years ago, is that the eggs are laid on the skin of the heels or breast of pastured cattle whence they are licked off and swallowed, hatch in the gullet (œsophagus), burrow through its wall, get into the connective tissue, under the skin, and thence burrow along until eventually they arrive under the skin of the loins or back. Farmers and stockmen do not take kindly to this theory. They still prefer to believe that the eggs are laid in or on the skin of the loins and they fail to understand how the grub possibly can burrow so far and always arrive only at the spot on the back where the animal can neither lick nor switch away the fly. The fact remains that the grubs get there somehow or another and are a source of terrible misery to the animal. Each grub has a number of segments or rings covered with short, sharp, stiff bristles. The grub wiggles these about, thus irritating the skin and this causes an outpouring of inflammatory lymph in which the grubs live and feed. When a grub infested animal is skinned big patches of inflamed tissue and jelly like substance are found at each grub or warble hole. Skinners call these "licked hides" and the holes greatly depreciate the value of the affected hide. The loss from these grubs amounts to millions of dollars a year. The leather is injured at the best parts of the hide and the buyers of "green" hides dock the price according to the number and position of the warble holes in each hide. We have seen forty or fifty holes in a single hide. The hole in the hide is made by the grub as it matures and is used for breathing purposes and then as an exit from the skin. The hole is quite small at first but enlarges greatly as the grub matures and pus and lymph form in the sac surrounding the grub. The animal must suffer torments from the wiggling bristles of the grubs and the misery may be so acute as to prevent the beast from thriving properly or giving the amount of milk it should yield from the ration fed. Humanity to animals demands that the grubs should be killed when forming and if that has not been done should be squeezed out and destroyed when that becomes possible. Fly repellants sprayed on the cows in summer, will help to keep off the flies and so lessen the number of warbles. Washing the backs of cattle with strong salt water or a 1-50 solution of coal tar dip in early winter and a few weeks later will help to kill the small grubs, then larger ones may be squeezed out whenever possible, the orifice in the skin being slightly opened for that purpose. It is a mistake to kill the large grubs in the skin. The dead grub remains to decompose and keep up the irritation. It should be removed. By killing the grub when squeezed out one fly is prevented from maturing and so the chance of warble trouble is lessened. Let every reader of this paper examine his cattle after reading this article and remove any grubs he may find.



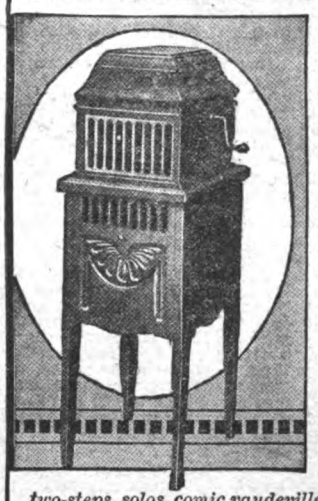
The Questions and Answers constitute one of the most valuable features of this department and we urge our farmer subscribers to read all of them carefully each month, as you will find that they contain much useful information and advice on practical problems that are troubling you as well as those who have asked the questions. Cut them out and paste them into a scrapbook for future reference. This will save you the trouble of writing us and will avoid delay in getting your answer when you need advice on these same matters. We are glad to receive inquiries from our subscribers and to advise them on all matters pertaining to farming, but it is hardly reasonable to expect us to waste valuable space in answering the same questions month after month for the benefit of those who need not have asked the questions if they had read and remembered the answers which we had previously printed.

Questions and Answers

MILO MAIZE.—Please tell me about Milo Maize. Would it be a profitable crop to raise in Michigan? What is the usual yield per acre? What effect does it have on the soil? When and how should it be planted to mature the grain? What its feeding, and what its market value? Does it withstand wet and dry weather well?
F. K. B., Freeport, Mich.

A.—Milo Maize is one of the Kafir crops adapted to Southern conditions and regions of low rainfall. It

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 27.)



NEW

Mr. Edison's Wonderful New Instrument

An offer introducing The New Edisons. Write quick—while this offer lasts. Edison's new phonograph—just out!—the perfected musical wonder of the age!

WRITE today for our new Edison catalog—that tells you all about the wonderful new model Edison and our new Edison offer!

Hear the latest up-to-date song hits of the big cities. Laugh until the tears stream down your face and your sides ache from laughing at funniest of funny minstrel shows; hear the grand old church hymns, the majestic choirs, the pealing organs, the splendid operas, the crashing brass bands, the two-steps, solos, comic vaudeville, duets and quartettes. Take your choice of any kind of entertainment. All will be yours with the Edison in your home.

The Offer:

We will send you the new model Edison Phonograph and your choice of all the brand new records on an absolutely free loan. We want you to hear all the waltzes, two-steps, vaudevilles, minstrels, grand operas, the old sacred hymns, every kind of comic and popular music, also your choice of the highest-grade concerts and operas, as rendered by the world's greatest artists. Entertain your family and friends. Then, when you are through with the outfit, you may send it back at our expense.

REMEMBER, not a penny down—no deposit—no guarantee—no C. O. D. to us—no obligations to buy—a full free trial in your own home—direct from us—direct to you. Returnable at our expense or payable (if you want to keep it) at the rock-bottom price direct from us.

The Reason: We are tremendously proud of this magnificent new instrument. When you get it in your town we know everybody will say that nothing like it has ever been heard—so we are pretty sure that at least some one, if not you, then somebody else, will want to buy one of these new style Edisons, especially as they are being offered now at the most astounding rock-bottom price and on easy terms as low as a few dollars a month.

Our New Edison Catalog Sent Free

Your name and address on a postal or in a letter (or just the coupon) is enough. No obligations in asking for the catalog. Get this offer—while this offer lasts. Fill out the coupon now—today.

F. K. Babson, Edison Phonograph Distributors
3042 Edison Block, Chicago, Ill.
Canadian Office—355 Portage Ave., Winnipeg, Can.

To
F. K. BABSON,
Edison Phonograph Distributors,
Dept. 3042 Edison Block, Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:—Please send me your New Edison Catalog and full particulars of your free trial offer on the new model Edison Phonograph.

Name.....

Address.....

.....

EARN MORE MONEY

Get into business for yourself, selling Lange Household Specialties direct from wagon to home. Big demand, handsome profits—steady, healthful work—better sales every trip. You furnish horse, we supply rig on easy terms. Previous experience not needed. Our contract beats all others three ways—let us tell you how. Fine territory is now open for 100 more hustlers. If this looks good to you, write us today.

E. A. LANGE CO., Department, W, DE PERE, WIS.

SEEDS 20 Packages High Grade Flower Seeds 5 Bulbs. Pine Tree Nursery, Pemaquid, Me. 10c

ELECTRIC HOME, FARM & STORE LIGHTING PLANTS, LIGHTS, DYNAMOS, MOTORS, ENGINES, RAILWAYS. Belts, Bells, Batteries, Books, Telephones, Bicycle, Carriage, Xmas & Flash Lights. Cat. 3cts. OHIO ELECTRIC WORKS, Cleveland, Ohio.

Edna's Secret Marriage

By Charles Garvice

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

John Weston, old and wealthy, knowing he has but a few days to live, sends for Richard Burdon, his lawyer. Remembering a debt he owes Charles More, he revokes a will in favor of a younger brother's child and makes a new one, disposing of the lives and hearts of two, and leaves it for Mr. Burdon to carry out his bequests. The banker is found dead the next morning. Sixteen years later Sir Cyril More with wealth squandered and no aim in life, finds himself at Lucerne, Switzerland, where he meets Edna Weston, who has only Aunt Martha. Edna inquires of Sir Cyril if he knows Richard Burdon. Her father, on his death-bed charges her to go to him the first of the following September. Edna and her aunt board at the Pension, a Swiss boarding house and Sir Cyril leaves the Grand for the Pension Petre.

CHAPTER III.

DINNER AT THE PENSION.

Copyright, 1905, by Street and Smith.
Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

IT is the dinner hour at the Pension Petre, and on either side of the long table the hungry boarders are awaiting their soup, some chattering, some silent, but all impatient.

At the head of the table sits madame herself, arrayed in a black bombazine—why do all keepers of boarding houses, English or foreign, run to bombazine?—and affably anxious.

Behind her and about her generally flit the six maidservants, and the one manservant, Adolphe the ubiquitous, also is here, there and everywhere, and is now ladling out the soup.

It is rather a motley crew—the long lines of men and women who have put up at the comfortable Swiss Pension, and not unworthy of some modern Leech; but attractive as their vain and humorous characteristics were, the eye of the person who should be fortunate enough to enter at the moment would have been drawn and rivetted to the face and figure of Edna Weston.

Pure and maidenly and beautiful as only a good-looking English girl can be, she sits at the center of the table facing the door, calmly sits listening to the babel around her, and at times turning her shapely head to speak to a white-haired, handsome old lady who sat at her side.

Swiftly and impartially the soup is served; Adolphe, hot and breathless, is prepared to stand at ease, at least for a moment, when the door opens and in walks—with that inimitable air of self-possessed nonchalance which is the birthright of the English aristocrat—no other than wicked Sir Cyril.

Madame Petre sees him and nods to Adolphe. "The gentleman, Adolphe—you have a place reserved? That is good!"

Adolphe whisks his napkin over his arm, makes an elaborate series of bows, and amidst a dead silence and under the direct and most inquisitive gaze of sixty pair of eyes, conducts the English gentleman to a seat next Miss Weston.

Edna looked up with a smile as he entered; she looks up at his face now with the same smile, full of calm, maidenly pleasure, nothing more. Instantly the soft eyes focus themselves upon her.

"You see," says Cyril, unfolding his napkin and taking up his spoon; "I have come."

"Yes," she says; "I hope you will be comfortable."

"There is no doubt of it," he responded; "I have seen my room, I have stood upon my balcony, and I am content."

Edna smiles again, then turns to the old lady by her side.

"This, aunt," she says, "is the gentleman of whom I spoke to you yesterday; he was not comfortable at his hotel, and has come to try the Pension Petre."

Aunt Martha peers at him amicably and nods.

"Very comfortable here, my dear Edna—yes, very comfortable. I hope Mr. ——"

There is a moment's pause, Cyril has his spoon to his mouth—both pair of eyes, the old and young, are turned to him. Why does he not answer? What is the matter with him? Has he forgotten his own name? It would almost seem so, for when he does speak in answer to the looked inquiry, he says:

"Mr. Harold—Harold Payne."

"I think you will be comfortable, Mr. Payne," says Aunt Martha; "have you been in Lucerne before?"

Mr. Harold—Mr. Harold Payne—replies that he has not, and a conversation, geographical and discursive, ensues between them, and Edna sits and listens, so, it must be added, do almost all the rest of the people. Presently Edna is conscious that Aunt Martha has relinquished him, and that he is speaking to herself.

"Now that I have come I hope you will play the cicerone, and throw the light on some of my fellow pensioners," he says.

Edna smiles.

"Oh, you must learn to know them for yourself; they are very well worth knowing—some of them."

"I don't doubt it," says Cyril, looking down the table. "Who is that stout gentleman at the end—by Jove! he is never asleep?"

"No, not quite, only almost," says Edna; "but pray be more reverent. That is a baron—a real, live German baron. Oh, we are very proud of him, and indeed, he is very wise, when he is awake, which is not often excepting at meal times."

"And the lady next him?"

"An authoress; she wrote 'The Tears of Hermione,' a volume of poetry—do you know it?"

"No," says Cyril. "Can't say I've read much poetry. Has she written anything else? I should like something more cheerful, 'The Groans of Clytemnestra,' or something of that sort, more in my line."

Edna represses a smile; she is not ill-natured, but is blessed, evidently, with a keen sense of the humorous.

"Please go on," says Cyril, and she runs through the dramatis personae, English, French, German.

"That is so-and-so, and those two young ladies are the Miss Robinsons; they are very nice, and so very clever. They paint, and sing, and play beautifully. I think you will like them."

"Indeed I shall," says Cyril, politely; "and who is that gentleman talking to one of them?" and he looks with an unmistakable commingling of horror and amusement at a specimen of the cockney swell; an over-dressed, dandified young man, with eyeglass in eye, is fascinating one of the Miss Robinsons, and "haw, hawing" for the benefit of the whole table at the same time.

"That is Mr. Howley Jones," replies Edna.

"Indeed," says Cyril, "and who and what is Mr. Howley Jones?"

"He is—he is. I don't quite know. I think he is connected with the aristocracy—he says so, and talks of so many great people who are friends of his."

Cyril looks across the table and strokes his mustache dubiously.

"There is scarcely anyone of any note whom he does not know, and he lives at—at Shooter's Hill—yes, Shooter's Hill."

Cyril sighs.

"Where is that?"

Edna laughs her soft, usual laugh.

"You ask me that! You, a Londoner; and I knowing nothing of it!"

"I forget," he says, "but upon my word I don't know where it is. Shall we ask him?"

"Not on my account," says Edna; and he fancies that there is a slight touch of color on her cheek, and the fancy makes his next glance across at the young donkey a more marked one. But Cyril hits upon the truth at once.

"That young idiot of a shop boy has been trying to make himself agreeable, and she has resented it. Serves him right."

The descriptive catalogue, however, is brought to a close; several other people have cut in and taken his conversational prize from him, and wicked Sir Cyril goes on with his dinner.

It is not a bad dinner, he is compelled to admit—it is more cheerful than the table d'hote at the Grand, with all its silver plate and solemn funeral waiters; there is a charm about it that he does not understand or account for, until the little maiden beside him rises, gives him a quiet, graceful little bow, and leaves with the rest of the ladies. Then he understands it, and although he has half a bottle of excellent Pontet Canet still left, the charm has gone. There remain behind to console him, however, the baron, two English clergymen, an Italian priest and Mr. Howley Jones. Babel, for a time silenced by the innumerable courses, is now arisen again; but above all the chatter—French, German, Swiss and English—rises Mr. Howley Jones' "Haw, haw! my guv'ner's place at Shooter's Hill, my friend Lord Bottleby, my gun, my horse, my dawgs!"

Cyril looks aross at him with quiet amusement and curiosity. He has seen this kind of young gentleman, the mock "swell," only at a distance hitherto, and he decides that at a nearer acquaintance he is entertaining—yes, decidedly entertaining—for a time.

Cyril finishes his bottle and strolls out, cigar in hand, into the garden.

It is a delightful spot, all green and shady, a series of beshrubbed terraces running down to the road that stretches along the hill above the lake, which lies beneath him, glittering in the sinking sun, with that peculiar greeny sheen which belongs to Lake Lucerne and no other.

Cyril lights his cigar, and strolls backward and forward. For the first time since he can remember, for, oh, a very long time back, he is not bored. What a charming, innocent little child-woman she is—what a pure, truthful—then, at reflection, he pulls up short. Yes, she is truthful enough, but what about himself? He is conscious, as he asks himself the question, of feeling uncomfortable. He has given them a false name. It was all very well to give the name of Harold Payne at the Grand; there was a fair reason for the concealment of his right one there. His name was too popular, was far too well known, to allow of his enjoying any immunity from tourist friends, if he had allowed it to be posted in the visitor's book at the Grand. It was only wise, perhaps, to give the porter at the Grand the name of Harold Payne, but why had he done so here?—what reason was there for such concealment? Surely there was none; he had no right to do it. And yet, he reflected, was it not the better course? He would be gone tomorrow, and there would be an end of it. Why should she ever know that she had poured out her confidence to "Wicked Sir Cyril?"

But, notwithstanding this specious argument, Cyril did not feel easy; his cigar wouldn't burn; he swore—I am obliged to be truthful—he swore at it, lit another, and walked down by the winding path, resolved to make a clean breast of it the next time he saw Aunt Martha and her niece. Alas for good resolutions! what a wide road that must be with which they are paved! He turned into the first arbor—the garden was as full of them as a hive is of cells—and there sat the two women of whom he was thinking; and where was his good resolution?

They are both busy with some kind of fancy-work, and Cyril pauses, compelled to gaze at the pretty picture the sweet, downbent head makes in its framework and background of green. It is a strange, really a remarkable faculty Edna possesses—that of looking enticing and picturesque anywhere and everywhere.

They look up suddenly; he is shutting out their light; and Aunt Martha smiles a welcome.

"Is that you, Mr. Payne?"

Cyril is almost guilty of a start. That beastly name!

"Yes, it is I, Miss Weston. I mayn't come in, I suppose?"

Aunt Martha smiles, and makes room for him; and he is about to fling his cigar away when she stops him.

"You are not used to continental ways, Mr. Payne; anybody may smoke anywhere in Switzerland."

"You do not mind—you are sure?" he says, and then sinks on to the seat, the picture of handsome contentment and—laziness. "You are both very busy," he says, watching, with a subtle kind of reverence, Edna's little pink fingers as they ply the needle.

"Playing at being busy," remarks Aunt Martha. "You see, we cannot smoke like you gentlemen, I sometimes think it is almost a pity."

"It's not too late to learn," says Cyril, and the speech does not sound impertinent, as it would coming from most men.

Edna looks up for the first time.

"The Polish countess who lived opposite us in Geneva smoked cigarettes all day."

"You have been living in Geneva?" says Cyril, curious and interested in anything pertaining to them.

"Yes," says Aunt Martha, with a little sigh; "we have been living in Geneva for years. I sometimes think that I have forgotten England."

"Aunt!" exclaims the girl, with the color in her cheeks and a soft, indignant light in her eyes.

"Well, that England has forgotten us; and yet we used to be well known, Mr. Payne. Perhaps you may have heard of the Westons?"

As she speaks, one of those odd flashes, indistinct and fleeting, cross his mind. The Westons, the Westons—where has he heard of them? The name seems familiar. But, after a moment's struggle, Cyril, whose memory is terribly bad, and whose eventful career has served to blot out his earlier years from his mind, gives it up as a bad job.

"I don't think I can remember, though I seem to have heard the name," he replies.

"Just so," says the old lady, with a resigned sigh; "we are forgotten. Yes, Mr. Payne, we have been living abroad for a very long time—as long as Edna can remember. Her father was a great student and a recluse, and shunned his fellow countrymen. Give him his books and leave him to his quiet, and always Edna, of course, and he was happy."

Cyril listened with an interest which was deeper than he had ever experienced before, with an interest that surprises him; he glances at the sweet, thoughtful face and feels quite uncomfortable at the sight of the one little tear that rolls slowly down her cheek. It may be safely asserted that it is the first woman's tear that has ever touched him.

"Edna," continues the old lady, "told you something of our mysterious return to England, I think——"

Cyril inclines his head respectfully.

"She is but a child in the ways of the world," resumes the old lady, who for all her years is quite childishly unsuspicious and ingenuous.

"I ought not to have wearied Mr. Payne—'bored'—that is the word, isn't it?"

"You did not bore me," says Cyril, earnestly, his brows as grave as a judge's. "Don't think that; if I could be of any service to you——"

"I thank you so much," says Aunt Martha, warmly, "but I do not think anyone can help us, excepting this Mr. Richard Burdon, and he will not do it—we cannot ask him until the first of September. My brother was a strange man, very reserved; he knew a great number of well-born people in England; we are not lowly-born ourselves, Mr. Payne——"

"My dear aunt," breaks in Edna, blushingly.

"My dear Edna, you are quite right. Mr. Payne need not be afraid I am going to give him the family pedigree. I merely say that there may be some strange history awaiting us concerning other persons as well as ourselves; well, well, I am an old gossip, Mr. Payne, with a legitimate secret to chatter about. Edna, have you any more cotton?—no, dear, I will fetch it myself; indeed, I have a letter or two to write."

Edna rises also, but glances at the lake below her wistfully. It is a shame to leave the open air—the grateful shade of the green arbor for the hot room. She looks at her aunt, and the old lady quite innocently says:

"Don't stay out after the tea bell has rung," and disappears.

Cyril, who has been stretched on wires for the last minute, heaves a sigh of relief and satisfaction as Edna sinks back into her seat. But Aunt Martha seems to have taken all the conversation with her, for there is a profound silence.

Now is the time, thinks Cyril, to make his confession, and, if possible, to gain forgiveness and condonement.

He looks up at her, it is scarcely necessary to say that he has got his long limbs into a comfortable position, almost reclining on the rustic seat. Cyril never sat upright in his life where it was at all possible to lie down. He looks at the pure face, so serene in its unsuspecting innocence, so full of that dignity which purity alone can give, and he hesitates.

He who hesitates is lost. Before he has time to form, another resolution to be broken, voices make themselves heard close at the back, in another arbor, in fact, and Cyril puts off the confession to a more convenient season.

The newcomers are of the male sex—that is evident, for if there had been a woman her voice would have been heard, and before a few minutes have passed, one voice, which Cyril recognizes as Mr. Howley Jones', is above the rest, and silences them.

"The garden seems a general rendezvous," says Cyril.

"Yes, it is pleasant here," replies Edna; "one can see the lake so plainly, and it is always beautiful. And it is shady; these arbors keep off the sun."

"Yes, they are sun-proof enough; it's a pity they are not sound-proof, also."

Edna looks up and smiles.

"Ah, yes, one can hear very plainly."

"That is Mr. Howley Jones' voice, if I am not mistaken?" says Cyril, interrogatively.

Edna listens a moment.

"Yes, that is Mr. Jones. He is rather fond of talking."

"So it seems," says Cyril. "I never could understand what fellows who are given to chattering have to talk about."

"Their experiences, perhaps," says Edna; "most people have some more or less varied. Mr. Jones is recounting some of his now."

"I don't doubt it," acquiesces Cyril. "May I light another cigar?"

Edna inclines her head, and he strikes a light. As he does so, Mr. Jones' voice, complacently confidential, comes distinctly through the leaves, and a word or name, falling on Cyril's ears, causes him to raise his head, and almost drop the match; not quite, however, for Cyril has admirable command over his emotions, and is seldom guilty of revealing them.

He lights his cigar, leans back into his old attitude of repose, and listens. Edna listens, too—there is nothing else to be done, and there is no eavesdropping in it, for Mr. Jones is only too grateful at all times for an attentive audience; and that he has an attentive audience now is only too palpable, his listeners are profoundly and interestedly silent.

CHAPTER IV.

QUESTIONS AND THE QUESTIONED.

"Know Sir Cyril More!" Mr. Jones is saying, "I should rather think I did! Why, Cyril and I are old chums. We are never apart when I'm in town. I wish he was here now, dear old fellow!"

Cyril leans his head upon his arm and looks languidly toward the back of the arbor.

"Mr. Jones seems blessed with a very affectionate nature," he murmurs; "remembers his old friends even in distant climes."

Edna smiles, but does not make any remark, perhaps because she is interested in Mr. Jones' reminiscences. Cyril fancies that she is listening, if reluctantly, rather intently, as he leans back and watches her.

"Yes," continued Mr. Jones, "Cyril and I are great chums, poor fellow!"

"What's the matter with him?" asks one of the audience, with the true British curiosity and interest in a member of the aristocracy.

"What! don't you know?" retorts the admirable Howley, as if he were recounting the misfortunes of a brother. "I thought everybody knew about Cyril More; he's gone completely to the dogs! com—plete—ly run down! Why, it's the talk of the town; for, you see, Cyril More is as well known as—as—Nelson's Monument, and when a man like that goes to pieces there's a stir."

"Ah!" murmurs someone, with a puff at a cigar. "What was the cause of it?"

Oh, the usual thing," replies Mr. Jones. "No-

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 29.)

$2.25 a Month Buys a Genuine KIMBALL ORGAN

At Factory Prices
FREE Music Instructions by Our New Diagram System if you write at once.

You can now buy the famous Kimball Organs direct from the makers at factory prices. We will send them to reliable people anywhere, to be paid for on our extremely easy payment plan—$2.25 monthly and upwards, if desired.

Operating the largest organ factory in the world, employing the largest capital, buying raw material in the greatest quantity for cash—the Kimball System of manufacturing and distributing positively saves you $25 to $50 on strictly first class organs.

Valuable Features of the Kimball

For half a century Kimball Organs have been regarded as standard and America's favorite. They are famous for their beautiful tone and extraordinary wearing quality. The Kimball has many important new inventions that make them not only the sweetest toned but most powerful organs in the market today.

Send at Once For Money-Saving Plan and Free 1914 Catalogue

Under no circumstances can you afford to buy or consider any other organ until you have our money-saving proposition. Our half-century's manufacturing experience, our financially strong guarantee means much to you.

W. W. Kimball Co., 3052 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Use This Coupon Now and we will mail you catalogues, price lists and send you the Nations' Home Songs words and music, absolutely FREE.

COUPON
W. W. Kimball Co., 3052 Kimball Hall, Chicago
Please send me FREE 1914 catalogues, factory distributing prices and Nations' Home Songs with words and music FREE.
Name
City State
St. or R. F. D.

A NEW WAY To Get Your Clothes Free

Make Big Money During Spare Time

Something Different, bigger, more liberal than any offer ever made. Lower prices—better clothes—bigger cash profits Express paid on everything.

Double Pay

FREE clothes and cash besides. We don't ask you to use your cash profits for your own clothes. Ours is a new and better plan. An Extra Present with every order. Not a prize scheme. Choose what you want, work for it and get it besides your Cash Profits. Complete Outfit FREE, 56 real cloth samples, 50 Fashion Plates. Inside wholesale prices. Get the big money. Your name on a post card brings everything FREE.

SPENCER MEAD CO., Dept. 304, Chicago

20 Easter Post Cards 10c

SOME GOLD SOME SILVER ALL EMBOSSED

20 of the most beautiful post cards ever sold, 10 cents, consisting of beautiful and artistic designs of Angels, Crosses, Text, Pretty Flowers, Rabbits, Chicks, Eggs; all with appropriate Easter Greetings. ALL ARE EMBOSSED, some in gold and some in silver, lithographed in many colors on fine cardboard.

THE BEST CARDS YOU EVER SAW

E. HERMAN & CO. 2430 North Halsted St., Dept. 140, CHICAGO

Stem Wind & Set

WATCH, RING AND CHAIN GIVEN

For selling thimbles and needles. We positively give a genuine American Stem Wind and Set Watch, beautifully designed case, warranted time-keeper, 5-Year guarantee, Sparkling Set or Plain Ring, all for selling 20 Silver-Aluminum Thimbles at 10c each. Paper of Gold-Eye Needles Free with each Thimble. Easy to sell. Write for them. When sold return the $2 and we will send the watch and ring. Ladies' or Gents' style Chain.

HOME SUPPLY CO., Dept. 212 Chicago, Ill.

IN NEW YORK CITY

Have you a patent needing help to develop? Have you timber, water power, or mineral lands to dispose of? Want to get in touch with manufacturers, jobbers or purchasers? Wish anything purchased or investigated, business transacted or any service here by a Reliable Agency? If so write us. Business established 20 years. No charge except as agreed to by you. Our long experience is at your disposal.

AMERICAN SERVICE UNION, 220 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

FREE 10 YEAR GUARANTEE GOLD RING

A beautiful Ladies' Cluster Gold filled ring, warranted 10 years, set with two large cut amethyst, ruby or emerald stones and two small pearls. FREE for selling only 12 fine Mexican Drawnwork handkerchiefs at only 10c each. NO MONEY REQUIRED.

R. W. ELDRIDGE
11 Eldridge Bldg. Orleans, Vt.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Prevents hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

AGENTS Let us show you the best paying canvassing business in the United States. Write today to the largest makers of transparent handled knives and razors for proof. A postal card will do.

$1500 a Year Sure

NOVELTY CUTLERY CO., 76 Bar St., CANTON, OHIO

VIOLIN FREE

Full size violin, with Bow, and book of instructions, given for selling 20 pieces of Jewelry at 10 cts. each. Write for them today.

Eagle Watch Co., Dept. 156 East Boston, Mass.

FREE The Largest Fashion Book Published

Write to-day for your copy

344 pages—48 in color—the newest of New York styles; all exclusive Charles William models. Values far greater than it is possible to get elsewhere—even greater than you have ever before been able to get when you bought by mail. Send a postal card or mail the coupon below now!

Before you select any Spring clothes, write for this Free Book and see the beautiful New York Styles you can get from The Charles William Stores. You will say we issue the finest catalog you have ever seen. Every one does. Last season, we had to publish several editions, the demand for our Fashion Book became so great. Read the letters shown here. They show what this book means to other people.

Regardless of what other styles you may see, get this book, "New York Styles," and compare our New York merchandise, price for price, style for style, with what you see elsewhere. You will find that our prices are actually lower than those shown in many wholesalers' catalogs—that they are the lowest prices, mail order or otherwise, you have ever found. See what C. E. Ziegler says on this point; thousands of others will corroborate his statement.

Our Fashion Book tells how it is possible for us to give you such values; how fashions are originated here in New York, the style center; how our big Volume of Business and Low Profit Policy enable you to save money on everything you buy. See what C. A. Pielman says about saving $10 on a single article.

Delivery Free

We pay all mail or express charges. We guarantee complete satisfaction or give you back your money in full.

We will even pay return charges on any order which does not entirely please you.

The Dainty Maid A February Bargain Dress of striped Amoskeag Madras. Skirt has trim yoke-belt, piped in solid color. Flare skirt, V-neck and three-quarter length sleeves make this a most comfortable garment. The vestee of white Pique and collar and cuffs of solid color Gingham are embroidered with a scalloped washable edge. Front closing. Colors: Blue and white striped; black and white striped, and lavender and white striped. Sizes: 32 to 46 inches bust. State color and size.
No. 24A2012. Special Value. Prepaid 98c

The Louise Of Voile, embroidered in dainty flowers. Two inserts of cobweb lace and the new-style, standing collar of Organdie, topped with a plaited frill, are style features you will not find elsewhere in a 49c waist. Elbow-length sleeves are finished with plaited frills. Front closing. In all white, or in white embroidered in pink or light blue. Sizes 32 to 46 inches bust. State color and size.
No. 24A2015. Worth $1.00. Prepaid 49c

Our Designer's Pride New-style waist made of Jap Silk and Crepe de Chine cleverly combined. Upper portion of soft Jap Silk, while the blouse, revers and lower part of the three-quarter length sleeves are of Crepe de Chine. Vestee of Jap Silk trimmed with Crepe de Chine covered buttons and Hemstitching. Stylish standing collar of exquisite Lace. Colors: White Jap Silk, combined with any of the following colors of Crepe de Chine: Maize, Flesh, Sand or White. Sizes 32 to 44 inches bust. State color and size.
No. 24A2016. $3.00 Waist. Prepaid 98c

"La Vision" This striped Crepe Ratine Blouse will be shown only in our February advertisements. Long sleeves, with embroidered Organdie cuffs. Organdie collar with a plaited frill. Vestee of embroidered Organdie. Front closing with crochet buttons. White, striped in light blue and black, or white, striped in pink and black. Sizes 32 to 46 inches bust. State color and size.
No. 24A2014, 85c Waist. Prepaid 49c

The Sand Blouse Sand color is being used more and more. This waist is of Sand colored Voile with two rows of Filet Lace insertion at sides and embroidered vestee, edged with a ruffle of lace. Three-quarter length sleeves with cuffs of Organdie. Roll collar of embroidered Organdie. Front closing with fancy buttons. Sand color, also all white. Sizes 32 to 44 inches bust. State color and size.
No. 24A2017. $2.00 Waist. Prepaid 98c

The Dresden This Figured Silk Dress is our "February Special." The waist is designed with shoulder yoke and shirred at waistline over a broad girdle of Messaline Silk in contrasting color. Dainty vestee, boned collar and ruffles on elbow length sleeves of sheer hemstitched white Organdie. New shirred skirt finished with deep tuck, simulating fold. Copenhagen blue with Rose girdle; Navy Blue with American Beauty girdle; Putty with Copenhagen girdle. Sizes: Misses, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. State color and size.
No. 24A2013. $7.00 Dress. Prepaid $3.98

The Pierrette Decidedly new Collar and Cuff set of white Organdie, hemstitched in black. Both collar and cuffs are pleated. White only. Fits any size neck.
No. 21A2019. 35c Value. Prepaid 21c

The Tommy Atkins Military Hat of Silk Braid with feather of curled Ostrich, surmounted by hair algrette. Two bands of pleated silk at left side, which do not show in illustration. Colors: Black with white pompon; Army Blue, Brown or Sand color, with pompon to match, or All Black. State color.
No. 16A2018. Prepaid $1.48

What our customers say:

AN EDUCATION IN ITSELF—"I would like to thank you for the great catalog you sent me. It is an education in itself. Everything is marked so plainly that it is easy to tell in a few minutes just what one wants."
—Mrs. James J. Shea.

THE WAY OUR CATALOGUE MAKES FRIENDS—"I am so pleased with my goods. One of my friends just received her order and is delighted. I have another order I expect to send for a friend tomorrow night. Please send your new Style Book as soon as it is out."
—Mrs. Mary Marsh.

EXACTLY AS ILLUSTRATED—"I received goods all O. K. and was delighted with everything. They were exactly as illustrated in catalog and I thank you for sending them so promptly."
—Mrs. Claude Stump.

$10 SAVED ON ONE ARTICLE ALONE—"My blue Chinchilla overcoat is the finest fit I ever had; one of the best in quality and the cheapest in price. Could not have bought it here for less than $20, yet it cost me only $9.95."
—C. A. Pielman.

ARE YOU A JUDGE OF MAIL ORDER VALUES?—"Goods received in good condition. Will say I obtained the best value for the money I ever received from any mail order house."—C. E. Ziegler.

READ WHAT THIS MOTHER SAYS—"Received the goods O. K. this morning. With the little girl's coat I was particularly pleased. Could find nothing here to equal it for double the price and last week I took my little girl to Boston and could find nothing I liked nearly as well unless I paid, at least two or three dollars more."
—Mrs. Thos. Cote.

What this book contains:

344 pages—48 in color—of New York styles—exclusive Charles William models. With this book in your home, you will have the latest NEW YORK STYLES and the greatest values possible to obtain. No matter what other style books you see, you should not fail to get this one. See the styles and values in it and compare prices.

BARGAINS For WOMEN, MISSES AND GIRLS—190 pages of dresses, waists, coats, suits, sweaters, corsets, neckwear, hats, feathers, veils, scarfs, shawls, gloves, handbags, hosiery, underwear, jewelry, shoes, hair goods and handkerchiefs.

BARGAINS FOR CHILDREN—25 pages of dresses, suits, blouses, waists, shoes, underclothes, hats, stockings, play suits, and leggings.

BARGAINS FOR THE BABY—10 pages of layettes, clothing, shoes, carriage robes, blankets and caps.

BARGAINS FOR BOYS—35 pages of gloves, clothing, sweaters, caps and hats, shoes, etc.

SPECIAL VALUES FOR MEN AND YOUNG MEN—80 pages of gloves, socks, underwear, clothing, hats and caps, sweaters, collars, suspenders, belts, jewelry, shoes and boots.

Mail this coupon or a postal today

Important—To Our Customers

If you are among the thousands of COMFORT readers who already buy from The Charles William Stores, it will not be necessary for you to write for your copy of "New York Styles." As soon as it is off the press, it will be mailed immediately to all of the Charles William customers.

Get one of the first copies of this big Free Fashion Book. Write today

The Charles William Stores New York
AT THE NATION'S GATEWAY
201 Stores Building, NEW YORK

Name .....
R. D. Route or Street No. .....
City and State .....

The Charles William Stores
201 Stores Bldg.
New York

Without obligating me in any way, please send a copy of your big 344-page FREE fashion book—called "New York Styles"—to the address above.

GENERAL MARION

Who Made Good His Motto "LIBERTY OR DEATH"

Famous Night Rider and Dreaded Raider who was a Scourge to the British Invaders and Terror to the Tory Traitors in the Revolution

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

Among those who earned a hero's name on the battle-fields of the Revolution there was no braver, truer or more devoted patriot than Brigadier-General Francis Marion.

He was a unique character, and his exploits have a tinge of romance and savor of daring that make them more interesting than those of most of the generals of that war.

His achievements were as important as those of some who attained higher rank and greater renown.

Because the troops that he commanded were rarely numerous enough to be called an army, historians have not given his name the prominence that it deserves on the scroll of fame.

He labored and fought under the most trying conditions and discouraging difficulties, and accomplished results that in proportion to the forces and means at his command are unsurpassed.

It is good to draw inspiration from his noble character and splendid career.

FRANCIS Marion was born at Winyah, near Georgetown, South Carolina, in 1732, the year of Washington's birth. His grandfather was one of the French Protestants who, like the Pilgrims, fled to America to escape persecution for their religion. His father was a farmer, and Francis followed the same calling. Soon after coming of age he established himself on a plantation of his own in Bell Isle, near Eutaw Springs, S. C., and made it his home through life.

As a young man he served, like Washington, in the French and Indian wars in which he gained distinction for bravery and acquired the military experience which fitted him to cope successfully with the most skillful British officers in the Revolutionary War.

One of his earliest exploits, in which he displayed the conspicuous skill and gallantry that marked his career as a citizen soldier, was leading a small party of picked men in a forlorn-hope charge against a large body of hostile Indians. He was a young lieutenant when selected for this service so extremely perilous that there was little expectation that he and his companions could come through alive. Keeping under cover he stealthily crept near to the savages unobserved, then he and his men rushed on them with such suddenness and fury that their enemies were thrown into confusion. This gave the rest of our army the desired opportunity for a successful attack which resulted in the defeat of the Indians.

As a member of the South Carolina legislature, after the battle of Lexington in 1775, he cast his vote in favor of the resolution for that colony to join the New England colonies in the war for liberty which they had started against the oppression of the mother country.

He helped recruit, and was commissioned captain in one of the first three regiments raised by South Carolina for the Revolutionary War.

His company composed a part of the gallant little garrison that successfully defended Fort Moultrie against the first attack of the British fleet and saved Charleston from capture at that time. And as the defeated ships were retiring after a fierce battle of eleven hours, with his own hands he fired a parting shot from a cannon so well aimed that it raked the British commander's ship killing two officers in the cabin and three sailors forward.

For some time after this battle he continued in command of Fort Moultrie, but saw no more of the enemy while he remained there.

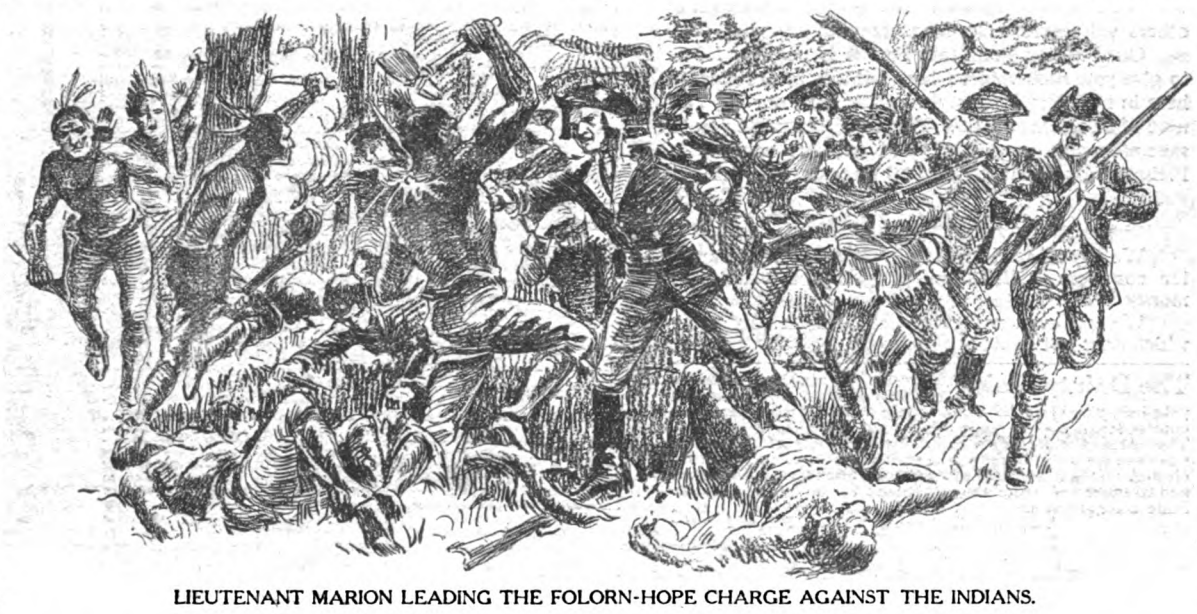
His next service was under General Lincoln in the siege of Savannah which ended in the desperate, though unsuccessful attack of the American and French forces against the British army that held the city. In the fore front of the assaulting column Captain Marion bravely led his men and charged through a storm of shot and shell to the very mouths of the enemy's cannon, where, after a terrible sacrifice of life in the attempt, it was found that the fortifications were too strong to be taken by assault.

The French then sailed away in their ships, and General Lincoln, deprived of their support, had to abandon the siege. So he led his army to Charleston to defend that city against the second British attack. Marion went with him and but for a strange accident would have fallen into the hands of the enemy when Lincoln, after stubbornly resisting until his ammunition and provisions were exhausted, was compelled to surrender the city with his entire army to a largely superior British force.

His Aversion to Liquor Cost Him a Broken Leg but Saved Him from being Taken Prisoner

The curious incident, which providentially saved him for his country's service, illustrates Marion's abstemious habits and strength of character.

Soon after his arrival at Charleston Marion, with some of his brother officers, was being entertained by a convivial resident of that city who set out a plentiful supply of liquor and then locked the doors, refusing to permit any of his guests to leave the house until they had partaken liberally of his exhilarating refreshments. From principle Marion was a total abstainer from intoxicants and, to escape the unpleasant predicament of this occasion without offending his host, dropped quietly from a second story window, but in so doing broke his leg. This ended his usefulness for the time being, and so he was sent to a place of safety in the country before the British forces had completely surrounded the city. Thus he was in retirement, still suffering from the effect of this accident, when the surrender of Lincoln's army left Georgia and the Carolinas at the mercy of the British until the arrival of General Gates's army from Virginia. Meanwhile British detachments raided the southern country in every direction, and Marion barely escaped capture by taking refuge in a swamp until he recovered.



When able to get about again, he raised a volunteer troop of twenty horsemen, each man providing his own horse, arms and equipment, which latter was indeed pitifully scanty. With this squadron he set out to join General Gates's army which was on the march coming from Virginia. Marion and his men, with their rough clothes and irregular equipment, were ridiculed by the army and scoffed at by the vain and conceited Gates. Yet if the latter had kept Captain Marion with him as a guide and adviser he would have been spared the crushing defeat that soon befell him and nearly wiped out his army in the battle of Camden. But General Gates was so puffed up by his capture of Burgoyne's army in the north, the credit for which was due his subordinates, that he would not take counsel of his officers in this campaign and blundered into the trap the British had set for him. Marion, had he been there, undoubtedly would have given his life in battle, as did the brave DeKalb, fighting desperately to save the panic-stricken remnant of Gates's routed army from annihilation.

"LIBERTY OR DEATH" His Motto

Gates was a major-general commanding a Continental army by commission from Congress, while Marion served as captain of militia under a commission from his native State.

Marion's absence from this fatal field is due to the fact that shortly before the battle he had been promoted by the governor of South Carolina to the rank of brigadier-general of militia and given command of the volunteer cavalry which was being enlisted at Williamsburg. His personal popularity and military record were such that he easily enlisted the men to serve under his leadership although the State was unable to provide funds to arm and equip them. They wore no uniform but were clad in homespun shirts, buckskin breeches and leather caps, and each man brought from home his trusty hunting rifle, knife and powder horn, and many of them provided their own horses. They had no sabers except such as some of them made out of sawmill saws. They were destitute of blankets, tents and baggage but rode the faster on that account. They knew little of military drill or maneuvers but were expert woodsmen and sharpshooters, which were the best qualifications for the desultory kind of warfare required of them in that wild, rough region. Their medicine chest was scantily supplied and rarely was a surgeon with them; consequently in many cases their wounded died for lack of surgical treatment. They were hard riders, dashing and bold fighters. They volunteered for the defense of their State, their families and their homes which were threatened by merciless foreign invaders and by treacherous and more cruel Tory neighbors. By their valiant deeds they exemplified the famous motto "LIBERTY OR DEATH" which their commander wore inscribed on a silver crescent on the front of his leather hat. General Marion was clothed as coarsely as his men and wore little if any visible insignia of his rank.

To this band of heroes fell the responsibility and hopeless task of holding back the victorious British armies and suppressing the uprising of the Tories that threatened to conquer the Carolinas after the surrender of Gereral Lincoln, at Charleston, and the practical destruction of General Gates's army at Camden.

LIEUTENANT MARION LEADING THE FOLORN-HOPE CHARGE AGAINST THE INDIANS.

Our armies in the northern and middle States having all they could do to hold the enemy in check in those sections, the South was left practically defenseless, at this time, with all our southern coast cities in undisputed possession of British armies and no adequate American force at hand to oppose their march into the interior where the Tories were plotting and preparing to rise and join our foreign foes.

A Word about the Hated Tories

Not all the inhabitants of the united American colonies were loyal to the cause of liberty. More or less of the people in every section of our country sided with the British in the war for independence, and these were called Tories or royalists because they favored the King. The Tories were troublesome everywhere, but in the South they were so numerous and active as to be dangerous. In the North vigorous measures had suppressed their activities or, as in New England, had driven them to take refuge in Canada. The Tories assisted the British by every possible means, some enlisting in the King's armies; but these were less dangerous than those that remained at home to act as spies or where sufficiently numerous, as in the South, organized themselves into bands to ravage the country with fire and sword, pillaging and even murdering their patriotic neighbors. The Tories were more intensely hated than the British, and not without reason, for they were more cruel and wantonly destructive when opportunity offered.

Thus threatened by British invaders and by Tory traitors in their midst the southern patriots were near to despair, and for a while Marion and his men were all they had to depend on.

CAPTAIN MARION ESCAPES FROM BOOZY FRIENDS.

His Bold and Skillful Strategy in Withstanding Superior Forces

In numbers, arms and equipment they were so fearfully overmatched by the veteran British armies fully provided with artillery and all the best war material of the day, that it would have been disastrous for them to encounter the full strength of their enemies on the open field of battle.

Knowing this full well, General Marion resorted to strategem to take the enemy at a disadvantage by sudden and unexpected raids, night attacks and skillfully laid ambuseades. His spies kept him informed of every movement of the British troops and every attempt of the Tories. When least expected, from ambush he would strike the British on the march, inflicting heavy loss and dashing away with prisoners before they could rally for resistance, or would charge into their camps at night like a whirlwind of destruction and do his deadly work before they could recover from their surprise, and if they dispatched a detachment from the main force to ravage the country or organize the Tories he was sure to waylay it and capture or drive it back in confusion. Thus he impeded the activities of the British and so awed the Tories that they dared not attempt much organized or open hostility when he was within striking distance.

The narration of his many gallant and almost incredible exploits would make this sketch too long so we must be content with the description of a few which will give our readers an idea of his untiring energy, hardihood, resourcefulness, quickness of action and courage.

"Ball," His Superb Horse Won from a Tory

His first mount was unsatisfactory, but he soon found a horse exactly to his liking and, being owned by a Tory, he appropriated it to his own use as spoil of war. This superb animal, strong, tough, spirited and swift as the wind, was also daring and intelligent. When on night raids the horses of his troopers balked on a river bank and could not be urged into the deep, dark water. "Ball" (the Tory prize) would boldly dash in and swim across with his rider and then all the others would follow his lead.

Marion's first expedition was against a large camp of Tories enlisted in the British service at Butler's Neck; and on this occasion he gave his men a foretaste of the arduous kind of service he expected of them. Riding all night he came on the enemy in the early morning and charged with such suddenness and fury that the terrified Tories fled.

An incident of this attack illustrates the daring spirit that pervaded Marion's men. A trooper named James (later Major James), who rode a swift horse, made a dash at Major Gainey, the Tory commander, and chased him at such speed that he soon left his companions far behind and out of sight. He was gaining on the Major and at the end of half a mile had nearly overtaken him. Leaning forward with sword outstretched and eyes intently fixed on the object of his pursuit, he did not notice the company of Tories, that had rallied to the rescue of their commander in the road before him, until he was so close upon them that it was too late to turn back. Death or capture at their hands would have been his fate had he not succeeded in working a bold bluff which he had the presence of mind to attempt. Without slackening his impetuous outset, he brandished his sword in air and, casting a backward glance as though he was charging at the head of a whole troop, shouted: "Come on boys; here they are!" The Tories were deceived by the ruse and fled precipitately to escape the dreaded sabers of his imaginary followers.

In Marion's brigade were five James brothers, all gallant and sturdy patriots, and we wonder if some of our readers may have the honor of tracing their ancestry to one or other of them.

After resting his men and horses, Marion pushed on in search of another large body of Tories, but when he found them they were in too strong a position to be attacked successfully. So he concealed his troop in ambush until the unsuspecting enemy came out and marched by his hiding place when he attacked so unexpectedly that they became panic stricken and scattered in every direction. He delivered this blow without losing a man.

Desperate Situation after the Defeat of General Gates

Soon after this he heard of the calamitous defeat of Gates at Camden, and learned from his scouts that a British detachment bringing American prisoners from the battle-field was coming down the Santee River. By a hurried night march he reached a narrow defile through which they would pass and there, at daybreak, attacked in front and rear so hotly that the guard fled after firing but one volley. By this bold stroke he captured twenty-four British soldiers and liberated a hundred and fifty Americans.

Marion and his rough riders were the only force then remaining in that section of the South to resist the overwhelming power of the British; yet were they not dismayed but rather spurred to more strenuous exertions by the dangers and difficulties that beset them. Avoiding battle with the main army of the enemy which would have put a disastrous finish to his career, he so harassed the British and impeded their operations by attacking their outposts, ambushing their detachments on the march, cutting off their supplies, breaking up their recruiting and foraging parties and dispersing the Tories, that Lord Cornwallis, enraged at such interference with the execution of his designs, ordered General Tarleton with his famous cavalry legion to pursue Marion and get him at all hazards. This compelled Marion, whose command had now dwindled to a hundred and fifty, to retreat into North Carolina. Tarleton followed with a largely superior force, burning the houses and devastating the country along his line of march. These cruelties, however, resulted in bringing out the country militia for the defense of their homes. At this Marion returned, and gathering recruits on the way resumed his night attacks on the Tory camps, in one instance defeating a force double the strength of his own, and in another riding into a camp at midnight and taking the party prisoners before the bewildered sleepers could rise. He played hide and seek with Tarleton, at times being hard pressed and having some narrow escapes, but always leading his pursuer a merry chase through swamps and thickets until the latter gave up in disgust and called off his men, saying, "Come boys, let us go back; the devil couldn't catch this damned swamp fox."

TROOPER JAMES, SINGLE-HANDED, CHARGES A BUNCH OF TORIES.

Marion's Camp at Snow's Island

At this time he established a permanent camp on Snow's Island in the Pedee River and fortified it as best he could. He destroyed all the boats on the river except those gathered at his island. His pickets guarded the approaches through the forest while his scouts and spies scoured the country and reported every move of the enemy. From this wilderness retreat he would dash forth on his raids like a lion from the jungle. Potatoes and hominy were the chief of his diet and water with vinegar his favorite drink. Sunset was his usual hour of setting out on a march and he sometimes led his men sixty miles before morning. Most always short of ammunition, he was fortunate if he had buckshot, and sometimes had nothing larger than swan-shot, and not enough even of that. Frequently he went into battle with only three rounds of ammunition to each man. His men always gathered what muskets and cartridges they could from their dead and wounded enemies on the field of battle.

At Snow's Island considerable reinforcements arriving raised the strength of his force to the proportions of a real brigade and enabled him to engage in larger operations.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS HANGING TORY TRAITORS CAPTURED AT THE BATTLE OF KING'S MOUNTAIN.

His Nephew Murdered by the Tories

But about that time an event occurred that wrung his heart with grief. His nephew, Gabriel Marion, a promising young officer of his command, whom he loved dearly, was taken prisoner by the Tories and murdered in cold blood by them. Marion's men swore vengeance on the man who committed the dastardly crime, and afterwards, when he fell into their hands, squared the account by killing him before Marion could interfere.

Hanging Tory Prisoners of War

Another of the many painful episodes that illustrate the bitter feeling that existed between our soldiers and the Tories is Ferguson's raid in South Carolina ending in the battle of King's Mountain. Cornwallis had sent Colonel Ferguson with a mixed force of British and Tories on a raid nearly to the northern boundary of the State to organize and arm the Tory inhabitants and intimidate and punish the patriots. He burned the buildings and ravaged the country while his followers committed all manner of outrages against the defenceless inhabitants, the most of which were attributed to the Tories under his command. The mountaineers were furious and volunteered to wreak vengeance on the perpetrators of these atrocities. They organized under officers chosen by themselves and, mounted on their own horses, swiftly pursued Ferguson, overtaking and attacking him at King's Mountain where he put up a desperate defense, knowing that he would pay the forfeit with his life if captured. After Ferguson and many of his men had been killed in battle the rest surrendered. The mountaineers spared the British prisoners, but hung many of the Tories and left their bodies dangling from the trees as a warning of the punishment to be expected by those who committed robbery, arson, rape or murder in the name of war. This act of reprisal terrified the Tories and exercised a restraining influence over those inclined to acts of barbarism. The loss of Ferguson's entire force of eleven hundred men, killed, wounded or taken prisoners, was a damaging blow to the British. Events now began to shape themselves more favorably to the patriot cause in the South, much to Marion's relief. Two dashing and skillful young cavalry commanders, Colonel William A. Washington and Colonel Henry Lee, known as "Light-Horse Harry" (father of General Robert E. Lee of the Civil War) joined forces with Marion, which raised the strength of his little army sufficiently to enable him to begin an aggressive campaign. Soon after this Congress sent General Greene, the ablest of Washington's Generals, to take command in the South, and he led a Continental army into the Carolinas. Unlike General Gates, he appreciated Marion's services and immediately wrote him an encouraging letter.

Colonel Washington's Successful Bluff

An amusing incident of this campaign shows Colonel Washington to have been as resourceful as he was brave, resorting to fine strategem when victory could not be won by valorous attack. He set out with his cavalry to capture a British outpost commanded by Colonel Rugely, but on reconnoitering the position found it too strongly fortified to be attacked successfully without artillery. So he set his men to hew a pine log into the shape of a cannon and, mounting it on cart-wheels, had it dragged into position and aimed at the fort. Then he sent a demand for immediate surrender. The British commander was completely fooled by the trick and, judging it useless to defend against such a formidable appearing gun, yielded without firing a shot. Imagine his chagrin on discovering, after he and his men had laid down their arms and marched out as prisoners of war, that he was the victim of a huge joke. This brilliant exploit added to Colonel Washington's renown but prevented poor Rugely's promotion to the rank of brigadier-general which he was expecting.

A Patriotic Woman's Sacrifice for Liberty

The patriotic women of South Carolina were quite as willing as the men to make sacrifices for the cause of liberty, as instanced in the siege of Fort Mott. General Greene had sent Marion with his cavalry and one six pounder field piece to capture this fort which the British had constructed by surrounding the large and elegant mansion of Mrs. Mott with a ditch and an earth parapet. As these defenses were too strong to be taken by storm, Marion began regular siege operations against them. It was an important post and a large British force under Rawdon was hurrying to its relief while General Greene was marching as rapidly as possible to reinforce Marion, and sent him orders to capture it, if possible, before Rawdon arrived. While the fort was still holding out and General Greene was yet at a distance Rawdon's camp-fires were seen on the other side of the river. At the juncture Marion appealed to Mrs. Mott, who was stopping at a neighboring farmhouse after the British had taken possession of her home, for permission to burn her mansion as a means of forcing the enemy to surrender at once. This brave lady cheerfully consented and handed Marion an Indian bow and arrows to assist in executing the project. These arrows were wound about with inflammable material and shot blazing to the roof of the house within the fort; there they stuck and set the dry shingles afire. The British soldiers climbed to the roof and tried to extinguish the flames, but Marion drove them down by well-aimed shots from his one cannon, and the house burning furiously made the fort so hot that the garrison were driven out and compelled to surrender. That night General Greene arrived in camp and congratulated Marion on his success.

Later on Marion was with General Greene's army at the bloody battle of Eutaw and gallantly led his South Carolina militia into action.

We have mentioned only a few of General Marion's many daring and successful exploits which give him a high place among the heroes of the War for Independence.

Marion's Personality and Character

This sketch would not be complete without a brief description of Marion's personality which in some respects was remarkable. His personal appearance was not prepossessing. He was a very small man, not only short but extremely thin. His complexion was swarthy, his countenance solemn and determined with a poetic expression in his dark eyes that marked him as an idealist. Plain in dress and manners, reserved, silent and thoughtful, chary of conversation, he spoke his thoughts, when necessary, in few and simple words. While these peculiarities made an unfavorable impression on strangers, they added to the influence he held over his followers who knew his strength of character and force of mind, the uprightness of his motives. They admired his courage and resourcefulness, relied undoubtingly on his judgment, and stood by him unflinchingly in every emergency. He had no vices; apparently devoid of passion, his self-control was perfect and he was cool and collected on all occasions. He fought for principle with no feeling of hatred or revenge in victory or defeat. He was just to all and magnanimous to his conquered enemies. His conduct was always governed by a high sense of duty. Devoid of avarice he fought without pay, nor did he seek glory, and he had no ambition for power. The one thing he valued was honor. No general of the Revolution served more nobly than Marion, or accomplished greater results in proportion to the small forces and scanty means at his command.

GENERAL MARION IN ROUGH-AND-READY FIGHTING TRIM.

Marion's men were good, true and brave, for when he called for recruits it was the men of his own stamp that responded from farm and mountain-side to fill his ranks.

With an affectionate farewell he disbanded his faithful followers when peace with liberty had been won, and returned to his plantation to take up the work of repairing the desolation which the ravages of war had wrought.

The seven years of war had left him poor, and now, at the age of fifty, he bravely faced the problem of beginning again with nothing but his land.

But soon our sturdy hero who thus far had escaped unscathed was to yield to the blind little conqueror who shoots true to the heart and numbers in his train more captives than all the lords of war. A lady fair and wealthy, too, fell in love with him, though through modesty on her part he was a long time discovering it. But when he did, he proposed as gallantly as ever knight of old. They were married, and very happily they lived together on his plantation. The difference in their ages was not great, their tastes were similar and their companionship at all times most congenial. In the hot summer months he went camping in the mountains and she always accompanied him.

He died at the age of sixty-three, beloved and mourned by all. His honored memory is a glory to his State.

Paul Revere's night ride to call out the minutemen of Concord and Lexington to strike the first blow for American Liberty has been immortalized by Longfellow in those ringing verses that are familiar to every school child, and Bryant has sounded a no less worthy note of praise of the devoted services of the hero of many night rides in his

Song of Marion's Men

By William Cullen Bryant

Our band is few, but true and tried,
  Our leader frank and bold;
The British soldier trembles
  When Marion's name is told.
Our fortress is the good greenwood,
  Our tent the cypress-tree;
We know the forest round us,
  As seamen know the sea.
We know its walls of thorny vines,
  Its glades of reedy grass,
Its safe and silent islands
  Within the dark morass.

Wo to the English soldiery,
  That little dread us near!
On them shall light at midnight
  A strange and sudden fear:
When, waking to their tents on fire,
  They grasp their arms in vain,
And they who stand to face us
  Are beat to earth again.
And they who fly in terror deem
  A mighty host behind,
And hear the tramp of thousands
  Upon the hollow wind.

Then sweet the hour that brings release
  From danger and from toil;
We talk the battle over,
  And share the battle's spoil.
The woodland rings with laugh and shout,
  As if a hunt were up,
And woodland flowers are gathered
  To crown the soldier's cup.
With merry songs we mock the wind
  That in the pine-top grieves,
And slumber long and sweetly
  On beds of oaken leaves.

Well knows the fair and friendly moon
  The band that Marion leads—
The glitter of their rifles,
  The scampering of their steeds.
'Tis life to guide the fiery barb
  Across the moonlit plain:
'Tis life to feel the night-wind
  That lifts his tossing mane.
A moment in the British camp—
  A moment—and away
Back to the pathless forest,
  Before the peep of day.

Grave men there are by broad Santee,
  Grave men with hoary hairs;
Their hearts are all with Marion,
  For Marion are their prayers.
And lovely ladies greet our band
  With kindliest welcoming,
With smiles like those of summer,
  And tears like those of spring.
For them we wear these trusty arms,
  And lay them down no more
Till we have driven the Briton,
  Forever, from our shore.

ONE MAN AND THIS MACHINE WILL EARN $50 TO $100 DAILY PROFIT

Not a dream—not a myth—but a reality. If you are honest—earnest, and anxious to go in business for yourself, I will help you. I have helped lots of men to make from $500.00 to $1500.00 per month. It's an honorable business—can be started most anywhere, in any town of over 500 population.

A GOOD BUSINESS PROPOSITION

You want a business of your own. Go into the Popcorn Crispette business and make $2000.00 to $7000.00 a year. All you need is a machine, a few dollars and a good location. You can learn to make Crispettes in a day. They sell everywhere for a nickel a package. You make almost four cents profit.

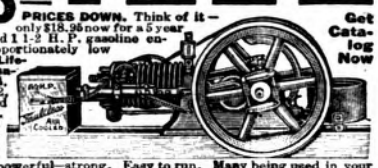
SEND FOR FREE BOOK

It tells the whole story—how and where to start, how to succeed, gives experiences of others, etc. It's worth reading, even if you don't start. If you're looking for a good thing, and easy money, write today for FREE BOOK.

Eakin, made $1500.00 in one month with a Long Crispette Machine, in a store window. You can do equally as well, or even better.

W. Z. LONG CO.
1020 High St.
Springfield, Ohio.

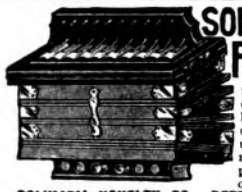
W. Z. LONG CO.
1020 High St. Springfield, O



Without any obligation at all, please send me free, your book, "Dollars and Sense in the Crispette Business."

Name.....

Address.....



$18.95 60 DAYS FREE TRIAL

PRICES DOWN. Think of it—only $18.95 now for a 5 year guaranteed 1 1-2 H. P. gasoline engine. Proportionately low prices on Lifetime Guaranteed 1 3-4, 2 1-4, 4 1-2, 6, 8, 12 and up to 50 H. P. Engines. No better engines at any price—simple—powerful—strong. Easy to run. Many being used in your neighborhood. Don't buy until you write for our great special Free Gasoline Engine Catalog and read full details about our engines, their construction and performance; see our wonderful 60 Day Free Trial Without Money in advance offer, our great life time guarantee, the big fine colored pictures of all our engines and our low best them all 1915 prices. Write us at once—today.

Get Catalog Now

JOHN M. SMYTH MOSE CO., 150-151 W. Madison St., Chicago

SOLO ACCORDION FREE

Sweet-toned deep-voiced Accordion. Gives beautiful music for home parties, concerts, dances. Large frame, 10 keys, full set reeds, 2 stops, double bellows, ebonized case, nickel plated valves and trimmings. FREE for selling only 26 pieces of our Jewelry at 10 cents each. Write for them.

COLUMBIA NOVELTY CO., DEPT. 624, EAST BOSTON, MASS.

FREE

POWERFUL ACCURATE AIR RIFLE

Steel barrel, walnut stock, peep sight.
FREE for selling 12 exquisite Mexican Drawnwork Handkerchiefs at 10c. each. No money required.

R. W. ELDRIDGE, 29 ELDRIDGE BLDG. ORLEANS, VT.

WANTED AN IDEA! Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect Your ideas, they may bring you wealth. Write for "Needed Inventions" and lists of "Patent Buyers."

RANDOLPH & CO., Patent Attorneys, Dept. 112, WASHINGTON, D. C.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

instantly removed forever with "Ejecthair." No pain; no harm; cannot fail. Sent in plain wrapper for 15 cents stamps or coin. Send now to Dept 24.

Manageress, 143 S. Wabash, St. Paul, Minn.

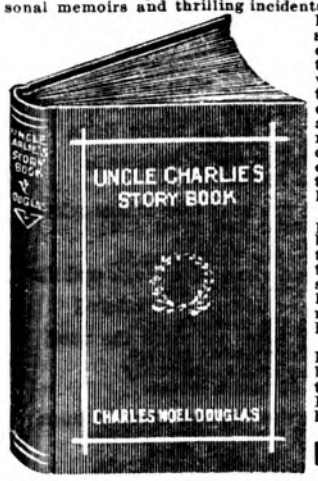
EASTER CARDS FREE

Send name and address with 4c stamps for mailing expense and receive 12 lovely colored embossed Easter Cards free.

H. STONE, 610 South Dearborn St., Dept. 226, Chicago.

BE A DETECTIVE

Earn from $150.00 to $300.00 per month; travel over the world. Write C. T. LUDWIG, 121 Westover Building, Kansas City, Mo.



NEW EDITION

Uncle Charlie's Story Book

51st Birthday Souvenir

A Beautiful New Edition of Uncle Charlie's Story Book is now offered as a souvenir of his fifty-first birthday which occurred September 25th. This splendid book of 157 pages printed in good, clear type on fine paper, was gotten up by Uncle Charlie regardless of trouble and expense as a worthy memorial of his fiftieth birthday a year ago.

Besides six unique stories, a dramatic sketch and personal memoirs and thrilling incidents of his remarkable life, all from his inspired pen, there are chapters by "Billy the Goat" and Maria which throw interesting side lights on his character and let you into the mysteries of his daily life. Illustrated with new pictures of him and Maria and Billy.

The immense popularity of this book has exhausted the previous editions and this handsome new edition has been printed to meet the continued large demand for it.

This edition is limited, so this may be your last chance to obtain a copy. Every home should have one.

FREE Premium Offer

It is bound in two styles, both handsome and either good enough. One in heavy, fancy opal blue paper covers known as "cloth of gold paper," will be sent post-paid as a free premium for a club of two new subscription to COMFORT at 25 cents each, 50 cents in all, or for your own 2-year renewal at 30 cents and one 25-cent subscription, 55 cents in all.

The other, beautifully bound in lilac silk with stiff covers, will be sent post-paid as a free premium for a club of four subscriptions at 25 cents each, one dollar in all, or for your own 2-year renewal at 30 cents and three 25-cent subscriptions, $1.05 in all.

In either offer 2-year renewals at 30 cents each will count the same as 15-month subscriptions at 25 cents each.

This offer holds good while the supply of books holds out.

Probably this is the last edition that will ever be printed.

BE QUICK and secure a copy while they last.

These are the best and most costly premiums that we give for such size clubs.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11.)

Well cousins, I have belonged to the C. L. O. C. nearly a year now and like to read the letters of the cousins from different states. My League number is 38,639. I am five feet, eight inches tall, have dark hair, blue eyes and weigh about one hundred and fifty-five pounds. I am twenty-two years old.

I would like to hear from some of the cousins and will answer all letters I can. Your cousin,

GUY WEATHERLY.

Guy, about that automobile question. Getting into debt is the easiest thing in the world, getting out of debt and being in debt are akin to what Sherman described war as being—hell. I'm mighty glad however to know you farmers are getting automobiles, for if there is anything that will relieve the monotony of country life, annihilate distance and make the farm thirty miles out, practically a suburb of the city, the automobile will do the job. An automobile under certain circumstances ought to get a man out of debt quicker than it gets him into it. Of course it all depends what kind of business you are in. Time and space though are great factors in nearly every business, for time is money and wasted time on a long road is mighty expensive. To be able to cover in two hours, the distance that would take a whole day ought to mean money to any man whose time is worth while. Automobiles too are getting cheaper and cheaper every day. One firm I note advertises a little car brand new for two hundred and ninety-five dollars. That car ought to bring pleasure, health and profit to many a man and some women, though the automobile has been a powerful factor in promoting vice as well as health. The girl who accepts an invitation from a strange man to take a ride in his car is whisked within an hour thirty miles or more away from her home, and the farther a girl gets from home and the protection it affords, the greater her danger. Our city streets are full of prowling fiends in expensive cars, who use their high power dragnets to scoop in the poor little boobs of girls who find the appeal of the beautiful car, male society, a dash into the country, irresistible. But they pay an awful price for the ride. These prowling debauchers should be boiled in oil. Keep away from the automobiles girls, unless you have known the men who drive them all your lives. And unless the chauffeur is a member of your own family, I would not advise you to go more than five inches away from your home with him. If a car ride is good for you it is also good for mother, so take mother along, even if she has to run behind or sit on the tires. People in the country want cars to get into the city, people in the city want cars to get into the country. The country people have all the advantage as regards the automobile as they usually have plenty of space in which to store it and have no garage expenses. What people living in rural communities need even more than pleasure automobiles is the big auto truck that will gather up their produce and rush it to market, if there is any market within a reasonable distance. Such trucks could be owned collectively. The auto truck has brought prosperity to many an isolated region. Everyone eventually will have an automobile. Why not when one firm alone can turn out a thousand a day? Better get to a place before you start than never get there at all, and don't forget that the man who contemplates buying an automobile should first see that his grocery bills are paid, his account at the general store settled and all other debts cleared up. The sight of a man rolling along the highway at fifty miles an hour with a car for which other people have paid, a man who is in debt up to his ears, a road hog who pushes the farmer's buggy into the hedge and carries away a couple of its wheels as souvenirs is a sight to make the gods weep. Better go on foot with your bills paid, than be flying around putting on a lot of lugs and owing everybody.

FLORENCE, NEBR.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I am a young woman just past twenty and have been married four years to a good man, though we have had a hard time almost ever since we were married. A little over a year ago I became ill and we tried ten different doctors, one said one thing ailed me and one another and still I do not think one of them to this day knows what was the matter with me. On the fourth of July they took me to Omaha and placed me in a hospital. My ailment was in my right knee. They kept me there a while and hung an eight pound weight on my foot so as to draw my limb down, as it was drawn up to my body. Then they took me to the operating room and put a plaster cast on my limb from my hip to my ankle. Then they sent me home to my mother at Florence and in a week I was suffering so from the cast that we had to have it taken off. Then they took me to a lady doctor who adjusts the spine. I was there two weeks and she did me no good. Then they took me to the hospital and cut my leg off six inches below the hip joint and the doctors were promising me I would soon go home, when two weeks later they took me back to the operating room and cut off two more inches of bones and the good doctors had not understood their business or just wanted to graft a litle more and afterwards sent us their bill for two hundred and fifty dollars. Then it seems I had to have an artificial limb and that cost one hundred dollars, so you see Uncle Charlie, we have been put to plenty of expense. Our doctors' bills amounting to five hundred dollars in all with our hospital bills.

I know this world isn't right by any means, when people have to be robbed of everything, and we hope some day to see things different, perhaps they will never be so for us but maybe for our little son.

My husband is a good man and doesn't chew, smoke or use liquor.

Wishing you good luck and health. Your friend,

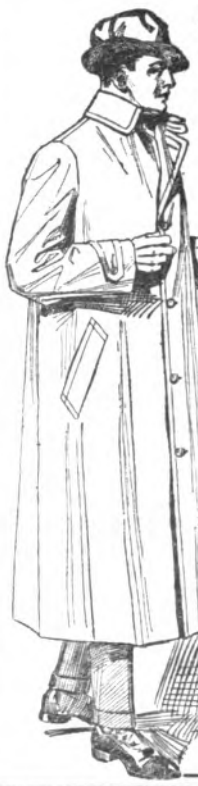
MRS. CHARLES ELIASSEN.

Poor Mrs. Eliassen, you certainly have had a hard time of it, and it is no joke to have to go through life, hard as life is today, with the loss of a limb. You are however a little hard on the surgeons who attended you. Two hundred and fifty dollars does seem a lot of money to pay for an operation, but there is another side to that matter. That operation saved your life, and if there were no good surgeons you would have had to die. Of course there are surgeons and surgeons, just as there are singers and singers. Some surgeons are inexperienced butchers and ought to be locked up for life where they can do no harm. There is positively no man on earth who is quite so dangerous as the man who attempts to perform a major operation (that means an important and risky operation) without the necessary skill, ability and experience, and this experience can only be acquired in our best medical schools and big hospitals. In the country a doctor has to do many things on account of the isolation of himself and patient, that he would not do if he were in the city. The country doctor has to be an all-round man, and it's hard to get men who are equally expert at surgery and medicine. The only men who are really competent to perform serious operations are those expert surgeons who are constantly operating from one year's end to the other in our big city hospitals. Constant practise gives skill and confidence. The skillful surgeon is to my mind almost, if not quite, the most important social asset we have. You didn't realize when the doctor was operating on you that he might have been up the best part of the previous night, operating without charge on two very urgent appendicitis cases, for every minute counts in appendicitis. The surgeon is at times intensely fatigued and one slip of his knife may mean a tiny wound on his finger with blood poison and death to follow; yet he must go on with his work for delay may mean the loss of a life. There were five operating surgeons in the big hospital in which I spent eighteen months, and two of them, men of great reputation, died from blood poisoning contracted while operating. Crippled and poor as you are, if you could live the life of one of these men for one day only, you would be glad to lay his cross down and take up your own. Two hundred and fifty dollars does seem a lot of money and is a lot of money, but there were four years when the doctor was working and studying, the four best years of his life, when he got nothing. Then again to every operation for which a doctor receives two hundred and fifty dollars, he usualy performs four or five for which he gets nothing, and at all times he is risking his life and always has to be at the public's beck and call. Surgeons are seldom rich men. The great specialists make comfortable fortunes, but their incomes are trifling compared to those of great lawyers and men who run our profit making business machines. The surgeon has to work for himself. The man who does his own work seldom makes much money. It is the man who sits back, does nothing and makes others work, who is the wealthy man, the Rockefeller, the Carnegie. Now as regards that second operation. That was hard on you, but it was done for your good. A surgeon always wants to save as much of the human body as he can, and to disfigure it as little as possible. If he could have saved that extra two inches of limb, it would have meant a great deal to you in the way of comfort and therefore health. After the operation they doubtless found that the limb would not heal properly, and there was still an infected portion that needed removing and so that there might be no diseased flesh or bone necrosis left to do its work of destruction, they operated again so as to be doubly sure that all was right. If you had lived in New York you could have been operated on in a number of big hospitals absolutely free of charge, and you would have been given just the same attention in the operating-room at least, as though you were a millionairess. Out of that two hundred and fifty dollars, the physician who gave the anesthetic would probably receive twenty-five dollars, so you were not so badly treated after all. Of course you were very foolish to allow anyone to manipulate your spine with the idea that it would heal a diseased knee. They might as well have manipulated your shoe. They however, did succeed in successfully manipulating your pocketbook, for they can all be trusted to do that. There are more charlatans and humbugs, fakirs and rascals in the medical or so-called medical business than in any other line of effort on earth. Of all professions in the world there is not one that is so necessary to remove from the sphere of tainted commercialism as that of medicine, surgery and all other healing arts. To commercialize the work of conserving health, preserving life and preventing suffering is a sin. The government will tell you how to cure a hog if it is sick, and send an expert to see you do the job properly, but if your baby is dying from pneumonia, Uncle Sam has nothing to suggest, no relief to offer you. This is not exactly your Uncle's fault. There are two warring medical factions in this country, as there are in all countries. One medical cult does not want the government to officially recognize the other cult. They would rather see everyone in the boneyard than admit alopathy was better than homeopathy or vice-versa. Outside these two great bodies are thousands who want to die or get well after their own fashion, either by manipulation, electricity, hypnotism, prayer, incantation or any other bug, that the individual bug happens to be obsessed by. I speak with some authority on this topic for in order to promote business, please sympathetic friends and complete the ruin of a depleted pocketbook, I've tried everything in the healing-line that science can invent, craft devise and greed suggest. We should all contribute something to a national health fund so that in time of sickness, as is done in Germany and England, we could have medical treatment free of charge and a weekly allowance in case of sickness, an allowance that is continued all one's life if one is chronically ill. In Great Britain if you are in the employing class and have a hired girl, every week she pays a few cents, the employer pays a few cents and the government pays a few cents. These payments entitle the employe to free medical attention. Drugs too are supplied free. At the birth of a child the mother receives quite a neat little sum as well as free medical attention. To have the masses of the people under skilled medical care means a vast improvement in the health and well being of the people as a whole. Prevention is better than cure. Soon we shall be sensible enough to allow only healthy people to get into the world and it is along the lines of preventive medicine and eugenics that the salvation of the race depends.

NORWAY, ———

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I am a little girl nine years old. I live in Norway. I go to school. I like to read the column in the COMFORT very much. My sister and I had a bossie last summer. We named her Betty. She had a white face. We called her very pretty. First we broke her to the halter. Then we broke her to a harness. Then we broke her to one of papa's wagons. We drove her all over the fields and most everywhere. My sister and cousin was out riding in the field and they came to a clover patch and a bee stung Betty and she gave them a merry ride for a rod or two. We had two lambs last summer. One was my sister's, and the other was mine. We had lots of fun with them until one of them got ugly and we had to sell them. I like to slide very much and skate. I think that you made up a good rim about Texas. I would like to have you make a rim about Norway.



THELMA ROBBINS.

What a pity Thelma, you didn't tell us the name of the state you live in. There is a Norway in Europe, and nine Norways in the United States, so I'm afraid you'll be denied the pleasure of receiving any letters from the numerous admirers who will want to write to you. I could not deciper the postmark of your state, it was illegible as most postmarks are, so I cannot locate you. I have printed your letter just as it was written, and it is a very dandy letter for a little girl like you. You say you named your cow "Betty" and called her "Very Pretty." What was the good of naming her Betty if you were going to call her Very Pretty? I'm simply astonished at the way you treated poor Betty. I've heard of people breaking up housekeeping, but I never heard of anyone breaking up a cow, the way you broke up poor Betty. You have her go broke three times, and after you get her shattered all to pieces you make an automobile of her and chase her in all directions, and to add to the poor thing's misery, you let a bee sting her. It seems to me that Betty deserves a pension for all she has gone through. She must look like a pocket edition of Belgium, and that's going some. You say that Betty gave sister and cousin a merry ride for a rod or two. I wonder how much of a ride she'd have given them for an umbrella or two or for a dollar or two. I've a good deal of sympathy for anything that goes broke, even if it is only a cow. I've been broke so many times myself and I know how it feels. Even our china tea pot has gone broke. I'm glad you enjoyed my rhyme about Texas. So you want me to make a "rim" about Norway. Well, the sea has put a pretty good rim around Norway, I don't think I could improve on it. The Goat says that you want me to make a rhyme about Norway similar to the one I made about Texas. I suppose Thelma you think you have set me a very hard task, but you haven't got me this time. You will have to try again if you want to trip me up on the rhyming business so here goes:

There was a young man of Norway,
His health was in such a poor way,
That he got so thin he looked like a pin
As he used to slink through the doorway.

There dearie, I think that will hold you for a while.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 32.)

Sent for Only $1.00

Men's Tan Mercerized Silk Raincoat

Never sold before for less than $5.00. Order right from this ad and avoid disappointment. Your money back if not perfectly satisfied.

On Credit

Open a credit account with us. Get anything you wish to wear for only a small payment down—then just a little each month. We prepay all express or postage.

Delivered Free

Don't fail to get one of these handsome raincoats. Made from double texture, thoroughly proofed mercerized silk fabric in the popular olive tan shade. Neat plaid pattern on inner side. Every seam is fully cemented and strapped, making coat absolutely shower proof. Has military collar with tab and vertical cut through pockets. Adjustable tab at wrist. Cut 50 inches long with center vent. Sizes 34 to 48. State size desired. Order by No. A6. Terms only $1.00 cash then 85c a month. Price $5.90

Send for bulletin containing men's free cloth samples of made-to-measure suits.

Elmer Richards Co. Dept. 1592 35th St. Chicago

Let Us Show You How to Get Your Next Suit FREE

Made to Your Measure

Do you want this swell suit? Want it for nothing? Without a penny's cost? $30 to $40 would not buy a better one. Simply wear it, tell your friends where you got it, and taking their orders. It is dead easy. You never saw a nobbier suit or a more stunning pattern, cut in strictly Tango style (3 months ahead of the times). Your choice of 60 patterns and a dozen styles to choose from.

Make $10 to $15 a Day

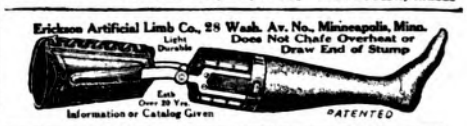
Drop us a postal card for heavy pattern book, inside information about styles, self-measuring blanks, etc., etc. Don't wait. Everything free.

Suit Delivered FREE

Get ahead of the other fellows—write this very minute. A postal will do it.

Hand Tailored Classy Linings — Millionaire Trimmings—Swell Cut—Guaranted Fit

American Woolen Mills Co. Dept. 207 CHICAGO



FREE WATCH & RING

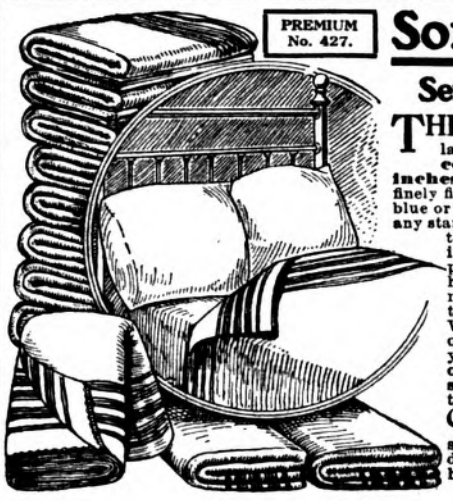
This handsome stem wind & stem set Watch, fully Guaranteed, also Ring & Chain for selling only 20 Jewelry articles at 10c each. Write for them.

EAGLE WATCH CO., Dept. 157 East Boston, Mass.

Erickson Artificial Limb Co., 28 Wash. Av. No., Minneapolis, Minn. Does Not Chafe Overheat or Draw End of Stump

Light Durable Last Over 20 Yrs.

Information or Catalog Given PATENTED



FREE SOLO GUITAR and INSTRUCTION BOOK

Full solo instrument, 2 feet and 10 inches long, 10½ inches wide, American manufacture, well and carefully made, cherry finish, richly ornamented. All strung with 6 strings, has clear, rich tone, easy to hold, durable and satisfactory as $10.00 Guitar. With it we give FREE a SELF INSTRUCTION BOOK. Write for 24 packages BLUINE to sell at 10 cents each. When sold return the $2.40 and we will send Guitar and Instruction Book.

BLUINE MFG. CO., 346 MILL ST., CONCORD JUNCT., MASS.

PREMIUM No. 427.

Soft Warm Bed Blankets

Sent Prepaid For A Club Of Six

THIS IS an offer which no good housewife can afford to overlook. It is your opportunity to secure as many large comfortable bed blankets as you may need without a cent of expense. These fine double blankets are 72 inches long and 55 inches wide, extremely well made and finely finished. They are pure white in color and come with either blue or pink borders. Please notice that they are large enough for any standard size bed being of sufficient length to come up well on the pillow and wide enough so that they may be snugly tucked in at the sides. This is in reality one of the best bargains in a premium we have ever offered on account of the fact that we have bought a large quantity of these blankets direct from the mill at a special low price and therefore are enabled to offer them to our readers for a very small club of subscriptions. When you think of this big warm blanket on your bed or lying on a closet shelf ready for use when wanted, we believe that you will want to start a club at once for the sake of securing one or more of them free of all cost to you. We will gladly send you one or more of these splendid blankets upon the terms of the following

Club Offer. For a club of only six 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or three 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you one of these large, double bed blankets free by Parcel Post prepaid. You may have your choice of either blue or pink border.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Little Stories about George Washington

Washington Addressing His First Congress

AS President Wilson has, after these many years, and for the first time since the days of our Great Washington, gone back to the practise inaugurated by him, of reading his messages to Congress personally, it will be of interest to note the account given in an old record of the manner and dress of the first President addressing his Congress.

A spectator has left the following description of the scene and of how it impressed him.

"I stood before the door of the Hall of Congress in Philadelphia, when the carriage of the President drew up. It was a white coach, or, rather of a light cream color, painted on the panels with beautiful groups representing the four seasons. As Washington alighted, and ascending the steps, paused on the platform, he was preceded by two gentlemen bearing large white wands, who kept back the eager crowd that pressed on every side. At that moment I stood so near I might have touched his clothes; but I should as soon have thought of touching an electric battery. I was penetrated with the deepest awe.

"It pervaded, I believe, every human being that approached Washington; and I have been told that even in his social hours, this feeling in those who shared them never suffered intermission. I saw him a hundred times afterward, but never with any other than the same feeling. The Almighty, who raised up for our hour of need a man so peculiarly prepared for its whole dread responsibility, seems to have put a stamp of sacredness upon His instrument. The first sight of the man struck the eye with involuntary homage, and prepared everything to obey.

"At the time I speak of, he stood in profound silence and had the statue-like air which mental greatness can bestow. As he turned to enter the building, and was ascending the staircase to the Congressional hall, I glided along unseen, almost under cover of the skirts of his dress, and entered into the lobby of the House, which was in session to receive him.

"At Washington's entrance there was a profound silence. House, lobbies, gallery, all were wrapped in deepest attention. And the souls of the entire assemblage seemed peering from their eyes as the noble figure deliberately and unaffectedly advanced up the broad aisle of the hall between ranks of standing Senators and members, and slowly ascended the steps leading to the Speaker's chair.

"The President, having seated himself, remained in silence, and the members took their seats, waiting for the speech. No house of worship was ever more profoundly still than that large and crowded chamber.

"Washington was dressed precisely as Stuart has painted him in full-length portrait—in a full suit of the richest black velvet, with diamond knee buckles and square silver buckles set upon shoes japanned with most scrupulous neatness; black silk stockings, his shirt ruffled at the breast and waist, a light dress sword, his hair profusely powdered, fully dressed, so as to project at the sides, and gathered behind in a silk bag ornamented with a large rose or black ribbon. He held his cocked hat, which had a large black cockade on one side of it, in his hand, as he advanced toward the chair, and when seated, laid it on the table.

"At length thrusting his hand within the side of his coat, he drew forth a roll of manuscript which he opened, and rising, read in a rich, deep, full, sonorous voice his opening address to Congress. His enunciation was deliberate, justly emphasized, very distinct, and accompanied with an air of deep solemnity as being the utterance of a mind conscious of the whole responsibility of its position, but not oppressed by it.

Washington's Laughter

The assertion that Washington never laughed arose from his habitual reserve.

"There," said John Adams, as he gazed for the first time on Stuart's portrait of Washington, "is a man who kept his lips shut—which this old fool never could."

On one occasion, however, Washington laughed immoderately. This was when his friend Van Horne tried to catch a pig. Van Horne was of uncommon size, very bulky and strong. One day he ordered a black boy to catch a pig that it might be roasted for dinner. The boy was chasing the pig as Van Horne came on the scene. The pig, not wishing to be roasted, refused to be caught. "Stand aside, you awkward boy," said Van Horne, at the same time throwing off his coat and hat; "I'll show you how to catch a pig." After many twistings and turnings, which amused the negroes, Van Horne caught the pig, and, holding it up in triumph while large drops of perspiration ran down his face, exclaimed in a voice that was heard above the squealing of the captive; "There, boy, that's the way to run down a pig!"

As he spoke, he turned around, and there was Washington, who, with his suite, had entered the yard. Van Horne, with a ludicrous expression of surprise and confusion, tried to speak to the General, but was thwarted by the kicking, squealing pig, while Washington's sides shook with laughter.

Washington's Love for His Slaves

One of the most touching anecdotes of Washington is told by Bishop Meade of Virginia. The smallpox broke out among the slaves. Word reached him from the plantation late at night. He started on horseback and rode until morning, stopping only at a church by the way. There he prayed to God for the lives of the poor creatures dependent on him.

Washington Exports a Slave

Observation and reflection gave Washington ideas on slavery far beyond his century in sagacity and morality. He owned slaves and was very kind to them. Nevertheless he exported one of them to the West Indies for sale because unmanageable in spite of good treatment, as shown by the following extract from a letter of Washington's:

"With this letter comes a negro, Tom, whom I beg you to sell in any of the (West India) islands, for whatever he will fetch, and bring me in return for him one hhd. of best molasses, one ditto of best rum * * * lymes * * * tamarinds * * * mixed sweetmeats, and the residue, much or little, in good old spirits * * * This fellow is a rogue and runaway."

He evidently never exported another negro, but held this up as a warning to his other slaves, who doubtless pushed to the extreme his consideration for them.

Washington's Religious Nature

Rev. Lee Massey, for many years a rector of Washington's parish and an intimate acquaintance of the latter, says: "I never knew so constant an attendant on church as Washington. His behaviour in the house of God is so deeply reverential that it produces the happiest effect on my congregation and greatly assists me in my moralizing labours. No company ever held him from church. I have often been at Mount Vernon on the Sabbath morning when his breakfast table was filled with guests. But to him they furnished no pretext for neglecting his God, and losing the satisfaction of setting a good example. For, instead of staying at home out of false compliance to them, he used constantly to invite them to accompany him."

Washington's Veracity

Washington's truthfulness was a marked quality in his boyhood. There is a story told that is not apocryphal, illustrative of this. Among the plantation horses there was a span of grays of which Mrs. Washington was particularly proud. One of them had never been broken to the saddle. Some of George's young visitors proposed, one afternoon, to try the dappled gray on horseback. But the spirited animal set them at defiance, until at last, young Washington himself succeeded in mounting. The frightened animal dashed off at full speed, but George, who was a fearless rider, gave the gray full rein, and never stopped until the blooded beast fell beneath him in utter exhaustion.

He had conquered, but the valuable and highly-prized gray was severely, perhaps fatally, injured. He knew that his mother would be angered as well as grieved at the loss of her favorite; but, true to his nature, he immediately hastened to her, and told of the tragedy, just as it happened.

The mother's reply reveals to us the influences which formed the character of her son: "I forgive you, George," she said, after a moment's pause, "because you have had the courage to tell me the truth at once. If you had deceived me, I should have punished you."

Washington's Belief in Providence

The words of Washington when elected to the Presidency touch the greatest heights of sublimity. He said: "When I contemplate the interposition of Providence, as it was visibly manifested in guiding us through the Revolution—in preparing us for the reception of a general government—and in conciliating the good will of the people of America towards one another after its adoption, I feel myself oppressed and almost overwhelmed with a sense of Divine munificence."

Upon his assumption of the Presidency we find these words, uttered by him: "It would be peculiarly improper to omit, in this first official act, my fervent supplications to that Almighty Being who rules over the universe, that His benediction may consecrate to the liberties and happiness of the people of the United States, a government instituted by themselves for these essential purposes."

Washington Applying a Dream

One of the best anecdotes of Washington concerns the mysticism of the youthful George when his mother endeavored on one occasion to explain to him that it was God Almighty and not his earthly father whom he was to thank for blessings bestowed.

After Washington's success in reducing Ft. Duquesne and dispersing the savages, we find the mother of the young officer who had suddenly sprung into such prominence, recalling a remarkable dream which she had had years before. In it she saw George battling with the flames which were rapidly destroying a fine large house and reassuring his mother with, "Oh, ma! don't be afraid: God Almighty will help us, and we shall soon put it out."

Washington's Dislike for Profanity

In the summer of 1781, a man who was plowing in a field near the Fishkill road, became very impatient with some difficulty in his work, and began to pour forth violent oaths. Just then three horsemen in military undress, who were riding by, paused, and one of them asking for information concerning the road, thanked the plowman for his answer, and added: "My friend, I am older than you, have many times been placed in positions of danger and difficulty, and have had many things to perplex and annoy me; but I have always found that it did no good to get angry, and that neither broken plows nor anything else can be mended or made better by the use of profane language." As he made a bow, the speaker rode on. It was Gen. Washington.

Washington's Advice to Louis Philippe

When Louis Philippe, afterwards King of France, was an exile in this country, he was for a long time a guest of Gen. Washington at Mount Vernon. One morning the Frenchman arose earlier than usual, and found Gen. Washington riding over his estate. Louis Philippe said: "Why, general, you are an early riser." "Yes," replied Washington, "I rise early because I sleep well. I sleep well because I have never written anything which I care to recall. Young man, remember that."

Washington as a Schoolboy

When a boy at school he never fought with his companions, "for," said he, "a man should not conduct himself like an ill-conditioned dog."

At the age of thirteen he drew up for himself a set of rules, one of which was, "To labor to keep alive in my breast that little spark of celestial fire called conscience."

When he was an officer in the army, he insulted a young man, one of his companions, who struck him in the face. Washington's language was, after the blow, "strong and offensive." The other officer waited that afternoon for a challenge; but, to his astonishment, Washington came himself the next morning to call upon him, and made a full apology, and frankly acknowledged that he was much to blame.

Washington the "Daddy of His Country"

Initials may be made to stand for a great many things for which they were never intended.

An old negro servant who had noticed "Washington, D. C." stamped upon envelopes received by his mistress, said one day: "I jess like to know, Miss Hannah, w'y dey allus put dem letters 'D. C.' arter de name ob Washington, on dem env'lopes?"

"What do you suppose they stand for?" inquired the mistress, who always enjoyed the old man's answers.

"W'y," said Sambo, after a moment's reflection, "I's been t'inkin' dey mos' likely stood fer 'Daddy of his Country;' but I wa'n't 'xackly shuah an' sartin' but w't dey might mean some udder t'ing; fer Wash'n'ton he was a great man, an' 'pears like dere's a mons'ous deal to be said about him."

Lafayette's Love for Washington

During the darkest period of the Revolution Washington had become unpopular, and Congress appointed a "Board of War," the object of which was to appoint General Gates, hero of Saratoga, as Commander-in-chief of the army. The plan of this "Board of War" was to meet at York, Pa., summon Lafayette to the banquet, and there offer him the command of the Army of the North, in a dramatic manner, that would signify that great honors should be assigned to him in return for his loyalty to them, rather than to Washington. As Commander-in-chief of the army, Washington had not been consulted, except indirectly, in regard to the plan of this great Northern campaign. The invitation was sent to Lafayette. The "Board of War" assembled, with Gates as president and as the head of the illustrious Company. Lights filled the hall, and the tables sparkled with wine. The American flag was there, and the lilies of France. The dark purpose of the banquet was not known to all. The American officers were not intemperate men. Baron de Kalb, who served the American cause, was a total abstainer. But in those days the wine cup if not the wine, went with the toast as an emblem of loyalty. They began to lift their glasses in honor of the heroes. The toastmaster named the name of Gates, the hero of Saratoga. The banquet hall rang with applause. Then he named the name of each hero of the war, one by one. The glasses gleamed, and the hall rang with cheers. At length the list of heroes was completed. The name of Washington had not been mentioned.

The tall, slender form of the young marquis arose. "Hear! hear!" said all. All hearts beat in expectancy. There was silence as he stood before them. Lafayette surveyed the Board, who awaited with breathless expectation for what he had to say. "There is one toast," he said firmly, "that you omitted." Hearts stood still. He continued: "I propose to toast the Commander-in-chief of the American army—George Washington."

He lifted the glass alone and in silence. The cabal saw that their plan had failed. The scheme of the "Board of War" to supersede Washington was thwarted. The son of France had been true. He seemed to have extinguished his own light. To Lafayette, standing there amid deserted hearts, that moment was one of those victories of the vanquished that rise like stars in the memory of mankind.

Items of Interest

The German village of Remborn has a linden tree which is more than 1,200 years old.

Nearly $1,000,000 is now on deposit in school savings banks in 1,149 schools throughout the United States.

Illiteracy is practically banished in Prussia. Out of 165,841 army recruits in 1911, all but 24 could read and write.

The government of Uruguay has engaged an agricultural expert from the United States to organize an agricultural school in the Republic.

A simple tool that twists two or more wires together as it is drawn along them has been invented by a Texan. This will come in very useful.

The extent of the reindeer industry in Alaska under the United States Bureau of Education is indicated by the fact that it covers a territory as long as from Maine to South Carolina. If a line were drawn through the 54 herds it would stretch more than 5,000 miles. There are over 38,000 reindeer in these herds, two thirds of them owned by natives. The value of the reindeer owned by the natives is estimated at $600,000, and from them during the past year was derived an income of $25,000 in addition to meat and hides consumed by the natives themselves.

PROMINENT JUDGE DWELLS ON EVILS OF DRINK.—Intoxicants and their evil effects were severely scored in a Georgia court. A son was charged with killing his father and injuring his mother while in an intoxicated condition. Of whiskey, Judge Hill said: "It is a hydra-headed and remorseless monster, which with a ceaseless and tireless energy, wastes the substance of the poor, manufactures the burdensome taxes for the public, monopolizes the time of the courts, fills the jails, penitentiaries and asylums, destroys manhood, terrorizes helpless women and innocent children and mocks the law. Answering its inexorable demands, each new morn new widows mourn, new orphans cry, new wrongs strike heaven in the face." Judge Hill is a very competent man and the people know it.

New Book FREE to You

Write for It Today Sure

Spear's new book has a beautiful cover in colors from Oil Painting of Two Home Lovers "Planning Their Home Sweet Home."

"Let Me Save You Money on Household Goods"

"I give 30 Days' Home Trial Free on any article in my large fascinating free catalog. In that way you can prove without risk what great values I offer. Write me today."

—SPEAR of Pittsburgh

Bed, Spring, Mattress, Pillows, Complete Outfit

$8.95 only

Order No. D353

Only 75c Monthly

As a sample Spear value see this handsome, complete Metal Bed Outfit, consisting of heavy, perfectly constructed Iron Bed, any color, 4 feet 6 inches wide; a good all metal spring of serviceable steel fabric; 50-pound cotton top mattress; 2 feather pillows. Price $8.95. Terms, $1.50 cash with order, balance payable 75c monthly. Shipped on 30 Days' Trial.

"I Will Trust You Gladly" —Spear of Pittsburgh

"On all Furniture and Household Goods, I will give YOU the most reasonable, easy-payment terms to suit—wherever you live. Because of tremendous purchases and immense sales my prices are astonishingly low. I have thousands of customers who buy bargains from my catalog year after year on my easy, simple credit-plan.

"This big, beautiful book I want to send you free fully explains all and contains thousands of actual pictures and careful, complete descriptions of

Furniture	Carpets	Sewing Machines
Rugs	Portieres	Lace Curtains
Clocks	Silverware	Refrigerators
Go-Carts	Ranges	Washing
Dishes	Stoves	Machines
Springs	Bedding	Mattresses

"All sold on credit. No home is complete without this interesting Free Book. Write to

SPEAR & CO. Dept. E Pittsburgh, Pa.

$3.65 Only for this beautiful and durable rocker. Look at the picture. Think of the value!

Order No. D486

Where can you beat it?

Pay only 50c per Month

A handsome, full size, mission rocker made of genuine oak in rich brown, fumed finish. Has wide arms, heavy front posts. Covered with durable brown Spanish Sylvan leather with a deep spring seat and upholstered back. Neatly designed and solidly constructed. Sent on

30 Days' Trial

A remarkable value which we guarantee to give satisfaction. Shipped on 30 days' trial. Price $3.65. Terms, 75c cash with order, balance 50c monthly —order it direct.

Fill in This Coupon and Mail Today

SPEAR & CO. Dept. E Pittsburgh, Pa.

Please send me, FREE, your complete Bargain Catalog with Prices, Terms and Information, without the slightest obligation on my part.

Name.....

Street.....

Town..... State.....

Galloway's Porterhouse Tomato FREE

I am always on the look out for new things, those out of the ordinary. I found a corker in the way of a tomato. Exceptionally big firm and meaty. Just like a beefsteak. That's why I named it. To introduce them I will give my 1915 customers some of this seed Free. Write today for special proposition and beautiful colored catalog of new and standard varieties of seeds. Galloway Bros. & Co., 2444 Galloway Station, Waterloo, Iowa

$25 TO $40 Week

Sells on sight. Instant hit in every home. Smith, Ohio, sold 38 one day. Profit $19.00. All metal bread and pastry board and rolling pin. Can't rust, absorb dirt or disease germs. Lasts lifetime. Endorsed by Good Housekeeping Institute. Agents get good appointments. Make Big Money. UNION MFG. CO., 123 Main St. Cambridge, O.

Beacon Burner FREE

FITS YOUR OLD LAMP.

100 Candle Power Incandescent pure white light from (kerosene) coal oil. Beats either gas or electricity. COSTS ONLY 1 CENT FOR 6 HOURS

We want one person in each locality to whom we can refer new customers. Take advantage of our Special Offer to secure a Beacon Burner FREE. Write today. AGENTS WANTED.

HOME SUPPLY CO., 17 Home Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

400 Stoves Factory Price Cash or Credit

Kalamazoo Stove Co., Kalamazoo - Michigan

Write for our big Factory Price Book No. 501—save $5 to $40 on cook stoves, ranges, heaters, gas stoves and furnaces. 400 Styles. 30 DAYS' FREE TRIAL

A Kalamazoo Direct to You

YOU can EARN an AUTO

HERE'S YOUR CHANCE TO GET A NEW FORD TOURING CAR FOR A FEW WEEKS' WORK.

By my new, easy plan, anyone over 16 years old can get a brand-new Ford Touring Car for a little easy, respectable work among neighbors. Free Book tells all about it. Postal brings it. Send. AUTO TOM, 609 16th St., OMAHA, NEB.

40 lb.—FEATHER BEDS—$7.00

New, clean, odorless, sanitary and dustless feathers. Best Ticking. 6 pound pillows $1.00 per pair. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for FREE catalog and our wonderful SPECIAL OFFER. AGENTS WANTED.

SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 2000, Greensboro, N. C.

Send Only

50c and we will ship you this Majestic Colonial library table, made of selected hard wood, American quarter-sawed oak, golden finish, large 22x28 inch top, massive, shapely Colonial legs, large magazine shelf and roomy drawer. $10.00 value. An astounding offer, only 50c down, 75c a month. $7.65 in all. Order No. A120.

Easy Payments If you want anything in tables, furniture, jewelry, carpets, rugs, curtains, washing machines, crockery, silverware, baby carriages, go-carts, Men's, Women's and Children's apparel, stoves, ranges or any other article of house-furnishing don't fail to get our sensational easy terms. Only a small deposit—then pay the balance at the rate of a small amount per month.

FREE Bargain Catalogs

Write today for our big new catalog and list of special bargains. See the astounding values we are offering. Prices never approached before. Write now—no obligations whatever.

Straus & Schram, Inc. Dept. 5642 35th St. Chicago

A Clear Skin
Or Money Back

20 DAYS TRIAL We want you to try Young's Victoria Cream which we guarantee will remove Pimples, Freckles or Brown Spots, also cure Eczema and all skin diseases. We will send enough for 20 days trial on receipt of this advertisement and 10 cents in silver to cover cost of mailing. We will also send sample of Powder. One lady writes that she will ever bless the day when she sent for the trial package of this wonderful cream. It will do as well for you.

F. H. YOUNG & CO., 32 Oakwood Ave., Toledo, Ohio

AGENTS $30 TO $50 WEEKLY MEN AND WOMEN

Selling the New Improved MONITOR Self Heating FLAT IRON. Positively the lowest priced and fastest selling Iron made. Over 650,000 in use. Evans, N. Car., sold 2 dozen on Sat. Mrs. Nixon, Vt. sold 8 first half day. No experience needed—sells itself. Every home a prospect. New terms. Binding Guarantee.

Exclusive territory. Sample free to workers. Write today.
The Monitor Sad Iron Co. 645 Wayne St. Big Prairie, O.

8 ON 30 DAYS FREE TRIAL DROP HEAD

Write today for our big free sewing machine catalog and read our great offer to send you any of our famous Light running noiseless Fault-less sewing machines (about 20 styles), at $6.85 to $22.95 on 30 days free trial. No money to us in advance; try the machine 30 days; if it suits send the money, if not, return at our expense. Catalog shows machines in actual oak colors gives full details and makes ordering so easy and safe that a child can order with perfect safety. Write for catalog sure. No Money in Advance

JOHN M. SMYTH MDSE CO. 150-151 W. Madison St. Chicago

23 RUBY JEWEL $35 GOLD WATCH $3.50

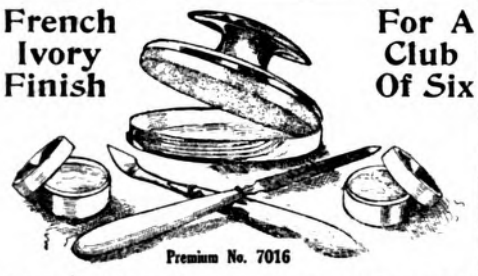
Here is the watch you have always wanted, sent to you at our risk, without your sending any money—not even a deposit. Write if you prefer open face or hunting case, ladies' or gents' size, and we will send this twenty-five year, fully guaranteed, thin model, American made, beautifully engraved watch for free examination and test. If you are satisfied with it and are sure it equals a $35.00 gold watch, pay us only $3.50 and the watch is yours. Write now.
Drexel Jewelry Co., Dept. 211, CHICAGO

AGENTS—MAKE $100 to $300

per month easy selling our new Triplicate Sauce Pan. Cooking utensil for 3 different foods on one burner. 400 Specialties—all Whirlwind sellers. Write quick for exclusive territory and large catalogue.
AMERICAN ALUMINUM MFG. CO. Div. 5 57 Lemont, Ill.

Great Special Bargain
Beautiful birthstone ring for any month, guaranteed 5 years; send us the names and address of three friends with only 20c and we will send ring for your birth month. Order yours by mail today. State month and size.
Arden Watch Co., Dept. 532, Chicago

ANY NAME not over 7 letters in Gold Wire Brooch 15c. Warranted 10 years. Handsome premium free with order from this ad.
GREELY JEWELRY CO. Dept. 3, Portland, Maine



FREE

Violin Outfit for selling 20 pictures or 20 pkgs. post cards at 10c. Order your choice.
GEO. GATES CO. Dept. 625 Chicago

FIVE-PIECE MANICURE SET

French Ivory Finish — For A Club Of Six

Premium No. 7016

THIS complete manicure set comes in a handsome white box which does not show in illustration It consists of cuticle knife, nail file, cream jar, powder jar and buffer. Each piece is full size and has the popular Parisian Ivory finish. While this set is not as large as some manicure sets yet it contains all the necessary articles for the proper treatment and care of the finger nails. We know that every woman or girl who receives one of these sets will be highly pleased with it. We are giving it away as a premium on the terms of the following

CLUB OFFER. For a club of six 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or three 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you this handsome 5-piece Manicure Set in a dainty white box free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7016.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12.)

MONUMENT, COLO.

DEAR COMFORT SISTERS:

Will you please sit over and make room for a Colorado sister?

So many of the sisters seem to think they must neglect the home and family to vote that I will tell how I spent election day. In the forenoon I did my regular family washing, scrubbed my kitchen and prepared dinner, waiting on a sick husband the while. After dinner I tidied the entire house, five rooms, and at three o'clock was ready to cast my vote for prohibition. While at the City Hall I saw the saloon men bring in three weak-minded boys and, of course, they cast their votes for whiskey, for the ruin of your boys and girls as well as mine. I was gone from my home just one hour. Is that neglecting duty? Sisters, let us value ourselves above weak-minded men and drunkards and help to make the laws. You don't need to quarrel with hubby. Listen to his advice, then when the time comes to vote, vote as you please.

A few words about the training of children. Teach them to obey from babyhood. I have two little girls, Lola Alice, aged twelve and Anna Yvone, aged four; both dear, sweet little girls. Sometimes I have to punish, but oh, mothers, how much better that is than to hear them say in after years, "Mother neglected her duty, or I wouldn't have had to suffer so." Sisters, do you realize that there are now a hundred fallen girls to one in our grandmothers' time? Why? Because grandma taught her children to obey. My oldest girl has been reared in a small town, about the worst place on earth, and still she is a pure-minded girl. She is never allowed to play on the street but comes home from school, and never was out at night without mother. I never deny her anything without giving my reason and I believe in teaching nature. They learn it at school and it is much better for mother to tell them in a pure way. Teach your boys to be pure and half the evil of the world will cease.

Will some of the COMFORT sisters give my little girl Lola Fimple, a post-card shower March 14, her twelfth birthday?

Wishing all success, MRS. NELL FIMPLE.

EKALAKA, BOX 342, MONT.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

Is the "corner" large enough, or can you make room for one more sister, and a young bachelor girl at that?

First I will describe myself and then you will have a faint idea of what kind of looking person is talking.

I am five feet, two inches tall, weigh one hundred pounds, have brown hair, dark blue eyes, a complexion that varies with the seasons, and as to age, COMFORT is older than I am.

Now for my home. I live in Fallon County, which was just two years old the third of November, on a claim joining that of my parents. We are about three miles from Medicine Rocks, which was a favorite meeting place of the Indians to mix their medicines, etc. Many names from all parts of the country, as well as pictures, are engraved upon them. One may spend more than one day exploring the caves, running about, under and over them and then not see all the different isolated ones, some of which are called "Odd Fellows' Castle," "Devil's Saddle," etc.

Our nearest town is Ekalaka, which is fourteen miles from us, but when the county gets the new road completed, it will be only ten miles.

About twenty miles away, where we get wood, posts, poles and logs, are large government reserves of pine timber. The government gives the timber free to claim holders. It also gives the coal, all one has to do is dig and haul it. The mine where we go is only about four miles from here.

Mrs. Englerth. When I was a child my folks lived in Mecostar County, Michigan, just north of Lakeview, and found it much different than your description. It was pine stump land and very sandy. Dry weather was the usual thing. I am glad though that it is different around your town.

Mrs. H. F. of Nebraska. I certainly feel sorry for you, living in a thinly settled country, twenty miles from the railroad. Why my friend we live forty miles from the railroad and to hear the train even whistle would be a treat, and last winter we lived a month at a time without seeing a neighbor. As to narrow-minded people I believe we could have welcomed a "feeble-minded" person just for a change and called life exciting.

Most of the settlers in this section are married folks. I depend mostly upon letters for my pleasure as it sometimes is very lonesome.

I enjoy reading the sisters' letters and would be pleased to hear from them. I will answer all letters received. If anyone would like to hear more of this country I will be glad to answer any questions they care to ask.

The next time I write, if this is not refused space in the corner, I will try and describe my little home and some of the advantages and disadvantages of this part of Montana.

Your sincere friend and sister, RITA CROSSAN.

TOPEKA, IND.

DEAR COMFORT SISTERS:

COMFORT is certainly rightly named. As I have not written before, you'll all want to know what I look like. I am five feet four inches tall, weigh one hundred and seventy pounds, have blue eyes, dark hair, am twenty-three years old, have been married nearly three years, and have a dear little baby girl, Ethel Fern, eighteen months old. She is healthy and cheerful from morning till night. I have a good husband which means a good deal. What would a home mean without love and peace.

We live on a farm of one hundred and forty acres, which we have rented, and raise peppermint, corn, wheat and oats.

Maybe some of you do not know how peppermint is raised. It can be planted in the fall or spring. The first year it is planted in rows and cut with the scythe and distilled and the produce is oil, the next year it is plowed under and when it grows up it is cut with the mower and distilled again; the oil is worth from one dollar to three dollars and fifty cents a pound.

Hope to hear from some of the sisters. My maiden name was Beulah Hershberger.

With love to Mrs. Wilkinson and sisters,
MRS. AMOS I. SCHROCK.

CLIFTON, OREGON.

DEAR COMFORT SISTERS AND MRS. WILKINSON:

Just keep your seats everybody, as I haven't time to stay very long. I want to ask a favor. Will the sisters who live in Oregon and Washington, who know of homestead land near them, please write to me and describe it and tell me of the climate there and also what crops are raised in that locality? I will return the favor any way that I can. We want to take a homestead this spring if we can find one.

I am twenty-five years old. Have been married six years to a dear good "Tom." We have one sweet little girlie who is five years old. In regards to punishing a child. I do not believe in continually "pounding" them. But I do think that a healthy spanking when they deserve it, will "work wonders." Don't punish them when they tell the truth. Tell them it will be all right this time "but don't do it any more."

At bedtime every evening my little girl tells me everything she does during the day. I tell her where she does wrong and that she must not "do that any more." She very seldom repeats the same offence.

Best wishes to COMFORT sisters, Mrs. Wilkinson and Uncle Charlie.

Would be glad to hear from old schoolmates if they see this in print, MRS. DELLA (HADDIX) CHAPMAN.

O'NEALS, CAL.

DEAR COMFORT SISTERS:

Will you permit a California sister to join your happy circle? I am one of the many readers of dear COMFORT and think it a grand old paper.

I am the mother of a dear little baby girl seven months old and I find COMFORT Sisters' Corner helpful in many ways, especially on rearing children.

My husband and I have a homestead in the foothills on which we raise grain and some stock. We are surrounded by rolling hills, timber and plenty of rocks. The timber is mostly of white oak, live oak and the bull pine. The pine trees bear lots of pine nuts every year which are grand eating, although they are hard to get as you have to climb the trees which are full of pitch. Have any of you sisters eaten any? They grow in large cones about the size of a five pound lard bucket. The oaks also have lots of acorns which are fine for fattening hogs.

We raise our own meat to kill every winter, which is a big help.

Wishing all COMFORT sisters God's blessing,
MRS. CLAUDE SELLARS.

Best Ways of Doing Things Around the Home

To remove paint from hands or wearing apparel, wet in kerosene and wash at once.

MRS. H. R. GODLEY, McKettuck, Mo.

When washing glasses, a bit of bluing in the water will add to the brilliancy.

INA MAY CROOK, Lawrenceburg, Tenn.

Glycerine will remove iodine stains.

Use your accumulation of common white wrapping twine to crochet table mats on which to place hot dishes.

Fasten a clothes pin to a stick and place cloth in the clothes pin, for use in water too hot to place the hands in.

A cloth book cover to your cook book gives two excellent pockets in which to place recipes cut from COMFORT magazine, where they will be handy for you to refer to them.

A horseshoe covered with cloth makes a good thing to keep the door open, as it stops the door from blowing either way. Sometimes the door is high enough from the floor to require two horseshoes bound together.

MRS. ABBIE SCHILLER, Browning Ave., Ignacia, Colo.

It is well to remember that a bottle of pennyroyal left uncorked in baby's sleeping room will keep mosquitoes away.

For removing rust or iron stains from any wash fabric, wet spot well with juice of an onion and sprinkle with salt. Place goods on warm (not hot) flatiron and pat gently. The spot will disappear.

Oil of sassafras sprinkled on shelves, etc., will drive away ants, cockroaches and flies.

You can make your old silver look like new if you will apply the following: One half ounce salt, one half ounce alum, one half ounce cream of tartar and two quarts of water. Stir frequently until dissolved, bottle and shake well before using. Apply with soft cloth, let dry for about ten minutes, then polish with chamois skin.

If the kettle in which syrup is being boiled is greased with butter two inches down from top, it will not boil over.

MRS. F. J. SCHULY, Melrose, Mont.

Remedies

Used in water as a daily gargle, borax keeps the throat healthy and is good for cleaning the teeth. It disinfects and prevents decay.

MISS CLARA HODGES, 115 Lancaster St., Albany, N. Y.

FOR WORMS.—Give children twenty to thirty pumpkin seeds once a week for two months. This cured my children when other things failed.

MRS. CHLOE SHONK, Spencer, Ind.

STINGS OF INSECTS.—Apply Hartshorn or water of ammonia to part.

MRS. BENTON ZIEGLAR, Junction City, Kans.

WHOOPING COUGH.—Take equal parts of honey, sweet oil and vinegar; simmer together over the fire a few minutes, then bottle for use. Dose, teaspoon as often as necessary.

For kidney trouble make a tea of mullen leaves, strain and add a tablespoon of whiskey to keep it from souring. Dose a wineglass three times a day.

MRS. A. BRADSHAM, Jerseyville, Ont.

RHEUMATISM.—Cook Irish potatoes till soft, leaving peelings on. Mash and bind to affected parts. Renew when cold. R. A. CLARK, Stephenville, Texas.

SCIATIC RHEUMATISM AND LUMBAGO.—Rub the painful part with very warm, green or yellow sweet oil (olive oil.) Rub it with hand in the skin, a downward stroke. Sit before an open fire and let it burn in, so to say while you are rubbing it on and in, until the skin is dry.

MRS. PETER C. JACOBSON, Palestine, R. R. 5, Box 94, Texas.

COUGH REMEDY.—Get a quart of good whiskey, and take Indian turnip root about size of an egg, cut in small pieces, and put it in the whiskey, let stand a day, and when you have a cough take a good sup three or four times a day. If cough is very bad, take oftener, every two or three hours. It is believed to cure consumption if taken in time. Ten cents' worth of Rock candy may be added, it sweetens the whiskey and is good for cough.

MRS. MAUDE CRAFT, Thaxton, Va.

Requests

Mrs. R. Wells, Bridgeville, Cal., wants poems, "When the Sunshine Comes Again," and "If You Love Them, Tell Them So."

Ethel Hamm, Quincy, R. R. 1, Ind., wants poem, "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle Rules the World," and song, "A Little Child Shall Lead Them."

How to make lemon cake, banana cake and how to pickle pig's feet.

How to make hog's-headcheese.

Will the lady who said to drink tar water for asthma, kindly tell how to prepare it and how much to take, and if the oil of tar would be all right to use.

MRS. B. HAMPSTEAD, Scotia, 124 Glen Ave., N. Y.

Will any reader of COMFORT inform me where I could obtain the book entitled, "The Old Vicarage."

MRS. G. W. FORREST, Moberly, R. R. 5, Mo.

Cure for neuralgia.

Missing Relatives and Friends

We shall only require you to get a small club of subscribers to COMFORT for each request printed; so in sending your notice for insertion in the Missing Relatives' column, include a club of three 15-months 25-cent subscriptions, or if you are already a paid-in-advance subscriber, send only two new 15-months 25-cent subscriptions. This amount limits the notice to twenty-two words, making three lines; if longer notice is required, send two additional 25-cent 15-months subscriptions yearly for every seven words.

Wanted—Information of George Loyd Baker and family, last heard of in Jersey City, N. J. in 1912. Notify his mother, Mrs. Ann Ellen Baker, Staunton, R. R. 1, Box 75, care P. T. Swortzel, Virginia.

Wanted—Information of Jame Lamper, last heard from in Portland, Oregon, eight years ago. Miss Helena Moll, Garfield, 11 Palisade Ave., N. J.

Wanted—Information of William J. Bennett, whether married or single, a blacksmith who once worked at Cony Ferry, Montana. Notify James L. Taylor, 353 North Davis St., Helena, Montana.

Comfort Postal Requests

How to Get a Lot of Souvenir Postals Free

Exchanging Souvenir Post Cards is no longer a fad but a custom as firmly established as letter writing, and more convenient and pleasing. By entering this Exchange list you are enabled to accumulate cards from every state in the Union and Foreign Countries. To secure the appearance of your name in the Exchange List it is necessary to send a club of two fifteen months 25-cent subscriptions to COMFORT and fifty cents to pay for same. We will send you a very fine Fifty Card Album for Post Cards, and your name will appear in the next available issue of COMFORT, and you will be expected to return cards for all received by you.

Miss Florence Combert, 3216 Ave. P., Galveston, Texas. Elmer Preston, Mingo, Box 85, Ky. Mrs. Nellie M. Shoemaker, Lock Haven, R. R. 1, Box 88, Pa. Mr. Stanley Shoffer, Hooper, Box 66, Nebr. John A. Stillwell, Fairacres, Alberta, Canada. Mrs. Mary C. Smith, 110 Oxford St., Syracuse, N. Y.

High-Grade Portraits On Trial Strictly for advertising purposes and for a limited time, we will enlarge any small picture in crayon, size 18x19 inches, about three-quarters life size, for only 95c or pastel for $1.45. We will deliver it to you with all charges paid for 10 days free examination, photo returned along with enlargement unharmed. If not delighted with the beautiful quality of the work and the high value of the portrait, send it back to us at our expense. Only one enlargement to any one person at this price. Send the coupon. We have no agents. 95c

Send No Money Send the Coupon Send the coupon or a post card for full particulars and description of these magnificent three-quarter life size portraits only 95c and up.

Guaranteed for 25 years. Every family of pride has family portraits. This is a remarkable opportunity for you. We refer you to National Bank of the Republic, Chicago or to your own banker as to our responsibility. Learn all about this unusual introductory offer. Send the coupon.

States Mfg. Co. 1029 W. Adams St. Dept. 2096 Chicago, Ill.

COUPON
States Mfg. Co. 1029 W. Adams Street Dept. 2096 Chicago Ill.
Gentlemen: Please send me all particulars of your special limited advertising offer at 95c and up for high-grade three-quarter life size enlarged portraits.
Name.....
Address.....

Criss-Cross Try it. King of solitaire games looks easy 25c Write L. Buschart, 1522 Locust Street, St. Louis, Mo.

SMITH STUMP PULLER Send for Free Catalog 51. Box 158, La Crescent, Minn.

GROW GINSENG! 1 acre worth $10,000. Package seed $1. Mich. Ginseng Co., St Joseph, Mich.

Old Coins WANTED, $1 to $600 paid for hundreds of coins dated before 1894. Send 10c for our Ill. Coin Value Book. It may mean your fortune. OLD COIN CO., 302 EAST 51st ST., CHICAGO

JEWELRY clothing, vehicles, china, gasoline engines, stoves, etc. Free Catalogue. RURAL SUPPLY CO., Dept. C, ST. LOUIS, MO.

WILL PAY RELIABLE MAN OR WOMAN $12.50 to distribute 100 FREE pkgs. Perfumed Borax Soap Powder among friends. No money required. A. WARD & CO., 218 Institute Place, Chicago.

SILK REMNANTS for Fancy Work, Crazy Quilts, &c. Sample package postpaid 10c. 3 for 25c. 1 lb. $1.00. The S. & D. Co., Dept. 60, Brunswick, Maine.

ROSE BUD RING Gold filled, set with beautiful Rose Bud. To introduce our big jewelry bargains we will send this ring for 12c to help pay advertising. Send size. Free
RexJewelryCo., Dept 9, BattleCreek, Mich.

ART PICTURE FREE
Send name and address with 2c stamp for mailing expense and receive choice of large pictures: Rock of Ages, St. Cecelia, Last Supper, Christ and Peter, Fruit, The Angelus. Only one Picture at this rate. H. STONE, 610 So. Dearborn Street, Dept. 325, Chicago.

HAMILTON RIFLE FREE

Genuine Take-Down Rifle, shoots long and short 22 calibre cartridges. Gun metal barrel, steel frame, regulation sights, automatic shell extractor. Given for selling 30 packages Bluine at 10c each. Write for Bluine.
BLUINE MFG. CO., 672 Mill St., Concord Jct., Mass.

French Pearl Pendant With Chain

Given For A Club Of Two

FRENCH Pearl Pendants and Chains (also called "Lavallieres") are always in style and many new handsome designs are being worn this season. One of the prettiest designs we have yet seen is shown in the accompanying illustration. The pendant is made up entirely of a large number of tiny French pearls and set with either four Emeralds or four Rubies whichever you prefer. The gold-plated chain is 15 inches long and fastens with a reliable safety catch. We will give you this handsome Lavalliere free upon the terms of the following

CLUB OFFER

For a club of two 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this stylish French Pearl Pendant and Chain free by Parcel Post prepaid. When ordering be sure to say whether you want emerald or ruby setting. Premium No. 7202.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Club-Raisers Please Read This

IT IS easy to get up clubs for COMFORT and easy to get your orders filled. The rules given here may help. Please read them over carefully. Then send in your club.

1. Send us your FULL name and COMPLETE address and the FULL names and COMPLETE addresses of your subscribers. (We can't send premiums until we get complete names and addresses).

2. Write clearly (or print) names of subscribers and towns, as they are often hard to make out unless written VERY CAREFULLY.

3. Please give both name and number of the premium you want.

4. Go carefully over our offers and be sure that you send the number of subscriptions called for and the correct amount of money.

5. Married women should use their husband's initials.

6. Don't send your own subscription alone and expect to get a premium. If you send your own subscription and want a one-subscription premium you must send the extra amount called for, generally 10c.

7. Don't send us the name of a new subscriber and ask us to send the premium to this person, as well as the magazine. This we cannot do, under any circumstances. We must send the premium to you, the club-raiser.

8. A renewal or an extension counts the same toward a premium as a subscription.

9. A 50-cent, 3-year subscription counts as 2 subscriptions toward a premium.

10. Our Canadian subscription price is 50c a year, 2-year renewals 75c.

11. Read the suggestions for getting up clubs on the front page of our premium catalogue. It will help you to get subscriptions more easily.

12. Send your remittance by money order, registered letter or stamps. The money order is the best and safest way and costs but a few cents.

Poultry Farming for Women

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 16.)

E, McC.—I am taking the privilege of asking you a few questions. I was one of COMFORT's subscribers who took advantage of COMFORT's offer of Plymouth Rock eggs as a premium. I received the eggs in fine shape: not one broken. Hatched eleven chicks. They took white diarrhea. Having never had the disease among my chickens, I knew nothing about the trouble, but have raised four fine pullets and two cockerels. Now, it is about those cockerels I want your advice. The one is a long-bodied, long-legged, long-necked bird, feathered out first, crowed first, has smaller comb and wattles. His legs are strong and thick. The other is a beautiful bird, with shorter and broader back and fuller breast; good stocky legs and lovely neck and saddle feathers; larger comb and wattles than the other; in fact, he is beautiful. Which bird is better to keep for breeding? If you will kindly inform me I will be very grateful.

A.—I should keep the heavier cockerel, as he seems much the better bird. Am glad you had such a good hatch from the eggs COMFORT sent you, and I hope that this spring you will be able to raise a good flock from the pullets.

A. G. M.—Please tell me in the next issue of COMFORT, are White Leghorn chickens champion egg producers? (2) How do the White Wyandottes compare with the Leghorns in egg production?

A.—Leghorns are generally supposed to be the greatest egg producers. I prefer the White Wyandottes, especially in parts of the country where the winters are severe.

M. J. C.—I always look for your articles in poultry and enjoy following them. I enjoyed the article on caponizing, and had a good laugh about how clever you were to escape the instruction. Now I should have been right on the job—as the boys say—for I graduated from a training school and then worked fifteen years, and I say to my friends when they wonder how I can draw squabs, that is nothing in comparison to seeing a person sick or suffering. I have pigeons, and try to raise chickens, and try to get my hens to lay, but they seem more content to just sing. I have thought I would try caponizing sometime, if I ever got a start. Can you give me some pointers on dry picking broilers? I have the most trouble with the two and two and a half pound size. I am so slow about it, and the skin does tear so easily. I can hardly pick four in an hour. I tie the legs and hang on a nail, then slip a salt bag up on the body, over the heads. That prevents them from breaking the wings, which I did have a great deal of trouble with when I locked the wings. I can pick squabs quite rapidly, but the broilers get me. I am simply a rag when I get one dozen picked. I still have about 100 broilers to sell—have sold over 100. If you can help me I shall appreciate it very much. I winter about 150 hens, am trying turkeys; have only five—my first trial. Have a pair of white guineas, and about 600 pigeons. I wish that I might know you personally.

A.—I am afraid I can't teach you how to dry pick, on paper. It is one of the cases where practise makes perfect. Thanks for saying you would like to know me personally. I have had the pleasure of meeting many of our COMFORT readers at poultry and agricultural shows throughout the country, and it is like meeting an old friend. I enjoy it thoroughly.

F. C.—There are a few questions I'd like to ask concerning my chickens. It was through your columns I decided to keep some. I got one dozen hens and a cock from a friend (Brown Leghorns) last summer (1913). I set two hens a man down the street loaned me, and got 17 pullets. They started to lay Nov. 23rd; hatched June 21st, so they did well. I crossed these this spring with a full-blooded R. I. cockerel (Nutley's strain), and now my troubles begin. I had one with a sore eye came out of the house one morning, closed up tight. I washed it with peroxide, swabbed out the mouth, and kept her in a small run. There was a small canker sore on one side of her mouth. I kept her two days and then killed her. I was afraid it might spread. Three days after, there was another, sister to the other; I treated her the same way. She recovered, and has just laid her first egg. I gave all of them some roup remedy for a week, so there is no sign of any more; all doing well and starting to lay. The reason I ask you about this, I saw an article in the October number relating to sore eyes. You answered the party and said it was caused by improper feeding. Now I have thirty-two and one cock and a young cockerel hatched in May. I want him for next season. He is of a different strain from the cock (also Nutley's.) I killed off all the old hens I had at first, also the B. L. cock. I have the seventeen B. L. from last year; six pullets of the crossed breed; nine pullets R. I. R. of eggs I got from the party I got the cockerel from. I had nineteen cockerels, but fattened them for the table and killed them. Now my house is eight by ten. I have three roost sticks, two windows. One I have covered with muslin. Attached to this on the south and west side I have an extension of glass. West side ten feet, south eight feet, and six feet deep. The glass slants so the sun shines in all day. I put in a litter of straw and hay sweepings from November 1 until March. After that I feed in the dirt and take out glass. I whitewash every two months until Nov., and then I spray with disinfectant. The litter is changed every two weeks. I keep tobacco stems in the nests under the hay in winter, and use sand all summer. The dropping board I clean every morning, while they eat, so I can tell if they clean up all the feed. While the weather is good they go out on range. I have six acres of weeds and sod. (It will be a building site some day, as I am just caretaker for a real estate company.) There is lots of clover and when it freezes over, I feed cabbage, beets, and any other vegetable I can get. My method of feeding (summer): One quart scratch in dirt, 5 A. M., one quart bran, cornmeal, middlings, meat scrap, dampened because they can't scratch it out, noon; one half to two quarts scratch or cracked corn, 5.30. Winter: One quart scratch in litter, 6.30 A. M., according to light; one quart bran, corn-meal, middlings. Alfalfa meal and one pound fresh ground green bone, noon; one head of cabbage or other vegetable. 2 P. M. I feed in a two-inch wire mesh doubled over and nailed on wall, and the hens pick it out between the wires. Two quarts whole corn at 4 P. M. Now, what I want to know is, whether to feed meat when giving the bone. The party I got the eggs from said not to feed both, and do I give enough or too much, and did the sore eyes come from the feed, or is it roup?

A.—Your method of feeding and care for your chickens is all good. I think the trouble was due to cold only. Examine the house: there may be some knothole or crack which causes a draft which strikes the birds when they are on the perch. You checked the trouble so soon that I hope you have avoided all serious difficulty. Green bone and meat scraps should not be used at the same time. I use green bone in winter, when it is easy to keep, and dried meat scraps in summer.

Mrs. J. M.—Will you please tell me why my hens do not lay? I have ten from last year, and twenty that were hatched the first of April this year. I only got one or two eggs a day from old hens and none from young ones. I keep houses and yards clean, plenty of fresh water. I feed warm mash of bran and meal mornings, cracked poultry food at dinner, and corn and oats at night. They have plenty of green feed, such as grass, cabbage and sprouted oats. They are in a quarter acre lot and have plenty of grit. They seem to be perfectly healthy and are not lazy. I have fifteen pullets that were hatched first of June. They are large as hens. When ought they to begin laying? My chickens are S. C. Rhode Island Reds. They took the prize at the county fair this fall.

A.—From your description I fancy the old hens and the twenty pullets hatched the first of April commenced laying soon after you wrote me. The others, hatched in June, should have commenced laying in December. Unless forced from babyhood, Rhode Island Reds rarely commence to lay before they are seven months old.

R. R.—Will you please tell me through your paper how old a Dark Brahma pullet has to be to breed from?

A.—Brahma and Cochin, and all such heavy breeds, should be over nine months old when used in breeding pens.

M. B.—I want to know if any of the sisters can tell me a remedy for sore head in poultry, and what causes it. My poultry are bad with it now; what can I do to prevent it?

A.—I fear your birds have roup, or at least a severe cold bordering on the roupy condition. It is safe to treat all bad colds which show no swelling at the head or eyes as roup, for, if neglected, a cold is liable to develop into that dread disease, and it is safer to take immediate steps to prevent such a calamity. Remove all such birds from the flock and confine them in small, dry coops, which may be kept in a shed, or some dry place, far removed from the general roosting place. Dissolve a teaspoonful of permanganate of potassium flakes in one pint of water. For use, dilute one tablespoonful of the mixture with two of water. Moisten a small piece of cotton in the lotion and bathe the bird's face and eyes with it. Then, if you have a medicine dropper, fill it, and squeeze ten or twelve drops of the lotion down the bird's throat, and two or three drops into each eye and nostril. If you have no medicine dropper, use a clean wing feather. Feed lightly on mash food. Repeat the treatment twice a day for a week, and unless the bird shows unmistakable signs of improvement at the end of that time, kill it and burn the carcases.

H. O S.—Something is the matter with my hens and pullets. One side of their head swells and eye swells shut and is that way for about two weeks or longer. It is very hard and yellow, but gradually goes away. It must be catching, for it has affected four now. They just droop around, but I have lost none with it. Their quarters are clean, dry and well ventilated.

A.—The condition you describe suggests a tumorous growth, but, as four birds are affected, I think it must be the result of cold. Open the bird's beak, and notice if there is any disagreeable odor to the breath. If so, the case has developed into roup. But if there is no odor, it may be only a case of canker, which is only mildly contagious. In either case, I advise you to disinfect the chicken-house, feed and water dishes. For method of treating birds, please read answer to M. B.

No Name or Initials.—I keep my chickens in a pen about fifty by one hundred feet. The young chickens get to be nearly grown, and then their wings drop down, and their feathers all fluff up, and they sit around and die. Sometimes they will eat good, and sometimes they won't eat at all, and they just seem to sleep till they die. I thought at first it was the hot weather, but now it is cold, and they die just the same. I feed them oats and wheat in a litter, and then I feed mash with Prussian tonic. Nearly all that die are roosters—some pullets. I hatched nearly three hundred and I have lost nearly all. I have the Plymouth Rocks, mostly. I give them carrots and Alfalfa meal to eat also, and oyster shell. I have tried nearly everything, and I can't find anything that will stop it. Can you tell me? Sometimes their heads turn dark before they die.

A.—The hens must be constitutionally weak, or else the ground of the henyard has become foul and the birds are infected with intestinal worms. As soon as the weather will permit, scatter freshly slaked lime over the ground and after twelve hours have it plowed, harrowed and sown to oats, or to some quick growing crop. This will kill infection, and sweeten the earth before the birds are let out on it in spring. Try not to keep old and young stock together. Go through the flock and try to clean it up now, before the breeding season starts. Remove a few birds at a time to a small coop, the bottom of which should be made of slats one inch apart, and the coop should rest on short legs, so that the droppings can fall through out of the imprisoned birds' reach. Withhold supper after the birds are put into the small coop, and early the next morning give them a small quantity of mash, made by moistening ground grain with Castor oil—about half a teaspoonful for each bird. Feed so that you can be sure that each bird gets a fair portion. Clean up all the droppings about every two hours and burn. About midday the birds can have another light feed. Keep them on short rations for two days, and then repeat the oil mash once more. When the whole flock has been dosed in this way, add a little nux vomica and tincture of iron to the drinking water, to tone up their systems.

W. J. D.—Will you tell me what was the matter with my ducks, and at what age do they begin to lay? I have ten; five hatched off the 14th of June, and five more the 26th of June. When they were about two months old they got something wrong with them; couldn't walk; would fall over on their backs and some of them would crawl along. It seemed to affect their throats, as some of them can hardly quack. I gave them Pratt's Poultry Food, and rubbed their joints with a liniment. They eat hearty all the time. Will it affect them in breeding, and how can you tell the drakes from the ducks? My ducks are Indian Runners.

A.—Indian Runner ducks should commence to lay when from five to six months old. Leg-weakness is usually caused by overfeeding of grain. Mash for young ducks should be made of equal parts of ground oats, corn, and double the quantity of wheat bran. You can distinguish the drakes from the ducks by the two small feathers that curl up on the tail of the drake.

E. W. S.—I noticed in the Poultry Dept. an item about turkeys. I, too, raise turkeys, and I think if G. K. and J. L. J. will try giving their turkeys raw linseed oil, they will find it a great benefit in their trouble. I have always had trouble with turkeys dying at the time when they "shoot the red." G. K. described my trouble with turkeys as well as I could myself, and this treatment is all we ever found to do any good. I give a very young poult one tablespoonful of the oil, and a poult after it is two months old and on up until it is grown two tablespoonfuls. If they are not better by a day or two, I repeat the dose. I have also found this the only cure for limberneck in chickens. I give a young chick a tablespoonful, and an older or a grown chick two tablespoonfuls. I think it safe to say this will cure nine out of every ten cases if given at the start. I have not lost a sick turkey since I was told of this remedy. I hope this will be of value to others in trouble.

A.—The above is a letter from a subscriber, which I am sure will be appreciated by many of our readers. I have never tried raw linseed oil, but as Castor oil is a very useful remedy in many poultry ailments, I can understand that the linseed oil may be just as serviceable.

P. R.—Please tell me how old pigeons have to be before they commence laying and nesting? I read in COMFORT that a pair of pigeons require a box two feet long, one foot high, and the same wide, with a partition through the center. Please tell me what the partition is for.

A.—Young pigeons pair and commence to lay when about five months old. You ask, why put up a partition through the nest box. It is done to divide the two nests necessary for each pair of breeders. The female pigeon lays a second clutch of eggs and commences to set when the squabs in the first nest are about two weeks old, and as this double family goes on all through the breeding season, the two nests are nearly always occupied. If there was no partition through the center of the box, the young squabs would bother the mother bird while she was sitting. The male pigeon feeds and takes care of the half-grown squab, and often feeds the female while she is sitting.

H. H. Y.—I have read several times different articles about using artificial light in henhouses for the purpose of making hens lay more eggs by giving them more hours of light for working. I supposed the articles were true, but some of my neighbors say not. As you are an authority on chickens, will you please answer through your columns in COMFORT and oblige.

A.—It is quite true that some of the larger poultry plants have installed electric lights in chicken-houses, and use them for a few hours during the short and dark days to enable birds to feed from 5.30 until 6 o'clock, as they do in summer. When artificial light is used, it is turned off gradually, so that the house becomes slightly dusk, which drives the birds to the roosts as naturally as the sun sinking drives them to bed during the summer.

O. B.—Will you please tell me what ails my chickens? I am almost worried to death about them. The disease is going through the country, and several neighbors have lost nearly all their birds. Nothing we do seems to do any good. They look perfectly healthy when the disease strikes them, and eat heartily till they get so blind they can't find anything. The first signs are small knots or bumps coming around the eye, and just keeps coming until the entire head is covered with a mass of feverish corruption, and seem feverish all over, but some are red till they are almost dead; then turn yellow. They run on range, and eat mostly rice in hull. Feed some corn once in a while. Never had any trouble before. I am sending a stamped and addressed envelope, so if you can tell me what to do, please answer by return mail if possible. Have only lost one so far, and one more sick. They get plenty of good fresh water, and have a good house, but lots of mites. I am an old subscriber.

A.—The birds have what is known as chicken or bird pox, which is a contagious disease, so remove them from the rest of the flock, clean and disinfect house, water dishes and feed troughs. Rub vaseline or some pure grease over the head and face to soften the hard skin, and after allowing it to sink in for half an hour, bathe with warm, soapy water. Dry on a soft, clean rag, and then anoint with carbolic vaseline or a solution of boric acid. Repeat once a day until a cure is effected. I am sorry, but it is against our rules to answer letters by mail.

Help From One of Our Readers

I find the following prescription a good preventive and cure for little chicken cholera or white diarrhea. I also keep it out for my old birds and have no trouble with cholera.

One gill of diluted sulphuric acid and one half pound of copperas dissolved in one gallon rain-water. Dose: one tablespoonful in each quart of drinking water. This prescription costs fifteen cents. MRS. W. G.

Have You Confidence in the Publisher of "COMFORT"?

Watch the Woman!

Do you think she is really working? Not a bit of it! Yet she is doing a big week's washing. The real work is done by the 1900 Gravity Washer, which makes most of its own motion. The thing that helps to make it go is under the tub.

If women knew what a wonderful help the 1900 Gravity Washer is, not one would be without it. It saves work and worry and doctor's bills. Takes away all the dread and drudgery of wash day. It saves soap, saves wear and tear on the clothes. Never breaks buttons or injures the most delicate fabrics. It certainly does beautiful work.

Send No Money!

The Washer Pays for Itself

We ask no cash in advance—no deposit—no notes. The trial is absolutely free. If you keep it, simply pay us a little each week, or each month, out of what it saves for you.

If, after a full month's free trial, you decide not to keep it, simply notify us to send for it. We will take it back without a word of complaint. The trial will not cost you a penny and will not place you under the slightest obligation.

Of course you have. For W. H. Gannett, Publisher of COMFORT, not only holds the key to over a million and a quarter of homes, but to the hearts of his readers as well.

The fact that you have such a high regard for the publisher of your favorite paper is all the more reason why you will be doubly interested in a letter we have recently received from his wife. Mr. Gannett himself says that the helpfulness and good cheer that radiate from the pages of COMFORT have much of their inspiration from her.

Here is her letter, word for word, just as we received it:

Mrs. W. H. Gannett, Wife of the Publisher of COMFORT,

Writes that She Would Not Take $1,000 for Her 1900 Washer

AUGUSTA, MAINE, Nov. 9, 1908.

The 1900 Washer Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN:—I tell my friends I would not part with the 1900 Washer for a thousand dollars. It works to perfection; washing my clothes as white and as clean as possible and doing my washing very easily and quickly. It happened the machine came one of the hottest days of the year, and as my wash woman was late that day I thought it was a nice time for me to give it a good trial. I was certainly very happily surprised to find how quickly and easily a large washing could be done without my getting so very tired. Thus I was able to do my washing, hang out my clothes and visit my friends out of the City all in the forenoon. At another time I arrived home at ten o'clock Monday morning and as the woman I had engaged to help me was ill at home, the 1900 Washer again came to my rescue and I was able to get the washing all done before noon. The more my servants use it the better they like it, and we could not keep house without the 1900 Washer. It has saved the price of the machine many times and there is no wear and tear on the clothes washed in this way.

I am voluntarily writing you this letter hoping it will be the means of helping other housekeepers to overcome some of the difficulties and drudgery of wash day, for if they will only TRY the 1900 Washer I know they will always use it, as I find it works just as well washing small linens as it does for heavy wool blankets or bed spreads and table cloths. Hoping you will be able to place a 1900 Washer in every home in the land, I am,

Yours very truly, (Signed) MRS. W. H GANNETT

How to Wash Without Work

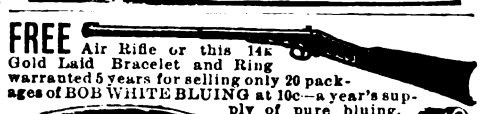
Write for Free Book About the Wonderful Washer That Almost Runs Itself

This Washer has a whirling motion and moves up and down as it whirls. No paddles or machinery inside. Yet it takes the dirt out so quickly that a tubful is washed in six minutes! Washes anything, from rugs to daintiest laces. Does it better than is done by hand or with any other washer. And actually pays for itself.

Women who have used the Washboard all their lives just rub their eyes in amazement the first time they see a 1900 Washer at work. They exclaim—"Can it be true that it washes clothes clean in six minutes!" They take out the clothes when the six minutes are up, and sure enough—they're white and clean, exactly as Mrs. Gannett says. You just ought to write and get one on Free Trial, so you can see for yourself.

Four Weeks' Washings Done FREE! Washers Shipped Everywhere on Trial

We pay the freight. We give you a genuine Free Trial. We don't ask for cash or notes. You get the Gravity Washer just by asking for it. An entire month's use of it (four weekly washings) FREE. This free trial will tell you more than we could in a page of this paper. How it saves backache and arm-ache and perspiring over a steaming tub, rubbing the skin off your fingers. Thousands of women are now using the 1900 Gravity Washer. They tried it first—at our risk. We simply sent the Washer and let it sell itself. Send for the beautiful free book, "Washing a Tubful in 6 Minutes." This story of the 1900 Washer is of fascinating interest. You should read it. Address, The 1900 Washer Co., 1436 Court St., Binghamton, N. Y. Or, if you live in Canada, send to The Canadian 1900 Washer Co., 355 Yonge St., Toronto, Can.



AGENTS 100%

Now gas-generating Coal-oil lamp. Absolutely safe. Big money saver.

300 Candle Power

Light it and make a sale. Thousands sold. Big profits on every sale. $60 a week easy. Low retail price. Attractive terms to agents. Write for territory and free trial offer. A postal will do.

THOMAS MFG. CO.
5130 Home St. DAYTON, OHIO

FREE Air Rifle or this 14K Gold Laid Bracelet and Ring warranted 5 years for selling only 20 packages of BOB WHITE BLUING at 10c—a year's supply of pure bluing. Return $2 from sales and the above premiums or choice from large catalog will be forwarded. WE TRUST YOU. Write today. Reliable Firm.

BOB WHITE BLUING CO., Dept. F, BALTIMORE, MD.

FREE WATCH, RING AND CHAIN

Our fully guaranteed watch is highly engraved, stem-wind, stem-set, simulated gold finished; desirable size, late thin model, fancy bezel, new design; given free to anyone for selling 20 jewelry articles at 10c ea. Order jewelry now; when sold send $2, and we'll send you watch, exquisite three-stone RING and fine Ladies' or Gent's Chain FREE.

DALE WATCH CO., DEPT. 12, CHICAGO

SONG POEMS WANTED for publication. You may write a big song hit! Experience unnecessary. Publication guaranteed if acceptable. Send us your verses or melodies today. Write for free valuable booklet.

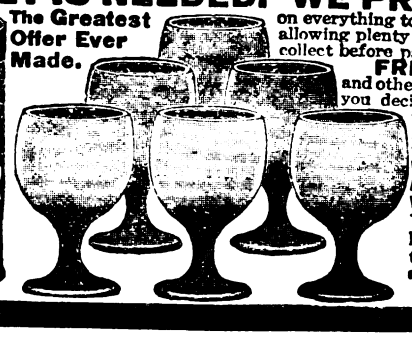
MARKS-GOLDSMITH CO., Dept. 38, Washington, D. C.

YOU NEED NO MONEY. We Trust You with Our Goods.

MAGNIFICENTLY DECORATED FULL-SIZE DINNER SET FREE

WE PREPAY FREIGHT On Premiums, Baking Powder, etc.

To gain a wider distribution for our strictly pure, high-grade groceries and family supplies, we now offer ABSOLUTELY FREE this handsome, full size, artistically embossed and magnificently



FLORAL DECORATED 112-PIECE DINNER SET

to every lady who distributes only a few pounds of Belle Baking Powder. With each pound Baking Powder, you may give Six Full Size Crystal White Glass Goblets, as per plan 663 (the goblets alone are worth as much as the price of the entire plan). Our Plans sell at sight. Many other Tea, Coffee and Grocery offers equally as cheap in price. If preferred, you can have choice of hundreds of other useful premiums, such as Furniture, Wearing Apparel, Linen Sets, Graniteware, Lamps, Rugs, Clocks, in fact anything you need, or we WILL PAY YOU A LARGE CASH COMMISSION. Best of all,

NO MONEY IS NEEDED. WE PREPAY FREIGHT

The Greatest Offer Ever Made.

on everything to your nearest Railroad Station, allowing plenty of time to examine, deliver and collect before paying us. Write at once for our FREE SAMPLE OUTFIT and other things. If after receiving them, you decide not to get up an order, you may keep everything we send you FREE of charge for the trouble in answering this advertisement. WE ALSO GIVE ELEGANT PRESENTS FOR APPOINTING ONE OR MORE AGENTS TO WORK FOR US. NO LICENSE NEEDED. You advance no money. You have nothing to risk. Remember, the Special Premium and Sample Outfit are both absolutely free. WRITE TODAY.

Special FREE Present

We give a 26-Pc. Silverine Knife, Fork and Spoon Set, or 7-Pc. High-Grade Granite Kitchen Set, or Elegant 10-Pc. Decorated Toilet Set, FREE of all cost or work of any kind. Simply send us your name & address and ask for this FREE PRESENT

THE PURE FOOD CO. 746 W. PEARL ST. CINCINNATI, - OHIO.

Will You Introduce These Styles for Us, If You Get

Your Suit FREE

Here we go again, breaking all records for new, nobby, ahead-of-the-time styles. Be the first in your town to wear a suit that is ahead of the time. Earn it while you wear it; we send the suit complete, you can make big money too; there is

$50 to $100 a Week

in it for you. Drop us a postal for our advance book, select the styles you want and the cloth, let us prove how you can get

Your Suit FREE

Don't wait. Don't delay. Write right away. A postal will do. We send everything the day your request is received. We pay express on everything. Get busy. Simply send us a postal with your name and address on it.

Paragon Tailoring Co.
DEPT. 207 CHICAGO

Wear Next Season's Style NOW

BOYS and GIRLS Shetland PONIES FREE

If you have ever dreamed of having a nice little pony, write for my plan that has made it easy for boys and girls to get ponies. All my ponies are well trained and gentle. If you haven't a pony and want this one send me your name today

Don't send any money, Just send your name. On a postal card, say: "I want you to send me a pony free," Address

UNCLE JERRY, The Pony Man A92, E. 4th St., ST. PAUL, MINN.

Steel Shoe Book Saves You $20!

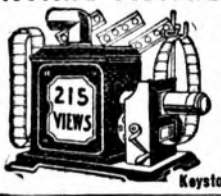
1 Pair Outlasts 3 to 6 Pairs All-Leathers FREE

10-Day Try-On

If you are tired of wet, sore, calloused feet — Rheumatism and Colds — hard, twisted, leaky Leather—Big Doctor and Shoe Bills—loss of time, money, health and comfort — TRY FREE my Latest Triumph—Leather Tapped "Steels" Light, Springy, Comfortable, Economical, Waterproof, Warm in winter—Cool in summer—Adjustable Leather Taps, instantly renewed. FREE BOOK tells how you can try "steels" 10 days FREE and save $10 to $20 shoe money.

N. M. Ruthstein—Steel Shoe Man—Dept. 135, Racine, Wis.

1000 Shot Steel Air RIFLE GIVEN



Hamilton 22 Cal. Hunting RIFLE Without Cost

BOYS! We give choice of four Guns (on 4 Easy Plans) for selling our New "Healena"—The Salve that Heals—at 25 cents a box. WE TRUST YOU. Order 6 Boxes Magic Healing "Healena" today, we send promptly. Easy to sell because it is a necessity in every home. When sold, send us our $1.60 and select your Gun, according to one of the four plans, as you are entitled, in our big list. Extra Gift—just for promptness, so order today.

WAVERLY SUPPLY CO., Box 242 Monongahela, Pa.

MOVING PICTURE MACHINE FREE

With four complete reels. Three special process films showing beautiful colored pictures. 250 other presents FREE for selling our gold eye needles. Easy to sell. 2 packages for 10c. with thimble FREE. Order goods today.

WE TRUST YOU

When sold return us $1.20 and receive premium entitled to select from our premium book.

Keystone Novelty Co., Box 235 Greenville, Pa.

ACCORDIAN FREE Extra sweet toned, deep voiced and melodious. Ten keys, full set of reeds. Ebonized case, nickel plated valves and trimmings. Given free for distributing 8 set of pictures on special 25c offer. Send name. M. O. SEITZ, 1F5 CHICAGO

RAISE GUINEA PIGS

We furnish stock—show you how and buy all you raise. Big demand—thousands needed yearly. Easy and inexpensive to raise—very prolific—more profitable and less trouble than poultry or squabs. Particulars free

CAVIES DISTRIBUTING CO., 754 West 74th St., KANSAS CITY, MO.

BOYS and GIRLS if you wish to make money, write me and I will send you $5.00 worth of my goods without a cent down, and allow you 20% for selling. BOX 388—LEAKSVILLE, N. C.

14K GOLD FILLED SIGNET RING, guaranteed 3 years, any initial engraved FREE to introduce our latest Jewelry bulletin Send 12c to cover advertising and postage.

EAGLE JEWELRY CO., Dept. 46, East Boston, Mass.

$10 SAMPLE WATCH FREE

to anyone who will wear and sell our watches among their friends. $10 to $30 a Week can be earned by agents who devote their entire time to the sales of these watches. Write Now for our Free Sample Watch and terms, to OGDEN JEWELRY CO., Dept. 8 CHICAGO

OLD Sores and Eczema, New Remedy for Eczema, Fever and Leg Sores. Box FREE
A Rones Remedy Co., Box 93, Milwaukee, Wis.

GENUINE DIAMOND RING FREE Solid Gold Filled, warranted 3 yrs. Set with small GENUINE DIAMOND chip. To interest you in our fine gold filled rings, will send this ring your size, upon receipt of only 12c coin to help pay advertising. Money refunded if you are not pleased.

THE AUCTION CO., Dept. 190, Attleboro, Mass.

Chatelaine Watch

Given for a Club of Eight

THIS beautiful little Chatelaine Watch with Fleur-de-Lis Pin is one of the finest premiums we have to offer. For any woman or girl it is the queen of all gifts. The watch is about the size of illustration, a thin model with a handsome silver finished dust proof case and pure white dial with Arabic numerals. It is a guaranteed timekeeper being fitted with one of the best American movements, stem wind and set. With this dainty little timepiece we also give you the always popular "Fleur-de-Lis" pin with which to fasten the watch to the dress in true chatelaine style and both Watch and pin will come to you in a handsome black leatherette, satin lined case. You can have this chatelaine watch with pin and case complete free by taking advantage of the following

Club Offer. For a club of only eight 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or four 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you this handsome chatelaine watch with pin and case free by Parcel Post prepaid. (Premium No. 359.)

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Me.

A Corner for Boys

By Uncle John

THIS is the month in which we do well to celebrate the birthdays of the two greatest and best men that America has produced,—and it is difficult to find their equal in all history. At this time when more than half the world is engaged in the most horrible and destructive war that ever was we should study with especial care the deeds, the character and the teachings of these two men who, though they abhorred war, shrank not, each in his time, from conducting our country through a great war because it was necessary to the establishment and perpetuation of national liberty, unity and peace.

The whole world honors them because they were men of peace yet preferred war to dishonorable peace, who made war as a last resort and effective means of abolishing intolerable conditions inevitably productive of strife and under which no honorable or lasting peace could be reasonably expected.

While I enthusiastically support the movement in favor of universal peace and the settlement of international disputes by arbitration I realize that that this object cannot be obtained through treaties so long as the spirit of militarism and the ambition for conquest permeates the people and dominates the policy of certain great European nations. And I feel it a patriotic duty, under these conditions, to point out the danger of following the lead of those who are urging that the United States should set the example of disarming now, and relying solely on an appeal to humanity's sense of justice for the protection of our national power and rights when threatened with attack by an envious and aggressive foreign power.

While robbers, thieves and murderers exist we must have police for the protection of the lives and property of peaceable citizens, and so long as there are robber nations that maintain immense military establishments with a view to taking what they want by force we, as a nation, must maintain an army and navy strong enough, not only to protect our land, our resources, our wealth and our commerce, all which they covet, but also to make them afraid to attack us.

It is costly to maintain a well-equipped and efficient army and navy in time of peace in order to avoid war, but this is far cheaper and immensely preferable to having war forced on us because of our unpreparedness.

If unprepared our advocacy of peace may be disclaimed and misjudged as due to our sense of weakness, while if known to be prepared for war our appeal for peace and arbitration will command due attention and respect.

The lesson of the present war, in which Belgium has been destroyed and a large part of France ruined because they were not prepared for effective defence when suddenly attacked, should teach us to act on Washington's advice to avoid war, but in time of peace prepare for war as the best and surest means of maintaining peace.

I hope you will all read the interesting story, in this issue, of the exploits of General Marion, the South Carolina hero, whose motto was "Liberty or Death," which he wore inscribed on a silver crescent on the front of his hat.

This month I am telling you how to make some more things to occupy your spare time indoors this cold weather.

A Table Trick

Sometimes at a party or any social event when conversation lags you can make yourself agreeable by introducing a trick. Place four glasses in in the form of a square and just far enough apart to make it impossible to place a knife so that its handle will rest on one glass and the end of the blade on another. Then propose to the company that you can so arrange the knives, without moving the glasses, that they will rest upon them, each handle touching only one glass. Some of the guests will say that you cannot others will want to try it themselves. After they have all given it up you can accomplish the trick by arranging them as shown in the picture.

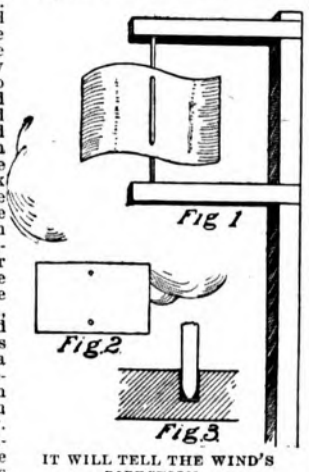
A TABLE TRICK.

Peculiar Gloves

Doctors who perform operations or work in hospitals where they attend persons afflicted with poisonous wounds must be very careful not to get any poisonous fluid on their own hands or they in turn would become patients. Rubber gloves are usually used as a protection against such dangers but they are quite clumsy for the very delicate work the surgeons are expected to do. A new glove for doctors is put on by dipping the hands in a solution of gutta percha which might be called "liquid rubber." The doctor's hands appear to be covered with ink or some thin stain when he removes them but in truth they are coated with a very thin film of rubber which resists the poison should he happen to come in contact with it. When he is through working the gloves are washed off with another solution.

Can You Do This?

Stand in an upright position without leaning against or touching your hand to any object and raise the left hand and left foot or the right hand and right foot, it matters not, to the position shown in the picture. Now try to turn or revolve each in opposite directions. I think you will find it quite impossible to do this but trying it will yield you much amusement and many a hearty laugh. Look at the drawing and the direction the arrows are pointing.



IT WILL AFFORD FUN.

Deep Sea Monsters

At the bottom of the sea there exist many terrible monsters that never leave their dark abiding places. One of these called the "black swallower," devours other finny creatures ten times as big as itself, literally climbing over its victim, first with one jaw and then the other. Another species is nearly all mouth and having no power of motion, lives half buried in the soft ooze at the bottom, its awful mouth alone protruding, ready to engulf any prey that may wander into it. There is a ferocious kind of shark resembling a large eel. All of the monsters are black as ink. Some are totally blind, while others have enormous goggling eyes. No ray of sunlight ever pierces their dwelling places. Each species is gobbled by the next in size for there is no vegetable life to feed on.

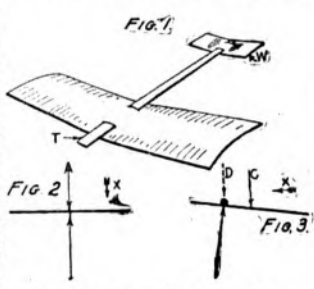
Windmill

Here is about the simplest windmill possible and I publish it for beginners with whom I wish to get acquainted. For the wheel you need a piece of tin shaped like Fig. 2 and of any size. Punch two holes in it and put a metal rod or hard wood stick through them. Next make the framework shown in the picture and bore a hole one inch deep in the bottom or lower horizontal piece for the end of the shaft to turn in, under the pointed lower end of this shaft place a piece of tin to reduce the friction and make it turn more easily. Stick the windmill up any place and if there is any wind it will buzz around at a merry clip. You are privileged to write me on any subject you are interested in and if you take the trouble to inclose a stamp I will certainly reply.

IT WILL TELL THE WIND'S DIRECTION.

A Puzzling Experiment

Here is one of those baffling tricks which we are willing to swear we can do until we have tried and failed. Extend the right hand at full length and bend the thumb into the position shown in the lower drawing. Be sure that the top of the thumb is pressed firmly into the palm of the hand. Now, retaining the thumb in the position explained raise the hand and press it as far under the arm as you possiby can, as illustrated in the upper sketch. While the hand is still under the arm straighten the thumb out and try to replace it. I believe you will find it quite impossible to replace the thumb in its original position. If there be any reason for this it is up to some skilled surgeon to explain it.

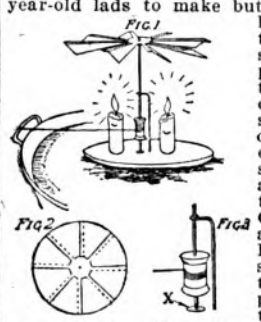


PUZZLE FOR THE BOYS.

African Waterfalls

Americans like to think that Niagara is the largest waterfall in the world but such is not the case. There are several African cataracts which surpass our great wonder both in grandeur and magnitude. Niagara Falls has a sheer drop of 168 feet but the Zambesi river plunges 400 feet. The crest of the Victoria Falls is a little more than five times as long as the American Falls at Niagara. One fact must be mentioned however, the crest of our falls is unbroken while the Victoria is broken up by small islands the largest of which is about 600 feet across. To go back to the Zambesi, just before it takes its plunge it is joined by the Kwando river and spreads out into a vertiable lake. Strange to say the surface of this lake is very smooth and its banks are perpendicular and straight. Beside it our great Niagara would look small for it is a whole lake and not merely a river that sweeps over the precipice.

Aeroplane



Here is a little paper flyer that you can make yourself. First you want a thin stick like a sliver of an old basket or butter-dish, or a piece of cardboard will do. It should be six inches long and one half inch wide. Get a piece of stiff letter paper or thin cardboard and pierce it with the stick in the center like "T," then a smaller piece for the tail like "W." Now you hold it flat as high as you can read an let go. Instead of dropping right to the ground it will float across the room. Notice the way the paper parts are curved and make yours accordingly.

IF MADE RIGHT IT WILL FLOAT.

A Candle Power Boat

In olden times lads were content to make little models of boats merely for the looks of the thing but nowadays boys are fond of toys that will move. It keeps me busy getting those moving models down to a simple enough basis for ten-year-old lads to make but even the dullest will have no trouble with this boat. A piece of shingle whittled to a pumpkin-seed shape is the beginning. In the center force a piece of stiff wire and bend it over at the top with an eye or loop in it as shown in Fig. 3. Mark a piece of cardboard or tin as shown in Fig. 2. Cut on the solid lines and bend on the dotted lines. For an upright shaft use a hatpin with the ball at top. The point is threaded through the loop in the wire and through a spool. It rests upon a small piece of tin so it will not sink into the wood. The spool is fastened tightly to the pin. Light the candles and the heat waves rising up will cause the wheel at the top to turn. The spool will also turn thus winding up the thread and causing the boat to be drawn back to shore.

FUN FOR THE SMALL BOY.

In March I shall have something more to tell you about the Boy Scouts that should be very interesting as well as instructive, for it will describe how to take care of yourselves and make strong, healthy active boys of you. Till then be good boys. Good by.

UNCLE JOHN.

VIOLIN FREE

This is a fine, handsome, clear-toned, good size Violin of highly polished, beautiful wood, ebony finished pegs, finger board and tail piece, one silver string, three gut strings, long bow of white horse-hair, box of resin and FINE SELF-INSTRUCTION BOOK. Send us your name and address for 24 packages of BLUINE to sell at 10 cents a package. When sold return our $2.40 and we will send you this beautiful Violin and outfit just exactly as represented.

BLUINE MFG. CO.
467 Mill St., Concord Jct., Mass.

THIS WATCH RING AND CHAIN FREE

Gold ring, chain and watch—keeps perfect time and stem wind and set. Just send us your name and address. We trust you. Then we'll send you 20 packages Gold Eye needles and 20 thimbles. Sell needles at 10c package, giving thimble free; return $2 to us and we'll send watch, ring and chain. Write today.

GLOBE WATCH COMPANY, Dept. 100, Greenville, Pa.

PATENTS SECURED OR FEE RETURNED.
Free reports as to Patentability. Illustrated Guide Book, and List of Inventions Wanted, sent free.
VICTOR J. EVANS & CO., 41 Ninth, WASHINGTON, D. C.

WE PAY $80 A MONTH SALARY
and furnish rig and all expenses to introduce our guaranteed poultry and stock powders. Address BIGLER COMPANY, X314, SPRINGFIELD, ILLINOIS

MEN WANTED
We positively teach you at home by mail to earn $25 to $50 weekly as Chauffeur or Repairman. Students assisted to positions. Best system, lowest price. MODELS FURNISHED. Write for Free Book. PRACTICAL AUTO SCHOOL, 70-F Beaver Street, New York.

SILK ALL Fancy Colors—Large PIECES—ALL PURE SILK. Waste taken out; best sort for quilts, cushions, etc. Big lot, 10c. 3 for 25c, 7 for 50c, 1 lb, $1.00. Postpaid. S. G. Abernethy. Box 518, Myrtle, Miss.

MONEY $ Made easily by wise men. Key free. FAY—PATTON, PA. **$

$2.00 A DAY earned at home writing; send stamp. Address Art College, LAPORTE, IND.

MONEY Made quickly by smart men. T. ARTOL CO., 115 Nassau St., N.Y.

MOTHERS Use Zemeto and your children's beds will be dry. BOX FREE. Zemeto Co. D 11 Milwaukee, Wis.

FREE STERLING Big lever action air rifle for selling either 20 Pictures or 20 pkgs. Post Cards at 10c. Gates Mfg. Co. Dept 925 Chicago

UNCLE SAM IS BEST EMPLOYER; pay is high and sure; hours short; places permanent; promotions regular; vacations with pay; thousands of vacancies; all kinds of pleasant work everywhere; no layoffs; no pull needed; Common education sufficient. Special money back guarantee if you write today for booklet B-1015. IT IS FREE.
EARL HOPKINS, - Washington, D. C.
GET A BETTER PLACE

IN COMMEMORATION OF EXPOSITION.—The senate has authorized the coinage of ten, five, two-and-a-half and one half gold pieces to be commemorative of the Panama-Pacific exposition to be held in California in 1915. The coinage of some 50-cent pieces is also provided for.

GREY HAIR

Let me tell you free about a Simple, Harmless Guaranteed Method, which causes Grey Hair to return to natural colour of youth by a NATURAL PROCESS. It restored my grey hair to youthful colour after I had been grey for years. I have never become grey since. No "staining" the hair by dangerous dye concoctions, but a scientific, safe method, free from sticky or other objectionable features. It speedily but gradually brings back the same shade as in earlier years. Send me your name and address stating whether Mr., Mrs. or Miss, with two stamps for postage, and I will send you free the FREE full secret of my success.

Address Mrs. Mary K. Chapman, Suite 132, R Banigan Bldg., Prov. R.I.

Complete Printing Outfit

Given For a Club of Two

ALMOST everybody has use for a good printing outfit like the one illustrated above. The boys and girls get lots of pleasure and valuable instruction from it because it is great fun to print cards, address envelopes etc. and they also learn a great deal about the art of composition, type setting, correct use of capitals, abbreviations, etc. This outfit is also just what every woman needs with which to mark her linen with indelible ink. It consists of a six-font set of rubber type, or in other words, six of each of the letters in the alphabet with the exception of some more important letters which have eight and a few others only four such as Q, X and other letters which are not used so often. This Outfit also contains a double set of numerals, commas, periods, slugs (spaces to separate words)—in all about two hundred separate pieces of type and there is a two-line type holder, a pair of nickel pinchers (to pick up the type with) and an everlasting ink pad in a metal case. We also send you a wooden type case and complete instructions how to set type, how to print, etc. We will give you this complete printing outfit exactly as described if you will accept the following

Club Offer. For a club of only two 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this fine printing outfit free by Parcel Post prepaid. (Premium No. 526.)

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Plenty Money Easy Work

Make $10.00 a DAY

THIS OUTFIT FREE

EXPRESS CHARGES PAID ON EVERYTHING

Here's your one best chance of the season. "Live wires" all over the country are making $5.00 to $10.00 a day in their spare time with this magnificent outfit. You can do as well as any of them. We do all the work, you just take the orders and rake in your big fat profits.

No Money or Experience Needed

We want special agents everywhere to handle our immense business. No capital required. We send you this magnificent outfit absolutely free — all charges prepaid. Our selling plans bring the orders right to you. Every Reliable suit sells a dozen others. With our outfit you can live where you want, go where you want and always make a big city salary. Send for this magnificent outfit today. You are losing money every day until you get it.

SPECIAL OFFER

Peg Top Pants $260 Up

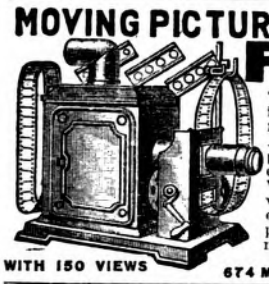
Reliable Peg Top are the finest made. No other tailoring house has yet been able to put into their garments the same swagger and dash, the same graceful lines, splendid workmanship and wonderful wearing qualities for the money. Be convinced what we say here is true. Have plenty money and easy work. Write today.

Reliable Tailoring Co., Dept. 112 Chicago

This concern is one the largest of its kind in the world. They guarantee satisfaction in every transaction.

Rescue for RHEUMATISM

Thousands are being relieved by the wonderful Rescue Foot Drafts. All ages, all conditions, all durations of disease. So confident are we that Rescue Foot Drafts will relieve you of your Rheumatism and restore you to old time vigor that we will send you a



$1.00 PAIR FREE

Apply them according to our simple instructions and directions. If they help you, send us $1, in payment, otherwise they cost you nothing. You are the judge. Write for free pair today. Our interesting, illustrated book on the treatment of Rheumatism sent you free upon request. Write today.

Sterling Institute, Dept. 2, Kalamazoo, Michigan

MOVING PICTURE MACHINE FREE

This genuine imported Moving Picture Machine with 4 films having over 150 views ALL GIVEN for selling 24 packages BLUINE at 10c. each. Write for BLUINE. When sold return $2.40 and we send machine, films and extra premium free of white paper show screen and admission tickets.

WITH 150 VIEWS

BLUINE MFG. CO., 674 Mill St., Concord Jct., Mass.

Get Rid of That FAT

Free Trial Treatment

Sent on request. Ask for my "pay-when-reduced" offer. My treatment has reduced at the rate of a pound a day. No dieting, no exercise, absolutely safe and sure method. Let me send you proof at my expense.

DR. R. NEWMAN, Licensed Physician

State New York, 58 Second Avenue, New York, Desk 156.

This Razor FREE SEND NO MONEY

Just send us your name and address and we will send you this fine Razor, direct from our big Factory for a free trial. Use it for 15 days, if you then consider it the finest razor made, you may keep it free of charge, providing you send us $1.85 for our Shaving Set, Strop Hone and Brush. Send 2c Stamp. Bell Razor Co., Dept. 314 Geneva, N. Y.

22 CAL. RIFLE FREE

Kills at 100 yards. Peep sights, lever action, walnut stock, barrel blue-black gun metal. Write for 30 pieces of Jewelry to sell at 10c each. When sold, return $3.00 and we send Rifle.

Columbia Novelty Co., Dept. 873, EAST BOSTON, MASS.

ASTHMA CURED Before You Pay

I will send any sufferer a $1.00 bottle of LANE'S REMEDY on FREE TRIAL By mail prepaid. If it cures, send me $1. If it does not, don't send me a cent.

Address D. J. LANE, 285 Lane Building, St. Marys, Kansas.

FREE

Violin Outfit for selling 20 pictures or 20 pkgs. post cards at 10c. Order your choice.

GATES MFG. CO. Dept. 725 Chicago

919 CARDS New Styles Gold Bevel Edge Hidden Name, Silk Fringe Envelope and Post Cards; 100 Rich and Racy Jokes; 1 Pack Fun, 1 Escort and Love Cards; Star Beau Catcher, Big Sample Book Cards, etc., all Two cents. UNION CARD CO., B 31 Columbus, Ohio.

GOLD shell Spectacles $1 a Pair Send for catalog. Agents wanted

Coulter Optical Co., Dept. B, Chicago, Ill.

Sweaters Free

For MEN, BOYS and small Children

We Are Giving Away All Free a Beautiful Sweater,

for men, women or children, to anyone selling only Six of our 25-cent Oxien Porous Plasters. We send the Six Oxien Porous Plasters to your address without money from you. After you sell them for 25 cents each you return us the money, $1.50 in all collected and the Sweater will be sent you. We do this to advertise our Wonderful Oxien Porous Plasters that have for a quarter century prevented and relieved thousands of ills including Rheumatism, Lame Back, Coughs, Pneumonia, Sprains, Kidney troubles, Weak Heart and Stomach disorders.

The Sweater we send you is perfect fitting, closely woven of high-grade yarns. May be washed at home without injury to color and will keep its shape. Order by chest measure, men, women and children's sizes in colors Brown, Navy, Cardinal and Gray.

Say you want to sell the Six Oxien 25-cent Porous Plasters and we will send same day we receive your order.

Address THE GIANT OXIE COMPANY, 24 Willow Street, Augusta, Maine.

VETERINARY INFORMATION

Subscribers are invited to write to this department asking for any information desired relative to the treatment of animal troubles. Questions will be answered in these columns free by an eminent veterinarian. Describe the trouble fully, sign full name and give your address; direct all correspondence to the Veterinary Department, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. Should any subscriber desire an immediate, special opinion on any question privately mailed, it may be had by sending one dollar with a letter asking such advice, addressing as above.

No atttention will be given any inquiry which lacks, the sender's full name and address, but we will print only initials if so requested.

CHOREA.—A distemper left my pup—six months old, lame in his right hind leg. It jerks all the time and he does not seem to have any use of that leg when he runs. MRS. J. R. C.

A.—This apparently is chorea (St. Vitus' dance) which often follows distemper and is practically incurable. Let her live out of doors as much as possible. Feed well. Give twenty drops of elixir of calisaya, iron and strychnine twice daily in soup or milk until the trouble is relieved or treatment seems to be useless. Keep her free from worms, as fits from that cause have similar symptoms but are curable.

CHOREA.—I have a French poodle, two years old, that has fits, or what seems to be cramps. When she has an attack she tries to answer to her name, but cannot control her legs. The legs draw crooked and then stretch rigid. MISS L. C.

A.—See answer above on this subject this month.

INDIGESTION.—Sometime ago I noticed that my dog had long white worms. What shall I do to rid him of them? L. M. P.

A.—You are overfeeding the dog and allowing too little exercise. Allow one small meal a day and make the dog live out-doors as much as possible. Do not feed sweets, cake or dainties. As worms may be present give half a teaspoonful of freshly powdered Kamala in soup or cream after starving the dog for twenty-four hours. Repeat the dose in ten days.

SCOURS.—About two months ago I had the teeth of my horse filed and since then he hasn't eaten very well and is falling away. He scours when driven. B. R. C.

A.—Only the sharp points of the molar teeth next to the cheeks and to the tongue should be filed. If the tables of the grinding teeth are filed smooth the horse cannot masticate feed properly and will suffer from indigestion. In time the ill-effects of unintelligent dentistry may pass off. Meanwhile feed ground oats, cut hay and wheat bran. If scouring continues do not give drinking water before starting a drive. In the feed twice daily mix a pint of browned wheat flour and a teaspoonful of powdered alum.

COUGH.—I have a three-year-old heifer. She came in last spring and is giving a good flow of milk. She appears to have a good appetite. She began coughing last summer as though something caught in her throat. It is not caused by dust. D. M.

A.—Tuberculosis is the probable cause of cough and to make sure you should have the heifer tested with tuberculin. There is no cure for the disease. If lung worms are the cause they will be thrown off after a time and no treatment is necessary in a three-year-old. Worms or their eggs may be found by microscopic examination of the nasal discharge of an affected animal.

THIN MARE.—I have a mare seven years old. She raised her first colt last spring, working all the summer. This fall I took the colt from her, and she does not pick up. I feed corn and cane, hay and fodder. A yearling mule in same pasture nursed her. W. E. C.

A.—The mare has been reduced by suckling. Feed whole oats, wheat bran, ear corn and mixed clover or Alfalfa hay. Omit the cane hay. She should then pick up. It would be well to have her teeth attended to by a veterinarian.

ABSCESS.—About sixteen months ago a small lump appeared in the right side of the udder half way between the two teats, of one of my cows. It has been growing and is about the size of a hen's egg. It has broken with a bloody looking discharge. Is the milk from the other side fit to use? MRS. M. B.

A.—The lump may have come from a bruise or it may contain a sliver or thorn which should be removed. Open it up and swab with tincture of iodine daily, on the lump and inside the cavity. Without an examination we are unable to decide the character of the puff. If it is a rupture the bowel may be returned to the abdominal cavity by manipulation with the fingers. The milk may be used if the cow is known to be free from tuberculosis, by testing with tuberculin.

SCOURS.—I have a calf seven months old with too frequent movement of the bowels. When it lies down appears weak in its hind parts and can't get up. MRS. A. S.

A.—Feed a mixture of corn-meal, oatmeal, bran and flaxseed meal and also allow whole oats and clover hay. To check scours, should it continue, mix a heaping teaspoonful of a mixture of one quart of salol and two parts of subnitrate of bismuth in the feed twice daily.

LAMPAS.—I have a pair of two-year-old mules. Both of them have lampas. O. W.

A.—Give them some ears of old corn to chew on daily and twice a day swab the parts with a solution of one ounce of powdered alum in a quart of water. Do not cut or burn the swollen palate.

CONGESTED UDDER.—I have a Jersey cow which brought a calf. I was unable to get her up and milk her until the calf was two days old. Her udder appears to be caked and is hard; her teats are soft. She gives a little milk out of her back teats and none from the front ones. T. B. B.

A.—We fear it will be too late to succeed with this cow. Give her a pound of epsom salts in three pints of warm water at one dose. After scouring subsides give a tablespoonful of saltpeter once daily in water and feed generously. Massage the udder three times a day and go through the motions of milking. At night rub the udder with brandy. Warm drinks of flaxseed tea well-sweetened with blackstrap molasses would be good for her.

Things the Modern Farmer Must Know

Questions and Answers

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 17.)

cannot be raised as a profitable crop in the latitude of Michigan, hence specific answers to the rest of your questions are unnecessary here. Since you, as well as other readers of COMFORT'S Modern Farmer, are interested in this crop it is fully discussed in another column of this paper. See article on Milo Maize in this department, this issue.

DISEASED HARES AND RABBITS.—We have the Belgian Hare and New Zealand stock. They are kept in large hutches about two feet off the ground. These are warm and clean. We feed them dry Alfalfa and rolled barley, also green stuff such as kale, rape and carrots. They are fed twice a day and plenty of it. But many of them die and when examined their livers are found to be twice the natural size and full of white spots. What is the matter? Is it a disease or wrong feeding? I enjoy reading your fine paper, and especially COMFORT'S farm department. MRS. R. E. S., San Diego, Cal.

A.—This is a common experience in the keeping of rabbits and hares. The disease may be either tuberculosis (common) or a parasitic disease, or a form of pus absorption. There is no cure in either case. All affected stock should be destroyed and burned and the hutches and yards cleaned, disinfected and whitewashed. Then start with new, strong stock, if you must continue the business, but we have no hesitation in advising that it will prove disappointing and unprofitable. Read the two questions and answers on diseases of Belgian hares in this department in January COMFORT.

CABBAGE BUGS.—Please tell me what kind of bugs these are that I am enclosing, and how to rid our gardens of these destructive pests. They killed turnips and radishes but did the most damage to cabbage. Though they did not eat holes in the leaves, the plants they got on would wilt and die in a short time. I used a spray of kerosene and water, but without any effect. They will kill a cabbage even after it is headed.

MRS. H. D. S., Bellview, New Mexico.

Over 2,000,000 Uncle Sam Workshirts worn last year! Here's the reason!

10 Great Points of SUPERIORITY

Extra wide—extra long sleeves with plackets; extra large armholes; extra long tails; two extra large button pockets (government standard); extra big chest with extra deep front opening; extra big pearl buttons well sewed on by machine; extra wide cuffs. And the entire shirt is extra well sewn with double stitching throughout! All colors!

Ask your dealer for UNCLE SAM Workshirts

—and look for the Uncle Sam Label in the neckband. It's your guarantee that you're buying the biggest value ever offered. It's your guarantee of finest materials, of fast colors, of everything that goes to make up the biggest and best value ever produced!

If your dealer is out of Uncle Sam Workshirts —and he may be because they sell so fast—send us your 50 cents and the dealer's name and address and we will see that you are supplied.

SALANT & SALANT, Makers 71 Worth St. New York

Largest Manufacturers of Workshirts in the U.S.

UNCLE SAM REGISTERED U.S. PAT. OFF. WORKSHIRTS 50¢

A.—The specimens that you enclosed were the "Harlequin" or the Cabbage-bug," otherwise known as the "Calicoback," the "Firebug" or the "Terrapin-bug." The latter name is derived from its fancied resemblance to a turtle. It is called the firebug because it withers the plants on which it feeds as if struck by fire. The adult insect rests over winter in cabbage stumps and under leaves and emerges in the spring and lays its eggs on wild mustard and kale. The larvæ take about two weeks to reach the adult stage and during this time suck the sap of plants on which they feed. The best means of control is to plant trap crops of kale among the cabbage at different times. The bugs prefer the kale to cabbage and may be destroyed with the trap crop by the use of pure kerosene spray. But this spray must not be used on cabbage as it will kill the plants. Whale oil soap spray, two pounds to the gallon of water, will kill every bug it touches without injury to the cabbage, but must cover the bug to be effective, hence cannot be depended upon.

THE SILO QUESTION.—WHAT BREED OF HOGS?—Is a silo a good thing for the farm? What breed of hogs is best to raise if you intend to kill and market them at eight months old? G. A., Hillview, Ill.

A.—In our opinion no farmer who can raise corn and keeps live stock, especially dairy cows, can afford to be without a silo. The day is coming when every farm will have such a storage place for corn. Silos are being put in on practically every up-to-date farm in the corn belt. (2) This is not so much a matter of breed as of feed and care. Either the Poland-China or the Jersey Red breed will supply pigs that can be marketed early and the degree of development will depend upon the care given the hogs. Berkshires also are suitable, but less of the lard-hog type.

SEASONING HOME-GROWN TOBACCO.—I would like to know how to season home-grown tobacco for chewing. I raise it and get it dried and cured well enough, but don't know what to put in it for seasoning. L. L. S., Martins Ferry.

A.—Licorice and molasses are used to flavor or sweeten chewing tobacco, and honey is sometimes used in the same way. You will have to do some experimenting to get the right proportions. Much licorice taken right along tends to upset the stomach (indigestion.)

GARDEN HUCKLEBERRY.—Do you know of a kind of berry called the "garden huckleberry?" If so, please tell me where I can get the seed or plants. (2) Where is the Ohio State Agricultural Experiment Station located? (3) I am a widow and own a small place in the country. What would you advise me to raise on it to yield me a living? I take COMFORT and think it a fine paper. MRS. I. M. L., Montville, Ohio.

A.—The garden huckleberry is the wild species brought under cultivation. Since the bushes are easily transplanted and do well under this treatment they have been given special attention especially in the eastern states. Any reliable horticulturist or concern that raises or deals in nursery stock should be able to supply the young bushes. (2) Your experiment station is located at Wooster, Ohio, C. E. Thorne, Director. (3) Poultry and gardening is a good occupation for a woman on a small piece of land, provided you are located near a satisfactory market. Consult the Extension Service of your Agricultural College, Columbus, Ohio.

WHERE TO GET BOOKS ON HOG RAISING.—Please tell me what paper or book will give me the best information on raising hogs and on the best kinds of feed for them. G. C. I., Experiment, Ga.

A.—Take this matter up with the animal husbandry department of the agricultural experiment station of your state as they no doubt can send you free bulletins giving you the special information you require for successful hog raising in your district and state. Also write Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for bulletins on this subject published by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

STOPS TOBACCO HABIT

Elders' Sanitarium, located at 504 Main St., St. Joseph, Mo., has published a book showing the deadly effect of the tobacco habit, and how it can be stopped in three to five days.

As they are distributing this book free, anyone wanting a copy should send their name and address at once.—Advertisement.

Corns Cured Free Send 2c stamp for FREE package of Cornoff the world's greatest discovery for corns. CORNOF COMPANY, Bellefonte, Pa.

CARDS Send 2c Stamp for large Sample Album of Hidden Name, Silk Fringe, Envelope, Friendship, Joker's, Lover's and all other Kinds of Cards, Post Cards and Premiums. Star Beau Catcher and list of 2000 Songs given Free. OHIO CARD CO., 14 Cadiz, Ohio.

LOTS OF MAIL If you want to get lots of mail from different firms—Send us your name and address —and we will put your name in our Directory. And we will also send you at once, 12 sample Cards, 14 fine Pictures, and a large assortment of curious and wonderful reading matter. Write today, send 10 cents, coin or stamps for postage; and you will get lots of mail—and the big lot of presents besides. Williams & Co. 326 Madison St., Chicago

A Watch Fob Free

We will give free a watch fob to anyone sending us $1.00 for a year's subscription to Hunter-Trader-Trapper, a monthly illustrated magazine on outdoor sports We know you will say after reading the 12 copies that it is worth double the price. The regular price of the fob is 50c., but we will give it FREE with a year's subscription. Don't delay, send your dollar today. This offer may never be made again. Address,

HUNTER-TRADER-TRAPPER, Box 829, COLUMBUS, OHIO

RING AND BRACELET GIVEN

Free for selling 6 boxes Palmer's Wonder Salve at 25c a box. Great remedy for cuts, bruises, burns, scalds, eczema, piles. Sells fast. When sold send us $1.50 and we send you this Guaranteed Gold Shell Adjustable Bracelet and Ring FREE; or choice of other premiums from our catalog. We trust you. SEND NO MONEY.

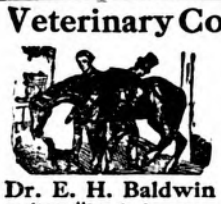
HOWARD & CO., 40 Penn St., Palmyra, Pa.



AGENTS $6 a Day

Should be easily made selling our Concentrated Non-Alcoholic Food Flavors, Soaps, Perfumes and Toilet Preparations. Over 100 kinds, put up in collapsible tubes. Ten times the strength of bottle extracts. Every home in city or country is a possible customer. Entirely new. Quick sellers. Good repeaters. Not sold in stores. No competition. 100 per cent. profit to agents. Little or no capital required. Elegant sample case for workers. Start now while it's new. Write today—a post card will do—for full particulars FREE

AMERICAN PRODUCTS CO., 31 Third St., Cincinati, O.

Veterinary Course at Home

$1500 A YEAR and upwards can be made by taking our Veterinary course at home during spare time. Taught in simplest English. Diploma granted. Graduates assisted in getting locations or positions. Cost within reach of all. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Dr. E. H. Baldwin writes: "I took the course for my own benefit on the farm, but the success I had started me in practice and now I am going night and day. Your course has been worth thousands to me, and will be to any man."

Write for particulars

The London Veterinary Correspondence School, Dept. 11, London, Ontario, Canada

fm. 23 Jewel R. R. $25 GOLD Watch $3.50

Here is the watch you always wanted. Sent you at our risk, without your sending any money, not even a deposit. Write if you prefer beautifully engraved hunting case or open face dust-proof with Locomotive lady's or gent's size, & we will send you this new thin model, correct timekeeper, GENUINE AMERICAN 25-year fully guaranteed, stem wind & set watch, C.O.D. to your P.O. or for free examination at your express office. If pleased with it and sure it equals a $25 gold watch, pay post or ex. man our special sale price $3.50 and watch is yours. Fob or chain free if you order NOW. Address:

1915 Thin Model

LIGHT WATCH COMPANY, Department 505, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Gleason's Horse Book

520 Pages

Fully Illustrated

All That is Worth Knowing About Training and Treating Horses

Two volumes in one

EVERY person who owns, handles or manages horses and all livestock keepers and breeders should have a copy of this great book because it tells about all the known methods of treating diseases of horses and other domestic animals—methods that are based upon the results of actual practice and not mere theory. It also contains Prof. Gleason's famous system of horse breaking, taming and training therefore, it is in reality two books in one and positively the most authoritative work of the kind ever published. There are in all 520 pages, many of them illustrated and dealing with the cause and cure of practically every disease known to horses, cattle, sheep, poultry, swine and dogs with the right remedies for each disease. Among the many subjects covered in Part 1 of this book are causes of diseases, how to observe diseases, treatment of diseases, Cerebro, Spinal Meningitis, distemper, dysentery, eye diseases, fistula, glands, internal diseases, kidney diseases, poisons, stomach and bowel diseases, worms and literally hundreds of other horse and live-stock ailments, which for lack of space we cannot enumerate here. In Part 2 of this book Prof. Gleason gives to the world for the first time his method of breaking and training horses and there are are also special chapters on how to buy, how to detect unsoundness, feeding, breeding, horse-shoeing, general care of horses, etc. Gleason's Horse Book is actually worth its weight in gold to every horse owner or breeder in the land, yet by special arrangement with the publishers we are enabled to give it away without cost to all who will accept the following

FREE OFFER. For a club of only two 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you Gleason's Complete Veterinary Hand Book and System of Horse Taming exactly as above described free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 443.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

IN 1914 AND EVERY YEAR SINCE SPEED AND ACCURACY CONTESTS BEGAN THE

UNDERWOOD

HAS HELD FIRST PLACE

"THE MACHINE YOU WILL EVENTUALLY BUY"

UNDERWOOD BUILDING : : : : : : : : NEW YORK

Help Your Stomach

Instant Relief from Gas, Indigestion and Pains Quickly Comes from the Use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

FREE SAMPLE PACKAGE TO ALL.

Feeling in the stomach is not natural. When you know you have a stomach it is time to help it. Gas, fermentation, foul breath, etc., indicate this. Accept the warning and act at once.

There is no occasion to suffer from indigestion or any similar stomach trouble when you can so easily get Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

There is scarcely a well stocked drug or general store in the United States but what considers these tablets part of their staple stock.

Do not suffer in silence. Try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and do so quickly so that you may become your old self as soon as possible.

The reasons why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are such a widely used remedy are very easy to understand. These tablets contain almost the same elements as the gastric juices of the stomach. And when your stomach is sick and not working just right, it does not give out enough of the natural digestive juices to properly take care of the food you eat. So if you will only give the stomach a little help by taking a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after meals you will relieve the stomach of its chief duty and allow it the rest it needs to recuperate. One grain of the active principle in a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet digests 3,000 grains of food, whether you place it in a glass jar with cooked food or in your stomach after you have eaten the food.

All druggists sell Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and once you try them you will never again wonder what to do for a disordered, weak, sour and gassy stomach.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale at all druggists at 50c a box.

Send coupon below today and we will at once send you by mail, a sample free.

Free Trial Coupon

F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Building, Marshall, Mich., send me at once, by return mail, a free trial package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Name .....

Street .....

City ..... State .....

RING AND BRACELET GIVEN

Sell 6 boxes Rosebud Salve at 25c a box, great remedy for burns, sores, eczema, piles, catarrh, corns, bunions, etc., return the $1.50 and we will promptly send this gold shell wedding ring and new style gold laid bracelet, warranted, or choice from large catalogue. Send No Money, we trust you. ROSEBUD PERFUME CO. DEPT. C, WOODSBORO, MD.

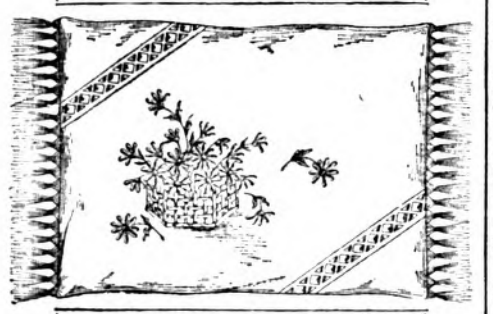
This offer made by old reliable firm established 22 years.

Three Handsome Pillow Tops!



INCLUDING BACK, FRINGE and EMBROIDERY COTTON

Premium No. 7222

Premium No. 7232

Premium No. 7242

One Given For Two Subscriptions!

YOU CAN have your choice of the American Flag, or the Rose, or the Daisy Pillow Top, or you can have any two of them or all three of them if you desire. Each top is 17x21 inches in size, made of good quality art cloth that will stand lots of wear and the designs are stamped and tinted in colors that are correct and true to nature. We include free the back, three-inch wide fringe and sufficient embroidery cotton to work each top, also a lesson in embroidery. No home is complete without lots of pillow tops scattered about living-room and parlor and no matter how many pillow tops you may already have you certainly can find room for three more, especially as these are bright, new attractive designs. You may have your choice of any or all of them by accepting the following

Club Offers. For a club of two 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you your choice of one pillow top free by Parcel Post prepaid. Or for a club of three 15-month subscriptions, we will send you two pillow tops, or for a club of four, three pillow tops. Remember, that with each top we also give you the back, a yard of 3-inch fringe and enough embroidery cotton to work it with. When ordering be sure to specify number or numbers of tops wanted.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

A Thorn Among Roses

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6.)

estly scanned her animated face. "How would you like to become an applicant and try for the prize?"

"Why Judge Ashburton, surely you are laughing at me, or you would never propose such a thing!" said Alice, flushing. "New York is three thousand miles away, and the trip would be out of the question, even if I were competent to undertake such a debate."

"I am not afraid to have you take your stand with the brightest of them," said her friend, with an air of mingled pride and confidence. "I am very proud of my pupil, and as for the trip—that could be easily managed."

Alice answered him with a skeptical little laugh, but her cheeks were scarlet, and she was saying to herself, with a feeling of intense yearning:

"Oh! if I could have an opportunity to try my wings, just once!"

"But I mean it, Alice," said the judge, earnestly. "To tell you the truth, my friend, who has written me of this—I've made my boasts about you to him a number of times—dares me to bring you to the front, and show him what you can do, and he is to be one of the jury. So you perceive that I am especially interested in this matter. Now, I have a proposition to make you. We will spend the next few days in studying up the questions involved in this coming contest; it will be capital practise for you, even though you should not succeed in being selected as one of the favored four. Then we will go over to America, taking May along to be company for you, and show my skeptical friend what Judge Ashburton's student is capable of in the way of argument, and in meeting and sustaining points of law. If you will do this for me, Alice, I will bear all the expense of the journey and promise you two girls a good time, besides."

"Oh, Judge Ashburton, you are too kind to me," Alice began, tears starting to her eyes in view of the enchanting project held out to her by her good friend.

"Tut! tut! Just put it the other way, and you will come nearer the truth," interposed the old gentleman. "To be perfectly frank with you, as soon as I read this letter from my friend, Judge Allen, and the papers relating to the contest which he sent with it, I at once set my heart upon having you try for this prize. Of course, I don't claim that you are going to win it, for I know that there are other smart folks in the world besides Miss Alice Weston, but I do claim that, if you will enter the list, you will give the others some hot work to win it away from you, and the fun I shall get out of the affair will more than repay me for the small matter of the expense of the trip. What do you say, will you go?"

"I shall have to think it over and consult mamma," Alice thoughtfully responded.

"Of course, that is right. Put up your work, take a holiday and go do your consulting at once," said the judge, smiling, "and be sure you tell your mother that I make it a condition that May is to go along too. I know it will be a little hard on her to take both her treasures away at once, but I believe she will take a sensible view of the matter and make the best of it. Now, get your things on and be off, for I am as eager as a boy to have this affair settled."

Alice was thankful that he gave her the day, for this proposition had so excited her that she was wholly unfitted for work, and she readily obeyed him, donned her hat and wraps and started at once for home.

Mrs. Weston was no less amazed than herself at the project, and, at first, was inclined to oppose it; but May was almost wild over the prospect of crossing the ocean and seeing the sights on the other side of the world, and would not listen to a word of objection from anyone.

"Why, mamma," she exclaimed, "it is such a wonderful opportunity, we would be crazy not to make the most of it, and then, just think! if Alice should win the prize, what a feather in our caps."

They all laughed at her eagerness, and the possessive case she had used, but it was finally agreed that the "wonderful opportunity" was one that must not be ignored, and Mrs. Weston gave her consent to the project, although somewhat reluctantly.

The judge was well pleased with her decision, and immediately set about coaching Alice for the approaching contest with all the enthusiasm which he had been wont to manifest in his more youthful days when preparing himself to defend a difficult case.

Alice was no less ambitious to do him credit, as well as herself, and threw her whole heart into the work, and before the day of sailing arrived, she was as eager for the fray as the veriest old war horse that scents the battle from afar.

Judge Ashburton told no one save Mr. Fletcher of his plans, for he did not wish to arouse any gossip over the matter.

In speaking of his contemplated journey to America to the other members of the family and to Lady Marchmont, he merely explained that business which necessitated taking his amanuensis with him called him to America, and, out of consideration for Miss Weston, he had invited her sister to accompany her.

Thus the middle of March found our friends on their way across the Atlantic.

The voyage was a somewhat tempestuous one, but they arrived safe and well in New York, where they were met and warmly greeted by Will, who had come on from New Haven to meet them.

They took apartments at the Metropole, and, while awaiting the day set for the examination of applicants for the contest, Judge Ashburton managed to give his young charges a pretty good idea of the geography and topography of the great metropolis.

Finally the great day of examination dawned, and out of the two hundred aspiring barristers who applied to enter the arena, only twenty-five were ladies, Alice being the only one among these who was not American born.

This examination proved to be exceedingly interesting, and revealed the fact that most of the aspirants were brilliant and talented, the ladies especially so, and for some time it was doubtful if the number of contestants for the prize could be reduced to four. But, finally, one after another went down before the broadside of legal points and technicalities, until a Mr. Rockwell, from the Harvard law school in Boston, Mass., and a Mr. Vilbert of New York, alone stood their ground out of the hundred and seventy-five gentlemen; and a Miss Van Kirk, from Chicago, and Alice, out of the twenty-five ladies.

Then the day was appointed for the great contest and the mock trial, and other arrangements completed.

The two champion gentlemen were appointed as counsel for the prosecution, and the two ladies for the defense; while the case, as already intimated, involved many points of international law, A commodious place had been secured for the occasion, and this, on the day set for the fray, was filled at an early hour, not only by judges and lawyers, but by many distinguished society people who were fortunate enough to secure tickets for the unique affair.

When Judge Ashburton conducted Alice to her place, many curious as well as admiring glances followed her, for it had already been whispered abroad that she was a remarkably promising student and destined to shine a brilliant light in the legal firmament.

She was quietly clad in a costume of golden brown cloth, severely plain, but of exquisite fit, and she wore a small hat to match, with a dash here and there of pale pink that was vastly becoming to her.

She appeared perfectly at ease and without a vestige of self-consciousness, facts which added greatly to the charm of her presence.

The case was ably opened by Mr. Rockwell, one of the counsel for the prosecution, and as it proceeded, both young men proved themselves to be opponents of more than ordinary ability.

The prisoner was a well-known lawyer, and the witnesses on both sides were s in the profession; and, as they all got warmed up to their work, the skill manifested in both attack and defense aroused the audience to the highest pitch of interest and excitement, until the scene became intensely realistic.

We cannot follow the case point by point, but both ladies and gentlemen acquitted themselves brilliantly in the gathering of evidence and in the examination of prisoner and witnesses.

The speeches of Messrs. Rockwell and Vilbert were keen, comprehensive and eloquent, and won many a nod of commendation from old-time judges and lawyers.

Miss Van Kirk made the first plea for the defendant, and her arguments were forcible, intelligent and to the point.

Then Alice took the floor, and the moment her clear, flexible voice sounded on the ear a hush of expectation fell over the audience.

She used no notes; she had studied the case so thoroughly and had made herself so conversant with every point and detail that it was outlined in her mind like a picture, which only needed the power of description to make it as clear and vivid to her hearers as it was to herself.

And she abundantly possessed that power.

We have previously alluded to her remarkable fluency of speech and this, added to the natural refinement of her manner and elegance of diction, together with here and there vivid and subtle flashes of wit, her utter lack of self-consciousness, her beauty and her great earnestness, which betrayed that she had thrown her whole soul into her work, all served to hold her listeners spellbound and made them eager to catch every word that fell from her eloquent lips.

Judge Ashburton actually trembled as he listened.

"It surely must have been born in her," he said to himself, "for this is something more than talent—it is a gift. But I am glad the girl isn't going to pursue her profession, for no one—man or woman—could last very long to throw so much of vital force into their work. I never heard stronger nor more eloquent arguments in my life, while her delicate touches of sympathy and womanliness have lent them a charm that is irresistible."

When at last she sat down the hush remained unbroken for a full minute, after which there came a burst of applause so ardent and so prolonged as to be a veritable ovation, and was only checked when the court was sharply called to order.

Then came the summing up and the charge to the jury, whereupon those twelve august individuals—after conferring together for a moment or two—declared themselves ready with their verdict without retiring for discussion.

It was a unanimous acquittal for the prisoner.

After this there was a little delay while the committee on award made up their report, which was at length voiced to the impatient audience by their chairman—a prominent judge.

While all the contestants were highly complimented upon their work, which, he said, had been of a very high order and promised a brilliant future, it became his pleasant duty to declare that the prize had been awarded Miss Alice Weston of Windsor, England, whom he most heartily congratulated for the signal triumph which she had won, not only for herself, but for her sex, in proving the point taken by Mrs. Voss, that woman is as capable of excelling in the various professions as man.

In closing, he handed her a beautiful purse containing the check for one thousand dollars, after which the court was dismissed and the audience dispersed.

Alice was immediately surrounded by a crowd of admirers, among whom were the young men who had been her opponents and who cordially admitted that she had bravely won the victory, and that they were proud to have been associated with her in the contest.

But she shrank from so much flattery, and, having espied Will, signaled to the judge that she wanted to go, and gathering his party together, he led them from the room, and they were soon on their way back to their hotel.

But a startling surprise awaited them there.

It was a cablegram from Mr. Fletcher to Judge Ashburton, and read thus:

"Serious law complications have arisen; I need your immediate advice."

That was all, but it was sufficient to make the judge anxious to return at once to England, and he immediately hurried away to engage staterooms for his party on the next outgoing steamer.

TO BE CONTINUED.

"A Girl in a Thousand" and "A Thorn Among Roses"

BOTH BOOKS FREE!

The story "A Girl in a Thousand" does not complete the narrative. In order to get the climax you should read its sequel "A Thorn Among Roses" now running in COMFORT. If, however, you missed one or more installments of "A Girl in a Thousand" we will be glad to send you the story in book form just as it appeared in COMFORT. If you desire, we can also supply you with its sequel "A Thorn Among Roses" in book form. Large installments will appear each month in COMFORT but if you do not want to wait in order to complete the story, we will send you the book thereby giving you the opportunity to finish the story as soon as you like. Send us only one new 25-cent 15-month subscription (not your own) to COMFORT, or your own subscription, renewal or extension of your present subscription at 25 cents and 5 cents additional (30 cents in all) and we will send you either book—your choice of "A Girl in a Thousand" or "A Thorn Among Roses"—or for two 15-month subscriptions at 25 cents each, we will send you both books free and postpaid

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

IT CURED MY RHEUMATISM

I will gladly send Free to any sufferer a Simple Herb Recipe that CONQUERS RHEUMATISM. If convenient enclose 2-cent stamp. H. B. SUTTON, 2651 Orchard Ave., Los Angeles, California.

ARE THEY WEAK OR PAINFUL?

Do your lungs ever bleed?
Do you have night sweats?
Have you pains in chest and sides?
Do you spit yellow and black matter?
Are you continually hawking and coughing?
Do you have pains under your shoulder blades?

These are Regarded Symptoms of

LUNG TROUBLE

You should take immediate steps to check the progress of these symptoms. The longer you allow them to advance and develop, the more deep seated and serious your condition becomes. We Stand Ready to Prove to You absolutely, that _____ Lung Germine, the German Treatment, has cured completely and permanently case after case of Consumption (Tuberculosis,) Chronic Bronchitis, Catarrh of the Lungs, Catarrh of the Bronchial Tubes and other lung troubles. Many sufferers who had lost all hope and who had been given up by physicians have been permanently cured by Lung Germine. If your lungs are merely weak and the disease has not yet manifested itself, you can prevent its development, you can build up your lungs and system to their normal strength and capacity. Lung Germine has cured advanced Consumption, and the patients remain strong and in splendid health today.

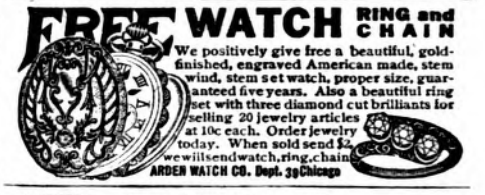
Let us send You the Proof—Proof that will Convince any Judge or Jury on Earth

We will gladly send you the proof of many remarkable cures, also a FREE TRIAL of Lung Germine together with our new 40-page book (in colors) on the treatment and care of consumption and lung trouble.

JUST SEND YOUR NAME

Lung Germine Co., 126 Rae Blk., Jackson, Mich.

NEW RUPTURE CURE



Don't Wear a Truss.

Brooks' Appliance, New Discovery. Wonderful. No obnoxious springs or pads. Automatic Air Cushions. Binds and draws the broken parts together as you would a broken limb. No salves. No plasters. No lies. Durable, cheap. Sent on trial to prove it. Full information and booklet FREE.

C. E. BROOKS
1702 D State St., Marshall, Mich.

FREE WATCH RING and CHAIN

We positively give free a beautiful, gold-finished, engraved American made, stem wind, stem set watch, proper size, guaranteed five years. Also a beautiful ring set with three diamond cut brilliants for selling 20 jewelry articles at 10c each. Order jewelry today. When sold send $2, we will send watch, ring, chain.

ARDEN WATCH CO. Dept. 39 Chicago

Big Entertainer 103 Parlor Tricks and Games, 310 Jokes and Riddles, 72 Toasts, 18 Card Tricks, 4 Comic Recitations, 3 Monologues, Checkers, Chess, Dominoes, Fox and Geese, 9 Men Morris. All 10 CENTS POST PAID.

J. C. DORN, 709 SO. DEARBORN ST., DEPT. 24, CHICAGO, ILL

YOUR HEART

Does it Flutter, Palpitate or Skip Beats? Have you Shortness of Breath, Tenderness, Numbness or Pain in left side, Dizziness, Fainting Spells, Spots before eyes, Sudden Starting in sleep, Nervousness, Nightmare, Hungry or Weak Spells, Oppressed Feeling in chest, Choking Sensation in throat, Painful to lie on left side, Cold Hands or Feet, Difficult Breathing, Heart Dropsy, Swelling of feet or ankles, or Neuralgia around heart? If you have one or more of the above symptoms, don't fail to use Dr. Kinsman's Guaranteed Heart Tablets. Not a secret medicine. It is said that one person out of every four has a weak heart. Three-fourths of these do not know it, and hundreds wrongfully treat themselves for the Stomach, Lungs, Kidneys or Nerves. Don't take any chances when Dr. Kinsman's Heart Tablets are within your reach. 1000 endorsements furnished.

FREE TREATMENT COUPON

Any sufferer mailing this coupon, with their name and P. O. Address, to Dr. F. G. Kinsman, Box 862, Augusta, Maine, will receive a box of Heart Tablets for trial by return mail, postpaid, free of charge. Delays are dangerous. Write at once—to-day

Sister: Read My Free Offer!

I am a woman.
I know a woman's trials.
I know her need of sympathy and help.

If you, my sister, are unhappy because of ill-health, if you feel unfit for household duties, social pleasures, or daily employment, write and tell me just how you suffer, and ask for my free ten days' trial of a home treatment suited to your needs. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any man. I want to tell you how to cure yourself at home at a cost of about 12 cents a week.

If you suffer from women's peculiar ailments causing pain in the head, back, or bowels, feeling of weight and dragging down sensation, falling or displacement of pelvic organs, causing kidney and bladder weakness or constipation and piles, painful or irregular periods, catarrhal conditions and discharges, extreme nervousness, depressed spirits, melancholy, desire to cry, fear of something evil about to happen, creeping feeling along the spine, palpitation, hot flashes, weariness, sallow complexion with dark circles under the eyes, pain in the left breast or general feeling that life is not worth living.

I INVITE YOU TO SEND TODAY FOR MY FREE TEN DAYS' TREATMENT

and learn how these ailments can be easily and surely conquered at home without the dangers and expense of an operation. When you are cured, and able to enjoy life again, you can pass the good word along to some other sufferer. My home treatment is for young or old. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain how to overcome green sickness (chlorosis), irregularities, headaches, and lassitude in young women and restore them to plumpness and health. Tell me if you are worried about your daughter. Remember it costs you nothing to give my home treatment a ten days' trial, and does not interfere with daily work. If health is worth asking for, then accept my generous offer and write for the free treatment, including my illustrated booklet, "Women's Own Medical Adviser." I will send all in plain wrappers postpaid. To save time, you can cut out this offer, mark your feelings, and return to me. Send today, as you may not see this offer again. Address

MRS. M. SUMMERS, BOX 315 - - - NOTRE DAME, IND., U. S. A.

EVERY THIN WOMAN

Can have a Superb Figure We Prove It Free

Every woman wants a full round bust, a symmetrical figure and shapely limbs. So no woman who reads this generous offer should, in fairness to herself, fail to respond to it.

All you have to do is to write, saying: "Send me your free treatment and illustrated booklet."

By return mail we will send you without a penny of cost, a sufficient quantity of Dr. Whitney's Nerve and Flesh Builder to give you the additional flesh that will add immeasurably to your style and attractiveness.

No matter whether your slimness is the result of sickness or inheritance, Dr. Whitney's Nerve and Flesh Builder will promptly build up and beautify your figure.

It acts directly on the fat producing cells and fills out the hollow places. It will enlarge your bust measurement from 2 to 6 inches. It being a purely vegetable compound, it cannot possibly do you any harm. Instead it actually benefits the health.

"Treatment No. 1" is a general system flesh builder for both men and women. "Treatment No. 8" is for giving development to the bust. Please say which treatment you prefer. Only one can be had.

Please bear in mind that this offer may be withdrawn at any moment. So do not delay. Write to C. L. Jones Co., 32 B. Friend Bldg., Elmira, N.Y.

39 SELECTED NOVELS FREE

We want to give you this big collection of thirty-nine Novels, Novelettes, and Stories, some of the most interesting works of the most popular writers. Each is a complete story in itself. All are well printed on good paper and firmly bound in paper covers. We will give you this whole collection of best reading just to make you acquainted with our paper, Good Stories.

The Desmond Blood	Etta W. Pierce
A Doctor's Story	Mary Kyle Dallas
Secret of the Holly Tree	Charlotte M. Brœme
Unmasked	S. Annie Frost
The Coral Cross	Mrs. C. F. Gerry
The Countess Clarice	M. T. Caldor
Lady Maud's Picture	Jane G. Austin
Mistress of Thornton Park	Mary J. Holmes
In a Violin	Etta W. Pierce
The Witching Hour	The Duchess

And 29 others.

GOOD STORIES is a monthly paper filled with the best and most delightful serial and short stories we can buy. In addition there are household departments with "tried and true" receipts, helpful editorials, up-to-date fashions. Good Stories has something for every member of the family.

SEND US YOUR NAME and address with ten cents in stamps or silver for a 3-months' trial subscription to Good Stories, and we will send you, free and postpaid, this grand collection of 39 Novels.

Publishers GOOD STORIES, 601 Chapel St., Augusta, Maine.

BIRTHSTONE 4 RINGS FREE DIAMOND

INITIAL SIGNET WEDDING

4 solid Gold filled Rings guaranteed 3 years, your Birthstone, your Initial Signet, handsome Engagement and Real Wedding Ring, all 4 Rings FREE for selling 12 pckgs. Bluine at 10 cts. each. Write for it. Bluine Mfg. Co., 673 Mill St., Concord Jct., Mass.

Pain Paint

Send 50c in stamps and we will mail you a Dollar of Wolcott's Pain Paint powders with full directions to make sixty 25-cent bottles. Pain Paint stops pain instantly; removes Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, in one minute; cools faster than ice; burns will not blister. A spoonful taken four times a day kills Dyspepsia. Sold 40 years by agents.
R. L. Wolcott & Son, 3 Wolcott Bldg., New York.

WAVECURL

imparts beautiful wavy curls however listless your hair is. One testimonial says: "My hair soon became a mass of wavy curls." For either ladies or gentlemen. Send 15c stamps or coin. Dept. 24.
WAVECURL CO., ST. PAUL, MINN.

Austrian Bead Necklace

The Latest Imported Novelty In Necklaces

Hand Made From Strings Of Beautiful White Austrian Beads Woven Together And Finished With Handsome Imit. Amethyst And Gold Bead Decorated Pendant.

Bead necklaces are more fashionable than ever this season. For the last two or three years these handsome, inexpensive neck ornaments have been steadily growing in popular favor and now the style has become so firmly established that no lady or girl can really call herself "up-to-date" in dress unless she is wearing one of them. The most beautiful necklaces come from Austria where they are hand made by skilled workmen who first string the beads in single strand then cleverly weave the strands together in different ways producing many varied handsome effects. The style shown here was the prettiest one we found among a dozen different samples submitted for our approval so we have purchased a large quantity of them and are going to distribute them free among our readers. It consists of three strands of pure white Austrian beads woven together so as to form a single strand which fastens with gold-plated clasp and in the center there is attached as a pendant a smaller double strand of beads decorated with a beautiful large imit. Amethyst, an imit. gold bead and a large pear-shaped bead at the extreme end. This necklace when unclasped is 15 inches in length while the lower part, or pendant, is 2½ inches in length. The real beauty of this handsome new necklace does not appear in our illustration but we hereby guarantee that every lady or girl who receives one from us on this offer will be more than delighted with it. Be sure to read the following free offer then send in your order today.

This is "THE" Style This Season. Don't Fail To Send For One.

For One Subscription!

Send us only one new 15-months subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents or your own subscription, renewal or extension of present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all) and we will mail you free and postpaid this beautiful and stylish Austrian Bead Necklace exactly as above illustrated and described. Premium No. 679.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Manners and Looks

"Virtue itself offends when coupled with forbidding manners."—Bishop Middleton.

In order to meet the demand for information made by COMFORT subscribers on the kindred subjects of Etiquette and Personal Appearance, this column will be devoted to them, and all questions will be answered, but no inquirer shall ask more than two questions each month. We would suggest to readers to cut this column out and paste it in a scrap book. Address letters to Etiquette Editor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Reader, Pegram, Tenn.—As nothing else is the matter with you, your redness of face, or blushing, when in company is due to self-consciousness. If you have not sufficient mental control to forget yourself and think about the company you are in, you never will be cured. Expression teachers are of no value in such a case. It must be self-taught and if you cannot teach yourself, you might as well retire from society.

Dickey, Waterloo, Ia.—Etiquette provides no rule of action in the case of a gentleman declining to return a lady's letters, or vice versa, when they have quarreled and quit writing. Most people are willing to give them up, if not you must get them any way you can or let them remain as tokens of your folly.

Blue Eyes, Dresden, Mo.—If there is no objection to him except his nationality, whatever that may be, wait until you are twenty-one years of age and tell your father that you will marry the man of your choice, with or without his consent, as he pleases. Don't keep company with other young men until this matter is settled, unless your best young man is willing.

Sisters, Sherbrooke, N. Dak.—Don't marry your first cousin whether the civil law is against it or not. Natural law is stronger than the civil law. A girl should receive an engagement ring when the engagement is made, unless they wish to keep it secret. It is not proper according to etiquette for a girl to slap the face of a man who tries to kiss her against her will, but morally it is all right and should be done, unless the girl can take a club to him. It is right enough for a young girl to take the advice of a youth of twenty, if some older person says the advice is good. Unless the girl is chaperoned she should not be out with the young man after midnight. The lady should not ask the gentleman for the engagement ring, unless he doesn't know enough to give it to her without being asked.

Tempest and Sunshine, Westbrooke, Minn.—The lady should say good by to the gentleman who kisses her without her permission and make it permanent. The lady may take the arm of the gentleman who is carrying her wraps, but it is just as well not to overload him. It is not proper for the gentleman to put his arms around the lady when they are out walking, but it frequently happens.

Brown and Gray, Cutler, N. M.—The lady should decline to dance with the gentleman who holds her too tight in spite of her protests. A lady has some rights a gentleman is bound to respect. Having broken your engagement with the young man and you do not want him around, you should not dance with him and permit him to call on you as if nothing had happened. You are to blame, not he.

Anxious, Tuskeega, Ia.—As the gentleman was the first to become angry and fall out, it is his place to speak first in the restoration of previous relations.

Lassie Lily, Donipham, Nebr.—The usual evening call should end not later than eleven, and earlier if the caller has to get up early to go to work. Ten o'clock is the best hour to go. Unless you are engaged to the young man a locket with his picture in it is scarcely an appropriate present. Return it to him with a little talk on the proprieties. He needs information.

Sue, Marticville, Pa.—It is quite proper to thank the gentleman for bringing you home in his buggy. Indeed, it would be rude not to, and you may thank him in any pleasant words that you think of. Don't do it as though you were reading it to him out of an etiquette book. Do it naturally.

Troubled, Des Moines, Ia.—When a gentleman says to a lady: "Let me hold your hand till the car comes," it means that he hasn't anything better to say to her and has to quote somebody else. When the gentleman caller says it is time for him to be going, the lady should not detain him, especially if it is time he was going. On the contrary if he will not go when he should, she should tell him it was time for him to go, and she should insist upon his going. Some men have no manners whatever in this regard.

C. W., Velva, N. Dak.—Your child is second cousin to your first cousin and the children of first cousins are second cousins, possibly first cousins one remove, if the parents are first cousins.

Brown Eyes, Peak, Va.—A woman five feet, five inches tall, may weigh as low as one hundred and nineteen pounds or as high as one hundred and sixty, the average being one hundred and forty, so you are only seven pounds above minimum. A girl of sixteen should be beyond the seventh grade. You ask: "Is my grammar and spelling as good as it should be?" and we ask you to ask your teacher if it is.

Puzzled, Appleton, Wis.—Etiquette hasn't much to do with happiness, but we should say there would be a big risk in a widow with one child marrying a widower with four children. Still, it might turn out well and there's no way to settle it except by trial.

H. D., Trumansburg, N. Y.—Your mother is right as girls' mothers usually are and you should wait for the man to write first. But you should have more confidence in your mother.

Lilly, Alum Bridge, W. Va.—The only good reason we know why a fifteen-year-old girl should not walk home from a party with a gentleman is that she should ride home in a baby-wagon. Girls of fifteen are children.

Brown Eyes, Yale, Mich.—It was bad manners for the gentleman to make an engagement with you and fail to keep it and worse to wait until he met you by chance some time later and apologized. He should have apologized at once. That he did not shows he did not care whether he ever did or not. If you wish to make other engagements with that kind of a man you may do as you please about it.

Beauty, Freehold, N. J.—A lady might under extraordinary circumstances forget herself so far as to call another a liar, but if she is a real lady she will apologize. For her to say deliberately she never has apologized or never will for anything she does makes her altogether impossible for any polite society.

Shorty, Orwell, O.—It is not a matter of etiquette, so much as it is personal for you to go to places with your girl and her gentleman friends. If agreeable to her and you and them, it is proper enough, but it is not customary.

Sincerity, Glencoe, N. Dak.—You did right to sit in the back seat of the auto with your escort's sister rather than on the front seat with him. The hospitable way on receiving a box of candy is to open it at once and pass it around. You may use your first name on your cards, but as you are the only one, or if you were the oldest of others, it would be correct to omit your first name and have it "Miss B." Written or even printed cards will answer, but engraved cards are the real thing and they are not very expensive, as such things go. The gentleman lets the lady order what she wants at lunch. Or she may tell him and he can order. You will have to ask somebody else about what you must do as bridesmaid at the wedding, because we don't know any of the conditions and can't guess at what you ought to do or say.

Lonely, Elgin, N. Dak.—There is no limit by etiquette rules on the number of times the lady should write weekly to the gentleman with whom she has been keeping company. Only one rule is to be observed and that is not to write except in reply to letters from him. (2) One hundred and fifty-three pounds is about right for a lady five feet six inches tall. The minimum is one hundred and twenty-one, the maximum, one hundred and sixty-five; average one hundred and forty-three. You could wear a brown and white shepherd plaid.

Edna's Secret Marriage

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 18.)

body has gone such a pace as Cyril More—everybody knew how it would end. No fortune could stand it, however big, and his was almost as large as any man's. I always knew how it would be, I could see from the first. Why, I remember two years ago, when we were yachting together in the Mediterranean——"

Cyril shifts his position, and remarks that it is very warm; but Edna does not reply.

"I said to him as we were walking up and down the deck one night after supper: 'Cyril, old boy! take my advice and put the curb on, stop the running a bit, do, there's a dear fellow, for my sake! And he promised he would. Oh, yes, he was always good at promising, but I knew how it would be. He'd have pulled up short to please me if he'd do it for anyone for I flatter myself I've got more influence with him than any other creature on the face of the earth; but you see it wasn't in him. He must go while he could keep on his legs."

There is a sapient murmur of concurrence, and Mr. Jones, thus encouraged, runs on glibly.

"Yes, it was a complete smash, and everything has gone! It wouldn't have been so bad, but Glitters——"

"Who is Glitters?" asked the same anxious inquirer into the manners and customs of the aristocracy.

"Oh, come!" exclaims Mr. Jones, banteringly. "Not know Glitters! Why, she's the best known personage in London, and has ruined more good fellows than you can count on your ten fingers. Not know Glitters, by Jove!"

"And this Glitters, she helped to ruin your friend?"

"Yes," says Mr. Jones, with a regretful sigh; "she was at the bottom of it. I've known him give her ten thousand pounds worth of diamonds in one week——"

Cyril raises his hand, knocks the ash off his cigar, and looks at Edna with a curious scrutiny. He need have no fear—she is innocence itself, and Mr. Jones' story, Glitters, diamonds and all, conveys no adequate meaning to her; she is simply puzzled, and looks out dreamily toward the lake.

"Yes, diamonds, carriages, horses, everything she could secure she got," continues Mr. Jones, "and poor old Cyril is left without a cent in the world."

"But," says the interested listener, "surely his friends did——"

"Oh," says Mr. Jones, modestly, "we did what we could, and set him on his legs a little, of course, but——" and he shrugs his shoulders significantly.

"And where is he now?" asks some one.

"At Hamburg," replies Mr. Jones, with the unhesitating confidence of truth itself, "gambling away his few last coins as fast as he can—poor old Cyril!"

"Poor old Cyril" has not moved a muscle, has lain back with the serenest and most placid of faces through it all, and now, calm and passive, pushes his hat from his brow, and half closes his eyes, perhaps to enjoy and meditate upon his sad fate as depicted by the truthful and graphic Mr. Jones.

The soft voice of the girl beside him roused him.

"Do you think—do you believe—do you know this Sir Cyril More, of whom he has been speaking?" asks Edna.

"Do I know him?" echoes Cyril, quietly, and wondering why there should be that little shadow of a shadow on the pure young face. "I have heard of him—yes."

"And—and," she asks, looking at him with what he fancies is something like anxiety—"Is it true? Is he so utterly ruined?"

Cyril looks out gravely at the lake.

"Yes, I am afraid there is no mistake about that, Miss Weston."

"And is it all his own fault? Surely it cannot be all his own fault?"

"Yes, I'm afraid, from all I've heard, that he has only himself to blame," answers Cyril, quite placidly. "I don't think there is any doubt that he is of no account—an utterly worthless, idiotic sort of fellow."

Edna looks at him with, yes, certainly, a deeper sadness in her clear young eyes.

"I am so sorry," she says.

Cyril is almost guilty of a start. As it is, he takes the cigar out of his mouth with the air of one who does not quite understand.

"Sorry!" he says. "Why should you be—you do not know him?"

"No-o," says Edna, crossing her hands in her lap, "I do not know him, although I have a dim kind of recollection of the name. I cannot think where I heard it," she muses; "perhaps my father——"

"Your father! I never knew your father," says Cyril, off his guard for the moment, but hastening on, as Edna turns her calm, questioning gaze on him, "I mean I did not know that your father went into society at all—not the sort of society which such a good-for-nothing fellow as this Cyril More is likely to have frequented, you know."

"It could not have been my father from whom I have heard the name," says Edna. "Yes, I am sorry; for he could not have been altogether wicked—no one is that. Poor Sir Cyril More!"

Cyril flushes for a moment. Now is the time; it would be dishonest, nay, dishonorable, to allow her to remain in ignorance. And yet, if he does reveal himself, it must be to say farewell, to throw away the chance of ever speaking one word to her again. It is hard, but he will do it.

He rises slowly—under the most poignant emotion it is scarcely likely that Cyril would be anything but deliberately and carelessly graceful—and is about to speak, when once more Mr. Jones' voice breaks in:

"Going to Hamburg, are you? Perhaps you'll meet old Cyril. If you do, tell him you've seen me, and give him my fondest regards. Don't forget Howley Jones, you know—always calls me Howley. What's he like? Oh, you can't mistake; a dark, thickset man, with rather long hair; not a good-looking man, by any means; and that's what makes it so unaccountable, you know!"

Cyril can stand no more. With a laugh too low and subdued to make itself heard in the next arbor, he takes out his watch.

"We've heard enough of Mr. Jones' reminiscences, haven't we?" he says. "I'm afraid you are rather bored with his unfortunate friend, and—there's the tea bell."

Edna looked up with a laughing face.

"Confess now that you are hungry——"

"No, only thirsty, on my honor," says Cyril, laughing too. "It's Mr. Jones' fault; he was too dry!"

Two hours later and the lake is on fire, the town of Lucerene itself, basking in the reflection of the setting sun which casts a glow on land, lake and sky, tinging the clouds and pouring a warm flood of crimson on the quay, now all alive with promenaders, boatmen and flower sellers.

In front of the Grand knots of English tourists, dressed in the grotesque style which the traveling youths of our favored isle delight in, are lounging about on balustrade and terrace listening to the band, and staring at the gayly, richly and much overdressed young lady who leans back with the air of an empress in one of the pair-horse flies for which Lucerne is celebrated. This lady, though young, is possessed of undoubted confidence, and sits as unmoved by the direct stare of our youths and the glances of the passers-by as if she were a statue—a painted statue. Now and then she turns her eyes—fine orbs, well shown up with pencilled lashes and tinted eyebrows—toward the entrance of the hotel, and beats a tattoo with her gloved hand—she wears her rings outside her gloves, by the way; what is the use of possessing handsome diamond rings if you can't show them?—on the edge of the fly door, as if impatiently awaiting for the egress of someone therefrom. Meanwhile she returns the stares and glances with contemptuous indifference and compound interest, and is altogether a very grand and scornful young mademoiselle.

But suddenly her wandering eye sees someone

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 36.)

REAL HAIR GROWER Found at Last!

The Great English Discovery "Crystolis" Grows Hair in 30 Days.

$1000.00 Reward If We Fail On Our Guarantee—Try It At Our Risk—Mail Coupon To-Day.

This Man Is Growing Bald—"Crystolis" Is Just the Thing for Such Cases.

In Europe "Crystolis," the New English Hair Grower, has been called the most wonderful discovery of the century.

The judges of the Brussels and Paris Expositions enthusiastically awarded Gold Medals to this marvelous Hair Grower.

Already since we secured the American rights hundreds of men and women have written telling of the phenomenal results obtained by its use. People who have been bald for years tell how they now glory in beautiful hair. Others who have had dandruff all their lives say they have got a clean, healthy scalp after a few applications of this wonderful treatment.

We don't care whether you are bothered with falling hair, prematurely gray hair, matted hair, brittle hair or stringy hair, dandruff, itching scalp, or any or all forms of hair trouble, we want you to try "CRYSTOLIS" at our risk.

We give you a binding guarantee without any "strings" or red tape, that it won't cost you a cent if we do not prove to you that "CRYSTOLIS" will do all we claim for it—and what's important, we have plenty of money to back our guarantee. $1000 has been deposited in our local bank as a Special Fund to be forfeited if we fail to comply with this contract. Cut out the coupon below and mail it today to Creslo Laboratories, 12-P Street, Binghamton, N. Y.

FREE COUPON

The Creslo Laboratories,
12-P Street, Binghamton, N. Y.

I am a reader of COMFORT. Prove to me without cost how CRYSTOLIS stops falling hair, grows new hair, banishes dandruff and itching scalps and restores prematurely gray and faded hair to natural color. Write your name and address plainly and PIN THIS COUPON TO YOUR LETTER.

Six Elegant Lace Curtains FREE TO LADIES

Send no money. Simply name and address. We will send you, post paid, 12 boxes of our famous White Cloverine Salve, also 12 beautiful Art Pictures, 16x20 in. Sell the Cloverine at 25c. each and give one beautiful picture free with each box. Return us $3 collected and we will immediately send you six (three pair) beautiful Nottingham Lace Curtains nearly three yards long. You will be proud of them. Everyone buys after you show pictures—stores usually charge $1 each for them.

A doctor discovered "Cloverine." Millions using it for Cuts, Eczema, Piles, Colds, Catarrh. Write to-day—be first in your town. Address

The Wilson Chemical Co.
Curtain Dept. No. 11
TYRONE - - PA.

GIVEN 5 Year Rolled Gold Plated Bracelet for selling 20 pictures or 20 pkgs post cards at 10c
Gates Mfg Co. Dpt 526 Chicago

$10.00 per 100 earned collecting names and addresses. Enclose stamp for further particulars. Boston Card Co., Dept. W, Legore, Md.

Silk Wrist Bag

Given For Two Subscriptions

Premium No. 7002

ONE of the latest styles is this handsome black moire silk wrist bag with nickel plated frame, patent snap fastener and fancy lining. As shown in illustration it is carried suspended from the wrist by means of a sixteen-inch strap which is made of the same material as the bag. This bag is of good size being over 5 inches wide at the widest part and 7½ inches long. It is well made of fine material and will certainly please the most fastidious. We will make any lady or girl a present of this bag upon the terms of the following

Club Offer

For a club of two 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you this handsome moire silk wrist bag free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7002.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

FREE TO ASTHMA SUFFERERS

A New Home Cure That Anyone Can Use Without Discomfort or Loss of Time.

We have a New Method that cures Asthma, and we want you to try it at our expense. No matter whether your case is of long-standing or recent development, whether it is present as occasional or chronic Asthma, you should send for a free trial of our method. No matter in what climate you live, no matter what your age or occupation, if you are troubled with asthma, our method should relieve you promptly.

We especially want to send it to those apparently hopeless cases, where all forms of inhalers, douches, opium preparations, fumes, "patent smokes," etc., have failed. We want to show everyone at our own expense that this new method is designed to end all difficult breathing, all wheezing, and all those terrible paroxysms at once and for all time.

This free offer is too important to neglect a single day. Write now and then begin the method at once. Send no money. Simply mail coupon below. Do It Today.

FREE ASTHMA COUPON

FRONTIER ASTHMA CO., Room 751-J. Niagara and Hudson Sts., Buffalo, N. Y.

Send free trial of your method to:

.....

.....

.....

FITS!

I have been treating Fits, Epilepsy and Falling Sickness with great success for over 20 years. Many who had given up all hopes say my medicine cured them. S. J. Myers of Dow, Ill., says: "I shall hold you in grateful remembrance as long as I live for saving the life of my son." J. E. White of Junction, Ill., says: "I took your medicine and it entirely cured me." Harriet Carney of St. Francisville, La., says: "I was subjected to fits about 15 years until I started your treatment. After using it I was entirely cured." W. N. Waggoner of Jamestown, N. Y., says: "I couldn't say enough for you and your medicine if I should write all day." C. Westphal, 76 Edson St., Buffalo, N. Y., says: "From the day I began to take your medicine I began to improve." Mrs. Kate Siak, E. Prairie, Mo., says: "May God bless you and your wonderful remedy." G. A. Duckworth of Norwood, Ga., says: "Let those that don't believe write me."

$2.00 Bottle FREE!

I want everyone suffering with this terrible disease to try my wonderful medicine. Let me prove what I can do for you. If you, a friend or relative suffer from this disease, send me name, age, address, and describe case. I will prepare and send at once a FREE 16 ounce bottle of medicine, enough for two weeks treatment. DR. FRED E. GRANT, Dept. 121, Kansas City, Mo.

FREE! CATARRH CURE

1000 TREATMENTS GIVEN AWAY

If you suffer with catarrh of the nose, throat, head, ears, tonsils or stomach—asthma, cold in the head, by all means send for a free trial treatment of this wonderful cure. Here is your opportunity to be well, strong and free from those disgusting habits of coughing, hawking and spitting—just for the asking.

This remedy is free from all habit-forming drugs, and is the only successful remedy that can drive this disease from your system. Send a postal card or letter now, today and receive your free treatment postpaid.

G. B. DIETRICH
Suite 102, 555 No. Parkside Ave., Chicago, ILL.

DROPSY

Dr. Miles, the great specialist, sends a new and remarkable $3.75 Dropsy Treatment Free as a Trial. Hundreds cured of Dropsy, Smothering, Short Breath, at home after 5 to 15 doctors failed. Immense practice, wonderful success. Send at once for Free Treatment and Remarkable Cures in your state. Describe symptoms. Relief in a day or two. Address DR. FRANKLIN MILES, Elkhart, Ind., Dept D, 93 to 103 Main St.

Pocket Flashlight

Premium No. 708

Given For A Club Of Three

THERE are so many occasions when a flashlight is a necessity it would be impossible to name them all but there is one thing sure—it is the handiest and safest means of illuminating ever devised. We offer here one of the best pocket flashlights made. It is known as the "Eveready," which is certainly an appropriate name as it is always ready when you want to use it. But the greatest feature of this flashlight is its safety around inflammable material. In the house it lights up the darkest rooms or clothes closets, dark corners in the basement, in the garret; it may be used around gasoline, or powder, in the stable, in the barn, even in the hay mow, and there is not the slightest danger of fire. It throws a shaft of steady brilliance right in the teeth of wind or rain. The mere pressure of your finger starts and stops the light at your will and it is so small and compact that you can carry it around in your vest pocket where it does not take up any more room than a cigarette box. The "Eveready" is beautifully finished in polished nickel with a hinged bottom which opens to replace the battery and is equipped with a push button as well as a sliding switch for a flash or continuous light. It is equipped with a Tungsten battery and bulb and gives a surprisingly powerful bright light and the battery with average use will last from two to four months. When one battery becomes exhausted you can easily buy another one anywhere as they are on sale in every city and town in the United States. Or, if you prefer, we will furnish you with additional batteries free of cost in return for a few subscriptions to COMFORT. We will send you this flashlight with battery and bulb complete, ready for business as soon as you receive it, upon the terms of the following

CLUB OFFER. For a club of only three 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you one "Eveready" flashlight as described above free by Parcel Post prepaid. (Premium No. 708.) We can also supply you with extra batteries for the "Eveready" at the rate of one battery free for a club of two 15-month subscriptions at 25 cents each. (Premium No. 709.)

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Comfort's Information Bureau

Under this heading all questions by COMFORT subscribers on subjects not related to the special departments elsewhere in the paper will be answered, as far as may be. COMFORT readers are advised to read carefully the advertisements in this paper, as they will often find in them what they seek; through their questions addressed to this Bureau. They will thus save time, labor and postage.

NOTICE.—As the privileges of this Bureau and of all other departments of COMFORT are for subscribers only, no attention will be given any inquiry which does not bear the writer's correct name and address. Initials only, or a fictitious name, if requested, will appear in the published answer, but the inquiry must invariably be signed by the writer's true name.

Subscriber, Bangor, Ala.—A good way for a Southern farmer to get a Northern buyer for his farm is to write to the E. A. Strout Farm Agency, Station 3027, 47 West 34th Street, New York City, and the American Investment Association, 77 Palace Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn., and M. V. Richards, Land & Ind. Agt., Southern Railway, Room 19, Washington, D. C., and F. H. LaBaume, Agril. Agt., Norfolk & Western Railway, Room 269 N. & W. Bldg., Roanoke, Va., and engage the services of one or more of these concerns to find him a customer, as that is their business.

Mrs. C. L. S., Mt. Vernon, S. Dak.—Gold fish raising may be remunerative if you have fine facilities, fine breeds and are close to your market. You should be able to get instructions from the persons who sell you the fish, and if you will write to Hon. Hugh Smith, Commissioner, Fish Commission, Washington, D. C. you may get additional details.

T. J. N., Mohrland, Utah.—The electric light burns in a vacuum. If you do not believe this, break the glass of the ordinary incandescent bulb and see how quickly you are in the dark.

Kiddie, Owensboro, Ky.—The national headquarters of the Salvation Army are in New York City and Mrs. Evangeline Booth is in charge with Col. William Peart as Chief Secretary. The Department of the West has its headquarters in Chicago. The total membership in this country is 27,315 with 2,934 ministers and 872 churches. The Salvation Army has done and is doing great religious work among those needing it most and its efforts should be encouraged by all classes.

A. P. M., Minden, Iowa.—Send a full description with drawings of your invention to Commissioner of Patents, Washington, D. C. and you will be informed if you can get a patent on it. A patent will cost you sixty-five dollars; and a caveat, good for a year, will cost five dollars.

H. R. M., Coulterville, Ill.—You are mistaken when you tell us you think you have something in you better than being a farmer. Of course, if you mean the old-time farmer who farmed as his grandfather did, you are right, but in these days of modern farming, there is no occupation calling for all the best there is in a man equal to farming. It requires not only knowledge of the earth and its fullness, but chemistry, machinery, stock, architecture, home-making, business and about all there is worth knowing. The new-time farmer will be the best man there is in this country, or any country, as soon as he has thoroughly waked up and knows how good a thing he has. You ask us for something to read that will inform you on subjects better than farming. There is none. What you should read are the best magazines devoted to farming, the best books written on the subject, and the reports of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, these latter costing you no more than the postage to write to your Congressman to have them sent to you, or write direct for them to the Secretary of Agriculture. Being married should not prevent your taking a course at your nearest Agricultural College. We are glad of the opportunity to say these things to you, even though briefly, for we want all the young farmers who read COMFORT to realize their opportunity and put themselves strong to the work of getting out of their farms all the value that is certainly in them by the new methods of farming. It is not an easy job and the lame and the lazy will plod along carrying mortgages as they always have, but the live ones will get there and that in the most independent condition of any of the world's workers. Put that down as a sure thing and go to it, all of you young men who think there is nothing in farming.

Lawyer's Wife, Cannelton, Ind.—Mrs. Russell Sage was born at Syracuse, N. Y. in 1828 and her maiden name was Margaret Olivia Slocum. She has given to various institutions about $15,000,000. To settle the dispute as to whether she lives in California or somewhere in the East, we wish to state that the latter location is correct.

Mrs. S. U., Manvel, Texas.—For information concerning the weather or other weather observers than the national, write to Hon. Charles F. Marvin, Chief of Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C. Devoe was at one time quite a well-known observer.

J. F. W., Riverside, Wash.—Again and again and again we have told COMFORT readers in this column that the violins they have with the Stradivarius and other inscriptions purporting to be of famous old makers were fakes and calculated to deceive the most ignorant and we suppose we must go on telling them the same old truth. Your violin is worth somewhere from three dollars up to seven dollars maybe.

Mrs. L. B., Ackerman, Miss.—You might get three dollars for your three hundred dollars of Confederate money, if it is genuine, as it probably is, though as little as it is worth there have been numerous counterfeits to catch collectors. Write to the coin firms advertising in COMFORT and find out what they will give you. They are reliable. Dealers, however, never pay as well as collectors, but collectors are hard to find. Write to W. R. Benjamin, Editor The Collector, No. 225 Fifth Ave., New York.

Mrs. J. J. B., Merced, Cal.—Your inquiry for a button with the words "Please do not touch me," to pin on a baby suggests to button makers that such a button should be placed on the market as a protection to babies from the numerous silly people who can't keep their hands off of any baby they see. We don't know of any manufacturer making such a button, but we do know that many manufacturers should be making them and all the mothers in the land should be pining them on their babies. Suppose you write to the Western Badge and Novelty Co., St. Paul, Minn., asking if it has them and if not, that now is the time to get busy.

Mrs. C. A. Taylor, Harold, S. Dakota, would like to have some COMFORT reader in the southwestern United States or Mexico send to her some amole roots, or tell her what the price would be. For the information of other COMFORT readers we may explain that amole is known as the soap-plant, its roots being used in Mexico and the Southwest as a substitute for soap.

A. R. I., Indianapolis, Ind.—You will stand a better chance to sell your manuscript if you have it typewritten, however good your hand-write may be.

Mrs. S. W., Hooker, Okla.—There are about 250,000 miles of railway in the U. S. with a total capitalization of from eighteen to twenty billion dollars, doing a business of about three billion dollars a year. The value of the roads and equipment is between twelve and fourteen billion dollars. It is not possible for us to give exact figures, though you might get them from the Interstate Commerce Committee, Washington, D. C., if you want details. Write to Rand, McNally & Co., Chicago, for list of books on government ownership. There's a lot of them.

Mrs. R. H. B., Florence, Kans.—To clean white furs, first remove the lining and lay them out as flat as possible. Give them a good rubbing with a stiff clothes brush, then rub with bran moistened with warm water. Rub until thoroughly dry and then rub with dry bran. Put the moist bran on with flannel and the dry with book-muslin. The furs may be next rubbed with magnesia, or a piece of muslin may be used. Rub against the fur. We do not guarantee that you will make a good job of it, or get them as white as they were at first, or as a skilled cleaner would make them. Better take them to a cleaner if you want a good job.

W. C., Nichols, N. Y.—You say you are a young jeweler just starting in business and you want us to tell you where you can get tools and material. Now, let us give you a bit of advice which will also be worth listening to by every person who reads COMFORT who is making a start. You are starting a business in which you hope to be successful, yet you are so ignorant of it that you don't even know where to get tools and material. Do you think ignorance of that sort is valuable capital to start with? You seek information from a source which at best can only be slight and superficial. Now why don't you invest a few dollars in a trip to New York or other nearby city where in a week's visit you can go about among jewelry shops, studying their insides and their outsides, looking at their displays on shelves, in cases and windows, posting yourself on the latest and best things in the jewelry line, learning prices in the fashionable and unfashionable shops and then with some intelligence go to a dealer and buy in person what you need in tools and material? The trip might cost you as much as twenty-five dollars, possibly more, possibly less, but whatever it cost it would be worth a hundred times the amount to you in the very thing you need most to start business with. There are hundreds of persons starting business as ignorantly as you propose doing and is it any wonder that so many fail? Knowledge is power and you've got to have knowledge or you are no good. After looking into the business, as I have advised, if you decide you like it, then get a chance to work as clerk in a jewelry store for a year or two and really learn the business before you start in for yourself.

Mrs. W. E. B., Kimberley, Minn.—Maine is in the wrong direction to secure local information about Montana. Go West, Madam, go West. For school information about that state write to Superintendent of Public Instruction, Helena, Mont. Every state has its own local school laws.

J. R. P., Lake, Wis.—Again we call the attention of COMFORT readers to the fact that all those magic dip needles and other finders of hidden treasure under the earth or elsewhere have been pronounced fraudulent by the government and dealers in them, if known, are refused the use of the mails. Waste your money some other way, if you must waste it. But you had better read COMFORT and get wise.

Mrs. F. W., Miles City, Mont.—The number of old ladies' homes in each of the states is not recorded, except in the states. Write to the Secretary of State in any state where you wish information. Officials are nearly always glad to give information about the advantages their states offer. Entrance fees vary, going from nothing to several hundred dollars. Your only chance to get into a free home will be in your own state.

Mrs. G. H. B., Big Creek, Va.—The average artist does not make much money painting magazine covers, but the superior artists do exceedingly well, cover designs costing all the way from twenty-five dollars to ten times as much and more. Magazine illustrating usually pays better than short story writing, counting by pages, and neither pays unless the work is high class. There are more artists than there is work for them to do, which means that only those who can give the editors just what they want get very much to do.

E. E. O., Ottawa, Ill.—Special training, which includes a wide knowledge of books, is required of a head librarian. Subordinate positions may be filled by persons of good, general education. The best training for the high positions is to be had in the libraries themselves, beginning low down and working up as one's knowledge and adaptability to the work develop. In most large libraries now, examinations are held and subordinates are graded accordingly. It is not easy work and requires special ability.

Subscriber, Nixon, Texas. A Woman's Exchange is nothing more than a place where articles made and sent in by women of the local community are sold on commission. Pies, cakes, bread, needlework and other articles made by women may be offered, also butter, eggs and other farm products that the women produce. It is a good thing for the women, provided the woman who manages it must be reliable, well known and has good business ability. Indeed, her profits depend upon the amount of goods she can secure and sell. An Exchange may be conducted in a private house if it is in a good street and conveniently located. Or it might be opened in a country store in a thriving community, with sales, say, three times a week. In town it should be open every week day, the same hours that the stores are open.

WE INVITE

EVERY THIN MAN AND WOMAN HERE

Every Reader of This Magazine to Get Fat at Our Expense

Don't be the "Skeleton at the Feast" Sargol makes Puny, Peevish People Plump and Popular

This is an invitation that no thin man or woman can afford to ignore. We will tell you why. We are going to give you a wonderful discovery that helps digest the food you eat, that hundreds of letters say puts good solid flesh on people who are thin and underweight.

How can we do this? We will tell you. We have found a wonderful concentrated treatment for increasing cell growth, the very substance of which our bodies are made; for putting in the blood the red corpuscles which every thin man and woman so sadly needs—a scientific assimilative agent to strengthen the nerves and put the digestive tract in such shape that every ounce of flesh making food may give its full amount of nourishment to the blood instead of passing through the system undigested and unassimilated. Users tell of how this treatment has made indigestion and other stomach trouble quickly disappear while old dyspeptics, and many sufferers from weak nerves and lack of vitality declare in effect it has made them feel like a two year old. This new treatment, which has proved such a boon to thin people is called SARGOL. Don't forget the name S-A-R-G-O-L. Nothing so good has ever been discovered before.

Women who never appeared stylish in anything they wore because of their thinness, men underweight or lacking in nerve force or energy have, by their own testimony, been able to enjoy the pleasures of life—been fitted to fight life's battles, as never for years, through the use of "Sargol."

If you want a beautiful and well rounded figure of symmetrical proportions of which you can feel justly proud—a body full of throbbing life and energy, write The Sargol Company, 12-B. Herald Building, Binghamton, N. Y., today and we will send you, absolutely free, a 50c box of Sargol to prove all we claim. Take one with every meal and see how quickly these marvelous little concentrated tablets commence their busy, useful work of upbuilding. Many users declare they have increased their weight at the rate of one pound a day.

But you say you want proof! Well, here you are. Here are extracts from the statements of those who have tried—who have been convinced and who will swear to the virtues of this wonderful preparation.

REV. GEORGE W. DAVIS says:

"I have made a faithful trial of the Sargol treatment and must say it has brought to me new life and vigor. I have gained twenty pounds and now weigh 170 pounds, and, what is better, I have gained the days of my boyhood. It has been the turning point of my life. My health is now fine. I don't have to take any medicine at all and never want to again."

MRS. A. I. RODENHEISER writes:

"I have gained immensely since I took Sargol, for I only weighed about 106 pounds when I began using it and now I weigh 130 pounds, so really this makes twenty-four pounds. I feel stronger and am looking better than ever before, and now I carry rosy cheeks, which is something I could never say before.

"My old friends who have been used to seeing me with a thin, long face, say that I am looking better than they have ever seen me before, and father and mother are so pleased to think I have got to look so well and weigh so heavy 'for me.'"

CLAY JOHNSON says:

"Please send me another ten-day treatment. I am well pleased with Sargol. It has been the light of my life. I am getting back to my proper weight again. When I began to take Sargol I only weighed 138 pounds, and now, four weeks later, I am weighing 153 pounds and feeling fine. I don't have that stupid feeling every morning that I used to have. I feel good all the time. I want to put on about five pounds of flesh and that will be all I want."

F. GAGNON writes:

"Here is my report since taking the Sargol treatment. I am a man 67 years of age and was all run down to the very bottom. I had to quit work, as I was so weak. Now, thanks to Sargol, I look like a new man. I gained 22 pounds with 23 days' treatment. I cannot tell you how happy I feel. All my clothes are getting too tight. My face has a good color and I never was so happy in my life."

MRS. VERNIE ROUSE says:

"Sargol is certainly the grandest treatment I ever used. It has helped me greatly. I could hardly eat anything and was not able to sit up three days out of a week, with stomach trouble. I took only two boxes of Sargol and can eat anything and it don't hurt me and I have no more headache. My weight was 120 pounds and now I weigh 140 and feel better than I have for five years. I am now as fleshy as I want to be, and shall certainly recommend Sargol, for it does just exactly what you say it will do."

You may know some of these people or know somebody who knows them. We will send you their full address if you wish, so that you can find out all about Sargol and the wonders it has wrought.

Probably you are now thinking whether all this can be true. Stop it! Write us at once and we will send you absolutely free a 50c package of these wonderful tablets. No matter what the cause of your thinness is from, give Sargol a chance to make you fat. We are absolutely confident it will put good healthy flesh on you but we don't ask you to take our word for it. Simply cut the coupon below and enclose 10c in stamps to help cover the distribution expenses, and Uncle Sam's mail will bring you what you may some day say was one of the most valuable packages you ever received.

COME, EAT WITH US AT OUR EXPENSE.

This coupon entitles any thin person to one 50c. package of Sargol, the concentrated Flesh Builder (provided you have never tried it), and that 10c. is enclosed to cover postage, packing, etc. Read our advertisement printed above, and then put 10c. in stamps in letter today, with this coupon, and the full 50c. package will be sent to you by return of post. Address: The Sargol Company, 12-B. Herald Bldg., Binghamton, N. Y. Write your name and address plainly, and

PIN THIS COUPON TO YOUR LETTER.

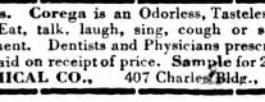
Cancer—Worth Knowing.

No need of cutting off a man's nose or cheek or a woman's breast in a vain attempt to cure cancer—no need of submitting to the knife or burning plaster. Frequently one injection, in selected cases, of our Liquid Laboratory Product directly into the cancer or tumor instantly kills it. Write for free booklet to the Leach Sanatorium, Indianapolis, Ind.

Ladies' & GENT'S WATCHES FREE

Ladies' and gent's size, hunting and other styles, Free to anyone selling our jewelry at 10c each. Order 20 jewelry articles or w When sold send $2.00 & we'll send you a stem-wind, simulated gold finish, richly engraved, new thin model, guaranteed watch latest design, fancy bezel, choice size. Other styles described with goods. Also 3-stone ring and chain. Ladies' or gent's ring by

HOMER JEWEL CO., Dept. 17, CHICAGO, ILL.



TOBACCO HABIT

You can conquer it easily in 3 days, improve your health, prolong your life. No more stomach trouble, no foul breath, no heart weakness. Regain manly vigor, calm nerves, clear eyes and superior mental strength. Whether you chew or smoke pipe, cigarettes, cigars, get my interesting Tobacco Book. Worth its weight in gold. Mailed free. EDW. J. WOODS, M 147, Station E. New York, N.Y.

All the New Songs & Dances 10c

This big bang book contains all the latest and most Popular Song Hits of the day, such as LOVE, WAR, COMIC, COON, RAG TIME, 1910, &c. Best and Biggest collection of Songs ever offered. Learn, Whistle and Sing the Latest and be popular in your town. We also send you a Big Cat. & Lot, a $1.00 Due Bill, a Gold Prize Ticket. Also How to Dance all the Latest Dances, THE TANGO, THE MAXIXE, THE HESITATION and DREAM WALTZ, &c., illustrated with Full Instructions, all sent Post Paid for only 10c, or 3 lots 25c. Don't miss this Great offer, you'll be Delighted. Address IDEAL MUSIC HOUSE, HURLEYVILLE, N. Y.

BEAUTIFUL BRACELET FREE

Full size; fine GOLD PLATE, late design. Given for selling 12 packs Hair Tonic & Dandruff Remedy at 10c each, we trust you. SMITH DRUG CO., Box 56, WALKERSVILLE, MD.

WILSON'S COREGA Holds False Teeth Firmly and Comfortably in the Mouth

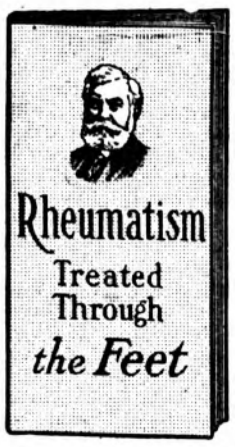
Prevents Sore Gums. Corega is an Odorless, Tasteless and Harmless Antiseptic Adhesive Powder. Eat, talk, laugh, sing, cough or sneeze without annoyance or fear of embarrassment. Dentists and Physicians prescribe it. 50c, $1.00, $2.00 at drug stores or postpaid on receipt of price. Sample for 2-cent stamp.

COREGA CHEMICAL CO., 407 Charles Bldg., Cleveland, Ohio

If You Have

Rheumatism

Write your name and address here



Name.....

Address.....

.....

And send to Frederick Dyer, Dept. 256, Jackson, Mich. Return mail will bring you This Book and My $1.00 Drafts to Try FREE as explained below.

Cut Off Here

Send Today for this FREE BOOK

Tells how to get rid of Rheumatism, no matter where located or how severe, without Medicine. My method has created such a sensation all over the world by its extraordinary simplicity, as well as by its certainty to bring prompt and permanent relief, that every sufferer should learn about it at once. Men and women in every civilized country and in every climate are writing me that my Drafts have cured them, some after 30 and 40 years' suffering—a whole lifetime of pain—cured even after the most expensive treatments and baths had failed. No matter what your age, nor where or how severe the pain, I take all risk of failure and send you the Drafts right along with my Book, without a cent in advance—To Try Free.

Then, after trying my Drafts, if you are fully satisfied with the benefit received, you can send me One Dollar. If not keep your money. You decide and I take your word. Send above coupon TODAY and get My Drafts and My Illustrated Book, by return mail, prepaid. Address—Frederick Dyer, Dept. 256, Jackson, Michigan. Send no money—just the coupon.

A Physician Cures His Wife Of Consumption

With A Simple Home Treatment. Book Fully Describing The Treatment Sent Absolutely Free To Any Lung Sufferer.

DR. W. H. KNIGHT of East Saugus, Mass., writes: "My wife was down with Consumption, when I ordered the Lloyd treatment. She was very weak from night sweats, cough, and in a feverish condition. I noticed a change for the better after ten day's treatment, and from that time on up to three months, when the cure was completed. The Lloyd Treatment kills the Tubercle Bacillus in the blood and tissue, and it is the only remedy so far discovered that will do this. It is a preventive as well as a cure. It should be used by those who are run down, or those who fear the approach of Consumption. It can be truthfully said that for the cure and prevention of Consumption, it is the most wonderful treatment of the present age."

This is only one of hundreds of letters received from physicians and others reporting cases of consumption and lung trouble restored to health in all sections of the United States. We want to send every lung sufferer absolutely free the startling statements of Dr W. H. Kiester of Dayton, Ohio, Dr. C. G. Pinckard of Kansas City, Mo., Dr. J. H. Ward of Troy, Mo., and many others who report results almost beyond belief, together with a valuable booklet on the cause, prevention and treatment of consumption and lung trouble.

If you are suffering from weakness, blood-spitting, pus-filled sputum, night sweats, chills, fever, loss of flesh, painful lungs, distressing cough, wasted body, loss of strength—write me today and I'll send you ABSOLUTELY FREE the sworn testimony of many who, after suffering with just such distressing symptoms, now state that they ARE CURED, strong, able to work, without ache or pain, happy, full of praise, after a few month's use of this simple home treatment. Send your name and address TODAY. LLOYD CHEMICAL CORPORATION, 501 Franklin, St. Louis, Mo.

GYPSY Fortune Teller

And Dream Book

Know thy future. Will you be successful in Love, Marriage, Health, Wealth, and Business. Tells fortunes by all methods. cards, palmistry, tea cup, zodiacology, etc. Gives lucky and unlucky days. Interprets dreams. A large book by mail for TEN CENTS. Earn money telling fortunes.

ROYAL PUB. CO., Dept. 47. So. Norwalk, Conn.

APPENDICITIS

If you have ever been threatened, or have ever had pains in the right side, our Book on Gall-Troubles sent Free upon request, may throw valuable light on this subject and give you the key to the cause & cure of your trouble

Gallstones Internal remedy (No Oil). Avoid an operation. No more aches or pains, sick stomach, colic, gas, biliousness, headaches, nervousness, catarrh, constipation, yellow or sallow skin, chronic appendicitis. Write for Home Treatment Medical book on Gall Troubles FREE

GALLSTONE REMEDY CO., Dept. A-30, 219 S. Dearbon St., Chicago

ECZEMA

IS CURABLE Write me today and I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing guaranteed treatment that will prove it. Stops the itching and heals permanently. DR. CANNADAY, 106 Park Square, SEDALIA, MISSOURI.

UNCLE CHARLIE'S

Poems and Story Book, cloth bound, 50 cents each Song Book 30 cents Address

UNCLE CHARLIE, care Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

FREE

Stem wind and set watch, guaranteed 5 years, for selling 20 art and religious pictures or 20 pkgs. post cards at 10c each. Order your choice.

GATES MFG. CO. Dept. 425 Chicago

Conducted by Cousin Marion

In order that each cousin may be answered in this column, no cousin must ask more than three questions in one Month.

WELL, well, this is the last month of winter and I wonder if the resolutions you made at New Year's are still good enough to last till spring. I hope they are, for some that I made I fear are getting awfully weak and I don't know whether they will last or not. But, I guess we needn't bother very much, because it won't be very long till next New Year's and then we can begin all over again and make some more just as we have been doing every year for ever so long. It's nice, though, to be so far through the winter, isn't it? Still we hadn't better take off our warm clothes till after the March winds have quit blowing. And I hadn't better be talking so much, either, so here I go to work.

The first letter is from Cousin Lolo of Diamond, Mo., and Lolo is quite a business girl. She says she has gone with a boy three times and is an love with him, but she is a working-girl and can't waste her time, so she wants to know if she should ask him if he cares for her, and wait a month or two before asking him. Now isn't that real business? And she is only seventeen, too. I don't know, but it seems to me that she might wait and give him a chance to say something first. Still, if she's in such a hurry and has no time to waste, she might do the proposing herself. She's funny, though, isn't she?

Sad Heart, Newport, Pa.—As you kept one man waiting four years and another one year and now have two between whom you cannot decide, I think you should keep yourself waiting for about seven years or until you really know what you want in the husband line. Truly, my dear, vacillating girls like you should never marry except to make themselves and their husbands unhappy. There is nothing like it for that.

Sunbonnet, Elkins, W. Va.—If a young man wants a girl to write to him he should write the first letter asking her to write and giving his address. If on the other hand, he says he can't write because he is in camp and cannot find a place to write, you may set it down as a fact that while he is quite ready to receive letters, he doesn't care enough for them to write for them. In other words he wants somebody else to do the work and he have all the fun. If you want to write to that kind of a man, go ahead, I don't care.

Jane, Jeannette, Pa.—There are some questions, my dear, which are so nearly one's own heart and mind and body that no one can answer them except the one to whom they apply. Yours is of that kind and you must answer it in your own way to suit your own belief in what is right. I'm sure I can't answer it for you.

Gray Eyes, Burtonsville, N. Y.—Your fiance is quite right in not wanting you to play kissing games to be kissed by any young man who may catch you. Kissing games are vulgar at best, and that any church in Burtonsville should permit them at its social affairs shows that a revival of religion is needed in that church.

Babe, Springfield, Tenn.—When a young man tells a girl if he didn't love her he wouldn't ask her to let him kiss her, you may set it down as a fact that he says the same thing to every girl he wants to kiss. Every sensible person knows this and why some girls will continue to let themselves be kissed on such an argument passes my comprehension. Of course, no matter what I say, you will do as you please, but for goodness sake whatever you do, don't believe he is telling you the truth.

Curly Lox, Fonda, N. Y.—I don't know the custom in Fonda, but if the young man hasn't money enough to go on a wedding trip with you to England, where you are so anxious to go, I don't think it would be very nice to go alone and leave him in Fonda till you return. Anyway don't go until the war is over. They have trouble enough there already.

B. B., Littles, Ind.—If you think you would be happier leaving a respectable home to go with a young man of bad character whose family are no better, I suppose you ought to be let go. Still, it does seem to me that you would prefer to remain at home. As you are of age you may choose for yourself.

Worried, Phœnix, Ariz.—I may be wrong, Cousin, but I really believe that when any man who makes love to a girl, who doesn't want him to, by threatening to kill himself if she will not marry him, the girl ought to do all she could to have him carry out his threat. It is nothing more than a good riddance of bad rubbish.

Sad Heart, Oak Cliffs, Texas.—As he gets drunk occasionally but is otherwise "a perfect gentleman," I think you will be wise to continue the break now that you have broken with him. You are lonesome now in your new place as you just want somebody around. Wait a little while and a better somebody who is a perfect gentleman without the drinking will claim you as his own.

Golden Rod, Losantiville, Ind.—I think you had better wait till you get over your lonesome spell before looking up the thirty-year-old man you let go carelessly when a younger man appeared and then got married to some other girl. When a girl gets real lonesome she is almost ready to do any desperate deed.

Worried, New York, N. Y.—I am rather glad the young man you thought was such a gentleman you gave him your photograph has turned out to be a "loafer" and won't return it to you though you have sent his back to him. I have so many times cautioned all you girls about giving your photograph to young men that I can't be very sorry when one who has refused my advice is now suffering on account of it. I don't know any way you can get your picture from him except by sending some man after it he is afraid of. Suppose you try that.

Gladys and May, Laclede, Mo.—The teacher is quite correct and if you do not wish to be embarrassed by his saying: "Not matured yet," when you flirt with the boys, you should stop flirting in school. It's no place for that, anyhow.

Doubtful Betsy, Smithville, W. Va.—Don't ask me if you should encourage the backward youth, or go with other young men, and if he cares at all for you that will encourage him enough. (2) The girl of twenty-one may marry the man of forty-two if she loves him better than one fifteen years younger.

Troubled, Alexandria, La.—When a girl of nineteen cannot prevent another of thirty-one from taking her beau, aged twenty-one, away from her, I think, my dear, that you might as well throw up your hands and confess that the old girl has the better of it. The beau isn't old enough yet to know his own mind and you are too young to show it to him.

Four Girls, Paducah, Ky.—My, my, something must have happened in Kentucky, for four girls write me from that land of lovely ladies and each one wants my advice about what to do with her beau. The idea of Kentucky girls writing clear to Maine for such information. I'm sure I don't know what they should do, if they don't know.

Blue Eyes, Scotsburg, Ind.—Don't worry, and be just as nice to him as he is to you. When you are out of school and he sees you going about as a real young lady he will be nicer than ever and say to you what you want him to say. But if you get silly about him, you will spoil everything.

Troubled One, Norwood, Mass.—Don't stop a minute about marrying him if he is all right, except being your third cousin. The relationship is too far off to be any objection whatever. It is only the near kin who should not marry.

Prairie Lily, Oglalla, Okla.—If you want him near you when he is away and want him away when he is near you, you had better let him stay away from you. It is ever so much better to want what you don't have than to have what you don't want.

Silver Threads, Adams, Mass.—You did wrong in encouraging him, not loving him, but it would have been a greater wrong to have married him. Tell him this frankly and ask his forgiveness and friendship. But why did you ever do it?

Blue Eyes, Buffalo, Minn.—If the girl cousin of your good friend insists on saying mean things to you about him, tell her you have no wish to hear family secrets and that she will please not talk to you about the young man. You know kin people think they have a right to say mean things of their own family.

Anxious, Cave-in-Rock, Ill.—Don't flirt with your teacher, or let him flirt with you until you are through with your school. He should know enough not to permit it, even if you don't, as too many silly school girls don't.

J. W., Vine LaVotte, Mo.—The world is full of cases just like yours and there is no help for them. The one you want doesn't want you and the one who wants you you don't want. It should be different, but it isn't, and poor humans must suffer.

Marie and Elsie, Alamo, Mich.—Don't worry about being wall-flowers. They are the last to wither and die.

Black Eyes, Elora, Tenn.—As the young man doesn't seem to know anything else to talk about except kissing, suppose you tell him to read the newspapers for a year or so and then come around again and tell you what's going on in the world except kissing. Really, you know, you're ever so much better off not to know that sort of a young man at all.

Viola, Lexington, Pa.—When the young man is honest enough to tell you that he likes you, all right, but he doesn't want a steady girl, yet a while, you should be sensible about it and let him go free as long as he wants to. He never made love to you, or has deceived you in any way, and as he has been fair with you, you should be fair with him. If he doesn't love you enough to come back to you, he can't help it, and is not to be blamed. There is no one to blame except yourself, and you should not have tried to hold him when he didn't want to be held.

Brown Eyes, Tampa, Fla.—I should think that a young man who came fourteen miles every Sunday in his auto for fourteen months to see a girl cared a lot for her, even if he didn't make love to her, but as he does that, too, something must be wrong or he would talk about marrying. Suppose for a Sunday or two you have an engagement of some sort and tell him beforehand so he won't drive fourteen miles only to be disappointed. Intimate to him, when he asks why you did it, that there is another young man in the field and there is no reason why you shouldn't divide your Sundays.

Puzzled, Ormond, Fla.—Maybe it isn't fair to a young man to object to him because he has undesirable kin, but not a few girls who have married men of that kind have wished afterwards that they had not. Romantic love is lovely, no doubt, but married love with a whole raft of kinsfolks that you don't want to associate with and your husband wants you to, is very different.

There, my dears, I have had my say to you as far as I could and I hope you feel as satisfied with it as I do. Maybe I have scolded some, but it has been for your good and I am always glad to do anything for your good. So there. Now good by till we meet again and the Lord be with us always.

COUSIN MARION.

One of the Sights

In the vicinity of Forty-second Street and Broadway, a rugged-looking old fellow may be seen wandering about, carrying a violin.

He is evidently very poor for his clothing is shabby and threadbare. But, he possesses one treasure,—his violin.

Sometimes he will stop for a few moments, and draw the bow rapidly across the strings. Again he will stand twanging the strings, as one would the strings of a banjo. He never asks alms, and when a curious crowd gathers he moves away, muttering, muttering to himself. No one understands his words, because he is a foreigner. All the members of the traffic squad are familiar with the old fellow. They call him the "mad musician," but declare him to be harmless.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off. —Advertisement.

35 VIEWS OF EUROPE, Birthday, Love, Art, Comics, Just out. MAGNUS A. HESS CO., 837 Ashland Boul', Chicago. 10c

CARDS, Dice, Magic Goods, Novelties. Catalog Free. D. M. SMYTHE Co., Newark, Mo.

$10 Cash Paid PER 1000 FOR CANCELLED Postage Stamps. Send 10c for Price List Paid. A. SCOTT, COHOES, N. Y.

Wise Men get my Money Proposition. Frank M. Shilling, Navarre, Ohio.

Money $ $ FOR WISE MEN $ $ KEY FREE. J. Warren Smith, Ottawa, Ill.

FITS I CURED MY DAUCHTER by simple discovery. Doctors gave her up. Will send T. LEPSO, Island Ave. MILWAUKEE, WIS. FREE

Asthma Prompt relief. Remedy Guaranteed. Trial treatment mailed free. Dr. Kinsman, Box 618, Augusta, Me.

"LET ME" read your character from your handwriting. Mind you get a good reading that will help you in love, health, business and domestic affairs. Price 10c. Money back if dissatisfied. G. A. Beauchamp, 2583 8th Ave., New York.

This Wife and Mother

Wishes to Tell You FREE How She Stopped Her Husband's Drinking

By all Means Write to Her And Learn How She did it.

For over 20 years James Anderson of 602 Elm Ave., Hillburn, N. Y., was a very hard drinker. His case seemed a hopeless one, but 10 years ago his wife in their own little home, gave him a simple remedy which much to her delight stopped his drinking entirely.

To make sure that the remedy was responsible for this happy result she also tried it on her brother and several of her neighbors. It was successful in every case. None of them has touched a drop of intoxicating liquor since.

She now wishes everyone who has drunkenness in their homes to try this simple remedy for she feels sure that it will do as much for others as it has for her. It can be given secretly if desired, and without cost she will gladly and willingly tell you what it is. All you have to do is write her a letter asking her how she cured her husband of drinking and she will reply by return mail in a sealed envelope. As she has nothing to sell do not send her money. Simply send a letter with all confidence to Mrs Margaret Anderson at the address given above, taking care to write your name and full address plainly. (We earnestly advise every one of our readers who wishes to cure a dear one of drunkenness to write to this lady today. Her offer is a sincere one.)

SIGNET BRACELET AND RING FREE

Genuine Gold plated, fits any arm, richly chased, heavy signet medallion; also a handsome ring.

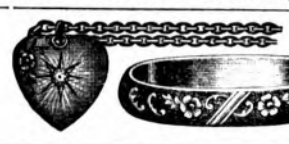
Both Given for selling 12 packages Bluine at 10cts. each. BLUINE MFG. CO., 341 MILL ST., CONCORD JCT., MASS.

VIOLIN FREE

Full size violin, with Bow, and book of instructions, given for selling 20 pieces of Jewelry at 10 cts. each. Write for them today.

Eagle Watch Co., Dept. 155 East Boston, Mass.

Old Coins WANTED, $1 to $900 paid for hundreds of coins dated before 1894. Send 10c for our Ill. Coin Value Book. It may mean your fortune. OLD COIN CO., 303 EAST 61st ST., CHICAGO



CROWN YOUR TEETH with our gold finished shells and fool your friends. Great fad; resembles dentists' work. Slips over the tooth; easily adjusted; removed at will. Over two million sold. Thousands of pleased customers. Price 10c each; 4 for 25c or 32 for 50c. C. B. FARGO, Dept. Y FRENCHTOWN, N. J.

BIG SURPRISE BOX Full of Presents FREE!

WE buy thousands of dollars' worth of premiums every year and carrying such a large stock at all times we naturally have a great many odds and ends left on our hands—not enough to make special offers on, yet a sufficient quantity to cause us a big loss unless disposed of in some manner. So, in order to close out at a sacrifice this large accumulation of premium merchandise which consists of Jewelry of all kinds, Rings, Brooches, Hatpins, etc., different kinds of Fancy Work, Crochet and Embroidery Outfits, German and Japanese Novelties and Musical Toys, Games, and a host of other articles too numerous to mention, we will upon receipt of Only One 15-Months Subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents send you a Surprise Box containing not less than six different premium gifts in one nice box by Parcel Post prepaid. We guarantee that you will be both pleased and delighted with what we send you, if not you have the privilege of sending everything back to us and we will send you by return mail your choice of any other premium offered for one subscription in our Premium List. Remember only one new 15-months subscription to COMFORT at 25 cents brings you this Box of Surprise Gifts—a variety of up-to-date, seasonable merchandise which might cost you quite a sum of money in any store. If you prefer you may send your own subscription or renewal or extension of your present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 5 cents additional (30 cents in all). But whichever offer you accept you should send your order in quick because this is a great odd lot bargain offer of remnants and our supply is limited. Don't delay but send in your order today.

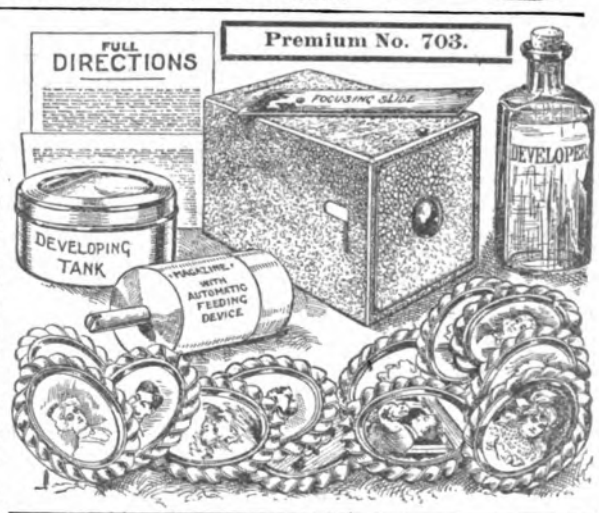
Address COMFORT, Dept. C. S. Augusta, Maine.

ALL THESE FREE



Gold plated Locket set with sparkling stone and 22-inch chain, one Nethersole Bracelet to fit any arm and these 4 gold plated Rings ALL GIVEN FREE for selling only 12 pieces of our Jewelry at 10c each. Write for Jewelry today.

EAGLE WATCH CO., Dept. J, East Boston, Mass.

Photo-Button Camera

Will Produce A Finished Picture In Two Minutes

JUST think of it! A camera with which you can take, develop and finish a picture in just two minutes. To you this may seem impossible, but it is true nevertheless. Think of the amusement and pleasure to be had taking photographs of your friends and neighbors with this camera and deliver them the finished pictures while they wait. And the beauty of it all is, this wonderful camera does all the work itself. You don't have to know anything about photography in order to take pictures with this camera—you don't need to spend money fitting up a dark room and buying ruby lights and chemicals and the dozens of other conveniences which are absolutely necessary to have with the ordinary camera. This new Photo-Button camera does away with all that trouble and expense because you can take, develop and finish the pictures in broad daylight. You can commence to take pictures just as soon as you receive it, for we also give you a complete outfit consisting of One Dozen Plates, One Dozen Brooch Frames, a Bottle of developing fluid, developing tank and complete instructions how to go ahead and be successful from the very start. You can then take pictures of any of your folks or your friends, and you can mount the pictures in the pretty Brooch Button frames like those illustrated above. The pictures are perfectly round and of good size measuring 1 ¼ inches in diameter. And after you have used up what plates, brooch frames and developer we give you, you can send to us for another supply as we have the extra plates and everything else in stock and can let you have them free in return for one, two or three new 25-cent subscriptions to COMFORT, according to what you order and how much. Or, if you prefer, we will sell you the plates, developer, etc., at a low price. You may have this Camera and Complete Outfit without paying a cent, if you will accept the following

You Don't Have To Know Photography—You Don't Need A Dark Room Or Ruby Light—Or Other Accessories—The Camera does it all!

CLUB OFFER. For only four 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each or two 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you this Photo-Button Camera and Complete Outfit Free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 703.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

30 DAYS FREE TRIAL

Total cost only $7.50 by Our 7 MONTHS TIME Purchase Plan

to prove to you that this magnificent Royal has the Sweetest, Purest, Loudest and Clearest tone—to prove to you that it is as large and handsome as the trust machines that sell at $25.00—to prove to you that it has the strongest motor, the best reproducer and tone arm and the most ingenious devices to start, stop and control the music. Shipped with a supply of 10-inch double disc records of your selection, so you can enjoy the finest entertainments for one whole month. Return the outfit AT OUR EXPENSE if for any reason you do not wish to keep it. Drop a postal for our big list of unsolicited testimonials, record book and other literature. They are free.

S. H. DAVIS, T-62 6101 May St., CHICAGO

FREE 39 PIECE ROSE and GOLD DINNER SET

We Pay All Express Charges

The most liberal offer ever made. A beautiful dinner set sent free and we even pay the express charges. Any reader of this great offer can easily do the little service I require in a few hours of their leisure time among friends and neighbors. I have given away thousands of sets and I have one for you. Send me your name and address today.

C. C. FRENCH, Mgr., 680 Friend Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

FREE THESE 4 RINGS FREE

Just send name and address. We'll send 24 packages Gold Eye needles and 12 thimbles. Sell 2 packs for 10c giving thimble free. Return $1.20 and we'll send rings. Guaranteed 5 years. We trust you. KEYSTONE NOVELTY CO., Box 500 Greenville, Pa.

Big Sleeping Doll FREE

Nearly 2 feet tall, completely dressed in satins and laces, beautiful picture hat and feather. Has slippers, underwear, stockings, etc. A perfect beauty. Send name and we'll send 8 set art pictures to distribute on special offer at 25c. Send money collected and we send doll free, also extra present. M. O. SEITZ, 105 CHICAGO for selling 12 packages Bluine at 10cts. each. Rifle first class in every way. When sold return our $1.20 and we send rifle. BLUINE MFG. CO., 339 Mill St., Concord Jct., Mass.

THIS AIR RIFLE FREE

GENUINE DIAMOND RING FREE

Solid gold filled, guaranteed for 25 years, set with small genuine Diamond chip. To introduce our catalogue we will send this Ring on receipt of 12c to help pay adv.

EAGLE JEWELRY CO., Dept. 22, East Boston, Mass.

ECZEMA

can be cured. A trial of our mild soothing treatment should convince. No matter how severe. Dare us to prove it. Stops that terrible itch instantly. Write BARRY CHEMICAL CO., DEPT. 20, 64 E. VAN BUREN ST., CHICAGO.

Throw Your VOICE!

Into the next room, down cellar or anywhere. Fool your friends, lots of fun. The Ventrilophone is a little instrument that fits in the mouth and cannot be seen. Boys or Girls can use it. Also Complete instructions on use of Ventrilophone & Art of Ventriloquism. Price 10cts

ROYAL NOV. CO. Box 38 So. Norwalk, Conn

FITS

A sample of my remedy has cured cases of Falling Sickness, or Epilepsy. Prompt relief guaranteed. I PAY EXPRESSAGE on FREE TRIAL BOTTLE, if you cut out and RETURN advertisement. Sworn statements and hundreds of testimonials on file. Give AGE and FULL PARTICULARS.

Dr. F. Harvey Roof, Dept. 1308, Station N., New York

"KROSS-KEYS" Puzzle

PERHAPS you think you are good at solving puzzles but here is a new one that will keep you guessing for a while. It can be done in six seconds but the chances are it will take you six hours, if not longer, to "get it." We will of course send you directions how to do it, but if you are "game" you will not even look at them. You will work it out yourself if it takes a week. As its name implies this puzzle consists of two keys on a key-ring. To all appearances they are locked together in such a manner that it would seem to be a perfectly hopeless task to try to separate them. But as we said before, it can be done and you can do it in a few seconds after you know how. "Kross-Keys" is new—just out—entirely different from any other puzzle ever invented and in our opinion beats every other puzzle we have ever seen.

Thousands of them are being sold in the stores and by agents on the streets in the cities. Any energetic man, woman, boy or girl can make good money selling "Kross-Keys" puzzle in their respective neighborhoods because it is something that sells on sight. We are going to give you an opportunity to first secure one of these puzzles for yourself. Then after you see it and try it, we know that you will want more of them to sell to your friends and neighbors at a good profit. We will supply the puzzles free, you can easily sell them for 10 cents apiece and every cent you take in will be 100% clear profit to you.

FREE OFFER

This Is "IT"

Premium No. 7221

OFFER NO. 7221 A. For one new 15-month subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents, we will send you one "Kross-Keys" puzzle with directions free by Parcel Post prepaid.

OFFER NO. 7221 B. For your own subscription, or renewal or extension of your present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all) we will send you one "Kross-Keys" Puzzle with directions by Parcel Post prepaid.

Special For a club of three 15-month subscriptions at 25 cents each, we will send you one half dozen puzzles, or for a club of five 15-month subscriptions we will send you one dozen by Parcel Post prepaid.

Premium No. 7221.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Cubby Bear in Bad Company

A Bedtime Story for the Little Ones

By Lena B. Ellinwood

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

LITTLE CUBBY BEAR ran into the house one bright spring day, calling, Oh, Mamma Bruin! what do you think? Redtop Woodpecker is home again, and he has wonderful stories to tell about the warm country where he stays in winter!"

Then Cubby Bear stopped short, frightened and unbelieving, for Mamma Bruin was wiping tears away from her eyes! Mamma Bruin was crying!

"Oh, oh!" cried Cubby Bear. "Dear Mamma Bruin! I never saw you crying before! Do tell me, what is the matter?"

"It is not right for me to cry," said Mamma Bruin, "but I feel so troubled about Grandma Bear. She has not been well through the cold winter, and I ought to make her a visit to find out how she is, and take her a basket of good things. But I am so lame I cannot walk so far."

"Oh, send me!" cried Cubby Bear. "I would love to go! Of course Grandma Bear would rather have a visit from you, but I think she would be glad to see me, too!"

"Of course she would," agreed Mamma Bruin, "and you are a good little bear to want to go for me, but I could not think of sending you such a long way alone. It is far away, you would not know how to get there, and I could not have my little Cubby Bear lost on the big mountain!"

Just then there came a tap at the open door, and they looked up to see Foxy Reynard bowing and smiling politely.

"Good morning, good morning," he said cheerily. "I was just passing by, and could not help overhearing what you were saying. I am glad I heard, for I am going over the mountain myself tomorrow, and will be glad to show little Cubby Bear the way to his grandma's house. I have called there many times, and know the way quite well."

"Oh, Mamma Bruin! do you hear that?" cried Cubby Bear, clapping his little paws for joy. "How nice that Foxy Reynard can show me the way! I have always wanted to see what was on the other side of the big mountain. Do say you will let me go!"

"I can help carry the basket, too," said Foxy sweetly. "Then Cubby Bear will not get too tired."

Mamma Bruin did not like to send little Cubby Bear so far, but at last she said he might go, and they both set about filling the basket for Grandma Bear.

"I will bake her a nice cake," said Mamma Bruin, "and send her some dried blueberries, too. Sassafras and checkerberry will be good to make tea, and mixed with the wild bees' honey which I shall send, will perhaps cure her cough."

The next morning was bright and beautiful, and Foxy Reynard called early.

Cubby Bear was ready to start, and kissed Mamma Bruin good by a great many times.

The air was chilly, but grew warmer as the shining sun rose higher in the sky.

Cubby Bear could not walk soberly along the way, but skipped and hopped gleefully. He hoped all his friends would know he had gone on a long journey—too far to go in a day.

Pussy-willows in their spring coats of silver-gray fur nodded to him as he passed. Leaf-buds on the trees were swelling and bursting. Little green points that would be plants by and by were pushing their way up through the moist brown earth. It was good to be alive.

Here and there flaming red wintergreen berries peeped out from beneath their shelter of dark green leaves, and Cubby Bear nibbled at them delightedly.

Foxy Reynard helped to carry the basket, and told Cubby Bear many interesting stories. When they reached the mountain and the way was steep and hard, Cubby Bear often grew tired. Foxy Reynard was older and stronger, but he was always willing to stop when Cubby Bear wanted to rest. The basket seemed to grow heavier.

"We are near the top of the mountain now," said Foxy, late in the afternoon, "but the rest of the climb is harder, and I think we will stay where we are for the night. Look, here is a nice place to rest, under these pine trees, and there is a spring of pure water not far away."

Cubby Bear was glad to rest. His paws were sore with climbing over rocks, and his back ached. But he was happy.

After eating supper and drinking plenty of water from the good, cold spring, Foxy Reynard lay down on a bed of pine needles, and was soon asleep.

Cubby Bear sat looking about him.

"I like the pine trees," he thought. "Their smell is sweet, and they are never still. And I like to see the sun go down—up here on the mountain. One can look far, far off, and see many beautiful things. I think I should like to live on the top of a mountain if my friends could be with me."

Very, very early in the morning Cubby Bear awoke from his night's sleep. Somewhere in the woods a bird was twittering sleepily. The world looked shadowy and gray, and a chilly breeze was blowing. Cubby Bear shivered, and looked to see if Foxy Reynard was awake.

Foxy Reynard was not there! The basket of good things for Grandma Bear was not there! Cubby Bear was all alone on the big mountain!

He trotted around, looking behind bushes and calling, "Foxy Reynard! Foxy Reynard! come back! where are you?"

But Foxy was nowhere to be seen. Cubby Bear sat down on the pine needles, and four, round, shiny tears rolled from his brown eyes.

Just then he heard a sound he was always glad to hear.

"Caw, caw, caw!" came the cheery call, and looking up, he saw Shinyblack Crow flying down from the sky.

"Good morning, Cubby Bear!" he called. "Dry your tears, for I know all about your troubles, and have come to help you."

"You are so good to me!" cried Cubby. "Always, always, when I need help, you come to me! Where is Foxy Reynard?"

"He took your basket before the dark night was gone," Shinyblack told him, "and very softly trotted away with it. Down in a little cave, not very far from here, it is hidden. The cave is the home of Foxy Reynard's brother. They have gone now for one of their friends to come and help them eat up the good things that you brought for Grandma Bear. Come quickly, and I will show you the way. I would have brought the basket for you if I could."

Shinyblack Crow hopped along, flying a little now and then, and Cubby Bear hurried as fast as he could, to reach the cave before the three foxes came back.

A stone slipped when he stepped upon it, and rolled down the mountain side, giving him a bad fall, but he did not stop for that.

By and by they reached the cave. The three foxes had not come back, and taking the basket Cubby Bear trotted off with it.

Shinyblack Crow flew up in the air to look about.

"The foxes are nowhere in sight," he called. "We shall be able to get away quite safely. Now, little Cubby Bear, follow where I show you the way, and I will take you to your grandma's house. I know a way to go around the mountain now, so you will not have the hard climb over the top."

The sun was up now, the cold breeze was gone, and little birds everywhere were singing their happy morning song.

Cubby Bear was not afraid, now that his good friend was guiding him. Before noon they reached Grandma Bear's house, and the long journey was at an end.

Grandma Bear was better, and was glad to see little Cubby Bear and Shinyblack Crow.

"I have known sly old Foxy Reynard and his family a long time. He is sure to get little bears into trouble. Remember, my little Cubby Bear," said wise old Grandma Bear, "that if you want to be safe and happy, you must choose your friends with care."

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 22.)

ORIENT POINT, N. Y.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

Received the League button, certificate, and list of cousins desiring letters. Thank you very much for same. Was very much pleased with everything and I am going to try to live up to the rules.

Now Uncle, I would like to ask you a few questions. Are the cousins supposed to answer all letters received?

Now I've sent so many cards and letters to those that write in COMFORT, saying that they will answer all cards and letters received, but they don't do it. I have received no answers from the many I've written to. Do you think they do right? I don't. They are not fair to themselves or to the ones that write to them. I think the League of Cousins is grand. Now, please Uncle, don't think I'm complaining as I'm not. I just wanted to know what you thought about it.

COMFORT is just a grand old paper, I wouldn't be without it for anything. I enjoy reading it so much. God bless you Uncle, you are doing lovely work. I only wish I had lots of money. Do you know what I would do with it if I had? I would give it to those who need it, for I know there are many that do need it. Jesus said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." And I believe it is. My heart goes out to those who are so sickly and in need of help.

Your ever loving niece, MABEL LATHAM.

P. S.—Uncle, if you ever come on L. I. don't forget to come and see me. I would love to have a chat with you.

Mabel, you are a dear sweet girl, the kind of girl I love. You live at one end of Long Island I live at the other. The nice people of this world always seem to get as far away from us as possible. Queer isn't it? Now Mabel, I've no doubt you feel you have a real grievance against those whose letters appear in this department. Those who write say they will answer all letters received, but you see they don't expect to get more than a dozen, but instead they get hundreds and thousands. One girl who had a letter in this department got 70,000 replies. They came a thousand a day for more than two months. That will give you an idea of the size of the COMFORT family. It would have cost at least ten thousand dollars to have replied to those leters, and it would have taken her a lifetime to have done it. When I'm going over the thousands of letters that reach me, in every hundred letters or so I will write across one or two that have touched my heart and brought tears to my eyes: "Answer positively." These I put aside. In a week or two I find I've got a whole drawer full of "Answer Positively" letters and maybe out of the whole bunch I'm only able to scratch a few lines on a postal card to one. Those who don't hear from me, and are entitled to hear from me, will realize what I'm up against when I tell them that I have a little niece in Australia who constantly pleads with me to write to her, and the best I've been able to do in three years is to send her a postal card and one letter, which I dictated to Maria. To show how good intentions oft go awry I promised in the September issue to send to all interested the "Golden Keys" which would reveal the source of everything that had made life worth while to me. As a result of those good intentions on my part I found it would cost me thirty dolars for printing to carry them out. Those intentions however will be carried out when I get a little bit richer—if that time ever arrives. Those who have letters printed in this department are much in the position in which I found myself one Sunday when five friends who had come from a distance walked in quite unexpectedly and demanded dinner. I was sick and was not eating at the time. Billy and Maria had treated themselves to a small broiler, a juvenile chicken which weighed about three ounces. How we got out of that predicament I would never dare to tell. However I told Maria to go out in the street and shoot a horse, but nothing but automobiles went by for three hours, and we couldn't eat them. Billy reminded us that there was a nice fat baby down-stairs, and we tried to buy it but didn't have enough money. I have a Bronze Barye lion on a bookcase, and when he saw the condition of things and viewed that hungry mob, he jumped down from his perch, gave a yell and ran for his life. You see at times we get up against propositions in this world for which we can find no solution. We are up against what in diplomacy is called an empasse, nothing left but to fight or run. The party who receives a thousand letters throws up his or her hands and runs to the woods every time the mail carrier makes his appearance. Now that's just what you'll do, Mabel, when this letter of yours gets in print. You'll sit down in the middle of the letters and never reply to one. Give her a deluge cousins and see if I am not right. You see the trouble with you Mabel my dear, is that you didn't stop to think. Nobody does. That's why there is so much poverty and wretchedness in the world. That's why a whole bunch of standpat reactionaries including Uncle Joe Cannon and his big cigar are back in Congress, and the progressive Bull Moosers and other reformers have been forced to hike to the tall grass. How I do wish you had all that money you long for Mabel! I would crawl down to the other end of Long Island and try and grab a "one spot" before you had given it all away. After a careful survey of the human race I've come to the conclusion nobody has any money, nobody ever had any money, nobody ever could have any money, and nobody ever will have any money, and the only people who want to give money away are those who have not got it. You are quite right dear. Jesus did say, "It is far more blessed to give than to receive," but the trouble is you can't give unless you do receive, and the people as a whole do not get enough to be able to give anything. We can however, give our love abundantly, but all the love and sympathy in the world never bought a five cent loaf. The greatest thing in the world dearies, isn't love as we understand it, but something far higher and more glorious; and that is sacrifice, which is sublimated love, love in its essence, love at its zenith, love in perfection. That kind of love is scarce, and is usually only found in the family circle. We will sacrifice for our own but not for others. The world will never be as Jesus wanted it to be and as I want it to be, until we are ready to sacrifice for others as well as for our own. The world doesn't pay much attention to the teaching of Jesus, though judging from the piles of people who go to church you would think that it did. Most people alas, only want to use Jesus for their own selfish ends. They think it's a case of choosing between Jesus or hell fire, and so they use Jesus as a stepping stone to reach heaven and so escape the Satanic coal range. I am thankful to say I never used Jesus for any such miserable or contemptible purposes. I've used Him so that I could love more, and so be more lovable. Instead of making church spires point to heaven I would make them point to earth. That might make the Old Boy get scared and run. I never worry about my soul, and never worry about heaven. I know that God will attend to His end of the business, if I attend to the duties He has mapped out for me here. I'm not content to have heaven above me. I want it all around me, and the only way to get heaven around me is not to use Jesus as a stepping stone or a fire escape, but as a big and loving brother, the essence of all that is glorious, good, noble, righteous and holy. The kingdom of heaven is within us, the immortal seed is in every human. What we want to do is to develop that precious seed and get others to develop it and spread its glorious influence, and then we'll have heaven here—just a little foretaste of that greater

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 33.)

Six Wheel Chairs in January

264 is COMFORT'S Total to Date

Six wheel chairs in January is a good beginning for the new year. I have no further comment to make except to thank those who have helped to produce this splendid result and to ask you all to do your best to keep up this good work through the year.

The six January wheel chairs go to the following named persons. The figures after the names indicate the number of subscriptions which the friends of the respective recipients sent in their behalf.

Mrs. DeWitt Ghormely, Buckhead, Ga., 200; William Russell Harrison, 1204 Choctaw Ave., Dewey, Okla., 200; Mrs. J. F. Woolwine, R. 1, Salem, Va., 106; Katye Sanders, Bradley, Miss., 105; Mrs. S. B. Luley, Miltonsburg, Ohio, 103; J. C. Carter, Dublin, Texas, 87.

The entire 200 subscriptions for Mrs. Ghormely's chair came in one day, 100 of them from Mrs. G. M. Gaissert and the other 100 from Mrs. R. H. Paschal. Mrs. Ghormely is a widow with four children. Since the death of her husband, two years ago the entire family have depended on the oldest child for support. For ten years Mrs. Ghormely has been crippled by rheumatism so that she could not walk. The wheel chair will be a great boon to her for which she has to thank the two good and energetic ladies who got the 200 subscriptions for her.

William Russell Harrison, 17 years of age, is helpless and has been so from birth. His parents have spent all they had and all they could earn for medical and surgical treatment in their efforts to find a cure for their unfortunate boy, even sacrificing their farm for this purpose, and all to no avail. He sits up part of the time and has to be lifted from the bed to the chair, usually by his mother. He has a bright and active mind and learns quickly. The wheel chair will save her much hard lifting of him, as he can practically live in it, having it tipped from a sitting to a reclining position when he wishes to rest or sleep. Kind friends and relatives got the entire 200 subscriptions for him in about six weeks.

The seat of Mrs. Woolwine's trouble is in her back which prevents her walking and renders her hands and arms nearly useless. The wheel chair will be a great relief to her.

Kayte Sanders, though 14 years of age, weighs only 75 pounds. She is almost helpless, having a little use of one hand. She suffers much from pain in the head, back and legs. She is sadly in need of her wheel chair.

Mrs. S. B. Luley has been a shut-in for twenty-five years. Her wheel chair comes to her late but better than never.

J. C. Carter, 54 years of age, is nearly helpless. The wheel chair will be a great comfort to him as well as a great help to his good wife in taking care of him.

There are lots of others on our waiting list, many of them more distressing cases than these. Do all you can this month toward getting them the wheel chairs they are trying for and praying for.

We have a splendid Roll of Honor this month, but I have little room to spare for letters of thanks.

Sincerely yours,

W. H. GANNETT, Publisher of COMFORT.

P. S For the information of our many new subscribers let me explain that for each and every 200 new 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT sent in either singly or in clubs by persons who direct that they are to be credited to COMFORT'S WHEEL-CHAIR CLUB instead of claiming the premiums to which they would be entitled, I give a FIRST-CLASS INVALID WHEEL CHAIR to some worthy, destitute, crippled Shut-in and pay the freight, too. It is a large and expensive premium for me to give for that number of subscribers, but I am always glad to do my part a little faster each month than you do yours.

Subscription price is 25 cents, but if sent in clubs of five or more for the Wheel-Chair Club, I accept them at 20 cents each.

Well Pleased with Her COMFORT Wheel Chair

HAYS, Box 95, N. C.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I received my chair safely and cerfainly am well pleased with it. I want to thank you, Mr. Gannett and all the kind friends who helped me get it, and pray that God will bless you all.

Your sincere friend, ALMEDIE MYERS.

Is a Lovely Wheel Chair and will be a Great Help

PEACH, TEXAS.

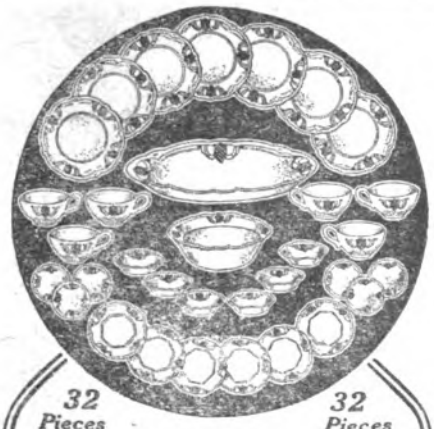
DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I received my wheel chair all O. K., and words can never express my gratitude to you and Mr. Gannett, and all my friends who so kindly helped me get it. It is a lovely chair, and will be such a help to me.

Your sincere friend, EDGAR GARMON.

MURPHY, R. R. 1, N. C.

Her Wheel Chair in which She can Rest is a Great Help and Comfort to Her and Her Friends.



DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I wish to thank you and Mr. Gannett and the many friends who helped me get my wheel chair, which arrived safely some time ago. I am not able to work it myself, on account of my hands and feet being so drawn from rheumatism, but I can rest in it, and it is such a help and comfort to me, and also to my friends, and I could never find words to thank you for this chair. Your sincere friend. MRS. M. L. THOMASSON.

The Roll of Honor comprises the names of those who have sent five or more subscriptions to credit of the Wheel-Chair Club during the month previous. Following each name is the number of subscriptions sent.

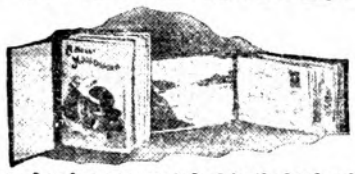
COMFORT'S Roll of Honor

Mrs. R. H. Paschal, Ga., for Mrs. DeWitt Ghormely, 100; Mrs. G. M. Gaissert, Ga., for Mrs. DeWitt Ghormely, 100; Ethel Ridgway, Ky., for Walter Ridgway, 63; Mrs. J. M. Keesor and Mrs. L. J. Mann, Ohio, for Mrs. S. B. Luley, 55; Emma Kramlich, W. Va., for Mrs. S. B. Luley, 49; Mrs. Jennie Harrison, Okla., for Russell Harrison, 35; No Name, Iowa, for Russell Harrison, 30; Sarah Martin, N. Mex., for N. M. Hogg, 23; Mrs. Robert Shaw, Mich., for George Shaw, 23; Mrs. Henry Crawley, Texas, for own wheel chair, 21; Vick Hall, Ga., for Jessie Johns, 20; Lillie Brown, Ga., for Jessie Johns, 20; Golden Fippen, Ind., for own wheel chair, 20; Mrs. Cleatus Chatman, Ind., for Golden Fippen, 20; Mrs. H. N. Stalgrin, Okla., for Russell Harrison, 20; Mary Berry, Ga., for own wheel chair, 18; Mrs. J. F. Woolwine, for Mrs. Woolwine 17; Katye Sanders, Miss., for own wheel chair, 15; Rosa Newkirk, Okla., for J. W. Nolte, 13; Mrs. H. B. Page, N. C., for Mrs. J. L. Brown, 13; Earl L. Long, Kans., for Golden Fippen, 13; Sidalia G. St. Anna, Honolulu, 12; Mrs. Jennie Harrison, for Zeno Gordon, 12; B. J. Malott, Ind., for Golden Fippen, 12; Mrs. S. J. Montgomery, Tex., 11; Mrs. H. E. Whitehead, Iowa, for Russell Harrison, 10; Mrs. Ray Brabyn, Mich., for Geo. Shaw, 10; Mrs. Carrie Lowery, Ga., for Jessie Johns, 10; Mrs. Addie Spillman, Okla., for J. W. Nolte, 9; Mrs. J. K. Henderson, Wash., 8; Mrs. S. C. Jones, Tex., for J. C. Carter, 7; Mary E. Crocker, N. Y., 6; Edith Henderson, Mont. 6; Mrs. Ardella Porritt, Idaho, for own wheel chair, 5; Mrs. C. A. Kaserman, Ark., 5; Mrs. E. Barton, Iowa, 5; Mrs. Pearl Wheeler, Ind., for Bernard Beadle, 5; Mrs. Alice Webb, Tex., for Mrs. Lue Ella Roark, 5; Mrs. Grace Crawford, N. Y., 5; Mrs. Clara Leber, Ill., 5; Mrs. Alice Chambers., Wis., 5; Lydia Roehrdamz, Minn., 5; Mrs. Mattye Russell, Okla., for Odessa Rasure, 5; Mrs. E. T. Wright, Mo., 5; Mrs. Kolz, Colo., 5; Mrs. Dora H. Maher, Ill., 5; Mrs. O. H. Ester, Okla., for Elvin M. Hale, 5; Miss I. Spence, Ore., 5; Mrs. M. E. Church, Va., 5; M. J. Ferrell, Pa., 5; Mrs. C. A. Purtle, W. Va., for Frank Hamilton, 5; C. M. Furrow, Ore., 5; Mrs. Will Pickinpaugh, Okla., 5; Mrs. Scott Lee, Ark., 5; Mrs. C. M. Clements, Tex., 5; May Davie, Idaho, for Adella Perritt, 5; Mrs. Amada Buss, Wis., 5; Ruby Ellison, S. Dak., for Jewell Ellison, 5; Mrs. J. D. White, Cal., for Carmel Knox, 5.

32 Pieces 32 Pieces

Gold Edged Dinner Set For a Few Hours Easy Work

Our 18th Successful Year



Every piece pure white, high grade china—edged with gold. One of the richest looking, most stylish Dinner Sets on the market. Absolutely up-to-the-minute and of undisputable quality. Guaranteed not to craze. Will add beauty to any table. Get this set. Merely give away FREE 12 beautiful Art Pictures 16x20 in. (sold for $1.00 each in many stores) with 12 cans of White Cloverine Salve, which you sell at 25c each. Send us the $3.00 collected and the set is yours. A doctor discovered "Cloverine." Millions using it for Cuts, Eczema, Catarrh, Colds, Piles, etc. You can also earn Watches, fine Jewelry, Bed Spreads, Blankets, Musical Instruments, Silverware. Large premium catalog. Be first in your town. Everybody buys 2 to 3 boxes. Our plan is the easiest—you will be pleased. Address at once.

Wilson Chemical Co., Dept. 224 Tyrone, Pa.

Don't DESTROY YOUR POST CARDS

150 Cards Only a Handful When You Use Our

"TWIN BINDER"

Each card makes a separate leaf in the book, with both sides of the card visible. The binder is made in two styles or shapes, to accomodate either style card. Ask your dealer or send 35c. (not stamps) for sample. Your money refunded if not satisfied.

JOHN T. SYMONS, PEN ARGYL, PA.

WIN A PRIZE

14	5	23
9	4	5	1	19

Can You Solve this Puzzle?

Each of these lines represents a word. We have used figures instead of letters in spelling these words. There are 26 letters in the alphabet. Letter A is 1, B is 2, C is 3, etc. Now see if you can make out the words and win this prize. Write the words on a slip of paper and send to us with 4c in stamps to cover postage. Say you will explain our offer and show our mdse. to your friends and we will send 12 USEFUL NOVELTIES and our Big Prize Offer. Don't miss this.

THE NEW IDEAS CO., 33 New Ideas Bldg., Phila., Pa.

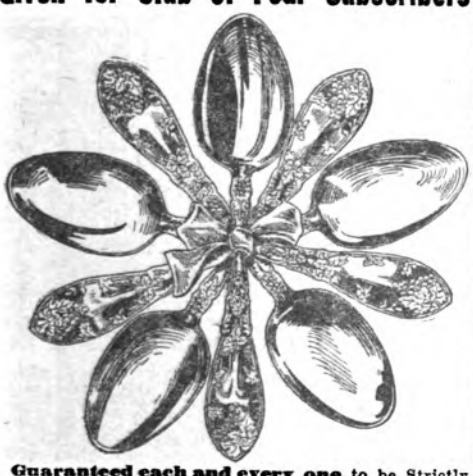
FREE BEAUTIFUL GOLD ENGRAVED SIGNET RING

Your initials engraved on it free of charge, a very handsome ring for either lady or gentleman. All we ask of you is a little easy work that you can do in a few minutes. Send your name and address today.

Signet Ring Co., 672 Friend Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

FREE Just distribute 6 boxes MENTHO-NOVA Salve (Great Healer) at 25c a box. Write for goods. We trust you. Return us $1.50 and high-powered rifle and handsome initial ring are yours or choice of other presents

U. S. SUPPLY COMPANY, Dept. 752 Greenville, Pa.



QUICK RELIEF FOR PILES. Send postal with name and address for FREE sample tube Dr. Pettit's Quick Acting Pile Remedy. Sample will help you. Positive relief, lasting results. HOWARD BROS. CHEMICAL CO., Howard Bldg., BUFFALO, N. Y.

MOTHERS Don't let your child suffer from Urinary Troubles when URI-STOP cures. Trial free. Describe case. I. BOETTGER CHEMICAL CO., PEORIA, ILL.

Six Rogers' Silver Spoons

Warranted to Wear Ten Years

Given for Club of Four Subscribers

Guaranteed each and every one to be Strictly Pure A 1 Brand made by the famous Wm. A. Rogers and every teaspoon is so stamped on back.

This silverware comes in the popular Grape or Vintage Pattern, which is the very latest and prettiest design in Silverware. The picture hardly shows you the great beauty of the dainty, bright, clean clusters of Ripe Grapes or the finely executed leaves growing on the delicate vine seen on the front and back of every spoon. Rogers' Silverware has a world-wide reputation. We can hardly add more. These A 1 Rogers' teaspoons are guaranteed to be full standard extra plate upon the finest quality of 18% nickel silver base, and with ordinary care will last ten years. Some families are using Rogers' ware twice this time.

Everybody loves new, bright silverware. Nobody ever had too much, especially of Wm. A. Rogers' manufacture, as the expense has always and is now, too high, but COMFORT'S plan for sub premium workers make it possible to not only own these six Rogers' teaspoons free but the entire set of table spoons, dessert spoons, knives and forks, sugar shell and butter-knife, all in the same delightful grape or vintage pattern to match, without costing you really a penny.

First send in your four subs to COMFORT at 25c each and receive this set of six Rogers' teaspoons by Parcel Post, then later earn the entire set of Rogers' Silverware to match the spoons. You can do it just as easily for only a few more COMFORT subscriptions as per new plan we will tell you about after you get the 6 spoons. Prem. No. 386. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Comfort's Home Lawyer

In this department will be carefully considered any legal problem which may be submitted by a subscriber. All opinions given herein will be prepared at our expense by eminent counsel.

Inasmuch as it is one of the principal missions of COMFORT to aid in upbuilding and upholding the sanctity of the home, no advice will be given on matters pertaining to divorce. Any paid-up subscriber to COMFORT is welcome to submit inquiries, which, so far as possible, will be answered in this department. If any reader, other than a subscriber, wishes to take advantage of this privilege, it may be done by sending twenty-five (25) cents, in silver or stamps, for a 15-month subscription to COMFORT thus obtaining all the benefits which our subscribers enjoy including a copy of the magazine for fifteen months.

Should any subscriber desire an immediate, special opinion on any legal question, privately mailed, it may be had by sending one dollar with a letter asking such advice, addressing the same to "THE EDITOR, COMFORT'S HOME LAWYER," Augusta, Maine, and in reply a carefully prepared opinion will be sent in an early mail.

Full names and addresses must be signed by all persons seeking advice in this column but not necessarily for publication. Unless otherwise requested, initials only will be published.

C. R. C., New Jersey.—We do not think the owner of a tract of property who has sold lots or tracts from the same and included in the deeds of the portions so sold an agreement to donate portions of his tract of land as private or public streets fixing the boundaries of such streets, can thereafter convey good title to the roadway provided for such streets so that the same can be closed and built upon, unless, of course, the consent of all the interested parties be obtained releasing their rights to said streets.

Mrs. H., McA., Rhode Island.—Under the laws of Ohio we think an illegitimate child would have no intestate rights of inheritance from his father, but, in case of failure of legitimate descendants, would inherit from his mother upon her death intestate.

H. E. M., Florida.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married man, leaving no will, and leaving children and a surviving widow, the widow would receive dower of a one third interest for life in his real estate and a child's part absolutely in the personal estate, or if she so elects she can take the child's part absolutely in the real estate instead of dower; that in case he leaves a will the widow can reject the terms of the will and take the share provided under the intestacy laws; we think such election must be made within twelve months after the proving of the will or the granting of letters of administration, and must be in writing and duly filed or recorded; we think that in case the executor named in a will predeceases the testator that the court will appoint an administrator with the will annexed. We think that if your husband's will was drawn and executed before his marriage to you that he should now execute a new will.

W. D. B., New Hampshire.—We think private correspondence and diaries are oftentimes admissible as evidence in the trial of an action although there are many cases in which such evidence would not be admitted in the trial; we see no objection to the prosecuting authorities procuring and introducing such evidence where the same is proper evidence in a public case, and where the same is procured in a proper and legal manner.

H. W. S., West Virginia.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that the person who signed other persons' names to letters or postals sent through the mail, without the authority or consent of the persons whose names were used can be punished for such act, we think that, if you can substantiate such acts by proper proof, you should make your complaint to your local prosecuting attorney, or to the postal authorities.

Mrs. G. S., Michigan.—Under the laws of your state we are of the opinion, that it is necessary for a wife to survive her husband in order to have any vested interest in his property, except that he can be compelled to support her, and that she has an inchoate right of dower in his real estate which only becomes perfected in case she survives him; we do not think the consent of the children is necessary for the conveyance of their father's property in any event, unless he is mentally incompetent.

Sure Title, Ohio.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married man, leaving no child or descendant and leaving no will, such real estate as did not come to the decedent by descent, devise or deed of gift would all go to the surviving widow, but that if decedent leaves a child or descendant or if the property came to him by descent, devise or deed of gift, the widow's share would be reduced; we think if there is any question as to this in the case you have in mind it would be best for the man in question to draw and execute a will so that he may be sure that the property will go to his wife. We think he should have some competent lawyer or other competent person to attend to the drawing and execution of such a will as this is important.

R. E., New Hampshire.—We think the parents or guardians' consent should be procured to the marriage of the young man under twenty-one years of age; we do not think a stepmother has any right to the custody or control of her husband's children by a former marriage.

E. M. C., West Virginia.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that a husband can be compelled to support his wife and minor children in the proper action or proceeding brought for that purpose; we do not think a wife can recover from her husband moneys which originally belonged to her but which she has voluntarily turned over to her husband.

Mrs. F. W. C., Ohio.—We think the man who signed and delivered a contract for the sale or exchange of his farm but thereafter failed to carry out his contract, can be held, for such damages as were sustained by reason of his failure to do so, in the proper action brought for that purpose, provided any damages were sustained by reason thereof.

R. L. S., South Carolina.—We think your mother could legally mortgage the interest inherited by her upon the death of your sister, in the property owned, at such time, by yourself and sister who died, and we think the mortgage given by your mother alone can be enforced and foreclosed against your mother's interest in the property in case there is a default in the payment of the mortgage; we think that the purchaser of your mother's interest upon the foreclosure sale of this property would become the owner of such interest, and could then bring a partition action and compel the division of the property, or the sale of the property and a division of the money proceeds of such sale; we think that the expense of so much litigation would amount to more than the fifty dollars which you state as the amount now involved.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 32.)

heaven beyond. Society however, is constructed so that it is almost impossible for us to develop the spiritual and the beautiful. The church's one foundation, has not been Christ her Lord. It has been superstition, cant, hypocrisy, greed, privilege, power. That is why after two thousand years of the teaching of Jesus to guide us, we are still a bunch of miserable cutthroat savages, or else pious hypocrites. The world is full of pietists, but piety isn't religion. When it isn't a pose it is dyspepsia, or liver trouble, or gloomitis, or a state of maudlin emotionalism that expresses itself usually by efforts to eliminate all the sunshine and joy of living. If Jesus had known how the world was going to take or mis*take* Him, I believe He would have sought some other sphere in which to have done His work, and left us to get along the best way we could without Him, and as we still persist in misrepresenting His words and His mission we might almost as well dispense with His teachings, as to use them only for selfish ends. Here is a couplet of mine which aptly expresses my views.

I love Thee, Father, not because of that fair promised shore,
But just because through Thee I've learned to love mankind the more.

FITHIAN, ILL.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

My mother is a reader of the COMFORT. I go to school every day. I am in the seventh grade. Last spring we moved from Fairfield, Ill. to Fithian, Ill. I have two brothers up in Canada working through harvest. I have five brothers and four sisters. The youngest sister lives in Canada in the province of Sask. I have three nephews and five nieces. My oldest brother is a preacher. I will send you a poem of mine on our country. Your nephew, WALTER GEEDING.

"Our Country"

Our country tis of thee,
And hope no war will be,
Of thee I pray,
The United States is in peace,
And hope it will not decrease,
Let every battle sease,
Let freedom ring.
Our flag is red, white and blue,
I honor the one who carried it through
The flag bearer.
It was first to sail on the sea,
And it waved for liberty,
In history more will see,
Sweet American flag.

Composed by W. W. Geeding.

Walter, that's a very nice poem you have written about our country. It's nice to hope that wars won't be, but wars are going to continue to be as long as people are ignorant and don't know how to use their ballots. The election in November showed that the people have about as much conception of what is wanted to make the world worth while as would a dead Indian or a blind pig. Thank heaven we succeeded in getting woman suffrage in two more states because people out West are not so weighed down with hoary traditions, iron bound conventions and all round political social blindness as are those who reside east of the Missouri. So once in a while they wake up and do something. In the other sections of the country when anything new comes along they go out in the cemetery and get their inspiration from the grave. They look wistfully at the turf mounds and say: "Father never voted for woman suffrage, father knew nothing about the initiative and referendum; father didn't want to have a say in running the government, father didn't care if people were out of work; father voted as his father did, and his father voted as his father did, and so on back for hundreds of years, so why shouldn't I vote as my father did?" and so he goes and votes as father did. In spite of the fact that I have been trying to hammer a lot of progressive ideas, as have many others, into the heads of the people, it is almost wasted effort, so determined are people to do what father did, unmindful of the fact that conditions are entirely different to what they were in father's day. If father took half an hour to strike a light with an old tinder box, if father shot Indians with a bow and arrow, if father went to bed with his shoes on, there is no reason why you should do those things, and you are too sensible to do those things. It is easy to demonstrate to you that a match is superior to flint and steel, that an automatic rifle beats a bow and arrow, and that shoes worn in bed are not comfortable. If you can grasp these patent facts why can't you get wise to the fact that poverty is not necessary in a land of plenty, that gin mills are poison dens and ought to be abolished, that it's a disgrace to a state to allow men who are anxious to work to be in want of work, that if a woman has only five dollars a week in her pay envelope on Saturday, and has no relatives to help her financially, she must either die of slow starvation or drift to a life of vice. There are scores of other things along these lines that I could mention but when you cast your vote 1st November you never did a single thing to abolish any of these horrors, and none of the men you elected will ever do a single thing to prevent these horrors. What you did do was to perpetuate these horrors and make them worse. Congress never tackles the real problems of life. Did you ever read of a debate in Congress on poverty and the way to abolish it? If half the people in America were starving today and the other half out of work and the remainder eating one another, Congress would be discussing tariff schedules, or Mexico, or whether the natives of the Philippines ought to learn Latin in school or tackle Greek. While we are talking about Mexico and our colonial possessions we don't have to talk about the United States. We must not wonder that we have wars, for society as it is now arranged, with all the wealth in the hands of a few, makes life one long battle anyway. Life, so nearly everyone says, is just one darned thing after another, and one darned thing after another means just one worry after another, and it is worry that kills. There is altogether too much worry in this world—utterly unnecessary worry, the worry of unemployment, the worry of sickness, the rent worry, the food worry, the clothes worry, the worry of the future, the worry of old age, and a thousand other worries, all of which could be wiped out of existence if people would not be so wickedly determined to do everything they can to make progress impossible. Your poem, Willie is full of good intentions, but you have not carried them out very well. You say you hope the United States will not decrease. Of course a good-sized earthquake might blow a few states into the Pacific Ocean or the Atlantic, and the Japs might run away with California, and the Kaiser steal New England, but I don't think anybody will touch it as long as you and some more of the cousins keep writing pottery. You talk about freedom ringing. I didn't know that freedom was in the bell business. There's a lot of rot talked about freedom. We used to talk a lot about freedom in this country when we had black slaves, and now today that we have thousands of white slaves we are still bragging about our freedom. Only a few people in this world are free to go and come when they choose and do pretty much as they like, and I don't envy them, because their freedom is achieved by appropriating nearly everyone else's freedom. Freedom is a rare jewel, the majority of mankind are still seeking it and seeking it vainly. I am very much interested in the second line of your pottery, Willie. In sonorous phrase you inform us that our flag is red, white and blue, and that you honor the one who carried it through the flag bearer. Now I think the man who would willfully carry the flag through the flag bearer is about the meanest gink that ever drew the breath of life. It's tough enough to have a bullet sent whizzing through one, but to have some two hundred pound guy when you're carrying a flag, come with another flag in his hand and walk clean through you, is, to say the least, impolite. I would not care to have anyone

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 34.)

CRAVING FOR TOBACCO STOPPED

A sample of Ro-Lu-Bo the tobacco eradicator convinces you of its ability to help you quickly—surely. Sample free. Bonner Remedy Company, 144 E. Pine, Wichita, Kansas.

12 POST CARDS FREE

We will send you 12 of the prettiest post cards you ever saw if you will send 4c to pay postage and mailing and say you will show some of our pretty cards to SIX of your friends.

New Ideas Card Co., 16 New Ideas Bldg., Phila., Pa.

DROPSY Treated One Week Free Short breathing relieved in a few hours—swelling, water and uric acid removed in a few days—regulates liver, kidneys and heart. Write for Free Trial Treatment. Collum Dropsy Remedy Co., Dept. 25, Atlanta, Ga.

A BEAUtiful neck, face and arms Don't pay 50c. but send 10c. for sealed package to make your skin soft and white and cure pimples, freckles, moth, black head, wrinkles, &c. A perfect skin and food powder combined. Warranted absolutely pure. TOILET COMPOUND CO. Box 1927, Boston, Mass

ELGIN WATCHES ON CREDIT

17 Jewel

Now, during this Special 30-day Sale is the time to buy this elegant 17-Jewel Elgin. Factory tested and fitted in a 25-Year Gold-Filled Case.

No Money Down—$2.00 a Month

Because we want to prove to you that the great volume of our business enables us to save you nearly half on this $20.00 Elgin. Special $12.75

3 Fine Books FREE! MR. HARRIS wants to send you his three latest books free—one the story of "The Diamond," its discovery, where and how mined, cut and marketed; the other, "Facts vs Bunc," or all about the Watch Business, both at home and abroad, also our Big Free Watch and Diamond Book.

You do not pay a cent until we have placed the Watch or Diamond in your own hands for approval—no security—no interest—no red tape. BIG CATALOG FREE.

HARRIS-GOAR CO., Dept. 1506, Kansas City, Mo.

AGENTS—200% Profit

Foot Scraper and Cleaner—Needed on every porch and outside doorstep. Right now is the time to sell it—A winner. C. P. Draper, Mass., first order for 200. C. A. Johnson sold 40 in 1½ days. W. A. Parker sold 92 in 4½ days. Earl Hayward, N.Y., order for 150. W.W. Harpster, Pa., made $27.45 in 4 evenings. Write quick for terms and free sample.

THOMAS SCRAPER CO. 9330 West St., Dayton, Ohio

AGENTS $30 WEEKLY

Selling Improved Easy Irons. Mauller made $58 first 10 hrs. Fitter sold 98 in 3 days. Women crazy for it. Saves steps, time, fuel. Pays for itself quickly. Big profit on every sale. Sell 8 out of 10 homes. Guaranteed. Get our Free Sample offer.

FOOTE MANUFACTURING CO., Box 812 Dayton, Ohio

FREE WATCH, RING AND CHAIN

We give beautifully engraved, latest style, thin model, ladies' small or gents' size hunting or open case WATCH. Fine time keeper, guaranteed 5 years, looks and wears like Gold. Also Im. Diamond Ring and Handsome Chain ALL FREE. Just order 24 fine Mexican drawnwork handkerchiefs, sell at 10c each. Order today and get extra gift free. Send no money.

IDEAL WATCH CO. Box M421 Elmira, N.Y.

FREE—2 LACE Curtains Handsome, refined and effective design. Fine rich lace, beautifully figured—good enough to hang in the parlor of the best home. Will fit largest windows and allow a full, artistic hanging. We give this pair free for distributing 8 sets of art pictures on our special offer at 25c. Write today. M.O. Seitz, 1H5 Chicago

GOLD FILLED BIRTHSTONE RING FREE. To get acquainted with you we will send this gold filled ring, warranted 3 years, any size, set with Your Birthstone, for 12c, to help pay advertising.

The Auction Co., Dept. 170, Attleboro, Mass.

FREE—14k GOLD Filled with secret catch in the latest and most attractive design, given for selling only 7 pkgs. beautiful post cards. Send for them at once. Address A. D. HART, 614 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

FREE 4 RINGS Order 12 pkgs. Gold Eye Needles. Easily sold at 10c with thimble free. Return $1.20 and all 4 beautiful rings are yours. No money needed. Order today. GLOBE CO., Dept. B, 801, Greenville, Pa.

Big Entertainer 163 Parlor Games and Tricks, 310 Jokes and Riddles, 73 Toasts, 15 Card Tricks, 4 Comic Recitations, 3 Monologues, Checkers, 9 Men Morris, Chess, Dominoes, Fox and Geese, etc. All for 10 CENTS

S. G. ABERNETHY, Box 517, Myrtle, Miss.

PROSPECTOR'S DIP NEEDLES, RODS AND GOLDOMETERS for locating minerals and treasures. We trust you for the instrument. Simply pay after first find. Circulars 10 cents. Address JEWELL NOVELTY WORKS, Kalamazoo, Mich.

ASTHMA REMEDY sent to you on FREE TRIAL. If it cures, send $1.00; if not, don't. Give express office. Write today. W. K. Sterline, 874 Ohio Ave., Sidney, Ohio.

SILK All Fancy Colors—Large Pieces—All PURE SILK Waste taken out. Best sort to make Quilts, Cushions, etc. Big lot 10c; 3 Big lots 25c; 7 for 50c; 16 for $1.00, postpaid. INDIA SILK CO., 326 MADISON ST., CHICAGO

FREE BOOKLET: "Victory or snatched from the Jaws of Death," with every woman her own physician Sagine Co., No. 6 East Chestnut Street Columbus, Ohio.

32 NICE POST CARDS different sorts, and a Good Magazine for one year. The WHOLE THING for only ten cents. ROBERTS & CO., 326 MADISON ST., CHICAGO

CURL or crimp your hair with Curling Cream. It is Lovely, Lasting, Sure. By mail 15 cts. Union Mfg. Co., Dep. 12, Palatine, Ill.

Wizard Water Pistol

Given For One Subscription

Premium No. 716

TO all appearances this is a regular, full size, "six shooter" but instead of shooting the deadly bullet it squirts a solid stream of water 30 feet straight to the mark you aim it at. To load this pistol you stick the muzzle into water and pull the trigger three or four times. After it is loaded you discharge it by pulling the trigger just the same as you would an ordinary revolver. After it is loaded it is good for ten shots (of water) before it is necessary to load it again. Boys and girls can have loads of fun with this water pistol by giving their friends surprise "shower baths" and as it shoots nothing but water it is of course perfectly harmless to the smallest child. The "Wizard" is shaped exactly like a regular revolver; is 5 inches long, handsomely nickel plated and beautifully finished. You can obtain this water pistol free upon the terms of the following special offers:

Offer No. 716 A. For one new 15-month subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents, we will send you the Wizard water pistol free by Parcel Post prepaid.

Offer No. 716 B. For your own subscription, or renewal or extension of your present subscription, to COMFORT for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all), we will send you the Wizard Water Pistol free and prepaid. Premium No. 716. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

Let Me Prove That I Can Rid You of it Quickly, Easily, Without Pain or Injury

Free Coupon Below Brings You My Help.

"From deep despair to joyful satisfaction was the change in my feelings when I found an easy method to cure a distressingly bad growth of Superfluous Hair, after many failures and repeated disappointments.

I will send (absolutely free and without obligation) to any other sufferer full and complete description of how I cured the hair so that it has never returned. If you have a hair growth you wish to destroy, quit wasting your money on worthless powders, pastes and liquids, or the dangerous electric needle: learn from me the safe and painless method I found. Simply send your name and address (stating whether Mrs. or Miss) and a 2 cent stamp for reply, addressed to Mrs. Kathryn Jenkins, Suite 502 B. P. No. 623 Atlantic Ave., Boston, Mass.

FREE COUPON This certificate entitles any reader of COMFORT to Mrs. Jenkins' Free confidential instructions for the banishment of Superfluous Hair, if sent with 2c stamp for postage. Cut out and pin to your letter. Good for immediate use only. Address Mrs. Kathryn Jenkins, Suite 502 B. P. No. 623 Atlantic Ave., Boston, Mass.

SPECIAL NOTICE: We earnestly advise every lady who wishes to be rid of the disfigurement of Superfluous Hair to accept above offer at once. This remarkable offer is sincere and genuine, the standing of donor being unquestioned.

The Family Doctor

So many inquiries are received from COMFORT subscribers concerning the health of the family that this column will be devoted to answering them. The remedies and advice here given are intended only for simple cases; serious cases should be addressed to physicians, not to us.

Address The Family Doctor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

NOTICE.—As the privileges of this and all other departments of COMFORT are for subscribers only, no attention will be given any inquiry which does not bear the writer's correct name and address. Initials only, or a fictitious name, if requested, will appear in the published answer, but the inquiry must invariably be signed by the writer's true name.

E. F. B., Winters, Texas.—The pain in your back when you lie down which keeps you awake, or wakes you, is due probably to congested intercostal nerves and if when you wake you will get up and walk around, or take some exercise to start the circulation you will get relief at once. Chloroform liniment applied on a cloth and held tight until you feel that it is about to blister, then taken off for a minute and applied again, will also relieve. You should sleep on your stomach to relieve pressure on the back. Have you ever had a doctor examine you to discover the cause of the trouble? If not, do so at once. Also have him examine your child's eyes. It may be trachoma which is infectious and dangerous if not taken in time.

A. D. P., Campbell, Ala.—When the hair has been burned from any part of the head, or other part of the body, taking the skin with it, the hair follicles have been destroyed and there is no remedy known that will restore the hair. You might as well expect to find a remedy to make the teeth grow again when once they have been lost.

Brown Eyes, Amphion, Texas.—Don't go away off to Maine to ask about your condition when you have a good doctor right there in Texas who can tell more about you and know better what to do in a minute than we away off here can guess at in a year. We don t believe you have any more aches and pains than most other folks and if you will go right along and not worry about yourself you'll live out all the years the Bible says you are entitled to. Other COMFORT worriers make a note of this.

J. C., Sherwood, Texas.—Tapeworms are taken into the body from meat not thoroughly cooked and care should be taken to eat only well-cooked meat at all times. Remedies for the worm are many; one is made of two ounces of pumpkin seeds pounded fine in six ounces of water and strained. Take half of this at night and other half in the morning. Repeat this for several days. It must be remembered that some preparatory treatment is necessary and the patient should eat little or nothing for a day before the medicine is taken. This will starve the worm and weaken it so it will lose its hold.

R. M. D., Berlin, Wis.—The only home treatment for stammering is to practise constantly the distinct articulation of words and sentences. You can sing without stammering, can't you? Yes? Then sing your sentences at first and get your mind and your vocal organs to moving in harmony. The chief value of schools for stammering is that they insist upon the practise which you neglect and you are kept at it by a superior power. The majority of stammering cases are curable, but some stubbornly refuse to be cured.

L. B. W., Durwind, Va.—Color-blindness, that is, inability to distinguish colors, is incurable, though when not congenital—born with the person—may be improved somewhat by a system of practise. The vision may be practically perfect in every other respect. What causes color-blindness is not known. Ordinarily it is congenital, but sometimes may result from disease or accident. The symptoms are indicated only when the person is shown certain colors and cannot distinguish one from another.

S. S. W., Chula, Ga.—Tetter is an indefinite term for forms of eczema or psoriasis, which is the chronic form of eczema. Eczema is caused by feeble digestion, malnutrition and assimilation and its successful treatment can only be had by a physician who can examine the patient and have a full knowledge of conditions. Tetter, so called, is a very common complaint, especially among women who have their hands a great deal in the washtub, the hot water and soap being a strong irritant to a sensitive skin. This cannot be cured as long as the cause remains. Oxide of zinc ointment is the usual local application, but it is of no value if the hands are constantly in the hot, soapy water. To cure your tetter you must consult a physician and keep your hands dry. Eczema takes many forms and it is nervous and constitutional, usually, requiring long and careful treatment.

Mrs. B. E. G., Oneida, S. Dak.—Yours is another one of the numerous instances of the ignorant mother trying to cure her child when she knows nothing about the trouble or what to do. Take the child to a good family doctor and let him advise you. It isn't medicine you need, half as much as it is some sensible advice and knowledge.

T. R., Shawnee, Okla.—As there are dozens of different skin troubles, some serious and some not, and nearly everybody is so afflicted at times, there cannot be given any advice to cover all cases. You must know what particular trouble you have and the cause of it before any treatment can be undertaken. So go to a doctor with it and let him put you in good shape. You'll only make it worse by guessing at it and trying to cure yourself.

Sulfolul, Aurora, Ind.—Superfluous hair may be removed by anyone of many preparations for the purpose, most of them effective and some of them harmless enough, but none of the simple ones are permanent in their effects. The electric needle is said to do the work thoroughly and this is expensive. You are not far from the city. Why not consult a specialist there? The preparations you mention, are as far as we know, no better nor worse than the others. You should understand that the frequent use of any chemical on the skin strong enough to destroy the hair is bound to have a bad effect on the skin in time.

C. W. F., Cherokee, Ky.—There is nothing we could tell you of what you could do for yourself to cure a case of neurasthenia of three years' standing. If you have neurasthenia very careful treatment by a competent visiting physician will be necessary and then a cure is not sure. Many people with all the money they want have neurasthenia and they cannot find a cure for it with all their money. As you are only nineteen, we do not believe you have neurasthenia, and at your age we don't think you could have over-worked yourself to that point. If you could and would go to a hospital in Louisville or Cincinnati and have a thorough examination made, just what is wrong may be determined and proper treatment given. Youth and a desire to live are great aids to a physician. Try the hospital.

Mrs. B. C., Sycamore, Ga.—The pains in your chest and shoulders are due rather to neuralgia and indigestion than to tuberculosis and the phlegm in your throat is due to catarrhal condition from climate, probably. Your run-down condition is owing more to your ignorance of diet and proper eating and you need to talk to a good, sensible doctor and have him advise and instruct you in right living, rather than to give you medicine to cure some disease you do not have, or if you have, there is no reason why you should have it. Other COMFORT readers please make a note of this and profit by it.

Pellagra, Morganton, N. C.—We have such inquiries as yours from COMFORT readers frequently concerning pellagra and we can only advise that persons who think they have it should go to a reputable physician and have an examination made for that particular disease. In some sections of the South Boards of Health have been investigating pellagra and if patients will get in touch with them they will receive free information and we believe free treatment. It is for the public good and patients will be given every consideration.

J. G., Vancouver, B. C.—A very excellent remedy for constipation is the injection of hot water, made more effective by the use of Castile soap in the water. It is more of a natural remedy than the ordinary medicines taken for such purpose, and in many cases it proves an absolute cure, if some attention is afterwards paid to the diet. We recommend it, but you must get the advice of a physician as to details of application.

Mrs. A. T., San Francisco, Cal.—People are not troubled all their lives with insomnia. When it continues from childhood to middle age, the individual may conclude that nature did not intend that that particular organism should require as much sleep as the usual eight hours which is accepted as correct. You have no doubt been trying to sleep eight hours, when nature asked only four or five. Study your case and allow yourself only the amount needed. Either sit up late, or get up early and see if you don't cure your alleged insomnia. (2) Talk to a doctor about the pimples and muddy complexion, as your diet is simple and you do not speak of having indigestion. There are other causes which a doctor knows of and usually can correct.

J. H., Burleson, Texas.—We think marriage will prove to be the cure of all the ills you mention as troubling you. You haven't as much consumption as you have indigestion and if you get a wife who can cook and knows something about proper foods she will do you more good than any medicine you can take. She will also get your mind off of yourself and give you something else to think about and in a year or so you will be a new man and ought to be a fairly happy one. Marry a good, healthy girl and don't bother about her being as beautiful as a fairy. Beauty fades, at least, that kind does.

Miss G. S., New York, N. Y.—You are like a good many other COMFORT readers who think that chilblains are not much more than simple frost-bite, or chapped hands or other superficial trouble affected by cold and can be cured by some simple external application. Chilblains are not that kind at all and require the examination and treatment of a physician who can know conditions that cause them. All chilblain sufferers are advised to go to their doctors and be properly treated.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 33.)

walking through my b inery, such an act I should imagine would not only be unpleasant, but I've no doubt the Supreme Court would tell you it was unconstitutional. If you had only put a comma after through, Willie, you might have saved the flag bearer's life. You further inform us that our flag was the first to sail on the sea. It might have been the first to sail on the sea around Fithian, Illinois, but I don't think history will bear you out as to the rest of your statement. Billy the Goat has just struck for another five cents a day, and wants two more tomato cans added to his daily diet. Because I declined to accede to his wishes he has gone on strike, and to get even with me, he has written this poem:

My country 'tis of thee,
Land of wage slavery,
Where gold is king,
Land where the trust hogs rule,
And kids are kept from school,
And labor's but wealth's pliant tool,
Hurrah, Bing Bing.

Comfort's League of Cousins

The League of Cousins was founded as a means of bringing the scattered members of COMFORT'S immense circle of readers into one big, happy family. Its aim is to promote a feeling of kinship and relationship among all readers. It was primarily started as a society for the juvenile members of COMFORT'S family, only, but those of more mature years clamored for admittance so persistently that it was deemed advisable to impose no age limit; thus all are eligible to admittance into our League provided they conform to its rules and are animated by the child spirit.

Membership is restricted to COMFORT subscribers and costs thirty cents, only five cents more than the regular subscription to COMFORT which is included. The thirty cents makes you a member of the League and gives you an attractive League button with the letters "C. L. O. C.," a handsome certificate of membership with your name engrossed thereon, and the privilege of having your name in the letter list, also a paid-in-advance subscription to COMFORT. You continue a League member as long as you keep up your subscription to COMFORT. There are no annual dues, so after you have once joined all you have to do to keep in good standing is to keep your subscription to COMFORT paid up.

Please observe carefully the following directions which explain exactly

How to become a Member

Send thirty cents to COMFORT'S Subscription Department, Augusta, Maine, with your request to be admitted into COMFORT'S LEAGUE OF COUSINS, and you will at once receive the League button and your membership certificate and number; you will also receive COMFORT for 15 months if you are a new subscriber; but if you are already a subscriber your subscription will be renewed or extended two full years beyond date of expiration, if you remit 35 cents.

Or, if your subscription is already paid in advance, you can take a friend's 15-months subscription at 25 cents and send it in with five cents of your own, thirty cents in all, with your request for membership, and we will send you the button and membership certificate, and send COMFORT to your friend for 15 months. League subscriptions do not count in premium clubs.

NEVER apply for membership without enclosing thirty cents to include a new subscription or a renewal.

The League numbering over forty thousand members, undoubtedly is the greatest society of young people on earth. It costs but thirty cents to join, and that gives you at least a 15-month subscription to COMFORT also, without extra cost.

Never in the world's history was so much given for so little. Never could thirty cents be invested to such advantage, and bring such splendid returns. Don't hesitate. Join us at once and induce your friends to do likewise.

All those League members who desire a list of the cousins residing in the several states, can secure the same by sending a stamped addressed envelope and five cents in stamps to Nellie Rutherford, 1299 Park Place, Brooklyn, New York, grand secretary.

Special Notice

Never write a subscription or renewal order or application for membership in the body of a letter. Write your subscription or renewal and membership application on a separate sheet of paper, separate from your letter. We have to put all subscription orders on our subscription file at once; so if it is written on the same sheet as your letter, the whole letter has to go on to the subscription file at once and thus can receive no attention from Uncle Charlie.

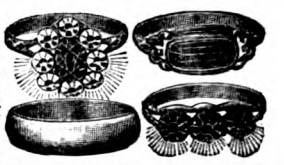
Never send subscriptions to Uncle Charlie nor to the Secretary of the League; they bother him and cause confusion and delay.

Address all letters to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine, and they will promptly reach the head of the department for which they are intended.

League Shut-in and Mercy Work for February

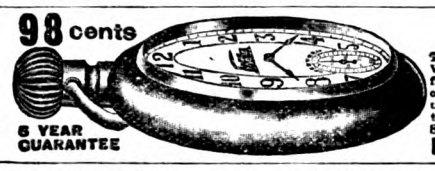
"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me."

Written references from postmaster or physician must positively accompany all appeals from shut-ins. Appeals unaccompanied by written references will be destroyed.



Anna Jenks, 1219 John St., Hudson Falls, N. Y. Invalid from rheumatism. Unable to leave the house. Send her some cheer. Mrs. Nora Jordan, Chatom, Wash. Co., Ala. Invalid, great sufferer. No means of support. Do something for her. Send her a blanket please. Miss Stella Rinehart, Harris Station, R. R. 1, Ohio. Helpless cripple. Unable to walk. Has rheumatism and spinal trouble. Lives with sister who has lung trouble. Help

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 36.)



WE GIVE FREE

This GOLD PLATED LOCKET, opens to hold two pictures, set with a sparkling similitude DIAMOND, and a 22-inch NECK CHAIN and these 4 beautiful GOLD PLATED RINGS to anyone that will sell only 12 pieces of Jewelry at 10c. each and send us the $1.20. We trust you and take back all not sold. Address R. A. DALE MFG. CO. Providence, R. I.

98 cents

6 YEAR GUARANTEE

Railroad Style

To advertise our business, make new friends and introduce our catalogue of Watch bargains we will send this elegant R. R. style watch by mail post paid for ONLY 98 CENTS. Gentlemen's size, full nickel silver plated case, locomotive on dial, lever escapement, stem wind and stem set, a perfect timekeeper and fully guaranteed for 5 years. Send this advertisement to us with 98 CENTS and watch will be sent by mail post paid. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Send 98 cents today. Address R. E. CHALMERS & CO., 538 So. Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

PEDISAN FOR ALL TROUBLES of the FEET. 25c a bottle. DU FERR CHEMICAL CO., Aspinwall, Penna.

EMB. SILK ALL COLORS, equal to 16 FULL SKEINS. Great big package with Free premium slip C. BRENT SILK MILLS, Portland, Maine 25c

CANCER Treated at home. No pain, knife, plaster or oils. Send for Free Treatise. A. J. Miller, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

BIRTH STONE RINGS $1.00 value, solid 14K Gold Shell, guaranteed for 5 years, with stone for any month, simply to introduce our Jewelry Catalog De Luxe. Send 10c. to cover cost of advertising and mailing, send size. Guarantee Jewelry Co., Dept. A. Tyrone, Pa. FREE

PARALYSIS Conquered at Last. Write for Proof of Cures. Advice Free. DR. CHASE'S BLOOD AND NERVE TABLETS Does it. DR. CHASE, 224 North Tenth St., Philadelphia, Pa

Big Powerful Air Rifle FREE for distributing 8 set of pictures on special offer at 25c. Send name. M. O. SEITZ, Dept. 1 D 5 CHICAGO.

Piles Cured All soreness gone in 20 minutes. Permanently cures. Will send remedy on trial. If satisfied send $1 inside of one week, if not return unused remedy. Send for it today. FLACKS REMEDY CO., Milwaukee, Wis.

JAPAN ROSE BUSHES
The Wonder of the World.
Rose Bushes with roses on them in 8 weeks from the time the seed was planted. It may not seem possible but we Guarantee it to be so. They will BLOOM EVERY TEN WEEKS Winter or Summer, and when 3 years old Will have 5 or 6 hundred roses on each bush. Will grow in the house in the winter as well as in the ground in summer. Roses All The Year Around. Package of seed with directions and our guarantee by mail 10 cts. Japan Seed Co. Box 6 So. Norwalk, Conn.

Did You Win A Cash Prize?

THOSE of our readers who won a December Cash Prize in COMFORT'S Seventh Grand Prize Contest will find their names somewhere in this list. These prizes have already been paid to the winners and now we are almost ready to pay the January Prizes. The names of the winners in our January Contest will be printed in February COMFORT. All who have not yet entered this Cash Prize Contest should remember that there is still three months of it left. Each month's contest is separate and distinct from another and has a separate list of Cash Prizes which are paid promptly at the end of the month. At the end of the three remaining months we will also pay a list of Grand Prizes. Every Monthly Prize you win helps you win one of the Grand Prizes. These Monthly Cash Prizes and Grand Cash Prizes are extra and in addition to the premiums we give you. You are sure to get a premium for every club you send in and in addition any Monthly Prize you win is paid to you promptly at the end of the month in which you win it. All of our readers who have not yet done so should by all means enter now for the February prizes. It costs you nothing to try. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose. Read all about this Grand Cash Prize offer on another page. Also write us for our latest Premium Catalogue. We want to show you what splendid premiums we will give you in addition to any prize money which you may win. And while you are waiting for the catalogue start securing a club of subscriptions to be placed to your credit on the February Prizes.

Here Are The Names Of Our December Prize Winners!

The 43 contestants whose names appear below have been paid the following December Monthly Cash Prizes. Many of them won a December prize DOUBLED.

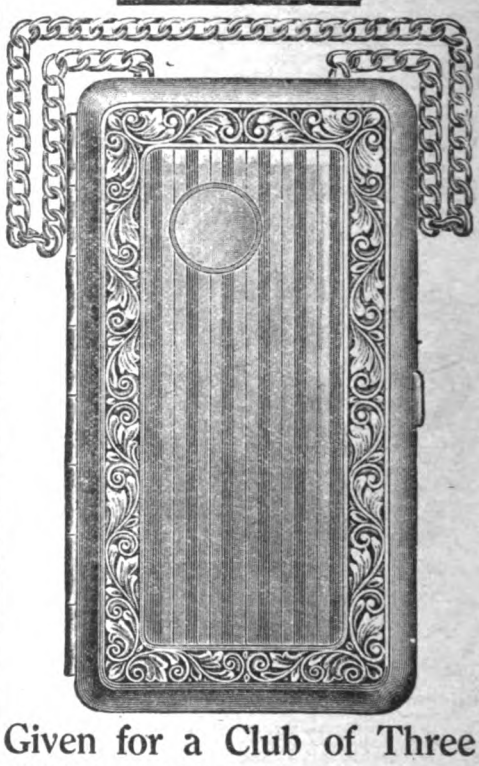
Henry N. McCord, Ga.,	1st Prize	$30.00
E. Wagoner, Ill.,	2nd Prize doubled	40.00
Mrs. Alice Warner, Minn.,	3rd Prize doubled	20.00
Mrs. Ruth Crow, Tenn.,	4th Prize doubled	10.00
Macon A. Green, Tenn.,	5th Prize doubled	10.00
Sibyl Pharis, Kans.,	6th Prize doubled	10.00
A. B. Nutting, Mass.,	7th Prize doubled	6.00
Cecilia Thorn, Ohio,	8th Prize	3.00
Mrs. George Kurtz, Kans.,	9th Prize doubled	6.00
Mrs. J. E. Craddock, Va.,	10th Prize	3.00
Mrs. J. A. Thomason, Va.,	11th Prize	2.00
D. L. Havens, Pa.,	12th Prize	2.00
Allan F. Trumble, N. Y.,	13th Prize	2.00
Pearl A. Young, Ohio,	14th Prize doubled	4.00
Mrs. Mabel Bankus, Ohio,	15th Prize	2.00
Mrs. Cassie Askins, Ill.,	16th Prize	2.00
L. F. Cathcart, Iowa,	17th Prize	2.00
Miss Mary Jefferson, Indiana,	18th Prize	2.00

The Next Four Received a $1.00 Monthly Prize Doubled!

Mrs. Lezim Verrier, Wash.; Mrs. Eliza J. Bagley, Ohio; Mrs. Annie Pierce, Iowa; Mrs. Mary F. Crothers, Ill.

The Next 21 Received A $1.00 Monthly Prize Single!

Mary Coleman, Ohio; Mrs. Math Born, N. Dak.; Mrs. Maude Cowdrey, Mich.; Mrs. Nannie Henson, Calif.; Mrs. C. J. Puckett, Texas; Mrs. Bessie Merritt, Okla.; Master Rolland Van Antwerp, Idaho; Mrs. Geo. W. Jewett, Maine; Wm. A. Grant, Ark.; Joseph Lucas Baldwin, Ohio; Mrs. Blanche Griffiths, Colo.; Mrs. Jay Cobin, Mont.; Mrs. Mary Wood, Mont.; Mrs. Adam Scharrer, N. J.; Miss Agnes Johnson, Nebr.; Buel Story, Ky.; Robert Stewart, Jr., Ill.; Hattie E. Buchanan, Okla.; Miss Mary Mellon, Pa.; Miss Johanna Hockstra, Ill.; Clara B. West, Conn.



We Paid Each Of These Women A $1.00 Consolation Prize!

Mrs. Earl Hunsinger, Okla.; Mrs. Tillie Anderson, Minn.; Mrs. M. F. James, N. C.; Patricia Sullivan, Tenn.; Mrs. P. E. Johnson, Fla.; Alice Nichelson, Ill.; Reeta Noice, Ohio; Mrs. I. J. Tucker, Ga.; Mrs. W. J. Conroy, N. Y.; Mrs. J. E. Freeman, Colo.; Eva Clair Moon, N. Y.; Mrs. C. C. Shanholtz, Kans.; Mrs. M B. Morgan, Ky.; Mrs. E. M. Brown, W. Va.; Miss Alta Witbeck, N. Y.; Miss Clara Berry, W. Va.; Mrs. Ola Pope, S. C.; Dellie Cross, Ohio; Mrs. C. A. Jacobson, Colo.; Clara Jordan, Ill.; Mrs. O. C. Rector, Iowa; Mrs. Effie R. Curry, N. C.; Mrs. N. P. Sweet, Maine; Leevesta I. Turner, Ohio; Mrs. Bettie Harris, Ky.; Miss Ecloise Showler, Indiana; Mrs. Harvey E. Lutz, Nebr.; Miss Elsie May Creamer, Va.; Alice Williams, Ga.; Mrs. J. A. Dexter, Ill.; Miss Mollie A. Elliott, Kans.; Mrs. G. C. Taylor, Vt.; Mrs. Mary Van Debogart, Okla.; Mrs. F. J. Shafer, Pa.; Miss Anna Brown, Wis.; Miss Gertrude Ross, Mass.; Mrs. Alice Hancock, Ohio; Mrs. Bert Reid, Pa.; Mrs. Lizzie Toone, Texas; Mrs. A J. Johnson, Colo.; Miss Florence Burtz, Ala.; Mrs. A. Hutson, Idaho; Mrs. Ada P. Roe, N C.; Daisy Wells, Ill.; Mrs. H. Lake, Wis.; Miss Lydia Wethle, Pa.; Miss Rhoda Early, Va; Sara M. Baird, N. J.; Mrs. Andrew Arsenlau, Maine; Mrs. Geo. H. Joslin, Colo.; Mrs. Herbert G. Shea, Maine; Mrs. Ole Erickson, Ill.; Mrs. J. A. Klopf, Wash.; Miss Linda Troyer, Ohio; Mrs. Irving E Jackson, Maine; Miss Mary Neis, Wis.; Mrs. Hettie Owens, Okla.; Mrs Taylor Everett, Miss.; Miss Viola Severn, Indiana; Amanda Lewis, Ill.; Mrs. Jennie Peden, Wash; Mrs. S. H. Tranholt, Minn.; Mrs. J. M. Riddle, Texas; Mrs. Alice Chambers, Wis.; Mrs. Kittie Sherman, Mich.; Mrs. Peter Thill, Mont.; Mrs. Geo. W. Schwamberger, Ohio; Grace M. Reese, Okla.; Rachel Rebecca Cone, Calif.; Kate Ogden, Ill.; Mrs. Maggie Skyles, Missouri; Mrs. Truman Voorhis, N. Y.; Mrs. Myrtle Baninger, Mich.; Mrs. Eliza Mallory, Ill.; Mrs. Ada Rolerson, Calif.; Elica C. Thaw, Texas; Mrs. Homer Sheridan, Colo.; Mrs. O. W. Stair, Va.; Maude Lively, Ky.; Miss Hazel Drobny, Calif.; Miss Mabel Hight, N. C.; Mrs. Helen V. Munday, W. Va.; Mrs. C. M. Gary, Va.; Mrs. Elizabeth Beal, Mich.; Mrs. E. D. Barton, Mich.; Ada O'Neal, Ky.; Mrs. C. W. Norwood, Okla.; Mrs. G. A. Purtle, W. Va.; Mrs. Lena Bodtke, Nebr.; Olive Wagner, Pa.; Rose Ritch, Pa.; Mrs. L. E. McCarver, N. C.; Mrs. Maggie Myers, Iowa; Mrs. C. A. Sherrill, N. Y.; Mrs. Amy Stratton, Indiana; Miss Ethel Brown, N. H.; Miss Anna Tippett, Tenn.; Miss Nellie Shaughnessy, Ill.; Mrs. Albert Bergmann, Ala.; Mrs. Iva Gipson, Colo.

Start Your Club Now And Enter For A February Prize!

The Latest Vanity Case

Premium No. 711

Given for a Club of Three

EVERY lady and girl should have one of these handsome German silver Vanity Cases because it is the latest style and design having a thin Model case like that of a thin model watch. As shown in illustration the outside of the case is beautifully Embossed and if you want to you can have your jeweller engrave your Monogram initials in the little round panel which is perfectly plain and bright polished. This case is very light, weighing a little over over 3 ounces but it is of good size being 4½ inches long and 2½ inches wide with a 12-inch chain. On the inside of the case on one side is a place for visiting cards, bills, postage stamps, etc., etc., and on the other side is a powder puff in a little compartment which closes with a hinged cover, a good sized mirror, a compartment for nickels and another one for dimes. This new case is one of the prettiest designs we have yet seen so we have bought a quantity of them to give away among COMFORT readers. We will send you one of them if you will accept the following

Club Offer. For a club of only three 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you this Vanity Case free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 711.

Address COMFORT, Augusta Maine.

I Won My Battle Against CATARRH

Within Twenty-Four Hours

I obtained greater relief than I had ever found in years of search before. Now I am cured, well and absolutely FREE from every trace of that loathsome disease.

After Suffering Years

I conquered the disease that was robbing me of every comfort, every pleasure. I cured myself, I cured my friends in a wonderful, simple easy way that astonished all who knew me.

I Will Gladly Tell You How FREE!

You need no Salves, Lotions, Jellies, Sprays or Atomizers; No Greases, Pastes or Ointments; No Plasters, Masks or Bandages; No Baths; No Massage or Electricity; No Smoke to Inhale and Choke You; No Surgery; No Vibration; No Instrument or Appliance; No Pain or Operation. My way is simple, easy, convenient, pleasant, painless, invisible.

I Want All To Know How FREE!

If you've got CATARRH get rid of it. Don't let anybody tell you it can't be cured. It CAN be cured. I know it can; I've proved it can. Few people ever had it worse than I did and I am cured. My friends are cured. Write to me, send me your name and let me tell you how. You'll be surprised to learn the simple, easy way it's done. I charge you nothing for this information. I want the whole world to know.

Conquer Your Catarrh Or It May Conquer You

Catarrh Is a Sneak-Thief That May Steal Your Health and Happiness

Do you wake up in the morning with nose clogged up and your throat stopped up with an accumulation of poisonous mucous phlegm? Do you have to "k-aa-aw-k" and choke and gag and spit after you get up in order to get your head cleared out? If you do, heed that warning. It may not seem important now, but it IS, it IS, it IS. I tell you it IS important. I tell you if I realized this when I first had had these early symptoms, I might have saved myself torture, misery, suffering and embarrassment that no words can describe.

If your catarrh has already become worse than this, if you now find yourself hawking and spitting all day long, if you have a bad taste in your mouth, no appetite and a breath that makes people turn away their heads when you go near them, if your hearing is affected, if you have catarrhal headaches, and other advanced symptoms, you may think these are troublesome, but, take it from me, even these symptoms are nothing as compared to what catarrh symptoms can be when neglected.

I Paid Dearly For Neglect

If you could only know and realize the frightful penalty I paid for neglect of early symptoms you would be mighty busy trying to find something to kill and clean out the millions and billions of germs that are nesting, breeding, feeding, thriving in your nose and throat and filling these parts with their disgusting, poisonous, health-destroying filth.

You know that all day the poisonous catarrhal mucous drops into your throat. You have to spit it up. Now think of what happens at night. Do you think these little gluttons—the catarrh germs—sleep when you sleep, do you think the poisonous mucous all remains in your throat till morning when you wake up and spit it out? Don't fool yourself. A lot of it does collect in your throat, true enough, but a lot of it also gets Down Your Throat and Into Your Stomach.

No Wonder Suffering Follows

Is it any wonder that people have Catarrh of the Stomach, Bowels and Other Vital Organs? Is it any wonder that appetite and digestion fail, that the blood becomes impure, that strength and vitality are lost, that health is ruined and lives are wrecked by the ravages of neglected catarrh?

Let me tell you how I fought catarrh germs every minute of the day and night, fought them while at work, while out in company, while at the theater and other places of amusement, while awake and asleep, without anyone ever seeing me do it, without anyone ever knowing it, and how I finally conquered the disease and freed myself from its abominable clutches to my own unbounded joy and the surprise of all who knew me.

Who Is Sam Katz?

I am not a Doctor. I can't work miracles any more than you can. I haven't any mysterious power over disease. I'm just a plain, common, every day business man, who has found out after a lot of suffering, a simple, easy way to fight Catarrh, a way that cured me, cured my friends and scores of others. I want to tell every Catarrh sufferer in the world how I did it. Write to me,—just send me your name and address on the coupon below, or write me a letter or a post card, and let me tell you, free.

SAM KATZ.
Suite C 602, 1325 Michigan Ave.,
Chicago, Ill.

Catarrh Ruined My Health And Almost Wrecked My Life

Yet I Was Cured By a Wonderfully Simple Means When All Else Failed, I Am Now Free and I Know That Others Can Be Free. Send Me Your Name and Let Me Tell You How

When I noticed the first symptoms of catarrh I paid little attention to them. I used to snuff salt water up my nose and because that would clear out the passages and make breathing easier, I thought I was getting relief. I never thought about it getting worse until folks began to tell me about my awful breath. I began to notice that my head was clogged up nearly ALL the time. Then I began to look around for a remedy. I bought patent medicines, inhalers, syringes and ointments. I used to be squirting dope into my nose all day long. I got relief, but that's all I did get. As soon as I stopped using these things I would be as bad off as before.

My breath was awful. I got so I couldn't eat, nothing tasted good, in fact I just about lost my sense of taste and also my sense of smell. I sniffled and I hawked and I spat continually until I was ashamed, but what could I do? My friends avoided me.

I felt filthy and loathsome. My food would not digest. I was weak, had headaches and was half sick all the time. I was melancholy, had the blues, lost ambition and felt like sneaking off in some obscure corner of the world away from everybody.

I Waited Too Long

I tried first one thing, then another; I read about catarrh in medical books, I tried things that everybody said were good and things nobody else ever heard of. I was desperate. I had to make my living and I realized that unless I found a cure I might soon be unable to work and I certainly had no desire to die in the poorhouse.

Then came the happiest day of my life—the day I found the simple, easy, wonderful means by which I was absolutely cured. The very first day I felt that my deliverance was at hand because the effect was absolutely different from anything else I ever used. My new-found method enabled me to fight the disease every minute of the day and night without continually poking and squirting stuff into my nostrils. And O, the relief! The English language has no words that express the joy I felt when folks began to tell me that my breath was not nearly so bad, when I began to enjoy my food again and gain strength.

A Cure At Last

Almost before I realized it my cure was complete. Every symptom of catarrh was gone. My head was clear, there was no more dripping in my throat, no more headaches, no more bad taste, no more bad breath. I felt fine. Everybody said I looked better. I could eat like a truck horse and I got fat and strong again. People began to ask me what it was that worked such a wonderful change in me. I told them and many of them tried my plan with the same wonderful results.

I felt so good I wanted to tell everybody. I have already told thousands and I want to tell YOU. I know you will thank me the longest day you live. I want you to know the simple, easy means I found to cure my catarrh. I want you to send me your name so I can tell you.

I want you to know the indescribable joy that freedom from disgusting catarrh brought me and will bring you. I ask no money for this information—it is FREE—you are welcome to it and I want you to have it. Write me today, fill in the coupon or write me a letter or postcard. Simply say, "Sam Katz, I want to know how you cured your catarrh" and write your name and address.

Catarrh Is More Serious Than Many People Think

Disgusting, Hawking, Spitting and Awful Breath Are Not the Worst of It

Do you realize that Catarrh is really a serious affection? Do you realize that it is perhaps responsible for more ill health than any other one cause? Do you realize that nasal catarrh, which is so common, is only the beginning, only the first mild symptom, a danger signal of threatening trouble ahead?

Do you realize that catarrh of the nose, with its hawking, its spitting and other disagreeable and offensive symptoms may be a forerunner of catarrh of the stomach or bowels?

The constant dripping of mucous into the throat is sure, sooner or later, to interfere with digestion and, by so doing, indirectly affect the bowels and other vital organs, causing many additional symptoms.

I know what catarrh is because I myself have been its victim and I can sympathize with anyone who is now its victim.

Is it any wonder that after suffering its most frightful and disgusting tortures for years, after seeing my friends shun me as they would a leper, after having tried everything under the sun, and wasting money on salves, lotions, inhalers, instruments and devices, electricity and such things, after having been through it from the first mild symptoms to the stage where it undermined my health, destroyed my happiness and made my life miserable, is it any wonder I say, Is It Any Wonder that I feel like shouting, yes Screaming the glad news of my cure to every Catarrh sufferer in the world, and telling everybody of the simple, easy, painless way in which I was finally cured, after all else failed?

Write To Me, Write To Me, Now, Now, Now, if you suffer from any of the awful, loathsome, disgusting symptoms of Catarrh, and let me tell you free, and without a penny's cost, how I conquered my catarrh, how my friends conquered their catarrh and how hundreds of others I know of accomplished the same glorious result. Just send me this coupon with your name and address or write me a letter or a post card.

No Time Like the Present — Write To Me Now!

FREE! COUPON SEND NOW FREE!

SAM KATZ, Suite C 602,
1325 Michigan Avenue,
Chicago, Ill.

Please send me FREE and without cost full details concerning the wonderful way you cured your catarrh.

Name .....

Street or R. F. D. .....

Postoffice ..... State .....

NEW TREATMENT THAT KNOCKS RHEUMATISM.

Hundreds Use It. Call It a Wonder. Offers to Send a 50c Box Free to Any Sufferer to Prove It.

Up in Syracuse, N. Y., a treatment for rheumatism has been found that hundreds of users say is a wonder, reporting cases that seem little short of miraculous. Just a few treatments even in the very worst cases seem to accomplish wonders even after other remedies have failed entirely. It seems to neutralize the uric acid and lime salt deposits in the blood, driving all the poisonous, clogging waste from the system. Soreness, pain, stiffness, swelling just seem to melt away and vanish.

The treatment first introduced by Mr. Delano is so good that its owner wants everybody who suffers from rheumatism or who has a friend so afflicted, to get a free 50c package from him to prove just what it will do in every case before a penny is spent. Mr. Delano says: "To prove that the Delano treatment will positively overcome rheumatism, no matter how severe, stubborn or long standing the case, and even after all other treatments have failed, I will, if you have never previously used the treatment, send you a full size 50c package free if you will send your name and address with 10c to help pay postage and distribution expense to me personally. F. H. Delano, 329Q, Delano Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y.

I can send only one Free Package to an address.

LET ME REMOVE YOUR GOITRE

$2.50 TEST Treatment FREE

Don't suffer and be disfigured with "Big Neck." Don't give up hope because other physicians or remedies have failed you. I am curing hundreds of old chronic cases that had resisted all other remedies. My patients everywhere are reporting cures.

You may try one $2.50 treatment of my remarkable discovery at my expense. It's absolutely FREE—in plain package—send no money. You will be surprised at how quickly my treatment reduces the size of the goitre and relieves choking and other disagreeable symptoms. It is effective from the first trial. No interference with your work, no danger of any kind, no obligation. SEND AT ONCE.

$2.50 TREATMENT FREE

Fill out and mail this coupon to Dr. W. T. Bebe, 815 Minty Block, Battle Creek, Mich., and get $2.50 Treatment Free by mail.

Age?.....How old is goitre?.....yrs.
Nervous?.....Hands tremble?.....
Do eyes bulge?.....Does heart beat too rapidly?.....Health?.....
Name .....
Address.....

To Women Who Dread Motherhood

Information How They May Give Birth to Happy, Healthy, Children Absolutely Without Fear of Pain—SENT FREE.

Don't dread the pains of childbirth. Dr. J. H. Dye devoted his life to relieving the sorrows of women. He has proven that the pain at childbirth need no longer be feared. Send your name and address to Dr. J. H. Dye Medical Institute, 106 Lewis Block, Buffalo, N. Y., and we will send you, postpaid, his wonderful book which tells how to give birth to happy, healthy children, absolutely without fear of pain, also how to become a mother. Do not delay but write TO-DAY.

THE BEE CELL SUPPORTER

A BOON TO WOMANKIND

Made from the purest, softest rubber. Six cups or faces render misplacement absolutely impossible. Endorsed by the medical profession. Send us $2.00 and we will mail you postpaid in plain package. Money back if not entirely satisfactory. Write for descriptive circular. It's FREE.

The Bee Cell Co., Dept. A, White Bldg., Buffalo, N. Y.

OLD SORES

Since 1869 ALLEN'S ULCERINE SALVE has healed more old sores than all other salves combined. It is the most powerful salve known and heals sores from the bottom up, drawing out the poisons. By mail 55 cents. Book free.

J. P. ALLEN MEDICINE CO., Dept. 825 ST. PAUL, MINN.

PILES

PAY IF CURED—

We pay postage and send FREE RED CROSS Pile and Fistula cure. REA CO., DEPT. 80, Minneapolis, Minn.

SOLO GUITAR FREE for distributing 8 set of Art pictures at 25c on special offer. Send name at once. M. O. SEITZ, 1Z 5 CHICAGO in the crowd whom she recognizes, and whose appearance rouses her from her contemptuous indifference; she raises her head, looks intently and then leans forward out of the carriage, with her eyes fixed on a broad-shouldered, stalwart gentleman, who comes with slow and languid gait down the broad pavement. He is tall enough to tower pretty considerably over the Swiss, who on an average are not tall, and to decidedly top his fellow countrymen; and he is handsome and distinguished enough to draw the eyes of the loungers even from the interesting young lady herself.

Edna's Secret Marriage

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 29.)

Very slowly he comes down toward the parade quite unconscious of the notice he is attracting—quite as unconscious of the lady who is waiting for him. If some kind angel would but whisper a word of warning in his ear! Poor Cyril! his kind angels have been very few and their warnings far between; as usual, he comes down upon his fate, or, rather, upon the individual who is to rule his fate, with his usual careless unconcern and indifference to everything that pertains to the future; and it is not until the young lady has stretched out her hand and caught him by the arm, not until she has called him twice, thrice, by his name, that he turns and recognizes her.

"Why, Cyril! who on earth would expect to see you here?" she exclaims, showing a dazzling row of teeth and a smile broad and expressive.

"Glitters!" says Cyril, "you here?" and although he smiles and suppresses every sign of the surprise that he feels, there is something in the tone that is anything but indicative of the welcome which so celebrated a person as Miss Glitters, of the Theater Royal, feels that she is entitled to.

"Yes, I'm here; why shouldn't I be just as much as you? How long have you been here?"

"Not long," answers Cyril, "and you?"

"Oh, only came today—this morning—and shan't make a long stay of it; at least, we didn't think of it, for Jerry says it's the slowest place he was ever in."

"Is Lord Jerry Carew here?" asks Cyril, looking round with anything but an expression of anxiety for his presence.

"Yes," he's gone inside to order supper; we're going for a drive—don't know what else to do. I never saw such a place; no theater, no concert, no casino, no anything; of course we didn't know you were here, or else it would have been different."

Cyril inclines his head with a cynical smile.

"Oh, the place would have been everything that is delightful, thank you, Molly."

"You haven't forgotten your old teasing ways, Cyril," says Miss Glitters, with a pout; "but, I say, where are you staying—here, of course?" and she nods her head toward the palatial Grand.

Cyril shakes his head, with an abstracted air, as if he were thinking hard.

"No," he says, "not here."

"Not here! Where then? I thought this was the only place fit to stop at!"

Cyril smiles.

"Oh—ahem! yes! Oh, come now, nonsense; it's not so bad as that!" says Miss Glitters, blushing; "you're not quite cleaned out—really, Cyril!"

"Of course not," says Cyril, lightly.

"Well, then come and stay here, and I'll persuade Jerry to stop another night or two. No—no? Why not? Anyhow, you'll have some supper with us tonight?"

"No; I think not," says Cyril, taking out his watch. "I think not, Molly."

Then he comes a little closer, and looks at her fixedly, almost earnestly.

"Don't look so cut up; you won't miss me; and, besides, I want you to do me a favor."

"What!" exclaims Miss Glitters, incredulously; "Sir Cyril More ask a favor! The world's coming to an end!"

"Don't hasten its destruction by refusing to grant my favor, then. See here, Molly, I am not stopping at the Grand, and I won't sup with you tonight; and I don't want to see Lord Jerry, because I am here incog, and don't want to be seen myself."

Molly put her lips into the proper shape for whistling.

"Not as bad as that, Cyril?"

Cyril smiles.

"No, not quite so bad as that, Molly; the duns have not followed me to Switzerland."

"Then what is it?" queries Miss Glitters, with intense curiosity. "What are you up to—what is the little game? Come, Cyril; I will keep it a secret—I will, upon my honor! Do tell me—do, there's a good fellow!"

Cyril laughs one of his rare laughs.

"There's nothing to tell you or anyone else, Molly. I have come here for a little rest and quiet, and I know, and so do you, that I shouldn't get it if I found you and Lord Jerry, and therefore I want you to do me the favor to keep our meeting a secret. Come, it's not a hard thing to promise. You have only to keep my name off your lips; you ought to be tired of it by this time."

Molly pouts and looks at him with all a woman's balked curiosity and suspicion.

"I don't believe that's all the reason," she says; "and if it is, it's all nonsense! Fancy you wanting to keep quiet and all that! No, it won't do, Cyril; there's something else in the wind, I'm sure of it."

"All right," says Cyril, "I'm not going to contradict a lady—bad manners that, Molly; but give me your promise."

"What—that I won't mention your name? that I won't tell anyone, now or hereafter, that I saw you, or knew you were in this beast of a place——"

"Exactly," says Cyril.

"Well, I'll do that; I'll do more than that, Cyril, for you."

"Of course," says Cyril, with polite acquiescence; "and as that is all I want, you'll do that cheerfully. Good by, Molly—enjoy your drive; you'll find the supper a good one, or they've lost their cook since I was there—good by."

"Good by, if you will go," she says, with a pout.

He takes the begloved and beringed hand, presses it for a moment, and raising his hat turns away. Scarcely has he done so than he sees walking slowly under the trees on the quay, Aunt Martha and Edna. Aunt Martha is looking cheerfully before her, with her amiable gaze on the lake, but Edna—yes, he sees in a moment that she has seen him, that she has still her eyes upon the overdressed figure and powdered face of Miss Glitters, now she turns them to him; he raises his hat and passes on; it is all done in a moment, but Miss Glitters' eyes are sharp and she has seen the recognition—the salutation—nay, more, the faint flush that colors the lovely face of the young girl, and Miss Glitters colors in her turn.

"So, Mr. Cyril—devil—that is the game, is it? Quiet and rest, eh? Quiet and rest, indeed! As if I was to be taken in by that! As if I didn't know you too well to believe all that! Now—I—wonder"—with intense curiosity—"who she is? Poor little thing!"

TO BE CONTINUED.

FREE! The Whole Story in BOOK FORM

"Edna's Secret Marriage," COMFORT'S great new serial, will hold you entranced from the first chapter to the last. It is a wonderful story by a wonderful writer. Regular installments will appear in COMFORT each month, but you needn't wait in order to get the whole story as we will give you free the complete story in book form splendidly printed in a handsome colored paper bound edition. Send us only one new 25-cent 15-months subscription (not your own) to COMFORT, or your own subscription, renewal or extension of your present subscription at 25 cents and 5 cents additional (30 cents in all) and we will send you a copy of the book free and postpaid. Don't wait for the installments. Read the whole story now by taking advantage of this offer at once.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 34.)

these poor souls. William V. Kinter, County Home, Indiana, R. R. 6, Box 16, Pa. Helpless invalid. Very worthy. Send him some reading matter and cheery letters, and don't forget to put something in them. He says: "I get very lonesome and kind of blue some days." Help cheer him up. Mrs. Jane Kimbrough, Fulton, R. R. 2, Miss. Unable to walk for eighteen years, eighty-seven years of age. Lives with blind sister. Send this poor afflicted soul some sunshine. Mrs. Anna Kindred, Bicknell, Ind. Mr. Kindred has a cancer on his face. Is unable to do any work. Mrs. Kindred tries to do all she can to keep the wolf from the door, but the fight is too much for her. Old and very highly recommended. Open your hearts and pockets and send them succor. Joseph E. Simpson, North Bradford, Maine. Helpless cripple from rheumatism. His sight is beginning to fail. Needs money for treatment. No means of support. Postmaster speaks highly of him. Send him some help. A. C. McClinton, Rising Fawn, Ga. Invalid for two years. Has wife and two small children dependent on him. Send them some assistance. Mrs. J. D. Arthur, Johnson City, R. R. 1, Tenn. Has blind husband. He tries to earn a living by teaching music. She thinks if she had a sewing machine she could help. Will someone pass one on to her? Mrs. Sallie Mosley, Mitchell, La. Shut-in. Seventy-seven years of age. Has to depend on charity for her support. Send her a dime shower. Mrs. M. L. Perkins, Hunlock Creek, Pa. Invalid for many years. Unable to leave her bed. Very worthy. Remember her. Mrs. Mary Beeson, Chestnut Ridge, N. C. Sixty-five years of age. Confined to her room for twenty-five years with rheumatism. Needy and worthy. Send her a dime shower. Laura E. Cales, Asbury, Madison Co., Ky. Great sufferer from rheumatism. Lives with mother. Needs money for food and medicine. Send her some help. Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Adams, 2627 St. Paul St., Bellingham, Wash. They are poor, old, sick and lonely. Send them some cheer. Mrs. Rosy Hopkins, Critz, Va. Husband sick. Needs food and clothing. Send them some cheer. Mrs. Sarah Plunkett, Strieby, N. C. Been an invalid for seven years. Has spinal trouble and chronic gastritis. Lives with her sister who is very poor. She needs food and medicine. Send her a dime shower. Mrs. Adella Porritt, Soda Springs, Idaho. Would like cheery letters and reading matter. Invalid. Mrs. S. S. McGowan, Cumberland, R. R. 2, Box 35, Md. Invalid. Would like cheery letters and reading matter.

There is a great deal of want and suffering in the land. Here is your opportunity to relieve just a little of it.

Lovingly yours,

Uncle Charlie

Uncle Charlie's Poems Will Make You Laugh! Scream! And Yell!

This is exactly what they will do, and they are the best and cheapest medicine for the blues in the world. Only one in two hundred of our readers have availed themselves of the opportunity to secure this exquisitely beautiful 160-page volume of screamingly funny verse, bound in lilac silk cloth, with gold top and autumn leaf lining, and all free for a club of only four fifteen-month subscriptions to COMFORT at twenty-five cents each. This elegant book also contains splendid pictures of Uncle Charlie and his family and a touching account of his life. It contains the funniest recitations ever written. It is a present fit for a king and no home should be without it. If you won't get it for yourself, get it for your children and make them happy. Free for an hour's easy work. Start your subbing today.

Uncle Charlie's Song Book is a Knock-Out! The One Best Bet!

A home without music, is a home without joy. Uncle Charlie's Song Book contains twenty-eight of the dandiest songs ever written, songs for church, parlor and concert platform. Here you have a great big, beautiful music folio containing such gems of mirth and melody as "My Beautiful Queen of Dreams," "The Dream That Never Came True," "The Old Village Choir," "Broke Again." Five dollars' worth of music with full score for voice and piano, a splendidly gotten up folio with a handsomely decorated cover on which appear several pictures of Uncle Charlie, equal to photographs and all free for a club of only two fifteen-month subscriptions to COMFORT at twenty-five cents each. Both books free for a club of six. These premiums count toward our great cash prize competition. Greatest premium bargains ever offered. Work for them today.

RUPTURE SUFFERERS!

Be Rid of that Ill-Fitting, Ever-Slipping, Torture-some Truss.

Will Send You Signed Statements From Scores of Former Sufferers Who Declare They Have Been COMPLETELY CURED!

New hope, joy, ease, comfort, happiness and the grand, glorious knowledge that you can run, jump, twist, squirm, lift, pull, tug and strain to your heart's content without the slightest discomfort or danger of your rupture coming down.

That is what the Wonderful Schuiling Rupture Lock means to every Rupture sufferer.

Hundreds of persons—some 80 years old—declare that this wonderful product of modern science and inventive genius has completely cured them.

Send for Free Rupture Book and 30 Day Trial Offer.

No matter how mild or severe your rupture may be, INVESTIGATE THIS wonderful Rupture Lock NOW. Write me a post card or letter today, and let me send you FREE, my illustrated Rupture Book which tells why and how the Schuiling Rupture Lock produces such remarkable results. I will also send you particulars of my 30-day trial offer and letters from scores of people who tell how they were completely cured. Do not put up with your rupture misery another day. Send your name and address today—you will never regret it—just address

A. H. SCHUILING CO.,
33 E. Georgia Street, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

ECZEMA Is Only Skin Deep

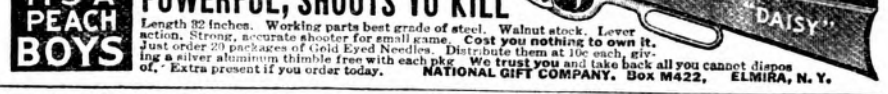
No internal medicine will cure ECZEMA. Only by the application of Cranolene can the Eczema microbe be destroyed. You pay us no money until you say you are cured. WRITE TODAY.
MILLS CHEMICAL CO., 414 Mills Bldg., GIRARD, KANSAS

BIRTH STONE RINGS FREE
14K Gold filled, guaranteed for 10 years, with stone for any month, $1.00 value to introduce our catalogue. Send 20c to cover cost of advertising and mailing. Send size.
Eagle Jewelry Co., Dept. E, East Boston, Mass.

CANCERS

We Guarantee to remove CANCERS or no pay. Health Herald FREE. Address, Dr. S. A. Boynton, & Co., Lawrence, Mass.



MORPHINE FREE TRIAL TREATMENT

Opium and all drug habits. Hundreds of testimonials prove that our painless home remedy restores the nervous and physical system and removes the cause. Write us in confidence.
ST. PAUL ASSOCIATION, Suite 832—21 E. Van Buren St., Chicago.

LEG SORES

Cured by ANTI-FLAMMA Poultice Plaster. Stops the itching around sore. Cures while you work. DESCRIBE CASE and get FREE SAMPLE.
Bayles Co., 1823 Grand Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

FREE IT'S A PEACH BOYS

POWERFUL, SHOOTS TO KILL

Length 32 inches. Working parts best grade of steel. Walnut stock. Lever action. Strong, accurate shooter for small game. Cost you nothing to own it. Just order 20 packages of Gold Eyed Needles. Distribute them at 10c each, giving a silver aluminum thimble free with each pkg. We trust you and take back all you cannot dispose of. Extra present if you order today.
NATIONAL GIFT COMPANY, Box M422, ELMIRA, N. Y.

LOCKET AND CHAIN FREE

This beautiful Ladies' Neck Chain and Locket is gold plated, burnished in finish with a long cable link Chain having a patent spring catch. Locket is set with twelve highest quality brilliants in the popular Star and Crescent design. Is over 1¼ inches in diameter and can be engraved on back. Secret compartments for two pictures. We are going to give away thousands of these Lockets, and we want you to have one.

SEND NO MONEY A postal will bring our free offer. A beautiful, sparkling, brilliant gem Ring to those who are prompt, so write at once. Don't delay.
LOCKET & CHAIN CO., 668 Friend Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

Big Package Silk and Satin REMNANTS FREE!

Large Piece of Plush and 5 Skeins Embroidery Silk

Remnants of real silk, stamped satin and beautiful plush in all shapes and all colors of the rainbow. For years COMFORT has made this offer to its thousands of friends and subscribers and this year we can do more for you than ever before because the factories have on hand an enormous accumulation of these rich goods and in order to get rid of them are willing to sell them to us for little or nothing. We now have a whole room full of these beautiful pieces of silk and satin which are of good size and carefully trimmed and just what you need for making up beautiful quilts, tidies, pillow tops and all kinds of "crazy patchwork." Remember these remnants are not the small, insignificant, worthless pieces that are advertised as "a rare bargain" by irresponsible firms, but large, well-shaped pieces of fresh, new silk and satin in all the beautiful colors which were in style this season and we send you a big package containing from one hundred to two hundred pieces besides a large, elegant piece of plush and 5 skeins handsome embroidery silk of different bright colors. If you order at once we will also send you, in addition to everything else, an Instruction Book with eight full-page illustrations showing how to ornament seams of crazy patchwork and other work where fancy stitches are used. It tells you how to put pieces of patchwork together to get the best effect, how to cover up seams with fancy stitches, how to join the edges, etc. This book illustrates over one hundred and fifty of these besides containing full and explicit directions for working the Outline and Kensington Stitch, Arrasene and Chenille embroidery, ribbon work, plush or tufted stitch also directions for Kensington painting. Remember you get one big lot of these Silk and Satin Remnants (over 100 pieces), 5 skeins handsome Embroidery Silk of different colors, one big piece of Plush, and an Instruction Book, as above described, all sent to you free by Parcel Post prepaid if you will accept the following special

Club Offer: For a club of only two 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you one big package of Silk and Satin Remnants, Plush, Embroidery Silk and Instruction Book, as described above, free by Parcel post prepaid. For a club of three we will send you two packages, or five packages for a club of four.

SPECIAL: If you wish you may send in your own subscription, renewal or extension of your present subscription for 12 months at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all) and receive one package of these Remnants free. Premium No. 556. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Thousands Of Dollars In Cash Prizes!

Start NOW If You Want To Win YOUR Share Of The Prize Money Which We Will Distribute Among COMFORT'S Readers This Season. Contest Is Now On So GET BUSY!

EACH AND every month of the six months beginning with November 1914 and ending with April 1915 we shall award a series of Cash Prizes to those of our readers who send in the most 25-cent subscriptions to COMFORT during each month. At the close of the contest April 1915 we shall further distribute 44 Grand Cash Prizes ranging from $5.00 to $150.00 to the 44 contestants who send in the most subscriptions during the entire six months. Also we shall pay 525 Consolation Prizes of $1.00 each to women who enter the contest and fail to win a regular monthly prize. The prizes for each month will be paid on the 8th day of the month following and the names of the prize winners will be announced in COMFORT month by month. Read all about our surprisingly liberal prize offer explained below and enter now for this month's prizes.

You Cannot Lose—You Get Your Premiums Sure

From now on any club you send in will bring you a fine premium sure and may help win a Cash Prize for you also because the same clubs you get up for any of our premiums are also placed to your credit on the Monthly Cash Prizes and Grand Prizes too, if you request it. It only remains for you to send in enough subscriptions to win a Cash Prize any one month or each month for the six months. And remember that every Monthly Prize you win puts you just so much nearer one of the Grand Prizes to be awarded at the close of the contest April 1915. And you still get your regular club premiums just the same. All this money which you may easily win if you will but make the effort is extra and in addition to the premiums which you may select from our catalogue or any issue of COMFORT and which will be sent to you immediately upon receipt of every club you send in.

How Monthly Prizes Double

If you win a monthly prize one month we pay you at once; if you win any monthly prize the next month we pay you double the amount of your second month's prize, and we will continue to pay you double each successive month that you continue to win any monthly prize. The doubling begins with December.

How Monthly Prizes Thribble

If you win the same Monthly Prize three months in succession we pay you double the amount the second month and three times the amount the third month and we continue to pay you three times the amount each successive month that you continue to win the same monthly prize. If, however, you should win the first monthly prize each month for the whole six months, then we will pay you four times the amount of that prize the fourth month, five times the amount the fifth month and six times the amount the sixth month. The thribbling begins with January.

The Consolation Prizes

In addition to the regular Monthly Prizes we shall also in November award 75 Consolation Prizes of $1.00 each, and in the months of December, January, February and March 100 Consolation Prizes of $1.00 each and in April 50 Consolation Prizes of $1.00 each to such women entering the Monthly Contests of those months and failing to win as we think worthy of reward for their unsuccessful efforts. Remember however that these Consolation Prizes do not double or thribble like the Monthly Prizes.

Opening and Closing Dates

Each Monthly Contest (after November) opens on the first day of the month and ends at midnight of the last day of the same month. If you mail Subscriptions on the last day of a month they will be counted to your credit in the contest for that month, providing the postmark on the envelope shows it. This gives an equal opportunity to all of our readers who enter these contests no matter how far off they live. The monthly prizes, each month, are paid to those who send in the most 25-cent subscriptions to COMFORT during the particular month for which the prizes are offered, the first monthly prize for the largest number of subscriptions, the second Monthly Prize for the next largest number, and so on down the list for the month.

917 Cash Prizes In All!

EVERY ONE of the Cash Prizes offered in this contest will actually be paid to the men, women, boys and girls who enter and who send in a sufficient number of subscriptions to COMFORT before April 30, 1915. No partiality will be shown to any contestant. Every subscription sent in by you will, if you so desire, be placed to your credit on the Monthly Prizes and Grand Prizes also and whatever prize you win each month will be paid to you in money promptly at the end of the month in which you win it. And at the close of the contest if there is also a Grand Cash Prize coming to you it will be paid to you immediately after the closing date. There will be no unfair treatment, no waiting, no disappointments for you in this contest. You will be given a square deal first, last and all the time. But when sending your subscriptions be sure to say you want them entered to your credit on the cash prizes otherwise we will not know that you are in the contest. Following is a complete list of the prizes to be awarded:

NOVEMBER MONTHLY PRIZES

1st Prize,	$30	Next 3 Prizes,	$5 each
2nd Prize,	20	Next 4 Prizes,	3 each
3rd Prize,	10	Next 8 Prizes,	2 each

115 Prizes of $1.00 each.

DECEMBER MONTHLY PRIZES

1st Prize,	$30 or $60	3 Prizes,	$5 or $10 each
2nd Prize,	20 or 40	4 Prizes,	3 or 6 each
3rd Prize,	10 or 20	8 Prizes,	2 or 4 each

25 Prizes of $1.00 or $2.00 each.

JANUARY MONTHLY PRIZES

1st Prize,	$30 to $90	3 Prizes,	$5 to $15 each
2nd Prize,	20 to 60	4 Prizes,	3 to 9 each
3rd Prize,	10 to 30	8 Prizes,	2 to 6 each

25 Prizes of $1.00 to $3.00 Each

FEBRUARY, MARCH and APRIL PRIZES are the same as those for January except that the FIRST PRIZE is $30.00 to $120.00 for February, $30.00 to $150.00 for March and $30.00 to $180.00 for April as explained elsewhere on this page.

525 CONSOLATION PRIZES

November. - -	75 Prizes of $1.00 each
December. - -	100 Prizes of $1 00 each
January. - -	100 Prizes of $1.00 each
February. - -	100 Prizes of $1.00 each
March. - - -	100 Prizes of $1.00 each
April. - - - -	50 Prizes of $1.00 each

44 GRAND PRIZES

Capital Grand Prize,	$150	5th Grand Prize,	$35
2nd Grand Prize,	100	6th Grand Prize,	25
3rd Grand Prize,	75	7th Grand Prize,	15
4th Grand Prize,	50	4 Grand Prizes, each	10

33 Grand Prizes of $5.00 each, $165.00.

A Few Of The Many Prize Winners In Our Previous Contests!

E. WAGONER, Illinois,	$1,300.00	MRS. C. S. HARKNESS, Ohio,	30.00
ADA HUMPHREY, Kentucky,	850.00	MRS. L. J. HALLEY, Wash.	30.00
MACON A. GREEN, Tenn.,	620.00	MRS. LOUIS KOCHER, N. J.	30.00
JAS. R. McCREADY, Pa.,	350.00	LULU E. BLACKMAN, Ga.,	28.00
ALICE WINTERS, Ohio,	350.00	MRS. ROLLIE FORSHA, Pa.,	26.00
MRS. ALICE WARNER, Minn.,	202.00	MRS. AGNES GNESS, Tenn.,	25.00
MR. J. W. RULISON, Kans.,	187.00	M. G. CHRISTENSEN, Minn.,	24.00
SYBIL PHARIS, Ill.	185.00	S. R. HARKNESS, Mo.,	23.00
MRS. FRANCIS D'ARCY, Wash.,	157.00	MRS. MARY CROTHERS, Ill.	23.00
MRS. CLAUDE MILLER, Pa.,	151.00	SOPHIE SCHWEIR, N. Y.,	21.00
C. F. CLARK, N. Y.,	139.00	MRS. F. E. MULKEY, Ill.,	20.00
MRS. J. F. POULISEN, N. Y.,	122.00	D. W. ROWE, N. Y.	20.00
HENRY N. McCORD, Ga.,	110.00	EVA CLAIR MOON, N. Y.	18.00
FAIRLENA RILEY, Ky.,	103.00	MRS. RALPH DOOLITTLE, W. Va.,	17.00
ANNA MOELDERS, Ill.;	77.00	MRS. FREDA M. LOGAN, Pa.,	17.00
MRS. E. BUTLER Ill.,	71.00	JOS. L. WISMER, Pa.,	17.00
CREED B. MORRIS, W. Va.,	70.00	C. A. BROWN, Mich.,	17.00
MRS. L. E. McCARVER, N. C.	68.00	ELLEN LARZ, Minn.,	16.00
EDNA SNEAD, La.,	62.00	L. S. WHITMAN, Mass.,	15.00
S. V. CARPENTER, Wis.,	55.00	L. L. LEONARD, Ind.,	15.00
DOROTHY MILLER, S. C.,	46.00	MATILDA IHRK, Wis.,	15.00
HANNA BONFIELD, Can.,	43.00	MARY BERRY, W. Va.,	15.00
REV. LEVI ELLIOTT, Kans.,	37.00	RUDOLPH FISCHER, Pa.	15.00
LOUIS ASENBAUER, W. Va.,	36.00	JOHN HESS, Pa.	15.00
LAURA LINDSAY, Va.,	$33.00	MRS. MAGGIE McPHERSON, Wash.	15.00

Address Prize Contest Orders To Comfort Prize Dept., Augusta, Maine.

Prize Contest Entry Coupon

Date_____191

COMFORT PRIZE DEPARTMENT, Augusta Maine.

I enclose $ or cents to pay for the following list of subscribers or renewals to be credited to me in your Subscription Prize Contest. Send COMFORT to the following addresses:

NAME	POST OFFICE	Street, Box or R. F. D.	STATE	Say or RENEWAL 15 Mo	Whether SUB- for 2 Yrs.	for 3 Yrs.	AMOUNT

Send me as my Club Premium_____

Name_____ P. O._____ St., Box or R.F.D._____ State_____

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:—15-months subscription 25 Cents; 3-years 50 Cents; 2-years RENEWAL subscription by OLD SUBSCRIBERS, 30 Cents. 50 Cents a year in Canada.

How The Grand Prizes Are to be Awarded

Promptly at the close of the contest April 30, 1915 we shall also award 44 Grand Prizes as published elsewhere on this page. The Capital Grand Prize of $150.00 will go to the contestant who sends in the largest number of 25-cent subscriptions from the first day of October 1914 to the last day of next April. The second Grand Prize of $100 will go to the contestant who sends in the next largest number and so on. Remember these Grand Prizes come on top of the Monthly Prizes and the premiums that you are sure of anyway. Please bear in mind that you do not have to stay in the contest the entire six months in order to win a Grand Cash Prize. In addition to your Monthly Prize you may also win a Grand Prize in a single month—the first month, last month or any other month. Several contestants have done this in our previous contests.

Small Clubs Win The Prizes

Remember that small clubs win the Cash Prizes in these contests. Contrary to what you may have believed and what some people may try to tell you, you don't have to send in big clubs and lots of clubs in order to win the Monthly Prizes and perhaps a Grand Prize also in addition to your regular club premiums. Lots of people in our last year's contest carried off prizes month after month with clubs as small as 15 subscriptions, 20 subscriptions and so on up to 25 subscriptions. You are just as likely to be as fortunate in this contest, but of course you realize that the more subscriptions you send in each month, the better will be your chances.

You May win as Much as $780

The contestant who wins the first Monthly Prize each month for the entire six months will of course also win the Capital Grand Prize of $150.00 thereby winning a total of $780.00. To this fortunate contestant we will pay $30.00 for November, $60.00 for December, $90.00 for January, $120 for February, $150 for March and $180 for April which amounts to $630 and this added to the Capital Grand Prize of $150 makes the splendid sum of $780.

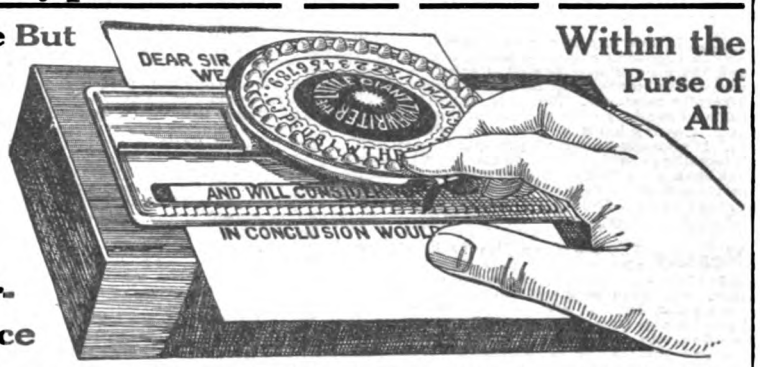
Rules and Conditions

1. Send subscription clubs, large or small, as often as you like. Name the club premiums you want.
2. In mailing subscriptions intended for the prize competition, be sure to address them to COMFORT Prize Department, Augusta, Maine, or we shall not know they are for the prize contest.
3. Subscriptions mailed on last day of a month will be counted into that month's contest provided the postmark on the envelope shows it. This makes it fair for all, no matter how far off they live.
4. The prizes will be awarded on the basis of fifteen-month subscriptions, but other subscriptions will be accepted and counted in this prize contest as follows: A 50-cent three-year subscription equals two fifteen-month subscriptions. One two-year renewal equals one fifteen-month subscription. So send in either kind of COMFORT subscriptions or renewals and they will all count.
5. In case of a tie, the prize or prizes for which contestants are tied will be divided equally between them. Thus, if two are tied for first prize, we shall add first and second prizes together and give half of the total to each, and double the share of either contestant entitled to double.

Mail The Coupon With A Small Club

You will earn a fine premium and you may start a Cash Prize your way also simply by sending us the coupon printed at the left along with two or more subscriptions to COMFORT. Then follow up your first club with another club as soon as possible. We will send you the premiums which you select from any issue of COMFORT or from our regular catalogue just as fast as you send in your clubs. They alone will more than pay you for your trouble. But remember that you may also win a Cash Prize every month. Start a club today. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose. You cannot possibly lose because you are SURE to get a premium anyway for every club you send in. Start now and win a February prize and a Grand Prize too.

Malachite Green Finish all Boxed in Fitted Green Case Safely Delivered Free by Parcel Post



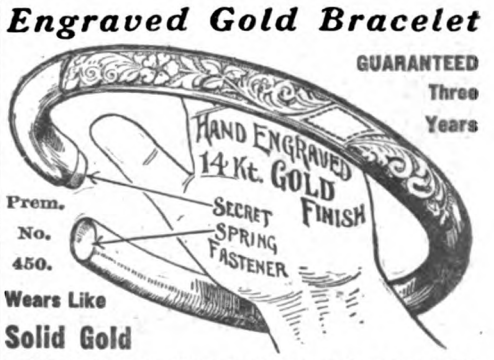
THERE has been no Premium offer in years that has been so pleasing to our friends as this new Comb and Brush Set. The great beauty of this latest style dark green or Malachite finish on the back of brush with the SILVERINE shield for engraving initial or monogram has made this set one of the best as a present for birthday, wedding or any special occasion. The brush is nine inches long over 2 1-2 inches wide with splendid firm white bristles well fastened and should last for years. The Comb is black, seven inches long and one & one half inches wide with coarse and fine teeth.

A Remarkable Offer: For a club of only two 15-months subscribers to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send this Set No. 262 Free as a Premium for your work.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

A Real Typewriter For Real Work!

Small In Size But Perfect In Operation. Adapted To Either Personal Or Business Correspondence



Within the Purse of All

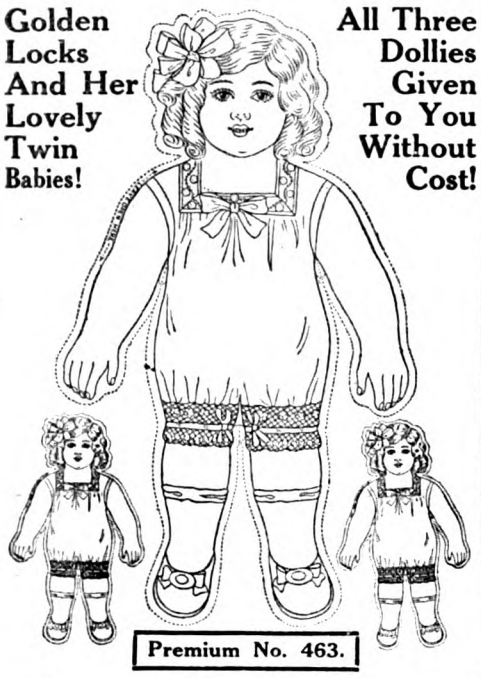
THIS is not a toy, but a practical, satisfactory machine that writes very distinctly and almost as fast as some typewriters costing $10.00 and more. It is a great deal larger than it appears to be in the above illustration, has every letter in the alphabet, all the numerals from one to ten, and the punctuation marks. You can use any size letter paper on this machine up to 5 inches in width and any length desired. For personal or business correspondence, making out statements, bills, addressing envelopes, etc., this machine answers every purpose. It is very easy to understand and operate, in fact a child can write on it after a few hours' practice. It is practically indestructible as it is made all of metal and positively cannot get out of order. We are sure that this typewriter will give the best of satisfaction because it is a real machine that will do real work. We will send you this practical typewriter guaranteed to be exactly as above illustrated and described with full directions for operating and a good supply of the best quality copying ink, carefully packed in a strong compact box upon the terms of the following

Club Offer. For a club of only four 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or two 3-years subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you this typewriter and complete outfit free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 586.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Engraved Gold Bracelet

THIS Round Bracelet with artistic engraving and unique Spring Fastening is the most attractive pattern we have seen this season. Not too large but large enough and as it is perfectly round, it fits well and becomes all ages and wears like Solid Gold. There is a demand for bracelets of enormous size, but this style is medium large and nearly three inches in diameter; we consider it a beautiful pattern. This bracelet is the very latest style so you will want one while fashionable, and as we guarantee fit and wear, you need not hesitate to order.



Special Offer: For one new 15-months subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents or for your own subscription or renewal or extension of your present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents extra (35 cents in all) we will send you this Bracelet free by parcel post prepaid.

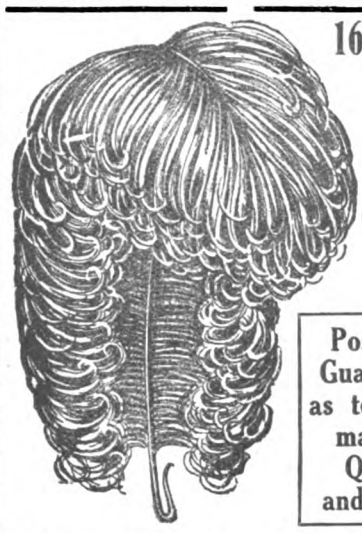
Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Free To Every Little Girl!

Golden Locks And Her Lovely Twin Babies!

All Three Dollies Given To You Without Cost!

Premium No. 463.



Mothers, Don't Fail To Read This Offer!

COMFORT wants to give free to your little girl and every little girl this handsome doll Family stamped in beautiful colors on strong cloth with full directions so that you can cut them out, stuff and sew them up in less than ten minutes. "Golden Locks" is almost as big as a real baby, for she stands one and one half feet high and her cute little twin babies which you see in the picture stand over half a foot high. These dolls cannot be broken no matter how much they are thrown around or dropped on the floor and you can make them bend their arms and legs, stand up and sit down in a chair and assume all sorts of natural positions. They have beautiful golden hair which hangs in the dearest curls you ever saw and fastened with a bright red ribbon bow that cannot get lost or become untied, handsome red cheeks, rosy lips and lovely blue eyes which smile at you in such a life-like way that you would almost think they were ready to speak and say "Mama." As shown in above illustration they are dressed in dainty lace-trimmed underwear with bright red stockings and black buttoned boots. The three dolls together—"Golden Locks" and the two sweet Baby Dolls—make the cutest and prettiest Doll Family any little girl ever had to play with. They are lots better for the little folks than the more expensive bisque and china dolls because they will not break or snarl their pretty hair or lose their eyes. There is no little girl who will not instantly fall in love with this beautiful Doll Family and spend many happy hours with it, so we hope that every mother who reads this offer will take advantage of it at once. We will send you all three dolls free by Parcel Post prepaid on the terms of the following special offers.

Offer 463 A. For one new 15-month subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents we will send you all three dolls free by parcel post prepaid.

Offer No. 463 B. For your own subscription or renewal or extension of your present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all) we will send you all three dolls free by Parcel Post prepaid. (Premium No. 463). Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Ostrich Plumes

16 Inches Long And 6 Inches Wide

Positively Guaranteed as to Workmanship, Quality and Color

Given For A Club Of Six!

THESE beautiful Ostrich Plumes are of the highest quality and are guaranteed for brilliancy and permanence of color. They are just what every lady wants for the upright trimmings now in vogue as they have thick, strong flues and a large full, graceful, French head with the latest fashionable flat curl. Each plume is a full 16 inches in length and over 6 inches in width and made of the best African male stock, will last for years and always look well. We can furnish these plumes in colors of either Black or White and be sure to mention color wanted when ordering.

Club Offer. For a club of only six 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or three 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you one of these handsome Ostrich Plumes free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 698.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Drawnwork Scarf

67 Inches Long 16 Inches Wide

Made of PURE FLAX woven into a silver damask of superior quality, finished with heavily fringed ends

EVERY woman reader of COMFORT who wants a handsome, serviceable dresser or sideboard scarf should answer this offer at once. We have imported from Germany a large quantity of these large sized, pure linen scarfs, 67 inches long and 16 inches wide, and thanks to the new tariff law secured them at a price so low that we can well afford to give them away for less money in subscriptions than you would have to pay outright for a much inferior scarf in any store. As shown in illustration, the pattern is a large attractive zigzag drawnwork design and both ends of the scarf are finished with a handsome wide combed and knotted fringe. Being made by skilled workmen of pure flax, the texture of this scarf is such that it should last a lifetime and in appearance it is one of the most beautiful dresser or sideboard covers you ever saw. We are giving away this scarf free on the terms of the following

CLUB OFFER. For a club of only two 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this large handsome, pure linen, imported scarf free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 332.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Large Shaggy Teddy Bear

The Best Playmate A Boy or Girl Ever Had

10 Inches High And Full Jointed

FREE FOR A CLUB OF TWO!

EVERY little boy and girl wants a Teddy Bear and here is an opportunity for every father or mother who reads COMFORT to get one without expense. "Teddy" looks exactly as you see him in the picture above. He is a big shaggy fellow, nearly a foot tall, made of rich, handsome brown plush, paws lined with felt, carefully stitched and finished and his head, arms and legs are jointed in such a manner that you can place him in almost any position. He will stand up, sit up, stand on his head, go on all four feet, in fact, you can make him assume all kinds of positions that are so comical and lifelike that it makes the children scream with delight just to look at him. "Teddy" is so well made that no matter how roughly he is handled he cannot become broken and with ordinary care should last for years. Teddy Bears like this one generally cost a good round sum in the stores, but as we have imported a large quantity of them from Germany at a special low price we can well afford to give them away on terms so liberal that there is no reason why every boy and girl should not have one of them at once. We will send you "Teddy" free if you will accept the following special

Club Offer. For a club of only two 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this big shaggy Teddy Bear free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 699.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Looks and Wears Like Solid Gold

Free For A Club Of 8

Elegant Lady's Watch

HERE IS a watch that we are proud to offer and one that any lady or girl should feel proud to own. It is known as the "Leonard Dutchess" and is a perfect little beauty having all the refined, stylish features that are generally found only on the highest priced solid gold watches. We show both the front and the back of the watch in above illustration so that you can gain some idea of its beautiful appearance, especially the fancy engraving on the back. This is a thin model watch, 6 size, stem wind, pendant set with antique bow and flat stem. The movement is damaskeed, quick train, hardened steel cut pinions, straight line escapement, every part carefully made and adjusted by skilled watch-makers in one of the largest watch factories in the United States. Best of all however, this watch cannot be told from a solid gold watch and it will wear like solid gold because the case is made of a solid composition of gilt metal that is the same color all the way through so that it will never tarnish or change color, but the longer it is worn, the brighter and better it will look. This dainty little timepiece is refined and stylish enough to satisfy the most exacting taste. We guarantee that it will keep perfect time and otherwise prove satisfactory or it may be returned to the factory any time within one year where it will either be repaired free of charge or a new watch sent in exchange. The factory's guarantee will be sent to you along with the watch and in addition we will ourselves guarantee that this watch will give you unlimited satisfaction. We have just added this elegant new watch to our list of premiums and are giving it away free on the terms of the following special

CLUB OFFER. For a club of only eight 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or four 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you this handsome lady's watch exactly as described free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 691.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

TWO YARD LONG SILK MUSLIN SCARF

A dainty shoulder throw and head covering for Summer, or for evening wear the year round. For trimming Summer Hats there is nothing so practical or so easily and attractively arranged. Each Scarf is two yards long and 24 inches wide, with deep hemstitched edge, and we have them in white, black, light blue and light pink.

For every-day use such a scarf is indispensable and for car or boat riding, pleasure or otherwise one or more of these scarfs will be found useful. Being ready to wear, the saving of time in hemstitching is worth something to every woman, and the busy Mothers will find them so convenient for a quick method of trimming the children's hats.

In the cities the stores all show these scarfs and everyone is wearing them. Heretofore retailed for one dollar, while we give one for only two subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each for 15 months

Premium No. 331.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine

ROSES!

6 Beautiful Monthly Blooming Roses Delivered to Your Door For One New Subscription!

BEAUTIFUL Charming Roses in profusion that anybody can grow in any climate and in almost any soil. Again this season we offer our readers a splendid opportunity to secure without money cost a rare collection of six, hardy, vigorous growing rose plants that will bloom and bloom all summer transforming your flower garden into a veritable paradise of delicious fragrance and radiant colors. The six varieties described below are strong, well-rooted plants ready to be transplanted to your garden as soon as you receive them and we guarantee that they will grow and thrive beautifully if given proper care and attention. No matter in what part of the United States you live, our growers will send them to you at the proper time to plant according to the schedule printed below. Please remember, however, that these dates may vary from ten to fifteen days in event of an extremely early or late spring, so you need not become anxious if they should not reach you just on the date named in schedule. The rose growers who supply us are perfectly familiar with planting conditions in your locality and you may depend upon them to forward the roses to you at the best time for you to put them in the ground. Following is a brief description of each of the six varieties of beautiful ever-blooming roses given you free on this great offer:

Crimson Crown For color effect and general bedding purposes here is a rose that is hard to equal. It is a robust growing variety, quickly developing into a large shapely bush that is literally covered with immense clusters of deep crimson roses which are tinted a rich lemon-white at the base of each petal. The flowers are of attractive form and borne in such profusion as to give the plant a bright brilliant display from early spring until long after the late frosts.

Killarney Queen In this fine new rose some wonderful improvements have been made over the old pink Killarney and the grower now has as nearly a perfect variety as it seems possible to secure. The flowers are massive in size, very double and liberally produced. They are constructed of better substance and are of a richer dark deep pink color than the old variety. In rapid vigorous growing habit it cannot be equalled by any other rose in its class. It seems to be perfectly adapted to soil and weather conditions in all localities and if given some care, small plants will develop into fine large bushes the first season planted, returning for the little attention an abundance of magnificent fragrant flowers. This rose is a hardy everbloomer and flowers from early spring until after freezing weather in the fall.

Climbing American Beauty The American Beauty in all its glory and fragrance, develops into a hardy outdoor climbing rose. It is a prolific bloomer, with a strong habit of growth, thriving and blooming in almost any situation. The bush growing American Beauty is rarely satisfactory when planted in the open ground, but this new climbing variety has proved perfectly hardy in any part of the United States. One plant of this new rose will produce twenty times as many flowers as the old variety. The roses growing on a single stem measure three to four inches in diameter and possess the same delicious fragrance that the American Beauty alone has. This new rose must not be classed among the old-fashioned climbers of the rambler type, as it is distinct from them in its very superior quality. It has a fine foliage that does not burn, its thick glossy leaves remaining on the bush all summer. No lover of beautiful roses should fail to plant this fine climber, as it is a worthy ornament to any garden, and its beauty and fragrance will prove a lasting pleasure and delight.

Bessie Brown This wonderful rose is indeed a crowning masterpiece and has been hailed by flower-lovers everywhere as one of the greatest rose creations of modern times. With a hardy, vigorous constitution, growing to perfection in any soil or location, it has the most magnificent foliage that is possessed by any variety. It is a tremendous grower, producing flowers profusely all through the summer on strong erect stems. The handsome flowers are of unsurpassed beauty. They are full and deep, of a totally distinct character and formed of such substance as to last splendidly when cut. The color is an exquisite creamy white, delicately flushed pink.

PREMIUM NO. 672

DATES TO PLANT ROSES.

Latitude of Florida, Calif., Tex.,	after	Feb.	1
" " Ariz., Okla., So. Car.,	"	Mch.	1
" " Wash., Tenn., Va.,	"	"	15
" " Nev., Kans., Mo.,	"	Apr.,	1
" " Iowa, Ohio, W. Va.,	"	"	15
" " Mont., Mich., N. Y., and all New England States		May	1

Nita Weldon Here is another gold medal winner, well worthy a place in the heart and garden of every flower lover. In habit of growth it is perfection. Both the canes and foliage are of such strength and vigor as to withstand without injury the ravages of insects or disease. Neither soil conditions nor location seem to effect its rapid growth or liberal blooming qualities. The flowers are of globular form, very full and immense in size. They are deliciously fragrant and pure ivory-white with edges of petals tinted the faintest blush.

Lady Hillingdon In this variety has been found every valuable feature the flower-lover could desire of a deep golden everblooming rose. After being awarded gold medals over such varieties as "Sunburst" there is no ground to question its merits. It is a sturdy, vigorous grower, producing long strong stems which hold the beautiful pointed buds upright, making them especially desirable for cut flower purposes. The buds open slowly to full deep golden bloom which hold their form and color much longer than other varieties. In the garden its rich green foliage and abundance of flowers present such a beautiful display of color that it cannot be passed by the most casual observer without an expression of admiration.

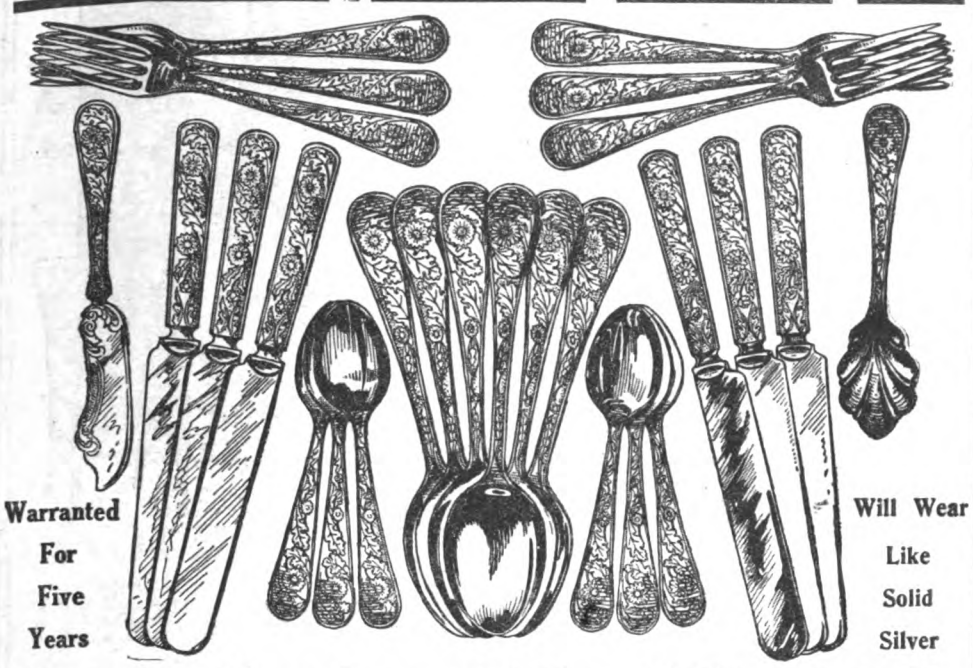
Remember These roses are all strong healthy plants on their own roots and will be sent to you by Parcel Post prepaid packed in wet moss so that you will be sure to receive them in just as good condition as when they leave the greenhouse. You may accept this offer with the perfect assurance that these beautiful ever-blooming roses will grow and develop into rare specimen beauties. If any fail to grow we hereby guarantee to replace them for you free of all cost.

Offer 672 A. For one new 15-month subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents, we will send you these six beautiful roses free by Parcel Post prepaid.

Offer 672 B. For your own subscription or renewal or extension of your present subscription for one year at 25 cents, and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all), we will send you these six beautiful roses free by Parcel Post prepaid. If you want us to send them immediately be sure to say so in your order otherwise the roses will not be mailed to you until the proper time arrives for you to plant them in your garden.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Wonderful New Stereoscope AND 100 ENTERTAINING EXCITING VIEWS



Lions, Tigers, Bears and all kinds of Wild Animals, Home Scenes, Domestic Pets and Happy Childhood Days.

Here is something as good as a circus for the children the year round—an indestructible, new style Stereoscope made of all metal with powerful, magnifying lens, and with it we give you free a big collection of 100 Views of home scenes, domestic pets, farm scenes, all kinds of trained and wild animals, hunting scenes, views from the Arctic and tropical countries, and happy childhood scenes—the biggest and finest assortment of the most delightful and entertaining stereoscopic views for children ever gotten out. Boys and girls need not be obliged to hunt for something to occupy their active minds indoors with one of these Scopes at hand because it will give them a never-ending, joyful entertainment keeping them amused, instructed and out of mischief. Aside from the pleasure they will derive from the fifty beautiful scenes of home life, the fifty exciting animal views will furnish them with a regular circus, the lions, tigers, bears, buffalo, and all kinds of wild and savage animals as well as horses, dogs, cats and other domestic animals standing out real and life-like when looked at through this Scope. Any boy or girl would be delighted to have one of these wonderful Stereoscopes together with the big collection of 100 entertaining and exciting Views that come with it and knowing this we have purchased a large quantity of them direct from the factory and because we bought so many we got them at a price low enough to enable us to give them away on the terms of the following

FREE OFFER. Send us only one new 15-months subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents, or your own subscription, or renewal or extension of your present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all) and you will receive by Parcel Post prepaid this fine Stereoscope complete with the 100 Views exactly as described above. Premium No. 646.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

26-Piece Daisy Silver Set

Warranted For Five Years

Will Wear Like Solid Silver

Sent To You Prepaid For A Club Of Six

WE have in the past made many fine premium offers of silverware to readers of COMFORT, but this is the first time we have ever been able to offer a complete silver set in return for such a small club of subscriptions. And please don't think because we are giving away this splendid set on such liberal terms that it is the ordinary cheap silverware which is plated on a brass base and consequently changes color and has that "brassy" look just as soon as the plating wears off. This Set which we offer you here is silver plated on a white metal base therefore each and every piece is the same color all the way through and will never show signs of tarnish or wear, even after years of constant use. As shown in the above illustration there are 26 pieces in this set—6 Knives, 6 Forks, 6 Teaspoons, 6 Tablespoons, Sugar Shell and Butter Knife. Each piece is full regulation size for family use. the handles are handsomely embossed and decorated with the beautiful Daisy design which is now so popular and the blades of the knives and bowls of the teaspoons and tablespoons are perfectly plain and bright polished. It is only because we buy this set in large quantities direct from the factory that we are able to secure it at a price that enables us to offer it as a premium for so few subscriptions. It is by far the greatest value we have ever offered, in fact we are so sure that it will please and satisfy all who accept our offer we are going to guarantee every Set sent out for a period of five years. We will send this beautiful 26-Piece Daisy Silver Set exactly as illustrated and described to any address upon the terms of the following special

Club Offer. For a club of six 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or three 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, you will receive this 26-Piece Daisy Silver Set Free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 680. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

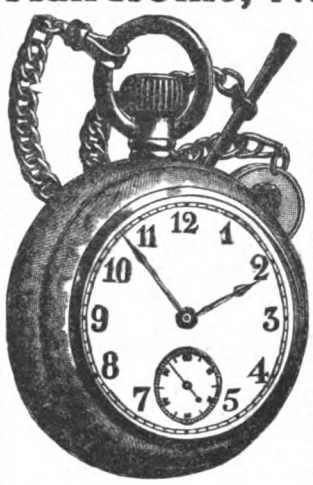
Beautiful Tapestry Table Cover



Given to You For 2 Subscriptions

This beautiful, fringed Tapestry Table Cover is nearly one yard square which is a size large enough for any stand or small table and is very elaborately made up in different handsome colors on an interwoven background which is of a color that harmonizes with the fringe which extends entirely around the cover. Add one or more of these beautiful colored covers to the furnishings of any room in your house and it will enliven and cheer up the whole atmosphere of your home. They are just as durable as they are handsome and taken altogether are something any woman should be pleased to own and display. We will send you this large handsome Table Cover, exactly as described if you will accept the following

Club Offer. For a club of only two 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this beautiful Tapestry Table Cover free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 664. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Handsome, New Style, Guaranteed Watch

A Warranted Timekeeper—Best American Movement—Stem Wind and Set.

Here is a watch that any man or boy may feel proud to carry, not alone on account of its handsome, refined appearance, but, because it is always on the dot—a splendid, dependable timekeeper that will keep as near perfect time as any watch you ever saw no matter what the price. Of course, this is not an expensive watch because it is not in a gold or silver case but for practical every-day use it is just as good as any watch costing from $20.00 to $25.00. In fact, we have such faith in this watch as a timekeeper that we send with every one a guarantee which is just as binding as that given with any watch no matter what make. It has a handsome polished nickel case with an unusually thick crystal which will stand all sorts of rough handling without becoming broken; the movement is the best American made, stem wind and stem set, the dial is pure white with large plain easily read figures on its face and, as shown in the illustration, it has the hour, minute and second hands like all high-priced watches. We have already given away thousands of these watches without having one of them returned to us or receiving a single complaint and this we think is sufficient evidence that it never fails to please and satisfy. Now is the time for you to secure one of these handsome, guaranteed watches before the price of them goes up as it is pretty sure to do in the near future. We will send you this watch exactly as described, together with a handsome stylish chain and fob, if you will accept the following

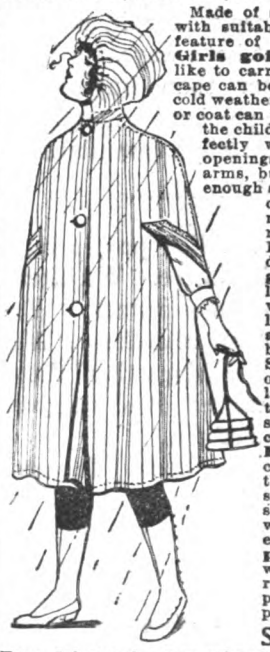
CLUB OFFER. For a club of only five 15-months subscribers to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this guaranteed watch, also a handsome chain and fob, free by Parcel Post, prepaid. Premium No.399. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Look At Me!

Whose Little Girl Wants ME?

I Am The Cutest Sweetest Baby Doll In Toyland And You Can Have Me FREE!

YES, this beautiful, curly-haired doll is free to any little girl and on such liberal terms that we expect to give away thousands of them during the next few months. Don't think she is anywhere near as small as she looks to be in the picture for she stands nearly a foot and a quarter high. She has a real kid body and her beautiful head is almost indestructible because it is made of bisque. You can make her stand up or sit down in a chair, or bend over or assume all sorts of natural positions because her arms are jointed at shoulder and elbow and her legs at hip and knee. When you lie her down she closes her eyes and goes to sleep and when you pick her up she is wide awake again. Her beautiful brown hair hangs in luxuriant curls, her eyes are blue as the sky, she has real eyelashes—not the "make-believe" kind—and taken altogether she is certainly the cutest and sweetest baby doll in all toyland. With exception of her handsome black openwork lace stockings and cunning little slippers with bow and buckle she comes to you undressed so that you can make your own dresses for her and dress and undress her to your heart's content. Fathers and Mothers—just look at this beautiful doll in the picture as she stands smiling with arms outstretched waiting for someone to pick her up, hug her, kiss her and put on her gay little dress! Don't you think your little girl would just love to have her for her own? We will send her to you free packed in a strong box so she cannot possibly get broken if you will accept the terms of the following special offer.



For Only Six Subscriptions!

FOR A club of only six 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or three 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each we will send you this handsome Doll exactly as described by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 466.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Girl's Waterproof Cape

A Great PROTECTOR From WIND and RAIN

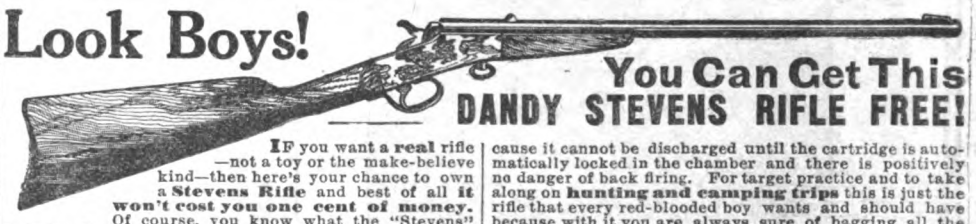
Made of striped rubberized cloth with suitable lining, and the best feature of this cape is the hood. Girls going to school do not like to carry an umbrella, and this cape can be worn either in hot or cold weather. If in winter a sweater or coat can be worn underneath, and the child is not only dry but perfectly warm. There are two openings in the cape for the arms, but the garment is large enough so the books or packages can be carried underneath, which makes it much better than a Rain Coat. The shoulders are shaped so as to give it a very attractive look. This cape comes in a very dark drab color with lighter drab stripes. They are so pretty any girl will be proud to wear one. Sizes 6 to 14 years. When ordering better order it larger than necessary so to have it of sufficient size to go over a heavy coat or other garments. Boys can easily get up clubs and thus get one of these Rain Capes for their sisters. Girls like to get subscribers to COMFORT where they can so easily earn such a sensible premium so as to keep warm and dry during the rainy season. We are prepared to fill all orders promptly.

Special Club Offer: For a club of only seven subscribers to COMFORT at 25 cents each for 15 months, we will send you by Parcel Post one of these serviceable Rain Capes. Premium No. 529.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Premium No. 612

Stylish Colored Petticoat



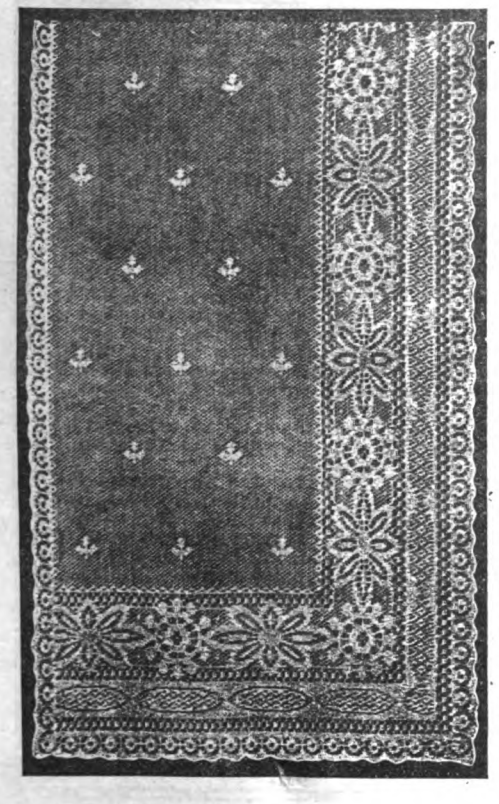
For A Club Of Two Kelley Green, Cerise Or Black

COLORED petticoats modeled along narrow lines to conform to the narrow dress skirts that are now the style. Kelley Green, Cerise or "American Beauty" and Black seem to be popular shades as they afford a striking contrast to most any dress. The petticoat offered here is made of handsome sateen or "farmer's satin" of good quality with finished seams and deep flounce and it comes in the popular colors above mentioned. Every woman to be in fashion now needs one or more of these petticoats which fit so nicely and hang so gracefully having not near so much fullness as the old petticoats and yet not of the extreme hobble style. Be sure to specify size and color wanted when ordering. We have them in sizes all the way from 38 to 44 and will send you exact size and the color desired, if you will accept the following.

Club Offer. For a club of only two 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you one of these petticoats free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 612.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Look Boys!



You Can Get This DANDY STEVENS RIFLE FREE!

IF you want a real rifle —not a toy or the make-believe kind—then here's your chance to own a Stevens Rifle and best of all it won't cost you one cent of money. Of course, you know what the "Stevens" Rifle is. It is acknowledged to be one of the very best makes in the world manufactured by the famous Stevens Firearms Co. of Massachusetts. The rifle we offer you here is their "Little Scout" model and is the take-down pattern—that is by simply turning a screw you can remove the barrel from the stock which is a great help in cleaning the gun or packing it for travel. It shoots C. B. caps., .22 short, .22 long, or .22 long rifle rimfire cartridges, has an 18-inch round all-steel barrel, casehardened frame, blued steel butt plate, German silver knife-edge front and open rear sights, polished black walnut stock and weighs 2¼ pounds. This rifle is absolutely safe because it cannot be discharged until the cartridge is automatically locked in the chamber and there is positively no danger of back firing. For target practice and to take along on hunting and camping trips this is just the rifle that every red-blooded boy wants and should have because with it you are always sure of bagging all the small game that comes your way such as rabbits, squirrels, hawks and all kinds of game birds. We want every boy who reads this offer to have one of these splendid rifles and we are going to make it very easy for you to get one without spending a cent for it. Here's our free offer. Just read it.

Club Offer. For a club of only twelve 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or six 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you this genuine Stevens Rifle free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 692.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Free For 4 Subscriptions!

Genuine Nottingham Lace Curtains

Full Width And Nine Feet Long

This is a brand new offer and much more liberal than our previous offers of Lace Curtains because we are now enabled to buy the genuine Nottingham Lace Curtains direct from the mills cheaper than ever before in the history of our business. The curtains we now offer you are full width and three yards long which is large enough for the largest window, and are designed after the latest up-to-date pattern, with handsome wide border and firm well-finished edge. These beautiful curtains are suited to any room in your house whether it be parlor, sitting-room or chamber and there is an air of elegance and refinement about them which will dress up any room in your house no matter how richly furnished it may be. We guarantee that every woman who accepts this offer will be proud of these curtains—proud of their real beauty and value and proud of the fact that she secured them without paying out one cent of money. We are now giving away these curtains free upon the terms of the following

CLUB OFFER. For a club of only four 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or two 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you one pair of these curtains free by Parcel Post prepaid. Or we will send you two pair for a club of seven 15-months subscriptions, or three pair for a club of ten. Premium No. 409.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Great Japanese Rug about Six Feet Long

Given For a Club of Only Four

This unusual offering was gotten of a large importing house who make a specialty in dealing in big quantities of these Botan or Matting Rugs. It is closely woven of fine Japanese matting and is thus strong and durable. It has an elaborate Oriental design, which is brought out by the bright colors being interwoven with the finely shaded texture of the matting itself, of which our illustration gives but a faint idea. The colors are of such a blend and are so harmonious in the variegated shades of red, blue and green that it is appropriate to use in any room in the house, especially for the chambers or living-room. It will lay closely to the floor or fit nicely over a defaced carpet. They are of such good size, about 72 inches long and thirty-six inches wide, that two of them make a good covering for the floor of a fair sized room. They are a very serviceable rug to use as they do not easily soil and can be readily cleaned with a damp cloth, and the color design thus be kept fresh and bright. It is guaranteed to give entire satisfaction and if you once have one of these rugs come into your home you will almost be compelled to get up another club and secure more of them, they are given on such easy terms and are so entirely wearable and give such a fine appearance.

CLUB OFFER. For a club of only four 15-months subscribers to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will deliver one of these Rugs by Parcel Post. Prem. No. 420. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Two Surprises for You

No 1.—A Dollar Book

With 5,160 Furniture Bargains

We have just issued a Bargain Book which will amaze and delight you. It is the finest we ever issued in our 50 years in business.

It is so big—so handsome—that it costs us $1 per copy with mailing, but we'll send it to you free if you have a home.

It pictures 5,160 things for the home—many in actual colors. You never saw such an exhibit. It takes six acres of floor space just to show samples of the things pictured in this book.

Prices ⅓ Less

The prices will average one-third less than usual. Some are half store prices. We buy for the millions—a thousand times what the usual dealer buys. We pick up bargains—surplus stocks. And we sell direct by mail.

Our prices will seem impossible. But we prove them to you by sending goods on trial. You buy nothing whatever until you see it in your home and use it for a month.

Keep It 30 Days

We send you things—whatever you want—to keep for 30 days. Test them, inspect them, compare our price with stores. Then buy or return them, just as you prefer. What you return we credit, and we pay the freight both ways.

That's better than buying in stores. Here you have a month to consider—there only a few minutes.

More than a million people buy their home things here. We often furnish 10,000 homes a week. We save them millions of dollars. We show them more things than they ever saw elsewhere. And we give them long-time credit.

Send for this new book. It costs you nothing. And it will bring to your home the greatest exhibit, the lowest prices and the fairest terms that were ever known in this line.

No. 2—A Credit Card

Giving You a Year to Pay

With the Book we will send a Credit Card. It will open for you a charge account without any references or any red tape.

Then you can order at any time on credit. On every bill you have a year to pay. No extra price, no interest, no contract, no security—just an open charge account.

You may pay a little each month. Buy anything you want by saving just 2 or 3 cents a day. This is our new-style credit. We open accounts without any formalities with people who buy for their homes.

About one home in ten. the country over, has a charge account here now. You should have one, too. Then you can get things as you want them, and pay as convenient.

Send This Coupon

Simply send this coupon. We will mail you this dollar book. We will open at the same time a charge account and send your Credit Card. You can order then whenever you wish.

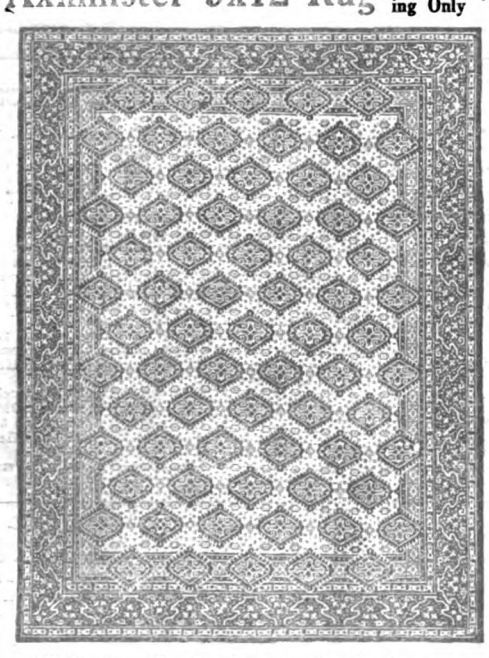
Send the coupon now. Our Spring Book is just out, and every home should have it. Cut out the coupon now.

Bargain Book

Of 5,160 Home Things

Furniture	Carpenters' Tools
Carpets—Rugs	Silverware
Draperies—Linens	Chinaware—Clocks
Oilcloths, etc.	Sewing Machines
Baby Cabs	Kitchen Cabinets
Refrigerators	Cameras—Pictures

Many Pictures in Colors



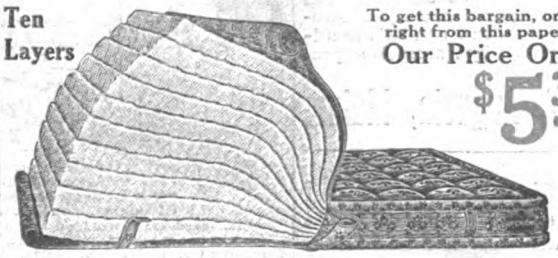
SPIEGEL, MAY, STERN CO.
1174 W. 35th Street, Chicago (844)
Mail me your Spring Furniture Book.
Also the Books I mark below.
.....Stove Book.....Watches and Jewelry.
.....Spring Styles for Women.
Name.....
Address.....
Write plainly. Give full address.
Check which catalogs you want.

Be sure to ask for Book of Spring Styles for Women Also

Get Rich

Axminster 9x12 Rug

By Sending Only $1.25



Just Write for this handsome Axminster rug. Your charge account will be opened at once and the rug will be placed in your home on 30 days' free trial. Then pay $1.25 monthly if it pleases you and you are satisfied with the saving. This is a sample of the wonderful bargains to be found in our catalog, but as there were not enough to picture in this book you must order from this paper to take advantage of this big bargain.

Handsome Oriental Design, a copy of a rug selling for four times our price—a pattern that is found only in the very best homes. This rug is rich in appearance, coming in a tan ground with the Oriental figures brought out in beautiful shades of brown, red, blue, green and old rose colors. It has a luxurious high pile, is well woven of all-wool yarns and neatly finished.

No. F4C203. Size 9x12 feet. Price.....$12.95

45-Pound Felt Mattress Is Yours by Sending 50c

Ten Layers

To get this bargain, order right from this paper.
Our Price Only $5.35

It Is So Easy to Get this big bargain in a ten-layer 45-lb. felt mattress that there is no good reason for your being without it. Just think of the days and days of comfort from a mattress of this guaranteed quality when you only pay 50c a month and enjoy its use while paying for it. You get 30 days' free trial besides, in which you can make sure of your bargain. Order right from this paper, as there were not enough to catalog. Your account will be opened when you write us.

Imperial Roll Edge, extending all around, insures durability and means extra quality, making an Imperial box edge 5 inches wide all around, with nice rounded corners. Mattress is filled with 45 lbs. of genuine felt in ten layers. There are 54 tufts, with two rows of Imperial edge stitching. The covering is finest grade of selected fancy art ticking. Mattress is absolutely sanitary and will not mat or become hard or lumpy. Weight, 45 lbs. Comes in 4 foot 6 inch size only.

No. F4B6537. Price.....$5.35

Spiegel, May, Stern Co

1174 W. 35th Street, Chicago

$1.05 Brings Life Lacquer Brass Bed with 2 in. Posts

Order right from this paper. Pay $1.05 monthly if you keep it.

$11.35

Notice corner posts 2 in. thick and top rails 1½ in. thick.

Here is a Striking Design in a luxurious brass bed, one that has all the beauty of appearance to be found in a brass bed selling for $10 or more. This is a tremendous bargain, one that you must order right from this paper, because there were not enough to catalog. Just write us for this handsome bed and send the small payment of $1.05. Then place the bed in your home for 30 days. If you decide to keep it, pay only $1.05 monthly. Your account will be open as soon as you write us, without formality.

Corner Posts are 2 inches thick. They are nicely topped by rounded corner caps, by which they are firmly joined to the top rails, which measure 1½ inches thick. Top rails are in turn supported by five upright filling rods in both head and foot ends which are ⅝ inch thick. All filling rods are capped with artistic spun brass mounts. Notice the gallery effect, made by the extra cross rail, giving extra strength and beauty.

Guaranteed Life Lacquer is applied to every part of this bed. This lacquer protects the brass and keeps it from tarnishing or turning color, and also means that you can clean it with any ordinary acid or alkali cleaner without harming the brass. Bed stands 57 inches high at head end and 37 inches high at foot end. Comes in bright brass finish or the soft, velvety satin finish. Be sure to ask for finish desired. Shipping weight about 190 lbs.

No. F4B6043. Price.....$11.35

HOUSEHOLD NUMBER

COMFORT

The Key to Happiness and Success in over a Million and a Quarter Homes

DEVOTED TO ART, LITERATURE, SCIENCE AND THE HOME CIRCLE.

VOL. XXVII NO. 5

MARCH 1915

Published at AUGUSTA
MAINE

"Ready for House-Cleaning and Renovating"

Copyright 1915 (Trade-Mark Registered), by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Incorporated.

COMFORT

The Key to

Happiness and Success in over

A Million and a Quarter Homes

In which is combined and consolidated

THE NATIONAL FARMER and HOME MAGAZINE.

Devoted to

Art, Literature, Science, and the Home Circle.

Its Motto Is "Onward and Upward."

SUBSCRIPTION.

United States and Cuba, - - 25c. for 15 months
Canadian Subscriptions, - - 50c. per year.

Subscriptions for England and Foreign Countries, 75c. per year.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are entered on our books as soon as received, and are always dated from the current issue, unless otherwise ordered.

POSTAGE to all parts of the United States and to foreign countries is prepaid by us, but owing to high postage rates Canadian or Foreign subscriptions can only be accepted singly, and at the full 50c. or 75c. price. All club offers giving Premiums or Prizes apply only to the United States.

If you do not get your magazines by the 15th of the month, write us and an extra copy will be sent you free of charge.

We do NOT continue subscription after the expiration of the time subscribed for.

When making a change of residence, in order to insure the uninterrupted delivery of COMFORT, it is essential that we be advised of the change in address IMMEDIATELY. We must have former as well as present address before change can be made. As Postmasters cannot forward second-class matter without stamps, your missing copies of COMFORT will not reach you and we do not supply back numbers.

TO CONTRIBUTORS: All literary contributions should be accompanied by stamped and addressed envelopes for their return in case they are not available. Manuscripts should not be rolled.

Special Notice. We do not supply back numbers.

Entered at the Post Office at Augusta, Maine, as second-class mail matter.

Published Monthly by
W. H. GANNETT, Incorporated,
Augusta, Maine.

New York Office, Flatiron Bldg. Chicago Office, Marquette Bldg.

March, 1915

CONTENTS

	Page
CRUMBS OF COMFORT	2
THE SCOFFER Short Story Hapsburg Liebe	2 & 44
MONTHLY LESSON IN HISTORY C. B. Irvine	2
EDITORIAL	3
HOUSEHOLD CONVENIENCES THAT MAKE HOME ATTRACTIVE AND COMFORTABLE	5
COMFORT SISTERS' CORNER 6, 11, 12,	24 & 37
SO DEAR A FOE Short Story Laura Vignette Beale	7 & 27
HOME COOKING	7
THE UNREST OF THE AGE—In Some of Its More Familiar Aspects Adele Steiner Burleson	8 & 15
COMFORT'S LEAGUE OF COUSINS Conducted by Uncle Charlie 10, 30, 34, 35,	39 & 40
DECORATIVE FURNISHINGS USEFUL AND EASY TO MAKE	11
BULL NETTLES Short Story Alice Terry Hayward	12
TOUGHEY: Childhood Adventures on a Texas Ranch (continued) Adele Steiner Burleson	13
HEALTHFUL CLEANING Anne Emerson	13
A THORN AMONG ROSES (continued) Mrs. Georgie Sheldon	14 & 29
KITCHEN KINKS THAT SAVE STEPS AND LIGHTEN WORK	15
POULTRY FARMING FOR WOMEN Mrs. Kate V. St. Maur	16 & 34
MODERN FARMER	17 & 37
HOME DRESSMAKING HINTS Geneva Gladding	18 & 19
KEEP BEES—A FEW AT LEAST C. B. Irvine	19
PRETTY GIRLS' CLUB Conducted by Katherine Booth	20
EDNA'S SECRET MARRIAGE (continued) Charles Garvice 21,	31 & 37
IN AND AROUND THE HOME Fancy Work Conducted by Mrs. Wheeler Wilkinson	22 & 23
STOCKING THE HOME MEDICINE CHEST AND HOW TO USE IT Dr. C. F. Reade	24
HELPFUL HOUSEHOLD HINTS	25
BABY'S COLD—What to Do for It Dr. Leonard Keene Hirshberg	25
MANNERS AND LOOKS	26
THE ATHLETIC CORSET Short Article Esther A. Cosse	26
VETERINARY INFORMATION	27
A CORNER FOR BOYS Uncle John	28
JANUARY PRIZE-WINNERS	31
BUNNY RABBIT DOLLY	32
STORY ABOUT BUNNY RABBIT	32
CUBBY BEAR AND THE BABY BUNNIES Lena B. Ellinwood	32
FAMILY DOCTOR	33
TALKS WITH GIRLS	35
INFORMATION BUREAU	36
THE ALLIGATOR PEAR Short Article C. B. Irvine	36
FOUR WHEEL CHAIRS IN FEBRUARY	38
HOME LAWYER	38

Crumbs of Comfort

Our thoughts are heard in heaven.

Patience is the key to the contented mind.

Man punishes the action, but God the intention.

A handsaw is a good thing, but not to shave with.

A fire of straw makes much smoke, but little warmth.

Beauty without virtue is a rose without fragrance.

That is real loss which is gained by sacrifice of character.

Every person is occasionally what he should be perpetually.

Anger is often much more hurtful than the injury which caused it.

How seldom it is that the soul is so quiet that it can hear when God speaks to it.

The world may pity you for what you lose, but never for what you have never had.

When you speak, speak well, speak easily, speak justly and speak at the right moment.

The man, who loves no woman at all, is more in the wrong than he who loves all women too much.

The greatest satisfaction a woman can feel is to know that a man, whom many other women love, loves her alone.

THE SCOFFER

By Hapsburg Liebe

Copyright, 1914, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

NOW and then one may find them, these mountaineer wanderlusters, these derelicts, who go from one community to another and rarely or never enter the great outer world. They invariably possess some trait that wins them more or less of a welcome; otherwise the more stolid mountain-folk would not tolerate them for a moment. As for Saul Barber, he was a fiddler and a good one in his way; also he had an odd, dry sense of humor that had kept more than one man from killing him. Barber's very appearance was usually sufficient to bring forth a smile. He was exceptionally tall and exceptionally thin; his eyes were small and pale blue, and his beard was sparse, short and ragged; he wore a frayed Prince Albert coat of doubtful history.

Preacher Norris Primrose, too, was something of a wanderer; but, unlike Saul Barber, he had a distinct and set purpose in life; he went from one community to another, sometimes spending as much as a year in one place, and carried the Gospel to his people the mountain-folk. He was an old man, heavily bearded, gentle of manner yet a person of much firmness. He lived alone in an old cabin on the western side of Little Rainy Valley, almost squarely across from the tumbledown hut in which Saul Barber and his fiddle had taken up their abode for the time being. And Saul Barber was the one man whom Norris Primrose had failed to persuade to come to his log church, the one man of all those who dwelled in the Little Rainy section.

Saul Barber, scoffer, bitterly hated all that pertained to religion; therefore, he bitterly hated Preacher Primrose. Saul Barber wanted badly to be an atheist, and didn't know how.

"I wouldn't go to yore blamed old meetin'-house," he had told the old minister in reply to the latter's latest invitation, "if it was to save yore life. I've never been inside of a meetin'-house sence I was a little bisty kid and didn't know no better; and I never will set foot inside o' one ag'in as long as I live. You're jest religious acause you're a skeered not to be—a fanatic, that's what—and so smoke that in yore pipe! You cain't prove that none o' yore preachin's about another life is true; it's all wind!"

"Tekkeer! Tekkeer!" Primrose had exclaimed. "A pore little worm o' the dust hadn't ought 'o talk like that!"

Whereupon Barber had seized his fiddle and ended the conversation by playing the most awful tune he knew, an old and diabolical air named "The Devil's Dream." Primrose had shook his head sadly, and had gone away with his hands clasped tightly before him.

Then Barber began to occupy his time with planning for some way of belittling the minister in the eyes of the people. There was scarcely a motive; it was but the natural product of a small, mean, narrow mind. He was cunning enough to know that anything he did would have to be both strong and subtle for Primrose had been in the Little Rainy Valley six months, and he had made an impression. Barber was sitting under a pine that grew near the chimney of his tumbledown hut when the great idea came to him. His pale blue eyes lighted wickedly, and his thin lips curled into a smile that was not pleasant.

"It'll work!" he told the silence about him.

That night he went over to an isolated place known as Gum Flats, and there fiddled an old moonshiner into the notion of giving him a gallon jug filled with new whiskey. This he watered half and half and placed in two jugs. The two jugs he took, at an hour long past midnight, and hid under the floor of Primrose's cabin. This was to be in the nature of main evidence; that which he did next was more in the way of subtle suggestion.

Early the next morning, he tucked his fiddle under his frayed Prince Albert coat, and went to the home of an influential, fire-and-tow, strangely good and strangely bad mountaineer named Bill Lindsey, a lanky, bearded giant. After he had played his host into a merry humor, he called him to the cabin yard and there buttonholed him in a manner most confidential.

"Bill," he whispered, "don't you say nothin' about this—Bill, did Primrose leave a jug o' licker here for me?"

"A—a jug o' licker!" Bill Lindsey exclaimed, astounded. "Saul Barber, afore goodness, do you know what you're a talkin' about?"

"Shore, shore!" smiled Barber. "Don't say nothin' about it, Bill. Come to think of it, now, maybe it wasn't you he was to leave it with. Maybe it was Sam Dorsett—yes, I believe it was. How pestified forgitful I am a gittin' to be! Don't say nothin' about it, Bill. So long. Jim Potts ketched a thunderin' big possum last night."

He went swaggering down the marigold-bordered path, leaving Lindsey staring with terrible eyes toward a small, lone cabin on the western mountain. He went to the house of Sam Dorset, another influential, fire-and-tow citizen of Little Rainy Valley. Here also he fiddled his host into a splendid humor, and then called him aside.

"Sam," he whispered, "did Primrose leave a jug o' licker here for me, or not?"

"What'n the name o' Jack Robinson are you a talkin' about, Saul Barber?" demanded Dorsett, amazed.

"Well—did he?" whispered Barber. "If he did, say so, Sam—acause I'm as dry as a powder-horn."

"No," said Dorsett, "he didn't."

"Then don't you go and blab it, Sam," requested Barber. "A still tongue makes a wise head. Jim Potts ketched a big 'possum last night. So long."

And another man turned terrible eyes toward a lone cabin on the side of the western mountain.

Now there lived near the head of the valley a big, thickest fellow who was noted for two qualities—his fighting ability, and his joking ability. His name was Berry Lippins. To this man's house went the mischief maker, well pleased with the work he had done. He found Lippins hoeing corn in the little plot back of his cabin.

"Berry," he said slyly, "did Primrose leave a jug o' licker here for me?"

The thickset mountaineer, no doubt, suspected his visitor of having a prank up his sleeve. For a moment he eyed Barber queerly; then he hastened into the house and brought forth a brown jug four fifths full of a concoction consisting of equal parts of new whisky, buckeye juice, and water that had had tobacco leaves steeped in it

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 44.)

"Geneva's Easter Bonnet"

a beautiful Easter love story by Lydia M. Dunham O'Neil will be one of the many interesting features of April COMFORT which will be a bright, cheery, entertaining and instructive number.

"The World Needs Faith"

a practical Easter Sermon, by Uncle Charlie, not doctrinal, not sectarian, but teaches a lesson that we all need to learn and apply in daily life to sustain us in these troublous times when the great nations engaged in the most cruel war seem to have forsaken God and forgotten Christ. It is an up-lifting and inspiring message of hope based on God's promise through Jesus, which Christians of every denomination will find acceptable and strengthening to their faith. Read it in April COMFORT.

"The Calamity Breeders"

by no means so doleful as its name suggests, is a bright and really funny story appropriate to April Fool's Day, and tells in amusing style the ludicrous misadventures that befel a young married couple on a fortnight's tour visiting their relations. There's a laugh in every line for those who read it.

In April COMFORT

Only two more months of our Grand Prize Contest. Enter now for March cash prizes. Get your friends and neighbors to subscribe or renew their subscriptions and help you earn a nice premium and win a good cash prize, too,—perhaps two cash prizes. Read Grand Prize offer elsewhere in this paper. Enter now and win your share of the cash prizes. But LOOK OUT for YOUR OWN SUBSCRIPTION so not to miss April COMFORT.

REMEMBER, THE SUBSCRIPTION PRICE is soon to be RAISED, both for new subscriptions and for renewals.

If the number over your name on the wrapper in which this paper comes is 318, or any less number, you should renew your subscription at once. Send us 30 cents today for two-year renewal, using the coupon below and taking advantage of the old subscribers' special low renewal rate.

New subscribers pay regular subscription rate of 25 cents for 15 months in U. S. and Cuba; 50 cents a year in Canada.

SPECIAL RATE SUBSCRIPTION COUPON FOR RENEWAL OR EXTENSION ONLY

Publisher of COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.
I enclose 30 cents for renewal and extension of my subscription two full years from date of expiration. (75 cents for 2 years in Canada.)

Date ..... Name .....

Postoffice .....

R. F. D. No. ..... Box No. ..... State .....

Street and No. .....

Monthly Lesson in History

By C. B. Irvine

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

MARCH, the month of Mars, was the first month of the old Roman calendar. Until 1752 it was considered the first month of the year in England. Everywhere it is recognized as the stormy or rugged month, and Spenser in the early days well expressed weather conditions when he spoke of it as "sturdy March," and from that day to this the poets have made breezy, uncertain March the target for their arrows. Three of its days were borrowed from April and perhaps it is on that account it is said that if the month comes in like a lion it will go out as a lamb. Having taken its name from the god of war the month never fails to live up to its reputation. The gem stones symbolic of the month are jasper and bloodstone, which stand for courage and wisdom. Quite in contrast the violet is the March flower, and it is the representative of love, faithfulness, modesty and candor. Warlike in name and nature, it is only natural that the month should have played an important part in the lives of some of the world's greatest warriors. For instance, the letter "M" played an important part throughout the life of Napoleon, many of his greatest victories and defeats having occurred on the day, during a month or at a place beginning with that letter. He was married to Josephine in March and his son, the King of Rome, was born in March. Girls born during this month, according to an old superstition, are supposed to be fickle, stormy, quarrelsome chatterboxes.

Notable events of the month have been as follows:

1st.—Anne, Queen of England, died 1679. The first number of the London Spectator appeared, 1711.

2nd.—John Wesley, founder of Methodism, died 1791. Horace Walpole, Earl of Orford, died 1797. Blanchard made his first balloon ascension at Paris, 1784. Louis Philippe, King of the French, left France and sought shelter in England, 1848. Texas Independence day.

3rd.—Nicholas Carew, beheaded 1539.

4th.—Inauguration day. The first session of the U. S. Congress opened, 1789. President George Washington entered upon his second term March 4, 1797, his first term starting with April 30, 1793. March 4 has been inaugural day ever since 1797, except when the 4th fell on Sunday, as it did in 1877, when President Hayes took the oath on the 5th.

5th.—James Duke of Hamilton, Arthur Lord Capell and Henry Earl of Holland, beheaded 1649.

6th.—Battle of the Alamo, 1836. Michael Angelo, born 1474. Battle of Pea Ridge, 1862. Blanchard, the pioneer æronaut, died 1809.

8th—King William III of England, died 1702. President Millard Fillmore, born 1800. Arbor day in New Mexico.

9th.—Joseph Gall, founder of phrenology, born 1757. Napoleon married to Josephine.

10th.—John VI, King of Portugal, died 1826. End of the Mukden battle, 1905.

11th.—Tasso, Italian poet, born 1544. The first British daily journal, the Courant, published in 1702, consisting of a single page of two columns devoted exclusively to foreign news.

12th.—Cæsar Borgia, killed 1508.

13th.—Planet of Uranus discovered by Herschel 1781. President Benjamin Harrison, died 1901.

14th.—Admiral John Byng, shot 1757.

15th.—General Andrew Jackson, born 1767, Julius Cæsar, assassinated, 44 B. C. Arbor day in Oklahoma.

16th.—Nero died, 37 A. D. President James Madison, born 1751.

17th.—St. Patrick, apostle of Ireland, born 372. Early English calendars have it that Noah entered the ark on this day. Siege of Acre, 1799.

18th.—Robert Walpole, died 1745. President Grover Cleveland, born 1837. John C. Calhoun, born 1782. This was also the month of his death.

19th.—Wm. J. Bryan, born 1860.

20th.—Henry IV, King of England, died 1413. Sir Isaac Newton, died 1727.

21st.—Robert Bruce, King of Scotland, born 1274. Bach, music composer, born 1685. Robert Southey, poet, died 1843.

22nd.—Henry de Beauchamp, Earl and last Duke of Warwick, born 1424. Vandyck, painter, born 1599. Rosa Bonheur, artist, born 1822. Goethe, German poet, died 1832.

23rd.—Duchess of Brunswick, sister of George III, died 1813.

24th.—Elizabeth, Queen of England, died 1603. Thorvaldsen, Danish sculptor, died 1844. Longfellow, poet, died 1882.

25th.—Henry, fourth son of Cromwell the Protector, died 1674.

26th.—John Seaward, engineer, died 1858.

27th.—James I, King of England, died 1625. Battle of Vera Cruz, 1847.

28th.—General Sir Ralph Abercrombe, killed in the Battle of Alexandria, 1801.

29th.—Emanuel Swedenborg, died 1772. President John Tyler, born 1790.

30th.—The center one of the three days which, according to the popular notion, were borrowed by March from April.

31st.—Francis Joseph Hadyn, composer, born 1732. Ludwig Beethoven, composer, died 1827. John C. Calhoun, secretary of war under President Monroe, and vice-president for six years, died 1850. This was also his birth month. Charlotte Bronte (Mrs. Nicol), died 1855.

EDITORIAL

THOUGHTS THAT BREATHE AND WORDS THAT BURN

The Snare that Lurks in Our Peace and Arbitration Treaties.

OUR government has been very active in making peace and arbitration treaties, so that we now have such conventions with many of the civilized nations. This course has been pursued for the purpose and in the hope of preventing war by this means.

The most prominent feature these treaties, the one chiefly relied on, is an agreement that in case of a dispute, disagreement or difficulty of such serious nature as to be a possible cause for war between the United States and the other nation which is party to such treaty, neither nation shall begin war until the end of a year's notice in order to give time to settle, cool down or resort to arbitration.

This is beautiful in theory, but what is it likely to to amount to when put to the practical test?

Which, if any, of the great military powers would be deterred by such a "scrap of paper" for a single hour from beginning hostilities, if desirous of fighting us?

We are not prepared for war while certain other nations are, and the danger is that, relying on these peace and arbitration treaties to give us a year's time to get ready after war is threatened, we shall continue our present neglect of our national defenses; that we shall wake from our fool's paradise of fancied security to find ourselves caught defenseless by the tempest of war hurled upon us, not after a year's notice, but suddenly and with no notice at all.

If Germany did not hesitate to violate her neutrality treaty by the invasion of Belgium and justified it on the ground, as she then stated, that it was necessary to her military success, do you think she would feel bound by any treaty to give us a year's notice to arm and prepare in case she deemed war inevitable or desirable? Would any other nation that was better prepared than we sacrifice its advantage by giving us a year's notice of its intention to fight us?

Under the "Tripple Alliance" treaty Germany and Austria relied confidently on having Italy come in and fight on their side, but Italy found it advantageous to turn down the treaty and keep out of the war—wisely, no doubt.

One great lesson of the present war, which we should learn and profit by, is that treaties are kept or broken according as it best serves the interests of the nations when it comes to the pinch of war; that while endeavoring to cultivate peaceful and friendly relations with all nations we should be always prepared to defend our country from attack.

The suspicion and distrust with which the nations of Europe regard each other is sufficiently attested by the innumerable forts which for many years have formed a complete network on both sides of their respective boundaries.

Now look on this side of the Atlantic and view a different spectacle, the result of mutual confidence and trust. Stretching from ocean to ocean four thousand miles across the American continent is the boundary between the United States and Canada without a fort on either side of the line. That is because both parties know that war between Great Britain and the United States, in view of their mutual interests on this continent, is impossible.

Peace and arbitration treaties are needless with such nations as would not make war on us, while they are useless and likely to prove delusive snares if contracted with those that might on occasion wish to smite us with the "mailed fist."

The necessity of strengthening our coast defenses and our army and navy has been the subject of heated discussion in the session of Congress now drawing to a close, and should have the careful attention of our people also.

The Pestilential Fly

IT may seem like forcing the season to begin, thus early, to urge our readers to fight flies—the house-fly and the horse-fly—but it is none too soon to lay out the campaign and commence active operations, offensive and defensive, against these filthy carriers of disease.

Careful and thorough scientific investigation has proved that the fly is one of the most pernicious causes of the spreading of disease. Typhoid fever, dysentery and many other malignant diseases result from the disease germs which the house-fly brings in and deposits on food, dishes and everything on which it lights. The dreaded infantile paralysis is caused by inoculation through the bite of the horse-fly. The prevalence of many of the diseases peculiar to summer and fall is largely due to the fact that flies are numerous at those seasons.

So much has been published—and COMFORT has done its share to enlighten its readers on this subject—that people ought now to be aware of the danger and aroused to the necessity of meeting it by effective measures of prevention.

With the first mild days of early spring the big, lazy flies that have hibernated through the winter will crawl out and buzz around. They are the seed, so to speak, from which will spring the innumerable swarms of the coming summer. Each of these old flies, if permitted to survive, will become the progenitor of many generations which in one season will number millions of descendants of a single insect—so prolific are these pests.

Prepare now and kill the old ones as fast as they appear. Clean up and rid the premises of all garbage and filth before the breeding season begins; for it is in filth and decaying matter that they breed. Abolish the manure pile; it should be spread daily on the land which it is to fertilize, and not be permitted to collect, for it is the favorite breeding place of flies. The earth closet should be made tight and inaccessible to flies. Likewise keep the pig pen clean.

Screen the house and stable, too, so to keep out as many flies as possible; and within make liberal use of sticky fly paper all through the season to catch such as get inside despite window screens and screen doors. And right here is needed a word of caution against the danger of fly poison. Don't use poisonous fly paper.

The use of fly poisons causes the death of a surprisingly large number of children from one to six years old each season. The December issue of the Journal of the Michigan State Medical Society is strong in its denunciation of poisonous fly paper and other fly poisons. Among other things it says that although the reports covered only a few states, forty-five cases of poisoning of children from the use of fly poisons were reported between the first of July and the fifteenth of October. It also remarks that the symptoms are so similar to those of cholera infantum as likely to be mistaken for the latter, even by an experienced physician, and that "how many children have been poisoned from these fly poisons and the deaths ascribed to cholera infantum can never be known." Fly poison certainly "should not be used in any home where there are children or where children may visit."

"There are as efficient and more sanitary ways of catching and killing flies." There is no poison in the sticky fly paper, and it is safe and effective.

Labor Union Votes to Stand by the Liquor Interests

WHEN a labor union, which claims to exist for the uplift of humanity in general and the promotion of the welfare of its members in particular, as an organization pledges its active support to the liquor interests in opposing the movement to suppress the evils of intemperance it forfeits the sympathy, confidence and respect of the community.

Yet, incredible as it may seem, we have before us the sorry spectacle of the recent action of the Boston Central Labor Union in adopting a resolution which calls on organized labor to oppose the passage of the Hobson-Sheppard bill for nation-wide prohibition of the liquor traffic. This Central Labor Union, which represents the centralized authority of, and speaks for the federated labor organizations of Boston, bases its action in this matter squarely on the ground that the abolition of the distilleries, breweries and saloons would throw a large number of laborers out of employment. And that insidious argument is the bait by which the whiskey trust, the brewery combine and the grog shop interests have caught this labor organization and are trying to enlist the support of others throughout the country.

It is the most cruelly selfish appeal that was ever made, besides being absolutely fallacious, as will appear on close scrutiny.

I fear no contradiction in asserting that no man has a moral right to make the destruction of other men his means of subsistence. Must we then, as a people, forever submit to all the poverty, misery, disease, crime and loss of life that intoxicating liquor causes in order to enrich a few men and furnish employment to some others?

As a purely economic proposition, ignoring the moral aspect, it would be far cheaper for the nation to support these men in idleness at double their present profits or wages than to have them employed in the manufacture and sale of this destructive product for which the people of this country pay one billion and seven hundred and twenty-four million dollars a year to say nothing of the incalculable millions of loss and damage they suffer by drinking it. But the abolition of the liquor business involves no problem of idle capital or unemployment of labor.

Although the aggregate sum which the people pay for the product is enormous the liquor industry employs comparatively few men. And the greater part of this stupendous sum, that goes each year for liquor, is paid by laboring men who are complaining of low wages and the high cost of living, and their wives and children have to suffer needless privation of food, clothing and other comforts in consequence of the men mis-spending their wages for drink, not to mention the detrimental effect on their earning capacity.

Banish liquor from the nation and these one thousand seven hundred and twenty-four millions of dollars wasted and worse than wasted each year for intoxicating drink would be expended for more and better food, clothing and other comforts and luxuries, including amusements and better homes. To supply this immensely increased demand for provisions and goods of all kinds would require the building of thousands of new factories and give employment to millions of laborers more than are now employed, which would easily absorb all labor and capital now in the liquor business. It would do away with the employment question, help to solve the wage question and to a large extent obviate the necessity of child labor. We should soon be the busiest, healthiest, happiest and most prosperous people on earth, and better than the world has ever seen.

A million is said to be beyond the comprehension of the human mind; a billion, which is a thousand millions, conveys no idea except a vague impression immensity. So to transform the prodigious figures of the annual liquor bill of the American people into thinkable terms let us see what this money would buy if expended for other purposes. If applied to the national debt of the United States it would lift the government out of debt and leave a surplus of more than five hundred millions in the treasury. All the gold and silver produced by all the mines in the world in a year would fall more than a thousand million dollars short of paying our annual drink bill, which is nearly a billion dollars more than the earnings of all our railroads. Each year the money we squander on liquor would build a million comfortable cottages for homeless families, or it would decently house and provide for all our poor and aged. Wonderful are the things that could be done for the health, comfort, happiness and prosperity of the people if the money they spend for liquor could be diverted to useful, constructive purposes.

What, however, the drink bill does actually do, we alas, already know. It crowds the poorhouses, hospitals, insane asylums, prisons and graveyards. There is scarcely a home in the land that is not blighted with its curse directly or indirectly.

May we not ask you, our readers, in this year of 1915, to do your utmost to fight the liquor traffic? The Grange is very generally in favor of prohibition in the interest of temperance and morality, and organized labor should stand solidly and resolutely for nation-wide prohibition. The effect of the use of liquor is bad enough with the rich but it is destruction to the laboring man.

Such as are slaves to the drink habit should make practical application of the prayer "lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil" by supporting the movement to banish intoxicating liquor from the entire country. And those who favor the liquor interests for the sake of profiting by the traffic in the vile poison that kills their brothers must expect to share the curse of Cain when, like the first murderer, they say by their acts, if not in words, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?"

COMFORT'S EDITOR.

The Emporium of Bargains and Opportunities

Pithy Little Advertisements that are Interesting, Instructive and Profitable to Read, for they put you wise to the newest and best in the market and keep you in touch with the world's progress.

AGENTS WANTED

Agents $6 to $12 A Day Easy. 250 light weight, fast selling, popular priced necessities, food flavors, perfumes, soaps, toilet preparations etc. Agents outfit free. Write today—quick—now. E. M. Feltman, Sales Mgr., 634 Third St., Cincinnati, O.

Photo Pillow Tops, Portraits, Frames, Sheet Pictures, Photo Plates, Pennants, Paper Mache Frames. Rejects credited. Prompt shipments; samples & cat. free to agents. 30 days credit. Jas. C. Bailey Co., Desk X4, Chicago, Ill.

Agents. Sell rich looking 36x68 imported Rugs, $1 each; Carter, Tenn., sold 115 in 4 days, profit $57; you can do same. Write for sample offer selling plan; exclusive territory. Sample rug by parcel post prepaid 98c. E. Condon, Importer, Stonington, Maine.

Now Is The Time To Sell guaranteed hosiery, underwear and sweaters. Biggest money making proposition ever offered. Something entirely new. Complete sample line free. Madison Mills, 588 Broadway, New York City.

400% Profit—Evergrip Gliders. Samples free. Anyone can attach. Costs 3c. sells 15c. Homes buy dozens, hotels hundreds. Save floors, carpets. S. Mfg. Co., 41 Y. Warren St., N. Y.

Agents Wanted—To advertise our goods by distributing free sample to consumer. 90 cents an hour. Write for full particulars. The Favori Company, 1019 West St., Dayton, O.

Agents wanted to sell our granite and marble monuments and headstones. Good commissions. First class work. Write for terms. Moore Monument Co., Sterling, Ill.

Agents—200% profit. Wonderful little article. Sells like wildfire. Can be carried in pocket. Write at once for free sample. H. Matthews, 1919 Third St., Dayton, Ohio.

Agents—Something New—Fastest Sellers & quickest repeaters on earth. Permanent, profitable business. Good for $50 to $75 a week. Address, American Products Co., 632 Third St., Cincinnati, O.

Make $21 Next Saturday. Brand new proposition, patented last January. Amazing invention, compressed air washing machine, weighs but 2 pounds; excels work of high-priced machines. Customers excited; agents coining money. A sale at every house. Price only $1.50; 200% profit. Cleans tub of clothes in 3 minutes; works like magic. F. Hughes made $21 first 8 hours. Investigate. Write now. Wendell Co., 671 Oak St., Leipsic, O.

Start a Mail-Order Business at Home. I did. Took in $124,594.63 last year. Free particulars tell how I'll start you. Address, Robinson, 209 Woodruff, Toledo, O.

Agents—Earn $30 to $50 Every Week selling the New Improved Monitor Self-Heating Flat Iron. Positively the lowest priced and fastest selling iron made. Over 650,000 already sold. Evans, N. Car., sold two dozen on Sat. Mrs. Nixon, Vt. sold eight first day. Every housewife wants one. Every Iron guaranteed. New terms. Exclusive territory. Sample free to workers. Write today. The Monitor Sad Iron Co., 675 Wayne St., Big Prairie, Ohio.

$1000 Per Man Per County—Strange invention startles world—Agents amazed. Ten inexperienced men divide $40,000. Korstad, a farmer, did $2,200 in 14 days. Schleicher, a minister, $195 first 12 hours. $1200 cold cash, made, paid, banked by Stoneman in 30 days; $15,000 to date. A hot or cold running water bath equipment for any home at only $6.50. Self-heating. No plumbing or waterworks required. Investigate. Exclusive sale. Credit given. Send no money. Write letter or postal today. Allen Mfg. Co., 4017 Allen Bldg., Toledo, O.

Wanted: Men and women to introduce our fine line of popular priced Coffees, Teas, Baking Powder, Etc. Valuable and useful premiums free. No experience or money necessary. Exclusive territory; No traveling. We pay well for your services. Employment permanent. Write for our proposition. The Gt. Eastern Coffee & Tea Co., Department 52, St. Louis, Mo.

You can sell our Raincoats. Anyone will buy. We give you one. Outfit free. Temple Raincoat Co., Box 189, Templeton, Mass.

$6.00 to $14 Per Day made with our ironing and fluting machine. We pay $75 a month and expenses; or commission. Pease Mfg. Co., Dept. L, Cincinnati, Ohio.

$61.50 Weekly. Introducing and selling a new gas light burner for kerosene lamps. No chimney. No mantle. Samples free. Luther Manufacturing Co., Dept. 453, Cincinnati, Ohio.

We start you in business, furnishing everything; men and women, $30 to $200 weekly operating our "New System Candy Factories." Book free. William Ragsdale, East Orange, N. J.

Local Representative Wanted: $25 to $35 a week permanent income to lady of good personality to represent us, locally and demonstrate our Face Creams, Toilet Waters, Powders, Perfumes and other Toilet preparations. Articles are of very highest quality and every sale brings repeat orders. No experience necessary but must have good character and good appearance. The Thompson Company, St. Louis, Mo.

Remnant Store, 1510 G-Vine, Cincinnati, O. Greatest Dry Goods bargains on earth. Agents wanted for New, Profitable Business.

Agents. Stop until you get our catalogue! We have a great proposition for men and women agents. Write today. T. H. Snyder Co., 12 E. Third St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Ladies! Remember those waists, skirts, gloves, laces, etc., you want to clean for Spring wear? Send 25c for box of Spotatone—superior cleaning material just put on market. Results will surprise and delight you. Agents wanted. Central Chemical Co., 2602 Dorcas St., Omaha, Nebraska.

Agents to sell the Original Native Herbs. $1 box 225 tablets for 60c. For sample and terms address G. W. Bassett, Dept. 301, Columbus, O.

$15 Week salary and commission paid one person each town selling non-alcoholic flavorings. Linton Co., Kansas City, Mo.

Agents make $10 a day selling rugs at $1 each, cost agents 55c. Size 36 x 68. Sell from one to six at every house. Something every housewife wants. Full size rug for sample, 98 cents by parcel post. Commerce Specialty Co., Commerce, Tex.

Billy Sunday's Message Authorized. Great Opportunity for man or woman to make $6.00 to $15.00 a day. Unusually liberal terms. Spare time may be used. Particulars and samples free. Universal Bible House, 436 Winston Bldg., Philadelphia.

AGENTS WANTED

Agents—Pair Silk Hose Free. State size & color. Beautiful line direct from mill. Good profits. Agents wanted. Write today. Triplewear Mills, Dept. G, 112 So. 13th St., Phila., Pa.

Man To Give Away Premiums advertising Rogers' 20-year Silverware. $2.50 daily. A. A. Cline, 22 Copeland Bldg., Philadelphia.

Agents, Biggest line, Biggest profit. Extracts, Perfumes, Spices, Jelly Powders. Premiums for your customers. Western Laboratories, 2000 Van Buren St., Chicago.

Wanted—Agents: Complete samples of Paints and Specialties sent free. We need good live hustlers. Nothing invested by you. Sun Paint & Varnish Company, Cleveland, O.

$10 A Day Profit. Manufacture "Barley Crisp." New confection. Five cent package cost one cent to make. Machine and instructions, prepaid $7.50. Send ten cents for samples. Barley Crisp Co., 1202 Broadway, San Francisco.

Agent Make Big Profits. Steady income. Every housewife, auto owner, storekeeper needs Easy Shine. Wonderful polish for gold, brass, silver, mirrors, etc. Send 25c for sample. Money back if wanted. Easy Shine Co., Dayton, Ky.

Steady Sure Income from easy pleasant work, all or spare time, Either sex, anywhere. No money or experience required. We show you how. 30 days credit and free samples. Everybody wants our goods, cannot get them in stores and will gladly buy from you. Write us. McCormick Co., 1735 Wells St., Chicago.

Man Or Woman of good character in each town to distribute free goods as advertising; experience unnecessary; references required; $15 a week to start. Address Hudson, King & Co., Dept. A, 9 South Clinton St., Chicago.

Big Textile Mills will employ everywhere reliable people to take orders for dress fabrics, hosiery, underwear and neckwear from samples. Factory prices. Spare or all time. No experience. Permanent. Many making over $30.00 weekly. Steadfast Mills, 34 Remsen St., Cohoes, N. Y.

Agents are coining money selling our Big 10c Packages of 20 Assorted Postal Cards. "5000 Varieties." "Big Profits." Sell everywhere. Sample Pkg. 10c. Particulars Free. Sullivan Card Co., 1234 Van Buren St., Chicago.

Portraits, Frames and Agents Supplies, A first class business all your own; your goods direct from the manufacturer insures large profits. Catalogue and particulars on request. D. E. Abbott & Co., Huntington, W. Va.

Guaranteed Hosiery Manufacturer wants man or woman to establish permanent distributing route. No capital or experience needed. Liberal inducements for all or part time. G. Parker Mills, 2733 N. 12th St., Phila., Pa.

Do You Want Money. Sell Brandun Hosiery. Sales often $5 an hour. Liberal commissions. Actual mill not an agency supply house. Our six-pairs-for-$1 stockings are famous. Apply today. Particulars free. If in hurry to begin, send $2 for large sample line, carrying case, etc.—deposit refunded, when you sell $25 worth. Brandun Hosiery Mills, 3724 Filbert Street, Philadelphia.

Agents sell "Kant Leak" Rain Coats—$5.00 kind for $3.98. Cooper cleared $60 in 5 days. We deliver direct to customer. Write for terms and Free Samples. Comer Mfg. Co., 25 Broad St., Dayton, O.

Agents write quick for big Free sample case proposition,—Meximol Toilet Accessories, Resurrection Plants, Arizona Diamonds, etc. New line; exclusive territory; no competition. Big chance for hustlers. Lester Company, Box BY, Mesilla Park, N. M.

Housewives—Make money at home by selling a universal household necessity in your neighborhood. Write today for free sample and our offer to agts. Crescent Baking Powder Co., 1206 Liberty Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Agents 100% profit. New invention; Selling like wildfire. Every farmer and household needs several. Write. Logan Mfg. Co., 2311C Lyndale, Chicago.

Agents—New Mighty Money-Making marvel. World Startled. New marvelous clothes washing crystal. Clothes washing ideas revolutionized, positively abolishes rubbing, washboards, washing machines; women astounded; wild over it, absolutely harmless; $1,000 guarantee goes with it; make $50 to $100 weekly. Marshall of Pa. amazed. Telegraphs "Rush 5,000 packages." Exclusive territory; no experience necessary; credit granted; own a business; supply customers; pocket big profits; nature's mighty elements do work. Hurry! Write today—get overwhelming proof, all free. Equitable Corporation, Dept. 251, 215 W. Superior, Chicago.

SALESMEN WANTED

Wanted. Hustlers to take orders for made-to-measure high grade men's tailored suits from $9.00 to $22.00. Elegant large book outfit free. Experience unnecessary. No pocket folder affair. Splendid opportunity. Handy Dandy Line, Dept. H, Sangamon St., Chicago.

Traveling Salesmen Wanted—Experience unnecessary. Earn big pay while you learn by mail during spare time, only eight week's time required, one or two hours a day. Steady position, easy work, hundreds of good positions to select from. Write today for free book, "A Knight of the Grip," containing full particulars and testimonials from hundreds of students we have recently placed in good positions and who are earning $100 to $500 per month. Address Department B-28, National Salesmen Training Association, Chicago, New York, Kansas City, San Francisco.

FEMALE AGENTS WANTED

Women Make Money Introducing Priscilla Fabrics, Hosiery, Raincoats, etc. All or spare time. Samples free. Get particulars. Fitzcharles Co., Dept. 65, Trenton, N. J.

Wanted: Lady Agents in every town to sell Dress Goods on commission. Samples free. Imperial Dress Goods Co., Box 2, Hoboken, N. J.

Women:—Have Your Own Bank Account by selling sanitary garments for Women, Children & Babies, in your home Towns, on capital of 65c. Free catalogue tells how. Nova Mfg. Co., Rochester, N. Y.

Make $35 Weekly Selling Sanitary Aprons, Stork Pants, Bolero Shields. Sample Free. Climax Co., 710 Walton Ave., St. Louis.

MONEY LOANED

6% Money. Loans for any purpose on acceptable Real Estate; liberal privileges. A. C. Agency Company, 758 Gas, Electric Bldg., Denver, Colo., 446 Pierce Bldg., St. Louis.

REAL ESTATE

Profitable Little Farms In Valley Of Virginia, 5 and 10 acre tracts, $250 and up. Good fruit and farming country. Send for literature now. F. LaBaume, Agrl. Agt., N. & W. Ry., 269 Arcade Bldg., Roanoke, Va.

Farms Wanted. Have direct buyers. Don't pay commissions. Write describing property, naming price. We help buyers locate desirable property Free. American Investment Assn., 77 Palace Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.

Money-Making Farms thruout 14 states; one acre to 1,000 acres, $500 to $50,000, many with livestock, tools and crops included. Big illustrated catalogue free. E. A. Strout Farm Agency, Station 3027, 47 W. 34th St., New York.

Profit Making Farmlands in best districts of South, growing greatest variety of crops, giving best home locations. Shall we give you information? M. V. Richards, Ind. & Agri. Commissioner, Room 19, Southern Railway, Washington, D. C.

Fertile Farms near Phila., fruit, poultry, truck, dairy; mild climate, excellent markets; catalog. W. Stevens, Perkasie, Pa.

HOME CANNERS

Home Canners—All sizes. Used by U. S. Government Schools, Girls' Club Collaborators and Farmers everywhere. For Catalog and Special Offer, write Royal Home Canner Co., Dept. Q, Albion, Illinois.

PHOTO FINISHING

Send A Roll of your film and 10 cents. We'll develop and send you prints as sample. Photomakers Shop, Bellefonte, Pa.

Kodak Films Developed, 10c. per roll, any size. Prompt attention given mail orders. Prints 2¼x3¼ to 3¼x4¼ 3c.; 4x5 to 3¼x5½, 4c. J. M. Manning, 1062 Third Ave., New York City. Box S.

Any Film developed for 10c. Any pack 20c. 2 1-2x4 1-4 and smaller prints 2 1-2c each. 3 1-2x3 1-2 and 3 1-4x4 1-4 3c each, 3 1-4x5 1-2 and 4x5 4c each. Send for complete price list and bargain list in supplies. The Coster Photo Supply Co., 19 E. 8th St., Holland, Mich.

CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS

Chiropractic Doctors make large incomes; our graduates earn $3000 to $6000 yearly; be independent; work for yourself; this big paying profession easily learned by correspondence; special rates now; illustrated book free. American University, Dept. 237, 162 No. Dearborn St., Chicago.

Optometry—means money to you. New, uncrowded profession—the art of fitting glasses. Our "Home Study" method will quickly and thoroughly prepare you for practice. Diploma granted. Liberal payment plans. Catalog free. Chicago School of Refraction, Office, 501 Journal Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

BOOKS

Herb Doctor Recipe Book and Herb Catalog 10c. Reveals rare Indian herb secrets. Ind. Herb Gardens, Box 5X, Hammond, Ind.

Cousins! The book "Workers in American History," fine cloth, recommended by Uncle Charlie in Feb. Comfort, mailed for $1.00. Reliance Book Concern, New Castle, Pa.

HELP WANTED

Wanted—Men prepare as Firemen, Brakemen, electric motormen, train porters (colored). Hundreds put to work—$65 to $150 a month. No experience necessary. 500 more wanted. Enclose stamp for application blank and book. State position. I. Railway C. I., Dept. C, Indianapolis, Ind.

Investigators Work In Every County in the United States. Be One. $15 to $75 per week to start. Write, Fidelity Secret Service, Desk 177, Wheeling, West Va.

$25 Weekly collecting all kinds names and addresses. No canvassing. Send stamp. Superba Co., A., Baltimore, Md.

Wanted—Men-Women—Government Jobs. $70 month. Write for list of positions open. Franklin Institute, Dep't. R 12, Rochester, N. Y.

Make $10 to $75 Weekly growing mushrooms in cellars, sheds, etc. Booklet free. North Shore Mushroom Farm, Hubbard Woods, Ill.

MOTION PICTURE PLAYS

Write Moving Picture Plays. $50 each. Constant demand. Devote all or spare time. Correspondence course not required. Details free. Atlas Pub. Co., 326, Cincinnati, O.

$50 to $100 Weekly Writing Moving picture plays. Free book, valuable information and special prize offer. Chicago Photoplaywright College, Box 278 T. Y. Chicago.

We Accept Mss. In Any Form; Criticise Free; Sell on commission. Quick sales; Big Prices. Don't waste money on instructions. Write us. Story Rev. Co., Box 54, Smethport, Pa.

Make More Money Writing Photoplays. Learn How. Thousands of dollars yearly to photoplaywrights; over 40 studios buy scripts. This book "Wanted More Photoplays" Free. Write for it. Photoplaywrights' Ass'n of America, 1017 P, Hartford Building, Chicago.

MALE HELP WANTED

Government Farmers Wanted—Age 21 to 50. $75 to $125 monthly. Ozment, 8-F St. Louis.

I Conducted Government Examinations—can help you secure Railway Mail or other Government Positions. Trial examination free. Ozment, 8-R, St. Louis.

Be a Detective—Earn $150 to $300 monthly. Easy work; travel; we show you. Write Wagner, 1243 Lexington Ave., New York. Dept. 372.

Gov't Wants Clerks. $70 month. Spring exams. everywhere. Sample questions free. Franklin Institute, Dep't. R-9, Rochester, N. Y.

A Money Proposition—Co-operate with me in a profit-sharing mail order business. Will place trial advertisement, furnish printed matter, goods to fill orders and divide the profits. Particulars Desk 152, Hazen A. Horton, Tekonsha, Michigan.

$80 Monthly and expenses, travel, distribute samples, take orders, appoint agents; permanent. Jap American Co., Ogden & Taylor, Chicago.

POULTRY

Poultry Paper, 44-124 page periodical, up to date, tells all you want to know about care and management of poultry, for pleasure or profit; four months for 10 cents. Poultry Advocate, Dept. 112, Syracuse, N. Y.

Gibson White Leghorns, R. I. Reds, Barred Rocks, White Wyandots are properly bred. They lay and pay. Baby Chicks, Strong, livable, safe delivery guaranteed. Eggs for Hatching, guaranteed highly fertile, give large hatches. Breeding Stock, large size, vigorous, healthy. Write for free catalog—Today. G. F. Gibson, Galen Farms, Drawer D, Clyde, N. Y.

Poultry Raisers Succeed with Mandy Lee Incubators, Lee's Lice Killer, Germozone, and Lee's Egg Maker. Sold by dealers or direct. Send for Catalogs and Lee's Poultry Book. Free. Geo. H. Lee Co., Mfrs., Dept. 41, Omaha, Nebr.

60 Breeds Poultry, Ducks, Geese, and Hares. Stock and eggs. 60 page catalogue free. H. A. Souder, Box 4, Sellersville, Pa.

Poultry, Ducks, Geese, Turkeys, Pigeons, and Dogs. Send 10 cents for book (fowls in color) tells how to make money with Poultry. Largest producers of poultry in the world. United Poultry Farms, Box 60, Hope, Ind.

Bred-to-lay Wh. Leghorns; Eggs, Chix, Stock. Our customers hatch 90% of eggs, raise 95% of chix, get 50% egg yield in Nov., Dec., Jan.; 190 eggs per hen in 11 mo. Catalog Free. Keystone Poultry Farm, R 4, New Milford, Pa.

Extensive catalog free. Varieties fine poultry, turkeys, geese, ducks, guineas, bantams, hares, dogs, pigeons, eggs, stock. Reasonable. Pioneer Farm, Telford, Pa.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

We Pay 25c cash each for farmers' names. Any number taken. Send dime for contract. T-Sun, LeRoy, Michigan.

Wanted—Names and addresses. All kinds. We pay 25c each. Send dime for contract. Directory Co., 9460 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago.

Free—6 Months—Investing for Profit, a monthly Guide to Money-Making. Tells how $100 grows to $3,200—how to get rich quickly and honestly. H. L. Barber, Pub., 470, 26 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago.

Big Profits in Home Gardens. Plant Ginseng and Golden Seal. Small plot brings more money than many farms. Booklet telling how. Rising Sun Ginseng Nursery, Box 310, Narrows, Ky.

Make Money gathering all kinds Medicinal Roots, Barks, Herbs etc. Write for circular. Grund Co., Logan Sta., Philadelphia, Pa.

ENTERTAINMENTS

Plays, Dialogues, Speakers and Entertainments. Catalogues Free. Address Dept. A. Ames Publishing Co., Clyde, Ohio.

HOW TO GET PATENTS

Patents Secured Or Fee Returned. Send sketch for free search and report. Latest and most complete patent book ever published for free distribution. George P. Kimmel, 232 Barrister Bldg., Washington, D. C.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Guaranteed Watch Or Gold Plated bracelet free to boys and girls for placing sample packet seeds with friends. P. People's Co., B-78, York Haven, Pa.

POST CARDS

Send Ten Cents for 20 Assorted High Grade Post Cards; One Flag Rug Free. Nichols Specialty Co., Whitehall, N. Y.

Set Beautiful Chicago Postals Ten Cents. E. P. Dan, 6109 Dorchester Ave., Chicago, Ill.

15 High Grade Gold Embossed, Easter Post Cards 10c. 100, 30c. 50 Visiting Cards, 20c. Agents Wanted. Pearl Co., Clintonville, Conn.

FEMALE HELP WANTED

Ladies send stamped envelope for particulars, testimonials and prices we pay to others working for us. Many have been with us for years. Pay sent weekly. No canvassing. Address Universal Co., Dept. 5, Phila., Pa.

Ladies; We pay good wages to women working for us. No canvassing. Send stamped-addressed envelope for particulars. Eureka Co., Dept. 45, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Wanted. Tea aprons by dozens. Will pay all you can make. Send 15 cents for pattern and prices. Kenwood, 442 E. 61st St., Chicago, Ill.

$2.50 Per Day Salary Paid One Lady in each town to distribute free circulars and take orders for concentrated flavoring in tubes. Permanent position. J. S. Ziegler Co., 7D East Harrison, Chicago.

Lady Agents—Daley pays big cash commission for spare time. Sample and premium list free. Daley Mfg. Co., St. Louis, Mo.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Will pay reliable Woman $250.00 for distributing 2000 Free packages Perfumed Soap Powder in your town. No money required. A. Ward & Co., 218 Institute Pl., Chicago.

Cash. I pay cash for butterflies, insects. Summer work. Men, Women. Instruction Book. Send Stamp. Sinclair, D 30, Los Angeles, Cal.

Make Your Own Toilet Creams, Etc. Save money or sell to others. Big profit. Send me $1 (stamps O. K.) I will send you formulas (6; for making Tooth Paste, Cold Cream, Face Powder, Hair Tonic, Hand Lotion, Peroxide Cream, or any other you name. Don't write for Particulars, they're all here. E. W. Thralls, Valparaiso, Ind.

Save Money. Buy Gloves made in the U. S. A. direct from manufacturer at factory prices. Write for catalog. Cummings Glove Co., 5 Forest St., Gloversville, N. Y.

PATENT ATTORNEYS

Patents Secured Through Credit System. Send sketch, search free. Booklet free. John Louis Waters & Co., Washington, D. C.

Ideas Wanted—Manufacturers are writing for patents procured through me. Three books with list 200 inventions wanted sent free. Advice Free. I get patent or no fee. R. B. Owen, 18 Owen Bldg., Washington, D. C.

FARM LANDS

Free Government Land for farmers in prosperous Colorado. Where it is, how to get it. Write for official information immediately. Immigration Dept., 1515 Tremont, Denver, Colo.

Productive lands, crop payment or easy terms—along the Northern Pacific Ry., in Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon. Free literature. Say what state interests you. L. J. Bricker, 22 Northern Pac. Ry., St. Paul, Minn.

EGGS FOR SALE

Make Poultry Pay Big—Raise W. Orpingtons, world's most profitable breed. $1 for setting. Stone's Orp. Farm, Pine Grove, W. Va.

Buff and White Orpingtons. Winners at leading shows. Eggs for sale. Send two-cent stamp for circular telling how settings may be had free. A. J. Streett, Forest Hill, Maryland.

SCHOOLS

Telegraphy—Wire & Wireless & Station Agency Taught. Largest School. Catalog Free. Dodge's Institute, L St., Valparaiso, Ind.

FOR PHOTOGRAPHERS

Have You A Camera? Write For Samples of my magazines, American Photography and Popular Photography, which tell you how to make better pictures and earn money. F. R. Fraprie, 674 Pope Bldg., Boston, Mass.

WEDDING INDITATIONS AND CALLING CARDS

Wedding Invitations or Announcements. Exquisite and cheapest in market. 100 calling cards, with case 50c. Write for samples. Franklin Art Co., Little Falls, N. Y.

BY PARCEL POST

Ky. Tobacco—Old and sweet; natural leaf; guaranteed best chewing and smoking. 30c a pound, postpaid. J. L. Workman, Mayfield, Ky.

Fast Black Mercerized Sateens & Percalines. Mfg. Prices. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Send for samples. Economy Lining House, Clifton, N. J.

MOVING PICTURE BUSINESS

Earn $35 to $50 Profit Nightly. Small Capital starts you. No experience needed. We teach you and furnish everything. Capital Mdse. Co., 255 Monon Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

COINS AND STAMPS BOUGHT

$50. paid for Half Dol. 1853 no arrows; $5. for 1878 Half S. Mint; $100 for 1894 Dime S. Mint. Many valuable coins circulating. Send 4c. Get our Illus. Coin Circular. Send now. Numismatic Bank, Dept. 6, Fort Worth, Tex.

$4.25 Each Paid for U. S. Eagle Cents dated 1856. Keep all money dated before 1896, and send 10c at once for New Illu'td Coin Value Book, 4x7. It may mean a fortune. Clarke & Co., Coin Dealers, Box 20, LeRoy, N. Y.

I pay from $1 to $1500 for thousands of rare Coins, Books, Paper Money, Stamps to 1901. Certain Mint Marks bring over $100. Get Posted quickly. Ill. Circular for 2 stamps. Vonbergen, (Est. 1885) Dept. (9), Boston, Mass.

Buffalo Nickels—High Prices Paid for them and Lincoln pennies, certain kinds. Highest prices paid for old coins. Send 10c for coin catalog and particulars. Means $ to you. Jones, Coin Dealer, Dept. 90, Newton, Ill.

POST CARD CLUBS

Receive Post Cards from everywhere. Membership in best club 10c. H. J. Teeple, Box M, Decatur, Indiana.

GAMES AND AMUSEMENTS

Be A Handcuff King. Simple—mystifying. Escape from Boxes, Ropes, Etc. 20 Sensational Escapes $1.00. Particulars Free. Magicraft, Box 251, Detroit, Mich.

STORY WRITERS WANTED

Poets—Authors! Good Money Writing Short stories, poems and other articles. Nat'l Literary and Pub's' Bureau, C4, Hannibal, Mo.

MISCELLANEOUS

Dainty Hand Colored Views 35c. Send 25c for sample and learn how to get others free. F. A. Baker, Framingham, Mass.

Earn $300 Piano. Easy work, anyone anywhere can do it. You pay nothing. Write for particulars. Box 94, McIntosh, Minn.

Send Us Your Photograph we will reproduce it on 50 correspondence cards for $3.00 or 100 for $4.00. Sample free. The National Engravers, 40 West 33rd St., New York.

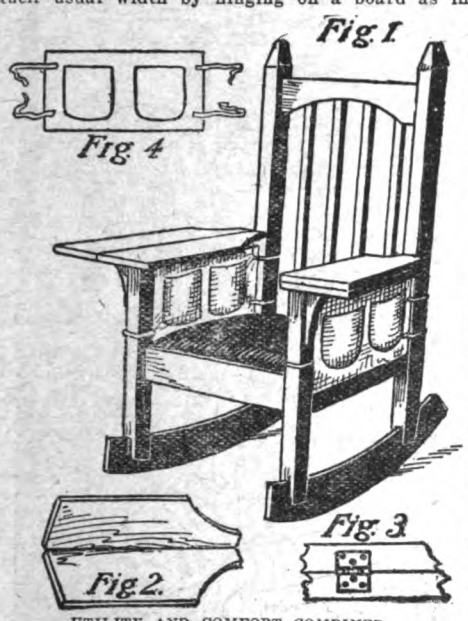
MUSIC AND SONG WRITERS

Song Writers "Key to Success" Free! We compose and facilitate free publication or sale. Submit Poems. Knickerbocker Studios, 522 Gaiety Bldg., New York.

MOTION PICTURE ACTING

Wanted For Motion Picture Acting People of all characters. New companies now forming. Opportunity for amateurs. Send stamp for full particulars. Eastern Booking Offices, Dept. A, Cambridge, Mass.

HEIRS WANTED



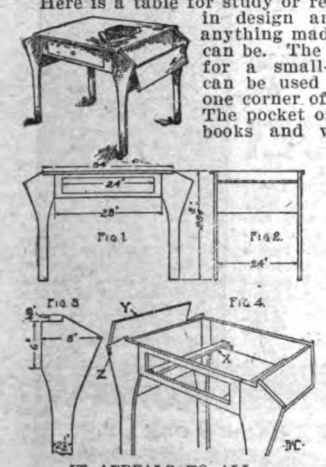
Thousands of families are wanted to claim fortunes. Many now living in poverty are rich, but don't know it. Our 400-page index, entitled "Missing Heirs and Next of Kin," alphabetically arranged, contains authentic list of unclaimed estates and heirs wanted and advertised for in America and abroad to claim fortunes. Also contains Chancery Court of England and Ireland lists, and Bank of England unclaimed dividend list. Thousands of names in book. Yours or your ancestors' names may be among them. Send 2c stamp at once for free booklet. International Claim Agency, 2, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Household Conveniences that Make Home Attractive and Comfortable

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

A Chair Plan

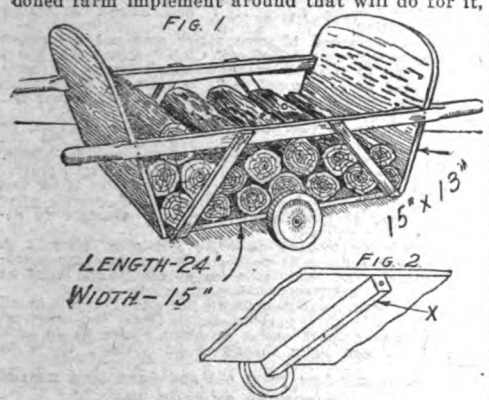
Here is a plan by means of which a chair may be made more serviceable for the use of an invalid or for grandma. The arms are made twice their usual width by hinging on a board as in



UTILITY AND COMFORT COMBINED.

Fig. 2 and Fig. 3. Upon arms nearly a foot wide a lunch may be served or cutting and sewing may be done. The cloth pockets, as in Fig. 4 should be neatly and strongly made. They are just the place for the sewing things or books, used by an invalid. If you had a chair like the picture and used it for your weekly mending I think you would value it highly.

Reading Table



Here is a table for study or reading. It is new in design and as simple as anything made of plain boards can be. The table is desirable for a small-sized library or can be used to advantage in one corner of the dining-room. The pocket on each end is for books and will hold a surprising number if they are stood upright. The plan of making the table is clearly shown in the smaller sectional sketches. A little determination is all the amateur needs and without that quality nothing can be accomplished. Keep the things in this issue that interest you on hand, for you may never have so many good suggestions come your way again.

IT APPEALS TO ALL.

A Wood Box

A wood carrier made after the plan shown here is a very handy article around the country home. It can be pushed along conveniently by one person and can be carried by two. No doubt you can find a pair of wheels from some abandoned farm implement around that will do for it, but if you cannot wooden discs with holes through the center will do. Fig. 2 shows how to fasten them on. The spike or bolt fits loosely in the center hole of the wheel but is tightly imbedded in the cleat marked "X." The body of the cart should be substantially made.

IT WILL HOLD MANY ARMFULS.

Mouse Trap

Try this trap for ridding the house of mice. A tomato can with one open end is first fitted into a wooden frame, then a shingle is whittled

FIG. 1.

CURIOSITY WILL BE SATISFIED.

to the shape shown and pivoted on. In the picture "Y" is the shingle and "P" is one of the nails driven straight in, which act as a hinge or pivot. "X" is a rubber band which pulls the door shut, when the bait is tampered with. In Fig. 2 "b" is the small end of the shingle, the curved line is the top of the can, "a" is a wire, bent as shown, "c" is the bait. When the mouse touches the bait, the wire is moved and "b" the narrow end of the door slips out. The tension of the rubber pulls it speedily and the mouse is a captive.

Indoor Playhouse

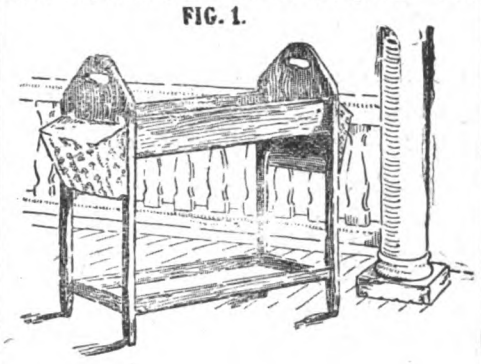
Wherever there are children, they must be amused and not the least of the mother's work is providing this amusement. Many a fond parent has actually prayed for some means of keeping the tots indoors and at the same time rendering them happy and contented. The picture shows a playhouse, made of painted canvas, set up in the corner of the living-room. The bench inside may be specially built or two common benches or chairs may be used. Any woman can make this house out of light strips of pine framed together and covered with canvas either painted or covered with wall paper pasted over the canvas. It may be decorated to resemble a brick house or a wooden one or anything you like. The playhouse may be set up or taken down in a minute and will add peace to your life and zest to the days of the growing children.

A FINE THING FOR THE CHILDREN AND FOR MOTHER, TOO.

A Porch Table

In the good weather the porch is probably used more than any room in the house. This is essentially proper too, if the fresh air gospel is to be believed. Now since women will not sit idle why not furnish something that will meet their requirements, while on the porch. Two points are important in this regard, the porch table must be neat, small and really practical, and it must look good from the outside. This sewing table is made of any material, painted green or to blend with other porch furniture. The top is a square trough and may be used for potted plants or flower vases. The large cloth pockets on the ends are to all effects hidden from the street. The table is really pretty and serviceable, may be easily moved for sweeping, and is of value as a flower-pot holder in the winter.

FIG. 1.



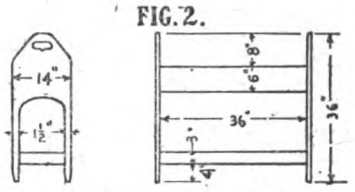


FIG. 2.

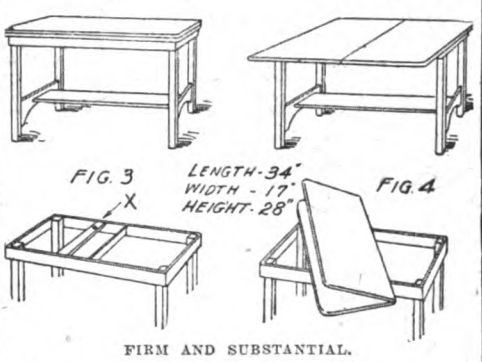

SUMMER AND WINTER ALSO.

An Extension Table

Here is a new kind of extension table. It is for any purpose, a large dining table, a kitchen table or a sewing or card table. The two views represent the same table yet in Fig. 2 it has just twice the top area as in Fig. 1. Fig. 3 shows very clearly how the table is framed. The hole "X" is the pivot upon which the top turns. The last cut shows the turning half done. I know of nothing simpler or more effective in the way of a convertible table and if you have any use for it, it surely will be found a convenient article. It is ideal for a small or crowded house and can be easily made of hard or soft wood, painted, stained or finished natural.

FIRM AND SUBSTANTIAL.

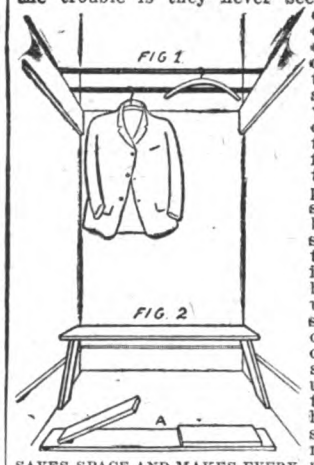
Beating Rugs

When you are about to discard a woven wire spring instead of casting it on the refuse heap nail eighteen-inch lengths of scantling to the corners and brace them well as in Fig. 1. You now have a dandy thing to beat rugs or carpet on. The spring with the legs is just the place to lay them, and will soon manifest its worth. Can you think of anything handier for airing bedding? The spring must have a little care and should be kept under cover during the night.

FIG. 1.



PRACTICAL FOR MANY USES.

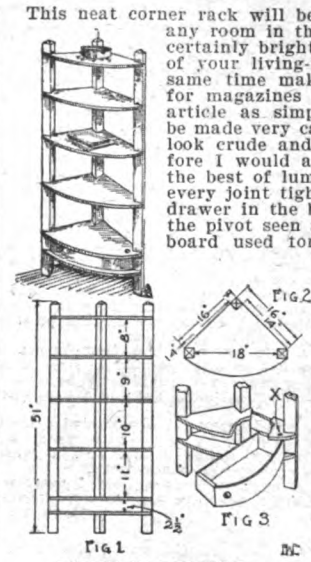
Once it gets rusty you cannot use it for white goods. I have known such a simple device to be in use for years, and a good argument in favor of its practical merit is the fact that neighbors are constantly borrowing it.

For the Clothes Closet

Clothes closets are all right in their way, but the trouble is they never seem to be half big enough and you can put your coat or hat away without crushing something else out of shape. A few weeks ago I decided to remedy this state of affairs and hit upon the idea which is pictured here. It is simply one or more broomsticks stretched across the closet, resting in notches in the boards which usually are studded with clothes hooks. The coats, skirts or suits are placed upon hangers and the latter are hung upon the sticks. The garments may be parallel with the side walls, if numerous. You can place twenty suits of men's clothes in a closet four feet wide by this method, without crushing them, and each separate one can be gotten out without disturbing any of the others. Fig. 2 is a bench to enable you to reach the high shelf or may be used to pile boxes on.

SAVES SPACE AND MAKES EVERY GARMENT ACCESSIBLE.

A Washstand

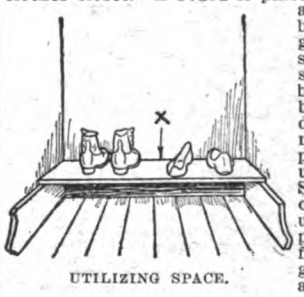


The picture shows how even such a prosaic thing as a washstand can be made a thing of beauty. I think the design is a neat one and well worth following. It has one door in the center and a slide drawer on each side. Under the slides the openings are covered with curtains of imitation leather or velour. A washstand like this made of pine and finished in white enamel is as pretty as it is useful. It would make a dandy addition to a bedroom that contains a white bed and dresser. You can finish an old dresser in white enamel and make it look like new for a small sum. Always get the best enamel and follow directions carefully to get the best results. Perhaps you have an old wooden bedstead that could be made over into the stand. This picture will be ample guidance for any mechanic or you might even tackle the job yourself.

AS PRETTY AS IT IS USEFUL.

Rack

This neat corner rack will be found useful in any room in the house. It will certainly brighten up the corner of your living-room and at the same time make a good holder for magazines and papers. An article as simple as this must be made very carefully or it will look crude and clumsy. Therefore I would advise you to use the best of lumber and to make every joint tight and firm. The drawer in the bottom swings on the pivot seen at the right. The board used for the face of it must be thin enough to permit of being bent round. For use in a bedroom the rack may be made of pine, curtained over, and the drawer dispensed with. If one is limited for space in a bedroom a corner wash-stand could be placed beneath and the two lower shelves utilized for the needed toilet articles.



USEFUL IN ANY ROOM.

The second shelf could be cut out at each side and a small looking glass put in place.

Closet Idea

The picture shows the interior of a narrow clothes closet. A board is placed across the room and rests upon the baseboard. It is a good place for shoes, books or suitcases. The board should not be nailed as it is desirable to remove it often to permit of sweeping underneath. Shelves in dark closets may be used as a storage place for canned fruit. They are generally more accessible than a cellar and have the advantage of being dry. Instead of a board like the one shown a box might be used and the storage capacity would thus be doubled.

UTILIZING SPACE.

Combination Box for Kitchen or Living-Room

Take two wooden boxes of the same size, without tops. Set them on their side, one on the other and nail together. Stain any desired color. Dark green is always good. This makes two compartments and you can have more by putting in shelves. Put a small brass rod at the top and hang a pretty silkoline curtain across the front in two sections. If used in the living-room, put a pretty scarf across the top, letting the ends hang a few inches over the sides. If used in the kitchen, tack a piece of enamel cloth the same width as box across the back, bring it over and let the end run down inside of rod. In the lower compartment keep firewood and kindling, and in the upper overshoes, rubbers, mittens, etc. Hooks may be put up inside, thus utilizing all the room. This box is convenient and good looking.

Rocker 1750
Given with a $10 purchase

Given to You

You can get the two articles shown here or your choice of 1700 others without a cent of cost! They are given to you as extra value with your purchases of foods (60 supplies), soaps (all sorts), perfumes and toilet preparations (complete line), and many dry goods notions and other needed home supplies, in all 700, direct from us, the manufacturers.

LARKIN

supplies for the home are of the highest quality and the prices same as you now pay at stores. The Premium is given to you extra, as your factory-to-family gain or saving of the middleman expense. Over two million families deal with us already, thus making "one dollar do the work of two"—getting household supplies and furnishings both for the store-price of the supplies alone!

Send Coupon for FREE Catalog

Then see our 1700 useful Premiums and learn how you can get your choice of them without cost. We send goods on 30 days' trial if you wish—no money in advance. Send Coupon to our nearest address for new Spring Catalog—it explains everything.

Vacuum Cleaner 23050
Given with a $10 purchase

Larkin Co. Buffalo, N. Y. Chicago Peoria, Ill.

Send me your new Spring Catalog No. 76

Name .....

Address .....

G. P. 272

SEEDS

Reliable and Full of Life

SPECIAL OFFER

Made to build New Business. A trial will make you our permanent customer.

PRIZE COLLECTION Radish, 17 Varieties, worth 15c; Lettuce, 12 kinds, worth 15c; Tomatoes, 11 the finest, worth 20c; Turnip, 7 splendid, worth 10c; Onion, 8 best varieties, worth 15c; 10 Spring Flowering Bulbs, worth 25c—65 varieties in all; worth $1.00.

GUARANTEED TO PLEASE.

Write today; mention this paper.

SEND 10 CENTS

to cover postage and packing and receive this valuable collection of seeds postpaid, together with my big instructive, beautiful Seed and Plant Book, tells all about Buckbee's "Full of Life" Seeds, Plants, etc.

H.W. BUCKBEE
Rockford Seed Farms
Farm 294, Rockford, Ill.

6 SURE TO BLOOM ROSES 25c

Climbing Am. Pillar, pink; Jonker Mock, silver pink; Robin Hood, red; Killarney, deep rose; Aaron Ward, yellow; kaiserin Aug. Victoria, white. Postage paid, safe arrival and satisfaction guaranteed.

6 Assorted Ferns.....25c
6 Chrysanthemums.....25c
6 Basket Vines.....25c
6 Fine Geraniums.....25c

The entire 5 collections (30 plants), $1.00, charges prepaid.

Our 1915 catalog full of cultural directions and bargains. Write for it today— FREE

SCHMIDT & BOTLEY, Box 737, Springfield, O.

Galloway's 1915 Strawberry Sensation

The famous Everbearing variety. Has long fruiting season and large, highly flavored berry. Had my friends try a few last season. Wonderful results. Want you to try some. Special price, also free offer whereby I give my new customers some of these plants free. Write for proposition and handsome colored catalog filled with new and standard varieties of garden and flower seeds, etc. Address,

Galloway Bros. & Co., 2443 Galloway Sta., Waterloo, Iowa

Six Blizzard Belt Apple Grafts

For Testing Our named varieties of HARDY Foster Mother Root Apple Grafts make vigorous, early bearing, heavily fruiting, clean hearted, long lived trees. To prove their worth, we offer 6 Grafts (rooted) for testing, if you will send 10c to help cover cost and mailing expense. They will bear barrels upon barrels of apples in a few years' time. Catalogue telling about other Blizzard Belt fruits, EVERBEARING STRAWBERRIES, etc., FREE. Write today.

The Gardner Nursery Co., Box 818 Osage, Ia.

$2.00 and You Get This Superb Cornet

WURLITZER

An astounding offer. This Triple Silver Plated Lyric Cornet will be sent to you for only $2.00. Pay the balance at rate of 10c a day. Free trial before you decide to buy.

200 years of instrument making Free Band Catalog

Free Carrying Case with this Superb Triple Silver Plated Lyric cornet, genuine leather. Write today.

Send your name and address and get our 250-pp. Band Catalog. Buy direct from the manufacturer. Rock-bottom prices on all kinds of instruments—easy payments. Generous allowance for old instruments. We supply the U. S. Gov't.

THE RUDOLPH WURLITZER CO.
Cincinnati, Ohio Dept. 3043 Chicago, Ill.

This Department is conducted solely for the use of COMFORT sisters, whereby they may give expression to their ideas relative to the home and home surroundings, and to all matters pertaining to themselves and families; as well as opening a way for personal correspondence between each other.

Our object is to extend a helping hand to COMFORT subscribers; to become coworkers with all who seek friendship, encouragement, sympathy or assistance through the interchange of ideas.

Any abuse of this privilege, such as inviting correspondence for the purpose of offering an article for sale, or undertaking to charge a sum of money for ideas, recipes or information mentioned in any letter appearing in this department, if reported, will result in the offender being denied the use of these columns.

Do not ask us to print letters requesting patterns, quilt pieces, etc., for the purpose of, or with the expectation of receiving the equivalent in return, for this is not an exchange column.

Do not ask us to publish letters requesting money contributions or donations of any sort. Much as as we sympathize with the suffering and unfortunate, it is impossible to do this as we would be flooded with similar requests.

Do not request souvenir postals unless you have complied with the conditions which entitles you to such a notice. See postal request notice in another column.

We cordially invite mothers and daughters of all ages to write to COMFORT Sisters' Corner. Every letter will be carefully read and considered, and then the most helpful ones chosen for publication, whether the writer be an old or new subscriber.

Please write only on one side of the paper, and recipes on a separate sheet.

Always give your correct and full name and address, very plainly written; otherwise your letter will receive no attention.

Address all letters for this department to MRS. WHEELER WILKINSON, Care COMFORT, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

THE first balmy breezes of spring seem to bring with them a germ that enters the system of every woman and straightway she starts in cleaning house. Just what particular genus or tribe this belongs to would baffle a wise bacteriologist to determine but nevertheless it exists and continues to multiply till exterminated by the use of hot water, soap, mops and dusting cloths and all the other implements that go to make up a woman's artillery against dirt, real or fancied.

Do not, in your zeal, overlook your own health and the comfort of your family in a mad scramble to finish work a little ahead of your neighbor.

Much labor is saved if all the closets are put in order, packing away winter clothes and throwing into the family rag-bag all discarded clothing for which no use can be found. This does away with added dirt after the rest of the house is cleaned and you can feel, when the last window is washed and the last remaining speck of dust wiped away, that your work is done, with no tag ends remaining.

It is better to commence work in the attic, first storing away all the heavy things that will not be needed during the summer, taking precautions to protect the woolen goods from the ever watchful moths.

Do not make the mistake of hanging your furs or woolen articles on the line to air, for that is the surest way of giving the moths a chance. Instead, brush them carefully and pack them away and do the airing in the fall.

In cleaning take but one room at a time, thus avoiding any great disturbance.

By the time the upper part of the house is cleaned and in good order, unless the alterations are to be extensive, the remaining rooms can usually be cleaned and put to rights in one day, thus doing away with the confusion that exists when several rooms are being cleaned at once. Do not make your family feel as a certain little boy did who replied, "No, we're not living anywheres; mother's cleaning house." Your husband may not tell you, and indeed he may not fully realize it himself, but he will be much more impressed with your ability if he comes home and finds everything fresh and shining and that without several days of disorder and fussing. Particularly will he be impressed if a well-cooked meal is waiting for him and shared by a wife who is as carefully dressed as though he were a guest. Extra china and silver can wait until another day to be cleaned, as can the examination and repairing of the table linen.

House-cleaning time presents an opportunity for disposing of many ostensibly ornamental articles which really act only as dust catchers without being even beautiful, and wise is the woman who dispenses with them.

Art squares, matting or painted floors are much to be preferred in summer instead of heavy carpets and in addition to being a great saver of labor, will be found much cooler.

An empty wall looks better than one hung with unattractive pictures. Good engravings with plain frames are now sold at such a trifling cost that almost everyone can afford one or more. If your nearest dealer does not carry what you want there is always your favorite mail-order house where you have more of a variety to choose from than the average small-town dealer keeps in stock.

Remember though that all your work will be labor lost if you do not bear in mind the old adage, "A place for everything and everything in its place."

WICKLIFFE, KY.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

Will you please move over and make room for a little girl from dear old Kentucky, who wishes to talk on a subject that should be discussed among both old and young. My subject is "education." How many of us, dear friends, are striving for an education? If we are not we should be. Do we want to grow up in ignorance to be laughed at? We can never get work that pays nor can we mingle with educated people and be one with them unless we have an education to some extent. Of course the word "education" means a whole lot more than we can, without study, comprehend. In my estimation nothing is more pitiful than to see a young person idly wasting his or her time. Some do not know the adage, "Lost time is never found again," or they do not realize it. Neither do they realize when they are letting some golden opportunity slip from under their grasp that they may never have the same or as good again. It would be astonishing if the pupils were selected from a schoolroom that came for the good that they can do and are really interested and anxious about their work. I fear the number would be small, after they reach a certain age. "He" goes because "She" goes and "She" goes perhaps because of an extra job of work at home, or because she is promised a present if she will go every day until Christmas, or a whipping if she doesn't go at all. How many of us children are going for the good that we can do? Let's take a ladder and give it a name for every round. We will call the first round, common school, the second, high school, the third, college and so on. What round have we attained? And are we as high as we might have been only for negligence. I, myself, am only standing on the second round and may never mount any higher. But I will never forget the beautiful lessons I've been taught and the dear friends I've made in school.

How many of us greet a new pupil into our midst with a cheery smile and a welcome? Or do we sneer and laugh at them? If you do dear friends they will remember the sting forever. My dearest schoolmates were made when I entered the room. The ones that gave me a welcome smile will never be forgotten.

I graduated from Oak Hill School, St. Louis, Mo. in 1912, and if any of my dear class graduates read this I would be glad to hear from them. Will not some other reader write on this great question?

I will describe myself and tell you what else I like and enjoy doing. I am eighteen years old. I weigh one hundred and twenty-five pounds and am five feet five inches high. I have light hair, blue eyes and a fair complexion. I do embroidery and crochet work, play the piano, ride horseback and make kodak pictures. Besides these I do housework and sewing which I greatly enjoy. Will not some of the members near my age write to me? I am your new friend, EULALIE WELLS.

Eulalie Wells. Your letter is a credit to yourself and your teachers and while I heartily approve of all you say, please don't think me a scold if I ask you not to judge people by the number of diplomas in their possession or their position in life. In the ignorance or blindness, of youth, we are prone to do this, only to later learn that a person's true worth and character does not depend on education alone and even if our finer sensibilities are sometimes shocked remember that underneath the rough exterior there may beat a heart kinder than found in many of our so-called educated people, for, alas, education makes snobs of some of us, though fortunately that is the exception rather than the rule as it tends to develop the better side of our nature, and to enable us to meet all people and conditions with a broader outlook and a fairer manner.

One cannot lean indefinitely on a college or a diploma and today, more than ever before, do we rise or fall, according to our own merits though, of course, the more education and training we possess, the better fitted are we to stand, so keep on Eulalie and don't stop on the second round of your ladder and above all, don't lose the simple kindliness of heart that marks the true woman.—Ed.

4367 Eastern Ave., CINCINNATI, OHIO.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

As I have never seen a letter from this place I will venture into this band of comforting sisters, for I have long been a silent reader of this paper.

I am nineteen years old, have golden hair and brown eyes, am five feet five inches tall and weigh one hundred and twenty pounds. Both father and mother are living, also have two brothers and two sisters, all of whom are married, but one brother and myself.

We live in a small suburb of the city, called "Undercliff" which is about five miles from the heart of the city. This is a place of beautiful scenery, but is very lonely, because nobody associates here. We have lived here in this one house for five years and the next door neighbors have never been inside of the gate, and yet there is only about one foot of ground separating the houses. Then do you wonder why it is lonely here? The saying is true, that even though in the heart of the city, one can be very lonely.

I was born and reared in the country, but it was a very quiet place, no work to be had, and farming was extremely poor, so we came to the city; have been here six years, and now we have a fine eight-r m house (which will soon be our own) and also a large garden. We have had the experience of both country and city life and I am sure we one and all choose the latter as the best.

I am employed as saleslady in a down-town store and like the work. I very seldom go to any place and am sometimes very lonely, and for this reason I earnestly desire to see this letter in print to make a request that everyone reading it will please write to me young or old, and I will surely answer all. I want your friendship and will tell you something of the good and bad in dear old Cincinnati.

With best wishes and good luck to you all, I am,
MISS GLADYS N. WINDSOR.

1336 Bayville, St., CINCINNATI, OHIO.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTERS:

I have been reading the Sisters' Corner about four years and enjoy it very much, and will see now if the sisters have room for one more.

I will first describe myself, as so many do. I have dark brown hair, blue eyes, five feet eight inches tall and not very thin and twenty-nine years old. Have a good husband and one boy seven years old, and two little darling girls in Heaven, one was one and one half years and the other two years of age when God took them. It is surely hard to part with them and just at the sweetest time, but He knows best; one never knows what they might have to go through with if they stayed here. Lucille died of brain fever and Lillian took measles first and then scarlet fever and bronchopneumonia on top; they were both healthy looking children but one never knows what comes next. Richard is at school and in third grade.—In these big cities there is so much sickness that it is hard to rear good healthy children. The milk you get is just like the milk you have in the country after it goes through the separator; butter, eggs, cheese and meats, fruits and vegetables are not like what you raise yourself, not if you buy the best, and another thing, the children can't have the fresh air or a clean grassy lawn to play on; the yards are damp and sooty and the sun hardly gets there in winter. There are other amusements, or lots of playthings, but it doesn't seem to be the right thing. I have lived in the country and city, both long enough to see the difference, I have also lived at Norwood about three years that is a nice suburban place, but as my husband's work is done in the city now, it is more convenient here. We can't all live in the same place, and there are things in the country that are pleasant and there are also things that are unpleasant. One thing, if you have a good farm and home in the country, paid for, you have a living for the rest of your life; whereas in the city, a house is nothing to start living on.

My husband is a safe maker so it is best for us, at present, in the city but he often says if he lives to be old he prefers a country home for his old days as a man nowadays, doesn't stand much show in a shop when he gets a little old.

I, for one, never get lonesome, I always find more to do than I can get done. I do all my own sewing and sometimes some for my sister, mother and a friend besides. I like to sew and do fancy work.

Well my letter is getting too long and I must say good by to Mrs. Wilkinson and all the COMFORT friends,
MRS. K. SCHINDLER.

GARRISON, MONTANA.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

Will you please let in a stranger, a little Montana girl?

We have taken COMFORT for a short time, but think it is grand.

I am only seventeen years of age, dark brown hair and eyes, fair complexion, weigh one hundred and twenty-three pounds, and height five feet, two inches. I am an orphan girl and oh, how I love to read the dear letters the sisters write.

Yes, I believe what Mrs. W. P. Barnes says, your mother and father are your best friends. I have no mother or father, but the people that have reared me have always been kind to me. How I love them both; they taught me the right and the wrong; how to cook, bake, clean house, and sew and although they have two children of their own, no one would know but what I was their child also. I go with them every place and have everything I want and wish for. Are not these people worth blessing?

And now little sisters a word with you. Never go any place without your mother or father or some of your other folks. Tell them everything. If mother has lots of work to do, don't sit down and look at the paper or some book, but pitch in and see how much you can help. Remember you are younger and can stand more. If father has lots of chores to do bring in the wood and water. It won't hurt you and you will feel much better by getting out and doing a little work like that. Those who live in the country do not leave it for the city, but stay with mother and father on the farm. There are lots of things you can do; make quilts or fancy work and put them away because some day you might have a little home of your own then you can fix it up with the work you did at home with mother.

Well, Mrs. Wilkinson, I am sure you think I have written enough. So I will close. God bless you all,
MISS MARY KNOP.

RYE, COLO.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

I saw a letter in the November COMFORT from a Mrs. Gudger of Ellijay, Ga., in regard to blood tumors on children.

I have known of two cases. The first was when I was about thirteen years old. The child lived just next door to where I went to school and was about three or four years old. They said that in playing with other children the child hurt the tumor in some way and died in less than a week. The other case was six or seven years later, a friend and neighbor adopted a baby girl about two years old and she had a blood tumor on her head. They had it removed. The doctor did it right at home and aside from the loss of blood, which made the child weak for a few days she had no trouble at all, the sore healed up quickly and the child is now twelve or fourteen years old and although the last I heard of her was five or six years ago she was then a healthy girl.

If I were in the sister's place I should have it removed before the child got large enough to romp and play very hard. If she becomes sick at the sight of blood she had better have someone else with the doctor. Your COMFORT sister, LOIS ORTON.

For the benefit of Mrs. Gudger I will add that a kind woman, not a sister, but who wishes her name withheld, has sent in a simple remedy which cured a blood tumor on her baby's back. Doctors said an operation was necessary but instead she bathed the tumor with spirits of camphor, diluted with a little sweet oil, which removed it, effectually it would seem, since this happened eleven years ago and there has been no recurrence of the trouble.—Ed.

ZIMMERMAN, LA.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTERS:

May I come in this rainy afternoon for a few moments' chat? I have never written a letter to any paper, so feel a little timid for we have some gifted writers. I enjoy the sisters' letters so much and think COMFORT the best paper I get.

I want to say to Mrs. W. H. Gudger that I have a little cousin who had trouble similar to her baby's case. She had a red lump on her forehead from birth and it began to grow. Physicians said it was a blood tumor and would have to be operated on. The operation was performed and now the child is sound and well with only a little scar left. That was five years ago and no return of the trouble yet.

Mrs. H. C. Crawford, what a blessing you have to have overcome all your troubles and have a heart full of sympathy and love for everyone. How I wish we had more people in the world like you. I think we should all look to Jesus in the hour of trouble and temptation and He will surely help us.

With best wishes to all, Your sister,
MRS. LEONA POE.

NAPA, 244 Union St., CAL.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON:

Will you forgive me for appealing to you once more? I am afraid I have disobeyed some of the laws of COMFORT sisters' page, or maybe you have not come to my turn yet.

What Mrs. Brooks says about the city is true, only there is not enough work to go around. Hills, parks and sunsets have always appealed to me, but the daily toil and struggle for a living has been so hard I am very tired of it.

I do so want to hear from some successful homesteaders. I will send stamps and paper for reply, also to cover cost of sending me their address. We are so anxious to locate and it costs a great deal of money to travel around.

We are not afraid of work, in fact, I feel as though anything would be better than being out of work half of the time.

I could say a great deal more but will make my letter short in the hopes that I may come again some other time. Love and best wishes. MRS. ROSE SMITH.

Mrs. Smith. I feel sure you will be successful in your search for a home in the country, but would advise you to investigate thoroughly all letters you are particularly interested in. I dislike to be so pessimistic and skeptical, but so many people, perhaps not in our own circle, have "an axe to grind" that it behooves one to make a careful investigation before taking any decisive steps or investing any money, which is perhaps more to the point.—Ed.

BURLINGTON, N. J.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

Please make room for a sister from Burlington, N. J., as I have never seen a letter from this town. I live two and one half miles from town on a sixty-acre farm with my family of five, four boys and one girl, the girl being the youngest, aged thirteen years, another son lives in town and is an electrical engineer. I will describe myself. I am five feet five inches tall, weigh one hundred and thirty pounds, have dark brown hair, blue gray eyes, am of a cheerful, humorous disposition and though for a year my health has been very poor I am still hopeful of the future.

I united with the church when sixteen years old and lately have found great comfort in the "New Thought" religion. Am a very happy mother, having always been a companion to my children, influencing them to share with me the joys and blessings that I received. I wish right now to impress on the mothers' minds, especially our COMFORT sisters, to take as much interest in your children after they get big and troublesome, for they are sure to appear this way at times. If they are ambitious they will see things in a different light, we must listen to them and not use harsh discipline or else all will be a failure.

My children are all Christians. They also are musicians and we have a home orchestra, piano, cornet, violin, clarinet and flute. I play and sing with them and find great enjoyment in it.

Now sisters do you wonder that I am a happy mother, full of sunshine most of the time?

I have taken COMFORT since my oldest boy was small, yet I seldom hear about the beautiful influences of the mothers on the children and the full rebounding effects. When the child is small the first thing the mothers do is to make the child take notice, the first smile makes the mother's heart rejoice, and she is well repaid for her sufferings, but slowly she gets accustomed to the happiness she has expected from her offspring, and daily leaves undone the grand work she has commenced. Sisters we have to labor hard to produce good effects in after years. I have found it so, and we get easily discouraged, but we must hold on to God's promises for sustenance at that important time. My dear mother gave me a religious training and from the time my first boy was born advised me to pray earnestly every day for the good of the child. I have received my reward already and there is happiness in my home, all through persistence on my part. It is no use to blame others when children go wrong, the mother herself is to blame in my opinion.

My boys have been inclined for bad company but I have broken up all of this through being their constant companion, welcoming their company, advising them and sharing their joys and sorrows. If they were going fishing or boating, mamma must go because I always played as a child with them. I laughed at what they laughed at, always picking the good out and showing them the right from wrong. When I was sick I would get them to read fairy tales to me, and compare me to the fairy, dressing me up with fancy ribbons and tinsels.

Through helping me in my daily routine they all learned to cook. My little girl who has recently become a church member said the other day, "Mamma isn't it nice to think we children don't have to go to church to become happy, we can get the same effect right here in our own home." I asked the boys when they came in, "Boys, isn't this a grand old world and isn't this love worth having?" The youngest said that he could not live without it now he felt so happy and contented.

Mothers, take pains in your training and those same little eyes that watched yours for the expression in infancy, watch all your movements later. It pays to try to make them listen to the good side of life and you should not be discouraged but endeavor to have them men and women of which you will be proud.

I will now close with best wishes to Mrs. Wilkinson and sisters and may we always have COMFORT.
MARY J. LEWIS.

LEGONIA, TEXAS.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

Will you kindly admit me into your Sisters' Corner? I have been reading the good letters from you for quite a while but have hesitated to write because I notice that most of the letters are from married ladies, but in reading what our editor has to say I find that "mothers and daughters of all ages" are invited to write to the COMFORT Sisters' Corner, and so I thought it might help someone to learn my plan for earning pin money. I have been teaching for three years, this being my fourth and love the work very much, so you see I am interested in all you have to say about children.

I live in the country and as our schools are from four to seven months in length there is usually quite a good deal of time to be spent at leisure. For the last few years I've been attending summer normals, but even then I have a few weeks before and after normal, and I find that quite a nice little sum can be made from gathering and selling the many varieties of cacti and native plants.

I have a friend who is an expert needlewoman and she realizes a neat little sum every week for her embroidery; I haven't tried this plan yet but am going to do so in the future when I learn to make my work more attractive.

I should like to know other plans from anyone who is interested and who does some kind of special work. One year I had good success "incubating" chicks, I kept only thoroughbred chicks and the work was indeed a pleasure; then the profit comes in nicely too. We keep the Barred Plymouth Rocks, and find them the best dual purpose fowl we have tried.

I am also interested in gardening and expect to do some in the spring in a scientific way.

There is so much to do in this world of ours, so much pleasure in working and planning for the happiness of friends and loved ones.

I shall not trouble you longer, but will close by describing myself. I am five feet six inches tall, weigh one hundred thirty-eight pounds, have light complexion and blue eyes and am twenty-two years of age.

Hoping that I shall be welcome in your midst, I am sincerely,
MISS HENRIETTA FAIRCHILD.

WINGATE, IND.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

I have been a silent reader of COMFORT for several years, but have never written before, although I have wanted to many times if I had known something worth writing.

When you asked if some sister was not a member of such a club as a "Mothers' Club," I just felt like I would like to tell you we have one here in our little town, only we call ourselves "The Mothers' Class." We have a membership of fifty. Some, but of course not all are present at every meeting.

We meet every two weeks and open our meetings by singing one or more songs, followed by prayer and several good readings after which the business is settled. We then have more singing and are dismissed by a prayer. Our readings are such that they will help us if we will practise their teachings and they are discussed, after being read, if any member has any thought to express on the subject.

One of our by-laws is—"No gossiping allowed. A fine of five cents will be placed on anyone for speaking unkindly of another or to anyone," and thus we cultivate a Christian spirit.

They are a great benefit to me and I think to all the rest. I always come home from the meetings with a happy heart and a stronger desire to do right and teach our little three-year-old Wilma, the right way.

I am twenty-four years old and have been married

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 11.)

ASK YOUR STATIONER FOR Russelworth Lawn
THE CROWELL COMPANY
STATIONERS
Orleans Street, - - Springfield, Mass.

Ladies! Ease YOUR FEET
Send for free catalog telling all about our Neat, Noiseless, Flexible, Comfortable, unlined Vici Kid O'Sullivanized PILLOW SHOE. New shoes easy as old ones. No breaking in required. Fit and feel like a kid glove. All styles with O'Sullivan's Rubber Heels attached.
$3.25 Postpaid
PILLOW SHOE CO., Dept. P, 184 Summer Street, BOSTON, MASS.

40 lb.—FEATHER BEDS—$7.00
New, clean, odorless, sanitary and dustless feathers. Best Ticking. 6 pound pillows $1.00 per pair. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for FREE catalog and our wonderful SPECIAL OFFER. AGENTS WANTED.
SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 3503, Greensboro, N. C.

So Dear a Foe

By Laura Vignette Beale

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

SHE passed serenely along on the shady side of Albermarle Street, with a box of stationery neatly wrapped, held lightly under her arm.

He, stepping from a yard at her right, was unobserved, until he lifted his hat and said: "Pardon me, but you won't mind if I join you, as I am going your way, will you?" with a most charming smile.

Doris Austin, the daughter of President Austin of Thoreau College, whose big buildings were near at hand, hesitated, glanced inquiringly at the young man, then drew away stiffly, saying:

"You have the advantage of me, sir!"

"Why, don't you remember me?" questioned the stranger. "I am Alfred Clennam, post graduate of Western College, taking the law course at the University over there. Let me carry your bundle."

"No, thank you." She spoke slowly in a puzzled manner. "I'm sure you are mistaking me for someone else. I have never had the pleasure of meeting you before."

"Well," he responded, "I can hardly flatter myself that it would be a pleasure to you. To me—well, that is another story. A beautiful day, isn't it?"

To her astonishment, he neither volunteered further information as to any previous meeting, nor offered to leave her. Indeed, he had fallen in step, with every indication of intending to accompany her on her walk.

"Allow me to carry your package," he said gently seizing it.

Doris clung to it desperately, even though she felt she was losing dignity by doing so.

"No!" she said coldly, "I do not care to accept so great a courtesy from a stranger. Good afternoon!"

"But I am not a stranger," he exclaimed. "Surely you remember your brother introducing us."

"I have no brother," icily.

"Ah, indeed! That is why you are out alone then. It is so fortunate I met you and can escort you home."

Doris Austin stopped, and looked suspiciously at the perfectly respectable and deferential stranger. Drunk? No smell of liquor, or slightest appearance of tipsiness in face, voice, or manner could be detected. Insane? The fine, alert, intelligent countenance that met her scrutiny, made such a suggestion ridiculous. Clearly it could only be a case of mistaken identity. This fine-looking young man had met someone who greatly resembled her; so she began gently:

"I'm sorry to inform you that you have made a great mistake. My name is Doris Austin. I don't know you, or you, me. I just returned last night from a trip abroad, and you mistake me for some other girl, who looks like me. Good afternoon."

Her words failed to bring the apology and parting salutation she expected. Indeed, as she started again on her way, her queer companion continued by her side.

"Not on your life!" he declared. "I never met anyone else who resembled you in the least; and I don't believe in any such counterpart. But I must say, Miss Austin, that for once, I'm a lucky dog. To meet you the very day you get home! Think if I'd lost a month or two!" with a shudder.

Doris lost patience and stamped her foot. She had had enough of this young man whose conduct seesawed from deprecation to impudence so rapidly that it was impossible to tell which was the assumed role.

"If you are a common street masher," she cried angrily, "I am sorry your appearance led me to believe you a gentleman; and let me tell you that I'm not the kind of a girl that makes street acquaintances."

"Most certainly not!" he responded hastily. "No one could, for a moment make such a mistake. It's because you are so very different from that, that I wish to escort you home and protect you from annoyance."

"Protect me from annoyance!" cried the thoroughly exasperated girl. "If you have the slightest instincts of a gentleman, you know that you, yourself, are annoying me more than I had thought any man would dare to. Leave me at once."

"Miss Austin, I cannot until I have seen you home," Adding humbly, yet with an evident effort toward jauntiness: "I fear I am making myself disagreeable and forcing myself on you."

"You are! You are!" interpolated Doris with undisguised temper.

"But you must bear with me a short time longer. I'm in duty bound to see you home."

"Well!" with a glare which her persecutor dared not meet. "If there was ever a policeman around when one was wanted, I'd see if I was compelled to submit to this infliction."

Still, her extraordinary attendant continued by her side.

No word was spoken for several blocks. Doris stole a glance or two at his side face, but her bewilderment was only increased by its air of being down in the mouth. Several times, acquaintances, evidently casual ones, lifted their hats to her; whereupon Mr. Clennam responded by a like gesture, utterly ignored by Doris. After this had occurred several times, it seemed to occur to the down-trodden one that she had not appealed to any of them for rescue, and he began to raise his head again, and soon gazed once more on the world, unappalled if unelated.

After some time, Doris stopped at a pretty little bungalow, utterly ignoring the still-attending shadow. Unfortunately, her mother sat chatting with guests on the veranda, and rose to meet her daughter's escort. Doris, disregarding this, busied herself in greeting the visitors, but was angrily aware that Mr. Clennam had responded to her mother's advances by mentioning his name, and was serenely accepting introductions to the party and a seat within the circle.

In the bright chat of the next few minutes, no one observed that the last arrivals had no word or look for each other; and when Mr. Clennam rose to go, the fact that Doris failed to respond to his "Good afternoon," was lost in the pleasant voices of the others in the party.

Enthusiastic compliments were at once paid on all sides to the departing guest, and Doris's silence on the subject was laughingly alluded to as an indication of special interest.

Now why did not Doris undeceive these trusting friends as to the desirability of their new acquaintance? Why did she not paint him as black as she felt him to be? Angrily, she put these questions to herself later, and more angrily still as she realized that her interest and curiosity in the matter was at a high pitch.

At the supper table that evening, Mrs. Austin remarked to Doris that she liked Mr. Clennam very much. Doris was spared reply by her father who declared:

"A fine young man; an unusually brilliant student! The world will hear of him some day. I'm glad you have met him, Doris. He's a great favorite of mine."

Doris said nothing. Perhaps she was shielding her parents from a shock; or was she hoping for a speedy explanation that would heal her wounded feelings and prove her father in the right?

As expected, Doris received, by the first mail next morning, a note of apology from Mr. Clennam. She crushed it savagely in her hand and threw it into the fire as soon as read, for it stated that, for unforeseen and unavoidable reasons, he could not make the explanation that was due her, as he had hoped to do; earnestly assuring her, however that his behavior of the day before had not been prompted by levity or want of respect to her, and begging to be allowed to make her acquaintance in a more conventional manner.

Needless to remark, it failed to propitiate the recipient. If there was an explanation that would exonerate him, she could imagine no reason that could prevent him from making it. She resolved to think no more of the matter, except to refuse

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 27.)

Home Cooking

The first object of home cooking is the preparation of wholesome meals with due regard to economy of time and money. If you are a beginner, with a cook book for a teacher, do not attempt the most difficult dishes first for it usually means failure and with Failure comes its twin brother, Discouragement, turning many a promising beginner away from the art of cooking, which is, or should be, recognized as among the fine arts for it appeals to the sense of taste fully as much as any of the others appeal to their respective senses. The welfare of humanity is more bound up in food than in any other factor, for the health with all the good things of life dependent upon it, is in turn dependent, to a large extent, upon the food we eat and its manner of preparation. We cannot make a success of anything unless we apply ourselves to the rules which govern that particular subject and though we often hear about the "born cook" who mixes the ingredients together regardless of weights and measures, with marvelous and gratifying results, the chances are that the cook who follows reliable directions is the one to be depended on, regardless of the proverbial "luck" of the former. It is therefore our duty, as wives and mothers, either present or prospective, to make a systematic study of this important subject and thus insure, to a large extent, the happiness of our homes.

TO every housewife comes the question, "What shall I cook?" and the planning of meals is often more tiresome than the actual work in preparing them. A few simple menus will be found of service, particularly if the mother is away and a less competent maid or daughter has charge of the kitchen.

Breakfast

With cereal, cooked or otherwise, fruit of any kind is found to be a welcome addition and the selection rests largely with individual tastes.

EGGS IN BATTER.—It is no wonder that eggs form such a large proportion of the farmer's daily food, since he is secure in the knowledge that he is not eating a cold storage product, and many are the appetizing ways of preparing them. Cooked as follows they will be found excellent. Mix together six tablespoons thick cream, one half cup bread crumbs and one half teaspoon salt. Put two tablespoons of the mixture into ramikins or custard cups, slip an egg into each, cover with the remaining mixture, add a tiny piece of butter and bake seven minutes in moderate oven. This, with dry toast and coffee, or milk, comprises a breakfast suitable for the average person.

FRIED OATMEAL.—Put leftover oatmeal into a small mold and stand away to harden. When ready to use, cut in slices one half inch thick and then into strips one inch wide, dip in egg, roll in bread crumbs and fry. Drain, dust with powdered sugar and serve. Syrup may be added.

FRIED OATMEAL.

Dinner

SPLIT PEA SOUP.—Wash one half pint split peas, cover with water and let soak over night. In the morning drain, add one and one half quarts water or half water and half stock, a sprig of thyme, one half teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Cook slowly till peas are tender, then press through a sieve. Melt one tablespoon butter and one tablespoon flour, then stir the soup in gradually and let boil. Just before serving add a small onion, grated.

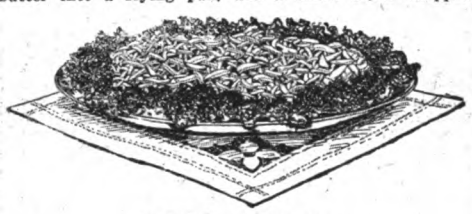
LIVER WITH VEGETABLES.—Chop one carrot, one small turnip, one onion and one stalk of celery and arrange in the bottom of a baking pan. In a liver, make two incisions in which insert salt pork or strips of bacon and place the liver on the bed of vegetables. Add hot water, parsley and cloves. Cover and bake in a moderate oven till tender. Remove to a hot platter, placing the vegetables around it and make a gravy in the pan, using one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour, and one cup of liquid from the meat, adding hot water if there is not enough.

MASHED POTATOES.—Cook potatoes and mash with cream and butter.

HOT SLAW.—Shred one half cabbage. Beat the yolks of two or one whole egg slightly, add one quarter cup cold water, one tablespoon butter, one half teaspoon salt and one quarter cup hot vinegar. Add the cabbage and stir over hot water until the cabbage is hot and the dressing is thickened.

PRUNE PIE.—Wash and soak three quarter pound of prunes over night. In the morning stew until tender in the water in which they were soaked. Cool and remove the stones. Line a deep pie plate, add the prunes, one half cup flour, two tablespoons butter, juice of one half lemon, salt and two tablespoons flour. Cover with paste and bake till the crust is brown and flaky. Serve with whipped cream.

Supper



SHEPHERD'S PIE.—Line a baking dish with mashed potatoes, left over from dinner. Over this place a layer of cold chopped cooked meat. Then another layer of potato. Cover the top with buttered crumbs, sprinkled with cheese if desired, and bake until thoroughly heated and browned on top.

SQUASH TIMBALE.—To two cups mashed squash add the yolks of two eggs well-beaten, salt and a dash of pepper. Mix well and add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Put into custard or timbale cups, stand in a pan of water and bake until set.

Bread cut in thin slices, plain cake and tea make a satisfactory supper.

Another Good Supper Dish

PARSNIPS LYONNAISE.—Cut cold parboiled parsnips into slices and then into narrow strips. Put some butter into a frying pan, add a small onion chopped fine and cook until it begins to brown. Then add the parsnips. Cook without browning for about five minutes. Season with salt and pepper and sprinkle with finely minced parsley just before taking up. Drain thoroughly. Serve very hot.

PARSNIPS LYONNAISE.

Cooking for the Sick

It is a well-established fact that no family can be entirely immune from sickness, sooner or later, and it is well for us, as members of a family, to bear in mind a few things in regard to the diet of invalids or semi-invalids.

First of all, ascertain from the attending physician just what the patient can eat and then let neatness and daintiness be the keynote of your afterwork. Do not make the mistake of asking the patient what he or she wants to eat but prepare and serve the food in such a tempting manner that it will be eaten, whether they mean to eat it or not, for, sad to relate, sickness often plays sad havoc with the most amiable dispositions. Always remember that too large a quantity of food is often nauseating so serve small portions. Arrange the tray with your finest linen, china and silver and try to find room for a tiny bunch of flowers or one large flower laid across the tray. Small slices of toast, nicely browned and wrapped in a napkin, will be much more tempting than a single large piece of toast, partly cooled, as also will an orange cut in pond lily style be more pleasing to the eye than would be the whole orange rolling disconsolately in one corner of the tray, and if the eye is gratified, the stomach will not be so likely to rebel.

FOR THE INVALID.

See that the room is well-aired and endeavor to keep the patient in as cheerful a frame of mind as possible, and as for that part of it, no matter what condition your health may be in, always make it a point not to bring your worries and troubles to the table with you. Give your stomach a fair chance to do its work under the proper conditions.

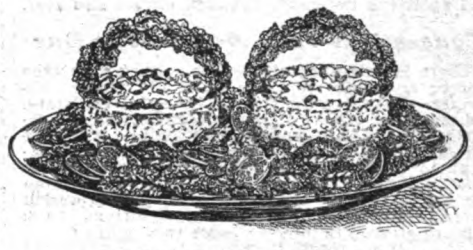
The following recipes will be found especially good:

BEEF TEA.—Appetizing beef tea is made by cutting up tender, juicy beef into pieces about an inch square; put into a strong bottle, cork tightly and set in a kettle of cold water. Boil two hours. This is valuable as a tonic.

CHICKEN BROTH.—Take part of a chicken and cover with water; let it boil till the meat drops from the bones; then skim off the fat, strain and add a little salt, and a teaspoon of rice. Let boil until the rice is cooked.

STEAMED EGG.—Beat an egg until very light, add seasoning to taste, and then steam until thoroughly warmed through, but not hardened; this will take from two to three minutes. An egg prepared in this way will not distress the most sensitive stomach.

OATMEAL GRUEL.—Put two heaping spoonfuls of oatmeal, wet in cold water, into one pint of boiling water; boil gently one half hour, skim and add a little salt, sugar and nutmeg.



BARLEY WATER.—Soak about a pint of barley in lukewarm water for a few minutes; then drain off the water. Put the barley in three quarts of water and cook slowly until soft, skimming occasionally. Flavor with a little lemonade.

TOAST WATER.—Toast stale bread until quite brown, but not burned. Put into a large dish and pour boiling water over it, letting it stand for an hour or so, then strain and serve with ice.

OYSTER TOAST.—Cook six oysters, in a cup of their own liquor, one minute. Season with butter, pepper and salt and pour over a slice of toast. Serve in a hot dish.

Comfort's Sisters' Recipes and Everyday Helps

CHICKEN IN BASKETS.—To three cups hot mashed potatoes add three tablespoons butter, one teaspoon salt, yolks of three eggs slightly beaten, and enough milk to moisten. Shape in form of small baskets, with handles of parsley. Brush over with white of egg slightly beaten and brown in oven. Fill with creamed chicken. Decorate with parsley and slices of tomato.

CHICKEN IN BASKETS.

CREAMED CHICKEN.—One and one half cups cold cooked chicken cut in dice, one cup white sauce, one half teaspoon celery salt. Heat chicken dice in sauce.

WHITE SAUCE.—Two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one cup milk, one quarter teaspoon salt.

The base of soup should be made of good lean meat and bones—two ounces of bone to a pound of meat; allow one quart of water to a pound of meat; after boiling, skim well and set back and let it simmer for four or five hours, season and strain into a stone jar where it will cool quickly. It is best to make this stock a day or two before it is to be used, so that all grease may be removed. Stock made this way will keep several days and from it may be made an endless variety of soups, according to flavorings or materials used. Always remember that too much boiling spoils the flavor of broth so cook vegetables, rice, etc., before adding.

CHICKEN SOUP.—To the broth in which chickens have been boiled, add one onion and several sliced tomatoes, season with pepper and salt and boil thirty minutes; add two well-beaten eggs just before sending it to the table. Serve with crackers.

LOBSTER SOUP.—Pick all the meat from the shell of one large lobster and chop fine. Take one quart of milk, one pint of water and when boiling, add the lobster, a large piece of butter, salt and pepper to taste, and a tablespoon of flour. Boil from seven to ten minutes.

CORN SOUP.—To one can of corn, add one pint of boiling water and let cook slowly fifteen minutes. Scald one pint of milk and a slice of onion, remove onion and add milk to corn. Add two tablespoons butter and two tablespoons flour, cooked together, season to taste.

NOODLES FOR SOUP.—Beat one egg light; add a pinch of salt and flour enough to make a stiff dough; roll out in a very thin sheet, dredge with flour to keep from sticking; then roll up tightly. Cut into fine slices.

CREAM BAKED TROUT.—Clean the trout, put in pepper and salt and close them. Place in pan with cream enough to cover the fins and bake twenty minutes.

PICKLING FISH.—Spice the vinegar as for cucumbers, put fish in and let boil for a few minutes, until done, without breaking; set away for a few weeks and the bones will be entirely destroyed.

Home Cooking

Fails on Beans

It fails because home ovens can't make beans digestible. Steam ovens are essential. Beans must be baked in small lots, in high heat and for hours.

It fails because it crisps the top beans, mushes the middle beans, but leaves most of them less than half baked.

It fails because beans should be mellow and whole, and home-baked beans are not.

It fails because the sauce should be baked with the beans, to give zest to every atom.

Housewives should recognize that there are a few foods which can't be prepared in a fit way at home. And beans stand first among them.

VAN CAMP'S
PORK & BEANS BAKED WITH TOMATO SAUCE

Also Baked Without the Sauce

10, 15 and 20 Cents Per Can

Van Camp's will displace all old-style baked beans when you give them a chance to show. You will find that men prefer them. Thousands of hotels and lunch rooms serve them because they please the men.

This dish is our specialty. For 20 years our famous chefs have worked on it. They have created in this a new-style national dish. It is unique among all of its kind.

Order it and try it. Compare it with the kinds you know. If it excels them all, stock your pantry with it. Have on hand some dainty meals ready for instant serving.

Find out this matchless dish.

If you do not find Van Camp's the best beans you ever ate, your grocer will refund your money.

The Unrest of the Age

In Some of its More Familiar Aspects

By Adele Steiner Burleson

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

The World Is Sick

THE most striking characteristic of our age is our daring advance. A general forward movement, almost a charge along the whole front of civilization. As distinctive, almost, is its corollary, unrest. In our consideration of this latter peculiarity, let us be careful to avoid the very ordinary error, common to professional and lay-thinker, of mistaking the symptom for the disease itself. Civilization and its ailments may be drawn in close analogy to man and his ills; in both subjects, the confusion of symptom with cause must necessarily result in but imperfect conclusion, if indeed, any degree of correctness of diagnosis at all may be arrived at.

Just as surely as the fever of his patient, indicates to the physician that an invasion of hostile germs has been permitted somewhere through the failure of some protective tissue to bar their entrance, an inadequacy in any of the important functions of a community is indicated by appropriate signs significant to the trained social observer. In the body politic, derangements of the economic system or of the system of natural resources are followed by symptoms forming a procession of cause and effect quite comparable to the pathology of lesion in the vascular or in the nervous system of the individual. The analogy will be even clearer if we consider that, for our present purpose at any rate, the world as a world is but an agglomeration of peoples variously arranged into political and social divisions reducible at length to the individual.

It is but a glance further to see that, even as the pathology of social and natural disturbances are comparable, so also is their observation comparable as to methodology. The student of natural sciences performs certain experiments, either with a fixed purpose in view, or at random, and from their results draws his conclusions. So does the economist or the sociologist observe and conclude from the experiments to which society is subjected. The enactment of new and hitherto untried forms of legislation, the opening of new fields of natural resources, the launching of new industries and so on, are, from the point of view of the observer of social conditions, certainly just as experimental as, from the point of view of the biologist, the injection into living animal tissue of a new antitoxin together with its consequent reaction is an experiment. There are these differences, however; the student of the physical and natural sciences controls his experiments by the use of this or that reagent at will. His experiments are completed within a comparatively short period of time. They are conducted in an environment especially prepared for the purpose. The student of the social sciences, on the other hand, has no control over the experiments which he observes. The period of time required to procure results is long. The laboratory, not of his furnishing and of huge size, is crossed and counter-crossed by innumerable independant streams of influence which, together with noise and confusion of every sort, produce a chaotic condition in which it is difficult for him to follow the particular reaction he desires to observe. These considerations render it impossible, or at least highly improbable, for him to secure identical conditions in successive experiments.

With these differences in mind, we can conduct our investigation of Unrest in much the same attitude to the world as that of the student of biology to his subject. We substitute for the acids and alkalies, serums and what-not, reagents of the biologist, laws, institutions and traditions, reagents of the sociologist; instead of dogs and guineapigs and germs, we will observe men and women and human-nature. And if, like the skilled physician we go behind the symptom and reach here and there a true seat of infection we may then consider our diagnosis correct and suggest a remedy. Again, however, with that lack of control distinguishing the social from the physical researcher and which will prevent us from forcing any medicine down the throat of society, which, after all, may be a safeguard to society in the same ratio that a medical prescription may prove a decidedly negative benefit to the unfortunate for whom it is compounded.

Looking carefully then at the clinical record of our huge patient for the past few years, the first great, general symptom that commands our attention is Unrest. The world is sick in many of its organs, we say—it is nervous—it can't keep still. Not so very long ago Japan and Russia went to war. Continuous internal uprisings have been the rule in China—here there seems to be a particularly sore spot kept inflamed by constant fermentations of social orders undergoing change. In Germany the Socialist Party is heaving and straining in its efforts to give birth to something. In the Balkan Peninsula Mohammedan Turkey, a painful irritant, is being attacked in a war to the death by the Allied States bent on closing that gateway to further infection. In Russia the waves of oppressed serfdom are ever rolling against the contemptuous wall of governing aristocracy. Unless some powerful sedative be administered, it is only a question of time when the upward thrust will gain enough force to lift the barrier from its foundations. In England questions of social reform are burning questions. The unrest here surely cries aloud the presence of virulent toxins in the very vitals of society. It looks almost as though a major operation were indicated. On our own continent, there is civil war in Mexico and revolution follows revolution in the Latin Republics. The nature of these people renders them especially susceptible to the effects of any excitant. Capital and labor have fought battles in Michigan, in Colorado and in Oklahoma; in each, blood has been spilled.

Our farmer no longer creeps over the bumps of the country road behind his old-fashioned team. He hurries along in his automobile, only to be overtaken and lost in a rush of dust from the wheels of a faster machine driven by a more well-to-do man from town. The next instant he of the town is absolutely outclassed and put to shame by the wild burst of speed which soothes the jaded nerves of the millionaire from a distant city. Our millionaire is momentarily content- his is the ultimate of rapid motion. The medium-fast fellow is in despair because he cannot go as fast and makes rapid calculation as to the possibility of his junking his machine and buying a faster; they simply must keep up with the procession. When lo! like a bolt out of the blue an aeroplane drops past overhead with a velocity so appalling that all three stand aghast and the unrest of the age fires each soul with longing to travel at least as fast as this latest creation.

In society, fashion follows fashion to the accompaniment of strained purses and overtaxed ingenuities. Dance is superceded by dance in a limping, gliding, bending, whirling, ever changing confusion and each new variety fails as utterly as the last to calm the itching. The calamatist raises his eyes to heaven as he asks in shocked perplexity: where will it all end?

The Rightly and Wrongly Restless

And so the world is sick. And the distressing symptom of Unrest seems to pervade all its members. But Unrest is too broad a term and World too large a field for the limits of our inquiry. For the sake of brevity we will confine ourselves to some of the more obvious forms of unrest in our own country. For the sake of order, we will divide our restless people into two classes: first, those who are legitimately restless and, second, those whose restlessness is illegitimate. Those who strive with honest effort under adverse conditions, and those whose restlessness is due primarily to their failure to strive for anything at all worth while. Our classification postulates work as the basis of contentment. If the work performed be congenial and if it be effective work, all will be well. On the other hand, those who, under circumstances which permit of an election, choose to remain idle or who, if the privilege of choice is denied, are forced to labor at a great disadvantage develop into malcontents and the contagion of their unrest infects their whole neighborhood. We will direct our attention first to our workers who are, in a measure, denied any option in the matter of occupation.

The Conflict Between Capital and Labor

The constantly increasing tendency of organized labor to array itself against organized capital is becoming very familiar to us. On every hand, however, we hear diversity of opinion as to the cause. Too frequently wholesale condemnation of the labor unit or of the capital unit according as the speaker's sympathies lie. The labor partizan heaps malediction on the head of capital—blindly, unreasonably, hatefully staining he hands of capital with all the "heart-aches and the thousand natural shocks that man is heir to." The labor organizer makes his appeal directly to ignorance, fear and superstition and germinates in this fertile ground distrust of all institutions with which capital may in any way be connected. He will confess openly that he is forced to appeal to passions in order to induce labor to unite. Obviously, union on such a basis must be full of danger.

Capital too, arrogant with success and blind in the pursuit of greater success, damns the laborer for a savage who would shake the foundations of society if he could. It interprets the strike, not as the protest of a man and a woman who feel that their labors have earned a larger and a fairer share of the benefits of new civilization for themselves and their children; it sees a brute and his mate and their cubs who, enraged by the agitator's taunts, dare snarl for more and more.

This is a grave sickness that has come upon our state, but the restlessness it causes is legitimate. What is called the upper classes of society through brilliant, persistent research and industry have attained an outlook on life far broader than a hundred, or even fifty, years ago. Education, sciences, literature, art—everything—have been widened and explored and turned to general use as in no former age. Accruing benefits have been divided generously among the comfortably-well-off. The moderately successful man of today commands for himself and his family privileges absolutely unheard of to the man of corresponding station fifty years ago. He is entertained by drama and music which he could not have afforded in another age. Printing and publishing have placed in his hands general and special literature which, if accessible at all, have been hitherto luxuries of the very rich. The automobile together with cheap, rapid land and water transportatio, have lengthened the radius of his circle beyond limits ever dreamed of by his grandfather. He may visit this or that part of his own country or even travel abroad at comparatively small cost.

So we might go on to almost any length in bare enumeration of the advantages and new lines of endeavor which, owing to the marvelous activity of the twentieth century, have come within the scope of the small capitalist. However great the share of higher civilization has fallen to the lot of the moderately well-to-do man, advantages are correspondingly great to him of larger fortune. Going to the top of the scale, our millionaire is limited only by his capacity to grasp and to enjoy.

In the face of this great light of civilization which we have kindled, whose rays filter down through the classes to warm and brighten their lives, can we in fairness draw a screen about the home of the laborer? Bear in mind the nature of his work and remember that he cannot afford the pleasures to be bought with money. Practically all he can earn goes for bare necessaries; there is little left when those things are purchased without which he cannot live. Can we not arrange so that a few more of the rays which he has helped to kindle shall reach him? We do not ask for our laborer the identical comforts which our middle class worker can afford. A little more liberal wage, where it can be paid, a few minutes less to his per-diem hours of toil, a few more hours each week for relaxation and rest. It may be that, to him, such small concessions will spell the difference between unrest and rest.

Concessions That Are Labor's Due

There is this about it: If we cannot grant the laborer anything from the point of view of humanity, then we must for the safety of the state. We must not believe that our common sense is entirely lost in the confusion of strife. We have too much confidence in the ultimate good judgment of our people to believe that capital and labor, keeping each to his own side, will sit on the lid in stupid sullenness till the explosion comes which will split our institutions from stem to stern. Before we leave this phase of the subject, let us recall that only in rare instances and isolated exceptions has capital heretofore shown the foresight to grant benefits to labor unasked. It has been only through organized demand backed by organized strike that labor has gained any benefits at all from this age of enlightenment. But if capital has been delinquent in recognizing the necessity and in offering solution, the government and individuals acting in a mediatory capacity have shown some activity. Minimum wage scales, profit-sharing plans, shorter hours, sanitary rules, workingmen's compensation laws; all these are experiments which are being tried and whose reactions are being studied with a view to meeting the issue and curing the disease. When we feel inclined to condemn the labor organizations for their glaring faults; their advocacy of violence, their failure to place any premium on efficiency and so on, let us bear with them a while longer and rather blame capital for its failure to bring into use its superior intelligence. The day of the entirely benevolent employer has not yet dawned and we need not ask him to be particularly benevolent. But we can and should look to capital to lay its hand to the task for the common good; to realize that there is a grievance, often a just grievance, in any event a most real grievance which capital must make right for the reason that labor cannot.

Immigration Should Be Restricted

One other extenuating circumstance in the reprehensible tendency of striking laborers toward extreme methods; we refer to the large percentage of foreigners who now swell the ranks of the restless. These foreigners, largely of the South European and Asiatic races are far below our native artisan in natural intelligence. Deficient also in education and in balance of temperament, they have been unable as yet to absorb sufficient of our traditions to enable them to exercise the self-restraint necessary to democratic self-government. In this matter of unrestricted immigration of the less desirable aliens, we have an irritant to the national peace whose bad effects should not be overlooked and the necessity for correction of which should be called to the attention of our Congress in no uncertain terms.

The unrest, then, among our laboring classes is the legitimate unrest of a section of the people who have not reaped their fair share of the benefits of the general advance of civilization in our age. It is a grave sickness in our social structure—one which requires the attention of able minds. The freedom from hysteria characteristic of our people, is being rapidly weakened by foreign injections; but on it we must rely for the preservation of the public welfare until a real curative is discovered which will guarantee our tranquillity until the next rapid forward movement of civilization necessitates another readjustment.

Feminine Unrest

The laboring class is not the only large group, by any means, in which legitimate unrest shows the inadequacy of our institutions. The next symptom which, from its insistence, must receive our careful attention, finds form in the so-called Feminist Movement; the unrest of our women. Unlike the labor unrest, this variety extends in tortuous ramifications from the highest down through the lowest stratum of our social orders. The labor unrest was almost entirely economic in character while the feminine unrest seems to spring from a complexity of causes, varying widely according to point of observation, from psychological in one set of subjects, to sociological in another and economic unrest in still another. This also is a disease almost world-wide in extent, cropping out in symptoms peculiar to the locality in every civilized country from Arabia westward to the Pacific Ocean. Japan, China, India and countries on similar stages of advancement, seem to be effected hardly at all as yet. The lower orders seem to offer structural difficulties too great for this more refined germ to enter and attack successfully. In England the disease has passed to an exceedingly acute stage. In our own country, the symptoms if less violent, are no less persistent and generally diffused. Let us, then, see if we cannot trace some of these symptoms to their sources.

We are at first confronted with the fact that this particular unrest seems to have made its first appearance among our women of the leisure class (we must use the word "leisure" with reluctance, unwilling to lay upon the whole class the certain stigma which the term carries and which is truly applicable only to a portion of the class in question), and at first glance we might commit the error of denoting it illegitimate unrest. Upon careful thought, however, we will conclude that, if the unrest is found among women who do not work in the generally accepted sense of the word, it is not because they will not work but because they have hitherto been denied the privilege of choice. Bear in mind, illegitimate unrest, according to our classification, is unrest among those who, with the privilege of choice before them, have elected to remain idle. You may say; a member of a leisure class has a de facto liberty of choice. If we bear in mind the attitude of society toward the women of its so-called upper classes during the whole of the world's history since there have been upper classes, we will be forced to the admission that woman has been most effectually denied the right of any choice whatever. Hence her idleness is enforced and consequent unrest must be classed as legitimate.

Let us glance once more in a very general way at this matter of choice of occupation before going on to more specific analysis. Our women (we take the average woman of the middle and upper-middle classes as typical, reserving for separate discussion women of the laboring classes) have for generations been enclosed by very definite limitations as to occupation and conduct. We have not space to go into the origin of these limitations which date back to times when limitations were justified by the then transitional state of civilization; to the times when mankind, emerging from the barbarous to cross the treacherous new ground of semi-civilization, found it necessary to embody somewhere and confine its embryonic ideas of morality, and recognized in woman the ideal depository for them. Is it strange that the human race has guarded its treasures and could it do otherwise than guard the treasure chest?

There limitations of conduct have constrained woman to follow a path relieved by but few minor deviations from a certain average. In girlhood she was trained with an eye to future household duties. (It is an interesting digression here to note the state of mind of man was such that, although tacitly understood the girl should marry, her training was carefully purged of special knowledge pertaining to the birth and rearing of children; this in the face of the known fact that this knowledge would be sadly missed when the young woman should become a mother.) At the proper time, she married; and if her husband proved of the right sort all went well. The care and training of her children kept her mind busy and her hands occupied the greater part of the day and frequently, a goodly share of the night. These and other household duties together with the relaxation of occasional social and outdoor diversions filled her life completely. Her husband played the role of bread winner with more or less success, according to his aptitude and she performed the no less important function of bread saver; the division of labor was in perfect adjustment. This, say, from her twenty-first to her fortieth year. Then at little more than just past the middle point of the life history of the family, we note a decided change. The children have grown to a point where they no longer need detailed supervision—the mother is released from her absorbing work. The husband is to continue in his occupation till he dies. The children will soon go out and found families of their own. What is the mother to do?

In the days gone by, the comparatively crude equipment for the prosecution of household duties may still have demanded enough of her attention, augmented by increasing social duties, to fill her days reasonably full. She may have been complacent enough to find content in half filled days. Our generation, however, has seen such strides in specialized forms of production and service that housekeeping may be reduced to a system so perfect as to be almost self adjusting. Some good housekeepers will dispute us at this point. But we may safely say that housekeeping may be so arranged nowadays as to occupy a decidedly minor portion of an average day. Not only in its aspect of time-killer, but also from the point of view of exercise of ability, is modern housekeeping inadequate in many, many instances. The assertion (never proven) that there is any real difference between the sexes in respect to mental capacity for work fails utterly to satisfy our restless women. If man, from whom this assertion most frequently comes, will give a little thought to the question, he must at length admit that the comparatively simple matters of keeping a house in order cannot, after years of experience, occupy the entire mental capacity of his wife, if indeed, she be of average intelligence.

Under the circumstances, there remains for her but one course of action; to look elsewhere for employment. Not that every woman would display any surprising zeal for hard work if the obstacle of public opinion were removed any more than every man is possessed of consuming ambition. We can see no reason why the proportion of degrees of ambition in woman should differ materially from the degrees of ambition in man. All the more reason why comparatively rare instances of striking ambition in either sex should have all encouragement for its expression. Our habit of thought which groups all women together with one great class with respect to mentality is as highly erroneous as the statement that all men are created equal. It is as wasteful to the community and as unfair to the individual as the practise among labor unions of leveling down to the ability of the weakest.

Woman's Place in the Family

It is, however, absolutely true, arguments to the contrary notwithstanding, that an all-wise first cause constructed woman with physical and psychic peculiarities differing from the physical and psychic peculiarities of man. This differentiation is fundamental, perfectly balanced, undeniable. It has been demonstrated by millions of examples that our "family" is the most perfect economical unit. Important deviations from its essential form and practise are invariably disastrous. The physical and psychic peculiarities of woman will always operate as a hindrance to her departure from the fundamental plan of life; and indeed, we cannot find the slightest reason to believe that she has any inclination to overturn the laws of nature; this again in spite of the terror stricken cry of our calamatist—where will it all end?

There seems to be no lack of suggested cures for this unrest. They appear in printed form varying in volume from the pamphelt to the thick octavo. They vary in subject from purely political reform to advocacy of abolition of the marriage state and establishment in its stead free love on earth. The refutation of these specific sort of cures is a tempting subject; but our time is short and we must pass it by. We will simply find one general fault with them—they are too specific, too simple, too easy. The real cause lies deeper and its cure must be through a general overhauling which cannot be completed in a day or a month or a year but must occupy the whole training of the next generation. In order to make our meaning clearer we will glance at the high lights of the rearing of a typical boy and girl in an average family.

False Ideas of Chivalry

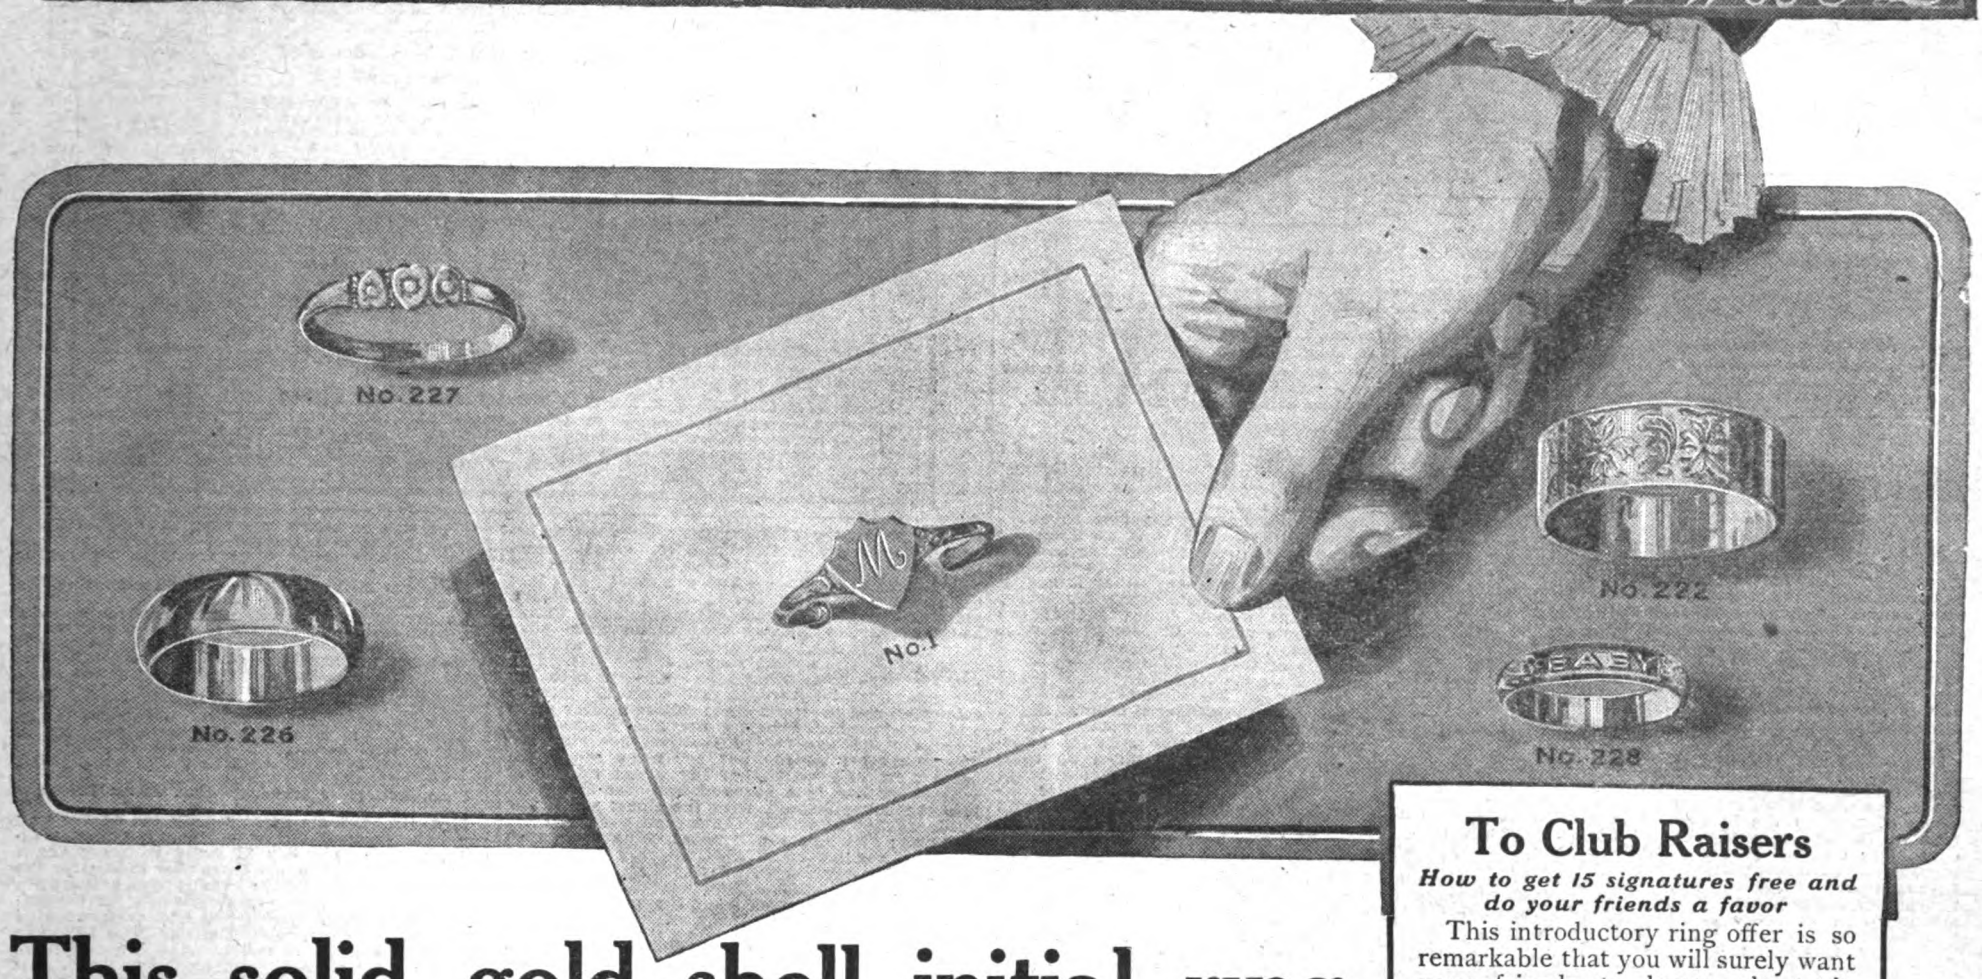
We have a mother, a father, a son and a daughter. We will examine the process of character formation in the son and daughter and see how it must be altered in order that the future woman may take advantage of the broadening of her opportunities toward which changing public opinion is rapidly tending.

From infancy up to their sixth or seventh year, there is little if any difference in the training of our boy and girl. Each is a little, sexless animal and their mother and father are properly satisfied if they but be healthy and grow. About the eighth year the little ones begin to perceive, vaguely, that there is a difference—that, somehow, one is a boy and the other a girl. Immediately the mother and father commence to direct their attention to this difference. In small and almost imperceptible ways at first and in the direction of physical inequality; notwithstanding the fact, that, at this early stage there is no material physical inequality. Little boys must not strike their little sisters; when a little girl wants a drink of water, a nice little boy should go and get it for her; and so on. The little boy is unable to see any reason why, when his sister has snatched away his toy, he should not resort to first principles and wallop her. He does, however, realize that if he persist in moving his sister's doll when she desires it to remain in a certain position, he is very likely to get scratched for his pains. He also fails to see the logic of a situation which demands that he should fetch a drink of water for his sister when they both have been playing till each is as tired as the other. Still, the mother and father insist there is a reason and by the time the boy and girl have developed into youth and maid, he has learned valuable lessons in self restraint and she has learned to throw justice to the winds and rely on the bias of special sex privilege. Mind, we do not advocate training our boy to take advantage of physical weakness. On the contrary, he should be taught never to take such an advantage. But it should be true and not artificial chivalry; he should go as quickly to the assistance of his weaker brother as his weaker sister. If he be taught this sort of chivalry, he will not fail to be the first to aid and comfort her whenever her physical strength proves unequal to the task she has in hand. Not only will he not fail, but he will rush to her aid with an enthusiasm very different from the perfunctoriness which attends his motions when he knows that she is just as well able as he to get for herself the drink of water or the chair. Possessed of this true chivalry, he will bear himself toward her in the greater as well as the smaller things of life, with a more sincere courtesy than when he feels that he must do thus and so because she is a "girl"; he will then be courteous to her for the same reason that he is courteous to his fellow man and the artificiality of their relations will disappear with the removal of artificial and substitution therefore of real reasons why.

Defects in our System of Higher Education for Girls

Come at length to their sixteenth or eighteenth year, they are sent away to school. The girl to finishing school, or simply boarding-school—her brother to college. (We must here admit an important exception in the increasing number of girls who take advantage of a college education. It is a most important and promising change from the old order.) The girls' school is almost sure to be pervaded with the same atmosphere of freedom from responsibility which she has breathed all her conscious life up to this time. She has lessons assigned to be learned—but nothing serious happens if she doesn't learn others. She is nursed and worried along till examination time when a ridiculously poor performance gains for her a ridiculously high grade. She is never expelled from the school except for grave breach of decorum in manners or morals. Imagine our complacent and self-satisfied boarding-school miss being quietly told by the faculty that, her work being below the standard of the institution, she is advised to go elsewhere for her education.

In addition to the low standard of work, she finds in the rules and regulations with which she is hedged about another demoralizing influence. Rules so petty and so arbitrary that they breed contempt in the keeping. She is not only required to do this and to do that in certain ways at certain hours, but even her personal peculiarities of carriage and manner are made the subject of comment and restriction and change. The sure result of all this is that the great fundamental lessons of life, self-control, self-knowledge and self-dependence, are entirely forgotten and untaught and our daughter emerges from her training school with her near-sighted eyes focused only on superficialities.



How has the boy fared meanwhile? His course has been simple and straightforward. He has entered the college of his choice and found himself his own master immediately. His first impression was, perhaps, one of bewilderment at the indifference of the faculty and of his classmates as to what would become of him. Lessons were assigned and recitations conducted, but little attention was paid to how or where he lived and learned. All the authorities required seemed to be that, before he received his diploma, he should have completed a certain amount of work. The presence of repeaters in his class and information regarding "fellows who had flunked" indicated that he had better do the work or get out. We are forced to admit that many boys do come out of college with a surprisingly small knowledge of the subjects studied. But our boy has at least come through on his own responsibility and he has, therefore, learned self-control or suffered so from the lack of it that he at least knows the value of it.

Now each is prepared to enter real life and if we have put before the reader the gist of the character of training that each has had, we may leave it to him to say which has the better equipment. The girl now makes her "debut" in society and her limited environment continues to feed her untruth about herself till she feels sure of what she has long suspected—that the world owes her a good time. The boy has no option but to go to work, and once embarked on his line of endeavor we may leave him to his own devices for he will be thus occupied till he dies. The girl is spending her time in diversion and society concerns itself inventing new forms to take the place of those which have cloyed. This activity may go on for months or years according to the temper of our girl; but at length nature asserts itself in spite of the attempts of society to keep her amused—and she marries.

We have already glanced at her married life and noted how, for a time fully occupied, she is more than content. How at length, her work

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 15.)

A B C D E F G H I J K L M N O P Q R S T U V W X Y Z

This solid gold-shell initial ring given to you

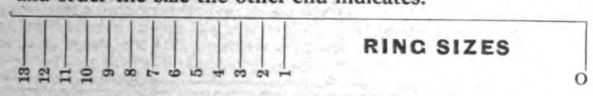
Wonderful introductory offer—closes April 30, 1915. Send the coupon below today with a signature from a one-pound package of Arbuckles' Ariosa or Arbuckles' Ground Coffee, and 10 cents in stamps or coin.



Cut out the coupon now and mail today

Get one of these beautiful initial rings, with any letter that you may desire placed on the heart. Its value is remarkable. It is an absolutely solid gold shell-ring (not a washed or electro-plated ring) and we guarantee it to give excellent wear. If it does not, it will be cheerfully exchanged at once, without a question. You could not get a better guarantee if you paid many times the price!

How to determine the size you want

This ring is offered in sizes from 1 to 10. Be sure to give the ring size, and initial desired. (Only one letter on each ring.)

To determine the size you need, cut a strip of thick paper, so that the ends will exactly meet, when drawn tightly around the second joint of the finger. Then lay one end of the strip at 0, on the diagram (shown below) and order the size the other end indicates.

We make this astounding offer to induce you to try one pound of Arbuckles' Ariosa or Arbuckles' Ground Coffee now—to have you compare it, in flavor and aroma, with the coffee you now serve. Learn why more Arbuckles' Ariosa and Arbuckles' Ground Coffee is sold than any other packaged coffee.

In over a million American homes, every morning, a piping hot cup of Arbuckles' starts the day. Its tempting coffee aroma makes keen the appetite. It is good coffee—so good that it could never be offered at the price, were it not for its tremendous sales.

Try it today, and get one of these valuable initial rings for yourself or for some one in your family. Cut out the coupon now. Then buy one pound of Arbuckles' Ariosa (whole bean) or Arbuckles' Ground Coffee, cut the signature from the package, and send it with the coupon and 10 cents in stamps or coin. Do it today, so that you will not forget. This is a special introductory offer, remember, and lasts only until April 30th, 1915.

Mail the coupon with the signature and 10 cents to Arbuckle Bros., 71-B Water Street, New York

Other wonderful rings you can get

No. 226, Wedding Ring. Mail the coupon below with nine Arbuckle signatures and a 2 cent stamp. This solid gold-filled ring is for men or women; it is of good weight; and wears well. It is one of our most popular presents. Tens of thousands of men and women every year earn it. Give size.

No. 228, Baby Ring. Mail the coupon below, with seven Arbuckle signatures and a 2 cent stamp. This solid gold-shell ring is a lovely new pattern; word "Baby" embossed, and dainty flower design. Sizes ½ to 4. Give size.

No. 222, Fancy Band Ring. Mail the coupon below, with eight Arbuckle signatures and a 2 cent stamp. This ring is for men or women. Solid gold-shell; exceptionally beautiful pattern. Give size.

No. 227, Heart Ring. Mail the coupon below, with twelve Arbuckle signatures and a 2 cent stamp. This solid gold-shell ring is for ladies or misses; the design is three hearts each set with imitation turquoise. Give size.

To Club Raisers

How to get 15 signatures free and do your friends a favor

This introductory ring offer is so remarkable that you will surely want your friends to know about it. Under the following club offer, it will be well worth your while to tell them, and they will thank you, too.

Send the coupon below, with one signature, and 10 cents in stamps or coin, and we will send you at once one of these beautiful initial solid gold-shell rings. This will be your ring. Use it to show your friends what a remarkable offer this is. Get five of them (not already using Arbuckles' Coffee) to take advantage of this offer, just as you have. We will mail each of your friends direct the beautiful ring, when you send us the money and signatures for the five rings.

For doing this you will earn 15 signatures free.

When we send you your ring, we will send a special blank, giving full and clear instructions as to what you have to do to get these 15 signatures free. At the same time, we will send you our beautiful new catalog, showing the wide choice of wonderful gifts you can get for 15 signatures.

Then you can advise us what you want for the 15 Arbuckle signatures that you get free; or, if you so desire, we will mail you a credit for the 15 signatures, which you can count with signatures cut from our coffee packages for articles which require a greater quantity.

Mail the coupon now, with one Arbuckle signature and 10 cents.

Better than ever

State here No. of ring you want ..... Size wanted .....
If initial ring, letter desired (only one letter on each ring) .....
Name ..... State .....
No. and Street ..... or R. D. .....
City .....

This coupon, with 10 cents and one signature is good for the initial ring shown above, or, with the proper number of signatures, for any of the other presents shown. This offer does not hold good after April 30, 1915. Only one coupon accepted from any one person or family.

ARBUCKLE BROS.,
71-B Water St., New York.

With this coupon I enclose ..... signatures from Arbuckles' Coffee and .... cents for which please send me the above.

LEAGUE RULES: To be a comfort to one's parents. To protect the weak and aged. To be kind to dumb animals. To love our country and protect its flag.

CONDUCTED BY UNCLE CHARLIE

COMFORT for 15 months and admittance to the League of Cousins for only 30 cents. Join at once. Everybody welcome.

NEVER send a subscription to Uncle Charlie, nor to the Secretary of the League.

NEVER write a subscription order or application for membership in the body of a letter. Write the order on a separate sheet from the letter, and then both may be mailed together in the same envelope.

ADDRESS all letters to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. See Instructions at the close of this Department.

THIS is COMFORT's home number. There is no word in the English language that stirs the heart or the imagination, no word that is more appealing or beautiful than home. Every worth while memory centers around the home, for there it was that mother lived, and there too perhaps she died. But anyway there is scarcely a man woman or child, unless they were born in institutions, that are not profoundly stirred by thoughts of home. No matter how humble or how mean that home may have been there are always memories and associations that make it a hallowed and sacred spot, even to the most hardened and callous of humans. Probably seventy per cent of the homes that people cherish reverently in the hallowed halls of memory, were unsanitary hovels erected by speculative builders for profit, devoid of beauty and comfort, and yet by a thousand tender associations inexpressibly dear to those who once inhabited them. There are thousands of men on the battle line in Europe and tens of thousands in the United States, whose only home consists of a room or two in a cottage, shack, or tenement, inhabited by from three to half-a-dozen or more people. In spite of an upbringing among sordid and poverty-stricken surroundings, men are still willing to go and fight in defense of even these apologies for homes. That only shows you the inherent good there is in human nature. Just as mankind is menaced by millions of visible and invisible enemies (everything about us being alive with myriads of disease germs) so is the home menaced by scores of enemies, and no enemy more merciless and destructive than alcohol, the poison which men and women put into their mouths to destroy health, character and soul. Now how many of you read the editorial in our February issue? Probably half of you skipped it, as editorials are supposed to be dry reading. If you didn't read that preachment look up your February COMFORT, or borrow your neighbor's if you have lost it, and read, study and ponder that article well. I wish to make a personal appeal to COMFORT's readers, especially the men, and the boys who will soon be men, to strike a blow at the liquor traffic, the deadliest foe of the American home. Now I don't want to quote a lot of statistics to you (you'll find figures a plenty in the February editorial) for all the figures in the world won't make as deep an impression on you as will the narration of a few facts gleaned from the field of my own life experience.

I have had a great deal of experience with the drink business. There are few men who know more about it theoretically and practically than I do. Whiskey I never had any use for, and I don't think in all my life I ever bought myself a drink of whiskey, except when it was taken in a milk punch, or with hot lemonade to produce perspiration and help break up a cold or when sipped once or twice as a heart stimulant. I've emptied into convenient cuspidors many a quart of fine champagne (bought by some idiotic money burner) so that I could get up the next morning with a clear head. The boozy fizz water has no attraction for me, but I frankly confess I enjoyed a bottle of beer, or a glass of claret at mealtimes, and often after the performance at night, when I was on the stage, and had been in a stuffy, unventilated theater, singing or shouting my head off for four long hours, I have in a prohibition town, turned the whole place upside down to get a glass of beer as an accompaniment to a midnight lunch of sandwiches or crackers and cheese. One bottle was all I wanted. Water on those occasions didn't satisfy or hit the spot. You see I want to be frank with you all, and as there are at least a million users of alcohol who will read this article, and as it is to those of our readers I wish particularly to appeal, I want them to know that I thoroughly appreciate the enjoyment they get out of their beer or light wines, but never can I, or could I understand why men want to drink that dirty, vile, rotten, poisonous stuff, called whiskey. Now I'm not going to plead for beer and damn whiskey, but on the contrary I want even the beer drinkers to help me abolish both breweries and distilleries, because both are unnecessary and dangerous, and both are a menace to the individual, the home, and the race.

Now you all know I have devoted almost my entire energies in this department to championing the cause of the masses, the plain people of the United States. I have upheld the cause of the wage workers and toilers against the spoilers; and more than once my enthusiasm for the under dog has caused me days of anguish, heartache and suspense and taken the vitality from my body and left me wrecked physically, and bankrupt in hope. So when I appeal to you men who support on your stalwart shoulders the burdens of the world I am talking to you not as a stranger, but as one of yourselves, one who knows in watch directions your interests lie, far more than you do yourselves, for when you think, you think only of conditions as they affect you, while I think of conditions as they affect all men, and all women, and all children. The lot of the toilers is hard enough heaven knows, but they have made it immeasurably harder by hugging to their breasts this devilish destroyer of health, morals and character—alcohol. You kick and complain about low wages, long hours, low standards of living, the hopelessness of the struggle, the lack of a future, the hardships of life, then you go and take about a third of the wretched pittance you get for your toil, and squander it on poison, rum, whiskey and sloppy chemicals called beer. Granted this stuff makes you forget your troubles for a while, but does it make your wife forget her troubles or your children forget their miseries, or give you the strength to fight the rich loafers who suck your vitality and ride upon your back? Does it make the boss have more respect for you and prompt him to give you more of the wealth you create? No, you poor benighted boneheads, it does not do anything of the kind. Instead of fuddling your brains with booze if you kept them clean and bright, you would be in a position to do some real thinking and have sufficient strength and courage to fight your exploiters. If booze made you forget your troubles forever and gave you the rosy view that alcohol so briefly supplies, I would tell you to go wallow in it, drown yourselves in it, but for the few brief moments of forgetfulness that liquor gives you, you empty your pockets, you make your half-clad children still more naked and still more hungry, and you send another knife thrust deep into the heart of the woman who loves you, the one-time little girl who was the idol of your youthful dreams, but who is now a woman devoid of hope, nourishing in her frail worn bosom the fragments of a heart that you have broken beyond repair. Your pitiless employers watch you keenly, and contemptuously say: "What is the good of raising these men's wages, when they already throw away a third of what we give them?" Then they salve their consciences or what with them stands for conscience, with the thought that if you had more in your pay envelope it would only mean more for the saloon and no more for your homes, and by the eternal they are not far wrong. Remember we spend one and three quarter billions of dollars on whiskey—that is nearly two thousand millions of dollars yearly for poison—and most of that money comes out of the pockets of the people who don't earn more than twelve dollars a week, and a vast deal of it comes out of the pockets of those who don't earn more than ten dollars a week. Now do you get that? Wise up if you are not too soused, pickled, and stewed to grasp what these figures mean. Drink has always been the curse of the working class, the saloon their arch enemy, and until the wage-earning masses of this republic make up their minds to cast out the vile rum demon, and sever their connection with it forever, there is absolutely no hope for them. The abolition of the drink traffic, root and branch, is the first great work that the masses of the people must accomplish if they ever intend to get out of the miry sloughs of squalor, filth, poverty, degradation and all-round wretchedness that so many millions now wallow in. Once the saloon is abolished, the stupefied brain cleared up, the home will take on a different aspect and so will the world at large. The social hall will replace the saloon and men will meet not for the purpose of befuddling their half developed brains with poison, but to stimulate them with healthy intercourse and polish them with an exchange of ideas on all matters that make for uplift and betterment. For a nation of drunkards there is no hope, and we come mighty nigh being that kind of a nation in spite of prohibition. Prohibition at present does not remove the menace of drink. As I said before in these columns, it drives it under, but does not drive it out. It makes liquor harder to get but not impossible to get. If we had nation-wide prohibition and knew that we couldn't get liquor at any price, we would gladly begin to forget that there ever was any such rotten dope as whiskey. The old craving would gradually disappear. Our children would be brought up in a saloonless land without any inherited craving for poisonous stimulants, and the billions that are now spent for poison would be (and soon will be), spent to make this country a land worth living in. A sober nation would soon be a thinking nation, and a thinking nation would soon be an educated nation, a nation without prisons, police, poorhouses, crime, poverty, prostitution, and all other kinds of sin and degeneracy, that are largely the result of drink. If you doubt this, look at Kansas, there are counties in Kansas that have no poorhouses and no poverty. There are counties where it is useless for the judges to sit, for there are no criminals to be put on trial. People who reside in Kansas will on an average, live six years longer than people who live in Missouri, where booze runs free and gin mills work overtime. There are young people in Kansas rapidly approaching their maturity who have never seen a saloon in operation and know nothing of its evils. In another generation when the liquor traffic and the saloon have been abolished our grandchildren will be telling their children how in grandfather's day, this beautiful land was smothered with poison dens, vile holes where men tried to ruin their bodies and their souls with fiery liquor, which made them akin to beasts, the prey of conscienceless employers and rascally political bosses, and made the young woman the prey of fiends who used liquor to stupefy them ere they accomplished their ruin. The generations yet unborn will look down upon us much as we today look down upon the hogs, and they will wonder how we ever allowed this monster to fasten itself upon us and push us into disease, crime, slavery, degeneracy and death. You were told in our February editorial, you moderate drinkers, that you were not giving your children a chance. What is moderation with you heredity may make wild excess with them. I knew a family, very close to my own, where the son and the daughter of parents who never drank anything more than a glass of beer at dinner-time, became eventually the most abject and inveterate drunkards. Both the son and the daughter married, and each had large families. The son had a family of six sons and two daughters. Three of the six drank themselves to death, the two others are besotted degenerates, one only escaping the inherited appetite. One daughter also drinks. The other family has a record almost as bad. These two families had every advantage that money and position could give. They did not drink because of the hardship of their lives or to make them forget the misery of their lot. They drank because they had inherited an uncontrollable craving for stimulants. They were not born into the world, they were damned into the world; and just because their grandparents unfortunately liked a glass of beer at mealtime. I could tell you things about these two families that would make your hair stand on end. The drunkard's wife was one of the noblest, sweetest women I ever met. Her parents were total abstainers. She stuck to her drunken husband through all sorts of terrible calamities and bore him eight children. Her pride and joy was her youngest son and I remember when the lad was twelve years of age standing by the mother as she put her arms round the boy's neck and he patted her cheek and tried to comfort her (the husband had just staggered into the house drunk), with the eldest son a few yards behind him, also drunk and the youngest boy said: "Mother I will never drink and cause you pain and sorrow. The others may break your heart but I never will. I'm going to be a minister and every sermon I preach will be against drink." I remember well what the mother replied. She kissed that beloved boy of hers and said: "Ralph, all I hope is that God will spare me to hear your first sermon." That boy was one of the handsomest, finest, most lovable young fellows I ever met. He went to one of our greatest universities and became one of the finest musicians in the land. One night he was playing some piano music at a swell social function at which he was a guest and two society women simply forced a glass of champagne to his lips and made him drink it. That was his finish. The stuff took hold of him as wind takes hold of a prairie fire. Two years ago while suffering from delerium tremens he jumped out of the window of a hospital and crashed to death on the sidewalk below. One night while visiting this family, I was awakened about three o'clock in the morning by the most blood-curdling screams I ever heard in all my life. The screams were repeated again and again, and then I heard a voice shrieking hysterically: "Stop that clock! stop that clock! or I'll go mad! Listen to what it says, tick, tick, drunkard's wife! tick, tick, drunkard's wife!" Then I heard a rushing of feet. It was the boy whose life was later crushed out on the sidewalk. His arms were about his mother and he was comforting and soothing her as a mother comforts a babe. He was raining kisses on that poor tortured brow and pleading with his mother not to upset herself and to "please go back to bed and sleep." The drunken husband snored on oblivious to all. A younger child terrified by the screams of its mother, was crying pitifully in an adjoining room. I shall never forget that night and that incident as long as I live. My brave little hostess with a smile on her face apologized the next morning for disturbing my rest. Oh, the tragedy of that martyred soul's life.

CHARLES NOEL DOUGLAS DRAKE, AGE THREE MONTHS.

Won't you moderate drinkers bear this incident in mind when you are sipping the glass that seems so innocent to you, but which may mean a trail of suffering and death to generations unborn? It is no use talking to the chronic souse, the toper, the drunkard, the boozologist. They should all be rounded up and given a course of treatment (part of the treatment should be a sound thrashing once a week) and then employed at farm labor, healthy out-of-door exercise for a few years until every trace of alcohol had been worked out of their systems, and then sent home on probation. Moderate drinkers are not enslaved by rum, but they have the ability to enslave others. It would call for little sacrifice on their part to give up their social glass, and if the American workingman will but save the money he wastes in the saloon he has an excellent chance of eventually making the home which he now scorns, a home worth while. Let labor divorce itself from rum and the saloon, and do more thinking and less drinking, then it will be in a fair way of becoming the greatest political and social power in the land, something it will never be while enslaved by rum. Don't waste your votes on the prohibition party, good though its intentions are, it is a party that is worse than dead and can accomplish nothing and is going downhill all the time. Force the old and new parties to put a prohibition plank in their platforms. Give the women the vote. One woman will do more to close up a saloon than fifty men, for it is she and her children who suffer most from the poison den's activities. And you men bear this in mind, it is the liquor interests, those big, swinish booze manufacturers, those wholesale poisoners, who are spending millions to fight woman's suffrage. They are mortally afraid of the women for they know women are their deadly foes. They are not afraid of the men, they know how to handle them, but they are in deadly fear of the women, for they cannot be bought, cajoled, influenced or frightened. Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned or a woman wronged, and the booze shop has been woman's scourge, her mortal enemy, and she has declared war on it to the death. Now wake up and get busy and help her in the fight, for she is fighting your battle, fighting to make you pants wearing, swilling male geese into real men. Wake up I say and let this land of ours set a glorious example to the world, by crushing under its heel man's greatest curse and his most relentless foe.

Join the League and get our new correspondence list; contains hundreds of names—just out.

If you haven't a set of Uncle Charlie's three wonderful books your home is not complete and you are not equipped for the full enjoyment of life. Start in at once to obtain them.—they cost you no money, only a very little time and effort.—and keep at it until you have the entire set. The book of Poems is beautifully bound in ribbed silk stiff covers; the Story Book is bound in two styles, the one in ribbed silk stiff covers like the Poems, the other in paper covers; the Song Book is bound only in heavy paper covers. All can be had free as premiums; the Book of Poems or the Story Book in ribbed silk stiff covers, either one for a club of four subscriptions; the Song Book or the Story Book in handsome paper covers for a club of only two subscriptions. See full particulars at the end of this department. These three books are a library of endless joy and merriment, the best medicine to drive away the blues.

Now for the letters.

TOLBERT, TEXAS.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I will write you a few lines this rainy night. I am a young woman, and mother of one child, a little boy three months old. His name is Charles Noel Douglas Drake. My mother, Mrs. C. C. Hornsby, named him. She, as well as myself, are great admirers of Uncle Charlie. I will send you one of the baby's pictures. He is the only child in the family as my mother never had any children but myself.

We live in the house with my mother and father. We have all of Uncle Charlie's books.

We live on the farm and prefer farm life to town life, as I have lived in town the biggest part of my life. I wish that dear Uncle Charlie was able to visit us and see his little namesake. I do hope he will makes as smart a man as the one he is named after. Now Uncle, write me a personal letter if you have time. I would enjoy it very much. Let me know whether you got the picture or not, and how you like it. I wrote this as a personal letter to you, but if you think it is worth printing you can do so.

I will stop and rock the little one to sleep. With love to Uncle Charlie,

I am, Lovingly a friend, MRS. ADELE DRAKE.

Mrs. Drake, I am greatly delighted at the way you have honored me by upholstering that magnificent little baby boy of yours with my name. I'm afraid you've jonahed the poor kiddie for the rest of his life, and have handicapped him with a hoodoo, which I fear may follow him for the balance of his days. I wish you had communicated with me before burdening the dear little kiddie so rashly, as a name like mine is rather dangerous to wear these stormy, gory, troublous times. For the sake of peace and quietness and to be on the safe side, I've been to the hospital and have had a section of my old name amputated and instead of Uncle Charlie I am now Uncle Hans Dinkelspiel on week days and Uncle Charlie on Sundays. I've also dismissed my Irish Billy Goat and now have a dachshund whose name is Fritz. Having done everything for the sake of world peace and international harmony I will now proceed. I've been looking at the picture of your little boy for the last half hour, and he suggested a train of thought that has filled me with envy. If I were rich I would give a thousand dollars to anyone who could tell me what thought that budding life has suggested. Bet none of you would ever earn the money. Now I've been thinking of what wonderful things that baby is going to see in the course of his existence and what glorious changes for the better are going to take place in the short span of Charles Noel Douglas Dinkelspiel Drake's seventy year career on this little gob of floating dust, on which we make our home. Before C. N. D. D. D. is twenty-one years of age he will have seen the republican and democratic parties disappear from political life. By the time he is ten years of age he will see the telegraph and telephone service operated by Uncle Sam, and by the time he is fifteen he will see all the railroads in government hands. If he ever runs a fast freight between Kankakee and Kalamazoo it is your Uncle Sam who will pay him for doing the job. By the time he is fifteen there won't be a saloon in the land, or a woman who can't vote, nor an unemployed man that cannot at any moment get a job from the state or federal authorities. By the time C. N. D. D. D. is fifteen there will not be a tramp in the land, for by that time we shall have solved the question of the unemployed, and by that time I don't think there will be quite as many billionaires as there are now. If there are, Master Charles Noel Douglas Dinkelspiel Drake I fervently hope that some kindly planet, some fiery comet on a rampage will have crashed into this servile, cringing earth and shattered it into a trillion, billion pieces. By the time you are twenty-five my dear laddie, all the young people will be receiving an education for life and not for business, and by the time you are thirty-five a fallen man will be regarded with as much abhorrence as a fallen woman; no working girl will have to depend

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 30.)

Cornish Why Shouldn't You Buy As Low As Any Dealer?

Will Be Sent To You For a Year's Trial

More than 250,000 people have saved from $100 to $150 on a high grade piano and from $25 to $50 on a first class organ in purchasing by the Cornish plan—and so can you. We offer to send you an instrument, freight paid if you wish, with the understanding that if it is not sweeter and richer in tone and better made than any you can find at one-third more than we ask, you may at any time within a year send it back at our expense, and we will return any sum that you may have paid on it, so that the trial will cost you absolutely nothing,—you and your friends to be the judge and we to find no fault with your decision.

You Choose Your Own Terms

Take Three Years to Pay If Needed. The Cornish Plan, in brief, makes the maker prove his instrument and saves you one-third what other manufacturers of high grade instruments must charge you to protect their dealers and agents.

Let Us Send to You Free the New Cornish Book

It is the most beautiful piano or organ catalog ever published. It shows our latest styles and explains everything you should know before buying any instrument. It shows why you cannot buy any other high grade organ or piano anywhere on earth as low as the Cornish. You should have this important information before making your selection. Write for it today and please address Dept. CT.

Cornish Co., Washington, N. J. Established Over 50 Years

The New "ARROW" Read! Electrically Lighted!

Easy motorcycle saddle—New coaster brake—motorcycle mud guards, stand and parcel rack—motor cycle pedals—long rubber grip motorcycle handle bars—reinforced motor cycle frame. Fisk Red Tread Clincher Tires—beautiful finish. Write.

New Motorcycle Type

Write for our new 1915 catalog. Read the wonderful 1915 improvements above. Nothing like this bicycle ever offered before. Other features, too. Send for catalog. The New Arrow—the most wonderful bicycle value ever built. All sizes for boys, men and women.

Pay as You Ride A small amount down brings you the 1915 Arrow—enjoy riding it right away—pay just a little each month while you ride. Write for rock-bottom direct offer.

WRITE TODAY Get our new free catalog of this wonderful 1915 Arrow and our rock bottom offer. No obligations. Don't delay Write NOW.

Arrow Cycle Co., Dept. 3043 California & 19th St., Chicago, Ill.

GO INTO THE MOVING PICTURE BUSINESS

Write For FREE Catalog

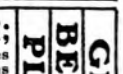
On Our Easy Payment Plan

Make $20 to $50 per night

With our Moving Picture Outfit—We sell everything—Films, too.

National Moving Picture Co.

Dept. 1-C Ellsworth Bldg., Chicago, Ill.



Southern Office: MONARCH FILM SERVICE, Dept. 1-C, 228 Union Ave., Memphis, Tenn.

Stem Wind & Set

WATCH, RING AND CHAIN GIVEN

For selling thimbles and needles. We positively give a genuine American Stem Wind and Set Watch, beautifully designed case, warranted time-keeper, 5-Year guarantee, Sparkling Set or Plain Ring, all for selling 20 Silver-Aluminum Thimbles at 10c each. Paper of Gold-Eye Needles Free with each Thimble. Easy to sell. Write for them. When sold return the $2 and we will send the watch and ring. Ladies' or Gents' style Chain.

HOME SUPPLY CO., Dept. 212 Chicago-Ill.

UNCLE SAM IS BEST EMPLOYER; pay is high and sure; hours short; places permanent; promotions regular; vacations with pay; thousands of vacancies; all kinds of pleasant work everywhere; no layoffs; no pull needed; Common education sufficient. Special money back guarantee if you write today for booklet B-1015. IT IS FREE.

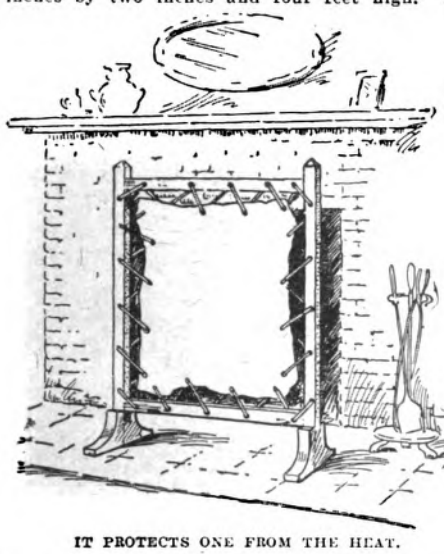
EARL HOPKINS, - Washington, D. C.

GET A BETTER PLACE

Decorative Furnishings Useful and Easy to Make

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

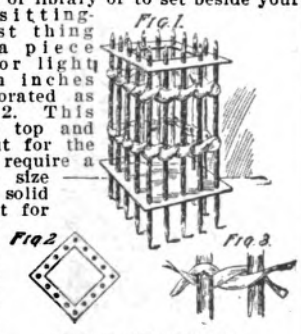
A Pergola



The pergola or outside window shade is a bit of decoration that adds a real touch of refinement to even a simple cottage. The thing is to build it of the right proportions. The sketch suggests a simple and efficient plan for this purpose. The material recommeded is cypress. The curved pieces must not be more than a half inch thick and will bend more readily if soaked in boiling water or steamed. The work is of the simplest character and may be superintended by anyone who has the good fortune to have this number of COMFORT. What is more charming than a pergola shaded window with a green creeper trailing over it?

GIVES A TOUCH OF REFINEMENT.

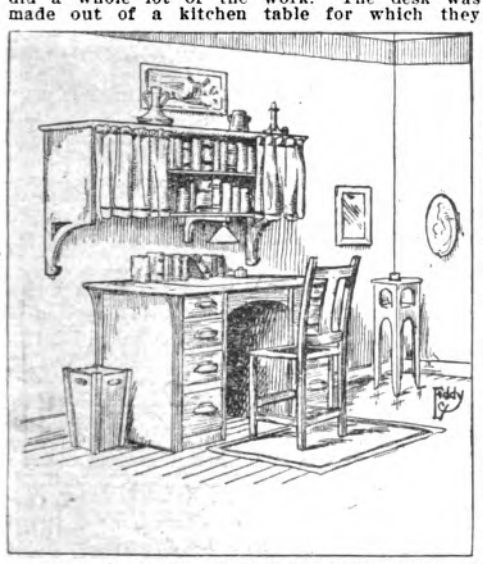
Fire-Screens



This little cut shows an article of simplicity and genuine merit. It is a fire-screen made of a hide laced into the frame with buckskin. It will lend refinement and charm to your dining-room and by its homely beauty suggest strongly the good taste of its owner. Little need be said concerning its construction. The posts are two inches by two inches and four feet high. The material and workmanship must be of the best. Bore the holes before any paint is applied, and swab some inside same to avoid a shoddy appearance. Several coats of mission stain and a thorough polishing with wax will make a rich, satiny surface that will be appropriate.

IT PROTECTS ONE FROM THE HEAT.

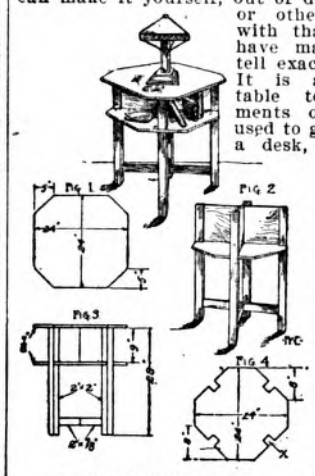
Waste Basket



This design is neat, serviceable and appropriate for a country home. It makes a pretty waste basket for the den or library or to set beside your desk in the sitting-room. The first thing you need is a piece of cardboard or light wood sixteen inches square and perforated as shown in Fig. 2. This piece is for the top and has no center but for the bottom you will require a piece of similar size and shape that is solid throughout, except for the holes. When you have cut the holes in the cardboard procure several dozen straight twigs about a quarter of an inch in diameter and two feet high. Insert them into the holes in the bottom piece and push the top frame down over them. The twigs are then intertwined with raffia or colored ribbon. If you know how to plait straw you can, from this idea, evolve something very nice in the way of a waste basket. It would make a fine gift to give your city friend as a souvenir of a country visit.

THE HANDY BASKET.

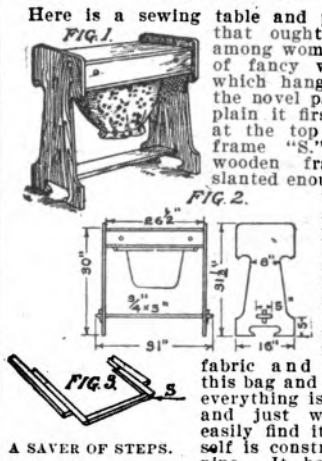
Work Corner



Here is a view of a work corner in an humble home. Every article shown was built by the man at the suggestion of his wife. In fact she was the brains behind the entire scheme, and did a whole lot of the work. The desk was made out of a kitchen table for which they had no further use. It was not easy work but it was pleasant and taught them many things. The book rack was made from common pine boards. The waste basket consists of heavy brown cardboard from a tailor's packing case, and four light posts. The wife did this all herself as a surprise. The stand in the corner is another of her designs, worked out one evening after supper. The whole set was finished in dark oak and certainly looked nice. Utility was the main point aimed at and it was well achieved.

WOMAN'S INGENUITY AND MAN'S PATIENCE.

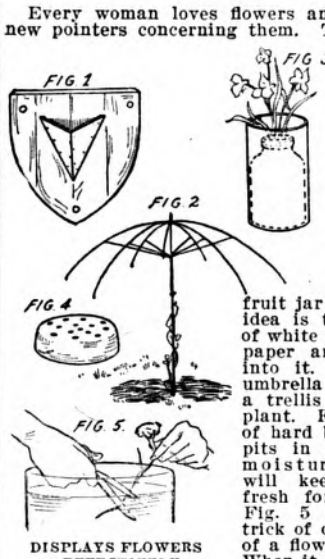
Table



The novel features of this center table are of real every-day use in the home. I believe you can make it yourself, out of discarded bedsteads or other furniture, and with that end in view I have made the drawings tell exactly how to do so. It is a desirable card table to serve refreshments on. It might be used to good advantage for a desk, and as a study table for the children it has no superior. I might also add that it will do as a sewing or dressing table but I will leave you to use it as you will. Fig. 1 shows the shape of the top and the dimensions used in cutting it out. The under part or shelf resembles it in shape but it has four notches cut for the legs. The legs are two inches square. The fastening is done by cutting mortises for the under braces and the partition pieces. Glue and concealed screws reinforce the joints. To finish in mission style, apply water stain-filler of the right shade and then wax polish in the order named. The table will amply repay you in good service for any trouble you take in making it.

AN ALL-AROUND TABLE.

Sewing Table



Here is a sewing table and patch receptacle that ought to find favor among women who do a lot of fancy work. The bag which hangs underneath is the novel part so I will explain it first. It is sewed at the top to the wooden frame "S." This light wooden frame is just slanted enough on the edges to hang in place and may be pulled out and pushed in like a slide drawer. This is illustrated in Fig. 3. When you are through working, put the fabric and needlecase into this bag and slide it in. Then everything is out of the way and just where you can easily find it. The table itself is constructed of yellow pine. It has a convenient slide drawer on top and a shelf underneath. It is unique and serviceable, in fact you cannot appreciate its value properly unless you own one.

A SAVER OF STEPS.

Flower Stunts

Every woman loves flowers and likes to read new pointers concerning them. The first sketch, marked Fig. 1, is a wall pocket to hold a plant to go on a fence, or porch post or garden wall. It is popular in England, and may be made by the housewife out of an old soap box. Fig. 3 shows a way of using a fruit jar for a vase. The idea is to make a tube of white or fancy-colored paper and set the jar into it. Fig. 2 is an umbrella frame used as a trellis for a climbing plant. Fig. 4 is a piece of hard baked clay with pits in it. It absorbs moisture rapidly and will keep cut flowers fresh for a long time. Fig. 5 illustrates the trick of cutting the stem of a flower under water. When it is cut any other way, air enters and forms a barrier to the moisture which should travel through the stem. This little bit of science applied to every-day life is well worth following.

DISPLAYS FLOWERS EFFECTIVELY.

Improving the Arch

An old-fashioned bare arch is rather ghastly looking but may be improved at a moderate cost. in a way that will add cheer and coziness to the home. The picture shows pretty clearly how this may be accomplished. The idea is to have a built-in cabinet at one or both sides of the opening and short columns running from their tops to the arch top. The cabinets may be used for books or photographs and have stained glass or leaded glass doors. The material should, of course, be like the rest of the woodwork. In most cases yellow pine is used. Any handy man, or the woman of the house herself, may do this work by going at it carefully and methodically. If round columns are used they will have to be purchased at the mill. Varnish, with a little stain added to darken it, will make the new lumber pretty much like the old. Three coats are needed, the first thinned one half with turpentine, the second one fourth and the third full strength.

BEAUTY AND UTILITY COMBINED.

$2.48 each Smooth Tread Buys Goodyear Quality Bicycle Tires

$2.75 each for Non-Skid

Why pay an average of $4.25 apiece for other standard bicycle tires when $2.48 buys the famous Goodyear-Akron—single tube—guaranteed? Men cannot build better tires than Goodyear. And here the price is cut in two through Goodyear methods, enormous production and modern equipment.

These Goodyear-Akron tires are made in the world's greatest tire factory, where up to 10,000 Goodyear pneumatic tires are built daily. Goodyear-Akrons excel all rivals, just as do Goodyear automobile and motorcycle tires—tires that also have won top place in their fields.

Lesser bicycle tires sell at even lower prices. But you who want a really good tire must still pay others around $4.25. Yet Goodyear-Akron tires—the leading make—cost you only $2.48. We are content with small profit.

How to Get Them The smooth tread, size 28 by 1½, sells at $2.48 per tire. The Non-Skid, sizes 28 by 1⅜, 1½ or 1⅝, at $2.75. Ask your dealer for them. If he hasn't them, and you insist, he will get them from our nearest branch. Start your economy by buying these tires now.

GOODYEAR AKRON

THE GOODYEAR TIRE & RUBBER COMPANY, Akron, Ohio

Makers of Goodyear Automobile Tires

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6.)

six years the tenth of last February which is also my birthday.

I should be glad to hear from any who care to write and will answer all I can.

With love and best wishes to all. From your COMFORT sister, MRS. HALCIE BARKER.

SAFE, MO.

DEAR COMFORT SISTERS:

I presume my last attempt reached the waste basket, but after reading Mrs. Barnes' letter in December issue, could not keep from "speakin' up in meetin'." I should like to meet her and have her for a friend.

The subject she discussed is one of vital importance, and one seldom discussed. If more sermons were preached along this line, the heaven which Uncle Charlie is striving to bring about here on earth would be sooner arriving.

Even Christ Himself was tempted, and He came "to seek and to save that which was lost." A great many men and boys seem to have the impression that because they are males they are privileged characters to a certain extent. This erroneous idea should be eliminated once for all. They should remember there will be a final reckoning, that the Great Judge before whom they shall have to appear is "no respecter of persons."

There is a great deal in training children, more than in heredity I think. The great Luther Burbank says: "Environment is a greater factor in life than heredity."

The great Book places a liar and thief in the same class as an adulterer. If one is branded why not all? Most people will reform if given an opportunity, and let us remember, "To err is human, to forgive divine." To all those who have fallen and are earnestly endeavoring to live right at present, and have repented of their mistakes, I offer my deepest sympathy and encouragement. Religion will help you when all else fails and He and not man is your judge.

The last verse of Longfellow's poem, "The Ladder of St Augustine," is this:

"Nor deem the irrevocable Past,
As wholly wasted, wholly vain,
If rising on its wrecks at last
To something nobler we attain."

Best wishes to Mrs. Wilkinson and all COMFORT readers. MRS. MARY L. RHODES.

Mrs. Rhodes. I feel sure your words of sympathy and encouragement will reach some weak and erring sister, who perhaps at that moment is trying to decide whether to make one more try for the higher things of life or to sink a little deeper into the depths where she is being pushed by the neglect or, more shame to them, the uncharitableness of presumably Christian people, and it may be the means of her salvation. To again quote the poem you referred to, they might be helped on their way if they would remember.

"Saint Augustine! well hast thou said,
That of our vices we can frame
A ladder, if we will but tread
Beneath our feet each deed of shame."

Emerson tells us that "The hearing ear is always found close to the speaking tongue," and the inference is plain that if we, who are safe from temptation—perhaps I should say, who have not been subjected to temptation—were not so willing to listen to the stories of another's downfall, there would not be so many to keep such stories in circulation. Let us then resolve not to possess the "hearing ear" unless we train it to hear only good.—Ed.

1015 Arlington Heights, LEXINGTON, KY.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

Will you admit a Kentuckian into your circle?

I have been a reader of COMFORT for almost a year and enjoy the sisters' letters so much.

As I have never seen a description of Lexington in COMFORT, I'll try to describe the "Blue Grass" city, which has a population of forty thousand and twenty-five miles of paved streets; is the largest loose leaf tobacco market in the world; has the State Reform School and the Eastern Kentucky Hospital for the Insane; is the world's greatest market for high class trotting and running horses; is the commercial and educational center of the Blue Grass region of Kentucky; is the "hub" of a network or interurban electric lines running to Paris, Versailles, Frankport, Georgetown and Nicholasville, also many trains in different directions; is the home of State University, Transylvania University, Sayre and Hamilton Colleges, with three thousand students, besides many business colleges and public and private schools; has five skyscrapers, the highest being fifteen stories; nearly seventy wholesale houses; about three hundred groceries; two opera houses, one auditorium; five moving picture theaters; Carnegie Library; two large hospitals; besides several private sanitariums; twenty-five or thirty churches; many banks and several factories. Three parks, Woodland, Gratz and Duncan, add to the beauty of the city.

It is also the home and burial place of Henry Clay, Breckenridge and other famous men. The Clay monument can be seen at quite a distance from the city. The streets are either block (wooden blocks, not quite the size of a brick, covered with tar), macadam, asphalt or brick. The sidewalks are concrete. Our city is called the "Capital of the Blue Grass," "The Eden of America," "The Athens of the South." In a few woods, "Lexington is noted for its fine race horses and pretty women."

Several miles from the city are the famous stock farms owned by New York millionaires, W. C. Whitney, Perry Belmont, August Belmont and the late James B. Haggin, whose fam known as "Elmendorf" consists of more than nine thousand acres. I will only describe the dairy at this writing as I do not want to take up too much space, if my letter is fortunate enough to be printed. Early in 1908 Mr. Haggin, who was an ardent advocate of clean milk, determined upon the establishment of the dairy at Elmendorf, and immediately laid plans to secure the finest herd of cattle that money could procure. So well did he succeed that the fame of his herd is world wide. It consists of the finest herds of imported Jerseys, imported milking Shorthorn cattle and Guernseys, a few of the Black Kerry and some Dexter cows. Mr. Haggin has been known to refuse $2,500.00 for a baby Jersey. The dairy barn is situated several hundred feet from the demonstration building, and stretching away from it are great pasture lands. It is surrounded by beautifully laid-out grounds, walks and roadways, and is constructed almost entirely of concrete and brick. It is built in the design of a Maltese Cross, each ell or wing being some two hundred and twenty feet long by forty feet wide, and at the end of each ell are two large silos. It is a model in sanitary construction with splendid systems of lighting and ventilating and the stall equipment is entirely of iron. Some distance to the rear of the dairy barn are the cow-sheds, calf barns, etc. In the construction of the beautiful "milk-house," all wood and absorbent materials have been eliminated; the floors, walls and ceilings are concrete, the doors and window frames are of iron; a large ventilating fan supplies the entire building with fresh air. The milk is carried from the dairy barn to the milk-receiving room, on the second floor of the milkhouse, by means of a cable. The milk is poured first through the large strainers and then distributed by gravity through the various channels until it reaches the milk-machinery room on the first floor, where the aerators for milk and cream, the bottles and capper machines, etc., are located. The machinery is of the very best type, and everything in the milk-machinery room is so arranged that it can be cleaned with high pressure steam. After the milk bottles are sterilized, filled and sealed they are put into a refrigerator electric car and brought to the city and delivered in automobiles and wagons.

As my letter is getting lengthy I will describe myself and bid you good by, I am five feet, three inches tall, have blue eyes, fair complexion, light brown hair, weigh one hundred pounds, am twenty-one years old. Have been bookkeeper and stenographer in my father's grocery store over four years.

Would like to correspond with some of the sisters in California and Michigan who are about my age.

Best wishes to COMFORT readers,
MISS. AGNES PIERCE.

Miss Pierce. I was much interested in your letter particularly in the part relating to sanitary dairying and I hope our readers will profit by your description. True, I know the average farmer cannot afford such an outlay of money, but simple cleanliness costs very little and is the most important of all things, and, in a great many cases, the most neglected.

I frankly admit my inability to deal with this according to the way it should be, but my desire is to awaken you to a realization of conditions in your own barns and dairies and then if you will read the many papers and magazines devoted to that purpose alone you will see wherein your methods were at fault. You will find much of help in COMFORT'S Modern Farmer Department from time to time.—Ed.

SAN BERNARDINO, R. R. 2, Box 38 B., CAL.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

I have taken COMFORT for a number of years. Until now I have been a silent reader.

Husband and I have decided to take up a homestead; we would like to locate in California, near here where it would not cost so much for transportation. We have a little money to start with and would like to hear from any of the sisters on homesteads in Humbolt, Siskiyou, Inyo or Shasta counties, California, or Lakeview, Oregon. We have government literature from all of these places but would be better able to decide if we could get letters direct from someone at the place. I will repay favor in any way for I am very anxious to hear from someone. We have had about five years' experience on a farm and liked the life very much.

With best wishes to all, ROSA FEHN.

CRANAL, ALA.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

I wonder if you can find room in your circle for me? 'Tis a dreary rainy afternoon, but I just had to call, to tell you how much I love dear old COMFORT. Have been taking COMFORT for the past eleven months, and already feel that I could not do without it. I am always anxious for it to come. I enjoy every article in it, but find so much that is helpful and comforting in the Sisters' Corner, that I must center my preference there. I find so many suggestions from the sisters that have been a great help to me, especially from the mothers. I always finish reading this corner with a new hope and resolution. When blue or discontented the best thing I can find to do, is to read the letters from COMFORT sisters. People so often think their cross heavier than any other, just because they don't know the trials and heart aches of others and the best cure for that is to listen to another's woes, and these letters are just like a good old heart-to-heart talk.

I have been quite interested in the discussion which has been going on relative to country and city life. I have had only two years' experience of country life, and one can hardly call this a fair trial as you will see when I mention some of the unpleasant things I have had to contend with; but still I prefer the farm. I have lived in Birmingham vicinity all my life until the last two years. This place is thinly settled, my nearest neighbor lives one mile away. School and church four miles, nearest railroad twenty miles, nearest doctor twelve miles, but fortunately we have a telephone system. The country is very rough. We have a farm of three hundred and twenty acres. My husband's occupation is furnace foreman and he has been away from home, at his work, until the last few months except for a few days at a time when he came on a visit. Of course not being used to his being away from home or to the solitude of the country and being alone here with the children (we have four children

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 12.)

EMMA LOUISE ART SHOP
Write for 1915 Catalogue FREE
The most complete Catalogue of Art Needlework and Novelties published.
EMMA LOUISE ART SHOP Dept. 120, BELMAR, N. J.

400 Stoves Factory Price Cash or Credit
Kalamazoo Stove Co., Kalamazoo - Michigan
Write for our big Factory Price Book No 501—save $5 to $40 on cook stoves, ranges, heaters, gas stoves and furnaces. 400 Styles. 30 DAYS' FREE TRIAL
A Kalamazoo Direct to You

YOU can EARN an AUTO
Here's Your Chance to Get A New Ford Touring Car For a Few Weeks' Work.
By my new, easy plan, anyone over 18 years old can get a brand-new Ford Touring Car for a little easy, respectable work among neighbors. Free Book tells all about it. Postal brings it. Send. AUTO TOM, 609 S. 16th St., OMAHA, NEB.

FREE "Linene" COLLAR
State size on postal and whether you want collar like cut or low turnover style.
Reversible Collar Co., Dept. E, Boston, Mass.

THE NEVER SLIP CLOTHES LINE FASTENER. No knots to tie or untie. Big profits—No competition. Every home buys from 6 to a dozen. AGENTS, here is your chance to get a whirlwind seller. Write for territory. Send 25c for sample set of six and Special Prices to Agents. STANDARD WIRE CO., Dept. A, Saginaw, Mich.
Patent Pending

DON'T SUFFER WITH YOUR EYES
Elite Eye Solution a reliable remedy for all afflictions of the eye. Convince yourself. 25c and 50c bottles. Rx Optician Co., Dept. B, Portland, Maine.

25 ASSORTED HIGH GRADE SOUVENIR POST CARDS Easter, Birthday, Greetings, &c. Postpaid 10c
THE S. & D. CO., Dept. 60, Brunswick, Maine.

BULL NETTLES

By Alice Terry Hayward

This touching story will do us all good. If anybody does not like it, it is because it pricks his conscience. The story is true to life and although Bill Pearson is an extreme type he exists duplicated many times over in actual life. Then there are minor degrees of joy-killers—sometimes, though less often, the mother acting that role—and all such, whether men or women, as cast a gloom over the household should take the lesson to heart. Reserve your tenderest consideration, sunniest smiles and best behavior to brighten your home.—Editor.

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

BILL PEARSON stopped his plow and glanced over into the adjoining field where two forlorn figures, armed with very large hoes, were fighting a crop of stubborn bull-nettles. "Hurry up there, you kids," he shouted, impatiently, "ef yuh want to go to that doin's tomorrow!" He clucked to the horses and started on.

Bill was a big man with a manner especially persuasive to small dependent creatures. He chuckled over the avalanche of blows now rained with renewed energy upon the tough, resisting roots. "A picnic," he mused, "is a great hustler—It has almost cleaned my worst cotton patch."

Over the fence, the two he had prodded up were talking breathlessly, between blows: "Hurry, Susie!" It was a boy's voice—thin and anxious, like his body; "they's a chance of missing the picnic after all, and I'd hate to, the way mammy's worked. I'll bet she's got the baby's new dress done this very minute."

"I am hurryin'," panted Susie; "Joey, hits the hoe; seems like hits so much bigger'n me."

"Think of all mammy's got to do besides the dress—bake a cake, fry chickens, and—and everything; and you know pappy promised to go to town after dinner and get you a new pink dress and me a straw hat. She'll have to make the dress after he gets back."

"Pappy don't always——" the little girl paused to extricate her hoe from a nettle; "yuh think he'll sure go this time, Joey?" There was an anxious thrill in her voice.

Her brother's face clouded as he straightened his sharp, bent little shoulders, and for a minute gazed after the tall muscular figure of his father; then, without a word, he attacked the weeds again.

The morning hours were painfully long, and the sun, reflected from the huge iron-rock boulders of the Georgia hillside, beat down unmercifully. When Pearson finally stopped and threw the lines over the horses' sides, the children sought the water bucket, and poured what was left, hot from the sun, onto their blistered feet, shouldered their hoes, and silently followed in his wake.

Mrs. Pearson was dishing up the corn-bread, bacon and green beans for the noon meal. Her face was red and her hands trembled; but she stopped to kiss the little "cotton-choppers" and exhibit the baby's new dress.

"Oh! mammy, hain't hit beautiful? Where did you get this lace fer round the neck?" shrilled Susie. "Joey, see how stiff your waist is starched—hit looks plumb new."

The boy noted with interest the glossy plait down the front of his much worn garment, and the new cuffs that would enable it to cover his bony wrists. "She's shore a dandy!" he whistled, settling himself hastily at the table. He and Susie must bolt their beans and corn-bread, and get back, or there'd be no wearing the garment that had cost his mother so much extra work.

Pearson ate rapidly, too, and in silence. Finally, he said, pushing back aggressively: "Sairy, I guess I can't go to town after all. These here kids hain't worth their salt; they don't deserve the clothes they have. I'll jest nachelly have to stay at home, anyway, and go round the fence—the stock's been breakin' out. Like as not ef we went tomorrow, we'd lose twenty dollars' worth o' stuff, I hain't a-goin'."

Sarah Pearson gazed steadily across the table. The hot crimson of her face had vanished, and in its whiteness, her eyes condensed the fire that her cheeks rejected. She seemed about to speak, but instead arose hurriedly and went into the bedroom where the sleeping babies were cradled. When she reappeared, at the end of five minutes, Bill seemed to have been visited by an after thought.

"They don't deserve to go," he said, indicating the two small objects, whose pointed chins were sunken low enough to keep down the sobs in their throats—"they don't deserve hit—but if they can get a move on 'em in time to go round the fence, 'stead o' leavin' hit fer me to do tomorrow—we'll go. Think you can do it?"

"Yes, sir," said the boy blinking back the tears.

The little girl suddenly sat erect.

"But," turning to his wife, "I can't go after them shoes and dress—you'll have to do without such foolishness—understand? You can make somethin' o' yours."

"But mammy ain't got nothin'," objected Susie.

"Shut up, miss!" commanded her father, "this hain't your put in."

Once more the little girl was reduced to tears.

"We're a-goin' children, don't you be afeared," the mother spoke quietly.

Bill glanced sharply at her but for once refrained from speaking.

In the afternoon Sarah Pearson appeared to lose the buoyant energy with which she had toiled through the preceding days.

She sat for a long time on the edge of the bed and soothed the wakened baby, whose lusty cries disturbed the smallest. Finally, she arose and bringing a basin of water, bathed him, and then dressed him in a clean calico dress.

Quietly he sat, contentedly muching a piece of corn-bread, while the other baby was washed and dressed.

Changing from her print, into a cheap lawn, and blacking her patched shoes, she pinned on a faded sailor hat. So faded that the forlorn roses, pathetically attempting to adorn, served only to make it appear even more faded.

Bidding the oldest child follow, she took the baby in her arms, and proceeded in the direction of the village.

At the store she almost forgot how exhausted she was from her long walk in the sun, and the weight of the heavy baby, as she matched in her mother heart, a pink striped lawn with Susie's dark wistful eyes and thin, eager little face.

For the little son she chose a straw hat, resplendent with red, white and blue band, and a tie of many colors.

Opening a worn purse, she drew from it a crisp dollar bill.

A sister from a distant town had sent it for the sole object of having the childrens' picture "struck."

A great pain clutched at her heart and blurred, for an instant, the gaudy little hat and pink lawn the storekeeper was doing up for her. The vision of the children with new clothes, and smoothly combed hair, pictured on the front page of the little faded album in the bottom of the old trunk might never be.

But another vision came; a vision which often comes and clutches at the mother's heart, a little form might be soon, who knows, lying with small sunburned and calloused hands, now white and waxen, folded upon the breast? Dark wistful eyes might be closed, with long lashes, forever lying upon waxen cheek.

What if no childish joys ever, ever thrilled that small heart? No long happy days filled with sounds of shrill whistles. No eating of popcorn from red starry packages, or drinking of red lemonade from tall cold glasses.

The little green grave upon the timbered hillside, where slept the first-born son, intensified this vision to the point of a bursting heart. No such joys had ever been his heritage.

She turned away, under the pretext of getting the baby a drink, to hide the gathering tears, which threatened to overthrow.

Then came the soothing memory of the long, happy evenings, when just they two had popped corn and made molasses taffy. Pappy had been in bed, and sound asleep, and nothing marred the wonderful joys of making kites, tops and gaily colored scrap books. "She hath done what she could," was a wonderfully soothing thought.

The childrens' delight when they should behold their possessions, again filled her soul and lightened her steps, as she wended her way home over the hot sandy road. The oldest child was weary and cross and needed much encouragement. However, she reached the house before her husband and children came in from their work.

By supreme exertion the children had completed the task assigned them, and joyfully hastened to make the round of the pasture fence. The deep shadows were gathering over the woods, when the mother heard the voices of the children, mingled with the tinkling of the cow bells.

After their father had gone to bed she called them into the lean-to kitchen, where she had brought her sewing machine, and exhibited their treasures. Their delight knew no bounds, and she could scarcely persuade them to wash their weary little feet and crawl into the cot bed awaiting them.

However, they had been sleeping many hours before she completed her labor of love and arose with a sigh of satisfaction to fold away the pink lawn.

She was up before day, and the smell of frying chicken, awakened the excited and delighted little ones.

After breakfast and chores a tub of water was brought into the kitchen and each child carefully bathed and dressed, and cautioned not to "get mussed" till pappy came with the team.

Comfortably seated on a fence rail, Bill had been for the past half hour "swapping yarns" with Tom Larson, a neighbor, who now as the team was tied in the yard, climbed into the wagon and waited with an expectant air.

"Why Sairy," said her husband, entering and gazing about in apparant surprise, "there ain't no use of you goin' to all o' that trouble to fix up them there kids fur that picnic. You see I promised Tom Larson last week to go with him to Smithson's, today—there's a sale there, and I stand a chance of makin' some good trades. I'd kind 'a' forgot 'bout promisin' Tom, till this mornin'."

During this speech the children had not stirred from where they sat in starched primness on the edge of the bed. But all the eager light of gladness and expectation had faded from their faces, leaving them prematurely old—their thin little shoulders bowed with the hopelessness of it.

As if nothing more remained to be said, Bill reached for his driving whip. But not quick enough—for with a cat-like spring, Sarah snatched the whip from the wall and raised it in threatening attitude above her head.

"Stand back, Bill—back, I say! Don't you dare to touch that team today! Them's mine and the childrens' today! How long have you been promisin' that trip? A month! How many times have they earned it? A hundred! Jest to have hit taken away from them—pretendin' they had done somethin' or other to lose out. What do you mean, Bill Pearson, by goin' back on your promise a hundred times to your own flesh and blood and kepin' hit every time to Tom Larson? Look at them little bent backs, that's been a-toilin' day in and day out to earn this day!

"Remember, will you that little form lyin' up there on the hillside, that toiled day in and day out, and never did have a day? His back was bent too, but he's at rest now, and I walked to the store yesterday an' got those things you promised to get, an' didn't—with the dollar Mollie sent—lies, Bill, all lies! You never did intend to get 'em. That's how much your promise to us means. But today, Bill, we're a-goin' to have the team."

Bill stared at her in stupefied amazement. The fighting blood of her mountaineer ancestors aroused, showed in her flashing eyes, her slender stooped figure now fully erect.

Still holding the whip in her hand, she stepped to the door.

"Tom Larson, you can jest get out o' that wagon. Me and the children air goin' to use hit today. Bill promised hit to me 'fore he did to you, so I'll take hit."

The neighbor got out without a word, but there was a peculiar grin on his countenance.

Stepping back into the room where the children, who during this scene, sat with blanched faces and quivering lips, she bade them get into the wagon, while she put in the lunch basket.

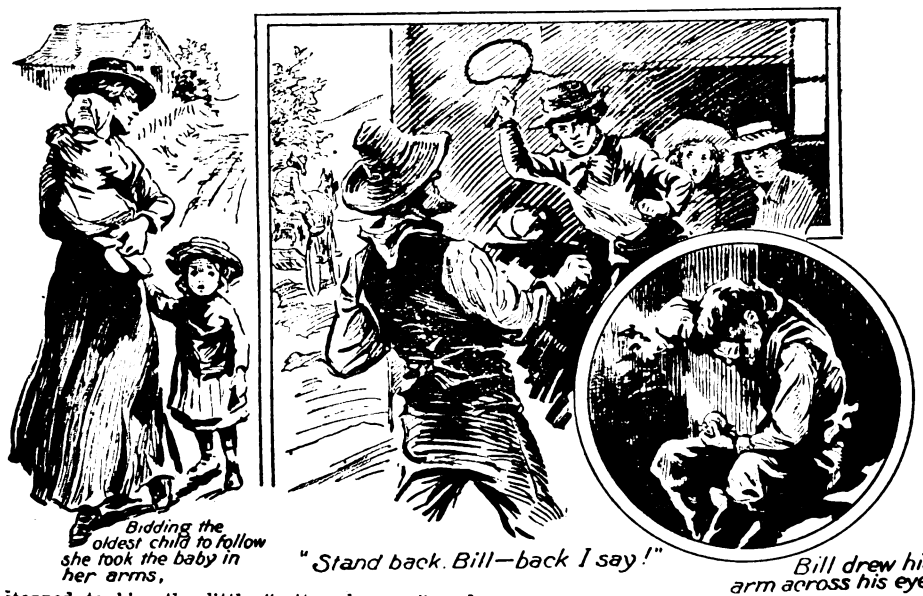
Bill did not stir, but the neighbor untied the horses, and handing her the lines, gazed after them as long as he could see them, still with that peculiar grin.

"Got some spunk—that wife of yours—hain't she, Bill?" he remarked, as he picked up his whip.

"Well, I swan!" gasped Bill. "Well, I swan!"

The evening was late and the moon shining when Bill heard the rattling of the wagon, mingled with the sound of happy excited little voices.

Shambling forth in the moonlight, he took the team from his wife's hands. No words were spoken, but little Susie shyly advanced and held toward him a package of popcorn.



"Here pappy," she said timidly, "I done brought you most all of my popcorn. Hit's awful good."

Awkwardly he reached for it and thrust it into the pocket of his blouse.

After his wife and children had gone to bed, Bill Pearson sat on the lean-to porch in the moonlight. It was his custom to retire earlier than any of them, but tonight no weariness visited him. He sat long—holding in his hand, but not eating, the popcorn, little Susie had given him.

Far away upon the wooded hillside, where slept the little first-born, a whippoorwill was calling pleadingly and tenderly.

Suddenly, something bright sparkled in the moonlight, and dropped upon the gift of little Susie, and Bill drew his arm across his eyes.

Bidding the oldest child to follow she took the baby in her arms, "Stand back, Bill—back I say!" Bill drew his arm across his eyes.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11.)

ranging in age from five and one half years to ten and one half), I at first found it lonely, but there was so much that was new to me that I found it very interesting, and as my health which had been very poorly for sometime, improved I began to enjoy the freedom of the country so much that I almost feel now that I could not go back to the city to live. Quite true we haven't the parks and amusements that Mrs. Reynolds mentioned but we have pure air and our horses and I enjoy horseback riding better than the theater. Then we have fishing and numerous other country pastimes. How I wish I could reach over and give Mrs. W. T. Barnes a good hand shake. In her letter in December COMFORT she expresses my sentiments exactly.

Guess you are all wondering what I look like and as most of the other sisters describe themselves I will too. Am five feet five inches, weigh one hundred and ten pounds, twenty-nine years old, have light hair, blue eyes, fair complexion. Now I know you are all calling me country and old-fashioned for making my first visit such a long one. But I hope you can find pardon in your generous hearts for me, when I tell you that I have been entertained by your interesting letters so many times that I feel more like home folks than a stranger.

Wishing health, happiness and prosperity for Mrs. Wilkinson, Uncle Charlie and all the sisters, I am

Sincerely. MRS. C. S. TINKER.

108 Silver Street, HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTERS:

I have been a silent reader of dear old COMFORT for about three years and although often tempted to visit you again have never had the courage until now.

I don't suppose any of the sisters will remember me; however, I made many warm friends through this column in my last letter to COMFORT and will try to make myself known and perhaps some of them will recognize me and write me a letter. I was Mrs. Ida Moses, a lonely little widow, with a sweet little baby girl to brighten my life but God did not let this brightness continue long after I had written my letter to COMFORT; my baby lived only a couple of months. I will not try to describe my sorrow as only those that have had similar experiences can truly sympathize. But God does all things well and by simply trusting with patience and endurance He has removed the dark shadows and brought joy and sunshine into my life.

I have now been married one year last July and have a kind and loving companion that has made life happy. I often think of the sad disappointments that at sometime in life will visit us all and though we do not understand, it is for some great purpose and if we can only trust Him things will be made brighter and plainer, even though the wound will pain many, many days. With all these thoughts in mind I find myself trying to solve life's greatest problems and it occurs to me there is no time to be wasted as life means action from the cradle to the grave; it is not how much we do in this world, but how well we do it, that counts in making up the things worth while, the situation into which we are born, our mental and physical endowment at birth, and, I may say, the results of past actions in other lives, and all our actions here are surely forming conditions for lives to come, then I think with what grave responsibilities we all are charged and if we wish our lives to be an example of goodness we should open the guest chamber of our hearts and let all that is beautiful, strong and noble, enter therein, for if we entertain hope, faith, courage and love we will surely carry out the true meaning of life of which is health, happiness, usefulness and joy. The real meaning of life is God and in Him are all the things for which we long and crave. Yet we must realize though life's pathway may have been rough and rugged that all of earth is not a vale of tears. Although we may not all be able to astound the world with our wisdom or deeds, yet we can live exemplary lives and be an inspiration to those who may be strong physically, but weak and easily discouraged. By so doing I think we will solve one of life's problems.

I made many warm friends that were a source of comfort to me, through this paper, and one especially whom I would like to hear from and if she should see this, or any of the sisters that knew her, would be glad to hear from them. She is Mrs. J. Scrives of Sacramento, Colo.

I suppose dear Mrs. Wilkinson thinks by now I've written a very lengthy letter with nothing very interesting. I love dear old COMFORT and all of its readers.

With best wishes to Mrs. Wilkinson and the entire COMFORT circle, Lovingly, MRS. A. L. MOWERY.

WEST MILFORD, W. VA.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTERS:

It is just one year since I asked the sisters for a birthday shower for my 70th birthday, and it certainly came, with unexpected pleasure and results. The cards were beautiful to look upon, and the letters interesting. They were from Maine to California and numbered three hundred and fifty, with some very tasteful gifts. I granted the requests in answering so far as I was able, and will now answer all through COMFORT, I would enjoy seeing each face, and grasp your hands with true friendship and appreciation to all who wrote me. To the sisters who were interested in my welfare, will for their special benefit give a short history of my life.

Seventy years ago I was born in a log cabin two miles west of Clarksburg, and lived there until I was three years old; my father moved to Clarksburg, W. Va. at that time, the county seat of Harrison county and the birthplace of Stonewall Jackson, the famous Confederate general, and lived there until after the Civil War, when I was united in marriage to Hiram L. Munday, a Union soldier, and mechanic by trade. My name before marriage was Helen V. Gaudy. We had two sons and one daughter, one son died quite young. We lived in Nebraska for three years then came back to dear old West Virginia, the dearest state to me on earth. The hills are so beautiful and state is rich in oil, gas and coal, and the sociability of the people generally would give anyone pleasure to live here. My present home is in the town of West Milford, situated on the West Fork river, nine miles west of Clarksburg.

My health is good and I attend church and visit my friends. I spend a great deal of time reading, and there is nothing suits me better than the dear old COMFORT and The Baptist Banner.

With success to the editor and staff.

HELEN V. MUNDAY.

LONG CREEK, OREGON.

DEAR COMFORT SISTERS:

If Mrs. Wilkinson will permit I will try and answer your letters through COMFORT. Many wanted to know about this part of the country. We were living at Cottonwood when my letter appeared in the November COMFORT, but we have since moved to Long Creek, about thirty miles east of Cottonwood. I think you can find us on the map now. So many tried to find Cottonwood, but it is just a new post-office which was the reason you couldn't find it. This country, like all other countries, has its drawbacks and it also has many good qualities. The climate is very changeable, which makes it very disagreeable, but the soil is extra good and we always raise a crop. Of course crops are better some years than others, but we have never had a failure yet. In this part of the country we can raise hardy fruits and vegetables and all kinds of grains which produce well. On three sides of us people raise tender fruits and vegetables. It seems strange that our climate is so much colder when we are in between these three places. The water here can't be excelled anywhere, and we have all the timber our country will ever need. The timber is mostly pine and fir, but tamarack and juniper grow here also.

The worse drawback I find in this country is no market. Stock is raised here mostly and the owners depend on buyers coming in to buy their stock or they must drive to the railroad which is from fifty to seventy-five miles away. The price of stock of all kinds is high and no doubt will be higher by this time next year.

Work is most always plentiful, but no steady work only in a few places, such as herding sheep; the wages paid are forty dollars a month, and two dollars a day in harvest, and men working on a ranch get from

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 24.)

Fashion's Latest Fancy

The "Sultana"
Combination of Hat and Veil Only $1.95

No. 1001. Small sailor shape, beautifully trimmed with a wreath of mixed bright color, silk, muslin and natural berries, fruits and flowers. The soft top crown and brim are of plain white satin; side crown is neatly fluted and strapped with a band of narrow black velvet ribbon. The very latest style mesh "Harem" veil is attached to hat and is bound with black velvet ribbon. Shape measures 10½ inches across. Hat can be ordered in white, as described, also black, light tan, Alice blue, red or navy blue, all with black veil and flowers in bright mixed colors. Special advertising price, prepaid . . . $1.95

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Your Money Back

The "Hussar"

No. 901. Material is a splendid, evenly woven percale. The waist is braided in the extremely novel military style, with washable mercerized braid; unique shaped collar and turn-back cuffs are braided to match. Buttons visibly in front, by means of neat pearl buttons. Skirt has modish yoke effect, produced by a pretty braid trimming; full sweep. Cadet blue or tan. Special advertising price, prepaid 98c

The "HUSSAR" LATEST MILITARY STYLE STREET OR HOUSE DRESS

COMES IN CADET BLUE OR KHAKI TAN SIZES 32—44 POST PAID

SPECIAL ADVERTISING PRICE ONLY 98c WE PAY THE POSTAGE

SPRING AND SUMMER CATALOG NOW READY

Write for it Today—Ask for No. 39 X.

Latest styles in everything to wear for Men, Women and Children, at remarkably low prices.

No matter how many mail order catalogs you receive, be sure to send for ours. Quality considered, our prices are the lowest offered by anyone.

Ref.: Continental & Com'l Nat'l Bank. Capital $30,000,000

CHICAGO MAIL ORDER CO.
INDIANA AVE. & 26TH ST. CHICAGO, ILL.

If I Send You this Suit

made to your measure, in the latest style, would you be willing to keep and wear it, show it to your friends and let them see our beautiful samples and dashing new styles.

Could you use $5.00 a day for a little spare time? Perhaps I can offer you a steady job. If you will write me a letter or a postal card at once and say "Send me your special offer," I will send you samples and styles to pick from and my surprising liberal offer.

Address: L. E. ASHER, President

BANNER TAILORING CO. DEPT. 992 CHICAGO

Steel Shoe Book Saves You $20!

1 Pair Outlasts 3 to 6 Pairs All-Leathers FREE

If you are tired of wet, sore, calloused feet—Rheumatism and Colds—hard, twisted, leaky Leather—Big Doctor and Shoe Bills—loss of time, money, health and comfort—TRY FREE my Latest Triumph—Leather Tapped "Steels" Light, Springy, Comfortable, Economical, Waterproof, Warm in winter—Cool in summer—Adjustable Leather Taps, instantly renewed. FREE BOOK tells how you can try "steels" 10 days FREE and save $10 to $20 shoe money.

10-Day Try-On

N. M. Ruthstein—Steel Shoe Man—Dept. 135, Racine, Wis.

Home Weaving PAYS

$50.00 To $150.00 A MONTH making new Rugs, Carpets, etc. out of old carpets, carpet rags, old clothing, etc. on a Deen Steel Built Automatic Fly Shuttle Loom. Beginners make money from the start. This Loom Requires No Previous Experience. Our FREE BOOK, "Weaving For Profit" tells all about what is needed, what to do, how to buy the loom, gives prices on lots of looms and all kinds of Rug Machinery. Send for it today. Costs but little to start right in your home.

Deen Loom Co., 755 Seventh St., MARION, IOWA

MAKE YOUR BIKE A MOTORCYCLE

at a small cost by using our Attachable outfit. FITS ANY BICYCLE. Easily attached. No special tools required. Write today for bargain list and free book describing the SHAW Bicycle Motor Attachment. Motorcycles, all makes, new and second-hand, $35 and up.

FREE BOOK

SHAW MANUFACTURING CO.
Dept. 15, Galesburg, Kansas.

TOUGHEY

Childhood Adventures on a Texas Ranch

By Adele Steiner Burleson

Copyright, 1913, by Adele Steiner Burleson.
Serial right by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

"Toughey" is a true story in which the author narrates the actual exploits and adventures of her three children and her own experiences during a summer, some dozen years ago, happily spent in rusticating on her ranch in a remote and somewhat wild part of Texas, far from their city home. This large domain, known as Steiner Valley, was inherited by Mrs. Burleson from her father, Dr. Steiner, who as surgeon in the U. S. army served with distinction through the war with Mexico which added Texas and an empire besides to the territory of the United States.

In mentioning herself and her husband (now Postmaster General, but then member of Congress) in the story she has modestly assumed the name of "Deering" which our readers are at liberty to change to Burleson.

The ranch, which is several miles in extent, is in part cultivated as a cotton plantation and the rest is used as a range for Mr. Burleson's great herd of Hereford cattle. The plantation is worked entirely by convict labor supplied by the state in return for a certain per cent of the crop, and besides the manager's house and the owner's summer cottage there is a cluster of buildings called "the camp" occupied by the convicts and guards.

All this is new and of somewhat startling interest to the children who are accustomed to city life.

According to the habit of the family, the two younger girls, with only a year's difference in their ages and being fast friends and playmates, are classed together under the generic designation of "the children." The eldest daughter, who, though only twelve years old, is several years their senior and bears herself toward them with a patronizing air of elderly dignity and wisdom that at times is somewhat galling to the little girls, is nicknamed "Toughey." This pet name had been conferred on her in babyhood by a college girl aunt in admiration of the child's coolness, grit and self-reliance manifest even at that tender age.

Len, the manager's son, is a bright boy and proves a faithful and efficient guide and assistant on excursions and outdoor sports.

CHAPTER VI.

A NIGHT ADVENTURE ON THE PRAIRIE.

IT was late one afternoon when Mr. Deering proposed a 'possum hunt for that night. A rain had cooled the air, and the damp ground would make the trail easy to follow. With a couple of hounds, they could be reasonably certain of some sport.

"Carter has some good dogs," said Mr. Deering as they sat down to their early supper. "I've hunted with his pack. You and the children can go for them after supper," he said to Toughey.

Toughey immediately fixed the children with an authoritative eye to which they responded with anxious submissive nods, intended to show their willingness to take orders from her on the trip. This silent agreement made, and supper concluded with a dangerous and choking dispatch that luckily failed to attract attention, they hurried off to catch and saddle their ponies.

Mrs. Deering's usual cautious inquiry about the possible dangers of the expedition having been successfully parried and evaded rather than answered, the start was finally made with Toughey mounted on her spirited mustang and the children riding double on the little gray Shetland. Mr. Deering let them through the big gate of their inclosure, giving Toughey, meanwhile, instructions about the road.

They struck out at a light canter, Toughey provokingly maintaining the lead in spite of the children's desperate efforts to keep up.

The Carter property lay half a mile behind the Camp, from which place the road ran steeply up the hill, winding in and out among the cedars, to the fence dividing it from the Plantation. Ascending the hill, the little girls came to a stop before the wire gate through which they must pass. Toughey looked at her subordinates. The children didn't move.

"Well," said Toughey with a rising inflection in her voice.

The children sat stolidly on their pony, as if opening the gate might be anybody's affair except theirs.

"Open the gate," finally commanded Toughey.

"No, you!" rejoined the children with a pert uplifting of voice.

As Toughey always opened gates when riding with her father or mother, she felt that it was only proper that the children should perform that service for her. She waited a moment, then calmly turned her pony's head and started down the hill.

One look at Toughey's inflexible profile was enough. The children scrambled from the pony and hastily opened the gate. Toughey made a slow and dignified return and an equally solemn passage through the gate.

They were now in the Carter pasture and the ground being level they proceeded at a lively pace through the light fringe of timber skirting the fence.

Emerging from its confines they could see at no great distance, across the intervening prairie, the Carter homestead.

Built in frontier days on the highest point of ground to secure it against surprise by Indians, the squat, log structure offered a meager outline to the sky. Its original simplicity had remained undisturbed, and the habits of its occupants went back to earlier and rougher days.

As they approached nearer, Toughey and the children could see the primitive razor-back hog lurking, unrebuked, under the front porch, while cattle browsed in the shade of the unpainted walls. A crowd of dogs shared with the family the comforts afforded by the two rooms and unenclosed hallway constituting the limits of the house itself. They greeted the visitors with the mournful bark, half howl, characteristic of the hound, the chorus including every variety of note from that sounded by the timorous puppy to the deep, confident challenge of the oldest hunter.

The children hung back in some alarm, but Toughey advanced boldly. The head of the house rose from the evening meal in progress in the open hallway, and came forward to meet her.

"We're Mr. Deering's daughters," she said with a touch of ceremony. "I'm Toughey and there are the children."

"I made sure you was Mr. Deering's folks," said Mrs. Carter from her place at the table.

"Get down and eat," was Carter's greeting, and the hospitable invitation was heartily echoed by his wife, a faded, slatternly woman who, with a crowd of children, in varying degrees of untidiness, was seated at an uncovered table upon which appeared corn bread and fried bacon, or "Meat" as they termed it.

"No, thank you," said Toughey hastily, trying hard not to let it appear that she saw and minded the swarming flies, the littered confusion, the unredeemed dirt everywhere abounding.

"You see," she explained with elaborate politeness, "we've had supper, and besides it's rather late and mamma might be frightened if we remain away too long.

"We'd like to borrow your hounds for tonight if you've nothing in particular for them to do," said Toughey soberly.

"I reckon I kin git along without 'em for a time tho' we're mighty attached to each other," said Carter with a laugh.

Toughey laughed too.

"Tom and Jerry ain't the best hunters but they're kind and 'll follow anybody what'll take 'em huntin'," he explained.

Meanwhile, the children were frankly exchanging stares with the Carter flock and getting their impressions of the family life. None of the details escaped them and they were saved from giggles only by one of Toughey's sternest looks; "saved from disgrace," as Toughey afterward described the situation to her mother.

Ten minutes later the little girls were headed for Pecan Hollow with two of the dogs tied to the end of a rope which was wound about and held tight in Toughey's hand.

"It's getting very late," said Toughey with an uneasy glance at the paling horizon.

"Shall we cut across the prairie? It would save time."

"Oh, let's," exclaimed Bess.

"Cos," agreed Nan. She liked to ride through the long sage grass.

All went well until a jack rabbit popped up before them and Tom, one of the dogs, bolting after it, brought the rope sharply across the mustang's legs making him jump violently to one side.

"Oh, Toughey!" exclaimed Bess in a panic, "Let the old dogs go!"

"Let 'em go," shrieked Nan.

But Toughey, though a little shaken by the incident, quieted the animal in a few minutes and then turned her attention to the guilty dog.

"Aren't you ashamed of yourself!" she said severely. "A fine wolf dog you are, to run after a rabbit!"

Old Tom, the offender, who upon reaching the end of the rope's slack had turned a sprawling somersault, now came sneaking back and took up an humble position behind Jerry, looking as if he were quite aware of his own folly and deplored it as much as Toughey did.

For some time Toughey continued to cast scathing remarks at the hound, drawing unfavorable comparisons between him and Jerry, his companion, and insisting that he was old enough to know better than to run rabbits.

To all that she said the children made cheerful echo, adding on their own account "Bad Doggie!" with such emphasis as to make old Tom look more ashamed than ever.

But when Toughey turned her attention to them and begun a lecture on cowardice, they were not so sure that she understood her subject.

"You certainly were scared to death," said Toughey, "and if something real dangerous were to happen, I don't know what you would do. Why if——"

Up popped another rabbit, and away rushed old Tom dragging the rope right under the mustang's tail, and in another moment Toughey was contending with a plunging frightened horse!

Edging away to a safe distance, the children looked on fearfully, until discovering the cause of the trouble, they called excitedly to Toughey to let go the rope. But Toughey not understanding why she should let go, held to it grimly while the pony bucked and reared and the dogs dodged its hoofs as best they could, until their sudden dash in a fortunate direction freed the mustang from the interfering rope.

Peace was hardly restored before the incident was repeated; but this time Toughey was on the alert and there were no unpleasant consequences except to old Tom who was again denounced for his depraved taste for rabbits.

The lateness of the hour was now so apparent that Toughey began to look anxiously for the road, expecting at any moment to intercept it. Instead, however, she found herself at the edge of an arroya so deep and precipitous that it seemed impossible to attempt to cross it. Evidently they must retrace their steps and follow the windings of the road in order to avoiding the recurring canyons.

"Wait here a minute," said Toughey to the children. She rode along the edge of the cut until she made sure that it extended as far as the fence. This shut off all hope of riding around it. As she returned anxiously looking for some break in its steepness, her eyes fell upon old Monte at the bottom of the canyon.

"Hello!" she exclaimed in surprise. But the next moment the figure was gone.

Toughey looked again but saw only a tangle of scrub oak, sumach and wild grape vine.

"Children!" she called as she approached them, "I saw old Monte down there," pointing to the place where for an instant he had appeared to her.

The children peered into the rapidly darkening gully but could see no one.

"I reckon you were just dreaming," suggested Bess provokingly.

"Oh, I reckon not," replied Toughey coolly. But she was too anxious to take the little girl's challenge to the usually lively discussion.

"We'll have to go back to the road. We can't cross the gullies," she announced.

The first stars were beginning to show and for an instant Toughey was staggered at the thought of the long distance between them and home. A whimper from the children restored her nerve.

"We didn't want to come 'cross the old prairie!" lamented Nan, beginning to realise the difficulties of their situation.

"Oh, certainly not!" said Toughey with fine irony. "I just dragged you out of the road, didn't I?"

This biting rejoinder reduced the children to low mutterings to which Toughey gave little heed, and they proceeded to make their way back to the road in silence, broken only by an occasional sharp word from Toughey.

Hampered by the dogs, their progress was slow and Toughey's brave little heart beat with anxiety as the darkness increased and the road became a mere outline.

As the children grew accustomed to the situation, however, they yielded to its fascination. The call of the whippoorwills, the shadowy landscape, the starry heavens, the soft night air were novelties to them, and they began to feel that they were having a real adventure. It seemed too good to be true that they should be out so long after dark and bedtime, in a lonely place, with no one but Toughey, and engaged in an expedition that seemed delightfully perilous.

They talked the matter over in whispers and decided that, after all, they were lucky.

"Won't mamma be scared!" said Bess in an tone of pleased importance.

"You wicked little children!" exclaimed Toughey indignantly. "How can you be so heartless!"

Aside from the vague terrors of darkness, and the chance of getting lost, her mother's anxiety about them was the chief source of her own worry.

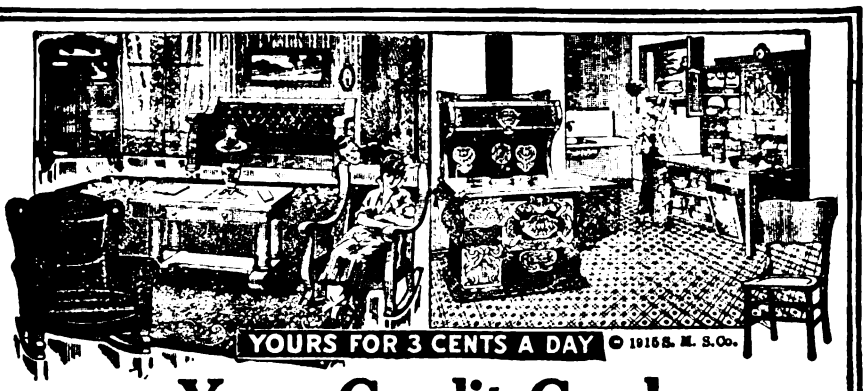
Startled by Toughey's denunciation, the children tried to sense their own depravity, to realize their own want of "principle and feeling," as Toughey put it, but failing, fell back on their delicious tremors over the lovely dangers of the trip.

Old Tom, whose vagrancy on the prairie had proved so troublesome, showed a disposition, now that he was reduced to the monotony of travel on a road, to stop altogether and would move only after the most insistent coaxing, cheering and whistling on the part of the little girls.

After a more than usually prolonged contest with the old dog, a distant hail from the direction of Pecan Hollow fell upon Toughey's ear. It was their mother's call, used commonly to bring them in from thicket, creek bottom or hillside to dinner and supper. They all gave the answering call and in a short time Mr. and Mrs. Deering emerged from the darkness, walking up the road to meet them.

"We have had lots of fun," cried Bess as Mr. Deering took charge of the dogs.

"Of course you have," he said cheerfully.



"They're all right," said Toughey tremulously and a few tears started from under her eyelids.

As Mrs. Deering walked along beside her, Toughey told her all that had happened. And then her mother reached up and gave her hand an affectionate pressure, and the girl's troubles slipped from her. She knew that here was someone who understood how responsible she had felt for the safety of her little sisters.

It was too late to go hunting that night—they must make an earlier start on account of the children. So Tom and Jerry were tied and fed and Bess and Nan went to bed with the joyful anticipation of being out again in the calm, the beauty and the mystery of the summer night.

"I wonder," said Toughey thoughtfully, as she sat with her mother that night on the porch, "what old Monte could have been doing in the canyon and he did not answer me."

TO BE CONTINUED.

Your Credit Card

Entitles You to One Year's Time on Home Things

No Red Tape

This is our 1915 credit plan, based on 50 years of selling to home lovers.

We will open your account when you ask for our catalog. No references required. Your Credit Card will be mailed with the book.

Then you may order when and what you wish and say, "Charge to my account."

The goods will be sent on 30 days' free trial, subject to return. You buy nothing until you see it and use it for a month.

On every bill we allow one year's time. You may pay as convenient, a little each month. No contract is asked, no security, no interest.

Millions Do This

About 2,000,000 homes have such accounts here now. That means one home in nine. Your own friends and neighbors have them.

They pick out home things from the largest exhibit ever shown. They save an average of one-third on price. They save five profits by dealing direct. They get all the benefit of our enormous buying. And they pay in such an easy way that they scarcely feel it. It means only a few cents per day.

5,160 Pictures

Our new Spring Bargain Book pictures 5,160 things for the home, many in actual colors. This mammoth book costs us $1 per copy, but we send it free.

Send this coupon for it. It will show you everything made for homes, and tell you how little such things need to cost. Your Credit Card will come with the book. Mail us the coupon today.

Be sure to ask for Book of Spring Styles for Women also.

50c Brings Big Rocker

Just Write for This Rocker

$3.35

Order From This Paper to get this bargain. Pay only 50c monthly. The entire frame is made of selected oak, brightly polished. Notice the handsome back, also the sides and front posts with deep cut rich carving. Covering is black Royal imitation leather. Seat is fitted with guaranteed oil-tempered springs and is 19x19 inches. Back is 25 inches high. Rocker stands 38 inches high. Shipping weight about 40 lbs.
No. 50F4B185. Price..... $3.35

A Dollar Book

Picturing 5,160 Things in

Furniture	Carpenters' Tools
Carpets—Rugs	Silverware
Draperies—Linens	Chinaware—Clocks
Oilcloths, etc.	Sewing Machines
Baby Cabs	Kitchen Cabinets
Refrigerators	Cameras—Pictures

Pay 3 Cents a Day

Spiegel, May, Stern Co.
1276 W. 35th Street, Chicago

SPIEGEL, MAY, STERN CO. (863)
1276 W. 35th Street, Chicago

Mail me your Spring Furniture Book.
Also the books I mark below.
....Stove Book. ....Watches and Jewelry.
....Spring Styles for Women.

Name .....
Address .....

Write plainly. Give full address.
Check which catalogs you want.

Healthful Cleaning

By Anne Emerson

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

A SCORE or more years ago when a home was to be furnished carpets were of the softest pile, the hangings of the heaviest velvet or silk to be afforded while everywhere about the rooms were little beautifully embroidered doilies, centerpieces, and scarfs. On the piano and mantels were lambrequins while before the stove was a heavy mat, probably of imitation fur. That was the age when the housewife was a slave to her cleaning and when the dust gathered menacingly in every room, and made house cleaning a time when germs were plentifully scattered about the house.

Today such furnishings are out of fashion even in the country districts. We are alive to the fact that it was such unnecessary and not particularly beautiful adornments that made a drudge of the woman, and what is still more important endangered the health of the entire family. At present we are furnishing our homes so that while they may be comfortable they may be easily cleaned, and do away with the ever present danger of germs.

For the housewife the ideal floor is of hardwood. This floor can be stained any color and varnished, or varnished without the stain, and when it is covered with small rugs that can be taken up and put out in the sun two or three times a week it is very attractive. Such a floor sweeps and washes easily; it can be wiped up with a damp or oil mop every day without any backbreaking effort. And when a varnished floor has been washed it is clean. A carpet, however, has to be constantly swept, and if the pile is thick it is practically impossible to get all the dirt out. Children playing about on the floor are frequently subject to colds, which are supposed to have come from draughts, while in reality they have been contracted from germs in the carpet.

Many of our housewives stick to the hardest of all slave drivers—the hand wielded broom. The broom is really a very poor cleaner, and does not remove all the dirt, which is often not reached by beating. The ideal way to keep the house clean if the floors are carpeted is through the use of a vacuum cleaner.

A vacuum cleaner can take every particle of dust out of the carpet in the big front room, and at the same time make the pattern show up better than it has for years. It does away with the work of taking the carpet up, beating it, and then stretching it into place again. The nozzle is simply run over the floor and the work is done. And in this day when electricity is accessible to everyone, and when there are good hand machines, —the vacuum is a possibility in every home.

There are two types of vacuum cleaners. If you have electricity in your home an electrical machine is the better of the two, for while it will not do the work any better, it will be less labor to operate. A light weight cleaner is a necessity, for if the machine is too heavy it is impossible to take it about the house without help from one of the men folks. In buying a machine, if possible, see it demonstrated, try running it, and try to thoroughly understand the parts. A good hand machine is one on wheels with a stationary nozzle that can be pushed about by the same force, and at the same time that the vacuum is created, leaving two hands free to create the vacuum.

A vacuum cleaner with many nozzles can be used for brushing down the wall of a room, getting the dust from the elusive picture moulding, cleaning mattresses, portieres, clothing, and can even be used to massage. In a sick room a vacuum cleaner is indispensible. It is dangerous to sweep a room where a patient is ill with any kind of a contagious disease, and even the ordinary cold may be spread through the scattering of disease loaded dust.

Between a carpet sweeper and a broom it is hard to choose which will be of more benefit to the housewife. If the rugs are heavy a carpet sweeper may not reach all the dust, while a broom with its sharp bristles may possibly do the work. For straightening a room that has been worked in all day,—where the dressmaker has dropped threads, and where little Bobby has had a cookie, there is nothing so good as a carpet sweeper. By pushing this helpful implement about the room the litter is picked up and the room looks attractive. The average housekeeper finds that if she has not a vacuum cleaner and she wishes to give her rooms a thorough cleaning—a stiff broom plus her arm power is the best. By all means have a carpet sweeper as well, though, but do not depend on it for all the work.

The dustless duster, and the oil mop are two invaluable helps to housekeeping. The old-fashioned dust rag was nothing more than a menace of flicking the dust about the room, for as soon as the room was cleaned the dust began to slowly settle where it had lain a few hours before. A dustless duster, however, absorbs the dust, and carries it away, not sending it into the air. A feather duster is absolutely harmful. It is positively dangerous. With an oil mop, however, boards can be wiped over every day, and as in the case of the dustless duster the mop takes up the dirt, and does not scatter it.

Anchor Vacuum Sweeper FREE
To Try in Your Own Home

Keeps carpets bright and new. Makes them wear 3 to 5 years longer. Gets all dirt, dust, everything. Does not "raise a dust." Saves two hours at every sweeping. Goes under heavy furniture. Every house needs it. Sweeps as good as any $50.00 machine with less labor. Only weighs 10 pounds. Costs 3c a Day. Saves its cost in 6 mo. Agents Wanted. Sell 2 a day and make $52.00 a week

We want one person in each locality to whom we can refer new customers, and give commission. Write for our free Trial plan today. All guaranteed.

Address Anchor Mfg. Co. Dept. SE, Factory Bldg. Dayton, Ohio

Beacon Burner FREE
FITS YOUR OLD LAMP.
100 Candle Power Incandescent pure white light from (kerosene) coal oil. Beats either gas or electricity.
COSTS ONLY 1 CENT FOR 6 HOURS
We want one person in each locality to whom we can refer new customers. Take advantage of our Special Offer to secure a Beacon Burner FREE. Write today. AGENTS WANTED.
HOME SUPPLY CO., 17 Home Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

A Thorn Among Roses

By Mrs. Georgie Sheldon

Copyright, 1898 and 1899 by Street and Smith. Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING EVENTS.

Alice and May Weston receive an invitation to a farewell reception, given to William Curtis Marchmont, the adopted son of Roland Fletcher, who is engaged to Alice, and is to enter Yale College. Alice is to study law with Judge Ashburton, whose daughter was the wife of Roland Fletcher. Her health failing their daughter Olive is sent, when a baby, to her grandfather, Judge Ashburton, living then in Philadelphia. Imogen Ingraham's mother, Mrs. Farquahar, marries Judge Ashburton. She dies, and Imogene, as the widow of Robert Ingraham and homeless, is invited by Judge Ashburton to accept a home with him and care for Olive. She conceals the birth of her child.

Roland Fletcher, assisted by Olive and Imogen on his left, Judge Ashburton and Will on his right receive their guests. Imogen and Olive, jealous of the attentions given to Alice, ignore her half-extended hand. Mr. Fletcher mortified and displeased receives her most cordially and welcomes her to Castleview. Later he leads her in a quadrille, after which they go into a long corridor. Stopping before a painting Alice learns it is the portrait of Mr. Fletcher's wife. He wishes nothing better for her, than she may be as happy with his boy, as he was with his wife. Will joins them and Olive passes without a word of greeting. Mr. Fletcher follows Olive and requests that she be more courteous to her guests. Will goes to Yale. Judge Ashburton opens his office in town with Alice as his clerk. May is busy. Olive and Imogen out driving. Olive proposes they call for her grandfather. Imogen orders Buxton to drive to the office. Olive takes the lines, Judge Ashburton insists that Alice, who is suffering from a headache, shall ride home. A newspaper caught in the wind, frightens one of the horses and both spring forward. Olive drops the lines and Alice, with rare presence of mind secures them and controls the horses. Judge Ashburton and the driver take Alice home. He reprimands Imogen and Olive for their indifference and failure to thank Alice and realizes a phase in Imogen's character, hitherto concealed. Mr. Fletcher calls upon Mrs. Weston and Alice and expresses his gratitude.

Will's last vacation comes. Judge Ashburton arranges a little excursion which includes Alice and May Weston. Arriving at their destination, they meet Arthur Stamford, in love with Alice Weston, his father Sir Arthur Stamford, Mr. Tom Radcliffe and his sister, Miss Grace. Tom Radcliffe proposes a visit to the caves. Alice Weston and Grace Radcliffe become separated from the party. Alice stopping to tie her shoe Grace goes on. Alice's candle goes out. She feels a grip on her arm and a gruff voice inquires if she knows a woman by the name of Ingraham who lives at Castleview and requests her to send a letter, which he thrusts into her hands. Arthur Stamford returns to find Alice and asks her to be his wife. She admits her love for and engagement to another. In the meanwhile Sir Arthur evinces unusual interest in Will Marchmont and learns to his astonishment that his middle name is Curtis. His mother, Mabel Randal Curtis, was Sir Arthur's second wife, whose first husband was the second son of Lady Marchmont—the Marquise of Leith. A visit to Lady Marchmont confirms Will's parentage and his right to Marchmont Court. He visits Alice, assuring her that nothing can part them and in one year she will be his wife, the future Marquise of Leith. Lady Marchmont exacts much from the future Marquise of Leith, and at her grandson's suggestion she writes a note to Alice, inviting her to come to Leith for a week preceding a reception she is to give in honor of Will and before his departure for Yale College. In the meanwhile Olive is invited to visit at Marchmont Court. She resolves to win Will at any cost, and to his astonishment and regret admits her love for him. Imogen, receiving the letter, given to Alice, by the mysterious stranger, determines to accomplish the union of Will and Olive, and plots to place Alice in a false position before her hostess. Nellie, Mrs. Marchmont's maid, discovers the loss of sixty pounds. Alice, in packing her trunk notices an unusual disorder. Lifting some clothing she finds the missing money and valuable jewelry. Speaking to May, she requests her to call Lady Marchmont and Will, and admits to them where and how she finds it. Lady Marchmont looks amazed. Her attention is drawn to a piece of braid, convincing her that Alice is innocent. Taking the money and jewels to her chamber she discovers strands of silk caught in her jewel box and picks up a tiny bangle. Left alone with Imogen, Mrs. Machmont produces evidence of her guilt and her determination to ruin Alice. The guests return home, Alice and May riding in the Marchmont carriage. As it turns toward Beechcote a shabby-looking man recognizes a piece of luggage and believes that one of the two girls is the missing baby. Will returns to Yale and Alice to her work. A prize is offered by a woman of New York, prominent in society who claims that sex makes no difference in mental capacity and solicits applications from both sexes to take part in a law debate. Judge Ashburton, anxious for Alice to compete, invites her and her sister to accompany him to New York. A few days is spent in studying up the questions involved and they sail for New York. Alice is chosen as one of the contestants and wins the thousand dollar prize. Judge Ashburton is called home by a cablegram from Mr. Fletcher.

CHAPTER XV.

IN SORE STRAITS.

WHAT serious legal complications could have arisen to make it necessary for his son-in-law to summon him home so hurriedly Judge Ashburton was at a loss to surmise; but he well knew that Mr. Fletcher would never have recalled him so summarily unless there had been urgent need.

Therefore, he did not hesitate a moment, but as already stated, prepared at once to respond to the call.

He was very sorry to have to go, on Alice's and May's account, for there were a number of places which he had intended to visit with them before their return.

If they shared his disappointment they manifested nothing of it in his presence, but most cheerfully acquiesced in his decision, and repacked their trunks without a murmur.

The judge cabled a return message, telling Mr. Fletcher that he would sail the next day but one, and he also sent a line to Mrs. Weston mentioning their unexpected return and telling her that Alice had come off victor in the contest.

Will was the most deeply disappointed of anyone, for he had afranged to have a visit from them at New Haven, while the judge had intimated to him that he might remain in America until after commencement, when they would all return together. But, of course, he knew the case must be urgent, and he bore it bravely; but he said to Alice at parting, as they stood alone on deck just before the vessel sailed:

"My darling, the separation will be only for a little over two months, and then there will be no more partings for us; meantime, I wish you would discontinue your work with the judge—try to rest and make your preparations for the coming event at your leisure, for, Alice, on the last day of June, I shall claim you as my wife."

Alice flushed with happiness at this reference to their approaching marriage, and she said she would think of his proposition of giving up her work; but she little dreamed of what lay before her in connection with that work.

In spite of the fact that a brilliant future awaited her, as the lady of Leith, she could never think of surrendering her profession without a keen sense of regret. Her recent triumph had whetted her ambition, and she longed to plume her wings for still higher flights; at the same time she knew that she was capable of even greater sacrifices for the man whom she loved so devotedly.

The return voyage was much pleasanter than the one two weeks earlier, and the great steamer sailed into port the very hour she was due, and before evening of the same day our travelers were once more safe at home.

But their astonishment and dismay can be better imagined than described when they learned that Roland Fletcher, whose name, all his life, had been synonymous for all that is noble and honorable had been arrested for—treason!

The circumstances that led to his arrest were these:

The week following the departure of Judge Ashburton for America, a special messenger delivered into the hands of Mr. Fletcher some very important documents which he, in turn, would be required to pass over to the proper authorities, after giving them a personal examination and affixing his signature to them.

As they were not due for several days, and he had other important matters on hand, he put them carefully away in his safe, until he should have more leisure to give to them.

That same day he went to London and deposited a large sum of money which had come into his possession from various sources.

The next morning he was called unexpectedly away from home upon important business which detained him over night; and it was not until late on the afternoon after his return that he found an opportunity to examine the papers referred to above.

What was his consternation upon opening the safe to get them to find that they had mysteriously disappeared!

He was appalled—almost paralyzed by the unlooked-for calamity, for their loss involved secret matter of very grave moment to the government under which he was serving.

It was in vain that he searched his safe over and over, examining his own papers again and again with the faint hope that they might possibly have got mixed in with them; they were gone, and it was with almost a feel'ng of utter despair that he realized the terrible strait in which he was placed.

But with the straightforwardness which had ever characterized all his dealings, he immediately reported his loss to the proper officials.

His communication was received with evident dismay; but he had served so long and so faithfully in the position he occupied, that, at first, no personal imputation was attributed to him, and vigorous efforts were at once instituted to recover the missing documents.

A week went by and one morning as he sat at breakfast with Olive and Imogen, an officer arrived at Castleview and arrested him upon the charge of treason.

The blow came upon him like a thunderbolt, and was a terrible shock to him; and yet, at the same time he was so conscious of his own rectitude he felt sure that the matter would soon be cleared up and he would be fully exonerated.

"Imogen!" he exclaimed, with a violent start.

She showed herself thoroughly posted on every point

But circumstantial evidence, that subtle fiend that has ruined so many innocent men, seemed destined to also hold him fast in its cruel clutches.

Suspicion had been aroused that he had been tempted to violate his oath of allegiance. It had been learned that, on the same day that the papers had come into his possession, he had deposited a large amount of money in a certain bank in London, while the fact that he had not given immediate attention to his duties in connection with the papers, but instead had delayed the work for his own affairs, were deemed a breach of trust, and yet, those who knew him best felt sure that he was guiltless. At the same time, the matter was one of such grave import that it could not be lightly disposed of.

A preliminary examination was held, during which Mr. Fletcher gave a clear and concise account of all his movements during the time the papers were supposed to be in his possession, and explained how the money which he had deposited had come into his hands. But suspicion is something like a snowball—the more you roll it the more it accumulates, the case became more and more complicated as it was investigated, and the man was finally committed, bail being denied him because of the serious nature of the offense—to await his trial at the next assize.

This was the existing state of affair when Judge Ashburton returned, and, in view of the mysterious circumstances attending the disappearance of the precious documents, the outlook for Mr. Fletcher seemed very discouraging.

The matter appeared utterly inexplicable, for the thief, whoever he might have been, had disturbed no other papers, and it seemed almost as if he must have known how valuable were the contents of those he took and had come with the knowledge of the fact that they were there at Castleview, the time when they were delivered, and of the absence of Mr. Fletcher. There had been two or three pounds and some loose change in the till, and this had also been taken; but nothing else, although there had been a valuable package of bonds in the same compartment with the papers.

No one had seen any suspicious individual about the premises, on the day or evening previous to the robbery, and there was not the slightest sign to show that anyone had entered the house by force; while it was evident that the invader must have understood how to manipulate the safe, for Mr. Fletcher had found it securely locked and not a scratch to show that the combination had been meddled with.

It seemed a hopeless task to attempt to solve the perplexing problem and try to trace the real culprit; but Judge Ashburton and Alice both went to work upon it with all the energy and tireless persistence they possessed.

But time passed—the mystery was still a mystery and the utmost they could do was to act upon the defensive; they had not gleaned one single fact that pointed toward the real thief and his motive.

They could only claim that Mr. Fletcher's hitherto unimpeachable trustworthiness and unsullied honor; his straightforward confession of his loss as soon as it was discovered, were sufficient proof of his present innocence.

He had been able also to produce tangible evidence to account for how he became possessed of every pound of the money which he had deposited in the bank. This had been accomplished with considerable difficulty, but it was a strong point, for it proved that this amount had not been accepted as a bribe to betray state secrets.

By indefatigable labor and energy, they had also managed to secure witnesses who could account for every hour of his absence from home during which time the robbery had been committed.

But, of course, all this was only subjective evidence, and, to those so deeply interested in his career, it seemed very meager and insufficient when they were so anxious to remove the stigma resting upon his name.

Alice threw her whole soul into the work; she labored early and late, but ever with a sickening sense of defeat.

She felt that she could not have the case go against the proud, good man who had so befriended Will. He had been a father to her dear one, and she honored and revered him for that, while from every other point of view he seemed to her one of the grandest men she had ever known.

She believed, and the judge hoped, that unless the counsel for the prosecution were able to prove what had been done with the missing papers, they could save him from being convicted, even if they could not clear him from all suspicion and reinstate him in his former position.

This hope, however, was but little comfort, either to them or the man who suffered untold tortures, in view of his doubtful future, for his liberty would hardly be welcome if it did not bring with it complete vindication in the eyes of the world.

It was an anxious time for them all, but they were, nevertheless, eager for the day of trial to come, and have it over with, for the suspense was intensely wearing.

Alice had followed the case so closely she knew every step of the defense, every argument and point which the judge would make, while many suggestions and something of her own eloquence—which had at times burst from her while they were discussing the matter—had been incorporated in his final plea.

And so the last day before the one set for the trial arrived.

About half an hour before it was time to close the jail to all visitors on this evening, a woman, clad in black and closely veiled, applied for admittance and asked to see Mr. Fletcher.

The jailer eyed her suspiciously and hesitated.

"It is getting late; you would hardly reach his room before you would have to leave," he said.

"I cannot help that; I must see him," replied the voice behind the veil, and after a moment of thought, the man told her to follow him, and led her up a flight of stairs to the small but comfortable room where Roland Fletcher was confined.

"You can remain just half an hour—no longer," said the jailer, as he opened the door to admit the visitor.

The woman passed in, and the door was closed and locked again.

Mr. Fletcher, who was sitting at a table writing, glanced up in surprise at the intruder, who at that instant threw back her veil, revealing a pale, wan face, sunken eyes and quivering lips.

"Imogen!" he exclaimed, with a violent start.

"Yes, it is I," she returned, "and I suppose you have wondered why I have not come to see you before; but I could not. I could not. Oh, Roland Fletcher, it has nearly killed me to know that you were here, the victim of a terrible wrong, and yet, I could not come to see you."

"Then why are you here now?" he quietly inquired, while he searched her face curiously.

"To ask what hope you have from tomorrow's trial."

"I am compelled to confess that I have not very much," the man replied, with a touch of bitterness. "They may not be able to convict me of crime and pass sentence upon me, but I have little hope of securing an honorable acquittal; that I will be cleared from all suspicion, and it will be small comfort to me to go forth from here, to have people look askance at me and to know that a stigma is resting upon my name," he concluded, with a heavy sigh.

"Oh! if—if I might save you! It is too bad, too bad!" Imogen cried, a sob bursting from her dry lips.

The man darted a look of pain at her and flushed.

"Do not pity me," he said, with some hauteur.

"And why should I not pity you, Roland Fletcher?" Imogen passionately exclaimed; "do you not think I suffer for you! Can you not see that this trouble is killing me."

She stretched forth a thin, white, trembling hand to him, and he was surprised to see how she had lost flesh.

"I am sorry you should have taken the matter so to heart; it could help nothing," he remarked, gently.

"But, Roland, suppose it were possible for me to save you?" she questioned, drawing nearer to him, her burning eyes fastened hungrily upon his face.

He started slightly.

"That is a strange question," he observed. "What do you mean by it?"

"Never mind, if it does seem strange; answer me! What if it were possible that I could save you?" she reiterated, with some impatience.

"I repeat, I do not know what you mean," he answered, gravely. "If you could effect my release by proving me guiltless—clearing my name and character from all suspicion of the foul charge against me, so that I could resume my former position and retain the esteem of all men, I should be unspeakably grateful."

"'Grateful!'" the woman repeated, with exceeding bitterness, "is that all? If I could give you back name, position, honor—the esteem and praise of men—knowing what you do—would not the gift be worthy of something more than cold—gratitude?"

Roland Fletcher flushed again hotly, and his fine lips curled involuntarily.

"I cannot fail to understand you now, Imogen," he said, in a tone of cold constraint, "and let me say in reply that my good name and my honor are more to me than all the world, but without them I could enjoy neither home, friends nor wealth; but a man's deepest affections are not at the disposal of his will, or to be bartered or sold, so I could have only gratitude to give you in return for any service you might render me; except, perhaps, the promise of an abundance to make you comfortable and independent as long as you live——"

"Oh, hush!" Imogen sharply interposed. "Heavens! to think that you should offer me money in exchange! How dare you, when you know that I would give ten years of my life for one fond word from you? All my life I have idolized you," she went on, wildly, "even before you married Alice. I worshiped you—yes, even as Robert Ingraham, my husband, worshiped her. Ha! that hurts you doesn't it?" she cried, with a short, bitter laugh as he started, "but it is the truth, nevertheless. We, Robert and I, were both crushed to the earth by that marriage, and then foolishly thought to console ourselves and make an excuse to get out of the sight of your happiness by marrying each other. But it was rankest folly—he went to the bad as quick as he could go and I was wretched. Then, after he died, I, knowing that Alice would not long survive, began to hope that I might win a place in your heart—no, I won't stop," she cried, with a stamp of her foot as her listener made a gesture of repulsion, "the flood gates are open and I will ease my aching heart for once, even though I may wish to drop dead from shame the next moment. A woman seldom loves as I have loved you; a woman has seldom served as patiently, for a man's love, as I have served you and yours all these long years, hoping, yearning, waiting for a morsel—a crumb even— of comfort at the very last. Roland Fletcher, you see, I have laid my very soul bare before you; now, tell me, if I can save you, if I can give you back your freedom and all the prestige you so desire, will you make

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 29.)

MONEY
LOTS OF IT!
ACT NOW!

Send name of your Pastor to PROVE you are honest and we will send you 36 Sets Gliding Casters. Sell at 10c set and earn $2.34 in a few hours. Sell more if you like and earn plenty more. Send no money till all are sold. We also send FREE 12 Demonstrating Sets. Anyone that could not earn $10 a week in spare time selling Gliding Casters could not sell bread in a famine.
S. MFG. CO., 41 Warren St., N. Y., Desk 20.

PATENT YOUR IDEAS
$9,000 offered for certain inventions. Book "How to Obtain a Patent" and "What to Invent" sent free. Send rough sketch for free report as to patentability. Patents advertised for sale at our expense in Manufacturers' Journals.
CHANDLEE & CHANDLEE, Patent Att'ys
Established 16 Years
989 F. Street, Washington, D. C.

IN NEW YORK CITY
Have you a patent needing help to develop? Have you timber, water power, or mineral lands to dispose of? Want to get in touch with manufacturers, jobbers or purchasers? Wish anything purchased or investigated, business transacted or any service here by a Reliable Agency? If so write us. Business established 20 years. No charge except as agreed to by you. Our long experience is at your disposal.
AMERICAN SERVICE UNION, 220 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

Don't Throw It Away
MENDETS
Mend leaks instantly in all utensils, graniteware, aluminum, tin, brass, hot water bags, etc. No solder, cement or rivet. Any one can use them. Send for sample box, 10c; large box, all sizes, 25c, postpaid. Agents Wanted. Collette Mfg. Co., Box 452 Amsterdam, N. Y.

This Handsome $25 Blue Serge Suit $15
Tailored To Your Measure

Boys Suit Special
A real tailor-made suit, made by our bench tailors in off season from short pieces of highest grade woolens. Nifty Style, as illustrated, 2 pairs pants, $8.00 value, special for only $5.75. With one pair of pants $4.65
Send for catalogue

Why pay $20 to $25 for merely ordinary ready made clothes—when you can get this guaranteed all pure wool blue serge suit—the greatest value ever offered—tailored to your measure for only $15—and especially when to secure your first order we will line it with a regular $4.00 Satin Lining FREE and pay all shipping charges. We take all the risk—we guarantee to please you in materials, fit, style and workmanship or you don't pay us one cent. Send today for our Big Catalogue—70 Samples of plain and fancy suitings—also lowest prices on men's high grade furnishings, hats and shoes—our system of selling direct through no agents, stores or dealers Saves You Big Money. Write to
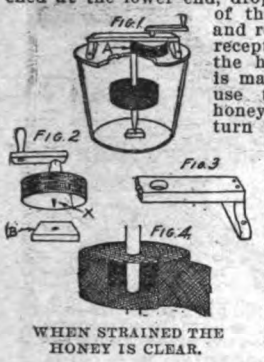
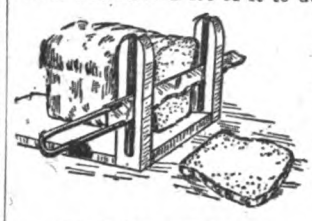
BERNARD-HEWITT & CO. Desk D-613 564 W. MONROE CHICAGO



Kitchen Kinks that Save Steps and Lighten Work

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

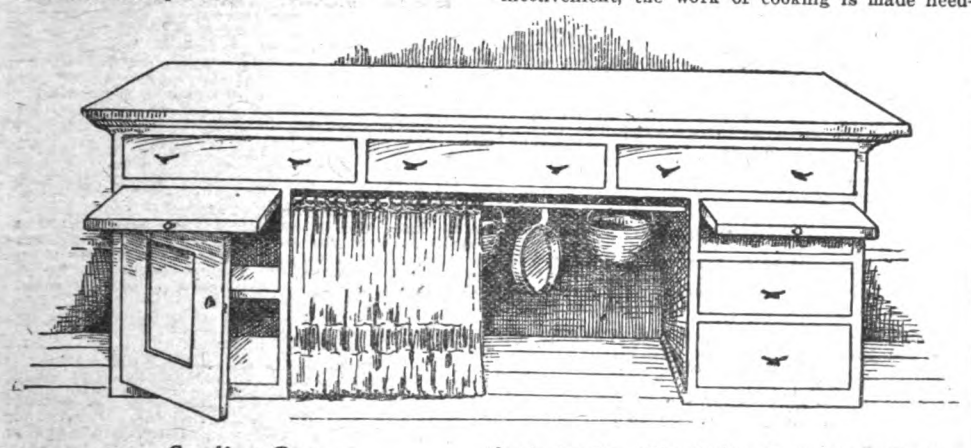
Honey Strainer



This effective honey strainer is very easy to make. It consists of a pail and lid with a small bridge built on the latter. A wooden peg, sharpened at the lower end, drops from the under side of the bridge into the pail and rests upon a block. The receptacle Fig. 4 in which the honeycombs are placed is made of wire screen. To use the device place the honey in the screen box and turn on the crank. The small disk, Fig. 2 by reason of contact, turns the shaft and receptacle so rapidly that the honey will fly through the screen leaving the wax in a hard lump in the center. It is centrifugal force that causes the action and in the same manner clothes are dried in laundries. The heavy article will move so rapidly that the liquid will actually be left behind and of course being too heavy to remain suspended in the air will drop down.

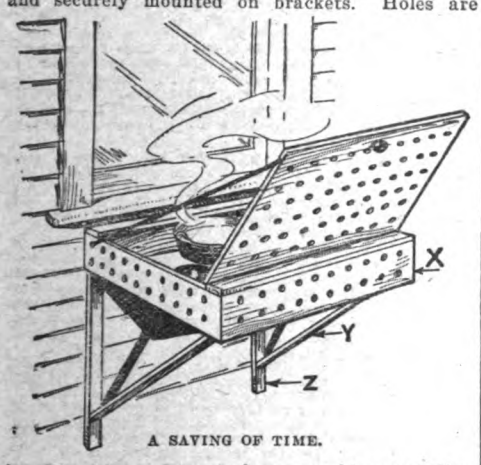
WHEN STRAINED THE HONEY IS CLEAR.

Bread Cutter



It is quite a knack to cut cread right and to those who have a lot of it to do this device offers a chance of rest. It consists of a flat block with two slotted sticks nailed to the end. The slots are saw cuts and must be straight and correspond nicely. A stop should be placed outside the slots so that the loaf of bread can only be pushed so far. This stop could be a light stick nailed to the baseboard, at a point where the cut end of the loaf would strike it. In making toast, or preparing picnic sandwiches the cutting guide will insure quick and uniform slicing.

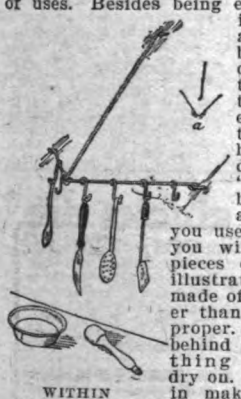
IT INSURES UNIFORM THICKNESS



Convenient Kitchen Table

The kitchen table shares with the range, or cook stove, the honor of being the most important part of the kitchen's furnishing. If the table is inconvenient, the work of cooking is made needlessly harder. The design shown herewith illustrates a table that represents not a little experience and consideration of what goes to make the most convenient table. It has a large top, which keeps dishes and pans from getting into inextricable confusion, and it has a large number of drawers, which are always convenient, and also closet room. Two slides pull out, on which pans may be set when one is sitting at work at the table; while in the long space under the center of the table is a chance to hang a multitude of kettles and other kitchen utensils. These are protected from dust by a washable curtain that slides upon a rod at the front of the opening. Such a table is not to be found at the furniture stores, but can be made by a carpenter at an expense not at all prohibitive. It could be made still more useful by making it a little wider from front to back, and erecting upon the back a cabinet of drawers and closets in which all kinds of material used in cooking could be kept, each drawer being labelled with the name of the article within, as sugar, spices, rice, tapioca, graham meal, etc. Such a plan saves countless steps, and it's the "countless steps" that make hard work of housekeeping.

Cooling Box



A cooling box is useful as an adjunct to the kitchen. In making candy or icing, or pies it will be found serviceable, or as a place for the hot skillet or for what is left of the cold vegetables, such as sliced tomatoes. It is a strong light box placed outside a convenient window, and securely mounted on brackets. Holes are bored in sides and top to insure rapid evaporation and quick cooling. Sometimes if the dust is flying or if the spot chosen for the cooling box is exposed to every wind that blows, it is advisable to tack light cheese-cloth on the inside. This will filter the air and may be taken out and washed occasionally. Once the box is installed you will find many uses for it.

A SAVING OF TIME.

Wire Holder

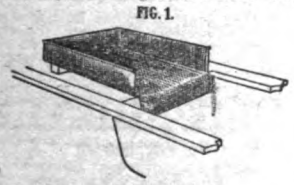
Here is a simple wire rack that has a variety of uses. Besides being employed as the picture indicates it may be used as a towel rack, ironing board shelf or stocking dryer. It is made of two pieces of wire and three staples or screw eyes. When not in use the lower end of the hanging piece may be disengaged from the "V" shaped part and both will hang flat against the wall. If you use it for kitchen utensils you will have to bend short pieces of wire into hooks as illustrated. These can be made of wire a good deal lighter than that used for the rack proper. Wouldn't one of those behind the stove be a handy thing for the dish-cloths to dry on. The few minutes spent in making one will certainly come back to you with interest, in the way of time and steps saved in going back and forth for them when needed.

WITHIN EASY REACH.

Sink Drainer

An old roasting pan may be converted into a drainer for the sink by turning down one end as indicated by the illustration. The cutting may be done with a three-cornered file or with a cold chisel and hammer. The cleat under the end of the pan gives it pitch enough to insure quick drainage. It can be tacked permanently to the pan and then not be always getting lost. The second drainer is a wooden board fitted with pegs to hold the dishes. In using this the dishes are scalded while on the board and no drying with a towel is necessary. Another type of drainer is a wire basket to be placed directly over the sink pan. Either of the three is an improvement over the old-fashioned kind.

FIG. 1.



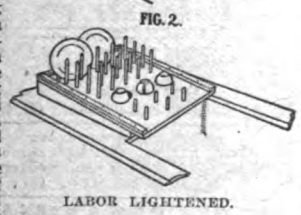


FIG. 2.

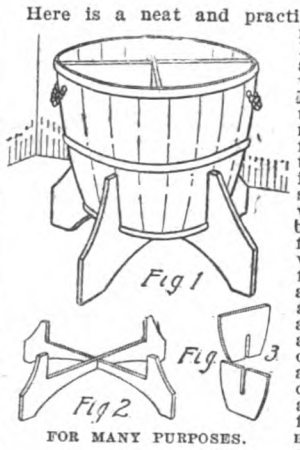
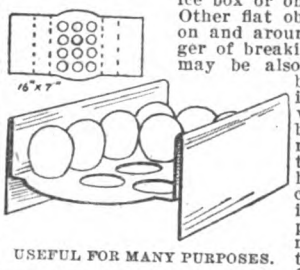
LABOR LIGHTENED.



Steamer Kettle

Kettles with false bottoms are a handy device for the housekeeper, the old-fashioned deep one, made of iron with slanting sides being the most adaptable. Cut round tin that will fit size of kettle within two inches of bottom and punch a number of holes through it. One made to fit higher up in the kettle makes a convenient steamer for vegetables, puddings and brown bread as shown in illustration.

A Nut Holder



Here is a neat and practical receptacle for nuts of various kinds. A glance at the picture will explain it. Two pieces form the four compartments. They are fitted together in the manner shown in Fig. 3. The stander upon which the half barrel rests is fitted in a similar way. You will find it a strong and convenient article to have around the house and of course it costs nothing but a little labor. It could be used to advantage for different kinds of meal, cracked corn, etc., also. It would be especially convenient for chicken feed, vegetables or seeds.

FOR MANY PURPOSES.

An Egg Holder

Here is a handy device for holding eggs in an ice box or on the pantry shelf. Other flat objects can be piled on and around it without danger of breaking its contents. It may be also used as an egg boiler when placed in a large-mouthed vessel, or it will bake potatoes just right or keep toast warm or heat the butter in cold weather. It is made of one piece of sheet metal shaped like the top sketch and folded on the dotted lines. The holder is simple enough for anyone to make and has many uses that will develop after you install it in your kitchen.

USEFUL FOR MANY PURPOSES.

The Unrest of the Age

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8.)

grown less, idleness is forced on her and restlessness displaces effective effort. Clearly, the thing to be done is to remodel occlusive public opinion so that it no longer limits her field. Next, we must so train our daughters that, grown to womanhood in an atmosphere of self-control, self-reliance and self-knowledge, she shall at length become the mistress of all three. Graduated from the school of truth, let her stand on the threshold of life and look with clear, far-seeing eyes to the horizon in every direction. Let her choice of life work be absolutely free. Set no limitations on her that she herself has not learned through experience to recognize. Unloosed at last, she will with her own new strength and of her own accord, lift forever from her soul the burden of unrest.

The Problem of the Woman who Works for Her Living

Turning now to the woman of the poorer classes—the woman who works for bread, we find a much simpler if no less distressing problem. Here is a question of earning enough to make both ends meet with a small overplus with which to guard against old age or disablement. Hers is the same unrest that moves organized labor to protestation and all that we have said about laboring men applies with equal force to laboring women. She who finds employment in the store or in the factory, has been forced to accept too small pay, her hours are too long and her working environment is faulty. Careful study of her problem will result in beneficial legislation looking to the general amelioration of her conditions of life. It must always be unfortunate that women are driven by the pressure of civilization into forms of labor where she is at any natural disadvantage. But life in the congested centers seems to make it necessary and so long as that is so, we must make the best of it.

We have concerned ourselves so far with two principal forms of legitimate unrest effecting our country as a whole. There are many other smaller groups as well as individuals whose discontent is surely legitimate and which deserves our attention. A whole volume might be written on the subject. Before closing, it will be well to glance at a case here and there of unrest which is not legitimate; which springs from the failure of the individual to seize opportunities ready at hand and waiting to be embraced.

Unrest of the Idle Rich

Such is the unrest of our so-called "idle rich"—the few who are born with wealth sufficient to guarantee to them immunity from the necessity of engaging in acquisitive occupations. If there is anywhere on earth anything like freedom of choice to do good or to remain idle, it must be among those whose fortunes have accrued through the industry or foresight or good-fortune of their antecedents. How many a man, forced by circumstances to work at an uncongenial means of livelihood, has sighed for that freedom of choice; believing that in him lay the ability to produce works of art or of science or of invention which would gain for himself fame and for the world a benefit.

These idle are restless. Refusing to put to serious purpose their money and talent, they seem to spend themselves in never ending search after new vanities. Were the wastefulness of their lives confined in its influence, we might be able to regard them with indifference, saying, a man's life is his own to do with as he chooses. But the force of example is strong and the showy idleness of these lives sows the seed of discontent in many a heart which would continue to beat in peace were it guided by a better judgment or influenced by a saner force. Society is coming to understand the dangerous and unfair principles of unearned increment in site values, of stock manipulation, of treason to public interest in abuse of corporate trust, of unrestricted control of natural monopoly and similar means to the accumulation of vast fortunes. Socialists and anarchists are preaching unwise and even incendiary sermons to the people. Here again is a breach into which the thoughtful man of common sense must step. Let him hasten to adjust the matter before violence endangers our very life in its crazy efforts to effect a cure.

Unrest from False Pride Leading to Extravagance

Viewed in a certain light, we will find that the very form and essence of our government and of our social structure are causes for a degree of illegitimate unrest. In America "equality" and "freedom" have come to be glib terms. The framers of our constitution and the preachers of our social creeds have used them so freely that, today their effective meaning is much diminished. It is a possibility, proven by actual experience, that a man of humble birth may become President of the United States. Everyone has heard the favorite retort of the servant-girl, exasperated by the taunts of the small boy of the household, that, "I am as good as you." The shop girl or the stenographer look with scant courtesy and from a plane no whit lower, at the more wealthy man or woman on the other side of the counter or calling at the office. "I am as good as you," cries cloud in every movement of the elevator boy, the iceman, the plumber. And it is not affectation—they honestly feel it; and to it we must attribute no small amount of unrest. It finds its most common form in extravagance. The stenographer and the shop-girl, again, "really must dress" in silk stockings and in near-silk imitation of the latest fashions. In these tawdry evidences of straining beyond their resources; in these stomach pinching efforts to make good, in outward appearance, the futile boast, "I am as good as you," there is a misdirected energy, a mistaken point of view that should elicit from those of sounder sense more of pity than blame.

No less a victim to the same delusion is the man of ordinary attainments whose income warrants the enjoyment of a few more of life's luxuries. Not content with these, he is restless to invade and move within the coveted circle of larger luxury of his more wealthy neighbor. He owns an automobile which he cannot comfortably afford; he insists that his wife and children shall dress more expensively than they should; he belongs to a club without which he would be better off. And so, on up the scale, each in striving to outdo his neighbor, outdoes no one but himself in the end. Each one of these who feels he must insist he is "as good as you," finds himself continually with his nose to the grindstone of misdirected energy, grinding out his last atom of content and his last chance for real success.

The Acme of Unrest Leads the Millionaire to Sell his Daughter for a Foreign Title

Among our most wealthy classes, this particular form of unrest may be considered the actuating force which finds expression in our all too familiar "international marriages" and unnatural marriages of any sort. Our millionaire mother and father, or our over-ambitious parents, have attained all that is purchasable with money in our country, or all they can accomplish by honest effort. Thereupon they of great wealth look abroad and find one other thing that they lack and which finds no place among our institutions—a hereditary title—the last evidence of superiority. But he cannot buy outright a hereditary title nor can he ever wear one and the maggot of unrest commences to gnaw at his soul. But a way out of the difficulty is suggested. The same remedy to which the over-ambitious parent is driven at length by inability to advance farther by his own effort; he has a daughter who may wear the title or the honor, and in its reflected light the parent may find calm at last. The daughter then, is the terrible price which the restless of the upper classes may be driven to pay. Augmented by a considerable sum of money, or even her fair body may be sufficient if she be of more than passing beauty, she will be able to satisfy the lust for popular show or power, as the case may be. And after all, the difference in lust pitiful in our poorer classes, shocking in our richer classes and degrading in any class, is one of degree and not of kind.

When we find fault with this tendency of our people and attribute it to our peculiar attitude of mind toward equality, we must not be construed as leaning toward the caste system nor of curbing ambition in the slightest degree. It is the proneness of our people to grasp rather than earn through honest effort; to covet; to pretend rather than to be. Brilliant achievements have been inspired, we must admit; but far oftener these practises result in dismal failure, sometimes bankruptcy, occasionally even criminal dishonesty of method and invariably illegitimate unrest.

Brief as has been our survey of unrest, we have at least been able to see that there is such a thing in all walks of life and in a few cases, to view the causes. In closing, let us reiterate the necessity of keeping clearly before us the symptomatic nature of the phenomenon; it is not a thing itself to be cured, but a guide to eventual cure of the underlying cause. We must not go away shaking our heads and muttering evil prophecy. Let us rather look upon this unrest as the most promising sign of the times. An indication that the world is awake to its obligations and opportunities; that civilization is to continue its onward march, always from the lower toward the higher plane, from the simpler to the more complex and from the worse to the better. A student of the history of the evolution of man is forced inevitably to the conclusion that the first cause which impelled Pithecanthropus-erectus to go out from his dismal forests and which has guided him through vicissitudes innumerable to the present, was, is and always will be, a benevolent First Cause.

What a Million Mothers Avoid

More than a million careful mothers have intuitively known the dangers of poisonous fly destroyers. They have known that such preparations contain arsenic in deadly quantities. They have realized the peril to little children that accompanies the use of fly poisons.

But for those who have not learned of these dangers, we quote from a recent issue of the Child Betterment Magazine, which comments upon 35 cases of children being poisoned last year:

"The danger to children is great, and the danger to adults is by no means inconsiderable."

In the December issue of the Michigan State Medical Journal, an editorial on the same subject cites 47 cases and goes on to state:

"Arsenical fly poisons are as dangerous as the phosphorus match. They should be abolished. There are as efficient and more sanitary ways of catching or killing flies. And fly poisons, if used at all, should not be used in homes where there are children, or where children visit."

TANGLEFOOT
"The Sanitary Fly Destroyer"
Non-Poisonous

Catches the Germ With the Fly

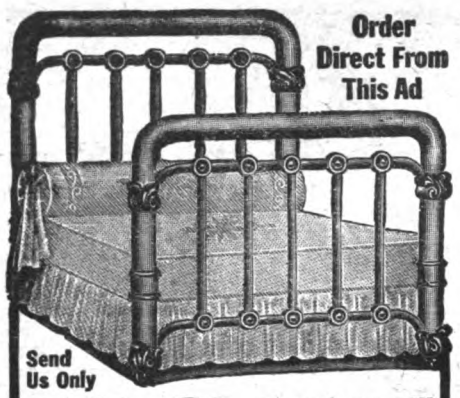
The new metal Tanglefoot Holder removes the last objection to the use of Tanglefoot. 10c at dealers or sent postpaid—two for 25c anywhere in United States.

THE O. & W. THUM CO.
Dept. 213, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Strawberry PLANTS FREE To introduce our Pedigreed Everbearing strawberries we will send 25 fine plants free. PEDIGREED NURSERY CO., St. Louis, Mo.

Strawberry Plants Twenty Varieties at $2.50 per 1000. Descriptive Catalogue Free. BASIL C. PERRY, Georgetown, Dela.

AUTOMOBILES At Rock Bottom Prices. Write for Bargain Bulletin. Eureka Auto Co., REBUILDERS, DEPT. 9, Beavertown, Pa.



JEWELRY clothing, vehicles, china, gasoline engines, stoves, etc. Free Catalogue. RURAL SUPPLY CO., Dept. C, ST. LOUIS, MO.

DISTRIBUTORS WANTED GOOD PAY: Steady Work; giving away packages Perfumed Borax Soap Powder with our Soaps, etc. No capital or experience needed. A. WARD & CO., 218 Institute Pl., Chicago.

Try It FREE
World Famous
Visible Oliver Typewriter
Don't pay rent; don't buy a "blind," out-of-date typewriter. Own this genuine Oliver Visible for only 13c a day. No agents; you make this extra profit. Free Trial. Write for facts and price.
TYPEWRITERS DISTRIB. SYNDICATE
166-32A N. Michigan Blvd., Chicago

MUSIC LESSONS FREE in your own Home for Piano, Organ, Violin, Guitar, Banjo, Cornet, Sight Singing, Mandolin or Cello. One lesson weekly. Beginners or advanced pupils. Your only expense is for postage and music, which averages about 2 cents a day. Established 1898. Thousands of pupils all over the world write. "Wish I had known of you before." Booklet and free tuition offer sent free. Address: U. S. SCHOOL OF MUSIC, Box 12, 225 Fifth Ave., New York City. Instruments supplied when needed. Cash or credit.

Order Direct From This Ad

Send Us Only

50¢ and we will ship you this Beautiful Bed

An astounding bargain. Only 50c down then only 50c monthly. Only $3.95 in all for this elegant continuous post all-steel bed. Use the coupon below. This picture cannot show what an elegant bed this is. Send for it on free trial. The bed has 1 and 1-16 inch Pillars, 5-16 inch filling rods. Full size 4 ft. 6 inch, only. Finished throughout in the famous Vernis Martin finish — looks like a brass bed. Order this wonder bargain direct from this ad if you wish by No. A118. This is only one of the great bargain offers we are making now. Send for our big bargain book. No obligation. Send today sure.

30 Days' Free Trial

We allow you 30 days free trial on every purchase. Send the coupon now for this luxuriously comfortable bed. If it fails to please you, ship it back, charges collect, and we will refund your deposit and any freight charges you paid. But send today.

Easy Payments If you want anything in rockers, furniture jewelry, carpets, rugs, curtains, washing machines, crockery, silverware, baby carriages, go-carts, Men's, Women's and Children's apparel, stoves, ranges or any other article of home-furnishing don't fail to get our sensational easy terms. Only a small deposit—then pay the balance at the rate of a small amount per month.

Send This Coupon Today

Read this free trial coupon and send it today. Get one of these elegant beds for only 50c down while this remarkable offer lasts. Have the bed shipped right to you. Just your mere request accompanied by 50c brings this bed. And we will send you at the same time our giant catalogue, also our special bargain bulletins. Or ask for these books on a postal. Write today. Do not delay on this. Send the coupon while you have the chance.

Straus & Schram, Inc. Dept. 5653 35th Street, Chicago, Ill.

Straus & Schram, Inc. Dept. 5653 35th Street Chicago, Ill.

Please ship me your Bed No. A118. I enclose 50 cents as first payment. I am to have 30 days free trial. If at the end of 30 days I like this bed I will send you 50 cents each month thereafter until $3.95, the full price of the bed has been paid. If I do not like the bed I will send it back at your expense and you will return my 50 cents together with any freight charges that I paid. Please also send your big catalog.

Name.....

Address.....

My Free Book "Hatching Facts"

Tells how thousands make big hatches, make big money with Belle City hatching outfits. Tells how users won 13 more World's Championships in 1914, making

Belle City 21 Times WORLD'S Champion

Write today for this great Free Book. Join the money-making World's Champion Poultry Raisers. Book gives you full particulars of my

$800 Gold Offers

My 10-year personal money-back Guaranty—my low prices, freight prepaid. See World's Champion machines in actual colors. Start early for gold offers. Jim Rohan, Pres.

Freight Prepaid. 7, 2 or 3 Months' Home Test

Belle City Incubator Co., Box 135, Racine, Wis.

$7.75 For 150-Egg Size Reliance INCUBATOR With 150 Chick Brooder, Only ... $10.50

Freight paid east of Mo. R. and North of Tenn. Other territ'y terms on request.

Guaranteed better than $15.00 machine. —Larger Hatches and Uses Less Oil—50,000 sold last year. Recommended to beginners. Order from ad or write.

RELIANCE INCUBATOR CO., Dept. 3 FREEPORT, ILLS.

GREIDER'S FINE CATALOGUE

and calendar of pure bred poultry; 70 varieties illustrated and described, many in natural colors. A perfect guide to poultry raisers—full of facts. Low prices on stock and eggs for hatching. Incubators and brooders. 22 years in business. You need this noted book. Send 10c for it—today.

B. H. GREIDER Box 63 RHEEMS, PA.

57 BREEDS Fine pure bred chickens, ducks, geese and turkeys. Northern raised, hardy and very beautiful. Fowls, eggs and incubators at low prices. America's greatest poultry farm. Send 4c for fine 100-page 21st Annual Poultry Book.

R. F. NEUBERT CO., Box 871, MANKATO, MINN.

Money Making Poultry

Our specialty. Leading varieties pure bred chickens, turkeys, ducks and geese. Prize winners. Best stock and eggs. Lowest prices. oldest farm. Fine 30th Anniversary Catalog FREE.

H. M. JONES CO., Box 102, Des Moines, Iowa;

130-Egg Incubator and Brooder

Freight Paid East of Rockies Both for $10

Hot water; double walls; copper tank—best construction. Write for Free Catalog.

Wisconsin Incubator Co. Box 18 Racine, Wis.

SHOEMAKER'S POULTRY BOOK AND ALMANAC FOR 1915

Over 200 pages; with many colored plates of fowls true to life; tells about chickens, incubators, poultry houses, etc. Price 15c. Money back if not satisfied. C. C. Shoemaker, Box 936, Freeport, Ill.

MONEY IN POULTRY Start small. Grow AND SQUABS big. Get winter eggs. Keep healthy fowls. Save your chicks. Foy's big book tells how. Describes largest poultry and pigeon plant. Shows fowls in natural colors, how to feed for eggs, how to select best layers. Mailed Free. F. FOY, Inc., Box 2, Des Moines, Iowa

140 Egg Incubator and 140 Chick Brooder both for $10

Made of California Redwood, covered with asbestos and galvanized iron, copper tanks, double walls, self-regulating, complete, ready to use. 30 days trial. Money back if not O.K. Order direct. Catalog free.

Freight paid east of Rockies

Ironclad Incubator Co., Box 21 Racine, Wis.

50 Best Paying Varieties

Hardy Northern raised Chickens, Ducks, Geese, Turkeys, Guineas. Pure-bred heaviest layers. Fowls, Eggs, and Incubators All at Low Prices. Large New Poultry Book now ready—Send 4c.

W. A. WEBER, Box 941, Mankato, Minn.

FOY'S BIG BOOK FREE

POULTRY AND SQUABS FOR PROFIT. An encyclopedia of poultry information. Written by a man who knows. Leading varieties of poultry and pigeons in natural colors. Low prices on fowls, eggs and incubators. Frank Foy Poultry Farm, Box 5, Clinton, Iowa.

Latest Book "Profitable Poultry," finest published; 144 pages; 210 beautiful pictures; complete volume, how to succeed with Poultry; describes busy Poultry Farm with 53 varieties of pure-bred birds. Gives lowest prices on fowls, eggs, incubators, grain sprouters, etc. This book 5 cents.

Berry's Poultry Farm, Box 31, Clarinda, Iowa

BY KATE V. SAINT MAUR.

Preventing Disease in Turkeys

THE letters received during the last year, asking advice about turkey ailments, have been so numerous, that about three months ago I began writing to some of the large breeders and to some of the agricultural colleges that have been devoting special attention to the subject. Chief of these was the state college at Kingston, Rhode Island, and through the courtesy of Professor Hadley I am now able to give our readers the result of their recent scientific studies.

The first point strongly emphasized by Professor Hadley is the necessity of reducing the amount of feed usually given to young turkeys. All the experiments during the last fifteen years have convinced him that the parasite which causes blackhead can only develop in the intestines of a young bird when they have been weakened by indiscreet feeding, which has clogged the bowels and rendered the tissues susceptible to attack, and that the only true method of fighting the disease is along the lines of prevention. In other words, keeping the birds' intestines in such a clean, healthy condition that the parasites have no chance to attack them.

The second point is, that certain acids materially retard the growth of the parasite, so that in conjunction with reduced feed, sour milk is the most powerful agent in checking the development of the disease. Beyond which, it is probable that besides the effect of the sour milk itself, the bacteria always present in sour milk is in itself beneficial to the tissues of the intestines.

So far, this is all very simple, and I know many of our readers will say, "Why, I have always fed my young turkeys clabbered milk, and they die off just the same." Which is quite true, because milk clabbered in the usual domestic way, or by any of the usual preparations sold for the purpose, does not contain sufficient acidity to be of much value in fighting off the parasite, when once introduced into the bird's intestines. The experiments undertaken by the Rhode Island station have, however, revealed the fact that foreign bacterium found in most of the sour milk drinks made by the Bulgarian peasants produce in milk from three to four per cent more acidity than is obtainable by any other means, and it is milk turned by means of this special bacterium which constitutes the main factor in Professor Hadley's new method of feeding young turkeys. Science has discovered a method of collecting this bacterium Bulgaricum, as it is called, and converting it into tablets, which can be procured from a firm in Detroit, Michigan, that makes a specialty of handling biological products. It is against our rules to give the names of firms in this column, but I will be glad to furnish it if correspondents will send a self-addressed post-card for the information.

The method of preparing the milk is quite simple. It merely consists in adding a tablet to the milk and then keeping it in a temperature of 105 degrees until it is thoroughly congealed. After it has cooled it can either be broken up and fed, cuds and whey together, or what is perchance better, strained through cheese-cloth, just as you would make ordinary cottage cheese, catching the whey in a pan, so that it can be used in a drinking fountain, and then feeding the curds mixed with the dry mash.

Now to the schedule of reduced feeding, which must be rigidly adhered to. Nothing for the first forty-eight hours; after that, hard-boiled egg which has been chopped fine (include the shell). The young birds must have only the smallest imaginable quantity. If you have one of the little wooden spoons which come with mixed mustard, use it as a measure, and divide that amount between two birds for a day's feed. If you don't use mixed mustard, and haven't such a spoon, a number nine thimble will do, but be sure it is only half full, and that two birds share the quantity. The fourth day, the thimble may be three parts full, and a pinch of finely chopped green stuff added to it (the best green stuffs are tender clover, grass, or the green sprouts of oats.) The fifth day, fill the thimble with the chopped egg, add a tiny pinch of rolled oats, and a degree more green stuff. Increase the amount about a grain a day, up to the tenth day, at which time the sour milk treatment should commence. At first, give just a few grains, mixed with a still fewer grains of dry mash. Increase slightly each day, at the same time decreasing the amount of chopped egg in such proportions that by the fourteenth day the egg may be entirely discontinued. At this time the birds should be getting one quarter of an ounce of green food, half that quantity of rolled oats, a pinch of dry mash and half an ounce of curds. This is for each bird. Keep whey before them all the time, so that they can drink when they please.

By the third week, rations should be as follows: Two ounces of green food; one ounce of rolled oats; half an ounce of dry mash; half a gill of curds, and not quite half an ounce of small mixed grain. Remember that this amount is for one week's rations, and must be divided for the seven days. Increase at the same gradual rate as before, all the articles of diet except the rolled oats, which should be gradually decreased so that it is entirely left out by the seventh week, when the quantity of food given for each bird for one week should be: green food, four and one half ounces; dry mash, two ounces; curds, about a gill and a half; mixed grain, a trifle over one ounce. Again increase up to the eleventh week, when green food should be six ounces, dry mash, six ounces, curds one quart and one gill. At this time, cracked corn and whole wheat in equal parts take the place of the small grain, and the amount given should be three ounces. Continue the same rations with a slight increase from week to week until the birds are twenty-four weeks old.

The above schedule is for young birds confined to yards. When the youngsters are allowed free range, after they are two or three weeks old, the green food can be entirely omitted, and so can the mixed grain, but they must have the sour milk curds and dry mash given to them before they are allowed out in the morning, and when they are brought up to their sleeping place at night.

In conclusion, Professor Hadley advises the use of a drug which is an intestinal antiseptic and has been found of great service. The drug is known as formadine, which is to be procured from the same firm in Detroit as the bacteria. The use of the drug should commence in the fourth week of the bird's life. The dose recommended is one grain per day for two weeks; two grains per day for two weeks; then three grains per day for five weeks, at which time its use can be discontinued. "The most critical period in the life of young turkeys begins at the fifty-fifth day, and the giving of formidine should slightly anticipate this period. The drug may be mixed with a small quantity of mash up to the thirteenth week, when it is discontinued. Whether further use of the drug is advisable cannot now be stated. It is also possible that further experiments will reveal some intestinal antiseptic better suited to the purpose than the formadine, or even that formadine is unnecessary if a sufficiently large amount of sour milk is given."

Now for a few hints of my own. Remember that it is quite likely that some of your common hens or other poultry may be infested with the parasite of blackhead, though showing no sign of illness, and that all such parasites are transmitted through the droppings of affected birds, therefore observe strict cleanliness in all your poultry houses, and keep your young turkeys as far removed from other poultry as possible. It is no use dosing birds if they are exposed to daily contamination.

WHITE HOLLAND TURKEYS.

Correspondence

F. S.—I have two banty hens and a rooster, and will you tell me what ails them? They keep twitching their heads and making a piping noise, and someone told me it was the pips, but I don't know what to do for them.

A.—Rub the tip of the tongue with a mixture of honey and borax, or glycerine, and give the birds twenty grains of Epsom salts each, and a cure will soon be established.

E. J. C.—I have six hens and a rooster of pure bred White Rocks. How long should they be kept separate from balance of flock before using eggs for breeding purposes?

A.—Better separate pure-blooded hens from the rest of the flock as soon as possible, and put the rooster with them three weeks before they are to be used for incubation.

J. E. B.—I have a late hen turkey hatched this fall, which is very much under size. Do you think I could cross her with a White Rock rooster two years old this coming spring?

A.—No; such a cross is not practical. Being hatched so late in the season, she would not be of any use to breed from this spring under any circumstances.

E. C.—I have a fine flock of turkeys. They are beginning to die. Have lost five in the same way. They first begin to droop around, then they get so they won't eat anything unless I put it in their mouths. Then they swallow like they were hungry. They seem very thirsty. We cut one open; her crop was full; seemed too full, like what she had eaten hadn't passed through, and her liver was swollen about three times natural size, and was all covered with copper-colored spots. The left side of her liver was almost solid copper color and seemed to be rotten. The crop had a very bad smell. Some of their heads turned blue when they died. They are greatly sunken around the eyes. Their droppings are a thin yellow, and some are blue. They have free range in the country, and are fed chops at night; have plenty of pure water to drink.

A.—Your letter touches such a general trouble that I am going to take it as the main subject of my article this month. As it is impossible to answer it fully and helpfully in the correspondence column, I therefore must ask you to turn to the beginning of the department, where I hope you will find helpful suggestions.

C. L. B.—Will you kindly send me a list of poultry shows to be held in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont this winter, with dates, or inform me as to where I can secure list?

A.—The only list of shows I have at hand does not include the states you name. You had better write to the Commissioner of Agriculture, Augusta, Maine, Plainfield, Vermont, and Concord, New Hampshire.

M. F. O.—I killed a hen for the table, and on removing the entrails found the liver of a dark green color and covered with small yellow spots, and kidneys shrunk. Not very fat, and fat of a dark yellow. Was afraid to use the meat. Will you please tell me what was the matter?

A.—I should say the hen had what is commonly known as blackhead when it attacks turkeys, for with turkeys the head often turns dark when the disease reaches advanced stages. Strange to say, it is seldom fatal to ordinary poultry, so it is only when birds are killed for table use and the condition of the liver observed that people become aware that there is anything the matter. It is through the droppings of such hens that turkeys usually contract the disease. As it has undoubtedly been present in your flock, I advise you to read the beginning of this month's article, and apply the sour milk treatment to the rest of your hens.

F. C.—Please tell in COMFORT how to feed young Indian Runner ducks.

A.—The feeding and care of young Indian Runner ducks is exactly the same as that of any other young ducks. A dry sleeping place, shade from midday sun, plenty of sand or fine grit, and clean drinking water in deep dishes, so that they can submerge their entire heads, but so arranged that it is impossible for them to get into the water with their feet or bodies. Feed should be mash made of equal parts of wheat bran, finely ground clover or Alfalfa, ground oats and ground corn. To each two quarts of such mixture add two tablespoonfuls of ground bone or beef meal.

C. L. D.—I wish you would advise me through your paper how to make a fireless brooder. I have plans for making a hot air brooder, but it is so easily overheated, and there is so much danger of fire that it is unsatisfactory. Also, I would like to know which variety of Leghorns you consider the most profitable as egg producers, if there is any difference.

A.—The January number of COMFORT contained directions for making a fireless brooder. All varieties of Leghorn are equally egg producers.

F. B.—Will you kindly publish in your paper whether or not turkey eggs hatch good in an incubator. Do little turkeys that are hatched by an incubator do well? Have been told that all eggs hatched by an incubator are subject to diarrhea, and for that reason turkeys hatched by an incubator do not do well. Kindly let me know what you know about it, and the best incubator to buy.

A.—I have hatched turkey eggs under common hens, turkey hens, and in incubators every season for the last fifteen years, and have found no material difference in them. But I always give them to turkey hens or to common hens to brood, for I don't believe they would thrive if brought up in any brooder. Please read the first part of this month's article. I think all the incubators on the market are good, practical hatchers. It really depends on the person who is running the machine as to what the results are.

R. F.—I would like to ask a few questions in regard to turkeys. I have an old gobbler (two years old) and one of his gobblers quite a little larger than he is, and I would like to save the young gobbler to breed with in the summer of 1916, and I have no place to keep him by himself, and will it bother my turkey raising this summer (1915) to let him run with my breeding turkeys? He will not be related to any of them except the one that was his mother. Which are the best turkeys for market—White or Bronze? And which is the most profitable breed of duck for all around use? Am a subscriber to COMFORT and wish it was a weekly paper.

A.—I fear there will be trouble if you let both Toms run with the hens in the spring. Can't you keep the young bird shut up in a chicken yard during the breeding season? It really won't do him any harm if you feed lightly and give him plenty of green stuff. Or, a still better plan would be to get some farmer who doesn't keep turkeys to take him for the summer; then he could have free range and feed himself. Personally, I like the White Holland turkey, and find it just as good for market as the Bronze variety. Indian Runner ducks lay more eggs than Pekins, but the latter are the best for market.

H. D. B.—I have come to you before for advice, and as you helped me then, will ask you to again. My chickens are sick—that is, one eye swells shut and all bulges out like it would burst out of the head. I had one hen get that way about three weeks ago, and by now now I have about a dozen that have one eye shut, but not all swollen so bad. The first one that was taken sick is still alive, and eats and drinks, and the other eye is all right. I gave her some coal oil and bathed the swollen eye in it and tried other things, but to no avail. At first there seems to be mattery stuff form in the eye, and then it will gradually close up and swell. A few of them have scales on their heads around the eyes and on their wattles. Where the eye swells so badly it looks yellow inside, like the ball might have burst. They do not wheeze or rattle or run at the nose. Some of them have slight diarrhea. Shall I separate them as fast as they swell or their eyes shut? I am afraid I shall soon have half of them penned up. I have kept my chickens shut up in the henhouse the past two weeks. Do you think they have cold?

A.—The hens have inflammation of the mucous membrane about the eye, a condition which sometimes accompanies roup, but quite as often appears when there are no other symptoms. Lack of green food or a damp roosting place may have caused it. Slight pressure under the eyelid will force out a small lump composed of pus. After it is removed the inflammation usually subsides, but it is well to bathe the eye with a solution of boric acid and keep the bird in a half dark coop except at feeding time. A few days of such treatment usually work a cure.

J. P. H.—Can ducks be raised profitably in an orchard where there is plenty of grass and water, and how many can be kept on an acre of ground? I want to raise the Pekin duck. How high will an enclosure have to be to confine turkeys?

A.—If you are conveniently located to a good market, ducks should prove very profitable. You could raise several hundred on an acre of land if they are to be marketed before they are four months old. Turkeys being heavy birds, don't often try flying over a fence, especially if there is no rail at the top of it for them to rest on, so a yard fence four feet high is all that is necessary.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 34.)

Just Six Minutes to Wash a Tubful!

This is the grandest Washer the world has ever known. So easy to run that it's almost fun to work it. Makes clothes spotlessly clean in double-quick time. Six minutes finishes a tubful.

Any Woman Can Have a 1900 Gravity Washer on 30 Days' Free Trial

Don't send money. If you are responsible, you can try it first. Let us pay the freight. See the wonders it performs. Thousands being used. Every user delighted. They write us bushels of letters telling how it saves work and worry. Sold on little payments. Write for fascinating Free Book today. All correspondence should be addressed to 1900 Washer Co., 1474 Court St., Binghamton, N. Y. If you live in Canada, address Canadian 1900 Washer Co., 355 Yonge St., Toronto, Canada.

Tells why chicks die

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert of 683 Main St., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a valuable book entitled "White Diarrhoea and How to Cure It." This book contains scientific facts on white diarrhoea and tells how to prepare a simple home solution that cures this terrible disease over night and actually raises 98 per cent of every hatch. All poultry raisers should certainly write Mr. Reefer for one of these valuable FREE books.

PFILE'S 66 VARIETIES farm-raised Land and Water-Fowls. Eggs in season. Illus. Catalogue, and "Grower's Guide," 2c. An honest deal. Write today. HENRY PFILE, Farmer-Poultryman, Box 706, Freeport, Ill.

WE PAY $80 A MONTH SALARY

and furnish rig and all expenses to introduce our guaranteed poultry and stock powders. Address BIGLER COMPANY, X314, SPRINGFIELD, ILLINOIS

57 Varieties Chickens, Ducks, Geese and Turkeys. Prize-winning, pure-bred, hardy, northern raised. Fowls, eggs and incubators; low prices. Most successful farm; 18th year. Large fine catalog free. Larkin & Herzberg, Box 91, Mankato, Minn.

Bargains In Seeds

2¢ Per Pkg. and Up. Hundreds of special offers in Surplus seeds and plants at bargain prices. Don't buy until you have seen our fine large catalog and bargain list, mailed free.

IOWA SEED CO., Dept. AA Des Moines, Iowa

14K GOLD FILLED SIGNET RING. guaranteed 3 years, any initial engraved FREE free to introduce our latest Jewelry bulletin. Send 12c. to cover advertising and postage.

EAGLE JEWELRY CO., Dept. 46, East Boston, Mass.

Agents Wanted. Make $3 to $5 a day. Send 15 cents for sample and large catalog 500 articles. RICHARDSON MFG. CO., Dept. C, Bath, N. Y.

WE PAY $36 A WEEK AND EXPENSES TO men with rigs to introduce poultry compound. Year's contract.

IMPERIAL MFG. CO., DEPT. 9 PARSONS, KANS.

Large List, Dialogs, Entertainments, Recitations, Drills, PLAYS Catalogue Free. T. S. DENISON & CO., Dept. 8 Chicago, Ill.

This department, which is conducted by eminent specialists and experts in the various branches of agricultural science and practical, business farming, will keep our readers posted on the latest scientific discoveries and teach them the best methods of operating in order to obtain GREATER FARM PROFITS AND BETTER HOME LIVING.

Any COMFORT subscriber can have the advice of our Agricultural Staff free on questions relating to farming, live stock and dairying. The answers will be printed in this department and will be interesting and instructive to all who are concerned in farming.

Write your questions plainly on one side of the paper only; give your full name and address, and direct your letter to COMFORT'S MODERN FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

As Spring Approaches

WHAT a multitude of things there are to do in late winter and in preparation for spring and its bustle of plowing, disking, seeding and harrowing; and what an easy matter it is to neglect some of the more important things in this rush of work. Lest we forget, let us print a few reminders here and the first one is relative to cleaning up a bit before plowing becomes possible. A correspondent has recently drawn attention to the fact that rats hide in rubbish piles near the chicken houses, coops and brooders, dash out, grab chicks and get back to their shelter places in a wink. He wisely advises to get rid of all such lurking places and to set the houses on stilts to help keep the rats away. This excellent advice leads us to say that every brush pile and rock pile and old hedge or rail fence is a lurking place for other enemies of the farmer and should be done away with now. All manner of vermin, insects and weeds live in such corners and fences. The boys love such places on the farm, for here hide the cottontail rabbits which are fine targets for young hunters and when you are after them, whirr! goes a quail now and then, or even a real pheasant, out of the mass of brambles, wild raspberries, wild grape, sumach, brier, nettle, dogwood, wild plum, bitter apple and multifarious wild growths of the fence side. But here too harbor the mice, gophers or ground squirrels, the skunks and the bugs, some at least of which may hurt crops badly. Weeds are the worst pests of such places. They grow from seeds dropped by perching birds. They are warmly protected by snow-drifts in winter and these drifts often last long in spring and keep one from plowing close to the fence. Haul in the old rails and saw them up for fuel. We once sold an old stake and rider fence for four cents a rail and that paid for wire for a new fence; and, fancy! lots of the rails were of perfectly sound black walnut which would be worth a little fortune today. Grub and burn the bushes. Haul away the rocks, or build them into a trim, durable wall. Get the fence sides into grass and then keep them free from weeds.

Getting the Farm Horse Ready for Spring Work

Start early to get the work horse into condition for labor in spring. He will be soft and flabby if he has stood indoors in a hot stable much of the cold winter season. Let the temperature of the stable not exceed fifty degrees, or thereabout. Gradually lighten the stable blanket, if he has been blanketed. Start currying and grooming the coat daily. Stop corn feeding and feed whole oats and wheat bran, the latter to form one ninth part of the ration by weight. Feed the best of Timothy, or prairie hay, or mixed clover hay will do, if it is sound. Lessen Alfalfa hay, so that it does not loosen the bowels or irritate the kidneys. As spring comes on heavily blanket and trot the horse if his coat is slow in shedding and at such a time add flaxseed meal to the oats and bran to start the coat. The blanket causes sweating and the hair comes away in rolls, sticking to the blanket, or being easily combed and brushed out. Remember that the horse is weak at this time, therefore very gradually accustom him to hard work. Many men make the mistake of at once making their horses do a full, hard day's work in early spring. It is better to get the horse toughened to work gradually. Toughen the shoulders by bathing with cold water three times a day and then scraping out the water and drying the parts thoroughly. If necessary use strong alum water or white oak bark to help toughen the shoulders, but it is of much greater importance to have the collar fit properly, have the padding smooth and clean and then keep it dry and clean.

Sowing Seed on the Snow

The practise of sowing clover seed on the snow in early spring is quite common in some sections. It has the advantage of being easily seen and can be evenly distributed for this reason. Winter grains may be seeded with clover in this manner when it is impossible to seed them in the fall on account of winter killing or when the ground is likely to be too muddy to sow later in the spring. As the snow melts the seed gradually settles into the soft earth and often makes an excellent catch.

On the other hand this practise is open to serious objection. A snowfall followed by high winds after seeding may blow the seed entirely off the land. A heavy thaw accompanied by rain may likewise wash the seed away and an early thaw and spring weather followed later by freezing cold may first sprout and later destroy the seed. On the whole it is much better to sow grass seed with spring grains than attempt to seed with fall grains by sowing the seed on the snow. Spring seeding may be readily done if the crop rotations are carefully planned.

Frozen Silage Again

Don't feed frozen silage. It is injurious to stock. Throw it down in the barn and let it lie there until the first warm day comes when it will thaw out and can be fed. Or, pile it up in the middle of the silo, cover it with a blanket and let it lie there when the heat of fermentation below will usually thaw it out. Don't worry about what clings to the walls when the silo "freezes in" from the sides. That will thaw loose and drop off when the weather moderates and then you can treat it as above.

Pure Bred Grains

For a long time there has been much agitation for the improvement of live stock. Hundreds of years ago men set to work to breed up animals with certain special characteristics which peculiarly adapt them to the uses of man. In this they succeeded so well that we have a large number of breeds of horses, cattle, sheep and swine which have been kept pure for many years.

It has been only in very recent years, however, that similar attention has been given to the improvement of grains and other farm crops. Wherever this work has been seriously attempted it has achieved results nothing short of marvelous. The fact that plants can be multiplied so rapidly and that large numbers may be used from which to select the particular ones having the desirable characteristics which the plant breeder wishes to "fix" while those rejected by him are no less fitted for their ordinary use, gives him a tremendous advantage over the animal breeder. It is therefore possible for the plant breeder to attain results in a few short years which it has taken the animal breeder centuries to secure. Hence we have the naval orange, the spineless cactus, the seedless grape and numerous varieties of high yielding grains and drought and disease resistant plants. Practically all this progress has been made in the last twenty years; in fact it is so new that many people and many farmers do not even now know that there are such things as pure bred plants. Chief among the men who have achieved distinction and marvelous results in the several states are Burbank of California, Hays of Minnesota, Holden of Illinois, and Moore of Wisconsin. These men will be known, when the history of the present century is written, among the great benefactors of the race, for from now on farmers are going to demand pure bred seed grains and farm crops whose value and producing power is known and recorded quite as insistently as they have demanded pure bred stock up to the present time.

Getting Seed Ready for Spring

Now is the time to get farm seeds ready for spring planting. Upon good seed the value of the crop depends in a very large degree. While soil and climatic conditions, over which the farmer is not able to exercise complete control, may greatly reduce the crop, no amount of good soil and fine weather will make up for poor seed. Over the seed the farmer can have absolute control. He may know whether it will grow or not and may so prepare and grade it as to insure a maximum crop before it ever goes into the soil. This is the first insurance against a poor crop and if any insurance is worth paying for, this one certainly is. But how?

The importance of seed testing has been sufficiently emphasized in these columns and the methods for doing it fully explained in last month's issue.

Seed Grading

By seed grading we mean the separation of seeds into grades having kernels all of the same size. This is especially important in the case of corn to be planted with a corn planter. If small and large kernels go into the box together the machine will drop from one to six kernels at a time, when it is set to drop three kernels. This of course depends entirely upon the size of the kernels that happen to get into the holes in the planter plate. The same is true to a less extent in the case of grain and other seed drills. Grading may be accomplished by running the seed through a good fanning mill or grain grader especially arranged for that purpose. Grading insures against an uneven stand.

Cleaning the Seed

Before grading all seed should be cleaned. While cleaning is pretty generally practised there are still farmers who sow grain just as it comes from the machine or the dealer from whom it may be purchased. No grain should be planted until it is run through a good fanning mill to separate out all the foul matter it may contain before grading.

Cleaning insures against the introduction of foul seed, including weeds that are a nuisance and many that are a pest when once they get in.

Disinfecting Seed to Prevent Plant Diseases

Much loss is occasioned by diseases that are carried over winter in the form of disease spores on the seed. Such losses can be prevented by seed treating. The formaldehyde treatment for oat smut, and the hot water treatment for the same disease in barley and wheat are examples of this class.

The treatment of seed before planting insures against loss from disease.

How to Treat Oats for Smut

In a large barrel place about 40 gallons of water; add to this one pint of 40 per cent solution of formaldehyde. Stir thoroughly. Put oats in a gunny sack and lower the sack into this solution until completely immersed. Allow to remain ten minutes so that solution will have time to thoroughly wet all the oats. Remove, drain and dry before sowing. This treatment will prevent both oat smut and stinking smut in wheat.

The formaldehyde treatment insures against loss from these diseases.

Hot Water Treatment

This treatment is very difficult to apply and is given here more as a warning than as advice. It is used for loose smut in both wheat and barley and is about the only known means of preventing these diseases. The grain is first soaked for four hours in cold water to soften it, then soaked for ten minutes in hot water at a temperature of exactly one hundred and twenty-nine degrees by the Farenheit thermometer. Hotter water than this will destroy the germinating power of the grain and colder water will not destroy the spores of the disease. The difficulty comes in maintaining the exact temperature. This treatment is therefore not advised except by those who have had a great deal of experience in this kind of work. If successful, however, it insures against loss from loose smut.

Treatment for Potato Scab

Scabby potatoes should not be planted, especially upon soil in which scabby potatoes have been grown. Neither should clean seed be planted on such soil. The formaldehyde solution used for the treatment for oat smut may also be used for potato scab. The potatoes may be prepared for planting and then soaked in this solution for two hours. The solution kills the scab spores on the surface of potatoes.

Treating seed potatoes in this manner insures against severe loss from scab.

Crop Rotation to Prevent Loss from Plant Diseases

There is one general means of insuring against plant disease, namely: crop rotation. Many diseases are carried over from year to year by the spores in the soil. Sometimes soils become so badly infested that certain crops cannot be grown on them at all. This is especially true with cabbage and truck crops. Fortunately, however, this can be avoided by crop rotation. Give the land a rest from the single crop and try another not affected by the disease already in the soil. If a definite system of crop rotation can be established so that no crop appears twice in succession on the same piece of land, and does not return to the same place oftener than once in every three or four years, but little trouble will be experienced from either plant diseases or insect pests. Crop rotation is the very best and cheapest means of insuring against these losses.

It is now spring. Another crop is soon to be planted. Give due consideration to crop rotation as a means of insuring healthy crops.

Breaking-in Heifers

Do not "break" them in; gentle them to milk and stand quietly. Remember that the udder of the young heifer is conjested with blood and that the teats often are acutely painful when suckled, or milked. If a man is rough and cruel to a heifer at this time he may ruin her for life. The breaking in of a young heifer with her first calf needs the gentleness and patience of a gentleman. The man who believes in "learning a heifer to behave" by beating her with a milking stool or club is out of place in the dairy business. He should engage in pugelism, carpet beating or ward politics. If a woman can be coaxed into caring for the heifer at first that will be best and many fine women are still willing to do such work on the farm. They do it best and if there is an orphan foal, calf or lamb to be raised "by hand," let the "hand" be the one that rocks the cradle and rules the world. When a heifer is soon to calve handle her daily and get her accustomed to being fed some relished feed in a stanchion. When she is feeding, gently massage her udder, but do not go through all the motions of milking. If other cows are stabled with her and milked, so much the better. She will gradually become accustomed to the stabling and handling process and then will give comparatively little trouble at calving time. Feed her succulent feed, or bran mashes and flaxseed meal to keep her bowels active as parturition time approaches, and see that she takes enough exercise every day to keep her muscles in proper condition. If a heifer is allowed to become thin, weak and constipated she may have her calf all right, but it is very probable that she will retain her afterbirth so that it will have to be removed by hand. Where that has to be done the heifer may not come to her full flow of milk, or she may be troubled with a chronic discharge and fail to breed. When the calf comes it should be allowed to suckle for a few days. The first milk (colostrum) is a physic and necessary to cleanse the intestinal tract. The heifer also will fret less if she is allowed to nurse her calf for a few days, but at the same time she should be partially milked by hand night and morning to get her accustomed to the process. When the time comes to separate her from her calf do it gradually. Give her some favorite feed at milking time and lace the calf near her. Gradually get the calf farther away until she doesn't fret for it, being occupied with the relished feed. If her udder is swollen and hard (congested) bathe it with hot water twice daily and massage it thoroughly at such times. At night rub it with hot melted lard. If the udder tends to remain congested despite massage part each of fluid extracts of poke root and belladonna leaves and six parts of sweet oil or melted lard and give her one teaspoonful of saltpeter twice daily in drinking water or soft feed. A physic of epsom salts also is beneficial when the udder tends to remain congested despite massage and milking.

Dock and Trim Lambs Early

Last fall we saw a carload of big lambs on the way to Chicago to be sold to the hotel and restaurant trade and to our surprise we noticed that the animals had just been docked and castrated. The wounds were not yet fully healed and the flies around those lambs were a "caution." Good feed had been put into the lambs and they were in good flesh; but it is a certainty that the marketing would be a disappointment. Buyers discount such lambs badly. They scarcely like to invest in such a lot and will only buy them at a discount when properly treated lambs are plentiful in the yards. It pays to have lambs go to market in as tidy, finished shape as possible. To that end they must be castrated when ten to fifteen days old and it will be all right to dock them at the same time. If this is done early the flies do not give much trouble and there are no maggot cases to fuss with and no unsightly sores and wounds at selling time. Where the docking and castrating are not done at all the lambs will be harshly "docked" in price by the stock-yard buyer.

How to Plant a Tree

The time of tree planting is near at hand. There is a right way to plant a tree.

It must be remembered that when the tree is growing in the ground there is a natural balance between root growth and top growth. When the tree is dug this balance is destroyed by cutting off a very large portion of the roots. The only way that this balance can be restored is to cut down the top proportionately. This means very liberal pruning. Most people are afraid that they will prune too much and thus destroy the tree. This can hardly be. More trees are killed because too much top is left on than are injured by too much top pruning. Cut back the top quite as much as the roots have been cut back, and then a little more, remembering always that the root system on any healthy tree is about as large as its top.

The roots should be pruned very little. Only the injured or broken roots should be removed and the cut surfaces freshened in order to stimulate growth at these points.

A hole should be dug deep enough to take the tree to its original depth in the soil and large enough for the entire root system without bending, twisting or crowding the roots.

A spadeful or two of top soil should be placed in a little pile under the center and the tree pressed firmly down upon it. Then spread the roots carefully. Loose, fine dirt should then be thrown in, worked with the hands around the roots so as to fill up all holes and bring every root in firm contact with the soil. When the roots are well covered turn in water to settle the soil about the roots. The whole point in tree planting is to get the tree back into the soil in as close contact with it as it was before being dug. Since this is hardly possible the greatest care must be exercised to fill up all holes, air spaces and the like and to get fine soil in perfect contact with all the roots. No stones, sod, clods or chunks of earth should be put back into the hole. When the roots have been covered and wet down the hole should be filled with good earth and solidly packed down. After the hole is filled water again heavily, and in order that the water shall soak down about the roots and not run off, leave surface of the soil a little lower next the tree. If the soil is poor mix some phosphate and wood ashes, if you have any, with the top soil after the hole is filled and before you do the last watering. A mulching of straw about the tree will help hold the moisture in the ground and may save the tree from dying the first season if it happens to be dry.

Setting Out Strawberry Plants

We often wonder why our strawberries do not bear better. The beds are clean and the plants thrifty, yet we are disappointed in the yield of berries.

This may be our own fault. It must be remembered that the blossoms on the strawberries are of two kinds,—perfect and imperfect. By perfect blossoms we mean those having both stamens and pistils and thus capable of self-fertilization. No plant will bear fruit unless the blossom is properly fertilized,—that is, the pollen from the stamen must be carried over to pistil, the female part of the flower.

Imperfect flowers are those lacking in either stamens or pistils. They cannot therefore be self-fertilized and hence cannot bear fruit without outside assistance. Now if it so happens that we plant our strawberry bed all to one kind of plants bearing imperfect flowers we are doomed to disappointment. Such plants will not,—cannot, bear fruit.

It is True Economy To Buy Clean Package Foods

NONE SUCH MINCE MEAT

"LIKE MOTHER USED TO MAKE"

Costs only 6¢ a lb.

[A 10¢ package makes 1¾ lb. when ready for the crust]

10¢ at your grocers

[Except in the Far West]

Send your name for a free set of None Such Poster Stamps

MERRELL-SOULE CO. SYRACUSE, NEW YORK

We should always ascertain when buying strawberry plants from the dealer whether or not the flowers are imperfect. If so, we must always buy other plants of some perfect variety to plant among them; otherwise our strawberries will not bear.

Marl and Shells

Watch out for a chance to buy cheap shell marl where big drainage ditches were put through last fall. In one district we know of, farmers have been hauling such white marl at one dollar the load and the loads they have piled on at that price certainly have been so big that they could scarcely fail to prove profitable. The marl is made up of the fine, thin shells of snails or other mollusks. Rarely do we find clam shells of any large variety and in some instances one cannot make out the composing shells. The shells have wasted away or lost their shape and identity and lime matters remain. To tell if such marl is worth hauling pour a little hydrochloric acid on a sample and if it boils and dissolves it contains plenty of carbonate of lime and will prove useful on worn land. Such lime, also ground limestone, and airslaked lime, will be likely to benefit any land that has had no lime applied for many years. It surely will pay well as a top dressing upon all lands that are sour, growing sheep sorrel or showing green moss on the surface, but such lands usually need draining as well as liming to make them fertile and profitable. Rushing the lime or marl into the grass pastures also proves worth while and helps to bring in the clover which cannot thrive well without a due amount of lime in the soil. Heavily applied shell marl also will greatly benefit stiff, sour adhesive, retentive clay soils. At a dollar a load, or thereabout, and where the haul is not too long, marl of good quality will be well worth buying for any farm that has been cropped for years without much added fertility.

Salting Old Pastures

It is a well-known fact that old, permanent pastures are bad places for young lambs, pigs, colts and calves. They infest them with worms. It may be added that such pastures too are in some instances likely to induce certain deadly diseases, such as blackleg in cattle and "braxy" in sheep, or "red water" in cattle. In Great Britain it is a common practise to give such pastures a top dressing of crushed rock salt early in spring brushing it in with a light harrow. From one to five tons to the acre have been applied in this way; the latter amount being indicated where a malignant disease has been prevalent. We have known of several instances where such disease has apparently disappeared permanently after one five ton dressing with crushed rock salt, and we

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 37.)

EARN MORE MONEY

Get into business for yourself, selling Lange Household Specialties direct from wagon to home. Big demand, handsome profits—steady, healthful work—better sales every trip. You furnish horse, we supply rig on easy terms. Previous experience not needed. Our contract beats all others three ways—let us tell you how. Fine territory is now open for 100 more hustlers. If this looks good to you, write us today.

E. A. LANGE CO., Department W, DE PERE, WIS.

$18.95 60 DAYS FREE TRIAL

PRICES DOWN. Think of it—only $18.95 now for a 5 year guaranteed 1 1-2 H. P. gasoline engine. Proportionately low prices on Lifetime Guaranteed 1 3-4, 2 3-4, 4 1-2, 6, 8, 12 and up to 60 H.P. Engines. No better engine at any price—powerful, strong—simple. Easy to run. Many being used in your neighborhood. Don't buy until you write for our great special Free Gasoline Engine Catalog and see the pictures and details, also read our wonder 60 DAY FREE TRIAL WITHOUT MONEY in advance offer. Write now—today.

Get Catalog Now

JOHN M. SMYTH MDSE CO. 150 to 151 W. Madison St., Chicago

EXTRAORDINARY OFFER—30 days one month's free trial on this finest of bicycles—the "Ranger." We will ship it to you on approval, freight prepaid, without a cent deposit in advance. This offer is absolutely genuine.

WRITE TODAY for our big catalog showing our full line of bicycles for men and women, boys and girls at prices never before equaled for like quality. It is a cyclopedia of bicycles, sundries and useful bicycle information. It's free.

TIRES, COASTER-BRAKE rear wheels, inner tubes, lamps, cyclometers, equipment and parts for all bicycles at half usual prices. A limited number of second hand bicycles taken in trade will be closed out at once, at $3 to $8 each.

RIDER AGENTS wanted in each town to ride and exhibit a sample 1915 model Ranger furnished by us.

It Costs You Nothing to learn what we offer you and how we can do it. You will be astonished and convinced. Do not buy a bicycle, tires or sundries until you get our catalog and new special offers. Write today.

MEAD CYCLE CO., Dept. D-3, CHICAGO, ILL.

Home Dressmaking Hints

Forecasts for Early Spring Fashions

By Geneva Gladding

BEAUTIFUL shirt-waists are shown—made of Georgette crepe, and white satin that seeks to rival the crepe. These waists are finished in various ways. Some with plain coat closings—piped with a bit of soft color; others show innumerable tucks, or plaits, in various widths. Some have yoke facings in pointed, round or straight outline and regulation sleeve shapes. Then there are others with comfortable raglan sleeve or wide armscyes.

It is a boon to the busy woman, this style of separate waists—when worn with one of the new smart plaited yoke skirts, the effect is most pleasing. The new skirts show ample becoming and comfortable fullness.

It would seem that the coming season's styles mean to provide lavishly for each and every figure. What with short and long coats, short waists and long basques, ripple and smooth outlines, women have but to choose what suits their individuality and taste, to be pleased with the new fashions.

Children's dresses are ever practical, and the simpler styles are always best for little ones, besides they are easy to make and easy to launder.

Pattern Descriptions

ALL PATTERNS 10c. EACH
Unless Other Price Is Stated

1186-1185—A Stylish Dress. The waist shows the latest expression of new lines in shirt-waists, with yoke sections over the fronts, tucks and panel effect. The skirt is a popular yoke model, lengthened by plaited sections.

The waist pattern 1186 is cut in six sizes; 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. The skirt pattern 1185 is cut in six sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. It requires six yards of 44-inch material for a medium size, for the entire dress. This illustration calls for two separate patterns at 10c for each pattern.

9992—Ladies' One-piece Apron. This model is fitted by a dart under the arms, and has ample pockets in front. Gingham, chambrey, percale, lawn, cambric, muslin, alpaca or denim may be used for this design.

Cut in three sizes; small, medium and large. It requires three and one quarter yards of 36-inch material for a medium size.

1070—Ladies' Waist with Long or Short Sleeve in Raglan Style. The fronts are trimmed with revers, that outline the "V" neck and meet a rolling collar. The design is splendid for silk, and wash fabrics. It is also good for voile, cloth, velvet or corduroy or serge.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires three and five eighths yards of 27-inch material for a 36-inch size.

1168—A Simple Shirt-waist Style. The model here shown is finished in tailored style, with a neat coat closing, and a becoming collar that leaves the throat free. The sleeve in wrist length, has a new flare cuff. In short length a shaped turn-over cuff forms a smart finish. This style is good for faille, poplin, crepe, serge, charmeuse or messaline, for linen, batiste, and other lingerie materials.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires two and one half yards of 36-inch material for a 36-inch size.

9994—Ladies' "Over All" Apron. This style covers the dress so well and practically, it may serve in place of a work or house dress. The waist and sleeve portions are cut in one. Gingham, percale, drill, chambrey, galatea or lawn are all equally serviceable for this design.

Cut in three sizes; small, medium and large. It requires four and three eighths yards of 36-inch material for a medium size.

1201—Child's Set of Dress, Petticoat and Drawers. The dress is in simple Bishop style, and may be finished in French waist style, and with short sleeve and low neck. The petticoat is cut with a long waist, and is sure to prove a comfortable garment. The good features of the drawers will be at once apparent.

Cut in four sizes; one, two, three and four years. It requires two and three quarters yards of 27-inch material for the dress, two and three eighths yards for the petticoat and three quarters yard for the drawers for a three-year size.

1181—Ladies' House or Home Dress, with sleeve in either of two lengths, and with Raised or Normal Waistline. This style is simple in design and easy to develop. The skirt is a comfortable three-piece model, with plaited fullness at the side seams. The design is good for galatea, gingham, chambrey, seersucker, serge, percale or voile. A stylish neat business suit could be developed from this pattern, in serge or velvet, with trimming of plaid, checked or striped silk or cloth, or flat braid applied in rows or as binding, would be good.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. It requires five and one quarter yards of 44-inch material for a 36-inch size.

9910—Girl's Apron. This simple, practical garment may do duty as a dress or an apron. It has sufficient fullness, and is cut with body and sleeve in one. The design is good for percale, lawn, dimity, gingham, cambric, chambrey or crossbar muslin. It may be cut with round or square neck edge.

Cut in five sizes; two, four, six, eight and 10 years. It requires one and seven eighths yards of 36-inch material for a six-year size.

1177—Ladies' Combination Garment, Corset Cover and Drawers with or without ruffle, and in round or square neck outline. Cambric, nainsook, batiste, crepe, flannelette or silk may be used for this style. The garment is fitted by shoulder, and underarm seams and darts. With prevailing long-waisted styles this garment is very practical.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. It requires two and three quarters yards of 36-inch material for 36-inch size, with three quarters yard extra if made with ruffle.

1079—Costume for Misses and Young Women. This attractive model holds several new style features. The yoke tunic is especially popular. The sleeve is attractive in wrist length, with its deep cuff, and is also pretty with the neat shaped cuff, in short length. The design is good for cashmere, velvet, velveteen, combinations of woolen, cloth and silk.

Cut in four sizes; 14, 16, 17 and 18 years. It requires five and one half yards of 44-inch material for a 16-year size.

1211—Dress for Misses and Ladies. Consisting of an overdress in "Chemise" style and an underdress having a waist cut with body and sleeve in one and joined to a two-piece skirt. Many types of this style are now in vogue, all of which are especially suited to slender figures. The style here shown is distinctively smart, and may be worn over any guimpe or waist and skirt, that harmonizes with the model. It will be attractive in velvet, serge or a combination of serge for the undermeuse. Net or lace could be used for the underwaist if preferred. For linen, and batiste this model is also good.

Cut in four sizes: 14, 16, 17 and 18 years, for misses, and in four sizes for ladies, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. It requires for a 16-year size, three and three eighths yards of 44-inch material for the overdress and five and three quarters yards of 27-inch material for the underdress. For a 36-inch size it requires three and seven eighths yards of 44-inch material for the overdress, and six and one half yards of 27-inch material for the underdress.

1198—Girls' Dress. The long shoulder is comfortable, and the sleeve stylish in either wrist or elbow length. The blouse waist so becoming to youthful figures has a vest front which may be of contrasting material together with the collar and cuffs. It would be nice in soft crepe or voile, cashmere, plaid suiting, lawn or chambrey.

Cut in four sizes; six, eight, 10 and 12 years. It requires four yards of 44-inch material for a 10-year size.

1057—Boys' Suit with Trousers. This style makes a splendid coat or jacket suit for the small boy. It may be of velvet, corduroy, serge, cheviot, flannel, galatea, gingham, kindergarten cloth, drill or linen.

Cut in four sizes; three, four, five and six years, requires two and seven eighths yards of 44-inch material for a four-year size.

9940—Ladies' Night Gown with Yoke Band. Batiste, dimity, nainsook, cambric, crepe or silk are all attractive and appropriate for this style. The design is cut with sleeve and body portions in one, and is made to slip over the head.

Cut in three sizes; small, medium and large. It requires five yards of 36-inch material for a large size.

1182—A Charming Negligee. Every woman's wardrobe should boast of one or more comfortable garments of this kind. Cotton and silk crepes, pretty voiles, crinkle cloth, and for warmth there are flannels, flannelette, eiderdown and blanket cloths.

Cut in three sizes; small, medium and large, and requires five yards of 44-inch material for a medium size.

1191—Ladies' Skirt with Yoke Tunic. This style has a two-piece underskirt, that may be of lining beneath the tunic. The tunic flares gracefully at its lower edge, and may be made of contrasting material with yoke and underskirt alike. This style would be nice for novelty weaves, for plaid or checked fabrics, in velvet and serge combinations and for wash fabrics, such as linen, gingham, pongee, poplin, chambrey, lawn or crepe.

Cut in six sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. It requires two and three quarters yards of 44-inch material for the skirt, and two and three quarters yards for the tunic for a 24-inch size.

9934—Ladies' House Dress with Long or Shorter Sleeve. This model may serve as a working dress, and is equally desirable for afternoon wear. It will develop well in lawn, chambrey, seersucker, ratine, linen, percale, voile, poplin or tub silk.

Cut in seven sizes; 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires six yards of 36-inch material for a medium size.

1097—Ladies' Waist, with Long or Short Sleeve, and with or without Chemisette. This style has good lines. The sleeve is cut in one with the yoke. The open neck is finished with a collar that can be worn in flare or flat style.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. It requires two and three quarters yards of 44-inch material for a 36-inch size.

1195—Boys' Blouse Suit with Straight Trousers. Of all boy's suits there is none so comfortable as the blouse style. Blue serge with braid trimming or brown velvet bound with braid, would be nice for this style. Cheviot, tweed, corduroy, galatea, drill or linen are also good.

Cut in four sizes; three, four, five and six years. It requires three and one eighth yards of 44-inch material for a four-year size.

1173—Girls' Underwaist, Bloomers and Petticoat. The designs here portrayed are easy to develop and convenient and comfortable.

Cut in five sizes; two, four, six, eight and 10 years. For an eight-year size it will require one and three quarters yards for the petticoat, one

ALL PATTERNS 10c. EACH
Unless Other Price Is Stated.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 19.)

Special Offers. Solicit and send one new 15-months subscription to COMFORT at 25 cents for one pattern free. A club of two 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each secures three patterns. These must be bona-fide subscriptions, not your own nor renewals. The cash price of each pattern is ten cents unless other price is stated. Order by number and state plainly size or age.
Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

What Shall I Play for You

With the Symphonic or Symphonola in your home you are always safe in asking that question. Music lovers have placed the stamp of approval upon these instruments. They are recognized as correct-toned, always affording delightful, pleasant, acceptable entertainment for your family and friends. Play the Symphonic Piano by hand. Play the Symphonic Player by music rolls as well as by hand. Play the Symphonola with Victor or Columbia records. These instruments bring you the best vocal and instrumental music.

Three Instruments
Sold With Larkin Groceries and Supplies

Practice worth-while household economy for a number of months, deal with the Larkin Factories and your savings will help pay for a Symphonic or Symphonola. We help you to save 35c to 50c on the dollar on 900 every day necessaries including Flour, Sugar, Coffee, Tea, Canned Goods, Soaps, Toilet articles compared with usual prices.

1 to 4 Years' Time
Without Interest or Rent

Your Symphonic or Symphonola will be shipped after we receive your first order for our Groceries and Supplies. Then you may take a year to pay for the Symphonola or four years for the Symphonic Piano or Player-Piano. Symphonics are made by Messrs. Knabe of Knabe Bros. Co., formerly, but no longer makers of the Wm. Knabe Piano. Their fame as piano builders is known to music lovers everywhere. Symphonolas are made by one of the two largest makers of such instruments. Great savings result from purchasing these instruments at our bedrock Factory-to-Family prices.

FREE Instrument CATALOG

Send today for this book. It describes and illustrates all these instruments in the actual colors of Figured Mahogany, Circassian Walnut and Fumed Oak. It also explains in detail our money-saving Plans of Sale. Ask for it today.

Mail This Coupon

LARKIN CO., Buffalo, N.Y.
Dept. CT 315
I am interested in the instrument checked. Send your Instrument Catalog and Offer.

Piano ☐ Player-Piano ☐ Symphonola ☐

Name .....
Town ..... State .....
R. D. or St. Address .....

Home Dressmaking Hints

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 18.)

and one half yards for the bloomers, and one yard for the waist of 36-inch material.

9879—Ladies' Negligee or Dressing Sack and Cap. This attractive house sack may be developed in silk or cotton crepe, percale, lawn, flannel, cashmere, or henrietta, crossbar, batiste or dimity. Feather stitching, lace, ribbon or braid binding or embroidery may serve as trimming.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires two and three eighths yards of 36-inch material for a 36-inch size. For the cap seven eighths yard of 27-inch net all-over embroidery or lawn, percale, dimity, dotted swiss and silk are suitable.

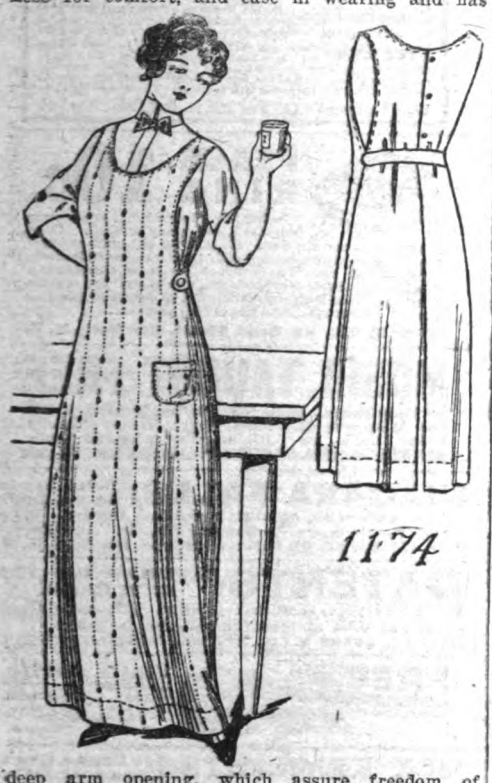
1188—A Popular and Youthful Style. Over blouse costume for misses and young women, with underwaist having sleeve in either of two lengths, and with separate underskirt. Plaid woolen in green and brown tones combined with white crepe for the underwaist, is here shown. The underskirt may be of lining above the flounce portion. The tunic is joined to the over blouse, and forms a deep plait over the back. The underwaist may be made with sleeve in wrist or short length. Serge, velvet, corduroy, voile, poplin, taffeta or novelty suiting are all desirable for this model. Cut in four sizes; 14, 16, 17 and 18 years, and requires six yards of 44-inch material for the dress and one and three quarters yard of 27-inch material for the guimpe for a 14-year size. The skirt measures about one and seven eighths yard at the lower edge.

1068—Girls' Apron. This model is easy to make, and is most desirable. It completely covers the dress, and may serve as a little play dress or "pinafore." It is suitable for cambric, percale, gingham or chambrey.

Cut in five sizes; two, four, six, eight and 10 years. It requires three and one eighth yards of 27-inch material for a six-year size.

1270—Child's Overalls. These little overalls or rompers are equally suitable for boys or girls, and allow of perfect freedom of motion while at play. The garment fastens on the shoulders and is supplied with pockets enough to suit even the small boy.

Cut in four sizes, four, six, eight and 10 years, and is usually made of denim, gingham and khaki. The six-year size requires two and one eighth yards of 36-inch material.



1004—Girls' French Dress. This neat little model is cut in kimono style, with the fullness of the sleeve confined by a sleeve-band. The new crepe will combine prettily for this style, with lawn or batiste. For gingham, percale, voile, silk and linen this style is good also.

Cut in four sizes; two, four, six and eight years. It requires two and three eighths yards of 44-inch material for a four-year size.

9676—Girls' Dress in Balkan Blouse Style. The three-piece skirt is joined to the blouse under the belt. The front of the blouse is shaped in deep scallops. The pattern is suitable for gingham, chambrey, linene, galatea, percale, or lawn.

Cut in four sizes; eight, 10, 12 and 14 years. It requires three and three eighths yards of 44-inch material for a 10-year size.

1174—A Very Desirable and Popular Style Ladies' Apron. For percale, gingham, drill, sateen, lawn or cambric, this model will be found very satisfactory. It is cut with sufficient fullness for comfort, and ease in wearing and has deep arm opening, which assure freedom of movement for the arms while working. The back is finished with a belt.

Cut in three sizes; small, medium and large, and requires three and seven eighths yards of 36-inch material for a medium size.

9817—Infant's Layette. These simple styles, all of which are provided in this pattern are all practical and easy to make. The cloak may be of cashmere, Bedford cord, serge or silk. It may be finished without the cape collar. The cap is suitable for the same material and for lawn, nainsook, cambric or corduroy. The kimono and sack will develop nicely in flannel, cashmere, silk, domet or outing flannel. The slip is nice for nainsook, lawn or cambric. The pinning blanket may be of domet, outing flannel or wool flannel. The shirt of cambric or flannel. The diaper drawers of cambric diaper cloth, or rubberized material. The barrie coat of cambric or long cloth. The bootee of silk, quilted satin, eiderdown or suede. The band of flannel. The cold feet gown of flannelet, flannel or cambric, and the bib of silk lawn or cambric. It will require: 1, Cloak, two and three quarters yards. 2, Carriage Robe, two and one quarter yards. 3, Cold Feet gown, two and one quarter yards. 4, Kimono, two and one eighth yards. 5, Slip, two and one half yards. 6, Barrie Coat, two and one quarter yards. 7, Cap, five eighths yard. 8, Shirt, three quarters yard. 9, Diaper Drawers, one half yard; 10, Sack, five eighths yard. 11, Pinning blanket, muslin, three eighths yard, flannel, seven eighths yard. 12, Bib, one half yard. 13, Bootee, one quarter yard. 14, Band, one quarter yard.

9434—Ladies' One-piece Gored Petticoat, in raised or normal waist-line. Suitable for flouncing, for flannel, flannelette, silk, cambric, nainsook, crossbar muslin or crepe.

Cut in three sizes; small, medium and large. It requires three yards of 36-inch material for a medium size.

1189—A Practical, Comfortable Garment. Girls' Apron. This neat and simple model is so easy to develop, and such a "dress saver." At play or while helping mother, habits of neatness and care may be established, and a pretty apron such as this will gladly be worn by a little girl who likes to keep her frock clean. Percale, lawn, gingham, chambrey, crossbar muslin or dimity may be used for its development.

Cut in five sizes; two, four, six, eight and 10 years. It requires one and three quarters yards of 36-inch material for a six-year size.

9937—Ladies' Corset Cover with Peplum. Lawn, nainsook, dimity, crossbar muslin, crepe, cambric and silk are suitable for this design. The peplum may be omitted, and the fullness at lower edge finished with a beading or band.

Cut in seven sizes; 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires two yards of 27-inch material for a 36-inch size.

1183—A New Frock in Moyen Age Style. The model is good in cashmere, or serge, with braid binding or trimming. It may also be combined in plain and plaid or checked woolen. It is also good in wash fabrics. The skirt is joined to an underbody of lining and the waist is worn over that.

Cut in four sizes; 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. It requires four yards of 44-inch material for a 12-year size.

9763—A New and Practical "Combination." Ladies' Combination Drawers and Corset Cover. Nainsook, silk, lawn, dimity, crepe, crossbar, or cambric may be used for this design, with decoration of lace, edging or embroidery.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires two and three quarters yards of 36-inch material for a 36-

1091—Men's and Boys' Night Shirt. The pattern provides two styles of sleeve, and may be made with a collar, or in a low neck style, finished with a flat band.

Cut in five sizes for boys; eight, 10, 12, 14 and 16 years of age, and in eight sizes for men, 36, 38, 40 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50 inches breast measure. It requires four and one half yards of 36-inch material for a 42-inch size, and three and five eighths yards for a 14-year size.

ALL PATTERNS 10c. EACH
Unless Other Price Is Stated.

BIBLES FOR USE ON BATTLEFIELD.—More than one million Bibles are being sent to France and Belgium by the Bible Society for the use of the British, French and Belgian soldiers fighting against the Germans. The German Government presents copies of the Bible to their soldiers and in them are special prayers applicable to the battlefield.

World's Best 5 & 10c Bargains
Now Sold By Parcel Post

5 & 10c Embroideries

We show a complete line of fine quality embroideries in the newest patterns, including bands, edging, corset cover embroideries, flouncing, etc. The patterns are the latest shown this season and are wonderful values.
Be sure to send a post card for our free Katalog as you will be greatly interested in the values we offer.

5 & 10c Laces

Our line of laces for the season 1915 is composed of the most attractive and desirable styles & are indeed remarkable values. You can buy just the kind of laces you need from us and feel certain that you are getting extra special bargains.
Be sure to send a post card for free Katalog.

FREE Send post card for KRESGE'S KATALOG containing over 3,000 Bargains.

We have 4 large mail order branches which enable us to ship all orders quickly and at lowest parcel post rates—Our free Katalog fully describes our plan of selling merchandise by parcel post and how to make your purchases profitable.

THIS KATALOG should be in every home in the country and small towns because it brings a modern 5 & 10c store to your very door. It will help you reduce the high cost of living, actually doubles the buying power of your nickels and dimes. It is a modern 5 & 10c store in Katalog form. Think what a great advantage it will be to you to have a complete 5& 10c store in your own home.

There is No Other Katalog Like Kresge's

It is full of the world's best 5 & 10c bargains, the kind of dependable merchandise which is bought by millions of customers.
We guarantee satisfaction or will promptly return your money.

5 & 10c Ribbons

We sell millions of yards of ribbons because we offer the best values. Our line for the season of 1915 is the most complete we have ever shown and represents all the most desirable qualities, as well as newest creations in plain and fancy ribbons. You will be well satisfied with every yard of ribbon you buy from us.
Send a post card for free Katalog today.

10c for Flowers

You will be surprised when you see the wonderful bargains you can buy from us in millinery goods. We illustrate extra special bargains in floral wreaths, clusters, rose buds, foliages, etc. You would pay from 25c to 39c in department stores for equal values.
Send a post card for free Katalog today.

10c for Ladies' Vests

Extra quality knit vests for spring and summer wear at only 10c each.
Send a post card for Free Katalog

10c for Hosiery

Guaranteed hosiery for men, women and children at 10c per pair.
Send a post card for Free Katalog.

5 & 10c Notions

High grade notions; hundreds useful, practical articles at 5 & 10c.
Send a post card for Free Katalog.

5 & 10c Tin-Ware, etc.

Cutlery, tin-ware and wire goods at 5 & 10c—remarkable values.
Send a post card for Free Katalog.

5 & 10c Dinner-Ware

Best bargains you can find in extra quality dinner-ware. Nothing over 10c.
Send a post card for Free Katalog.

Our References: Any Bank in the world and millions of customers — We Have Over 100 Retail 5 & 10 Cent Stores in the United States.

Address Your Post Card to Office Box A-6

PARCEL POST 5 & 10c STORES
S. S. KRESGE COMPANY
1100-1108 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

KEEP BEES
A Few at Least

By C. B. Irvine

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

FROM "forty acres and a mule" to "forty inches and a bee" is a far cry; but it is one that is being heard throughout the land, so thoroughly has the "back to the land" movement taken possession of the souls of men. Those who seek to place their feet upon the land and get their hands into the dirt, weary of long hours of labor in office, store and shop of the crowded city, are reading with avidity and are seeking those channels which offer a solution for the increasing high cost of living. An acre and independence is the slogan, but for those who have not the price of an acre the suburban lot of generous size is accepted as a substitute and the industrious bee is being harnessed for yeoman's service in the endeavor to bolster the annual income. Under modern methods of handling, the bee is enabled to accomplish wonders, without violating the eight-hour law, in a very small space—and that in an out-of-the-way place—in attic or barn loft. This leaves the greater portion of the lot available for fruit trees, vegetable beds, rabbit pens and poultry coops.

Under the old method farmers who have attempted to keep even a few bees have become discouraged by reason of the fact that the hives invariably selected a time for swarming when the rancher was busy with other work, and to give them the required attention meant the neglect of something of apparently more vital importance. The result was that the bees, being neglected, either flew away or died from lack of proper care. The new system provides hives of such generous size that the necessity for swarming does not exist, and a little attention to the honey makers in spring and fall renders them faithful servants throughout the summer season of nectar laden blossoms. Those who have made a life study of the habits of the bee declare they swarm because the queen is cramped for room in which to deposit her eggs. By so arranging the hive as to provide space for a large amount of brood there is not occasion for swarming and consequently a large force of working bees is held together through the money harvest.

To say nothing of the increased yield of fruits through the presence of a larger number of bees, the keeping of bees will materially increase the wealth of the people, for it has been estimated that if only one family in twenty kept but a single swarm of bees each, that number of hives would increase the wealth of the nation by five million dollars each year. Obviously the farmer by producing his own sweets would place a small block in the road to be traveled by the wheel of the sugar trust. A no less authority than an expert connected with the United States Agricultural Department declares that honey is prized for its delicate flavor even more than for its sweetening power, and for this reason will find a ready sale at a higher price than sugar.

According to census figures, only about one farm in nine in the United States keeps bees. As a rule bee keeping is not a sole occupation, but for pleasure and profit it is carried on by many thousands of people. For many it is a fascinating pastime, as it furnishes outdoor exercise as well as intimacy with an insect the study of which has been an absorbing subject from the earliest times. And the interest is one that grows as the experimenter progresses. One cannot but marvel at the intelligence of the bee, for should it stray from the beaten path it would be but a brief span until the whole scheme of Nature, as applied to the growing things—fruits, flowers and vegetables—which rely upon insects for distribution of pollen, would be completely upset. But for the reasoning power of the bee, which for sake of convenience is designated as "instinct," varieties would cease to come true. As explained by Luther Burbank in a brochure devoted to making cross pollination at will he declares that "among other of Nature's schemes, in order to keep her kinds within the limits set, she has, in the case of plants, for instance, made it a characteristic of the bee that it works on only one flower, of a kind, at a time.

The novice as well as those who have been initiated into the mysteries of beedom and of horticulture, is certain to find himself asking the question, "How many colonies of bees are required to fertilize an orchard?" A professor attached to the University of California contends that one colony is amply sufficient to fertilize eighty acres of apple bloom, with the aid of other insects. His opinion is not however shared by all of his associates, one of whom declares his belief "that ten colonies might pollenize a ten-acre orchard, but probably fifty or a hundred would be much better."

35c PAPERS A BIG ROOM

JUST THINK — only 35 cents for enough beautiful 4 color bronzed sidewall, ceiling and border to paper a big room. Write today for our free book of over 100 big samples of wall paper and see this dandy paper; also our exquisite 1915 papers consisting of plain and rich heavy embossed gold, oatmeal, grass cloth, leather, tiffany, silk and creton effects at 6c to 16c a double roll of 16 yds. Finest varnished tiles 25c a double roll. Combination matched with cut-out borders ready for hanging at 1 1-2c a yd. up. Wall paper for all rooms direct to you cheaper than dealers buy at in carload lots. See for yourself—don't wait. Get samples now—today—and see our wonderously beautiful art papers, marvelously low prices and grand free premium offer. Also see our paint prices; if you need paint or varnish for any purpose whatever, before you buy, write us and say "Send me your special paint color sample book," which will show you over 125 SAMPLE COLORS of Smyth's 5 year guaranteed paint and varnish for every purpose. No better paint made. 1 gallon will cover 250 square feet with 2 coats. Prices lowest; house paint 89c a gallon, barn paint, 56c a gallon, floor paint 99c a gallon, and paints, varnishes and stains for everything at world's lowest prices. WRITE NOW—TODAY.

OVER 100 SAMPLES WALL PAPER 5¢ DOUBLE ROLL UP

MIXED PAINT HOUSE PAINT 89¢ Gal.

$8.40 PAINTS A BIG HOUSE

JOHN M. SMYTH MOSE CO. 150-151 W. Madison St. Chicago

$25 TO $40 Week

Sells on sight. Instant hit in every home. Smith, Ohio, sold 38 one day. Profit $19.00. All metal bread and pastry board and rolling pin. Can't rust, absorb dirt or disease germs. Lasts lifetime. Endorsed by Good Housekeeping Institute. Agents get good appointments. Make Big Money.

Free Sample to Agents

UNION MFG. CO. 123 Main St. Cambridge, O.

$3.75 SUIT NO EXTRA CHARGES

Made to measure in latest style. Not $3.75, not even $1, not even one cent cost to you under our easy conditions. No Extra Charge for fancy swell styles, extra big, extreme peg-tops, pearl buttons, fancy belt loops, no extra charge for anything, all free. Before you take another order, before you buy a suit or pants, get our samples and new offer. Write and say "Send Me Your Offer" the big, new different tailoring deal. Costs nothing and no extra charges.

KNICKERBOCKER TAILORING CO. Dept. 217 Chicago, Ill.

Erickson Artificial Limb Co., 28 Wash. Av. No., Minneapolis, Minn. Does Not Chafe Overheat or Draw End of Stump

WRITE MOVING PICTURE PLAYS
$50. EACH. Devote all or spare time. CORRESPONDENCE COURSE NOT REQUIRED. DETAILS FREE. ATLAS PUB. CO., 726 ATLAS BANK BLDG., CINCINNATI, O.

PARK'S FLORAL GUIDE—all about Flowers, a Surprise Mixed Flower Seed Pkg., 1000 sorts, a 10c Seed Coupon, and copy Park's Floral Magazine the oldest and most popular Floral Magazine in the world, all for stamp. Don't miss it. Geo. W. Park, LaPark, Pa.

ELECTRIC HOME, FARM & STORE LIGHTING PLANTS. LIGHTS. DYNAMOS. MOTORS. ENGINES. RAILWAYS. Belts. Bells. Batteries. Books. Telephones. Bicycle, Carriage, Xmas & Flash Lights. Cat. 3c in. OHIO ELECTRIC WORKS. Cleveland, Ohio.

The Pretty Girls' Club

Conducted by Katherine Booth

The Well-Kept Hand

HAVE the hands of all the Pretty Girls who meet in this corner every month, to talk over their little problems of personal appearance, suffered from their experience at the hands of Old Winter? I shouldn't be surprised! And that's why I am going to talk about pretty hands and how to have them, this month. I feel it is just the best time in the world for all of us to resolve to give our hands their rightful allowance of attention and care.

If the skin is somewhat chapped and rough, we must use a good healing lotion every night, after scrubbing the hands thoroughly in hot soapy water, rinsing them in warm water, then in cool, and thoroughly drying them with a soft towel. The drying of hands inclined to chap or crack is the most important point; for if the slightest moisture is left, the hands incline to roughness. In the daytime, therefore, be very careful about this, when washing the hands. Use oatmeal bags instead of soap, except at night and when the hands are very soiled during the day; or keep on hand a jar of bran water (water in which bran has been boiled with a little shaved white soap) and use that.

Healing Lotion

Rose-water, fifty grams; glycerine, ten grams; tannin twenty-five centigrams.

As soon as the skin of the hands has returned to its normal softness, begin on your beauty campaign, which, if you follow my suggestions, will concern itself with the pretty nails (yes, they are pretty, really) which you have been perhaps neglecting.

I wonder if you have the few simple little implements which are necessary for proper care of the nails? First, an orange-wood stick, then a little limber nail-file, a pair of curved manicure scissors a cuticle knife and a jar of nail powder. You can get along with these few things—which you can buy at any department store in a city or large town, or at the drug-store in smaller places.

To manicure nails, first dissolve some shaved white soap in hot water, and when it is merely warm, let the fingers of your left hand soak in it for a few minutes. I do not need to say, of course, that the hands should have been made spotlessly clean before starting on our manicuring lesson.

After the hand has soaked, as directed, use the pointed end of the orange-wood stick to clean the nails thoroughly, paying particular attention to the corners of the nail where it joins the flesh. Dip the stick in the nail powder, before inserting under each nail. This will help to get out the dirt. When every nail has been cleaned, use a nail brush on them. Next, with the nail file—not the scissors—shape the nail. Here is where you make or mar the beauty of your hands.

If you make the nail too square, or too short, the hand becomes at once unbeautiful; if, as some ill-advised young girls—and older women—do, you file the nails into long points they suggest nothing in the world but cat's claws; but if you take the shape of your finger-tip as your pattern, and file the nail so that it exactly follows this contour, although a trifle longer than the finger, then you will have the perfect nail, so far as shape is concerned.

Now, with the cuticle knife—which has a blunt curved blade not over half an inch long—which you have dipped into the soapy water, gently, oh, very gently, scrape away any little loose bits of the cuticle at the base and sides of the nail. Do not scrape the nail itself, as this thickens and toughens it. You should keep dipping the knife in the sudsy water, all through this part of the manicuring. Now, with the blunt end of the orange-wood stick, gently press back the cuticle at the base of the nail. Do not force it back vigorously, and be careful not to tear the skin—merely exert a gentle pressure.

The perfect nail shows a pink half-moon at its base, but if you have not given as careful attention to your hands as you perhaps might, it will not be possible for you to disclose the little moon at once. It will take many treatments, but, little by little, as you use your orange-wood stick daily, more and more of the little moon will appear, until finally, lo and behold! your nail will be shaped just as it should be!

If your cuticle has grown far up on your nail in a broad selvage, it may be necessary to trim this selvage with your manicure scissors, but do not do this until after you have tried two weeks of the orange-wood stick, for the situation reforms itself, and it is not a specially good plan to cut the selvage since ever afterwards it tears and roughens easily.

The nails are now cleaned, shaped at the tip, and with the little half-moon at least beginning to show.

We are ready, therefore, for the finishing touches.

Apply to each nail with the tip of your forefinger a little white vaseline—just a dab, enough to slightly anoint it. Next, apply a little of the nail powder the same way, and then, taking your chamois buffer, polish the nails with quite light strokes.

SHAPING THE NAIL WITH A FILE.

After the nails have been polished, they should be dipped in the soapy water and brushed with a nail brush. Dry thoroughly.

This complete treatment of the nails need only be given about twice a week, but of course they should be thoroughly cleaned every morning and the cuticle pushed down.

The buffer is not an absolutely necessary implement to possess, for some women who pride themselves upon the appearance of their hands and the daintiness of their toilet appointments, make a point of never using a buffer, claiming the nails polish better if the fingers are bent, claw fashion, but close together, and rubbed back and forth on the palm of the other hand.

If you are fond of violet water or any other toilet water, spray a few drops over the hands after completing your manicuring—it not only leaves a delicate fragrance, but makes the hands feel cool and fresh.

Hangnails are a deadly enemy of pretty hands, yet most of us, at some time other, find ourselves bothered with them. Clip them very close with your manicure scissors, and rubbing on a little cold cream or hand lotion immediately results in hangnails, so be very careful in using them not to abrade the surrounding skin.

Ink spots and other stains can frequently be removed by the use of a cut lemon, rubbed over the stained surface; but a bit of pumice stone is convenient to have at hand and can always be relied upon to obliterate any disfiguring marks. Do not rub the hands harshly with it. Use it only on the spot to be removed, and let the application be gentle.

The little white spots on the nails are often caused by careless use of the manicure implements, for if the nail is bruised by them—or knocked against anything hard—a white spot is almost sure to result.

USE THE BUFFER TO POLISH THE NAILS.

Sometimes if the spotted nail is spread with a special paste at night, the white spots will disappear. For this use half an ounce of refined pitch or turpentine, and half an ounce of myrrh. Melt and mix. You will need to anoint the nail with olive oil in the morning to remove this paste.

Answers to Questions

Josmine.—For those inconvenient superfluous hairs, try dampening them one day with peroxide of hydrogen and the next with toilet ammonia. If you will add to these ingredients a large amount of patience and perseverance and stick to the treatment for several months, I think you will find yourself entirely freed from the disfiguring hair. The peroxide bleaches the hair to invisibility and the ammonia kills the roots eventually.

Anxious.—If you are Italian and have the beautiful olive skin of your country, you are a lucky girl indeed. Why, poets have raved over it through all the ages, and writers give it to their heroines. No, my dear, there is nothing that will change its color, but you should be very glad; for it really makes a beautiful complexion; so take good care of it.

Sixteen.—If you have wrinkles under your eyes at your age, I should say you are not taking the best care of your health. Do you drink eight to ten glasses of water a day? Do you take some vigorous outdoor exercise every day of your life? Do you take a daily bath and give your face a brisk rubbing? Do you see that the bowels move freely and at least once daily? And are you careful not to get your feet chilled or damp? If you will be careful of all these things, and not eat between meals but try to get plenty of fresh vegetables and fruits at your meals, the wrinkles will soon disappear. About the mole, the safest way to remove it is by electrolysis, but unless you are near a big city, it would not be wise to attempt this, for it needs a skilled operator. Never pinch or irritate a mole or it may develop into something much more serious; but if your mole is fleshy and stands out conspicuously, tie a silk thread closely around it at its very base. In a short time the mole will begin to wither up, and in time it will become discolored and fall off. There will be scarcely any scar left—only remember not to pick it, or attempt to hurry it in any way.

M. E.—To eradicate pimples, begin at the stomach! Sounds prosaic, doesn't it, little girl, but it's the only sure way! Read what I have said to Sixteen, and do all the things I have suggested, and the pimples will soon be things of the past. As to blackheads, they are nothing but flying specks of dirt which have filled up the open pores. Get yourself a camel's-hair complexion brush at the druggists, and every night, scrub the face with hot soapy water, afterward rinsing it in several waters. Then massage a little cold cream and with a comedone extractor press out every obstinate blackhead. Do not be too vigorous. They may not come out easily the first night, but after a few times they will yield readily. Then remember to keep the face thoroughly clean at all times, and always to dash on very cold water to close the pores after you have used hot water to cleanse.

Mrs. F. W.—The milk diet requires the use of perfectly rich sweet milk. It is most excellent for people with stomach trouble.

Belle.—I am sorry that I am unable to answer letters by mail. Dandruff is very injurious to the health of the hair and is no doubt, the cause of yours falling out. Shampoo the hair once in two weeks, using the soap jelly given to perplexed. Stop using the hot slate pencils to curl the hair, as this is very injurious. Buy some kid curlers, and do your hair up on them at night, being careful not to screw them tight to the head. If you can't get the kid curlers use soft silk rags, if you want your hair to be wavy. Every night massage your scalp after the hair has been loosened and left to hang, dipping the tips of the fingers lightly in vaseline. Massaging the scalp means rubbing it back and forth on the skull. To do this first place the thumb on the temples and the fingers, spread far apart on the scalp. Now, without lifting the fingers or letting them rub back and forth on the hair move the scalp back and forth. Hair cannot be healthy unless the scalp is loose on the skull. After you have massaged a few minutes in one place, change the position of the fingers and massage another portion of the scalp. Continue until every particle of the scalp has been gone over. Brush your hair every night before retiring. Instead of the vaseline on the finger-tips, you could use the following dandruff remedy, dipping the fingers into it at intervals while massaging.

Dandruff Remedy

Bay rum, five ounces; olive oil, one ounce; tincture of cantharides, one quarter ounce.

Your druggist can put this up for you. See that the bowels move freely every day—this is as important to the health of your hair as to your complexion. It will help your greasy nose, also. Are you careful to take a complete bath every day? Do this even if you can merely sponge the body. Drink eight to ten glasses of water daily. All these things will help the greasy nose.

Lulu.—Indeed I am glad to give you some exercises to reduce your flesh. Remember anything which induces active perspiration helps to reduce the fatty tissues, so exercise vigorously and long enough to make yourself perspire freely.

To Reduce Flesh

Stand with heels together. Now place the left foot about eighteen inches in advance. Raise the arms above the head, thumbs touching palms facing front and keeping the right knee perfectly stiff, throw the arms out and down and attempt to touch the floor at the right. The left knee may be bent slightly. You will not be able to do this at first, but keep on practising.

Another Excellent Exercise

Standing by an open window, bend the arms at the elbows and clench the fists. Now, without moving from the spot on which you stand, go through the motions of rapid running, increasing your speed as you can, and keeping this up until you perspire freely. You should do this clad only in a union suit, or bathing suit. When you have practised this stationary running for a reasonable length of time, sponge yourself quickly with cold water, and then lie down and rest for ten minutes. The very best way to reduce is to cut down the amount of food you are taking, omit potatoes, cream, rice, much butter, and all fat meats from your diet, eat plenty of green vegetables and fruits, but very little bread. Do not drink at your meals.

Ethel.—Here are the directions for making a chin bandage for a double chin: Buy some elastic webbing and cut off a strip about eight inches long and a half inch wide. Line this with thin rubber sheeting. Now take one side of the unfinished belt and gather midway between ends. Sew narrow strips of garter elastic to the four ends. Massage is excellent for reducing your chin, use the palms of your hands, and massage back from the chin, underneath. Practise a position of the head which keeps the chin lifted a trifle—perhaps you hold your chin too low. A simple astringent lotion with which to spray or sponge the fatty chin is as follows.

Acacia Astringent

Benzoin, thirty drops; mucilage of acacia, thirty drops; enough limewater to make one ounce in all.

Mrs. J. C. B.—I am sorry I do not answer letters by mail. See answer to Ethel for good exercise for bust and neck.

Betsy.—For reducing flesh see answer to Lulu.

Miss F. R.—For your mother, let her breakfast consist of soft boiled eggs, dry toast and fruit. Her meats should be lean, and never fried. See answer to Lulu.

Mrs. Mae.—To make the eyebrows and eyelashes heavier, brush with an eyebrow brush night and morning, and anoint with melted vaseline before going to bed. Scrub the eyebrows with hot soapy water in the morning and dry thoroughly before brushing.

An Old Subscriber.—Massage is your best friend, right now, when the chicken pox has left you with red spots and a few pits. Use a good cold cream and massage the face every night before going to bed, first scrubbing it thoroughly with hot soapy water and a camel's-hair complexion brush.

Ethyl.—Try practising the following exercises daily, to develop bust and neck, and whenever you have time during the day, drop the shoulders, elevate the chest and practise breathing (near an open window or outdoors) for five or ten minutes. Whatever develops your breadth of chest will increase the apparent size of the bust, and the size of your chest depends, almost wholly, upon how well you teach the lungs to breathe. In the meantime, I wish you would try the milk diet for a month, measuring your bust at the beginning and close of month. You should add an inch or inch and a half to the bust during the month. You have, no doubt, read the directions I have given for the milk diet in this column, many times. If not ask me again.

Exercise to Develop Chest

Stand with heels together, arms at sides, chin up, chest raised. Extend arms out sideways and executing a half circle, let them meet, palms facing forward, above head. Keep every muscle rigid. Breathe in deeply while executing the half circle. Now bring arms back at sides. Exhaling as you do so. Repeat. Do this slowly at first, then as you grow to do it easily, do it more and more speedily. Practise five minutes at a time, and be sure not to bend the head or drop chin while doing it, and not to bend the arms. Of course, you should not practise this except in perfectly loose clothes, such as a nightgown.

Anna.—I am sorry I cannot answer questions by mail. If you are only sixteen, it may be possible that you will grow taller than five feet three inches, though that is not a bad height. A good stretching exercise is as follows:

Stretching Exercise

Stand with heels together, hands on hips. Keeping knees perfectly stiff, swing out your left leg sideways as far and as high as you can. Now slowly lower it, as if it were being held up by someone and you had to make an effort to get it down bit by bit. Repeat. As you reach the highest point possible to you, stretch out with the toes as if trying to touch something a little out of your reach. Continue for ten to fifteen times. Now repeat with the right leg, swinging that out toward the right, of course. Never practise this in tight clothing or corsets, or whenever you are not feeling well. All sorts of athletic exercises will be good for you—tennis especially. This exercise will be good to take the fat off the calves of your legs; but if you will practise rising on your tiptoes very slowly, then coming back to your original position just as slowly, it will help immensely. Keep hands on hips and rise to the very tip of the toes. Both of these exercises will help to reduce flesh on lower portions of body, but to keep yourself in good condition take every kind of outdoor exercise that is convenient. Read what I said to Sixteen—lots of advice, there, that is good for you, to, my dear.

Edna.—If the freckles are on your eyelids, let them alone. The eyes are too delicate organs to use near them any lotions strong enough to take off freckles. If you will see that the bowels are kept in good order, and that the system has plenty of water, it may help a good deal, and you can use any good cold cream to massage beneath the eyes, which may improve the general appearance.

Gypsy.—I am sorry I could not answer you by mail. The Portugal Bust Food is made by boiling two whole oranges for four hours in nine ounces of olive oil, in a double boiler. At night, break or cut off a piece of the orange and use it to massage the breast lightly and with a circular motion. I think what would be better for you would be the advice I have given to Ethyl.

Lola.—I can hardly tell what causes the brown spots, but since they come and go they are evidently curable. Take a big dose of Castor oil once a month, regularly eight glasses of water every day, and try to eat fresh fruits—oranges, grapes, grapefruit, berries, melons, etc. Pineapple is especially good for your condition. I wish you would have some fresh or canned pineapple twice a week. Do as I have suggested and I think the brown spots will disappear.

Lonesome.—Scrub your enlarged pores nightly, as per directions to M. E. to cleanse them. Then dash very cold water on them. Never use hot water without closing the pores with cold. In the daytime you can spray the face twice with the following astringent, although I would not use it until I had tried the cold water. That may be all you need.

Astringent

Rosewater, three ounces; elder-flower water, one ounce; simple tincture of benzoin, one quarter ounce; tannic acid, five grains.

See answers to Ethyl and Anna for some good exercises. Stationary running—in pajamas or union suit is also excellent; that is going through the motions of running without moving off one spot on the floor. Clench fists, throw back elbows, and hold arms close at sides.

M. D.—For tanned arms and neck try this bleach: Make a paste by throwing together fifteen drops of tincture of benzoin, one ounce of strained honey, the white of an egg and enough ground barley to make a spreadable paste. At bedtime, when the neck and arms have been washed, spread this paste over the face and arms and don a cheese-cloth mask, cutting holes in it for the eyes, nose and mouth. Then take some strips of cheese-cloth and wind them around the arms, fastening ends securely. When morning comes, remove mask and bandages and bathe face and arms in warm water until every bit of the paste has wended its way into oblivion, then dry skin gently and dust it over with some pure powder. For crow's feet, massage the skin about the eyes with a good cold cream every night. Remember, always rub across a wrinkle, not to rub the same way the wrinkle lies. Stretch the skin with two fingers of one hand, and massage with two fingers of the others. You probably need building generally, so that the skin may be stretched tight by some new healthy tissue underneath it. Try the milk diet.

Worried.—At fifteen, it would be natural for your hair not to be quite so healthy as it has been and as it will be later. But keep it shampooed every two or three weeks, being very, very careful to rinse it thoroughly each time so that not the slightest particle of soap can remain to clog up the little follicles. Brush it gently at night, and braid it loosely before retiring. For another year it may not be as strong as you would like it, but just take good care of it and it will be perfectly healthy and luxurious again.

Black Eyes.—If your skin is so oily, your eliminative functions are probably out of order. Take a good dose of Castor oil, then follow directions to Sixteen. You need more exercise. Follow those you will find in these columns, and get as much outdoor sport as you can. Walk a good deal—real brisk, healthy walking, not a polite little stroll down Main Street. You know what I mean, don't you, dear? Stop the vinegar and saltpeter and, instead, take the Castor oil and exercise. Good luck!

Discouraged One.—Yes, the dandruff is the cause of your hair trouble. You do not wash it often enough—try washing it once in two weeks, using this soap jelly:

Soap Jelly

Pare one cake of Castile soap into three cups of water to which has been added one teaspoonful of powdered borax, boil until mixture jellies, then add two drops of geranium oil, put in covered jar and use as wanted. Tonics are good but a pomade generally does much better work. Be very careful about rinsing the hair. If you have a bath spray, use that. If not fill a tub and "swim" the hair in it and pour pitchers of very warm water on the scalp. After every bit of soap is out, pour cold water on scalp to give it a shock and tone it up. Don't use a fine comb, it only breaks the scalp skin and causes dandruff. I advise you to massage the scalp every night. Loosen the hair and let it down, brush it gently for the night, then resting the thumbs on the temples, slip the fingers under the hair next the scalp, and move the skin back and forth. Remember not to rub the fingers themselves back and forth on the hair, but to move the skin, hair and all, without lifting the fingers. After doing this in one spot for a minute, move the fingers to another spot, and so continue until the whole scalp has been gone over and is pink and glowing. The hair cannot be healthy, unless the skin is loose on the skull, and this massage sends the blood scurrying up to the scalp to nourish the hair roots. An egg shampoo is perfectly all right, but I should use the plain soap jelly for a while. Braid the hair loosely at night, after the massage and brushing.

Address all letters containing questions to Katherine Booth, care Comfort,
Augusta, Maine.

THIS BEAUTIFUL TURBAN $1.59

A lovely, little turban, as dainty and chic as can be. Latest Spring and Summer City Style. Hand made, on 10-inch wire frame, covered with rich imported black straw cloth webbing. Tastily trimmed with black satin ribbon and a beautiful, exquisitely made pink muslin and Silk Rose With Foliage. We recommend the hat in colors described, but if desired will give black, white, brown, champagne, navy or light blue shade, trimmed with choice of Am. Beauty red, pink, tea or white roses.

SEND 50c DEPOSIT

State color of shape and rose trimming you wish, and we'll send this beautiful Spring and Summer Latest City Style Turban, C. O. D., either by express or Parcel Post, subject to your approval. Examine it, criticise it, compare it with your home milliners' turbans at double our price, try it on and see how pretty it looks on you and if you find the hat the prettiest and daintiest turban you ever tried on and most becoming hat you ever wore, keep it and pay balance ($1.00) and return money charges to the express agent, postmaster or R. F. D. carrier. Otherwise, return it at our expense and we will promptly refund your 50c. Send cash in full payment if you prefer, for we will refund all your money if you are not perfectly satisfied with turban. Order this lovely hat today, or send for our Big Free Millinery Catalog which shows hundreds of pictures in colors and fine half tones, of rich beautiful trimmed and ready-to-wear hats and millinery for women, misses' and children. Very latest for Spring and Summer 1915. Every hat at half your milliners' prices or no sale. We also show in this great catalog, a wonder line of flowers, shapes, braids and plumes at "way down" prices. Order turban today or SEND FOR OUR GREAT MILLINERY CATALOG and see for yourself.

JOHN M. SMYTH MDSE CO. 150-151 W. Madison St. Chicago

The Deaf Hear

Write for our big Introductory offer on the latest scientific hearing instrument, the perfected new

1915 Thin Receiver Model

Mears Ear Phone MANY times as efficient and powerful as the old model. 96 degrees of sound in 8 adjustments, instantly changed by a touch of the finger.

Free Trial Sold only direct from our New York office on trial at our expense. Test it for 15 days. Costs nothing if you do not want to keep it. Easy monthly payments if you wish, at the lowest net laboratory price direct to you. Send for this offer and the Mears Booklet—FREE.

Mears Ear Phone Co., 45 West 34th St., Dept. 3043, New York

PEACE RING 10c.

Sterling Silver Peace Ring, handsomely engraved, exquisitely finished. Dove is embossed, and the word "PEACE" is engraved on beautifully enameled blue background. Similar rings sell in stores at $1.00 and up. To introduce our New Illustrated Catalog, the finest ever published, we will send one of these charming Peace Rings upon receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps. Be sure and send size of ring you wear.

LYNN & CO., 48 Bond Street, New York, N. Y.

MUSIC TAUGHT FREE

In Your Home. Write today for our booklet. It tells how to learn to play Piano, Organ, Violin, Mandolin, Guitar, Banjo, etc. Beginners or advanced pupils.
AMERICAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC, 11 Lakeside Bldg., Chicago

NIAGARA FALLS: Send 10c for 10 beautifully colored post cards of world's greatest wonder. Views of famous Ice Bridge, Horseshoe Falls, etc. All different.
O. F. HEMPEL, 50 Inwood Place, Buffalo, N. Y.

PATENTS SECURED OR FEE RETURNED.
Free reports as to Patentability. Illustrated Guide Book, and List of Inventions Wanted, sent free.
VICTOR J. EVANS & CO., 41 Ninth, WASHINGTON, D. C.

FREE

Violin Outfit for selling 20 pictures or 20 pkgs. post cards at 10c. Order your choice.
GEO. GATES CO., Dept. 625 Chicago

SILK REMNANTS for Fancy Work, Crazy Quilts, &c. Sample package postpaid 10c. 3 for 25c. 1 lb. $1.00.
The S. & D. Co., Dept. 60, Brunswick, Maine.

$2.98 25 YEAR GUARANTEE

Gold Dial

THIN Model 25 YEAR Guaranteed $20 GOLD Watch $2.98

Here is the watch you have always wanted, sent to you at our risk—without your sending any money, not even a deposit. Write if you prefer Ladies' or Gents' size, gold embossed or fancy dial, open face, plain polished or beautifully engraved hunting case with white enameled dial, and we will send this elegant 25 year guaranteed, thin model, stem wind and stem set watch, C. O. D. to your Post Office, or for Free Examination and test at your Express Office. If you are satisfied with it and are sure it equals a 15 Jewel $20 Gold Watch, payment or expressman our Special Sale Price only $2.98 and watch is yours. Write now. LIGHT WATCH CO., Dept. 38 CHICAGO, Ills.

Edna's Secret Marriage

By Charles Garvice

Copyright, 1905, by Street and Smith.
Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

John Weston, old and wealthy, knowing he has but a few days to live, sends for Richard Burdon, his lawyer. Remembering a debt he owes Charles More, he revokes a will in favor of a younger brother's child and makes a new one, disposing of the lives and hearts of two, and leaves it for Mr. Burdon to carry out his bequests. The banker is found dead the next morning. Sixteen years later Sir Cyril More with wealth squandered and no aim in life, finds himself at Lucerne, Switzerland, where he meets Edna Weston, who has only Aunt Martha. Edna inquires of Sir Cyril if he knows Richard Burdon. Her father, on his death-bed charges her to go to him the first of the following September. Edna and her aunt board at the Pension, a Swiss boarding house and Sir Cyril leaves the Grand for the Pension Petre, where he gives his name to Edna and her aunt as Harold Payne. Seated in an arbor Cyril hears voices and recognizes Mr. Howley Jones, who admits being a chum of Cyril More, who has completely gone to the dogs, squandering all his money on Glitters. Edna listens and questions if he knows Sir Cyril and is it all true? He admits he has heard of him. Later Cyril meets Miss Glitters and requests her not to tell he is there. Passing on he sees Edna who has witnessed his greeting with Glitters.

CHAPTER V.

A VILLAGE FETE.

THE scene is the drawing-room, or saloon, as it is called, of the Pension Petre. Three days have elapsed since Cyril held his little conference with the over-dressed young lady at the entrance to the Grand, and he is still in Lucerne, still at the pension, and for a wonder, perhaps the first time in his life, neither bored nor wearied.

Madame Petre is as liberal in the matter of light as she is in that of diet, and the room is both pretty and cheerful. Some of the visitors whom Sir Cyril saw on the first day of his arrival have gone, but others have come to fill their places, and the room is almost crowded.

The baron is still here and sleeps peacefully in a remote corner, half hidden by an India-rubber tree that grows in a huge majolica stand. Near him the authoress and an old sea captain are playing chess; a whist table is in full swing in an adjoining and smaller room, and through the open windows come floating in the voices of some young people who prefer the moon and the lake to the whist or go-bang.

Mingling with their voices, almost dreamily there at times are the strains of a new waltz by Strauss, which the German professor, with all a German's taste, is playing at the piano. And last, but not least, Edna Weston sits at a small table near the window, turning over some awful daubs, which the young lady, who has perpetrated them, and is kindly explaining them, calls "sketches." Cyril is nowhere to b seen.

"This," says Miss Robinson, the artistic criminal, "is Heidelberg Castle by moonlight. Do you like it? It is considered rather good. Capt. Sparker, who was staying at the pension at Heidelberg with us, admired it immensely; do you really like it?"

Edna thinks that it would be better if the castle were not quite so much out of the perpendicular, but she smiles her approval, and Miss Robinson turns complacently to sketch number two.

"And that is the Bay of Naples," which she has represented in the approved fashion, all pink and green and ultramarine. "Oh, I do so love Naples. And that's the Coliseum at Rome; oh, isn't Rome lovely? Oh, I dote on Rome; don't you?"

"Yes, I enjoyed it," murmurs Edna.

"We had such a glorious time there," continues Miss Sophie; and she smiles with deep significance as she turns to the window; "didn't we, Josephine?"

Josephine thus addressed is another Miss Robinson, tall, fair, freckled and gorgeous in a pink dress with an enormous frilled collar. Why will every young lady with red hair and a long neck fancy herself like Mary Stuart, and so be tempted into wearing a huge frill?

Miss Josephine smiles with still deeper meaning, and Miss Sophie explains, in an undertone:

"You know, it was at Naples we met Mr. Slasher from Oxford."

And Edna, poor Edna, who has been already made recipient of the records of the many Robinson conquests, nods acquiescently.

"And that reminds me," goes on Miss Sophie, with a sudden eagerness, "we meant to ask you if you knew anything about Mr. Payne?"

Edna raises her eyes from the particular abomination in water colors which she is contemplating, with calm interrogation.

"Know about Mr. Payne?"

"Yes," nods Miss Sophie, dropping into the chair beside Edna, and twining her long, thin, grenadine-covered arm round Edna's waist, after the fashion of a schoolgirl, which Miss Sophie long since ceased to be; "yes, he always seems to be with you, and you appear to be so friendly, and to know him better than anyone else here."

Edna's clearly pencilled brows come together, as is their wont when she is thoughtful, and then she shakes her head.

"No, I don't know anything about him, excepting that he is very kind and attentive——"

"Oh, do you think so?" interrupts Miss Sophie, with an upheaving of her eyebrows. "Why, it was only today that Josey and I agreed that he was almost rude!"

Edna turns to the sketches with a smile that is rather abstracted and incredulous, as she remembers Cyril's pointedly respectful manner to her—how he has turned from her side to fetch some trifle that Aunt Martha or she herself had forgotten or required—how he never let them leave the room without opening the door for them—how, ah! in countless ways, how polite and high-bred he was.

"Do you think so?" she says, incredulously.

"Oh, yes," says Miss Sophie, decisively, "not at all polite. Why, it was only yesterday that he passed us without raising his hat, just as if he didn't know us! And then he's so unsociable; he never says a word to any of us, excepting you, unless he's spoken to. Not that I dislike the high-and-mighty style, but I do like to know whether people who've got it have anything to give themselves airs about. Josey stands up for him, but then that's because she admires him. He is very handsome, isn't he?"

Edna, who has listened in a sort of dreamy inattention, rouses with a little start.

"Handsome!" she repeats, and then turns her thoughts inward. It is not too much to say that she has never asked herself the question Miss Sophie has put to her; she has never considered whether he was handsome or ugly, short or plain; she knows that he is kind, that he never comes near her without giving her an indefinable, calm kind of pleasure—that there is something in his voice which makes it different to the voices of all the other people about her.

"Why, what a time you are deciding! Can't you decide? Do you think him better-looking than Mr Jones?" and Miss Sophie smiles across the room at that gentleman, who is lounging against the wall, eying himself in the glass approvingly, while he drawls and minces through a feeble flirtation with a young lady who has just arrived with papa and mamma from London.

A smile, light and spontaneous, floods, yes, literally floods, Edna's pure face as she looks at Mr. Jones' commonplace countenance with its turn-up nose and insipid eyes.

Now she knows, and her smile is sufficient answer.

"Ah, I see," says Miss Sophie, sapiently. "Mr. Jones is no favorite of yours—oh, yes, I've seen you snub him often. Now, we think he is very nice—quite the aristocrat."

Before Edna can confirm or contradict—neither of which she would do—by the way, the door opens and the other subject of Miss Sophie's criticism enters.

Surely no one could hesitate a moment over that question of good looks as the fair-haired giant comes in with the quiet, high-bred air of self-possession.

Edna looks up and sees his eyes go round the room searchingly and then light up for an instant as they rest on her, and for the first time a little tinge of extra color mounts to her cheeks, and her pure, clear eyes drop.

With his light, commanding step he comes up to the table and stands before them.

"Good evening, Miss Robinson—good evening, Miss Weston. Sketches, eh?" and he takes one up, to turn, after a momentary examination, to Edna. "Did you do these?"

"No; they are Miss Robinson's," says Edna.

"Very pretty," he says, politely, but with an evident sigh of relief.

"Are you fond of art, Mr. Payne?" says Miss Sophie.

"Very," was the reply, in a tone which would be appropriate to "not at all" equally well.

Miss Sophie rises and collects her sketches.

"I'm going on the balcony, dear Miss Weston; will you come?"

Edna, always amiable, half rises, but a hand, firm, yet pleading, catches secretly at her skirt, and with a little blush she changes her mind, and Miss Robinson hurries off alone.

Then, very humbly, the audacious Cyril pleads for forgiveness.

"It was awfully cool of me, but I was filled with despair; I knew if you got on that balcony we should see no more of you tonight, and this place is so dull, and"—he stops and feels in his pocket—"I've been for a stroll in the town," he goes on. "Quite a nice old town, full of rum shops and quaint old houses. Funny thing, but just as I was passing one of the old places I came upon one of those Swiss carvings you spoke of yesterday—the chamois, you know," and with a timidity, which is most absurdly comical in the usually self-possessed Sir Cyril, he extends a delicate little carving of a chamois upon a piece of rock. It is a pretty little toy, of very little value, but Edna is delighted.

"How strange," she says, "that you should have happened to see it today, after our mentioning it yesterday——"

"Isn't it?" says Cyril, ignoring, or oblivious of the fact, that he had searched every shop in the town for one. "I thought you would like it."

"Is it for me?" she asks, with the childish delight of possession. "How kind you are!" and her eyes rest upon his face for a moment, and makes Cyril's heart throb. "Are you sure it is for me? Won't you keep it for someone else—your sister?"

This rather doubtfully, remembering suddenly that she has not heard of the existence of such a relative.

"Haven't got one," says Cyril, smilingly; "I wish I had one. One like you!" he adds, wistfully regarding the childish figure, clad this evening in some dark, soft, clinging material, that drapes the graceful outline to simple perfection. "Perhaps if I had I should have been a better man."

"Would you?" she asks, with that old intent gaze. "Would you like to have had a sister? I am sorry you have not," abstractedly.

"Indeed?" he asks, with a smile. "Why are you?"

She opens her eyes.

"Oh! didn't you just say you would have been better, you know? Have you a brother?"

"Yes," said Cyril, slowly.

"That is nice," she remarks, cheerfully. "Oh, yes, it must be nice to have a brother—a second self——"

"Oh, must it?" says Cyril, grimly, so comically that she looks up and laughs again.

"How curiously you said that! Do you know, there is something strange about you that I cannot understand. Oh, have I said anything rude?" she adds, quickly, anxiously, as Cyril's face falls and flushes. "I didn't mean to—indeed, I did not!"

"No—no," says Cyril, smilingly reassuring her. "There is a great deal about me you don't understand. How I hope that you may know me long enough to understand——" Then he stops. How can he put it to this child-woman, whose eyes fix him with such innocent intentness?

She nods.

"Perhaps I shall. I am going to England, you know, and we shall meet. Who knows?" and she smiles up at him, past him, in her strange fashion. "Perhaps in London, at some party, or at one of the theaters you told me about last night, or perhaps in the country, at some friend's house. Is it likely?"

"I don't know—I hope so," says Cyril, earnestly. Then she sighs suddenly, and laughs.

"What's the meaning of that contradictory combination?" exclaims Cyril, amusedly. It is noteworthy that he watches every look of her face, and takes note of every tone of her voice.

"What did I sigh for?—now quick you are! I don't know. It is all so dark, the future, isn't it? One never knows what may happen."

"I know one thing that will happen, and that in the very immediate future, if I stay here much longer I shall be suffocated—it is fearfully hot. Will you come outside? A shawl—please don't go without a shawl. Here, will this do?" and he takes up an antimacassar and adjusts it round her shoulders with reverential care.

The laughing face, framed in the thick white fringe which he has ventured to pull over her smooth, sleek head, looks up at him merrily.

"What would Madame Petre say?" she laughs, and laughing together, they pass out upon the balcony. But the balcony is too full, there is too much chatter of the feminine gender for Cyril, and he whispers audaciously that they should "get out of this" into the garden. Edna is not given to small talk, hates scandal, and, childlike, is bored by the petty personalities of the gossip of such women as the Robinsons, and is nothing loath to escape.

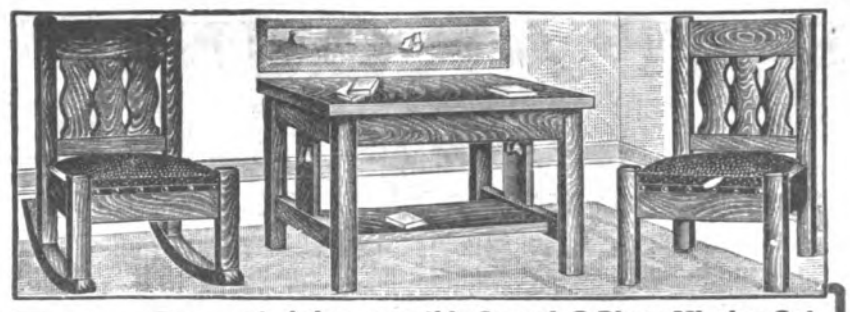
So they go into the garden, picking their way down the little paths and stumbling occasionally over a border of box. Cyril once blundering straight into a vine, but being helped thereout by the firm clutch of a tiny hand, doesn't seem to mind it much. When they have reached the road, and after a stare at the lake, prepare to climb up again, suddenly the heavens are lit up as if by magic, there comes a loud explosion, and a rocket soars skyward.

"Hello!" exclaims Cyril, "what's the matter?"

Edna laughs.

"Oh, fireworks—and there need not be much the matter. Don't you know how fond the Germans and the Swiss are of pyrotechny? English mobs are given to bands and banners, aren't they?"

"Yes, and processions," nods Cyril. "They had such a big one in Trafalgar Square last year, that Nelson, on the monument, you know, turned quite pale with alarm."



Edna laughs—she is always ready with her soft, musical laugh, with or at this new friend of hers—and they stand for a few minutes watching the fireworks.

"That's not a bad one," says Cyril—some particularly bright and savage specimen of the pyrotechnic art bursts in the sky with a whiz, and showers down a myriad of colored balls—"not at all bad."

"Oh, look at the lake!" exclaims Edna, enthusiastically, as the whole scene is encrimsoned by a blaze of red fire. "It is beautiful, is it not?—though one is always inclined to look upon fireworks with contempt. I wonder where it is?" she adds, slowly and wistfully.

"Not far," suggests Cyril.

"No; and there's the band. It's at the National—the Yankee's Paradise, as they call it. I dare say the whole of the quay is illuminated."

50¢ brings you this Superb 3-Piece Mission Set.

Positively one of the most amazing bargains in years—a staggering value. Clip the coupon below and send it to us with 50c and we will ship you this magnificent set. Three pieces — made of solid oak throughout in rich brown fumed oak finish. Chair and rocker upholstered in brown Delavan Spanish leather. Table top measures 24x33½ inches. Compare it with any mission set offer you ever saw. Then clip the coupon and send it to us with 50c and we will ship this set right to your home. Terms 50c cash and 75c monthly. Order by No. A-117. Money back if not pleased. Price $7.45

Easy Payments

If you want anything in rockers, furniture, jewelry, carpets, rugs, curtains, washing machines, crockery, silverware, baby carriages, go carts, Men's, Women's and Children's apparel, stoves, ranges, or any article of home-furnishing, don't fail to get our sensational easy terms. Only a small deposit—then pay the balance at the rate of a small amount per month.

Send Coupon

along with 50c in to us today. Get this remarkable offer while it lasts. Have this suite shipped right to your home. And we will send you at the same time our big catalog and special bargain bulletin. Prices never approached before. Don't wait. Send the coupon today — do it right now.

STRAUS & SCHRAM, Inc.
Dept. 3043 35th St. Chicago

Straus & Schram, Inc.
Dept. 3043, 35th St. Chicago

Enclosed find 50 cents. Please ship me at once the big special advertised 3-piece Mission Set bargain No. A117. Sale price, $7.45. I am to have 30 days' free trial. If I keep the set, I will pay you 75c per month until the balance has been paid. If not satisfied, I will return set and you are to refund my 50 cents together with any freight charges I paid. Also send me your big catalog and bargain bulletins.

Name .....

Address .....

"Pity we can't see it from here," remarks Cyril. "If we were a little lower down——"

Edna looks wistfully down the road and into the dim distance.

"Just at the bend we should see everything," says Cyril. "Hadn't we better go?"

Edna looks back at the house eagerly, hesitatingly.

"Do you think aunt would mind?" she asks, with the wistfulness of a child and the gravity of a woman combined.

"I should think not. There are some of the others going, I should think. Hark! They're scrunching down that beastly path now! Come along—just to the corner!"

"But this antimacassar——" exclaims Edna.

"Tuck the fringe in," says Cyril, with all a man's indifference. "That's it—there's a bit out; may I——" And he turns in half an inch that has escaped her with almost unnecessary nicety; but though his fingers tremble and thrill as they come in contact with her soft, warm neck and silky hair, she stands quite serene and unconscious, her glorious eyes turned with wistful eagerness toward the fireworks, her whole thoughts upon them.

"Come along," says Cyril, having made the antimacassar look as commonplace and proper as possible; and, without further parley, they run—yes, Sir Cyril, the blase, finds himself running like a schoolboy!—down the hill.

"Here we are," he says, as they gain a point of view.

"Isn't it beautiful? Isn't it really grand?" exclaims Edna, as she stands on tiptoe, unconscious, her glorious eyes turned with wistful eagerness. "They've surpassed themselves."

"Nobody more surprised than the striker, as we say at billiards," says Cyril. "Who'd think sixpen'orth of red fire would so alter a scene?"

"Sixpennyworth!" exclaims Edna, indignantly. "This will cost the town pounds—oh, ever so many pounds! Look at that fountain! And—yes, I declare! I thought so! They're dancing on the terrace!"

"So they are," says Cyril, with exasperating coolness. "It's a regular carnival."

Edna watches and listens breathless. The band is as good as the fireworks, and the strains of Strauss' last and best waltz float up with the red fire.

Her little foot beats time unconsciously.

"How I should like to be down there—to see them!" she murmurs, almost inaudibly.

"Nothing easier," says Cyril, moving.

"Oh, no!" she says, drawing back.

"Why not?" asks Cyril. "No one will see us—all the rest of the people have gone down, I expect. And look there!" he goes on, pointing below, "there's a dark corner there, where the light doesn't get. An elephant might stand there and not be noticed. Come along! Surely you can trust yourself in the crowd with me?"

Edna laughs as she looks up at him towering above her.

"If I had only told aunt."

"Tell her when you come back," suggests Cyril.

"Yes, I'll do that," returns Edna, quite simply, and then, having hesitated, she is lost, and in another minute they are running down the hill again.

Past the cathedral, glowing crimson, as if it were blushing at the unwonted gayety—down the steps, worn by how many thousands of ascending and descending worshipers, they go; and now Edna clings rather more closely to her companion, for here is the crowd, and in another moment they are in it.

Like all holiday crowds, it is a good-tempered one, and though there is much pushing, there is a great deal of laughter, and Cyril is able to pilot his way to the dark corner, and by the time they have reached it all Edna's compunction and hesitation had flown, and she stands watching the brilliant scene with flushed cheeks and brightly beaming eyes.

Every now and then when there is a larger explosion or a greater crush than usual—for the crowd sways to and fro like a pendulum—her little hand clings tighter on Cyril's arm, and she creeps closer to his protecting side. She is perfectly happy, and Cyril? The brilliant display of colored fires, set pieces and rockets, yes, even the efforts of the band itself, are lost on him. He has eyes only for the sweet, unconscious child beside him, feels only the gentle pressure of her small, warm hand. And now there is a sudden increase of the excitement—the great fountain, which has been turned down, throws its contents fifty feet into the air, under a stream of limelight, the band breaks out into a galop, the crowd cheers and sways back for a moment to allow a band of dancers to break into the center, and the dance commences.

It is a wild, Parisian galop, such as one may have seen in full swing at the Moulin Rouge, or on the Corsa at carnival time danced to a time that is simply maddening, and under a great sky of crimson fire.

Edna utters a low cry of delight.

"Isn't it beautiful—really beautiful? It is Lucerne gone mad! Look at that lady"—hesitating a moment—"how she dances! It is just like a theater. See, here she comes!" and she leans a little forward to get a nearer view.

Cyril turns his eyes in the direction of hers, and sees a magnificently dressed woman whirling toward them in the arms of a tall Englishman. The light is so strange, the pace so fast, that for the moment he does not recognize them; but as they come nearer, he sees more clearly; and as he recognizes Lord Jerry and Miss Glitters, he draws—almost jerks—Edna back into the shadow.

Quick as the involuntary movement has been, it is only half in time, for the sharp eye of the actress has caught a glimpse of the sweet face on the edge of the crowd, and she has directed her companion's attention to it.

But Lord Jerry is not quick mentally or physically, and while he is staring in every direction but the right one, he and his partner have whirled on and have gone.

"Did you see them?" asked Edna. "Was I too much in the light?—I hope no one saw me."

"No, I think not. I hope I didn't pull you back too sharply," says Cyril, and he laughs, but rather constrainedly.

"Oh, no," says Edna. "But did you see the two I meant?—a very tall man, an Englishman, I'm sure, and a lady I have seen somewhere—why, yes!"

Then she hesitates, and looks up doubtfully.

"Do you think so?" says Cyril, rather quickly. "Very likely; there are all sorts of people here, mad English as well as mad Swiss. And now, what do you say to going?"

Edna looks up with a little sigh of regret.

"Oh, yes, when you like—now; it will be best."

"I'd like to stay all night if it gave you pleasure, but I'm afraid they'll be moving off shortly. Let us get a little further away, at any rate."

There is still a little constraint in his voice; Edna cannot but notice that. Perhaps he is anxious on her account—he is always so kind and attentive.

"Yes," with a sigh, "let us go."

It is not a moment too soon, as it turns out, for that galop was evidently the last, and the crowd is already beginning to turn in the direction of the cafes along the quay.

Cyril moves with it as far as the corner leading to the cathedral, but he must turn off here—it will not do to let Edna and the antimacassar drift into the lights of the principal thoroughfare.

"Keep close to me," he whispers, and then, watching his opportunity, he makes an effort to turn. Just as he does so, as he almost gains the corner, the door of a wine shop is thrown open suddenly, and a stream of people pour out; some of the dancers are among them, and their exertions, together with the refreshments, have excited them. So sudden and unexpected is the rush that Edna, who has withdrawn her arm from Cyril's to arrange the impromptu shawl, is swept clean from his side, and forced down the side stream into the main current. Naturally she utters a cry, more of surprise than alarm, at her helplessness, and naturally there was a cad near enough to take advantage of it. The cad in this instance was a short, thickset Englishman, who had been dancing a little and drinking a great deal; and seeing a pretty girl driven by a crowd, exerted himself to be fascinating.

"What's the matter, my dear?" he exclaimed, rather thickly; "lost your mother? Here, catch hold of my arm," and he put his thick arm round her waist.

Edna shrank back with a face that was redder than any fire that had been burned that night.

"What! offended already?" remonstrated the man. "There, don't be bashful, stick close to me and I'll carry you down to the cafe at the corner; all for nothing, too, except a kiss."

He put his face so close—his arm was so heavy upon her, that Edna, losing her self-command, uttered a low cry of terror. As if it had been a preconcerted signal, a clinched fist shot past her face and fell with a dull crash upon the flushed one in front of her. Then, as her tormentor went down under the waves of the crowd, she felt a strong arm round her—she knew to whom it belonged—and she was carried to land on the cathedral steps.

CHAPTER VI.

WHEN LOVE AWAKENS.

Like a clock that has suddenly stopped—a beautiful thing of sevres and gold, if you like to make the comparison complete—Edna, that was a moment ago such a happy, thoughtless child, flushed with innocent excitement, with heart beating and lips quivering, lies now limp and nerveless in his arms.

It is not the first woman Cyril has seen faint, by many—it is not the first, alas! that he has held in his arms, but it is the first time that he has himself ever felt as he feels now. Mad with rage one moment, melting with a strange, subtle, wist-

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 31.)

Let Us Send You a Genuine Edison Phonograph on Free Trial

right to your own home. Entertain your family and your friends. Send it back at our expense if you don't want to keep it. A few dollars a month now pays for a genuine Edison at Rock-Bottom prices and without even interest on monthly payments. Send today for our beautiful Free Edison Catalog. A postal or a letter is enough. But send it at once. Write today.

F. K. Babson, Edison Phonograph Distributors
3043 Edison Block Chicago, Illinois

Play Piano or Organ in One Hour

A Detroit musician has invented a wonderful new system which enables any person or child to learn to play the piano or organ in one evening. People who do not know one note from another are able to play their favorite songs in a few hours. It is called the Numeral Method—numbers instead of notes are used. We have secured the sole rights from the inventor and are desirous of making it known at once in every locality.

Send at once for our Free Booklet, which will be sent postpaid at our expense and which will explain our special offer and tell you all about this successful method that has already brought pleasure and happiness to thousands of homes in all parts of the United States and Canada. Simply write us a postal card or letter saying "Please send me your Free Booklet." This will cost you nothing and put you under no obligation to us whatever. Address NUMERAL METHOD MUSIC COMPANY, 111-D Trussed Concrete Building, Detroit, Michigan.

IN & AROUND The HOME

CONDUCTED BY MRS. WHEELER WILKINSON

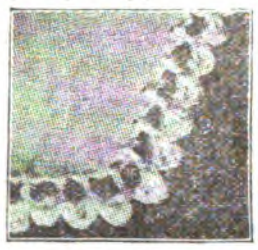
Terms Used in Crochet

Ch st., chain stitch, simply a series of loops or stitches each drawn with the hook through the preceding one; s. c., single crochet, having a loop on hook, insert hook in work as indicated, draw loop through thread over, and draw through both loops; d. c., double crochet, thread over hook, insert hook in work, draw loop through, thread over draw through two loops, thread over, draw through two loops; tr. c., treble crochet, thread over hook twice, then work off as in double crochet, there being three groups of two loops to work off instead of two; h. tr., half treble, same as tr. c., only work off two loops, thread over and then through three loops; d. tr., double treble crochet, thread over three times, hook through work, thread over and draw through one loop, giving five on hook, thread over and work off by twos; sl. st., slip stitch, insert hook in work, draw loop through work and loop on hook at the same time; p., picot, a picot is formed on a chain by catching back in the fourth st., or as indicated and working a sl. st. r. st., roll stitch, throw the thread over the needle as many times as indicated, insert hook in the work, thread over, pull through coil or roll, thread over, draw through the one loop on hook. The roll when completed is straight, with a thread the length of roll along its side. The length or size of a roll is regulated by the number of times the thread is thrown over; o., over, thread over hook the number of times indicated; k. st., knot stitch, draw out loop about one quarter inch, catch thread and pull through, then put the hook between the drawn loop and the thread just pulled through, catch the thread, draw through these two stitches to form the knot; blk., block, a st. in each of a given number of sts., preceded and followed by a space; sp., space, a space is formed by making a chain of 3 or 4 sts. and omitting the same number of sts. in preceding row; sk., skip, to miss or omit number of stitches indicated in preceding row; p. c., padding cord; * stars mean that the directions given between them should be repeated as indicated before proceeding.

Terms Used in Knitting

K. knit plain; o. over; o. 2, over twice; n. narrow 2 stitches together; p. purl, meaning an inversion of stitches; sl. slip a stitch; tog. together; sl. and b., slip and bind; k. p. knit plain; stars and parenthesis indicate repetition.

Terms Used in Tatting



D. s. double stitch; p. picot; l. p. long picot; s. p. shorter than usual picot; ch. chain, a succession of double stitches made with two threads; pkt. picot and knot together. * indicates a repetition.

Handicraft for Busy Workers

AS so many of our readers are fancy work lovers, we decided this month to give them a pleasant surprise by devoting twice the usual space to work of this sort.

In doing this an effort has been made to include as many different sorts of handicraft as possible, so that each and all might find something of special interest, whether they particularly enjoy crocheting, knitting, tatting or the more homely but useful art of making rag rugs.

As every woman who knows the value of attractive and becoming neckwear, is interested in collars these days, our first illustration shows in detail the little hand-made edge which can so easily be added to the smart lawn or organdy sets.

DETAIL EDGE.

These adjustable rolling collars can be copied with little work, and used with separate blouses and coats make a most attractive outline of white about the face and throat.

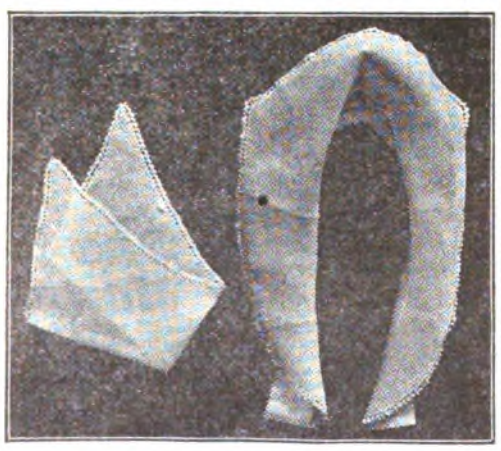
Select very sheer material, fold and baste together smoothly and evenly. Then cut and overcast the raw edges twice with fine cotton, working back and forth in opposite directions. Over this work the crocheted edge, using a fine soft mercerized thread such as one strand of persiana or something similar.

Directions for Collar Edge

Begin by making 1 d. c. into the edge of the collar. Ch. 3, 5 d. c., in top of first d. c., 1 d. c. in collar about one fourth inch from first d. c., ch. 3, 5 d. c. in top second d. c. Repeat.

Rose Collar

(CROCHETED)



This handsome round collar is made up of 33 rose motifs, one of which is here shown.

Material required, medium size crochet cotton and steel crochet hook.

Directions for Rosettes

Begin with ch. 6, join ch. 4.

1st. row.—1 d. c., in ring, ch. 2, 1 d. c., ch. 2, 1 d. c., ch. 2, 1 d. c., ch. 2, 1 d. c., ch. 2, sl. st. to ch. 4. This gives you six holes to be filled with double crochets to form the first row of petals for rose. Make a s. c., in first hole, ch. 1, then 4, d. c., in same hole, ch. 1, s. c. thus forming first petals. Proceed in like manner until all holes are filled, this completes the first row of petals. Now ch. 3, and passing back of petal fasten between the two petals ahead, ch. 3, fasten between next two petals carrying the chain back of petal and drawing quite closely, yet not tight enough to spoil shape of rose. Make 6 chains and sl. st. last to the first.

ORGANDY ROLLING COLLAR.

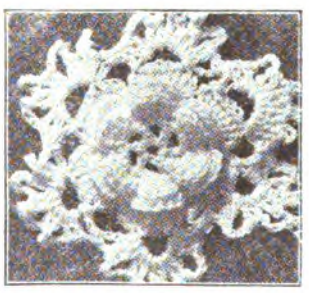
Then under each of these chs. work 1 s. c., 6 d. c., 1 s. c., for form second row of petals.



Next make 6 chs., 4 joining between each petals as before, under these chs. work 1 s. c., 8 d. c., 1 s. c. for form third row of petals. The rose is now ready for the finishing edge.

Ch. 1, 1 s. c. in petal ahead, this is merely to bring your hook and thread up where you want it. Now ch. 6, join with sl. st., to center of petal, ch. 6, 1 sl. st., in next to last st. of petal, ch. 6, work across next petal in same way. Continue all around making 12 chains of 6 in all, ch. 3, join by sl. st., to first ch. Ch. 1.

Last round.—* 2 d. c., under next ch. 6, ch. 5, 2 d. c., ch. 5, 2 d. c., ch. 5, 2 d. c., ch. 5, 2 d. c., all, under same ch. 6, ch. 3, 1 s. c., under next ch. 6, repeat from * all around. Break thread and fasten.

To Join Rosettes

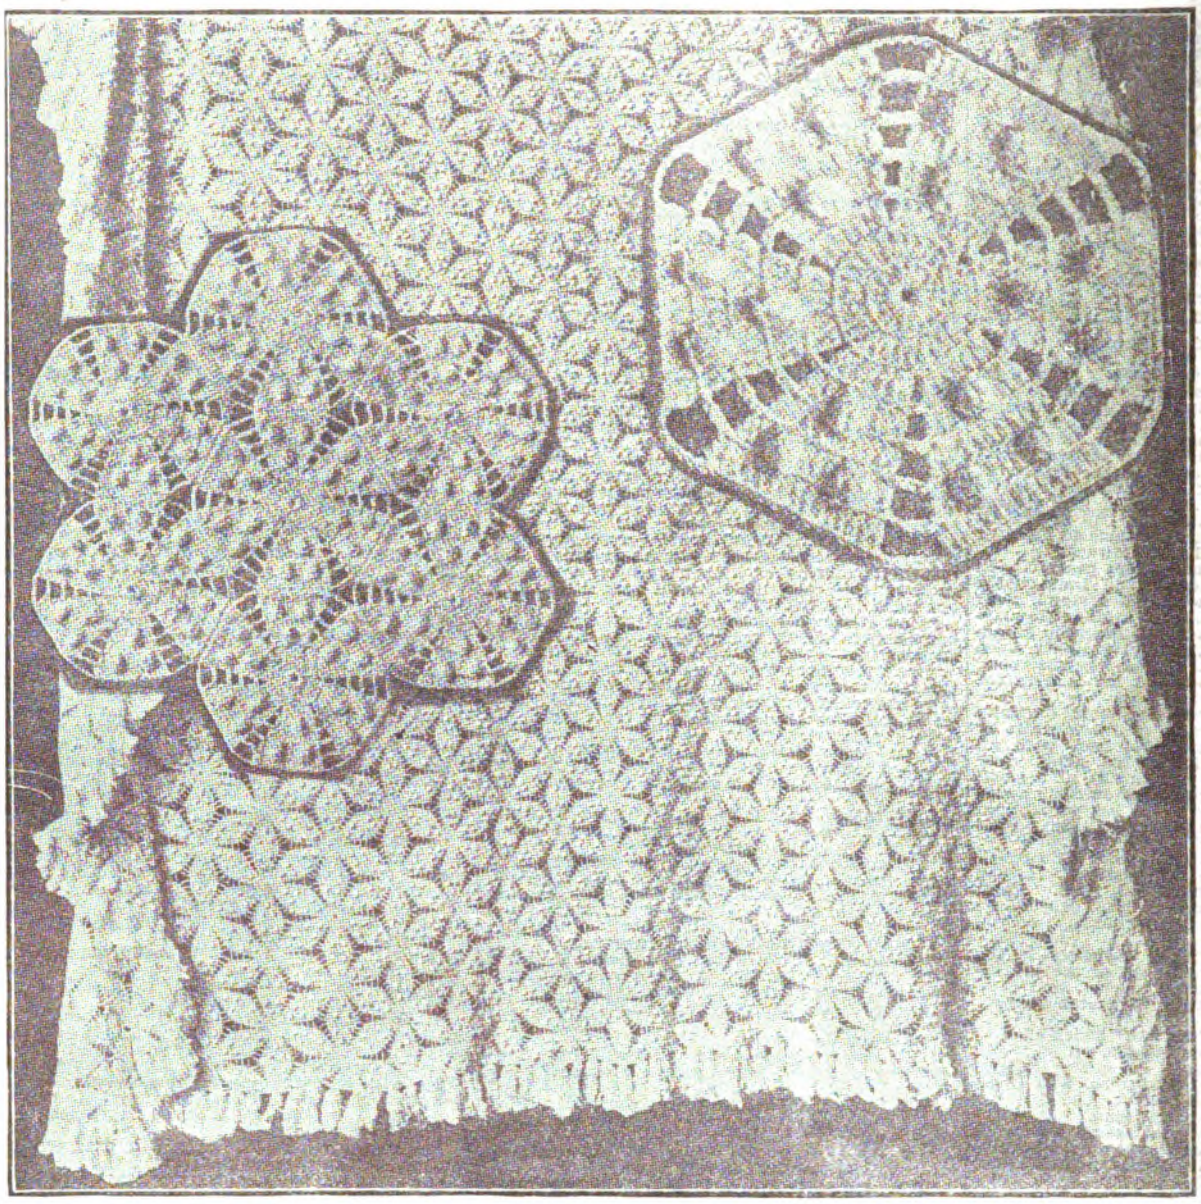
After making the first ch. 5 in the last row of the second rosette join the next two chains of 5 to the two corresponding chains 5 in the first rosette. Proceed thus, make ch. 3, 1 sl. st., under ch. 5, of first rosette, ch. 2, 2 d. c., ch. 3, 1 sl. st., to next ch. 5 of first rosette ch. 2, 2 d. c. and continue as in last row of first rosette. This leaves the two rosettes joined together. Join each rosette as fast as made in like manner, being sure to join each to the scallop in last rosette directly opposite the other scallop by which it is joined. Join together twenty of these for the outside of collar, and thirteen for the neck.

CROCHETED ROSE.

This makes a collar to fit a medium-sized neck and the collar fastens low in the front. Probably thirty rosettes 18 and 12 strips would be enough for a small neck. One should have a paper pattern to fit perfectly and then form the collar by the pattern. When the rosettes are all made and joined, fasten all thread ends on the wrong side then take the thirteen rosette piece and start crocheting in last ch. 5, loop on side of last rosette, holding it right side up and crocheting from right to left on the strip. Fasten thread into loop, then ch. 3, and join by 1 s. c., to next ch. 5, loop of scallop, ch. 12, join to first ch. 5, loop of next scallop, ch. 3, join to next loop, ch. 15, join to first ch. 5, loop of next rosette, ch. 3, join to next ch. 5, loop of same scallop, ch. 12, join to next ch. 5, loop, ch. 3, etc., all along the strip. Now turn and make a row of meshes for foundation of picot netting. Make ch. 8 at end of each row then ch. 6, 1 s. c., repeat making 6, ch. 6 to each rosette, or 78 meshes in this row, ch. 8 turn.

3rd row.—Ch. 5, catch back into second st. to form picot, ch. 4, 1 s. c. under ch. 6 in last row. Finish row with picot chains and ch. 8 at end of this and each row or the work will draw too tight. Make 6 more rows of picot meshes.

Take the 20 rosette strip and start crocheting the same as on the 13 strip but ch. 2, 7, 10 instead of 3, 12, 15 as on the 13 strip, that is, ch. 2 join to 2 loop, ch. 7, join to first loop of next scallop, ch. 2, join to next loop, ch. 10, join to first loop of next rosette, etc. Continue this across, then turn and make plain meshes, ch. 6, meshes as on other strip but only four meshes to each rosette thus curving the strip to fit the collar pattern. After making this row of meshes you are ready to join the two pieces. Place them on the pattern and start at right-hand end with collar right side up, hook and enough to make the work close and one should aim at regularity of stitch, so that the spread will be firm and the pattern even.



The design will then show up well and keep its shape while if loosely worked its weight will cause it to pull and stretch.

Directions for Motif

Begin with chain 5, join in ring, ch. 3.

1st round.—15 d. c. in ring. Join by sl. st., ch. 2.

2nd round.—1 d. c. in first st., always taking up only the back loop of each st., 2 d. c. in every other st., making 30 d. c. in all counting the ch. 2, as one d. c., join by sl. st., to this ch., ch. 2.

BEDSPREAD IN STAR PATTERN. By Caroline Crackenbush.

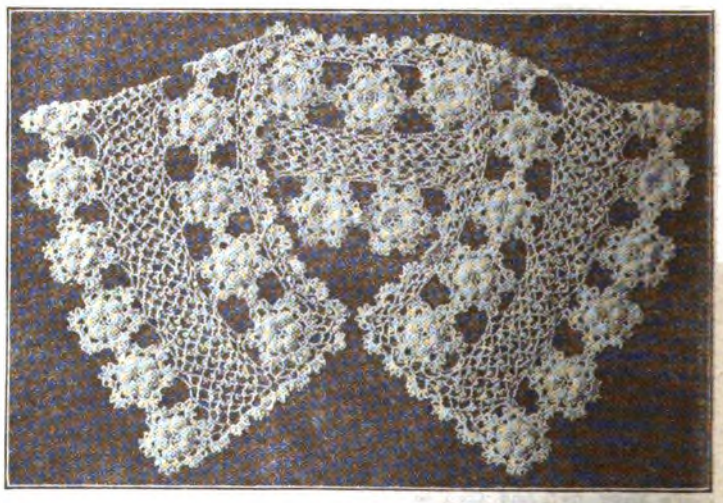
3rd round.—1 d. c., in same st., with sl. st., 1 d. c. in each of the next 3 sts., 2 d. c., in the next st. * Ch. 1, 2 d. c., in next st., 1 d. c., in each of the next 3 sts., 2 d. c., in next st. Repeat from * making 6 groups of 7 d. c. each divided by ch. 1. Join by sl. st., ch. 2.

4th round 1 d. c., in same st., with sl. st., 1 d. c. in each next 2 sts., 5 d. c., in next st., working through both loops of st. Slip hook out of 5th d. c., insert in first d. c., of this group of 5 d. c., and draw loop of 5th d. c., through, thus forming one puff by drawing up closely. Ch. 1, 1 d. c. in each next 2 sts., 2 d. c., in next st., * ch. 2, 2 d. c. in first st. of next group. 1 d. c. in each next 2 sts., 1 puff, 1 d. c. in each next 2 sts. 2 d. c. in last st. Repeat from * on each group, join, ch. 2.

5th round.—1 d. c. in same st. with sl. st., 1 d. c. in each other st., making 1 d. c. behind puff. 2 d. c. in last st. or 12 d. c. in all counting first ch. 2 as one. Ch. 2, repeat on each group join ch. 2.

6th round.—1 d. c. in same st. with sl. st., 2 d. c. on 2 d. c., 1 puff in third st., 4 d. c., 1 puff, 2 d. c. on 2 d. c. and 2 d. c. in last st., ch. 3, repeat on each group.

7th round.—Same as 5th round with chains of 5 between each group. These chains between the groups may vary according to how one works. A little experimenting will determine just how many sts. will be best to allow to keep the work perfectly flat. After completing a motif, crocheting to the next as the work proceeds or leave cotton long enough to do so before breaking it off.



Handsome Crocheted Tea Cosey.

About 3 balls of a soft mercerized finished cotton and steel crochet hook No. 7 or 8 will be needed.

Wind cotton 16 times around cardboard 2 inches long; take it off; 64 s. c. around the 16 loops, join with sl. st. This forms a ring.

1st row.—1 s. c. into each, taking up back rib.

2nd row.—Ch. 3, 2 d. c. into 2 following sts., 2 d. c. into next, repeat all around until 84 d. c. thread will be on neck-piece you have been working on, ch. 3, join with single crochet to first mesh on outside piece, ch. 3, join to next mesh in neck-piece, ch. 3, join to next mesh on outside piece, ch. 5, catch back in second stitch to form picot, ch. 1, join to next mesh on neck-piece, and so continue making a ch. 1, picot and ch. 1, each time you join to neckpiece. Count the meshes on each piece, there will probably be a few more on the outside piece, join twice in same mesh on neckpiece often enough to make them come even at end. When joined you will have to fill in at each end to make them even, and each worker will have to find her own way to do this. Any directions given for this would be confusing, only a suggestion may be helpful sometimes. When the hook does not come where you want it, a double or a treble crochet may bring it out in the proper place. After ends are evened up crochet chains along the inner side of neck-piece the same as on the inner side of other piece, making the chains of 2, 7 and 10 sts.

ROSE COLLAR.
By Mrs. M. L. Cornish.

Now make 2 rows of picot meshes like those already made allowing 4 meshes to each rosette: this draws it in at neck to fit pattern. Then make one row of ch. 5, meshes plain. Into these meshes make the edge like that around the rosettes and make edge on ends also, and this finishes the collar.

A Crocheted Bedspread

The old-fashioned hand-made bedspread is enjoying a renewal of popularity which is not to be wondered at in the general craze for antiques.

We have heretofore published several designs for knitted spreads, but that crocheting offers equally as effective a field for an article of this sort, is shown by this beautiful star coverlet. The two smaller illustrations show the medallions, which are completed one at a time, as shown on the right, and then crocheted together on the under side, forming the star pattern of the spread, as shown on the left.

The simplicity of this pattern will appeal to ambitious workers of even limited experience, and even invalids may undertake the work as the separate motifs are small and easily made. The edge may be finished with either a crocheted scallop or the fringe. Such a cover as this becomes an heirloom in any home and is well worth the time and effort spent in making it.

Material. Carpet warp or any sort rather than a hard twisted crochet cotton can be used. The work should be done with a steel hook fine are made, taking up back rib; join with sl. st. Turn.

3rd row.—Ch. 7, 1 s. c. into 6th d. c., repeat 10 times. Turn.

4th row.—8 s. c. into each of the 11 holes; 21 s. c. into following sts., take up back rib.

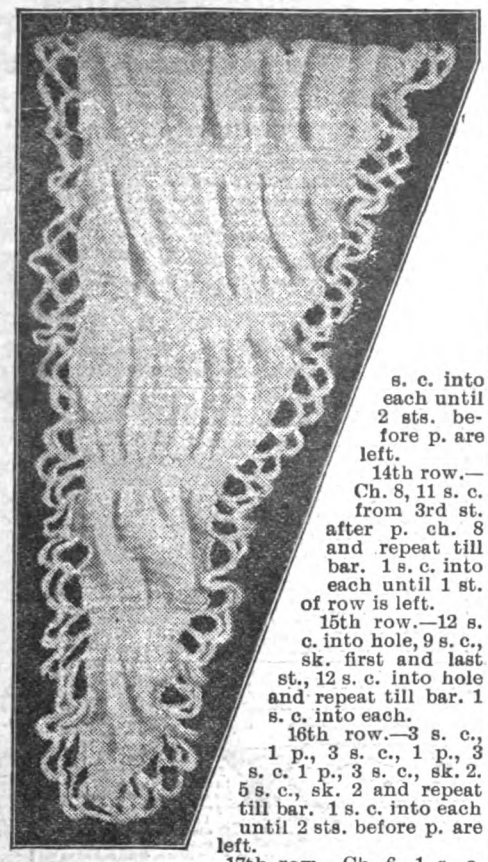
5th row.—Ch. 16, 1 s. c. into the last st. of first hole, 1 s. c. into 1st st. of 2nd hole. Repeat 10 times. 21 s. c. into the following sts.

6th row.—24 s. c. into each hole; 33 s. c. into following sts.

7th row.—Ch. 3, form p., 5 s. c., one into each, 5 s. c. into 2nd scallop from the 8th s. c., 1 p., 5 s. c. into same scallop, repeat across, after last p. 1 s. c. into each st. until 1st p. is reached.

8th row.—Ch. 8, 8 s. c. between the 2 p. skipping first and last st; repeat 10 times, 1 s. c. into each st. up to first hole.

9th row.—10 s. c. into hole, 6 s. c. one into each, skipping first and last st., repeat 10 times, 11 s. c. into each st. to end of row.



10th row.—10 s. c. sk. 1, 2 s. c., 1 p., sk. 1, 10 s. c., sk. 1, 2 s. c. 1 p. Repeat around till solid bar. 1 s. c. into each until 2 sts. before p. are left.

11th row.—Ch. 8, 10 s. c. from 3rd st. of p., ch. 8. Repeat till solid bar, 1 s. c. into each until 1 st. before hole is left.

12th row.—1 s. c. into hole, 8 s. c. sk. first and last st. Repeat till solid bar. 1 s. c. into each, until 4 sts. before hole are left.

13th row.—1 p., 2 s. c., sk. 2. 11 s. c., sk. 2, 2 s. c., 1 p., 2 s. c., sk. 2, 11 s. c. Repeat till bar, 1

KNITTED FASCINATOR.

s. c. into each until 2 sts. before p. are left.

14th row.—Ch. 8, 11 s. c. from 3rd st. after p. ch. 8 and repeat till bar. 1 s. c. into each until 1 st. of row is left.

15th row.—12 s. c. into hole, 9 s. c., sk. first and last st., 12 s. c. into hole and repeat till bar. 1 s. c. into each.

16th row.—3 s. c., 1 p., 3 s. c., 1 p., 3 s. c. 1 p., 3 s. c., sk. 2. 5 s. c., sk. 2 and repeat till bar. 1 s. c. into each until 2 sts. before p. are left.

17th row.—Ch. 6, 1 s. c. into first p. ch. 6. 1 s. c. into 3rd p., ch. 6. 3 s. c. into 5 s. c., sk. first and last st. ch. 6 and repeat till bar. 1 s. c. into each.

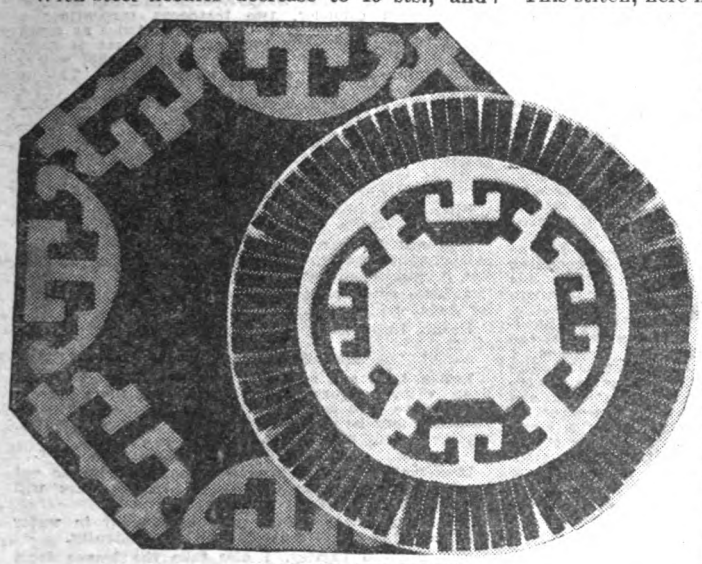
18th row.—8 s. c. into 1st hole, 8 s. c. into next, 4 s. c. into 3rd hole, turn; ch. 6, 1 s. c. into center of 1st scallop, ch. 6. 1 s. c. into center of next scallop, turn, 8 s. c. into 1st hole, 4 s. c. into next, turn, ch. 6, 1 s. c. into center of scallop, turn, 8 s. c. into hole, 4 s. c. into each unfinished scallop, 1 s. c. into center of the 3 s. c., repeat till bar. 1 s. c. into each.

19th row.—4 s. c. 1 p., 4 s. c. 1 p., repeat till center of last scallop is reached, ch. 11, sk. 1, 5 s. c. 1 p., 5 s. c. Continue row till starting point is reached.

To fill in the hole in the center use a needle and thread. Start on the wrong side and after dividing the hole into 8 parts, make 1 buttonhole stitch on each division, then draw thread again through each loop and draw the center up close as shown. Finish off.

The other side of the cosey can be made in the same way. Join by sewing the center picots of both sides together. Make a lining of white or colored satin padding it so as to retain the heat.

Knitted Fascinator



Materials. 5 skeins Shetland floss, 1 pair bone needles No. 5, 1 pair steel needles No. 15, 1 medium-size crochet hook. This throw is in plain knitting back and forth. All increasing and decreasing is done on one side, in every other row, the other side being kept straight.

This will be understood without further reference to it. With steel needles cast on 10 stitches, increase to 20 sts. at end of every second row.

With bone needles increase to 36 sts.
With steel needles increase to 46 sts.
With bone needles increase to 62 sts.
With steel needles increase to 72 sts.
With bone needles increase to 88 sts.
With steel needles increase to 98 sts.
With bone needles increase to 114 sts.
With steel needles increase to 119 sts. Then decrease to 114 sts.

Now narrow to correspond with first half of the work, and bind off.

With steel needles decrease to 114 sts.
With bone needles decrease to 98 sts.
With steel needles decrease to 88 sts.
With bone needles decrease to 72 sts.
With steel needles decrease to 62 sts.
With bone needles decrease to 46 sts.
With steel needles decrease to 36 sts.
With bone needles decrease to 20 sts.
With steel needles decrease to 10 sts., and bind off. Finish with a shell of 6 d. c. all around or 2 rows of chains 7 as shown in our illustration.

LEATHER CUT-WORK.

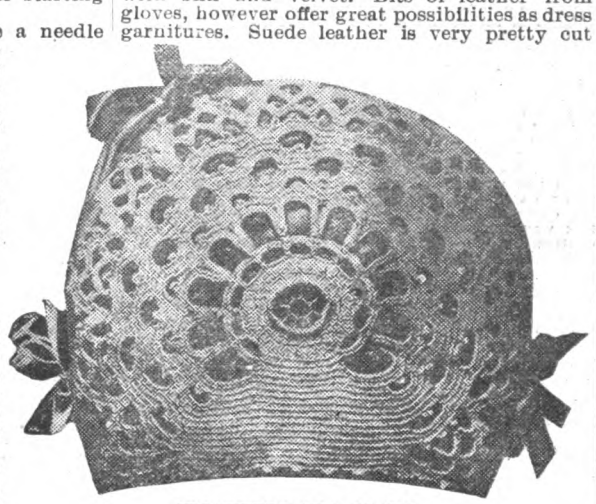
Handicraft

Original Conventional Designs in Cut Leather, Combined with Silk, Satin and Velvet

This sort of fancy work will appeal strongly to those who have not the time or are not endowed with the nimble fingers and the patience necessary to do the finer and more puttering kinds of handwork. In cut leather work elaborate and striking designs can be comparatively easily obtained in a short time. The material necessary is not expensive either, as leather especially adapted for this work can be bought at moderate prices and one skin will make a surprising number of articles, if the worker carefully plans her designs.



It is generally an economy of material to make the bigger things first, then smaller articles can be made of the leavings. The leather and satin handbag here shown is of reddish tan suede leather and old ivory white satin. The open work design is first sketched on a separate piece of leather, then cut out with a sharp knife or scissors. It is then placed on the upper part of the front of the bag and fastened in place with long stitches of heavy rope silk, the joints and circular center being further decorated with flat irridescent beads. The top of the leather is cut in an irregular outline and the edges machine stitched to the satin with silk matching the leather.

Heavy white silk cords are prettier for drawing up the top than ribbons. Another handsome bag was made of strips of white leather cut from long wristed gloves. Figures decorating the front were delicately colored in a mosaic of pink, blue and lavender with water colors outlined with a heavy line of gold paint. A handsome piece of heavy pink brocade formed the top. Mats for a reading table are especially nice made of leather. These can be decorated in various ways. The larger one in our illustration is of hunter's green leather with the cut designs underlaid with old gold plush.

CUT-WORK HAND BAG.

The other shows a combination of tan and brown leather. The under circle of the darker color, being cut in a two and one half inch fringe all around. After the design is cut from the upper piece, it should be glued in place and pressed under a weight until dry. If leather cannot be bought in all localities, similar results can be obtained by using felt combined with silk and velvet. Bits of leather from gloves, however offer great possibilities as dress garnitures. Suede leather is very pretty cut into open work medallions for hat trimmings, and belts can also be made using silk or velvet as a foundation. A handsome collar and cuff set recently seen, was of light gray kid over two layers of chiffon. Tiny change purses are among some of the other small articles which can be made of material which is really too valuable to throw away.

CROCHETED TEA COSEY.

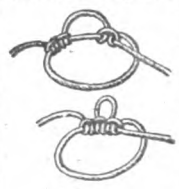
Tatted Pillow and Bag



More and more is tatting being used in the making of fancy articles of all sorts. Both the bag and pillow which are made by combining two simple designs are very handsome. In these examples coarse cotton was used.

In doing this work there is really only one basic stitch and having acquired that it is an easy matter to work out any pattern.

This stitch, here illustrated is nothing more nor less than a double buttonhole stitch worked over a thread with a shuttle. Having provided one's self with a thread-filled tatting shuttle, proceed as follows:

Hold the shuttle between the right thumb and forefinger, and the cotton between the thumb and forefinger of the left hand passing the cotton around the back of the fingers and up between the thumb and forefinger again, then back of the fingers. Let about five inches of the end hang.

Now pass the shuttle into the ring from the right and out between the first and second fingers. Pull to the right with a jerk. At the same time raise the second finger within the ring to raise the latter, when the ring thread will form into a stitch upon the shuttle thread. This is in reality but half a stitch. To make the second half, pass the shuttle from the second finger of the left hand into the ring and above the shuttle thread, jerk the latter, raise the second finger of the left hand and the other half of the stitch will form, completing what is known as the double stitch of tatting. The important thing is to have the stitches form of the ring thread and not of the shuttle thread, as one would naturally suppose. When starting the first half of the stitch always have the shuttle thread lying over the fingers of the left hand back of the ring, and when starting the second half of the stitch you should always be sure to have the shuttle thread hanging in front of the ring. A beginner will have to be patient and probably practise quite a little before they get the peculiar hand movements of the tatting maker. The directions should be followed very carefully, for tatting though so simple, is something which is rather difficult to learn even with an oral teacher.

A Picot

Still if one will practise at first with a piece of cord the correct stitch can be made. The only hard part comes in getting the knack of forming the loops of the ring thread on the shuttle thread as is plainly shown in our illustration.

And even this is in fact very simple if one will only remember that the shuttle thread is the one to pull tight and hold tight after each stitch, and that the stitch itself is formed on this thread and not by it, but by the thread which goes around the fingers, the ring thread.

This is the thing to watch, as on it depends the slipping of the stitches. To prove if the work is correct after each stitch, pull the shuttle thread tight and then see if the stitches will slip back and forth on the shuttle thread.

Of the edgings the narrow row of rings is the simplest of all tatting patterns. Try it of No. 24 thread for edging ruffles for under clothes. Of finer thread this is a dainty edge for baby clothes.

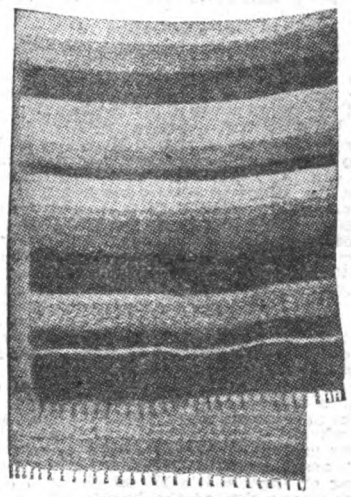
In making this edging, form your ring first; in it put 4 d. s., 1 p., 4 d. s., 3 p., 4 d. s., 1 p., 4 d. s., close.

Leave a short space, begin as before, connecting with last picot of previously made ring.

For centerpieces, doilies and edges for any household linen No. 60 thread is usually used.

For trimming personal underwear No. 80 is the standard, but a beginner will do better to practise with coarser cotton.

For the pillow and bag here shown use coarse cotton, either No. 30 spool thread or a regular crochet cotton. One will get over the work much quicker and the coarse tatting is more effective for articles of this sort.



Tatted Pillow

Our illustration shows just half of this pillow which is one of the new oblong ones. To make the daisy like motifs begin, with ring of 8 p, with 1 d. s. between each picot, close. Surround this with 8 rings each of 4 d. s., 1 p., 4 d. s., 1 p., 4 d. s., 1 p., 4 d. s., close. Join to center by picot before making the second ring. Repeat making 8 rings in all fasten off and break thread. Join these daisies as made by the end picots of two rings.

The simplest form of tatting is done with one thread, that comes from the shuttle only. More complicated and elaborate designs are done with one shuttle and an extra thread, while still others require two shuttles.

Insertion

This is made with one shuttle and one extra thread. Begin by making 3 rings each of 5 d. s., 1 p., 5 d. s., 1 p., 5 d. s., 1 p., 5 d. s., joined to each by the picots as made. These 3 rings form the 2 on the end of each and the first ring in the row. Next working with 2 threads, make a chain of 6 d. s., 1 p., 6 d. s., then 1 ring as before, joined to first ring in row, next 1 chain and so on. Join these rings to two of the daisy rings by the picots as shown.

SILK PORTIERE

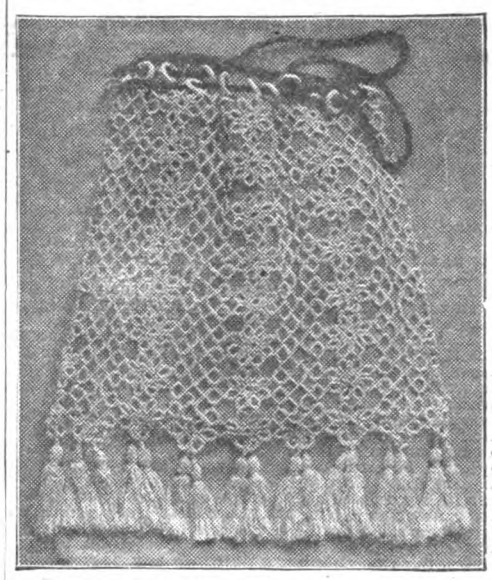
Make 2 rings in turn on the other end, work in the same back again, joining the chains by the picots. The ends of both articles are furnished by full 2-inch tassels, made of the same cotton.



Uniformity in design is essential, and accuracy is most important in doing this work, as it is very hard to correct mistakes, practically impossible if one is using fine thread.

Making Old-Fashioned Rugs.

Within the last few years there has been an immense development in the making of attractive and serviceable home-made rugs. Long ago people used to collect old rags, sew them together, and make up into rugs regardless of the color or texture, but on the whole the rugs of today are of a much higher standard artistically. The color schemes are carefully planned and carried out with most pleasing results.

Some beautiful rugs were recently seen at an exhibition made wholly of new cotton flannel. This can be bought for ten or twelve and one half cents a yard, and comes in a variety of colors. Five yards of this material will make a rug about a yard in length.

The rug here shown was made by an eastern girl of new cotton flannel torn in strips and carefully braided. A canary yellow center, surrounded with bluish grey, then steel grey and the color once repeated, made a most cheery attractive combination.

HAND BAG IN TATTING.

Shades of old rose flannel harmonize beautifully with some of the modern wall papers.

But wherever the room or howeven furnished, there is nothing that lends such an atmosphere of thrift, comfort and hominess as these copies of the old-fashioned braided rugs, which used to be seen in almost every New England home.

TATTING SOFA PILLOW.

In sections of the country where these rugs are practically unknown the making of them will appeal emphatically to all economical housewives, for otherwise worthless material, can be sorted dyed and used. The process is very simple. A little practise, of course is necessary to find out what width the rags should be torn. A piece of old white muslin might have to be torn an inch and a half in width while a piece of denim would only need to be half that width. The point is that the plait when finished must be of equal thickness and these points are only learned by experience and experimenting.

However the joy of making a rag rug is a very real one, and the work fascinating as it shapes itself and grows so rapidly under your hands.

One of our clever readers very successfully combined the silk from worn waists, dress and petticoats in making this attractive portiere. The colors are arranged as much as possible so as to make stripes. The beginning being an eight-inch stripe of foundation, which forms sort of a foundation for the colors. All the silk should first be cut, sewed together and wound loosely into a ball. Cut taffetas about one third of an inch wide, while China or wash silks should be nearer an inch as they crush up more in the loom. Almost any odds and ends may be used, while tinsel or gilt braids are extremely effective if carefully placed.

From about three and a half to five pounds will be necessary for a portiere. The one here shown measures six feet by forty-two inches that being the width of the average loom.

Warp may differ in color and quality. But the common brown usually gives the best service. It shrinks as little as any upon removal from the loom, and the item of expense is the minimum. While one may choose orange, red, black or other colors of thread, which may be of linen or silk as well as cotton, the latter will be found most reliable, the brighter tones of warp having a tendency to domineer and overcast the entire color scheme. The average cost for weaving should not exceed five dollars, for warp and work.

BRAIDED RUG.

Stocking the Home Medicine Chest and How to Use It

By Dr. C. F. Reade

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

EVERY home should be prepared for the many emergencies that are constantly arising—little emergencies that do not require the skill of a physician, but which do need immediate and proper attention. A cut finger, a bad bruise, a burn, or possibly a case of fainting—they are all apt to happen in every home, and if the housewife is prepared to meet them with some sort of skill they should not cause any more than a slight break to the routine of the day's work.

For what may be termed an ordinary cut there is little to do beyond washing the wound well, first with warm water and afterwards with some antiseptic, hydrogen peroxide being a splendid medium for cleansing open cuts. Use gauze in washing out a wound, not cotton, for the lint of cotton sometimes sticks and may cause inflammation. When the wound is well cleaned it should be bound up with an antiseptic bandage and a fresh bandage put on every day until it has healed sufficiently to allow it to come in contact with the air. For small cuts adhesive plaster should not be used because it keeps all the air away, and for large cuts or deep puncture holes, such as running a nail into any part of the body, a doctor should be seen at once to guard against poisoning.

In a home where there are small children bruises are a frequent and sometimes very painful occurrence. A compress saturated with arnica will draw out most of the inflammation. To make a compress fold your gauze several times, wet it thoroughly with the arnica, and bandage it over the bruised flesh. Arnica is also used in sprains, though it is not advisable to try to treat a bad sprain without the aid of a physician. If for any reason the doctor cannot reach your home at once, a cold compress, or better still an ice bag will reduce the swelling, and also lessen the pain. For a slight sprain a cold compress and then one of arnica will often be sufficient treatment, especially if the sprained place is afterwards painted with iodine.

The treatment of a burn is simple, and there are various methods of extracting the inflammation from the wound. Rubbing butter on the burn makes it less painful, and equally good is either an application of bicarbonate of soda or weak ammonia. The bicarbonate of soda can be applied either as a paste, or as a solution. If used as a solution, a cloth should be soaked with it, and kept very wet. The ammonia must be diluted before using, and can be applied as the solution of bicarbonate of soda.

Aromatic spirits of ammonia is a splendid all round remedy for the home medicine chest. If one of the members of the family faints, it is very valuable to bring about consciousness. It may be used both for inhaling, and as an internal remedy. As an internal remedy a good teaspoonful should be mixed with a third of a glass of cold water and fed to the patient in small mouthfuls. This drug is very beneficial in cases of slight nausea and may be given as in the case of fainting. Partial collapse from excitement, heat or fatigue is generally relieved by a half glass of cold water into which a small quantity of aromatic spirits of ammonia have been poured. The dose used varies according to the condition of the patient, whether it is wanted in a strong or weak solution. No more than a half teaspoonful may be considered an average dose.

Stomach troubles of any kind should always be carefully watched, for they may be the first warnings of some serious trouble to follow. Indigestion should never be neglected, for it soon becomes chronic, and the result is years of miserable health. For a slight attack of indigestion, a pinch of bicarbonate of soda dissolved in a little warm water will generally give relief, as will rhubarb and soda, or charcoal tablets. The charcoal tablets are particularly to be recommended as they are easy to keep in the medicine chest and are always ready. There are any number of reliable laxatives to be bought at the drug-stores, and one of them should always be kept in the house. It is also well to have Jamaica ginger on hand for quick relief in cases of cold or cramps.

There are several drugs which are of great benefit at times, but which are dangerous to keep in the house owing to the fact that they are poisonous. Iodine is valuable for drawing out the pain in a case of neuralgia, and is also beneficial in cases of slight sprains or bruises. However as it is a poison it should not be kept where some member of the family, blundering to the medicine chest in the night, will be able to get it "by mistake." The same may be said of a number of very valuable antiseptics. Bichloride of mercury is very valuable because of the sterile properties that it contains, yet it is one of the most deadly poisons that we have—a poison that carries off hundreds of people every year—and is very frequently taken in ignorance. Carbolic acid can be classed with bichloride of mercury.

The medicine chest should be ready to meet all emergencies and should always contain a small quantity of sweet oil and also some oil of cloves. This latter drug must be kept apart for it is poison when taken in a large quantity. The sweet oil when heated will generally give relief from an earache, and should be placed on a piece of cotton and put in the ear. For toothache a piece of cotton soaked with oil of cloves and applied to the aching tooth will ease the pain for a short time, though it is hardly probable that any treatment short of a visit to the dentist will bring permanent relief. In the case of a prolonged earache it is wise to see a doctor, for the ear is a sensitive member and any gathering of pus may mean deafness or even worse.

If, as frequently happens, a member of the family has a cold in the eye, or if the eyes become tired and inflamed, the use of an eye-cup will bring about relief. Half a teaspoonful of powdered boric acid mixed in half a glass of water is without doubt one of the very best eye washes that can be used. Fill the small eye-cup full of the solution and put it over the eye, holding the head back. Then open and close the eye several times. If this is done a number of times during the course of the day it is sure to have good effect.

To reduce a fever a small quantity of sweet spirits of niter should be kept on hand, and if this does not have the desired effect, call a doctor. A heavy and lasting fever indicates trouble, and should have professional skill to reduce it.

There are numerous headache tablets on the market, but these should not be kept at home for they spell temptation. The majority of headache remedies contain coal tar products which are harmful to the heart, and should not be used except in the case of a very severe headache. Asperin is perhaps the less dangerous headache remedy, but even this should be taken sparingly.

In the case of bleeding, except a nosebleed which is normal in most growing children, call a doctor at once. This is true too of a heavy cold. "Only a cold" sounds like a slight illness, but colds develop with surprising rapidity, and what is a slight cold of the chest or a sore throat of today is pneumonia or worse tomorrow.

Sore throats if attended to at once will not cause trouble. A gargle of half alcohol and half water will generally stop the progress of the inflammation, but if the throat continues to be sore send for a doctor at once. Never neglect a heavy cold or a sore throat, they lead to too many dangerous illnesses.

In arranging the medicine chest you should group the drugs so that those most needed will be near at hand, and those not often used and any that are harmful are away from the others, where they cannot be reached without an effort.

The best cabinet is a small wall affair about six inches deep and having four or five shelves. On the bottom shelf all surgical appliances should be kept. These should include at least a full roll of bandage, some antiseptic gauze, medicated cotton, and a pair of scissors. There is still room, the eye cup and eye dropper may be kept on this shelf. On the next shelf there should be a drinking glass, also a measuring glass so that given quantities in solution may be properly administered. A medicine dropper should be kept in a place where it will not be mistaken for the eye dropper, and with it may be kept the thermometer and a small brush for painting with such remedies as iodine or arnica. A spoon should always be kept in the medicine chest and it is now possible to obtain a half spoon, which is very valuable in the measuring of medicine.

On small hooks directly under the medicine chest the hot water and ice bags can be hung.

On the very topmost shelf it would be well for the housewife to have a small box with a cover and in it keep all the poisons or dangerous drugs. This box should be marked poison and each member of the family, from the oldest to the youngest, should be made acquainted with its contents. If it is possible, it might be well to have this box made of wood with a key so that it can be locked, and the key kept in a place where it will not be available to all the family. Oil of cloves, iodine, paregoric, and any other drug, such as bichloride of mercury or carbolic acid should be kept up here, well out of the way.

The stocking of the medicine chest is not an easy matter, for there are many small medicines that one only wants occasionally, yet they should not be thrown away when finished with. These are generally medicines peculiar to the needs of each individual family and should be kept at one end of the top shelf, out of the way.

On the shelf immediately below can be kept the antiseptics and drugs peculiar to emergency accidents, such as cuts, bruises or burns, hydrogen peroxide, arnica, bicarbonate of soda, aromatic spirits of ammonia, alcohol, and the boric acid to be used as an eye wash.

All medicines which are at all apt to be used with frequency can be kept on one shelf together. The wise mother finds a place in her medicine chest for a good tonic which she gives her brood in the fall so as to build them up against the winter colds which come with the first snow fall. Cod liver oil is a splendid tonic for a run-down body, and any of the various maltine combinations are equally beneficial.

A properly stocked medicine chest saves many trips to the doctor, though the minute that the mother sees any sign of a stubborn case that does not immediately respond to her simple remedies, she is wise if she has the doctor as soon as he can get there.

The housewife should occasionally look over her medicines so that in case of emergency she will not find that she had an empty bottle instead of the drug she wishes to use. Each time any of the surgical apparatus is used it should be properly sterilized and put back, always in the place originally designed for it.

NOTE BY EDITOR

Hydrogen peroxide (often called peroxide of hydrogen) is one of the most valuable antiseptics for cleansing a cut or wound; it is also an excellent gargle for sore throat, and is good as a mouth wash and for occasional use after brushing the teeth. It is a colorless liquid, odorless and nearly tasteless. Applied, as a wash, to a festering wound it will destroy the pus and dead tissues without injury to the live flesh; yet it is not irritant or corrosive in its effect and causes no smarting. This wonderful substance is the only effective antiseptic that is not poisonous; if swallowed by mistake it is harmless—just drink a glass or two of water, or even if you don't you probably will never feel the peroxide. Do not use it as a wash for the scalp or hair unless you wish to bleach the hair, for which purpose it is used by brunettes desirous of wearing blonde hair. Hydrogen peroxide should be kept tightly cocked and away from the light, for if exposed to the air it loses strength rapidly and soon becomes worthless.

Always keep a good supply of pure alcohol on hand, a quart is none too much. Besides being an excellent antiseptic for washing cuts and wounds, and a good gargle for sore throat, it is valuable for external application to relieve lameness, soreness and reduce inflammation, and in case of typhoid and other fevers it is indispensable for frequent bathing to reduce the fever. Be sure to get the pure "grain" alcohol—never use the "denatured" or wood alcohol for medicinal purposes nor for bathing.

For sore eyes, especially if bloodshot and matterating as the result of exposure to wind, dust or glaring sun, drop into the eyes two or three times a day a few drops of strong black tea steeped a long time in a cup or earthen teapot (not in a metal dish) and strained through a cloth; bathe the eyes in hot water morning and night, and on retiring bandage them with a cloth saturated with witch-hazel. Use good black tea, not green tea. Witch-hazel should always be kept on hand for relieving soreness, inflammation and bruises, but be sure to get the best quality, regardless of cost, at a reliable druggist's. This advice applies also to all drugs; you can't afford to take chances with inferior or adulterated drugs.

Always keep on hand a liberal supply of epsom salts in a tightly cocked bottle. It is a quick, effective and harmless agent for clearing the bowels when clogged; one or two doses taken in time may prevent a threatened bilious attack. In case of acute intestinal indigestion or ptomain poisoning or appendicitis liberal doses to produce thorough evacuation of the bowels may save life while you are sending for the doctor. This or any other salts should not be taken daily as a remedy for chronic constipation.

No household should be without a bottle of syrup of ipecac. In large doses it acts as an effective emetic, not so quick in its action as some of the violent emetics, but sure and safe. With a grown person a teaspoonful will usually produce vomiting, for a child a smaller dose in proportion to age. Syrup of ipecac is an excellent remedy for colds, coughs, hoarseness and croup. For children in doses of ten to twenty drops every four hours (without producing nausea) it loosens and relieves a cough or hoarseness and often will prevent a cold from developing into croup. If it produces nausea reduce the dose. In case of actual croup give a half teaspoonful for an emetic and repeat the dose in half an hour if vomiting (which is the desired effect) has not set in. It is the prudent course to call in the doctor in case of croup; but croup comes on suddenly and you can't always get the doctor just on the moment.—meanwhile apply your home remedies. For grown people ipecac is equally effective in the treatment of colds, cough and hoarseness, but the dose should be increased.

For earache I have found a half teaspoonful of glycerine and laudanum—equal parts of each thoroughly mixed and warmed over a lamp, poured into the ear and allowed to remain two or three minutes, then permitted to run out—the most effective in giving immediate relief. This was prescribed by a prominent physician. The laudanum and the heat quiet the pain while the glycerine softens the ear wax so that a few hours later it can be easily removed by warm water used through an ear syringe which should be included in the equipment of every home medicine chest. Keep the laudanum bottle in the poison box, it is deadly.

Always keep on hand a plentiful supply of mustard plasters in a tin box.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12.)

thirty-five to forty dollars a month. About homestead land, that is very scarce here in Grant county. Of course there is some vacant land but it is good only for grass. But in Malheur and Harney counties there is a great lot of vacant land that can be taken as desert land in this way; a married woman can take up three hundred and twenty acres and a man three hundred and twenty acres if he hasn't used his homestead right. This desert land is good if you want to follow dry-farming and drill for the water you use. Land sells very cheap here and people rent for half of what they can make off of it.

We have good schools here, and very good people; in fact, I think this is a good place for poor people like us to live in as it is easier to make a living here than most places.

I think I have answered all of your questions. I have answered some of the sisters and will write to all that sent stamps as time and health permit. Will some of the sisters write me who live near Polo, Caldwell county, Mo. or some who has lived there. I would also like to hear from someone living near St. Joseph, Mo. And remember I will be glad to hear from anyone who cares to write to me.

Hoping to hear from a great many, I am your COMFORT friend,

MRS. FLOY KINCAID.

RUMFORD FALLS, MAINE.

MY DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

After I had read Mrs. Thompson's letter and your kind invitation to Maine sisters I thought I would try my luck. I have been so happy and contented since we came here three years ago from Massachusetts. I have several reasons why I should be more happy here. In the first place there are no saloons or license for liquor, although there are a few kitchen barrooms; the climate is much better for our health, and wages are better; that is in the mills and I think they are better outside, too. My John has learned a trade since he came here, it is hard work, but he makes good money and supports the family well. In N. B. where we came from I had to leave my dear little ones at home in care of strangers and go to work in the cotton mill to keep the wolf from our door. I was so run down and tired that I weighed only one hundred and twenty-five pounds with a heavy suit on, and now I weigh one hundred and sixty-five and I am strong again. We just love this place.

Some of the sisters might be interested to know just what Rumford Falls is like. Twenty years ago it was a wilderness, now a city of ten thousand people, located on the Androscoggin river, on line of Maine Central, eighty-three miles from Portland and twenty-five from the famous Rangeley Lake region.

We have seven churches and fine schools. The place is lighted by electricity; there is a fifteen-thousand H. P. Hydro Electric power station with the falls right below. It would make the finest snap shot for your camera you ever saw.

We have one of the largest paper manufacturing plants in the world; employing over three thousand people. Some of the pretty colored coffee bags got in the Philippine Islands come from here.

I won't say much about my looks for fear you will take to the woods. I am thirty-six years old; have six children, four girls and two boys, living, and two dead. I don't know what I should do without them. I should like to write something about children, but my letter is already too long, so I will close with sincere good wishes to all and may God bless Mr. Gannett and his staff of workers. Your sister,

MRS. MADELINE MONETTE.

HYDE PARK, VERMONT.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

I have been a reader of COMFORT for many years; but seldom see anything from old Vermont, my adopted home, as I was born under good Queen Victoria's reign. Have often thought, as I read the interesting letters others have written that I would add my mite to the Sisters' Corner. For years I was a poor, nervous invalid, and although not well today I have much to be thankful for.

My husband is a cripple and suffers much, but he gets about some with two canes; we are poor which is no disgrace. We live some seven miles from Vermont's beautiful and magnificent Green Mountain Range, where lots of snow falls and much lumbering is done. We are five miles from our nearest R. R. station and as we live alone of course we get lonely.

Years ago I joined the beautiful shut-in society and through its wonderful work blessed rays of sunshine often find us on our rural mail route. Were it not for this we would be more lonely than we are. Some reading comes to us and a dear friend sends us COMFORT this way for a year. Would be so glad to hear from COMFORT readers, if only a card, and dear ones, that isn't much. We both love post-cards, especially scenery, and never tire of looking at them.

What grand ideas Mrs. Charles D. Thomas and others give us on the solemn duty of child-training. No more sacred work could ever be given human beings than the training, by Godly precept and example, of the wonderful minds of future generations. However dear sisters don't think for one moment that you are alone in this work, for the Great Helper is always near to bless every effort for good.

Yours with best wishes for, and gentle memories of, your labor of love.

ORPHA M. BROWN JOHNSON.

BIRCH TREE, MO.

DEAR SISTERS:

How many of you have tried growing ginseng as a means of procuring money to supply the necessities of life? I have, and with good success. I first planted a small patch at the rear of my chicken-house, and later, planted more along the creek banks in the shade of the timber. It has done well, and I sell several dollars' worth each fall, receiving as high as seven dollars and forty cents per pound for it, to say nothing of the many seeds I get which sells readily at one dollar and fifty cents per thousand seed. I have often seen inquiries in dear old COMFORT, regarding ginseng, and trust this little information will interest some sister. I would not advise you to invest very heavily in ginseng at the start until you learn if you have a suitable place to grow it. It will not grow without shade, neither will it grow in low swampy places. If you have good rich soil, well shaded and drained, you may be reasonably sure of very good profits from the culture of this plant.

I fear I am taking up too much space, but cannot refrain from adding a word of praise for COMFORT. It is surely a comfort in many, many homes, and is indeed the greatest paper published for the home. Long live COMFORT! I would like to hear from all the sisters interested in homemaking, and those who know of practical ways of earning spending money. I will try and answer all letters.

MRS. L. E. DOUGLASS.

1117 Sandals Place N. E., CANTON, OHIO.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

I have been a silent reader of COMFORT for seven years. We had been getting COMFORT but a short time when I introduced the paper to others and have ever since been sending in subscriptions and receiving useful articles and have several times received cash prizes.

I will now tell you about myself. I was nineteen years old on the fourteenth day of December and am an ardent lover of flowers and love to work in a garden. I wonder how many of the sisters that live in a city, especially the younger set, find pleasure in a garden. I had a most beautiful garden last summer, everyone praised the beautiful flowers it grew. I also was in a contest with girls and boys and my garden received the first prize. The prizes given were a trip to Washington, New York and Philadelphia. The money for the cost of the trip was donated by several prominent business men of Canton. The party of winners in this contest went in connection with the Buckeye Corn boys from all parts of Ohio. They spent five days visiting various places and also were received by President Wilson in the famous East Room, a tour of the White House and grounds followed the reception. I had the honor of being the first prize winner but had to be content at home while the other contestants were having the time of their lives, for I became ill and was not able to make the trip with them, but expect to enter in the contest again this coming spring in hopes of being again a winner of a trip. Will some of the sisters who are interested in my letter give me some advice such as would be helpful to me and also name some good magazines which tell about gardening? I will answer all letters promptly to those writing to me; especially would I like to get the younger sisters interested in city gardening. I am sincerely,

MISS MINNIE SCHAFFER.

Remedies

FRESH COLDS.—When you commence sneezing, taking fresh cold, drink a good sup of poke berry wine, every two or three hours and at bedtime. Next day drink it three or four times a day. It is splendid for rheumatism also, to mix with French brandy and drink three times a day. Good also without the brandy. Both of these remedies have been tried successfully in our family.

CROUP.—Apply kerosene to chest after first greasing to keep the kerosene from blistering. Give a teaspoon of honey in which has been stirred about one quarter of a teaspoon of salt. This will produce vomiting. Relief is certain in a few minutes.

MRS. J. H. THOMAS, Marietta, R. R. 5, Ga.

STOMACH TROUBLE.—Roast an ear of corn till brown. Pour boiling water over it and when cool, drink. If stomach is very weak, take one tablespoon to begin with and increase.

RUTH UNDERWOOD, Essexville, R. R. 1, Mich.

SICK HEADACHE.—Take as much ground cinnamon as the point of a knife will hold. Repeat dose in half an hour if not relieved.

MISS ETHEL KILLION, Cecil, Ark.

When baby has colic give him a swallow of cold water.

For bowel trouble in infants give them a tablespoon of beaten raw egg, three or four times daily.

For carbolic acid burns apply vinegar immediately.

For sick headache drink a glass of hot water, to which has been added, the juice of a whole lemon, without sugar.

MRS. DELLA CHAPMAN, Clifton, Oregon.

POISON IVY.—Dissolve one half cup copperas in one cup of sweet milk and bathe affected parts freely.

MRS. M. E. NOOMAN, Greely, Nebr.

CHILBLAINS.—Apply to affected parts the following: One half pint alcohol, two ounces of aqua ammonia and two ounces spirits of turpentine. If raw, dilute with water.

H. C. WHEELER, Derby, N. Y.

TONSILITIS.—Gargle the throat three or four times a day with a teaspoon of soda dissolved in a cup of water. This is a tried remedy.

MRS. R. WELLS, Bridgeville, Cal.

CHAPPED HANDS.—One quarter pound of honey, one quarter pound of sal-soda and one pint of water. Apply often.

MRS. JOHN E. DAVIS, Cedar City, Utah.

CAKED OR GATHERED BREAST.—One half cup of lard, one teaspoon camphor, two teaspoons turpentine, a piece of beeswax size of a thimble and twice as much mutton tallow and melt together. If breast is sore, just rub on; if caked or gathered, wash with hot water, apply ointment and cover with warm flannel. This is an old and tried remedy.

MRS. F. J. BRADY, Okmulgee, 807 So. Grand St., Oklahoma.

Best Ways of Doing Things Around the Home

Fill several bobbins with thread before starting to sew. It saves time.

Rub salt in your milk vessel one half hour before putting milk into it, rinse just before putting milk in and it will remain sweet longer.

A little sweet milk in water will be enough starch for handkerchiefs and will whiten them.

Do not throw away old table linen, make tea towels of it.

MRS. LELIA HAGGARD, Norwood, Ohio.

Lemon juice and salt will remove rust stains from linen, without injury to the fabric, wet the stains in the mixture then put in sun to dry. Two or three applications may be necessary if stain is of long standing, but the remedy never fails.

MISS AGNES HALPIL, Scotia, Nebr.

How many know that a tablespoon of vinegar put in the lard when the fat is set over the fire will prevent doughnuts from soaking fat.

Soaking pecans and butternuts over night in water will make the meats come out without difficulty.

Gather green parsley, I also take the leaves from celery and dry, then rub between hands and put in a tin can, and it is ready to use in soup, potato salad, etc.

Dark eyeglasses will protect the eyes when sweeping the ceilings, also when preparing onions.

MRS. A. B. WEDGEWOOD, Dutch Flat, Cal.

Instead of washing hardwood floors with water, try wiping with coal oil. It gives a nicer finish. Also sweep carpets with broom dipped in coal oil and it will brighten the colors.

MRS. M. E. NOOMAN, Greely, Nebr.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 37.)

CREDIT to ALL DIAMONDS and WATCHES

$39.50 SPECIAL! Genuine Diamond Ring, Value $75, 14K Mounting, Credit terms, $5 down, $4.50 a month.

Lowest prices, greatest time-payment offer in U. S. on all famous Alfred Ware Guaranteed Diamond Rings, All Styles. Brilliant, perfect-cut diamonds. Money back 30 days if wanted. Sensation! 17 Jewel ELGIN, $12.50

Regular $18 value. Guaranteed Elgin Movement—25-year Case. Engraving FREE. World's greatest watch bargain. FREE Catalog—64 pages—astounding jewelry, silverware bargains on FREE TRIAL. Address:

ALFRED WARE COMPANY
Dept 230, St. Louis Mo.

$8 ON 30 DAYS FREE TRIAL DROP HEAD

Write today for our big free sewing machine catalog and read our great offer to send you any of our famous light running noiseless Faultless sewing machines (about 20 styles), at $6.95 to $22.95 on 30 days free trial. No money to us in advance; try the machine 30 days; if it suits send the money, if not, return at our expense. Catalog shows machines in actual oak colors, gives full details and makes ordering so easy and safe that a child can order with perfect safety. Write for catalog sure.

No Money in Advance

JOHN M. SMYTH MDSE CO. 150-151 W. Madison St. Chicago

$30 a Week EASY

Men and Women Wanted to Sell PERFECTO Kerosene Irons

No experience necessary. Big profits selling this wonderful self-heating satisfaction guaranteed iron. Easy to operate and demonstrate. Sells itself. Use Kerosene (Coal Oil) or Gasoline with same satisfactory results. Absolutely safe, no smoke or odor. Get facts in detail and let us tell you how to obtain Free Sample and start you in a big paying business. Sample case FREE to Agents.

Perfecto Sad Iron Factory, Dept. 17, 126 So. Clinton St., Chicago, Ill.

WE WILL GIVE

This GOLD PLATED EMBOSSED LOCKET and 22-inch CHAIN—Locket opens to hold two pictures and is set with a perfect similitude DIAMOND—and these 4 GOLD PLATED RINGS ABSOLUTELY FREE to anyone that will sell only 12 pieces of Jewelry at 10 CENTS each and return us the $1.20. WE TRUST YOU and take back all not sold. Address

H. T. DALE MFG. CO.
Providence, R. I.

8% Preferred Stock

A manufacturing Company of Cleveland offers limited number of shares to anyone seeking an investment. Bank References and Rigid Investigation Invited.

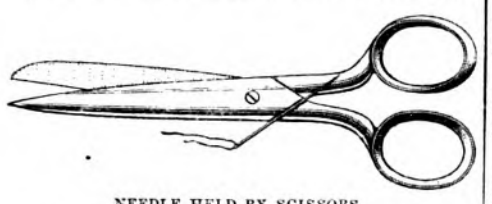
THE FEDERAL FOUNDRY SUPPLY CO., Cleveland, O.

Genuine Japanese Tea Set FREE 17 pieces full size including Tea Pot, Sugar and Creamer. Fine Japanese ware in many Oriental colors. Free for distributing only 12 sets of art pictures on special offer of 25c per set. Takes an hour. Write today. Robert Currier, Mgr. Dept. C19, Chicago.

Helpful Household Hints

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

The pasteboard boxes that crackers come in are fine to keep doughnuts or cookies in, as they will not dry up. They can be used to bake fruit cake in, as the oiled paper and stiff outside keep the cake from burning, which fruit cake is very apt to do.



Do not make the mistake of putting hot water on machine oil stains. It will not remove the grease, but it may set it so firmly that it cannot be removed. If the garment stained is washable, rub the grease spot with cold water and soap immediately the accident has happened. If not washable apply a little French chalk or gasoline to the spot, taking the precaution, however, to insert underneath the material a piece of blotting paper. This to prevent a ring being perceivable when the grease has been removed.

Adding a pinch of salt and piece of butter, size of a bean, to coffee will make the flavor much better and also settle the coffee.

In extracting the juice of lemon or orange, much more juice will be obtained if the fruit is first covered with cold water and allowed to come to a boil before the fruit is cut.

Do away with papers on your pantry shelves by substituting for them two or three coatings of white enamel. The effect will appeal to housekeepers on account of its inviting and cleanly appearance, aside from its sanitary qualities.

When the needle sticks in heavy material, and you are unable to pull it through by thumb and finger, place needle carefully in joint of scissors,

NEEDLE HELD BY SCISSORS.

using the scissors as nippers to grasp the needle, as shown in sketch. A slight pressure of the scissors will hold the needle firmly and enable you to pull it through the cloth.

When a box of sardines is opened it should be drained of all oil possible, and then the little fish turned out and sprinkled with lemon juice. They should be drained again before serving. The lemon will cut the remaining oil and make the sardines more palatable.

When a wall is so soft that it will not hold a picture hook, mix a little plaster of Paris in a teacup; enlarge the hole to a fair size and fill it with the plaster and, a minute after, insert the hook and let it dry. The hook will be perfectly secure after the plaster has hardened and dried.

If you have difficulty in giving children powders, cut a banana down the middle, scoop out some of the pulp, and put the powder in; place together again, and the taste is hardly ever noticeable.

Plants will grow more quickly if a few drops of ammonia are added once a week to water with which they are watered. The water should be lukewarm, not colder than the atmosphere, when you water your plants.

Old hair brushes which have become soft can be made quite hard and firm by dipping them in a strong solution of alum.

If windows are cleaned with vinegar and water they will be brighter and stay clean longer than if cleaned with water alone. Polish in the usual way with soft linen cloth.

To make a muddy skirt wash easily and look white, take some sour milk, dilute with water and soak the skirt in it over night; then wash in the usual way. It will be found that the skirt washes more easily and looks whiter.

Bread should be kept in an earthenware jar or crock with cover. This crock and cover ought to be scalded once a week, and then carefully dried.

To clean the bean pot, fill with cold water, put in some kind of washing powder and cover tightly, put on stove and let it come to a boil. This will make it very easy to wash.

To save paint and furniture from being knocked and scratched when sweeping, nail pads of velvet or cloth on all brooms and brushes, especially those used for stairs.

To test eggs; put them in water. A fresh egg will sink, a poor egg will float midway and a bad egg will float on the surface.

When making a cup of cocoa put into it (when mixed) a pinch of salt, and you will find a great improvement in the flavor. This also takes the watery taste away.

Handkerchiefs and white clothes that have become yellow from use of too much soap or any other cause, may be whitened in the following manner; after washing let them soak overnight in a tub of clear water to which is added a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. When ironed they will be white as snow.

Mackintosh coats which have become hard and rigid may be easily cleaned with lime and water and made to look as good as new. A handful of the best gray lime dissolved in half a basket of water, applied with a small sponge, makes it better. Repeat after three hours.

When cooking vegetables remember that all vegetables which grow above ground should be put into boiling water, and all which grow under ground in cold water with the exception of new potatoes.

Hang woolens out on the line dripping wet, without wringing them at all. If dried in this way, they will not shrink.

To take stains from hands, use half cupful of coarse cornmeal and one cupful of strong vinegar. Wash and rub the hands well in this; rinse in warm water.

When boiling an old fowl or tough meat, add a pinch of soda to the water. Simmer gently, and the meat will be perfectly tender.

To prevent cheese from getting hard, cut a small piece off for present use and place the remainder in a cool place. Spread a thin film of butter over the cut part and cover with a clean cloth. This will prevent that hard, cracked condition which ruins the best of cheese.

If your shoe polish becomes hardened in the tin, do not moisten with water, but with milk, it will improve the polish.

If silver is to be stored away for some time, pack it with dry flour; it will remain untarnished.

A little lemon juice rubbed on tarnished faucets will easily and quickly brighten them.

To stop a small leak mix whiting and yellow soap into a thick paste with a little water. Apply this to the place where the leakage is and it will be instantly stopped. A visit from the plumber will still be necessary, but this will help out meanwhile.

Tumblers which have been used for milk should always be rinsed in cold water before they are washed in hot. When this is done the milk does not stick to the glass, and there is no danger of their looking cloudy.

To preserve the color of green vegetables, put them on to cook in boiling water into which a pinch of salt has been dropped. With green peas or sweet corn use a teaspoonful or two of sugar instead of salt, as salt hardens these.

Coffee stains may be removed by brushing the spot with pure glycerine. Rinse in lukewarm water and press on the wrong side. This will not injure the most delicate material.

Even in summer, if you use a hot-air furnace, and it is not in use then, of course, never allow the cellar to be swept or cleaned up in any way without first covering every register in the house with a damp cloth. This prevents any dust from getting into the rooms.

Stoning raisins is a sticky job, but this can be easily avoided if the raisins are first soaked five minutes in boiling hot water and then plunged into ice water.

When threading a needle with black sewing material hold the eye against a light surface. When threading with white cotton or silk, hold the eye over a dark surface. This will make the threading much easier.

To clean light colored velvet, corduroy or felt, rub the soiled portion lightly with the cut surface of a day-old loaf of white bread, cutting off the surface as fast as it becomes discolored.

To frost a bathroom window make a very strong solution of Epsom salts and vinegar. Apply it with a brush, and afterward go over it with some white varnish.

To improve shiny serge or cloth lay it flat on the table and pass a piece of fine sandpaper very gently over the shiny part. The sandpaper will roughen up the nap again, but be careful not to rub too hard, as it may wear a hole in your material.

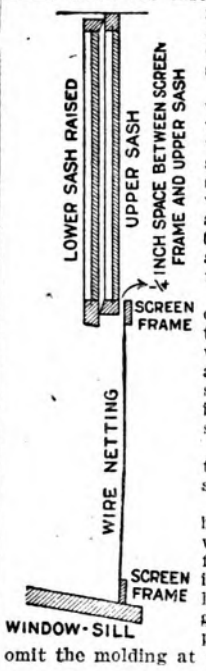
In cleaning ivory knife handles rub them well with half a lemon dipped in salt. This will make them beautifully white. After this treatment they should be well washed in cold water and thoroughly dried.

Cayenne pepper is excellent as a means of ridding a cupboard of mice. The floor should be gone over carefully and each hole stopped up with a piece of rag dipped in water and then in cayenne pepper.

Safety matches can be lighted by scratching on a piece of smooth coal, glass or cast iron (but this surface must be smooth), as well as on the safety match-box case.

Grate an apple into your horseradish, and you will have as fine a relish as you could possibly wish.

Put the small pieces of scouring soap that are left over through the meat chopper, using a fine knife, making them into powder. Another good way is to melt them with a little water to make a soft soap, if the soap has no grit in it.



Flowers can be kept fresh for quite a long time by placing their stems in a potato. Bore holes in the potato with a skewer and insert the stems and place the potato in a dark bowl—and no water is required.

Loops for hanging garments are always wearing out and breaking. Take a strong cord, cover it with the kid from discarded gloves and sew this to the garment for a loop. It will last as long as the garment does.

A simple but absolute test as to whether milk is watered: Dip a steel needle in a vessel of milk and immediately withdraw it in an upright position. If it is pure, some of the fluid will adhere to the needle; if there is water in the milk, it will not cling to the needle at all.

When cane bottomed seats sag, sponge both sides of the cane with hot soapsuds in which a handful of salt has been dissolved, then stand the chair in the open air. Treated like this, the seats will become as firm as when new, shrinking into place.

The fly has ceased to be a problem in a certain home since the installation of a set of screens made as per following description and placed in window frames as shown in sketch.

The screen is constructed with the wire netting flush with inner surface of framework so as to afford a straight runway, and the screen placed outside the window and a full quarter of an inch away from the sash-top of screen to reach as high as putty line on lower rail of top sash.

The flies inside will crawl up the screen and out through the opening between window and screen and fly away but will not enter at same point because the opening is in shadow from outside

The flies which come in through the doorways are soon trapped out in this way.

An important thing is to have the wire netting flush with the framework. The old-fashioned method of fastening the wire by means of fillets forced down into plowed grooves is good or if wire is put on with moldings, to omit the molding at the top of the screen.

When cooking onions, set a tin cup of vinegar on the stove and let it boil. No disagreeable odor will then be in the room.

To remove a scorch from linen, cut an onion in half and rub the scorched part with it, and then soak it in cold water. The mark will then disappear.

To prevent stove polish sticking to the hands while polishing a stove, first rub the hands thoroughly with soap and allow it to dry. The polish will then wash off without any trouble.

To prevent a plate from slipping when you set it on a cake of ice in the refrigerator, place an ordinary rubber ring, such as go with fruit jars, under the plate.

After washing your rice and placing it in the steamer stir sufficiently to allow any small white stones which you would not discover in looking it over, to settle at bottom. When cooked separate lower portion and give it to the cat—you may thus avoid considerable annoyance and a dentist's bill.

A pinch of baking soda added to a berry pie, before the upper crust is put on, will prevent the juice from running over. However only a trace of the soda should be used, sprinkled lightly over the fruit.

A little sugar or even molasses added to stove polish gives a brighter and more lasting finish. It also prevents so much dust.

To clean a stove pipe place a piece of zinc on the coals. The vapor produced carries off the soot.

A pinch of soda added to the scouring brick will clean knives more readily than the brick alone.

It is not necessary to scald tomatoes in order to remove skins easily. Rub the ripe tomatoes all over with back of kitchen knife and you will find the skin loosened and easy to peel off. Thus you retain the rich, fresh flavor.

If your gas plate is crowded and you want coffee and eggs, why not wash the eggs and boil them in the coffee.

Give a little shake to your shades before rolling them up in order to dislodge the chance fly.

In planning the new house figure a little on heights of bowls, sinks, etc. Also kitchen table. These are generally made "standard height" and many a backache might be avoided by adding a few inches to that dimension.

A very simple and satisfactory way to separate cream from milk in a milk bottle is to use a small piece of rubber tubing, costing only a few cents, and to siphon the milk from under the cream—with care almost the last drop of milk may thus be drained off.

A good substitute for cream in coffee is the well-beaten yolk of an egg. Pour the coffee into the yolk, stirring the while.

A few cups of coffee taken without sugar is enough to cure nine out of ten of the sugar habit.

Pour the coffee into the cream.

When your scissors grate—rub the edge of each blade lightly between thumb and finger—you will then find them to work smoothly.

BABY'S COLD

What to Do for It

By Dr. Leonard Keene Hirshberg

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

THE child that has a cold ought to be separated from other children. One person can contract a cold from another. No man or woman with a cold should caress or kiss a baby. This practise is universally followed by many people and the results are most pitiful. The cold is transmitted to the little, helpless baby by someone who loves him. A massage treatment will give the baby that is suffering with a cold instant relief. The mother gives an olive oil rub, working from the feet to the hips with long, smooth strokes, from the hands to the shoulders, down over chest, over the abdomen from left to right, rubbing gently around repeatedly, with the palm of the hand, down the back from the base of the brain to the base of the spinal column. The room must be warm, with windows and doors closed. It is better to have the child near the radiator while the treatment is being given. The treatment draws the blood from all the congested areas to the surface and equalizes the circulation. A baby that has been unable to nurse or to sleep for hours will nurse without discomfort and will go off to sleep immediately. A little diluted listerine sprayed into the nostrils will reduce the inflammation of the membranous linings of throat and nose. A little coal oil or turpentine mixed with lard, rubbed into the chest is a good home remedy. One half teaspoonful of syrup of rhubarb will carry off the impurities through the intestinal canal. Baby should be kept warm and quiet in a room that is well ventilated. It is a mistake to give the baby any patent medicines for colds. The majority of them contain harmful drugs.

New Book FREE to You

Write for It Today Sure

Spear's new book has a beautiful cover in colors from Oil Painting of Two Home Lovers "Planning Their Home Sweet Home."

"Let Me Save You Money on Household Goods"

"I give 30 Days' Home Trial Free on any article in my large fascinating free catalog. In that way you can prove without risk what great values I offer. Write me today."

—SPEAR of Pittsburgh

Bed, Spring, Mattress, Pillows, Complete Outfit

$8.95 only

Order No. D353

Only 75c Monthly

As a sample Spear value see this handsome, complete Metal Bed Outfit, consisting of heavy, perfectly constructed Iron Bed, any color, 4 feet 6 inches wide; a good all metal spring of serviceable steel fabric; 50-pound cotton top mattress; 2 feather pillows. Price $8.95. Terms, $1.50 cash with order, balance payable 75c monthly. Shipped on 30 Days' Trial.

"I Will Trust You Gladly" —Spear of Pittsburgh

"On all Furniture and Household Goods, I will give YOU the most reasonable, easy-payment terms to suit—wherever you live. Because of tremendous purchases and immense sales my prices are astonishingly low. I have thousands of customers who buy bargains from my catalog year after year on my easy, simple credit-plan.

"This big, beautiful book I want to send you free fully explains all and contains thousands of actual pictures and careful, complete descriptions of

Furniture, Rugs, Clocks, Go-Carts, Dishes, Springs, Carpets, Portieres, Silverware, Ranges, Stoves, Bedding, Sewing Machines, Lace Curtains, Refrigerators, Washing Machines, Mattresses

"All sold on credit. No home is complete without this interesting Free Book. Write to

SPEAR & CO. Dept. E Pittsburgh, Pa.

$3.65 Only

for this beautiful and durable rocker. Look at the picture. Think of the value!

Order No. D486

Where can you beat it?

Pay only 50c per Month

A handsome, full size, mission rocker made of genuine oak in rich brown, fumed finish. Has wide arms, heavy front posts. Covered with durable brown Spanish Sylvan leather with a deep spring seat and upholstered back. Neatly designed and solidly constructed. Sent on

30 Days' Trial

A remarkable value which we guarantee to give satisfaction. Shipped on 30 days' trial. Price $3.65. Terms, 75c cash with order, balance 50c monthly—order it direct.

SPEAR & CO. Dept. E Pittsburgh, Pa.

Fill in This Coupon and Mail Today

Please send me, FREE, your complete Bargain Catalog with Prices, Terms and Information, without the slightest obligation on my part.

Name.....

Street.....

Town..... State.....

FREE Air Rifle or this 14k Gold Laid Bracelet and Ring warranted 5 years for selling only 20 packages of BOB WHITE BLUING at 10c—a year's supply of pure bluing. Return $2 from sales and the above premiums or choice from large catalog will be forwarded. WE TRUST YOU. Write today. Reliable Firm.

BOB WHITE BLUING CO., Dept. F, BALTIMORE, MD.

AGENTS $30 WEEKLY

Selling Improved Easy Irons. Mauller made $38 first 10 hrs. Fitter sold 94 in 3 days. Women crazy for it. Saves steps, time, work, fuel. Pays for itself quickly. Big profit on every sale. Sell 8 out of 10 homes. Guaranteed. Get our Free Sample offer.

FOOTE MANUFACTURING CO., Box 812 Dayton, Ohio

21 RUBY JEWEL $25 GOLD WATCH $3.95

Here is the watch you have always wanted, sent to you at our risk, without your sending any money—not even a deposit. Write if you prefer open face or hunting case; ladies' or gents' size, and we will send this twenty-five year, fully guaranteed, thin model, American made, beautifully engraved watch for free examination and test. If you are satisfied with it and are sure it equals a $25.00 gold watch, pay us only $3.95 and the watch is yours. Write now.

RELIABLE WATCH CO., Dept. 116, CHICAGO

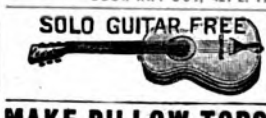
GREAT MONEY MAKER FOR AGENTS

Sell Magnetic Combs and get rich; agents wild with success. They remove dandruff; stop falling hair; RELIEVE HEADACHE; never break. Send 2c stamp for sample.

PROF. LONG, 917 Ash St., Pekin, Illinois

BIRTH STONE RINGS FREE

14K Gold filled, guaranteed for 10 years, with stone for any month, $1.00 value to introduce our catalogue. Send 12c to cover cost of advertising and mailing. Send size.



Eagle Jewelry Co., Dept. R, East Boston, Mass.

30 Beautiful EASTER Cards 10c

The Best Collection of Easter, Toasts, Angels, Rabbits, Christ, The Cross, etc. All new designs. 3 packages 25c., 6 for 50c, 14—$1.00

LEON ART CO., 421 E. 77th ST., NEW YORK.

SOLO GUITAR FREE

for distributing 8 set of Art pictures at 25c on special offer. Send name at once.

M.O.SEITZ, 325 CHICAGO

MAKE PILLOW TOPS FELT FLAGS OF ALL NATIONS

Ten nations to package, size 5 1-2 x 8 1-2 and one large one, size 8 1-2 x 12, for 25c. 5 pcks for $1.00. Eight million sold

C. STAR CO., 2109 WILLIAM STREET, TRENTON, N. J.

Faces As Fair As An Orchid

Are Possible When Stuart's Calcium Wafers Are Used After Meals to Clean Up Skin Eruptions And Discolorations.

When a face is covered with blotches, liver spots, pimples, blackheads, etc., Stuart's Calcium Wafers will act like some magical charm. However, there is nothing magical about them. They are nature's own way of cleansing the human blood and preventing it from filling the surface of the body—the skin—with pimples and little skin eruptions.

"With a Face as Fair as a Day in June."

The abolishing of all skin disorders must begin with the blood. Lotions, salves, cosmetics, etc., will do no material good. The trouble comes from within and there the remedy must be applied.

If you really desire quick action and at the same time a common sense, natural, harmless blood purifier, then Stuart's Calcium Wafers is this remedy

The correct and best blood purifier known to science is—Calcium Sulphide. This great cleanser is contained in proper quantities in Stuart's Calcium Wafers and that is why all blood troubles and skin blemishes rapidly disappear after their use.

An unsightly and pimply face due to impure blood is one of the most disgusting sights one can see, and yet all about us, upon the streets, in the theater, when traveling, etc., we see these horrible results.

There is no need for this condition if you will take Stuart's Calcium Wafers daily and keep all salves, lotions, cosmetics and other harmful preparations from clogging the pores.

Every first-class druggist in this country carries Stuart's Calcium Wafers, which are pleasant to take, harmless, and may be obtained for 50 cents a box. A small sample package will be mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., 175 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

JAPAN ROSE BUSHES

The Wonder of the World.

Rose Bushes with roses on them in 8 weeks from the time the seed was planted. It may not seem possible but we Guarantee it to be so. They will BLOOM EVERY TEN WEEKS Winter or Summer, and when 3 years old Will have 5 or 6 hundred roses on each bush. Will grow in the house in the wintcr as well as in the ground in summer. Roses All The Year Around. Package of seed with directions and our guarantee by mail 10 cts.

Japan Seed Co. Box 6 So. Norwalk, Conn.

WANTED AN IDEA! Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect Your Ideas, they may bring you wealth. Write for "Needed Inventions" and lists of "Patent Buyers." RANDOLPH & CO., Patent Attorneys, Dept. 112, WASHINGTON, D. C.

919 CARDS New Styles Gold Bevel Edge Hidden Name, Silk Fringe Envelope and Post Cards; 100 Rich and Racy Jokes; 1 Pack Fun, 1 Escort and Love Cards; Star Beau Catcher, Big Sample Book Cards, etc., all Two cents. UNION CARD CO., B 31 Columbus, Ohio.

Austrian Bead Necklace

The Latest Imported Novelty In Necklaces

Hand Made From Strings Of Beautiful White Austrian Beads Woven Together And Finished With Handsome Imit. Amethyst And Gold Bead Decorated Pendant.

Bead necklaces are more fashionable than ever this season. For the last two or three years these handsome, inexpensive neck ornaments have been steadily growing in popular favor and now the style has become so firmly established that no lady or girl can really call herself "up-to-date" in dress unless she is wearing one of them. The most beautiful necklaces come from Austria where they are hand made by skilled workmen who first string the beads in single strand then cleverly weave the strands together in different ways producing many varied handsome effects. The style shown here was the prettiest one we found among a dozen different samples submitted for our approval so we have purchased a large quantity of them and are going to distribute them free among our readers. It consists of three strands of pure white Austrian beads woven together so as to form a single strand which fastens with gold-plated clasp and in the center there is attached as a pendant a smaller double strand of beads decorated with a beautiful large imit. Amethyst, an imit. gold bead and a large pear-shaped bead at the extreme end. This necklace when unclasped is 15 inches in length while the lower part, or pendant, is 2½ inches in length. The real beauty of this handsome new necklace does not appear in our illustration but we hereby guarantee that every lady or girl who receives one from us on this offer will be more than delighted with it. Be sure to read the following free offer then send in your order today.

This Is "THE" Style This Season. Don't Fail To Send For One.

For One Subscription!

Send us only one new 15-months subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents or your own subscription, renewal or extension of present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all) and we will mail you free and postpaid this beautiful and stylish Austrian Bead Necklace exactly as above illustrated and described. Premium No. 679.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

"Virtue itself offends when coupled with forbidding manners."—Bishop Middleton.

In order to meet the demand for information made by COMFORT subscribers on the kindred subjects of Etiquette and Personal Appearance, this column will be devoted to them, and all questions will be answered, but no inquirer shall ask more than two questions each month. We would suggest to readers to cut this column out and paste it in a scrap book. Address letters to Etiquette Editor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Baby, Clifton Forge, Va.—It will be quite proper to send invitations and cards to the graduating exercises to your brother's friends though you have not met them. You can't get any better word than "farewell" for your valedictory. Use doesn't wear it out in the least. We can't suggest anything for your graduating gown because we don't know how much you want it to cost. We can advise, though, that the simpler it is the better.

Baby Doll, St. Joseph, Mo.—The mother should ask the young man to stay to supper and she should say when supper is ready. The daughter may act for the mother, but it is better for the mother to do it. The young man takes his leave at the proper hour, whether the old folks have gone to bed or not. We think every girl should know how to cook and keep house before she marries. The man she marries is expected to be able to attend to his business and she should be able to attend to hers.

Heartless, Richmond, Va.—Your receiving a letter from the young man whom you had only seen in a crowd and had not met which made you happier than you ever were in your life—your meeting him by appointment through the mails,—your afterwards meeting him elsewhere than at your own home, were all so unconventional that the young man probably wondered what kind of a girl you were and when you were so evidently delighted in his company he became frightened and concluded that it would be safer for him if he did not call and merely continued the acquaintance by mail so he could more easily get away when escape became necessary. As for caring for each other, you care so much more for him than he for you that you probably never will see him at your own home. Ask him to call formally, or you will discontinue the acquaintance and see what happens.

Violet, Greenback, Tenn.—It is proper enough for a girl to be the only one in a Sunday school class of eight boys, but we should think it would be rather embarrassing. It is not necessary to say anything when a gentleman takes a lady's arm to assist her to a train. It is no more than polite for a lady to ask a gentleman to share her umbrella with her in the rain, no matter what her age is, but if she needs all the umbrella, as often happens, she is entitled to it.

J. B., Jamestown, Tenn.—It will be quite proper to visit the sick friend if you are accompanied by a chaperon, either man or woman, who is also a friend of the sick man, as you should not take a stranger with you on such a visit.

Troubled, Sonora, Ark.—It is bad enough if your husband has grown cold and neglectful, and you should not make matters worse by accepting the "society of another young man to kill the trouble." We can assure you that instead of killing it it will make it a hundred times more alive. Accept no outside man's attentions until you are legally free to do so. Your first duty is to yourself and you must meet that whatever your husband may be, for he is your husband until the law releases you from your obligation to him.

Three, Shady Lane, W. Va.—If the man you had never met before was properly introduced it was proper for him to walk to your gate with you and you might have invited him into your house. If it were merely a pick-up acquaintance it was improper in every way. (2) The lady may do as she pleases about shaking hands with the gentleman who is introduced to her, and it is for her to offer the first hand, though usually if the man puts his hand out, as is often done, she should not ignore it. (3) Are you so anxious about the young man that you must write again to know why he doesn't answer your last letter? Why not let him be the anxious one? (4) Writing to unknown correspondents is permissible when both parties have mutual friends who endorse it, but not otherwise. Such practise is not to be encouraged.

Blue, Wilbur, Wash.—Something must be radically wrong with the husband or the wife when a young husband, married only seven months, can't prevent an old codger of sixty-three from winning his wife away from him. Whatever the wrong is, we don't know, but whatever it is, our advice to you is to let her go to her ancient admirer and for you to secure the legal redress made and provided in such cases. It may hurt, but you certainly can't have much respect or regard for a woman who has none for you, or for herself.

Hiawatha, Sharp's, Ind.—It not infrequently happens that a couple which has been divorced tries it again and the second time makes a success of married life. With such examples known to you, you might take him back, but from the tone of your letter we imagine you would break away again. However, it is better to try again the one you have tried than to try a new one and we advise that you try again. If the second trial is a failure, don't marry again. You are not built for it.

Anxious, Paris, Ky.—Many a girl engaged to one man has married another and possibly more happily than if she had married the first one. But you should have sent his engagement ring back to him when you married the other man. Now after nineteen months, it is somewhat embarrassing, we should think, but still, if your husband is a sensible man he will understand and think it is no more than right that you should return the ring. Under the circumstances you certainly have no use for it.

H. G., Tautle, Wash.—Don't be in such a raging hurry! How do you know the girl cares a continental for you and wants you to propose? Hadn't you better court her for a few minutes and find out whether she wants you or not? The way to keep up the acquaintance is to pay the usual attentions any gentleman pays to a lady and if she responds favorably, by and by, say, some time during the summer or fall, you pop the question, having in the mean time shown her that you are getting ready for business. It is plumb foolishness to meet a girl at a dance one evening and sling yourself at her the next time you meet her. If she has any sense she will refuse that kind of a man, and if you have any sense you won't want a girl who is so easy. So there you are.

Lonesome, Marvell, Iowa.—Don't you worry a minute about the young men not calling on you because you will not let them hug and kiss you. When a girl must do that to have young men callers we wonder what kind of wives those same young men expect to get from among the girls they call on. It is not altogether pleasant perhaps to be lonesome, but when girls pay young men for their calls by giving them kisses and hugs, it strikes us that both the young men and the girls should be enlightened and improved in their ideas of association. And still parents wonder why their daughters go wrong, and the world at large wonders why wives wander away from their husbands and husbands from their wives. One of the prime things you should teach the girls in your school is that self-respect which you have and which every good woman must have, or not be good.

M. M., Crow, Texas.—If you are engaged to him it is perfectly proper to permit him to kiss you, or you may kiss him if you want to, and you should want to if you love him right. We think it wise for you to wait until you are of age before you marry. You can be young and free only once and you should not be in too much of a hurry to be old and burdened with responsibility.

Discouraged, Plumb, Minn.—Your chief trouble is that you are thinking about yourself all the time instead of thinking about other people. Forget yourself and think of those in whose company you are—what they like, what you can do to please them, what interests them and similar things for their benefit, and before you know it you will be popular and everybody will love you for your unselfishness. Neither will you be nervous and have a feeling that you are under restraint, or are being criticized because you are not acting quite properly. You see you keep thinking about yourself all the time and naturally whatever you do is of the most importance to you and you forget everybody else and everybody else has to think about you or be left, so you are simply bound to be both uncomfortable and unpopular. Try forgetting yourself for a while.

C. G., Houstonville, N. C.—We can't suggest a name for a "babby" till we know what a babby is. If you mean a baby, we may say that you might have explained whether it was a Willie baby or a Susie baby. It's a long way from North Carolina to Maine and we can't guess that distance.

Inquirer, Mont Alto, Pa.—A lady may give a gentleman such jewelry as a scarf-pin, or some small silver article of use or ornament. An umbrella, cane, matchsafe, gloves, handkerchiefs and similar articles make appropriate gifts for men from young women to whom they may or may not be engaged. Something of use a little finer or nicer than he would buy for himself is ordinarily most appreciated.

Friend, Wheeler, Texas.—The late caller should not be asked to stay later. On the contrary he should be asked to go earlier. It is not nearly as bad manners to tell a caller it is time for him to go, as it is for him to stay so late that he must be told to go. It is quite proper for the lady to tell her escort that she appreciates his attention, but she should not do so in a formal way as though she were making a speech to him. Do it naturally and as you feel it. You are too young to "begin courtship." Wait until you are of age and then instead of your beginning it, the young man will, because it is his place to do that. In the mean time devote your spare hours to your writing, your grammar and your spelling. You need those ever so much more than you do etiquette or courtship.

Two Sisters, Palatka, Fla.—Etiquette is helpless in love affairs. All there is in the world of it couldn't make you love the young man who loves you, nor make the young man who loves your sister love you, nor make your sister love the young man you love. You'll have to settle it some other way than by the rules of etiquette.

P. T. C., Wakeville, Nevada.—There is no rule for how often you should buy a box of candy for your girl friend, but as you see her only on Saturday and Sunday, a small box each time would not be too much. It is all right to take the box along to the movies, though candy eating at theaters in the city is not the best form, except among girls at matinees. You may ask her if you may call, if she doesn't ask you, though as she lives at a private home other than her own probably it would be pleasanter to see her as you now do, either at the movies, or on your Sunday walks. It is a very good sign when you look at her to find her looking at you. It shows a common interest, at least. What has your duty got to do with continuing your very charming relations? You both like it and that's reason enough not to quit. What's the matter with you anyhow? Yes, it would be highly improper for you to attempt to put your arm around her—unless she didn't care. If you lose her, it will be entirely your fault.

Pink Rose, Portland, Oregon.—When the caller at your cousin's house says on leaving that he is very pleased to have met you, you may say that you were quite as well pleased as he. But don't say it as though you were reading it out of a book. Say it naturally and as though you really meant it.

Mischief, Belleville, Ohio.—We are glad you are of the "always tell mother" kind of girls and it's a pity they are not all of the same kind. The young man who talks to a girl about the "disrespect" shown to him when she accepts attention from other young fellows is the kind that no girl should respect. He has shown his yellow streak by condemning one of your girl friends and objecting to your associating with her and the first chance he gets when you are not around by going home from church with her. As you have stopped speaking to him, just let it continue that way indefinitely.

Two Girls, French Lick, Ind.—When a young fellow is all right and wishes to be attentive to a young lady she should appreciate his efforts and not snub him because she has plenty of others around. Some day she may not have the others and then she will be sorry enough she wasn't fair with this one. It is neither wise nor polite for a girl to be too independent. (2) Invitations to lunch or to entertainments of any kind from young men of good character should not be declined unless there is good excuse for it. Such invitations are forms of courtesy which should be respected. (3) We understand that Indiana spends more money on her public schools than any other state, but you two certainly never had a cent of it spent on your grammar and spelling.

Anxious, Blaine, Ida.—Because the young man stepped on your toes when dancing with you was no good reason why you should have declined to go to supper with him, and we think you owe him an apology, though just how you can explain to him, we do not know. If you judge men by the manner of their dancing, you are sure to make some serious mistakes in picking out good men.

The Athletic Corset

By Esther A. Cosse

ONE of the newest things women are making in these days is the athletic or summer corset. Every woman knows the trouble she has in procuring corsets to fit her, especially in the light weight, unless they are made to order, and then they cost a fabulous sum. Many women are not in a position to have these made to order, for one reason or another and go through the exercises feeling uncomfortable day in and day out.

One bright woman has solved the problem of this discomfort and has instituted a corset that women can make themselves if they would but take a short time, and each one can have them made to fit her own figure perfectly. Many dressmakers are now making them to go with each gown they make. Quite a new idea, isn't it?

It will require but one yard of material for these waists. Some would need muslin, some linen, others nainsook, depending entirely upon the person. The larger woman must use some material that is firm, and will not stretch or tear easily. The supporters can either be made at home, or procured from any notion store or counter for a small sum. Six four-inch supporters are needed. Many times these vary in color, depending upon the taste or ideas of person making the garment. If a colored waist is desired, procure some firm material, either in light weight or heavier. Quarter inch grommets can be purchased in a hardware store, which are used in the back to run in lacings through and half a dozen large hooks and eyes for the front are needed.

Take a plain waist pattern that will fit you and fit it to the waist, cutting off the upper portion just above the waistline, making it thirteen inches long when finished. Sew a whalebone, or an aluminum corset steel to the front, which has the bones in it and the hooks and eyes; three inches from that make a casing of the same material large enough to slip a bone in it; and three inches from that do the same. In fact these casings must be placed three inches apart for the large woman and four for the small woman. When you get one part made and are ready to make the back hammer in the grommets one inch apart. Many women do not care to have the bones so close together, but four inches is not too close, and women who are inclined to be stout need the support.

Two supporters are sewed very close to the front, one being right on the front steel and the next two inches from it. The third is sewed directly on the side. They are stitched on by machine. After bones are put in which are but seven inches long all the way around, stitch the casings by machine in order to keep the bones in place.

A woman can afford to have many of these and they are very comfortable, especially for the woman who stays around the house all the time, or for the one that is an athlete, as they are not injurious to such a person when she is exercising, even though it be ever so strenuous.

3-pc. Lace Bed Set

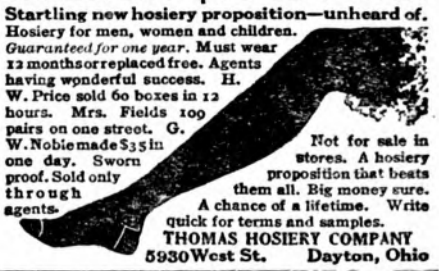
Beautiful Peacock Design

FREE TO LADIES SEND NO MONEY

Simply send name and address. We will send you, postpaid, 12 boxes of our famous White Cloverine Salve, also 12 beautiful Art Pictures 16 x 20 in. Give away one of these handsome pictures with every 25c box of Cloverine you sell, return us the $3 collected, and we will immediately send you a complete 3-piece Bed Set of Nottingham lace, beautiful Peacock design. The spread is 85 in. long and 60 in. wide. The pillow shams are 28 x 32 in. This is a very handsome set. You will be proud of it.

A doctor discovered Cloverine. Nothing finer for Cuts, Eczema, Piles, Colds, Catarrh. Millions using it. Everyone buys after you show pictures—usually cost $1 each in stores. Write today. Be first in your town.

EXTRA PREMIUM FREE—Beautiful Nottingham Lace Table Cover given as special inducement for quick work.



WILSON CHEMICAL CO. Dept. No. H. Tyrone, Pa.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off. —Advertisement.

AGENTS: $40 A WEEK

Startling new hosiery proposition—unheard of. Hosiery for men, women and children. Guaranteed for one year. Must wear 12 months or replaced free. Agents having wonderful success. H. W. Price sold 60 boxes in 12 hours. Mrs. Fields 109 pairs on one street. G. W. Noble made $35 in one day. Sworn proof. Sold only through agents.

Not for sale in stores. A hosiery proposition that beats them all. Big money sure. A chance of a lifetime. Write quick for terms and samples.

THOMAS HOSIERY COMPANY 5930 West St. Dayton, Ohio

RING AND BRACELET GIVEN

Free for selling 6 boxes Palmer's Wonder Salve at 25c a box. Great remedy for cuts, bruises, burns, scalds, eczema, piles. Sells fast. When sold send us $1.50 and we send you this Guaranteed Gold Shell Adjustable Bracelet and Ring FREE; or choice of other premiums from our catalog. We trust you. SEND NO MONEY.

HOWARD & CO., 40 Penn St., Palmyra, Pa.

Examine This FREE. Send us a postal card and we will send you a 50c box of Lilax Tablets, a mild, laxative, works positive and gently without pain, can be eaten, tastes like candy. Children like them. When you receive them send us 37c. If not satisfactory return at our expense free of cost to you.

A. FERAUD DRUG CO., GRANITE CITY, ILL.

QUICK RELIEF FOR PILES. Send postal with name and address for FREE sample tube Dr. Pettit's Quick Acting Pile Remedy. Sample will help you. Positive relief, lasting results. HOWARD BROS. CHEMICAL CO., Howard Bldg., BUFFALO, N. Y.

FREE BOOKLET: "Victory or snatched from the Jaws of Death," with every woman her own physician. Sagine Co., No. 6 East Chestnut Street Columbus, Ohio.

Do You Wish to be Thinner?

MY FREE BOOK TELLS HOW

Men and Women can Reduce Weight Rapidly

If you are over-stout, I want to help you. My very interesting book is yours for the asking, and with it I shall send you a free Proof Treatment. These will cost you nothing but a post-card or the stamp on your letter.

When sending this free package, I will tell you about the remarkable system of weight reduction whereby many persons who were over-fat have got rid of the useless, burdensome, unhealthy flesh, often at the rate of 1 pound daily.

When fat is overcome and the size of the body is normalized, there should be great improvement in health, figure and appearance. You may expect physical and mental efficiency to be wonderfully increased and years are likely to be added to your life-time.

You rarely see fat people who are very old and you find an unusual percentage of overstout persons are ailing, nervous and unhappy.

Women and Men—no matter how heavy you are or how many failures you have heretofore had in attempting weight reduction, here is a genuine method and you can reduce weight in your own home, under my directions. No starving, no strenuous exercising, no dangerous drugs; but wholesome treatment. Reduce as much as you like; then stop and keep your weight, figure, etc., perfect.

Don't throw this aside. Write today. Let me give you a truly joyous surprise. Address:

I Will Send You A Proof Treatment FREE

DR. F. THOMPSON BROUGH, 20 East 22d St., 9 A, New York City.

NOTE.—Dr. Brough is a Diplomated, Licentiate, Registered Physician of the State of New York and has a record of over 25 years' experience. His free Book and free Proof Treatment are worth getting.

6 MONTHS TO PAY

Made to Order

Again we lead in lowest prices and save you over half! Our nation-wide reputation as America's greatest price smashers is retained. Our tremendous buying power enabled us to buy world's finest fabrics at lowest prices known.

Save Half

Can you equal these prices? Regular $35 tailored-to-your-measure suits and overcoats only $15 from us; $45 values only $18, etc. These are only examples. Don't buy ready-made and pay double our price. Don't pay other tailors four times as much as we charge.

Just Off the Press

This season Stanley-Rogers styles and fabrics are more nifty, more handsome than ever before. Send now for gorgeous 1915 Spring and Summer Fashion Book—just off the press—74 latest, handsomest, exclusive styles.

$2 Monthly

Our remarkable credit plan beats every plan known. No security—no references—no red tape—no delay. Our terms and long credit make it easy for every man to dress up-to-date at lowest prices, no matter where he lives.

Don't Be Deceived

by houses advertising "made-to-measure" clothes. Don't let them fool you into believing that they are making your clothes tailor-made-to-your-measure. They send you hand-me-downs. They merely alter them here and there and charge you twice their value. That's why you're dissatisfied—no style, no fit, no class, no wear.

$1,000 Reward to anyone who proves that we do not make all our garments, no matter how low the price, absolutely tailor-made to your individual measurements. We do not sell ready-made garments—would not have them in the place. We give a legal guarantee of money back if you are not surprised, delighted with Stanley-Rogers garments. We treat our customers right.

FREE 1915 Spring and Summer Fashion Book
Over 70 Magnificent New Styles

Beat all past designs in beauty and class. The cream of the greatest mills. Styles are exclusive—cannot be duplicated. Write for free copy. Don't be without one.

WRITE Now for Special Offer Save big money—dress smarter—get better fit, better wear, better service. Write us now for most startling clothes facts, proof that we save you over half and free style catalog. Don't buy clothes until you hear from us. Send no money—all is free.

STANLEY-ROGERS COMPANY,
522 S. Clark St., Chicago. Ill.

HEISKELL'S

One application soothes and heals a rough pimply skin, and, when repeated, quickly effects a cure. Eczema, Erysipelas, Tetter, Ulcers and all skin diseases yield to its curative properties.
50c. a box. At all Druggists.
Send for free sample and book, "Health and Beauty."
JOHNSTON, HOLLOWAY & CO.,
1730 Spring Garden St., Phila., Pa.

OINTMENT

FREE WATCH RING and CHAIN

We positively give free a beautiful, gold-finished, engraved American made, stem wind, stem set watch, proper size, guaranteed five years. Also a beautiful ring set with three diamond cut brilliants for selling 20 jewelry articles at 10c each. Order jewelry today. When sold send $2, we will send watch, ring, chain.
ARDEN WATCH CO. Dept. 39 Chicago

To the Wife of One Who Drinks

I have an important confidential message for you. It will come in a plain envelope. How to conquer the liquor habit in 3 days and make home happy. Wonderful, safe, lasting, reliable, inexpensive method, guaranteed. Write to Edw. J. Woods, P 147, Station E, New York, N. Y. Show this to others.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Prevents hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

SONG POEMS WANTED for publication. You may write a big song hit! Experience unnecessary. Publication guaranteed if acceptable. Send us your verses or melodies today. Write for free valuable booklet. MARKS-GOLDSMITH CO., Dept. 38, Washington, D. C.

Gleason's Horse Book

520 Pages Fully Illustrated

All That is Worth Knowing About Training and Treating Horses

Two volumes in one

EVERY person who owns, handles or manages horses and all livestock keepers and breeders should have a copy of this great book because it tells about all the known methods of treating diseases of horses and other domestic animals—methods that are based upon the results of actual practice and not mere theory. It also contains Prof. Gleason's famous system of horse breaking, taming and training therefore, it is in reality two books in one and positively the most authoritative work of the kind ever published. There are in all 520 pages, many of them illustrated and dealing with the cause and cure of practically every disease known to horses, cattle, sheep, poultry, swine and dogs with the right remedies for each disease. Among the many subjects covered in Part 1 of this book are causes of diseases, how to observe diseases, treatment of diseases, Cerebro, Spinal Meningitis, distemper, dysentery, eye diseases, fistula, glands, internal diseases, kidney diseases, poisons, stomach and bowel diseases, worms and literally hundreds of other horse and live-stock ailments, which for lack of space we cannot enumerate here. In Part 2 of this book Prof. Gleason gives to the world for the first time his method of breaking and training horses and there are are also special chapters on how to buy, how to detect unsoundness, feeding, breeding, horse-shoeing, general care of horses, etc. Gleason's Horse Book is actually worth its weight in gold to every horse owner or breeder in the land, yet by special arrangement with the publishers we are enabled to give it away without cost to all who will accept the following

FREE OFFER. For a club of only two 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you Gleason's Complete Veterinary Hand Book and System of Horse Taming exactly as above described free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 443.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

VETERINARY INFORMATION

Subscribers are invited to write to this department asking for any information desired relative to the treatment of animal troubles. Questions will be answered in these columns free by an eminent veterinarian. Describe the trouble fully, sign full name and give your address; direct all correspondence to the Veterinary Department, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. Should any subscriber desire an immediate, special opinion on any question privately mailed, it may be had by sending one dollar with a letter asking such advice, addressing as above.

No atttention will be given any inquiry which lacks, the sender's full name and address, but we will print only initials if so requested.

POLL-EVIL.—I have an eight-year-old mare that has poll evil. Its first appearance was a boil just back of ears, which started last August. I let a veterinarian have her for nearly three months. He thought he could cure her by treatment, failing to cure, there is nothing to do but operate. An operation would cost fifty dollars. F. B.

A.—Take the mare to a graduate veterinarian who should operate for much less than the sum you mention. He will open up the abscess and remove the dead cartilage and other diseased tissues. Ask him to inject bismuth paste. He may also give hypodermic injections of bacterin.

SICK DOG.—I have a small French poodle dog that is sick. He does not eat or drink, cannot bark and is too weak to stand. He acts as if he had rheumatism. MRS. J. C.

A.—The dog will have died before this reaches you and without making an examination we should suspect that poison has caused the trouble, although similar symptoms are seen in the dumb form of rabies. A local graduate veterinarian should have been employed.

COUGH.—I have a mare six years old. She has a had a cough for three weeks. Her throat is not swollen. She does not run at the nose. L. A.

A.—See that the stable is kept clean and well ventilated to prevent formation of irritating gases. Wet all feed and avoid dusty feed. If possible have her teeth attended to by a veterinarian. If the cough then persists give half an ounce of Fowler's solution of arsenic night and morning until she is greatly improved, then gradually discontinue the medicine, taking at least a week to the work.

ABSCESS.—I have a five-year-old stallion in good condition and eats well. He has a swelling on the inside of left hind leg and is lame. The first time it came it did not break, but disappeared. That was two months ago. It swells and breaks now and is full of pus. The lump is about the size of a small water melon. R. G.

A.—The abscess may contain a snag, sliver or other foreign body which must be removed after opening freely. Then swab the lump once daily with tincture of iodine and inject a little of the tincture every other day. You must make sure, by a veterinary examination that farcy, or another contagious disease does not exist.

LAME MULE.—I have a mule that has been sick since early last spring. Her hind legs appear to be affected. She cannot stand still. She rests first one foot then the other. The leg she rests she holds out. From lying down so much she has shoe boils. One discharges all the time and the other appears to be getting smaller. I have fed sulphur. N. H. H.

A.—The mule should be supported in slings but the sores and shoe boils should be bathed two or three times a day with a lotion composed of one ounce of sugar of lead and six drams of sulphate of zinc in a pint of water. Label the bottle "poison" and shake well before use. Give the mule one dram of iodide of potash in drinking water night and morning for five consecutive days a week for several weeks. Keep the bowels active. Stop giving sulphur.

LAMENESS.—I have a dog ten months old, very healthy in every respect until the last six weeks. Her legs get stiff and seem painful. She holds them out at the side and whines pitifully. She eats heartily twice a day, won't eat any breakfast. MRS. E. R. H.

A.—The symptoms suggest cramps of the muscles, but it is possible that chorea (St. Vitus dance) is present. Feed only one small meal each evening. Do not allow any sweets or luxuries. Make her take abundant exercise every day. At time of attack give twenty grains of bromide of potash in a little water and repeat in twenty minutes if found necessary. Rub the leg briskly with druggist's soap liniment.

SWOLLEN JOINT.—I have a mare about eight years old. Two years ago she ran a thorn in front leg at the ankle and I pulled one thorn out, but she has a big ankle still and the ankle has little sores. She also has a knot on her back. A. A. H.

A.—Clip off the hair and wash the joint clean, then poultice with hot flaxseed meal for two or three days. Probe and remove any thorn or other foreign body. After discontinuing the poultices swab the sores daily with tincture of iodine and inject a little of the tincture every other day. In all such cases an educated veterinarian should make an examination lest glanders farcy be present.

COUGH.—I have a calf seven months old. It has a trouble that affects the throat, having a strangling or rattling in her throat all of the time. It has been difficult for her to suckle. She has a sleepy look in her eyes. M. E. L.

A.—It is evident that the throat is badly diseased, or the tongue may be affected also. In such a case tuberculosis is to be suspected, affecting the glands of the throat, and it is incurable. [illegible] tongue and throat ulcerated from another disease (necro-bacillosis) which also affects the gums. Ulcers should be scraped, lightly rubbed with a lunar caustic pencil and the mouth then swabbed daily with a two per cent solution of permanganate of potash. It is unlikely that the calf will recover. You might also rub the throat with strong liniment.

ROLLING COLT.—I have a young horse four years old broken to ride and drive. He kicks and rolls all night in his stall. MRS. J. A. C.

A.—Let the colt roll out-of-doors before stabling at night. Tie him in the stall so that rolling will be impossible. Use a double rope on the halter, tying him from each side of the manger.

THOROUGHPIN FISTULA.—I have a Percheron mare seven years old weighing seventeen hundred pounds. She slipped last spring, hurting one of her hind legs, which is in the form of a soft enlargement. It is not on the cord and is not on the bone, but on the thin part between the cord and hock joint. (2) I have a Percheron mare colt two years old, which had distemper last spring. A sore gathered and broke under her jaw. She seemed better and I turned her out to pasture. When she was brought home I found the sore had not healed. What can I do? M. C.

A.—Such bursal distensions tend to prove incurable. Line-firing and blistering by a qualified veterinarian would be the best treatment, especially if lameness is present. If you cannot have this done clip off the hair and swab with tincture of iodine every other day, but do not blister the skin severely. (2) A fistula of the part is present and probably due to retention of diseased tissues which will have to be removed by operation. A veterinarian should do the work. If you cannot employ one and do not mind the expense inject a little of a two per cent solution of protargol once daily.

STIFF JOINT.—I have a colt that was struck by lightning about six months ago. His ankle is swollen and stiff. He can hardly walk on it at times. W. D.

A.—Clip off the hair and blister the joint and tendons with a mixture of one part of powdered cantharides and three parts of lard. Rub the blister in for fifteen minutes then tie the colt so that he will be unable to lick or bite the blistered surface. Wash the blister off in three days and then apply a little lard daily, the colt to be given his liberty in a box stall. Do not blister in very cold weather and be careful not to let the colt stand in a cold draft after the blister has been washed off.

SUMMER ITICH.—My nine-year-old horse breaks out every summer in little spots. He bites and rubs until he becomes raw. K. R.

A.—Do not feed this horse green grass or corn in summer. Clip him early in spring. Feed oats, wheat bran and hay. Cover him with a light sheet when at work. Once daily sponge affected parts with a 1-100 solution of coal tar dip.

WORMS OF DOG.—I have a dog that suffers from worms. E. Mc.M.

A.—Starve the dog for eighteen hours or more and then give from half to two drams of freshly powdered kamala in a little cream or soup. The large dose if for a full grown dog of large breed. No Castor oil need be given after kamala, but the dose should be repeated in two days to two weeks. If the first dose has not effect it may be repeated inside of twenty-four hours.

SWEENY.—I have a horse that became sweenied in both shoulders about one year ago. T. O.

A.—Washing of the muscles of the shoulders often is due to chronic foot lameness. In such cases navicular disease commonly is present and that would require unnerving by an expert. Ringbone, sidebone, chronic corn and founder may have a similar effect. If there is no lameness the muscles may gradually grow in again if you massage the parts thoroughly three times a day and at night rub well with a mixture of one ounce ach of turpentine and aqua ammonia shaken up, in half a pint of oil. Stop for a few days when the liniment has caused soreness of the skin.

CARPITIS.—I have a mare; the right fore leg is swollen around the knee and has been that way since last June. It came on her while running. She does not limp, except when she runs. The joint appears stiff. W. J.

A.—There is deep seated inflammation of the joints and union has taken place among the bones (anchylosis.) Such a condition is incurable. Firing and blistering may reduce the enlargement and lessen the lameness a trifle.

THIN PONY.—I have a pony five years old that eats and drinks heartily, but is poor and will not fatten. Its hair looks bad. B. L. O.

A.—Have a veterinarian attend to the teeth as it is probable that molar milk tooth crowns or shells have lodged and interfere with mastication of feed; or sharp points, a split molar or diseased molar may be the cause of thin condition. If you are sure that the teeth are sound give worm medicine in the feed of oats and bran, twice daily, as so often prescribed here.

UNCLE SAM

REGISTERED U.S.PAT.OFF.

The BIGGEST ROOMIEST and BEST WORKSHIRT 50c

See what a wonder it is—how generous in size—how well it is made. Note the fine quality of the materials—and remember that every shirt is guaranteed fast colors—it won't fade. It's the handsomest, best looking shirt you've ever seen—and the strongest, best wearing shirt you've ever worn. And it costs only 50 cents.

10 Big Extra Value Features of the Uncle Sam Workshirt:

Extra wide—extra long sleeves with plackets; extra large armholes; extra long tails two extra large button pockets (government standard); extra big chest with extra deep front opening; extra big pearl buttons well sewed on by machine; extra wide cuffs. And the entire shirt is extra well sewn with double stitching throughout! All colors!

LOOK FOR UNCLE SAM LABEL IN NECKBAND

It's your guarantee that you're getting the greatest workshirt value in the world—the workshirt that gives you more satisfaction than you have ever found before.

If your dealer happens to be out of Uncle Sam Workshirts—send us your 50 cents and the dealer's name. We'll see that you are supplied.

SALANT & SALANT
71 Worth Street, New York
Largest Manufgrs. of Workshirts in the U.S.

So Dear a Foe

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7.)

to know the offender, a laudable resolution, but one not easy to carry out.

As this was Doris's first year out of school, she spent it studying Domestic Science at home, with her mother as teacher, but there was plenty of time left for the social life of the college, and Doris entered into it heartily. Perhaps the avoidance of her secret enemy, who so evidently chafed at his position, detracted nothing from the zest of the winter's amusements.

Day after day, Alfred Clennam and Doris Austin met; on the street where he bowed low, only to receive the cut direct; at parties, socials, or balls where he always asked and received an introduction, which was acknowledged with such freezing coldness that he never dared venture to enter into conversation with her; merry and friendly with others, she became an iceberg at his approach. His early admiration had grown into a great and absorbing passion, which Doris felt but repudiated even in her thoughts. But scorned and ill-treated as he was, he seemed determined to ignore defeat. He was a lover and a bold one, even though the case seemed hopeless.

He finally began a regular, though one-sided correspondence with the woman of his dreams. Every Tuesday morning brought her an ardent, tender, though not effusive missive. He wrote that he hoped he would not increase her hatred but he preferred even that to indifference.

Doris read the first letter, but as his initial misdemeanor remained unaccounted for, she began sending them back unopened. As they still came with undeviating regularity, she simply threw them into the fire. It seemed all one to the writer.

So the months passed away. Doris could not help hearing, on all sides, praises of the obnoxious disturber of her peace. It seemed that to all but her, he was the ideal of a brilliant, versatile, and agreeable college man. He was admired by the faculty for his scholarship; his prowess on the athletic field made him the idol of the undergraduate; no program was complete without his eloquence.

Gradually there grew up in Doris a hurt feeling that replaced the anger she had cherished so long. The weekly notes were always read now and often tears were shed over them. She still burned them and still snubbed their author; but she had grown to believe that there might be a possible explanation, though none occurred to her.

Commencement week was at hand. Doris, for some reason unacknowledged to herself, had refused all invitations for those last few days.

Tuesday night a party was to be given by a neighbor. Doris had promised to go if she might run across alone.

That afternoon, she received another letter from Alfred Clennam:

"My darling:

"I have almost given up all hopes of ever calling you that, dear one; but so I cherish you in my heart. Some day, you may learn all I would tell you if I could, and then, will your heart turn towards me, or will you still be indifferent and cold? I cannot believe in your indifference, sweetheart. I cannot think I could love you so if there were no special affinity between us.

"On my knees, I beg you to let me sun myself in your occasional presence, to give me an opportunity of overcoming your distrust of me, even if I fail to win the sole object of my present and future striving, your love.

"O love, your lover, ALFRED CLENNAM."

Doris read it with the perturbation these notes ever awakened, then again with an undefined pain, a vague longing. Finally, she unlocked a small desk and placed it within.

There would be no burnt offering today.

The evening's party was large and jolly. Doris gave herself up to the spirit of gaiety that prevailed, and when she drew No. 13 as the number for her partner for the evening, she laughingly exclaimed to those about her: "I know that means Pilcher," alluding to a bore who was the pet aversion of every girl in their crowd.

In a moment, however, Alfred Clennam approached and cried imploringly: "Has any one here got No. 13?"

"There!" cried Eleanor Douglas, "if that isn't the irony of fate! Doris, think of your No. 13 drawing the most popular man in college!"

The most popular man in college bowed. "Thank you, Miss Douglas," said he. "Since you think so well of me, may I not ask you to introduce me to my fair partner?"

Doris, aside, was vainly trying to exchange cards with Mabel Fairall, who naturally refused, as her sweetheart had just claimed her with the right number.

Before she could speak to any one else, the merry introduction was taking place. It was gravely acknowledged on both sides. With outward ease but much inward trepidation, Alfred offered his arm. Doris, determined to retain her dignity, accepted it and they walked out to their allotted places, which chanced to be in a cozy corner of the veranda.

To the relief of both, the other chairs were already occupied by Eleanor Douglas and Jerrold Benson, a fellow student.

Eleanor greeted them laughingly. "Well, did you two get acquainted on the way out here? You know," she added to Jerrold, "I just introduced them a moment ago."

"Ha, ha!" laughed Jerrold. "That reminds me of the day when you really did meet for the first time. The day after you got home, wasn't it, Miss Austin? Trust old Clennam to lose no time!"

Doris's heart gave a jump. Was it of dismay or of hope?

Alfred had no doubt as to his feelings. If Jerrold would only go on! He mentally uttered a prayer. He tried to will him to proceed.

Nell to the rescue.

"What is it?" looking at each expressive countenance. "There is more here than meets the eye. I don't intend to be the only one out in the cold; so, Mr. Jerrold, you can just tell me all about it."

Accented by Jerrold's laughter, Nell's exclamations, Doris's changing color, and Alfred's unconcealed joy, the tale was told; how Alfred had been bidden as a part of his fraternity initiation, immediately to join the first woman he met and accompany her home; the glee of the boys who were on the watch; the administration, that night, of the oath of secrecy as to what he had done, made more iron-clad because of his frantic pleadings to be excused from taking it; all was divulged.

"By the way," he ended, turning to Doris, "how did he ever fix it up? I remember he said, that night that you were furious and would never forgive him."

Doris gasped for breath. Alfred leaned imploringly towards her, happy yet fearful. She glanced up at him; a slow flush beautified the sweet face. A little smile, the first she had ever given him, trembled on her lips, as she replied:

"Why—you—see—one of the boys told me all about it."

AGENTS: $6 PER DAY AND UP

MEN AND WOMEN

Out of work? Got a lot of spare time? Handling a poor line now? We want an active man or woman in each town to open an agency for our famous

NON-ALCOHOLIC FOOD FLAVORS

Colors, Soaps, Perfumes, Toilet Preparations, etc. Over 100 different varieties. Flavors put up in tubes, not bottles. Fast sellers, steady repeaters. Every home a customer. Commissions paid in real money—$4, $6, $8, $10 a day. Little or no capital required. Experience unnecessary. Full instructions for beginners. Fine light sample case furnished. Write for full particulars

ACT QUICK WRITE TO-DAY

FREE

AMERICAN PRODUCTS CO., 33 Third Street, Cincinnati, O.

Made $42.50 in 8 hours

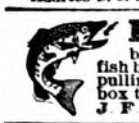
writes Engesser of Oregon. Hundreds are making big money with the new plateless DAYDARK POST CARD MACHINE 3 cards a minute, complete—3 size cards. Experience unnecessary. Write for particulars and FREE TRIAL offer now.

Daydark Specialty Co., Dept. 6 St. Louis, Mo.

10 days FREE TRIAL

AGENTS 200% PROFIT

Handy, Automatic HAME FASTENER



Do away with old hame strap. Horse owners and teamsters wild about them. Fasten instantly with gloves on. Outwear the harness. Money back if not satisfactory. Write today for confidential terms to agents.

F. Thomas Mfg. Co., 4730 Rome St., Dayton, Ohio

ASTHMA CURED Before You Pay

FREE TRIAL I will send any sufferer a $1.00 bottle of LANE'S REMEDY on By mail prepaid. If it cures, send me $1. If it does not, don't send me a cent.

Address D. J. LANE, 225 Lane Building, St. Marys, Kansas.

Fish Bite like hungry wolves any season, if you bait with Magic-Fish-Lure. Best fish bait ever discovered. Keeps you busy pulling them out. Write to-day and get a box to help introduce it. Agents wanted.

J. F. Gregory, Dept. 13 St. Louis, Mo

LOTS OF MAIL If you want to get lots of mail from different firms—Send us your name and address—and we will put your name in our Directory. And we will also send you at once, 12 sample Cards, 14 fine Pictures, and a large assortment of curious and wonderful reading matter. Write today, send 10 cents, coin or stamps for postage; and you will get lots of mail—and the big lot of presents besides. Williams & Co. 326 Madison St., Chicago

FREE  Violin Outfit for selling 20 pictures or 20 pkgs. post cards at 10c. Order your choice.

GATES MFG. CO. Dept. 725 Chicago

EASY TO EARN This Swell Suit

—Just a little work one night after supper. Big profits on two or three suits you sell pay for yours. Dead easy. We show you how. You can't fail. Even if you can't be our agent, get your own suit at confidential wholesale price. Write quick for heavy pattern book—60 new nobby samples—30 stunning styles—self measuring blanks—craft tapemeasure—special inside prices, etc. Easy to take measures. You can't make a mistake.

MAKE $5 AN HOUR easy after supper every night just by visiting your friends, showing your elegant suit and taking their orders. Be the swellest dresser in town. Our clothes beat 'em all. Lowest prices, perfect fit guaranteed. Made to your exact measure and delivered free to you anywhere. Send no money—just your name and address. Get your pencil—write quick—a postal will do.

AMERICAN WOOLEN MILLS CO., Dept 307 CHICAGO

Rescue for RHEUMATISM

Thousands are being relieved by the wonderful Rescue Foot Drafts. All ages, all conditions, all durations of disease. So confident are we that Rescue Foot Drafts will relieve you of your Rheumatism and restore you to old time vigor that we will send you a

$1.00 PAIR FREE

Apply them according to our simple instructions and directions. If they help you, send us $1, in payment, otherwise they cost you nothing. You are the judge. Write for free pair today. Our interesting, illustrated book on the treatment of Rheumatism sent you free upon request. Write today.

Sterling Institute, Dept. 4, Kalamazoo, Michigan

$200 A MONTH operating the NEW MODEL COMBINATION CAMERA. It takes and instantly develops eleven entirely different styles of pictures, including two sizes and four styles PAPER POST CARDS, six styles of Tintype Pictures, and Brooch Pictures. Requires no experience whatever. Everybody wants pictures. Five hundred per cent. profit. THE WORLD'S BIGGEST MONEY-MAKER. Small investment secures complete outfit, including Camera, Tripod, and material for 150 pictures. Make money the first day no matter where you live or what you are doing. WE TRUST YOU. Write today for free information, including letters from prosperous operators everywhere.

J. B. FERRIS, 627 W. 43d St., Dept. 3, New York

FREE 1915 Calendar and 20 Post Cards

We will send you 20 of the prettiest season post cards you ever saw. Your choice of Greetings, Sentimentals, Easter, etc., if you will cut this out and send it to us with 10 cents to pay postage and mailing, and say you will show them to your friends. If you wish we will put your name in our POST CARD EXCHANGE FREE on request. Be sure to state in your letter if you wish your name inserted. By entering your name in our Exchange column, you will get post cards, sample magazines and other mail matter from all over the world. You also get FREE sample copies of our interesting weekly magazine Address

FAMILY STORY PAPER, 24 Vandewater Street, New York City

AGENTS Let us show you the best paying canvassing business in the United States. Write today to the largest makers of transparent handled knives and razors for proof. A postal card will do.

$1500 a Year Sure

NOVELTY CUTLERY CO., 76 Bar St., CANTON, OHIO

TOBACCO HABIT PAY WHEN CURED. Harmless Home Treatment. Write for prices and terms. King Ni-Ko System, Desk 4, Wichita, Kansas.

FREE

Big lever action air rifle for selling either 20 Pictures or 20 pkgs. Post Cards at 10c. Gates Mfg. Co. Dept 925 Chicago

FREE We will send you this beautiful GOLD PLATED RING absolutely Free if you will send us the names of five of your neighbors and 10 cents to pay postage, etc. GEM CITY SUPPLY CO., Quincy, Illinois

ECZEMA

IS CURABLE Write me today and I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing guaranteed treatment that will prove it. Stops the itching and heals permanently. DR. CANNADAY, 108 Park Square, SEDALIA, MISSOURI.

UNCLE CHARLIE'S

Poems and Story Book, cloth bound, 50 cents each. Song Book 30 cents. Address UNCLE CHARLIE, care Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

50 European War POST CARDS FREE!

REPRODUCED in natural colors from actual photographs depicting the excitement, the horrors, the pathos, the awful devastation and suffering attending the greatest, most stupendous armed conflict the world has ever known. In spite of the strict rules laid down by the different nations at war forbidding correspondents or photographers to approach anywhere near the firing lines, yet heroes with the camera have got in their daring work and the result is a series of startling photographs of actual scenes taken in the European War Zone, reproduced in post-card form and now placed on sale for the first time in this country. In this wonderful instructive, interesting and exciting set of views are scenes of French and British Infantry, Artillery and Cavalry in action, Refugees fleeing from stricken Belgian towns, desolate ruins of French and Belgian towns after German bombardment, Red Cross workers caring for the wounded, havoc wrought by Zeppelin bomb explosions, allies under fire in the trenches, British troops including Scotch Highlanders and England's famous "Indian" regiments, behind the German firing lines, German dirigibles, charges of German infantry, German prisoners on their way to Paris, Algerian "Fire-Eaters" of the French Army, Russian reservists off to join the Russian troops, the Czar reviewing his soldiers at the front, sick and wounded returning home, and many other views equally as interesting and all taken with the camera so that they are absolutely true and authentic in every detail. As these photographs were published very recently only a few of them have yet appeared in the newspapers and magazines, however by special arrangement with the publisher we can now offer free to COMFORT'S readers the complete set of fifty amazing war pictures, guaranteed to be exactly as described and every one of them reproduced from an actual photograph taken on the scene.

Offer No. 717 A For one new 15-month subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents, we will send you this set of 50 European War Views, free and postpaid.

Offer No. 717 B For your own subscription or renewal or extension of your present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all) we will send you the complete set free and postpaid. Premium No. 717.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

A Corner for Boys

By Uncle John

Health and Endurance

HEALTH and endurance are the prime requisites of the human body, and have more to do with our happiness here on earth than any other qualities I know of. To the person fortunate enough to possess a strong and virile body, the mere physical or animal state of existence is natural, happy and unconscious. Every organ works smoothly and without effort; every function is performed as easily as seeing or breathing. Such a person has nothing to fret about in the way of pains or aches or chronic ills, or dull feeling or bad luck or poor prospects. He can devote all his mind, all his interest and enthusiasm, all the force and strength of his entire body to whatever he happens to have in hand. If it is play, his enjoyment will be keen; if it is work, his interest will be intense. He will not only have ambition, but the necessary driving force back of it; he will possess not only a strong desire to achieve and conquer but the will power and initiative to make a start, and the sustained courage and fine lasting qualities that will enable him to go the full distance. Success will not be his portion at the end of every race, but a loss will only make him try harder next time. He will be as eager for the prize as any contestant, but the mere striving will be almost if not quite as pleasurable as the actual winning, for when one has run his very best over every inch of the course there is an inner sense of victory which temporary defeat cannot dampen. Everyone admires the lad who does his best, even those whom he may consider enemies.

BOY SCOUT UNIFORM.

Now the happy being I am talking about is not a fictitious boy from the pages of a story book; it is you, the ordinary American lad with some spare time and worlds of ambition. All the advantages I have pictured can and should be part of your life. They are co-existent with health and endurance. It may be that you are not endowed with a superb physique, but it is almost certain that the means to attain one is within your grasp. To help you to realize this fact and to put you in touch with truths that will enable you to gain both health and endurance is the purpose of this article. Likewise, I might say that nearly all the big juvenile organizations and especially the great world movement known as the Boy Scouts have this same aim as the chief purpose of their existence. Does not this prove how vitally important the leading teachers and educators consider the subject of bodily health and efficiency? They have reduced it to a definite science, have dispelled many false notions, and have proved beyond all doubt that regular play and wholesome amusement are indispensable to any proper scheme of development for boys. In short, to gain health and endurance, all you have to do is to have the right kind of amusement and recreation.

You need not tie down to a hard and fast system of training like a college athlete conditioning for a certain event. For growing boys, I think anything like a rigid routine is wrong. To get the greatest possible benefit from exercise, you must enjoy it. It should be spontaneous and natural like the playing of a kitten or the rolling about of a baby. The nearest approach to this and at the same time a very beneficial practise is friendly wrestling or good-natured mauling with three or four on each side. Of course, you will not indulge in this sort of play with your good clothes on or indoors. The Boy Scout uniform is just the thing for rough usage.

While I think of it, I will mention that every race under the sun and every species of animal has some sort of play. It seems to be as necessary and useful as it is enjoyable.

Because human beings are endowed with brains and have the power to think and plan, they have broken away from the primitive play habit and have substituted therefor certain muscle flexing motions called exercises. Well enough in their way, they are sometimes at fault because certain parts are over developed at the expense of others. For the most of us, big, knotty muscles are not necessary or even desirable. The strong boy is not always healthy, but the healthy boy is always strong. What you want is a sound, symmetrical body that can stand the strain when called upon for mental or physical exertion, and bodily strength and health are as necessary for brain work as for bodily labor.

I would like to tell you about the many different forms of exercise I have experimented with but space forbids it. For general development, I recommend the chart of setting up exercises shown on page 220 of the Boy Scouts' Handbook. Go through them every morning right after rising, before an open window. They will start your circulation properly for the day and if faithfully persisted in for years will keep your body supple and strong. But the hard part of it all is not the time or strength required to go through the motions, but the will power to keep at it day after day. The faithful persistence part of the scheme is the stumbling block for ninety out of a hundred. After a few days, enthusiasm dies down, the novelty of the thing is worn off and we are apt to look for a newer and more enjoyable sport. Quite a few will give up in disgust because they cannot notice any immediate improvement; some will lazily admit that life is too short for such things; some will lay off for a few days because of colds or muscle soreness and in the interim promptly forget the whole business, but the vast majority will fag out and lie down on the job because they are just naturally weak and lack the backbone and persistence necessary to make a success of any worth while enterprise. The average man of today, looking back over the mistakes and illusions of his past life knows that the reason he is still only an average man is because he failed to persevere in his good resolutions. Many a time he started out full of strength and ambition and courage, but somehow, he faltered and quit trying and started to drift. If he could live his life over again, he would not need any urging to make him give a large part of his time and attention to building up health and endurance. He knows now that upon the solid foundation of a strong, capable body, he could reasonably hope to build a successful career and that without it his chances narrow down to a vanishing point.

No doubt you have often heard it said that the human body is nothing more or less than a wonderful machine; but do you really take as good care of it as you would of a fine automobile? Do you realize that it is the vehicle that is going to carry you every inch of the road of life? Have you ever tried to study its needs or to figure out what is good for it or what is bad? It doesn't take great wisdom to do this. Common sense and perseverance are all that are necessary.

Be careful lest your body become the master. If you were driving a car and it started to skid, surely you would grasp the steerwheel and sit tight. Why not do the same with that precious machine of flesh and blood. It is full of appetites and passions and weaknesses that are always trying to get the upper hand. You cannot gain health and endurance if you violate natural laws. Nature is a stern master and never forgives. It is silly to try to cheat Her.

Take for instance the tobacco habit. You know full well it is bad and yet you may try to convince yourself that the little bit of harm it will do in your case will not matter much after all. What would you think of a man who would tie two fingers tightly together and explain the foolish act by saying that he could manage fairly well even with this handicap? This is just exactly what the tobacco user does. He takes an unnecessary burden upon himself. He ruthlessly squanders his vital force. He weakens his heart, brain, stomach and nerves and more important than all, his will power. One bad habit leads to another. The youthful tobacco user instead of being tough and hard as he fondly imagines, is in reality a coward and a weakling and in a measure a traitor to himself, his school or club and to society in general. The base of the brain is the source of all our physical power. It is the reservoir of human energy. A little bit of it is used up every time we move a muscle or talk or even breathe. Tobacco strikes directly at this precious vital spot and deadens it and robs us of a certain amount of life. Only a certain amount of this nervous energy exists at one time and it can be poured out of us like water out of a dish. Without it we would be exhausted, nerveless, flabby, and more like a piece of putty than a human being. Every chew or smoke you indulge in helps to put you in that condition. Beware of the cigarette. It is a little paper covered life destroyer. It strikes gentle blows but keeps at it until you are down and out. The first one will make you cough and gulp and sneeze and perhaps cause sickness. This is the warning kindly nature gives. Lucky is the boy who will obey it, for if he doesn't the habit may take hold of him and that is just the same as if he were inoculated with the virus of some disease.

For a growing boy or girl coffee and tea are nearly as bad as tobacco, but unfortunately most parents do not know it, and permit their children to drink tea or coffee or both.

The injurious effects of intoxicating liquors, even of the weaker kinds and though taken in small quantities, as a beverage, are so well and generally known that it is hardly necessary for us to say that no growing boy should ever taste alcoholic drink—neither should any grown man or woman—but it is especially ruinous to the young.

By all means give up the habits that you have to hide. In a week you will have forgotten all about them and will find yourself taking interest in better and nobler things. Your friends will notice the change and will wonder what has come over you. Your ambition and strength and knowledge will grow and you will soon begin to realize the benefit of health and endurance and plan to increase your share of the same.

Proper breathing should be the first thing to interest you. Remember your lungs reach to your waist-line and were made to be used all the way down. Don't merely sip the air. Take deep draughts of it. It is the great life giver. You could live for weeks without food, but not a minute without air. It is the only thing on earth that you cannot get too much of. Breathe through the nose, keeping the mouth closed, and if you find this difficult it is a sure indication that you have catarrh, adenoids or other disease that needs medical or surgical treatment, and a doctor should be consulted at once. It is beneficial to practise deep breathing for a few minutes each day, but this is not enough. Keep at it until your breathing deeply becomes a habit. The first requisite of deep breathing is an erect carriage. Hold your body straight, hips slightly forward, shoulders back.

SHOE ADOPTED BY THE SCOUTS.

To insure proper carriage you must see to it that your shoes are comfortable and easy. The Boy Scouts know the importance of right foot wear on hikes and marches and have officially the shoe shown herewith.

Next to breathing in importance comes eating. A growing boy needs plenty of wholesome food three times a day, but he must chew it well. Digestion begins in the mouth. Food gulped down is of little use and may cause serious trouble. Everything must be chewed fine and thoroughly mixed with saliva to be properly digested.

To be able to chew your food right you must have sound teeth. In late years doctors have brought to light facts which tend to show that bad teeth cause many diseases which they were thought formerly to be not connected with. Particles of food which remain in the crevices between the teeth decay and form an acid which eats away part of the tooth and causes pain and distress. Brush your teeth and rinse your mouth after every meal. Never pick the teeth with a pin or any metal point, as it punctures the enamel and starts decay. Use a wooden toothpick or a quill or a piece of thread.

As our eyes are in use every waking minute we cannot be too careful of them. We quote the following from the Boy Scouts' Handbook, which every boy should have.

"Most troubles with the eyes come from eye strain. Styes and red lids are usually due to this cause. See how foolish, therefore, it is to treat these conditions as causes, when really they are only the result of something else. Of course there are exceptions. Sometimes wild hairs and skin disease affect the eyes. Eye strain should be removed by wearing well-fitting glasses and then these other conditions will disappear. If constant headache is experienced or the eyes itch or become tired easily, there is possibly eye strain.

"One way to test the eye is for vision. Place the following letters fifteen feet from you. If you cannot read them clearly with both eyes and with each eye separately, consult a first-class oculist.

C L V F
E A C F D L
D V C L A E O T

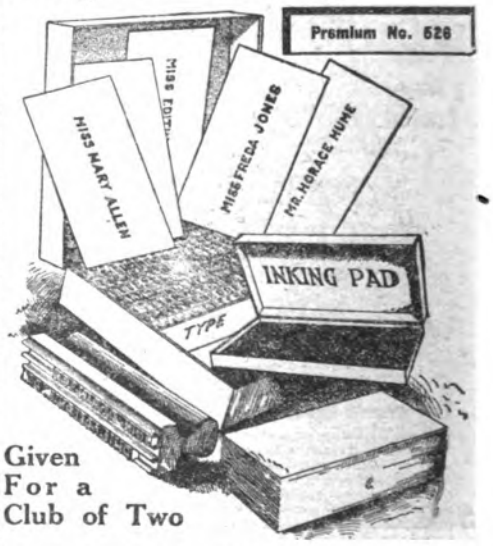
"Never buy eye-glasses unless fitted by an expert. Such glasses should be worn in proper relation to the eyes. They should not be permitted to slide forward on the nose or tilt. They may need to be changed often as the eyes grow better.

"For reading, a good, steady light is needed. Never sit in front of a window facing it to read. Always have the light come from the rear and over the left shoulder preferably. The book should be held on a level with the face and not too close. Sit erect. Reading when lying down or by the light of a fire is unwise."

Of course this article would not be complete without some mention of bodily cleanliness. We really breathe through our skin for it contains myriads of little mouths called pores. These pores also exhude or throw off the waste matter of the circulation, which amounts to two pounds every day and is rank poison. When the poison has reached the surface of the skin, nature has done her part and it is up to us to wash it off. If we fail to do this the pores will become clogged, the effete matter will be absorbed back into the system and many evils will result. Bathing daily is a valuable habit. Here is a method anyone can try. Have a common basin full of water in a tub all night. After your quarter hour of exercising, which is taken immediately upon rising, strip and stand in the tub, one foot on each side of the basin. Beginning at the feet wet the entire body, sopping the water on with the bare hands or with a rubber sponge. As soon as the body is wet step out and dry with a coarse towel. Bring your skin to a red glow by stiff rubbing or by slapping. Dress quickly and you will feel fine. The bath should be taken in a fairly warm room and away from drafts. Besides this a soap and water scrub once or twice a week will keep you in fine shape. Keeping the skin active is the way to prevent colds and more to the point, it will give you a zest for outdoor play. The latter is essential to the upbuilding of a strong healthy body. The Boy Scouts are so earnestly in favor of it that they have been called a play organization. I think it is a pretty good name too for their chief object is to teach boys clean, beneficial play, for well the leaders know that it is the chief factor in bringing about health and endurance, without which a boy cannot be happy or successful or of much use in the world.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me. Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 923-A Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.



X-RAY KATHODOSCOPE. Latest curiosity. Everybody wants it; tells the time on watch through cloth. Apparently see best girl, fellow, objects through cloth, wood or stone, any distance, all climates; lasts lifetime; always ready for use. Price, 25 cents. Stamps or Silver. KATHOS MFG. CO., 124 E. 25th St., N. Y. City.

Old-Coins WANTED, $1 to $500 paid for hundreds of coins dated before 1894. Send 10c for our Ill. Coin Value Book. It may mean your fortune. OLD COIN CO., 302 EAST 61st ST., CHICAGO

$80 in C. S. A. Money sent for $1. I guarantee what I handle are not reprints of Confederate Money. FRANK S. SHILLING, NAVARRE, OHIO.

Complete Printing Outfit

Given For a Club of Two

ALMOST everybody has use for a good printing outfit like the one illustrated above. The boys and girls get lots of pleasure and valuable instruction from it because it is great fun to print cards, address envelopes etc. and they also learn a great deal about the art of composition, type setting, correct use of capitals, abbreviations, etc. This outfit is also just what every woman needs with which to mark her linen with indelible ink. It consists of a six-font set of rubber type, or in other words, six of each of the letters in the alphabet with the exception of some more important letters which have eight and a few others only four such as Q, X and other letters which are not used so often. This Outfit also contains a double set of numerals, commas, periods, slugs (spaces to separate words)—in all about two hundred separate pieces of type and there is a two-line type holder, a pair of nickel pinchers (to pick up the type with) and an everlasting ink pad in a metal case. We also send you a wooden type case and complete instructions how to set type, how to print, etc. We will give you this complete printing outfit exactly as described if you will accept the following

Club Offer. For a club of only two 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this fine printing outfit free by Parcel Post prepaid. (Premium No. 526.)

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

A SURPRISE FOR THIN WOMEN

Thousands of thin women have been getting wonderful results from a treatment which is 15 years old and gaining in popularity every day—

It has not cost them a penny to try it, nor will it you.

You will be surprised and delighted at the change in your appearance when the treatment has produced its effect. It has been astonishing how little additional flesh and bust development it has required to make many of our thin patrons attractive—even fascinating. They tell us they seem to be attracting a flattering attention which they never enjoyed and had ceased to expect.

Just write today saying "Send me your free treatment." We will immediately send, in a plain wrapper, sufficient Dr. Whitney's Nerve & Flesh Builder to give you the additional flesh that will add so much to your attractiveness. In some cases the trial alone has been all that was needed.

No. 1 is the general flesh builder. No. 8 is for giving development to the bust alone without enlarging other parts of the body. Say which one you prefer.

Write us today, before this generous offer is withdrawn, and get your free treatment in a plain wrapper by return mail. C. L. Jones Co., 32 C, Friend Bldg., Elmira, N. Y.

$5. Prize Package 10c This big Game and Fun Package will amuse the whole family all winter. 100 Great Games, Checkers, Chess, Dominos, Fox and Geese, 9 Men Morris, Authors, Star Puzzle, Chinese Puzzle, 13 Puzzle, $5 Prize Puzzle, Roman Cross Puzzle, 7 Wonders of World,

Marriage Looking Glass, Husband's and Wife's Commandments, 22 Popular Songs, 19 Comic Cards, 48 Magic Tricks, 70 Puzzles, 300 Jokes and Riddles, 12 Love Letters, 178 Ways to Flirt, How to Tell Fortunes, How to Make Others Obey You, &c., ALL the above and 500 other things to amuse, 10 CENTS, postpaid. Address STAR CO., 39 Clinton St., CHICAGO.

42 PIECE DINNER SET FREE This beautiful set of exquisite design has your initial in gold on every piece. 42 pieces in all, including platters, vegetable dishes, etc., full size, for family use. Send No Money, just name and address and we will send 20 sets of our new art pictures to distribute on a special 25c offer. Send us money collected and for your trouble we will send you THIS GRAND 42 PIECE DINNER SET. Write today. M. O. SEITZ, 3 N 5 CHICAGO, ILL.

LOVERS' BUDGET FREE To get acquainted with you, we will send our great 'LOVERS' BUDGET,' consisting of—12 Love Letters, 14 Flirtation Signals, 7 Fortune Telling Secrets, 10 Funny Readings, 1 New Gypsy Fortune Teller, 12 Flirtation Cards, 11 Parlor Pastimes, 250 Jokes & Riddles, 73 Toasts, 40 Amusing Experiments in Magic, 6 Comic Poetry, also bargain sheets of solid gold filled rings, for only 10c to help pay advertising. THE AUCTION CO., DEPT. 326 ATTLEBORO, MASS.

FREE — 14k GOLD Filled with secret catch in the latest and most attractive design, given for selling only 7 pkgs. beautiful post cards. Send for them at once. Address A. D. HART, 614 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Powerful TELESCOPE and CAMERA BOTH FREE for distributing only 8 sets of art pictures on new plan of 25c per set. Easy. Write

ROBERT CURRIER, Manager, Dept. R 19, CHICAGO

SharpenYourOwnRazor It's easy with this Perforated Hone. Holes prevent "wire-edge"—no skill needed. Try it 30 days Free. If it makes your old razor shave like new send 50c. PERFORATED HONE CO., Sta. C. HAVERHILL, MASS.

Ostrich Plumes

16 Inches Long And 6 Inches Wide

Positively Guaranteed as to Workmanship, Quality and Color

Given For A Club Of Six!

THESE beautiful Ostrich Plumes are of the highest quality and are guaranteed for brilliancy and permanence of color. They are just what every lady wants for the upright trimmings now in vogue as they have thick, strong flues and a large full, graceful, French head with the latest fashionable flat curl. Each plume is a full 16 inches in length and over 6 inches in width and made of the best African male stock, will last for years and always look well. We can furnish these plumes in colors of either Black or White and be sure to mention color wanted when ordering.

Club Offer. For a club of only six 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, or three 3-year subscriptions at 50 cents each, we will send you one of these handsome Ostrich Plumes free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 698.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

A Thorn Among Roses

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 14.)

me your wife and let me hereafter share your honor? yea, more than that, let me teach you to love me during the remainder of your life and mine?"

CHAPTER XVI.

ALICE TO THE RESCUE.

The man had stood with bowed head and corrugated brow during his companion's passionate appeal.

But when she ceased, he stood erect and faced her, searching her thin, wan countenance with keen, questioning eyes.

"Imogen," he began, in a tone of grave earnestness, "do you know anything about those missing documents?"

She started from him as if he had struck her a stinging blow with a lash.

She was white to her lips and quivering in every limb.

"Oh!" she cried, in a voice of agony, "can you think of nothing but those papers?

"No; naturally they occupy the chief place in my thoughts at this time," he quietly returned. "Do you know anything about them?"

"And if I do?" she questioned, bending closer to him and breathlessly awaiting his reply.

"Then you must tell me what you know," he sternly replied. "I command you—tell me!"

"I have asked you a question—answer you me," she curtly retorted.

"Very well; if I must I suppose I must; although I should have much preferred you not to press me upon so delicate a subject," Mr. Fletcher coldly observed. "Let me see—your question was this, in substance: 'If you will accomplish my release, prove me guiltless, restore my good name and the respect of my fellow men, will I make you my wife and share my future prestige with you?' No, Mrs. Ingraham, I cannot do that, for I believe that no man has a right to marry a woman whom he does not love, and I do not love you. But I am not unmindful of, nor ungrateful for, the care which you have bestowed upon my child, nor for the pleasant home which you have helped to make for us all for so many years. I thought I had made all this clear to you before, and I regret exceedingly that the subject should have been revived again, for I can see that it causes you suffering, and I would gladly spare you; for it is best now that we understand each other for all time; the plan you have proposed is impossible—I shall never call another woman wife while I live—that title is sacred to one alone. Now—about those papers; what can you tell me regarding them?" he concluded, his voice changing from cold restraint to intense eagerness.

"Nothing," Imogen exclaimed, and turning sharply from him, despair written upon every feature. "I have nothing to tell you."

The man regarded her curiously for a moment.

"Mrs. Ingraham—Imogen, did you take those papers from my safe?" he sternly demanded, and voicing the suspicion which had suddenly flashed into his mind.

She wheeled back upon him, her face now one sheet of flame.

"Am I the thief?" she cried, in a shrill though weak tone, for her strength was nearly spent. "Did I steal them for the purpose of compromising you and driving you into a marriage with me? Is that your thought? Then let me tell you, you are entirely at fault—I have never laid my eyes upon them; but—I have my suspicions regarding where they are."

"Then you must tell me your suspicions," said Mr. Fletcher, in an authoritative tone.

"I will not tell you."

"You will be compelled—I shall notify Judge Ashburton of this interview—you will be subpœnaed, and compelled to tell what you know or suspect," her companion sternly returned.

"Ha! ha! ha!" she laughed, in a hollow voice, "do you think to drive me to the wall like that? You will sadly miss your calculations, Roland Fletcher, if you attempt such a measure, for I swear that before an officer could execute his commission I would render these lips mute and lifeless. I have played my last card and lost—I am desperate, and care not what becomes of me, and now you may save yourself as best you can, for I will never stand in court to testify for you—mark that!"

He knew she would not—he saw that she was desperate, as she had said, and yet he felt that if she had anything to disclose that could save him, there ought to be some method adopted to make her reveal it.

"Have you no humanity?" he questioned, sternly.

"Oh, yes; I am very human," she responded, with a bitter, significant laugh.

"Have you no love for Olive?—no regard for her future or the fact that her name will be tarnished if her father's fair name is smirched?"

"I think no one can question my affection for Olive," Imogen returned, in a peculiar tone. "As for her reputation and her future, you alone have it in your power to regulate that."

It was a cruel taunt, even if it was a shameless one, and the man's face was as colorless as her own, as he threw out an imploring hand to her and exclaimed:

"Have you no mercy, Imogen?"

"No," she said, shortly, and without waiting to be questioned further, she turned and walked swiftly to the door, for she had heard the turnkey coming.

A moment more and she was gone.

Five minutes later a telephone message went quivering over the wires to Castleview, begging Judge Ashburton to go immediately to his son-in-law to confer on a matter of great importance.

The judge ordered the carriage at once, then sought Alice—who was to remain at Castleview during the trial that she might be within call at any moment he might need her—and informed her where he was going, requesting also that she remain up until his return, even though he might be late.

He rolled out of one entrance to the grounds just as Imogen, driven in the coupe, came in at the opposite gate.

He was absent nearly two hours, and was closeted with Alice for another on his return, after which both retired to get what rest and refreshment they could to brace them for the morrow.

The next morning broke light, but warm; yet, in spite of the heat, the courtroom was crowded to its utmost capacity with the curious, the critical and the sympathetic.

A few moments before the hour set for the opening of the case, Judge Ashburton and Alice took their seats at the table assigned them.

Both were perfectly self-possessed, but grave, and Alice looked very sweet, and cool, and fresh in a spotless linen costume, with here and there a dash of blue, and a small straw hat, trimmed with black and blue.

Presently the jury filed into their places, after which the judge took his seat.

Mr. Fletcher, nicely clad in a well-fitting suit of mixed goods and immaculate linen, followed the sheriff to his place with an air of calm dignity and conscious integrity that became him well and then the proceedings began.

It was a closely contested case, and occupied three weary days, for there were many witnesses, and the examinations and cross-examinations consumed a great deal of time.

But to the consternation of the friends of the defendant, Judge Ashburton was taken suddenly and violently ill just after the noon recess on the third day, and was carried almost helpless from the courtroom, when the physician, who had been summoned, declared that he must be taken immediately to Castleview and put under careful treatment.

"What shall we do?" Alice exclaimed, in dismay, as she attended him to the carriage to be sure that he was made comfortable for the drive.

He regarded her thoughtfully for a moment; then he said, gravely: "My dear girl, you must see this affair through. The evidence is almost all in—and it looks as if it is liable to go against us, too; but you know every point of the case as well as I; you know the line of argument I intended to take in my plea, and so you will have to take my place."

"Oh! Judge Ashburton! I can never make that plea!" the startled girl objected, shrinking back, appalled at the thought.

"You can—you must!" returned the man, almost sternly. "It will never do to have the case put over—you can use the English language as few can use it, and now, for the sake of Will and all the rest of us, do your best. Pour forth all your eloquence, and—God bless you!"

With that benediction he sat wearily back against the cushions and signaled the coachman to drive on, for he was in great pain and nearly spent, while Alice, white as her dress, but with a look of high resolve on her beautiful face, returned to the courtroom.

"Will—oh, Will! how I wish you were here," she murmured, as she went. "But I certainly will 'do my best' for the man who has done so much for you."

Will, be it known, was hourly expected, but as yet the vessel on which he was to have sailed had not arrived in port.

The counsel for the prosecution had just arisen to make his plea as the judge was obliged to leave, but had waited out of courtesy for him to come back. As Alice returned and slipped into her seat, he leaned towards her and asked:

"Shall we go on?"

She nodded a grave assent, and he launched forth, thinking that her colleague would, perhaps, return at any moment.

She gave her individual attention to him, making notes from time to time upon his arguments, and he spoke at considerable length, scoring several strong points which told hard against the defendant.

When he ceased, the young girl arose, and, addressing the judge, observed in clear, vibrant tones, which could be distinctly heard in the remotest corner of the room:

"Your honor, in the absence of Judge Ashburton, who is too ill to go on with the case, I have been commissioned by him to fill his place to the best of my ability."

A long sigh broke from many lips at this, and glances of dismay were exchanged, here and there, plainly showing that very faint hopes were entertained that this frail young girl would be able to do anything but muddle the whole case.

Over Mr. Fletcher's fine face there also flitted a look of anxiety; but it passed in a moment as he remembered the triumph she had won early in the spring, and realized that the judge would never have allowed her to stand in his place unless he had felt pretty sure that she was equal to the emergency.

Almost at the same instant his glance wandered to a newcomer, who had just entered the room and dropped into an obscure seat.

It was Will, who had sailed on an earlier vessel than he had intended, and who had hastened from Liverpool with all possible dispatch, and who now nodded and smiled fond encouragement and sympathy to the man whom he loved as a father.

It was, perhaps, well for Alice that she could not see him, else her joy over his coming might have interrupted her train of thought and embarrassed her.

For a moment she experienced a sense of shyness before the sea of faces, among which there were many whom she had known all her life, and some of which she now recognized as belonging to people who had scouted the idea of a woman ever amounting to anything as a lawyer.

An expression very like contempt also swept over the countenance of the judge, as she intimated that the case had been resigned by Judge Ashburton to her, and Alice observing it, was quick to interpret the man's thought.

It was the spur that goaded her to instant and determined action and made her forget everything except the object for which she was working—the vindication of a noble and innocent man—and she immediately launched forth into a plea which for beauty and elegance of language, clearness and conciseness of argument, which for shrewdness in seizing and meeting the points of her opponent, had seldom been heard in that room, and which held everyone enthralled from beginning to end.

Mr. Fletcher, who hitherto had been very pale, began to show a little color as she proceeded, and sitting erect, manifested an eagerness to catch every word that fell from her lips.

Once when he caught her glance he nodded cheerily at her.

Her eyes filled involuntarily, but she instantly checked all signs of emotion, while her thoughts and words flowed on with intensified eloquence, until she lost sight of self, of her audience, and of everything but that she was pleading for the honor of him who had rescued her lover from the slums of a great city and been both father and mother to him.

Her speech in New York, at the mock trial, had been nothing compared with this, for at that time her sentiment and sympathies had not been appealed to as in this instance.

She showed herself thoroughly posted on every point, and as she took up, one by one, the arguments of her opponent, meeting and reducing them to seeming insignificance, by introducing telling facts and subtle reasoning, by relentless analysis and dissection, that worthy gentleman regarded her with unfeigned astonishment. The jury were also absorbed.

The judge no longer wore his smile of contempt, but listened to the fair pleader with an air of grave respect, mingled with admiration. When she finally sat down a burst of applause, that made the rafters ring, testified to the sensation that she had created and was so prolonged that the court was called to order three times before silence was secured.

The opposing counsel then arose to make a counter plea, but it sounded tame and feeble, after the lava tide of her eloquence, and weakened rather than strengthened his former arguments.

When he closed, Alice was asked if she had anything more to offer, and quick to take advantage of the situation, she composedly replied:

"No, my lord, we rest our case here."

"Very, very clever," his honor muttered to himself, as he arose to give his charge to the jury.

This occupied some time, and it was then so late in the day that the court was adjourned to convene again the next morning at the usual hour.

As the jury filed out, Mr. Fletcher beckoned Alice to come to him, and she hastened to his side.

He grasped both her hands in his and shook them warmly.

"God bless you, my child!" he exclaimed, with visible emotion. "I have no words to express what I feel; but whatever the outcome of this day may prove to be, you will always hold a very warm place in my heart. And now," he added, as he glanced smilingly at someone behind her, "I am sure you will be glad that there is a good friend here to take you home."

Alice turned.

"Oh, Will!" she gasped, with something very like a sob.

He clasped the hand she put out to him, and extended his other to Mr. Fletcher, who greeted him most affectionately.

But the sheriff now presented himself to conduct that gentleman to his room, whereupon Will and Alice hastened to Castleview, for they were anxious to ascertain how it fared with Judge Ashburton.

They found him very comfortable but under strict orders from his physician to remain in bed for at least a day or two.

He was greatly delighted when Will described Alice's wonderful speech and its effect upon her audience, and remarked, as he bestowed a glance of pride upon his fair student, that her triumph had done him more good than all the doctor's medicine.

The next morning, after an early breakfast, Will informed Alice that he must hasten in town and telegraph the fact of his arrival to Lady Marchmont, but that he would meet her at the courthouse—he would ride Mr. Fletcher's cob and she would, of course, go in the carriage as usual.

Neither Olive nor Imogen were present; indeed, they had made it a point not to sit at the table with Alice, but usually appeared as soon as she and the judge were through eating.

This morning they sailed down just as Alice was passing up-stairs to prepare for court.

She bade them a courteous good-morning, in response to which they barely nodded, and then she ran lightly on to her room, pausing at a window to toss a kiss at Will, who was just riding away.

Her rooms were on one corner of the west wing and adjoining the suite occupied by Imogen.

Under each of the windows, on one side, an elaborate iron balcony had been erected, and between the one outside Imogen's room and that outside Alice's, quite a sizable waste pipe extended from the ground to the gutter in the roof.

While Alice was standing before her glass, pinning on her hat, a sound as of someone moving on one of the balconies attracted her attention.

The next moment an angry oath fell upon her ear.

She started violently, for she was instantly impressed that she had heard that voice before—when or where she could not at that moment determine.

She glanced stealthily out of her window, and was amazed and startled to see a man in the act of climbing over the railing of the balcony of Imogen's window and evidently preparing to let himself down to the ground by means of the waste pipe.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Write For Free Catalog

Send Only 50¢ and we ship you this superb rocker. Yes, only 50c and we ship you this magnificent rocker. Write for free catalog and bargain list today. You can see for yourself what an elegant rocker this is. It is made in American quarter sawed oak finish—profusely carved. Upholstered in best grade of Boston leather—prettily ruffled. Superb spring seat. Order by No. A119. Terms only 50c down and then 50c monthly—only $3.95 in all for this rocker.

Easy Payments If you want anything in rockers, furniture, jewelry, carpets, rugs, curtains, washing machines, crockery, silverware, baby carriages, go-carts, Men's, Woman's and Children's apparel, stoves, ranges or any other article of house-furnishing don't fail to get our sensational easy terms. Only a small deposit—then pay the balance at the rate of a small amount per month.

FREE Bargain Catalogs Write today for our big new catalog and lists of special bargains. See the astounding values we are offering. Prices never approached before. Write now—no obligations whatever.

Straus & Schram, Inc. Dept. 5643 35th St. Chicago

"A Girl in a Thousand" and "A Thorn Among Roses"

BOTH BOOKS FREE!

The story "A Girl in a Thousand" does not complete the narrative. In order to get the climax you should read its sequel "A Thorn Among Roses" now running in COMFORT. If, however, you missed one or more installments of "A Girl in a Thousand" we will be glad to send you the story in book form just as it appeared in COMFORT. If you desire, we can also supply you with its sequel "A Thorn Among Roses" in book form. Large installments will appear each month in COMFORT but if you do not want to wait in order to complete the story, we will send you the book thereby giving you the opportunity to finish the story as soon as you like. Send us only one new 25-cent 15-month subscription (not your own) to COMFORT, or your own subscription, renewal or extension of your present subscription at 25 cents and 5 cents additional (30 cents in all) and we will send you either book—your choice of "A Girl in a Thousand" or "A Thorn Among Roses"—or for two 15-month subscriptions at 25 cents each we will send you both books free and postpaid

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Kansas State Agricultural College has a campaign on for enlisting 20,000 Kansas boys and girls in agricultural and home-making contests this year. A special state organizer has been appointed.

FREE GRAND EASTER SURPRISE-PACKET

6	9	22	5
20	8	15	21	19	1	14	4
4	15	12	12	1	18
16	18	9	26	5	19

WIN A PRIZE

Each one of these four lines of figures spells a word. This most interesting puzzle can be solved with a little study as follows: There are twenty-six letters in the alphabet and we have used figures in spelling the four words instead of letters. Letter A is number 1, B number 2, C number 3, etc., throughout the alphabet. IF YOU CAN SPELL OUT THESE FOUR WORDS WE WILL SEND YOU A SURPRISE PACKET CONTAINING FIVE BEAUTIFUL GOLD EMBOSSED EASTER POST CARDS, ALSO A CERTIFICATE OF ENTRY in our GRAND $5,000.00 PRIZE CONTEST. USE YOUR BRAINS. Try and make out the four words. ACT QUICKLY. Write the four words on a slip of paper, mail it immediately with your name and address, and you will promptly receive as your reward this SURPRISE PACKET, which is a handsome assortment of five beautifully colored Gold Embossed Easter post-cards, together with a copy of a New York Magazine, also a CERTIFICATE OF ENTRY in our GRAND $5,000.00 PRIZE CONTEST which closes May 1st, 1915. Act promptly. This is your opportunity to enter this great contest in which we give away THREE AUTOMOBILES, PIANO, PHONOGRAPH, GOLD WATCHES, CASH PRIZES, etc. In case of a tie between two or more persons for any Prize, a Prize identical in character and value will be given each person so tied. TRY AND WIN.

E. E. WEST, Mgr., 649 West 43d St., Dept. 280, New York

A NEW WAY
To Get Your Clothes Free

Make Big Money During Spare Time

Something Different, bigger, more liberal than any offer ever made. Lower prices—better clothes—bigger cash profits Express paid on everything.

Double Pay

FREE clothes and cash besides. We don't ask you to use your cash profits for your own clothes. Ours is a new and better plan. An Extra Present with every order. Not a prize scheme. Choose what you want, work for it and get it besides your Cash Profits. Complete Outfit FREE, 66 real cloth samples, 50 Fashion Plates. Inside wholesale prices. Get the big money. Your name on a post card brings everything FREE.

SPENCER MEAD CO., Dept. 304, Chicago

30 DAYS FREE TRIAL

Total cost only $7.50 by Our 7 MONTHS TIME Purchase Plan

to prove to you that this magnificent Royal has the Sweetest, Purest, Loudest and Clearest tone—to prove to you that it is as large and handsome as the trust machines that sell at $25.00—to prove to you that it has the strongest motor, the best reproducer and tone arm and the most ingenious devices to start, stop and control the music. Shipped with a supply of 10-inch double disc records of your selection, so you can enjoy the finest entertainments for one whole month. Return the outfit AT OUR EXPENSE if for any reason you do not wish to keep it. Drop a postal for our big list of unsolicited testimonials, record book and other literature. They are free.

S. H. DAVIS, V-62 6101 May St., CHICAGO

FREE THESE 4 RINGS FREE

Just send name and address. We'll send 24 packages Gold Eye Needles and 12 thimbles. Sell 6 packs for 10c giving thimble free. Return $1.20 and we'll send rings. Guaranteed 5 years. We trust you. KEYSTONE NOVELTY COMPANY, Box 400, Greenville, Pa.

FREE AIR RIFLE EVERY BOY

should have this POWERFUL RIFLE and learn to be a good shot. 32 in. long. Best grade of steel. Walnut stock. Lever action. Strong, accurate shooter for small game. COSTS YOU NOTHING TO OWN IT. Just order 20 pkgs. Gold Eyed Needles. Sell at 10c each, give thimble FREE with each pkg. SEND NO MONEY. Extra present if you order now.

NATIONAL GIFT COMPANY, Box M 434, Elmira, N. Y.

12 POST CARDS FREE

We will send you 12 of the prettiest post cards you ever saw if you will send 4c to pay postage and mailing and say you will show some of our pretty cards to SIX of your friends.

New Ideas Card Co., 39 New Ideas Bldg., Phila., Pa.

FISH BITE like hungry wolves all seasons, if you use STAR FISH LURE. Best bait ever discovered. Over 60,000 boxes sold last year. Price 25 cents per box—enough to last all season—6 boxes $1.00. Used on any kind of bait. AGENTS WANTED

STAR CO., Dept. F, 29 Clinton St., CHICAGO, ILL.

MEN WANTED

We positively teach you at home by mail to earn $25 to $50 weekly as Chauffeur or Repairman. Students assisted to positions. Best system, lowest price. MODELS FURNISHED. Write for Free Book.

PRACTICAL AUTO SCHOOL, 70-F Beaver Street, New York.

FREE

Stem wind and set watch, guaranteed 5 years, for selling 20 art and religious pictures or 20 pkgs. post cards at 10c each. Order your choice.

GEO. GATES CO. Dept. 225 Chicago

ASTHMA REMEDY sent to you on FREE TRIAL. If it cures, send $1.00; if not, don't. Give express office. Write today. W. K. Sterline, 874 Ohio Ave., Sidney, Ohio.

$10.00 per 100 earned collecting names and addresses. Enclose stamp for further particulars. Bostion Card Co., Dept. W, Legore, Md.

FITS I CURED MY DAUGHTER by simple discovery. Doctors gave her up. Will send FREE T. LEPSO, Island Ave. MILWAUKEE, WIS.

$10 Cash Paid PER 1000 FOR CANCELLED Postage Stamps. Send 10c. For Price List Paid. A. SCOTT, COHOES, N. Y.

NEW EDITION
Uncle Charlie's Story Book
51st Birthday Souvenir

A Beautiful New Edition of Uncle Charlie's Story Book is now offered as a souvenir of his fifty-first birthday which occurred September 25th. This splendid book of 157 pages printed in good, clear type on fine paper, was gotten up by Uncle Charlie regardless of trouble and expense as a worthy memorial of his fiftieth birthday a year ago.

Besides six unique stories, a dramatic sketch and personal memoirs and thrilling incidents of his remarkable life, all from his inspired pen, there are chapters by "Billy the Goat" and Maria which throw interesting side lights on his character and let you into the mysteries of his daily life. Illustrated with new pictures of him and Maria and Billy.

The immense popularity of this book has exhausted the previous editions and this handsome new edition has been printed to meet the continued large demand for it.

This edition is limited, so this may be your last chance to obtain a copy. Every home should have one.

FREE Premium Offer

It is bound in two styles, both handsome and either good enough. One in heavy, fancy opal blue paper covers known as "cloth of gold paper," will be sent post-paid as a free premium for a club of two new subscription to COMFORT at 25 cents each, 50 cents in all, or for your own 2-year renewal at 30 cents and one 25-cent subscription, 55 cents in all.

The other, beautifully bound in lilac silk with stiff covers, will be sent post-paid as a free premium for a club of four subscriptions at 25 cents each, one dollar in all, or for your own 2-year renewal at 30 cents and three 25-cent subscriptions, $1.05 in all.

In either offer 2-year renewals at 30 cents each will count the same as 15-month subscriptions at 25 cents each.

This offer holds good while the supply of books holds out.

Probably this is the last edition that will ever be printed.

BE QUICK and secure a copy while they last.

These are the best and most costly premiums that we give for such size clubs.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10.)

on her "sweetheart" for half of her meals, or be in danger of starving to death, as some girls are here in New York according to the evidence given before a state commission recently. The red light districts of our cities will have been banished forever and women will marry for love and not for food and shelter. Poverty will be a thing of the past. There will be a United States of Europe and a United States of Asia and Africa, and you will see Belgian, English, French, Austrian, German and Russian living together as brothers, neither one trying to shove his culture down the other fellow's throat, and all laughing at the thought that they ever could have been such fools as to have fought one another when they had absolutely no quarrel with one another. By the time you are fifty, my little namesake you will see this land converted into a paradise. Instead of boasting of being an American citizen you will glory in the thought that you are a citizen of the world, and you will be saying: "Gee whiz, don't I wish that old gink whose name I bear could have lived to have seen this and have reveled in the glorious times we are now having." Don't worry, my dear Charlie. I'm living today in spirit at least where you are going to live fifty years hence. It is pretty tough to live fifty years ahead of your time, gazing at the promised land as Moses did and watching the boneheads and boobs running away from it instead of marching straight for it. Humanity just needs a few more hard knocks, a little more chastening, a little more experience, and a little more education along right lines, and then it will throw off the sloth of centuries and awake like a giant refreshed and start in with a vengeance to set the world in order. The snow hangs to the mountain-side until the warm winds of spring loosen its hold and then with smashing force, thrusting everything aside, it dashes from the dizzy heights down into the valleys sweeping everything before it. The sun of education, knowledge and genuine democracy (no connection with the fraudulent thing that we have by that name today) is gradually loosening and thawing away the great glacier of ignorance and superstition, which has weighed upon humanity like a pall of death all through the centuries, and soon humanity will sweep like an avalanche from the rocky ledges of poverty to which it has painfully clung, into the verdure clad productive plains of smiling freedom and plenty that await to receive it with open arms. Charlie baby, when the snows of many winters begin to whiten your hair and you are joyously contemplating a world that knows nothing of the poverty, crime and wretchedness that is ours today, I shall be rubbering at you from an adjoining planet, and if you take an occasional glimpse skyward nightly, you will see me winking at you and waving my hand familiarly from somewhere near the golden gates, and when the time comes for you to move up higher, I'll meet you, and you can tell me then if everything I predicted didn't come true. God bless you little fellow. There's a wonderful future before you. Just thank your lucky stars you were born in this century and not in the last.

ROOSEVELT, ARIZ.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I am five feet and two inches tall and weigh a hundred and ten pounds, have blue eyes and brown hair, and dark complexion. The school which I go to is called the Clive school; I have three brothers and two sisters, I am sweet sixteen.

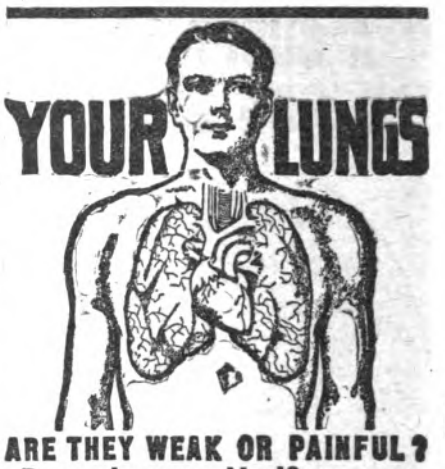
I have a nice horse and saddle. I heard cattle in the summer-time. We live on a large ranch, it is called Greenback ranch. I walk a mile to school. I like the teacher fine. I am the champion foot racer of Clive. It is very cold here now. It snows up in the mountains, about nine miles from here. My mamma takes the COMFORT and we like it very much. I love to read the letters and replies. I have a sweetheart. Do you think I am too young to have one? (Go and play with your dolls child and leave boys alone.—Uncle C.)

With love to you, GEORGIA CONWAY.

Georgia, you say: "I heard cattle in the summer-time." Strange thing, so did I. From your remark I should imagine it is very unusual to hear cattle in the summer-time in Arizona, so unusual indeed that you think it necessary to make the fact known to about half of the United States. Well, my dear, I know when I heard cattle, I too felt like telling all the world. You see I went up to Peekskill on the Hudson years ago for a little rest, peace and change of air. The doctor said I must have quiet. I'd been living with my mother-in-law for about two days and had got my nerves all unstrung, listening to her tell me what her husband would have done to me if he hadn't died just before I made his acquaintance. It was at an old-fashioned farmhouse I stayed, called Restville. I got there about supper-time. The waitress wore rubber shoes, and served me a poached egg on a rubber plate. They went out into the woods to break the egg so that the noise of cracking the shell would not disturb me. I retired early and hadn't been asleep more than two weeks when I heard a knock on the door. It was the landlord, who wanted to know the time as he had stopped his watch so that the ticking would not annoy me. I had no sooner got back into bed and gone off to sleep, than there was another knock at the door. This time it was the landlady who had found that the chambermaid had left two towels in my room and the man next door didn't have any. I cheerfully surrendered the extra towel (which was about the size of a female pocket handkerchief and you know how big they are) and went back to bed again and had just got off to sleep when the landlord came up again, knocked gently on my door, and asked me if I said it was twenty-three minutes past eight or twenty-four as he wasn't quite sure. Having settled the time question—this time I hoped finally, I again retired and was soon in the middle of an awful dream. I dreamed the Kaiser was trying to bore a hole through my beanery with the spiked ends of his mustache. With the perspiration pouring from my fevered brow I sat bolt upright in bed, and as I did so I felt some tremendous monster towering over me, while the noise in the room reminded me of a busy day in a boiler factory. The room was full of mosquitoes. Some of them were so big they had to crawl around the room on their hands and knees so as to keep from knocking the plaster off the ceiling. I screamed: "Murder!" and finally the landlord and his wife and all the help rushed to my assistance and just saved me as the biggest mosquito of all was trying to thrust me head first into his pant's pocket, preparatory to flying away with me through the window. The landlord apologized for the mosquito's intrusion, which it appears was a nightly occurrence, and after he had left the room, I grabbed the pillow and crawled under the bed, as under the circumstances that seemed about the safest place to locate. Tired to death I dozed off again and began to dream that it was my wedding day. I could hear bells, bells, nothing but bells. First they seemed like wedding bells, then they grew louder and louder until I thought I was in a bella-donna factory or Bellevue hospital. The terrific noise finally awoke me. I jumped out of bed and rushed to the window, for it was in that direction the sounds seemed to come. Under my window was a band of cattle, and two cows with bells around their necks, had come down to give me a bell symphony. I made them a nice little speech, told them all about the troubles I had with my mother-in-law (whereat they all burst into tears) and how the New York noises had broken down my nervous system and how much I needed rest. The cow with the bell apologized for disturbing me and promised not to do it again. Then they went off with those discordant bells jangling on the night air. They'd no sooner departed than a dog began to bark, then another dog about half a mile away butted in and they kept up an animated discussion in canine language the whole night through, interlarding the conversation with occasional duets which annoyed me beyond endurance. Weary and disgusted I went back to my couch, when something that looked like a high silk hat with wings, hit me in the face. I thought my end had come sure. I struck a match and lit the lamp as soon as I possibly could. The high hat with wings turned out to be a bat. The house was old and there was a large disused chimney in the room and the bat had hired the upper part of the chimney from the landlord at nominal rent for himself and family. At least that was what I surmised until I heard a most unearthly racket coming from the direction of the chimney. It sounded like the moaning of a whole world full of lost souls. It got on my nerves to such an extent that I determined to investigate. After I had been climbing for what seemed to be a couple of months, getting smothered with dust and dirt, I found myself engaged in a deadly battle with a whole tribe of owls. I hurriedly withdrew taking half the chimney with me in my descent and wheeled a bureau that looked as if it had come over in the Mayflower or the Ark, up against the chimney, much to the disgust of the owls. Once more I retired, feeling sure that all my troubles must be over at last, when the wedding bells began to ring once more. But I wasn't going to be fooled so easily this time and I whistled in my sleep: "No wedding bells for me." The racket however, got so fierce I had to again get up and remonstrate with the cows for disturbing my sleep and breaking the treaty I had made with them. They informed me that treaties were mere scraps of paper and they would do just as they pleased. At this juncture I threw a chair and a marble-topped table out of the window and again I "heard" cattle, this time angrily retreating into the darkness of the night. Again I retired, determined to sleep at any cost, but I'd barely closed my eyes when two cats began a discussion about the war just outside my window. The noise was terrific. I threw the soap-dish and the wash-bowl at Tom and Maria but all in vain. I would have thrown the bureau at them, but thought if I did the owl family would come down the chimney and that would only be making a bad matter worse. There was a big chromo of George Washington over the mantelpiece and out of the window it sailed sweeping Thomas and Maria in opposite directions. Back I once more flopped on the bed thoroughly exhausted and was half in dreamland, with a pillow stuck in each ear to keep out any noise that might arise when the wedding bells suddenly returned again and the cows began to talk about the price of milk and the high cost of beef. You see if it wasn't cat it was cattle. By this time however, I'd got used to the cow bells, and was nearly asleep when there came a knock at the door. It was the landlord. His watch had stopped and he wanted to know if it was time to get up. I presented him with my watch and told him to stay up all night and watch it, and not to bother me any more. I thought surely this would settle matters and I would be left in peace. Poor chump that I was. I had just drifted nicely into dreamland when I heard another awful racket. It sounded like a lot of children calling for their mothers: "Ma, ma, ma." Dazed and disgusted I staggered to the window and in the gloom made out a band of sheep, also armed with bells. As I gazed at them they greeted me with a yell of "Ma," and right there I informed them I was not their ma, neither was I their pa. By this time I was a nervous wreck, and what was more I'd had enough of the country and was going home to Broadway to get a little peace and quiet, so I went and woke up the landlord and got my watch and told him what I thought of Restville, and asked him to direct me to the depot. I started off with a heavy heart and shattered nerves, lost my way, knocked over a beehive, walked into a duck pond, and had all the ducks yell "Quack" at me, a mean insinuation for I never engaged in the pill business in my life. Then I climbed over a fence, and fell slap bang on top of the cow with the bell who was lying down chewing the cud and taking a rest after the strenuous musical exercises of the night, I was too exhausted to go further, and grabbing the tongue of the bell with both hands so that it could not disturb my slumbers, I fell asleep in Bossy's arms. In my dreams I "heard" cattle all night. That experience didn't end pleasantly, for when I woke up I was arrested for trying to steal a cow. When I finally landed back in New York it seemed like a city of the dead, a regular morgue in comparison with the dreadful racket of the noisy, nerve-racking country. Georgia, the Goat informs me you didn't mean "heard" cattle, what you meant to say was you were in the habit of rounding the cattle up and herding them. I'm so relieved. If you had only left the a out of that fateful word, I would have been spared a whole lot of painful reminiscences.

TENN.

DEAR COMFORT FRIENDS:



Last Saturday morning our house and most everything we had was burned, so if any of you have ever had a similar misfortune you can imagine how I feel, with winter here and my little children not clothed sufficiently and my beds were all burned up but one. Pray for me each and all of you and write me a good letter or card or send me some good reading as everything I had to read was burned. Everyone here has been so kind to us. I never can repay them for their kindness. We hope to get enough to begin housekeeping again soon, but times are hard with us; we have had so much sickness and cotton not worth anything. What with our house burning and all our other troubles, it seems more than we can bear, but the good Lord never puts more on us than we can bear. "Blessed be the name of the Lord."

This is the eighth day of November, and we are having nice weather here.

With love to all, MRS. G. H.

How would you like to get bunches of letters like that? Make you feel badly wouldn't they? I must confess I felt all broken up when I received the first letter of this kind, but when in a few months I'd reached the thirty-first, I was no longer sad, but mad. People who own homes and won't insure them haven't even the instincts of self preservation. They say: "Oh, don't let us bother about insurance. There's Jones across the road, he has had his house insured for thirty years and never has had a fire yet." So they comfort themselves with the thought that because Jones has never had a fire they will never have one. They know very well if fire did come along, they would be swept clean of everything they had in the world, have probably to beg for clothes to cover their half naked bodies. In vain the fire insurance man goes from house to house and farm to farm trying to induce people to insure their property, in the majority of cases only to be laughed at. Then one sorry day up goes the home in smoke and nothing but ashes and a dismal heap of ruins remain. Then you hear the usual lamentations to which the thoughtless, careless and heedless always give vent: "Oh, why didn't we insure our home? If we had only spent two or three dollars a year, we'd have from one to three thousand dollars in hand to build a new and better home than we ever had. Now we've got to depend on the charity of neighbors for food, shelter and clothing." Vain regrets. We can always see the wisdom of doing a thing when it's too late. When the steed is stolen we are ready to lock the door, but before it is stolen we'll see creation darned before we will lock up the stable. Again let me din into your heads that in this life it is always better to be safe than sorry. Just a little thought, a little precaution, a little horse sense would automatically do away with at least half of the suffering and misery in this world. There's an old saying that two things are sure in this world—death and taxes. There are a lot of other afflictions that are almost as sure, enemies that ever threaten our existence, our health, happiness and life. When the soldier goes out to battle he takes along his gun. He digs trenches, spreads wire entanglements, destroys bridges to impede the enemy's progress, has ambulances near to pick him up when he is wounded, and uses more sense, thought and science in war than he would use in peace in a thousand years. He can realize that a Jap or Mexican armed and in uniform, are enemies, and he goes out to kill them so they won't kill him. In peace time he's too big a chump, too big a bonehead, to recognize the fact that he is still surrounded by enemies. He doesn't realize that fire is his enemy, so he doesn't in-

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 34.)

YOUR LUNGS

ARE THEY WEAK OR PAINFUL?

Do your lungs ever bleed?
Do you have night sweats?
Have you pains in chest and sides?
Do you spit yellow and black matter?
Are you continually hawking and coughing?
Do you have pains under your shoulder blades?

These are Regarded Symptoms of

LUNG TROUBLE

You should take immediate steps to check the progress of these symptoms. The longer you allow them to advance and develop, the more deep seated and serious your condition becomes.

We Stand Ready to Prove to You absolutely, that Lung Germine, the German Treatment, has cured completely and permanently case after case of Consumption (Tuberculosis,) Chronic Bronchitis, Catarrh of the Lungs, Catarrh of the Bronchial Tubes and other lung troubles. Many sufferers who had lost all hope and who had been given up by physicians have been permanently cured by Lung Germine. If your lungs are merely weak and the disease has not yet manifested itself, you can prevent its development, you can build up your lungs and system to their normal strength and capacity. Lung Germine has cured advanced Consumption, and the patients remain strong and in splendid health today.

Let us send You the Proof—Proof that will Convince any Judge or Jury on Earth

We will gladly send you the proof of many remarkable cures, also a FREE TRIAL of Lung Germine together with our new 40-page book (in colors) on the treatment and care of consumption and lung trouble.

JUST SEND YOUR NAME

Lung Germine Co., 135 Rae Blk., Jackson, Mich.

555 New Songs and Music--10c

Oh Mr. Dream Man — If I Had a Home Sweet Home — Hold Up Rag
On Moonlight Bay — Who Are You With To-Night? — My Dixie Rose
Everybody's Doin' It — They Always Pick On Me — In Georgia Land
Every Little Movement — All That I Ask of You is Love — Little Boy Blue
I Wish I Had a Girl — Put On Your Grey Bonnet — Red Rose Rag
Sail On Silvery Moon — By Light of the Silvery Moon — Temptation Rag
I Want to Be in Dixie — Will the Angels Let Me Play — School Days
Oh You Beautiful Doll — Let Me Call You Sweetheart — Way Down South
I Long for You Tonight — Roses Bring Dreams of You — Casey Jones
Somebody Else Is Getting It — Call Me Some Day Afternoon — Steamboat Bill
If You Talk In Your Sleep — Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now — O You Circus Day
You for Me When Sweet 16 — If I Only Had the Nerve — Rag Time Violin
Alexander's Ragtime Band — You'll Do the Same Thing Over — Grizzly Bear
Rainbow — Red Wing — When I Get You Alone Tonight — Row, Row, Row
Cheyenne — Napanee — Green Grass Grew All Around — Because I'm in Silver Bell — Pony Boy — Waiting for the Robert E. Lee — Love With You
Be My Little Baby Bumble Bee — There's a Mother Old and Gray — Silver Threads Among the Gold — Till Sands of Desert Grow Cold

It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary (the latest London song craze) and all the following NEW HITS: This is the Life—When I Lost You—Sunnybrook Farm—To Have, To Hold, To Love—Good Night Nurse—Georgia Land—Where Did You Get That Girl—Sailing Down Chesapeake Bay—There's a Girl in the Heart of Maryland—Apple Blossom Time in Normandy—You Made Me Love You—You've Got Your Mother's Big Blue Eyes, and hundreds of others, also 200 GREAT COMIC RECITATIONS, TOASTS, etc. ALL in our BIG MUSIC ALBUM for 10 cents, 4 copies for 25c. Don't miss it. Stamps taken. Address HOME MUSIC CO., 31 CLINTON ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

Beautiful Tapestry Table Cover

This beautiful, fringed Tapestry Table Cover is nearly one yard square which is a size large enough for any stand or small table and is very elaborately made up in different handsome colors on an interwoven background which is of a color that harmonizes with the fringe which extends entirely around the cover. Add one or more of these beautiful colored covers to the furnishings of any room in your house and it will enliven and cheer up the whole atmosphere of your home. They are just as durable as they are handsome and taken altogether are something any woman should be pleased to own and display. We will send you this large handsome Table Cover, exactly as described if you will accept the following

Given to You For 2 Subscriptions

Club Offer. For a club of only two 15-months subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this beautiful Tapestry Table Cover free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 664. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Edna's Secret Marriage

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 21.)

ful sympathy the next. How beautiful she looks, like a wax flower, like—oh, God! he shudders—like a dead child!

White himself under the thought, he carries her to the little fountain on the cathedral square, and sprinkles some water upon the sweet face; the Holy Mother, from her niche above, looks down pitifully, the crowd murmurs in the distance. Cyril sprinkles the white face and unpins the antimacassar; and in a minute or so the dreamy eyes open upon him.

Very dreamy for a moment, and then she recognizes the fair, handsome face—not careless and nonchalant now, but wretched with anxiety and—what? A faint flush, like the first streak of sunrise, creeps into her face, and she sighs—sighs and nestles, all unconsciously, still closer to his heart.

At this sign of returning life Cyril's heart gives a great leap, and his face reddens. For the life of him he cannot refrain from pressing her to him; he cannot keep back the most grateful words:

"My darling—my little Edna!"

With a little, timid, frightened start at the dream—for he cannot have spoken, she thinks—Edna stands upright and draws away from him.

"Are you all right?" he asks, frightened at her movement of withdrawal. "Quite all right?"

"Yes," she says, looking up at him with a soft, little ashamed laugh, that quickly melts into a few silent tears.

"Don't look at me! I am so ashamed! I have never fainted before in all my life—have I fainted really? Don't say I have if I haven't quite! And all for a stupid, foolish man——"

Cyril growls.

"Oh!" she exclaims, turning pale. "I remember," with a shudder. "You," catching his arm, and turning a suddenly wild and terrified face up to him—"perhaps you killed him!"

"No such luck!" says Cyril, laughing, as he wraps the antimacassar round her.

"Oh, don't say that!" she pleads, with a little shudder. "I saw the blow, I heard it," glancing at his hand. "How strong you must be!"

"Not half hard enough," says Cyril, regretfully. "Brutal cad! Another moment and he would have——"

Edna interrupts him with a shudder.

"I know! I shall see his face all night. It was all in a minute, too," she adds, ruefully. "What should I have done if it hadn't been for you?—yes, but you did hit him very, very hard," and then, with genuine inconsistency, she bent her sweet head and lightly, swiftly, touched with her lips the hand that had dealt the blow.

Cyril quivered in every nerve; but he controlled himself; something, the new, sensitive honor that had been born within him, gave him strength to protect her own innocence against himself, and he did not take her in his arms, as the childlike caress made him long to do.

But no words were possible for some minutes, and it was not until they were stumbling through the garden that Edna said:

"Aunt—what will aunt say?"

"You will tell her?"

"Of course; I tell aunt everything," she answered, quite simply.

"Then tell where you have been, everything—but the—the—accident," said Cyril.

Edna hesitated.

"It is no fault of yours—or mine," said Cyril. "There can be no harm in keeping from her what would only distress and annoy her for no good reason or result. Tell her everything else and throw the blame—if there is any—on me."

Edna laughed softly.

"Ah, you would find your strength all weakness before aunt—you see, you could not knock her down——"

"Although she could blow me up!" says Cyril. And, so they reenter the pension as they had left it, laughing.

Edna finds Aunt Martha half asleep in her own room, easy in the belief that her charge has been safe in the drawing-room. There is only one candle in the pretty bedroom, and Aunt Martha has given up even the pretense of reading for an hour past; her eyes are dim and she does not notice the bright flush on Edna's face, and the strange, abstracted restlessness of Edna's manner. She is a little startled at Edna's account of her jaunt to the town, and inclined to be slightly rebukeful, but Edna looks tired and it ends in a good night kiss.

Edna's room is next to her aunt's, and communicates with it by a door. As Edna passes into it she bolts the door—a thing she has never done before. Then she drops into a low chair before the glass and hides her face in her hands. When it comes up from this concealment it is redder than ever, and there are tears in the sweet, brown eyes which seek their reflection in the glass, and having found it sink again suddenly, as if fearing the story that is written there.

What is the matter? Only this; that the child is trembling on the brink that divides maidenhood from womanhood; trembling, not so much at the little harmless brook, that is indeed no obstacle, but at the figure of love which stands on the other side and beckons her.

Yes, love! For the first time in her life Edna is hiding and shrinking from herself; for behind that self is the shadow, more than the shadow, of another.

"Yes," she murmurs; "he is handsome! How stupid, how blind they must be to doubt it! There's no one in the world handsomer; and how strong he is! Is he cross with me for being so weak and silly? No, he is too kind for that, he only looks upon me as a child—a child! Shall I never grow old and a woman," she sighs. "He has called me 'child' twice, and tonight—tonight—No! No! I dreamed that. He could not have called me—what I fancied he did."

But though she refuses to believe that he ever uttered them, she murmurs the words, "Edna, my darling! My darling!"

"How sweet, how nice it sounds! It was a beautiful dream. "Perhaps"—looking at the bed wistfully—"perhaps I shall dream that he said it again! How I wish I could! They say that if you think of anyone upon going to sleep, that you are sure to dream of him—or her—I'll think of him—Ah! how can I help doing so, when I remember how he saved me tonight; how kind, how good, how gentle—and he so strong!—he always is to me! 'Edna! My darling.' Oh!"—hiding her face again—"How I wish that it had not been a dream; that it was true!"

Not very far from her sits Cyril, his head resting on his hand, a cigar in his mouth, and his eyes fixed ruefully on a piece of paper upon which he has scribbled, with much labor, some complicated calculations.

"Poor! I'm as poor as a church mouse; and to think that I've got through all this in such a short time! Is there enough left for me to marry on? Something—some mad idea—seems to tell me that I could make her happy even with this remnant. I've read of clerks and that kind of people marrying on a good deal less than this; I wonder if she could ever be got to care for me? Dear, sweet little Edna! Oh, God! what a fool I have been! I am not fit to look at her, and I might have been less unworthy of her—not worthy of her?—no man could be that! Could it be possible for her ever to—to—care for me! Pure little lily, she turned to me tonight; to me"—he added bitterly—"who am not fit to touch the edge of her dress!"

* * * * * * * * * * *

"On the right rises the majestic Pilatus, close behind it is the snow-capped range of Titlis, while in the distance——" and so on, reads Miss Robinson from the inevitable guidebook, and the group of listeners who are standing on the top of the Rigi, listen with that over-done air of attention which is so palpably the result of politeness, rather than interest.

They are all here—the baron, the professor, the Robinsons, Aunt Martha, Edna—and even Sir Cyril, who has often been heard to declare that nothing should induce him to travel in herds and flocks. And being here with the avowed object of seeing the "magnificent panorama of sunlit lakes and snow-clad mountains," as the guidebook says, they are all clustered together, staring their eyes out, and wonder at what hour the big hotel, which some enterprising folks have built and furnished up here among the clouds, holds its table d'hote; for though they have come up in the wonderful train instead of climbing as they ought to have done, they are all hungry and interested in the luncheon question, Cyril feeling particularly empty of everything excepting good humor, of which he deals out a supply at regular intervals.

"Wonderful—quite too wonderful!" exclaims the youngest Miss Robinson, as her sister finishes the usual guidebook dose.

"Splendid view!" murmurs the authoress. "How full of noble suggestiveness—how——"

"Jingo, there's the dinner bell!" breaks in Cyril, irreverently. "Come along—they'll cram the upper end of the table if we don't get there in time. I know them. Here you are, Mrs. Weston—now, Miss Edna——" and away he strides, the group only too willing to follow him.

Prompt as Cyril's action had been, the long table is filling fast, and there is a little rush between him and another party of hungry tourists. But utterly regardless of the others, Cyril secures a seat on each side of him for Edna and her aunt, and then, as is usual with him, relapses into his ordinary cheerful serenity.

Two days have passed since that night of the fete, and they have seemed to Cyril long, never-ending ones, for, as might have been expected, the escapade had resulted, as far as Edna was concerned in a feverish cold, and in the quietude of own room she has been afforded a valuable opportunity for reflecting on the insufficiency of an antimacassar as a protection against the night air and the humors of a holiday crowd. Two horrible days for Cyril, during which the sun seemed to have left the sky, and a dull, dreary despair to have taken its place. But it is all bright again today, and though she is unusually quiet and a little, just a little, pale, she is here, close by his side, within reach of him, the sleeve of her dainty ulster touching his, the whole of her under his wing, and Cyril is happy. And when he is happy, how difficult, how impossible it is to resist the power of his lightheartedness! He has made them laugh—all but the baron, who slept soundly—all the way up in the train, to the utter disregard of the exquisite scenery above, below and all round them.

He makes them laugh now, calling for unheard-of dishes in unheard-of languages, grumbling good-humoredly over the wine list, keeping up a running commentary on the strange and awful costumes which the gangs of ever-arriving tourists, male and female, have arrayed themselves in. It is impossible to be glum—to be even serious, under the straight downpour of his sunny humor, the baron, who does not understand one word, included; and it is not until the bill comes that they sober down sufficiently to think of the hour of returning.

"Now there is one thing I may be permitted to say," says Cyril, breaking in upon a babel of contradictory chatter concerning the starting of the trains, "and that is that, of course, we shan't all be expected to go down by that very clever but confounded train——"

"How will you go down, then?" comes a general question.

"There are three ways—to walk on your own legs, to roll on your own back, or ride on a pony's."

"How glorious!" exclaims Miss Robinson, the younger.

"What, to roll?" queries Cyril, dryly. "Now I propose that those who intend to adopt either of my suggested means of locomotion start at once, and meet those who go by train at Weggi's—down below, you know."

"Capital!" exclaims the baron, when this is translated to him—"and I will go by train!"

"Very good," says Cyril, when the burst of laughter had subsided. "Now, how many ponies?"

In a quarter of an hour all arrangements are made and the parties have started. The descent, so says the guide who has engaged to lead them to the bottom in safety, will take three hours. There is a good path for the ponies, there is also a pretty plainly marked track, leading by a little further way, for the pedestrians. Cyril has picked out the best pony for Edna, has placed her on it with as much anxious care as he could have displayed if she had been Dresden china; he lit a cigar and now strides alongside, one hand upon the pony's neck, the other wielding a little twig, with which to admonish him.

It is exquisitely clear, surprisingly lovely, but for the life of him Cyril cannot be got to study the scenery, and tramps on, occasionally looking up to see if Edna is comfortable, or to tickle the pony into something exceeding a snail's crawl, but is silent. They go on for some few miles, and then arriving at a turn in the path, catch up the "caravan," as Cyril calls it, which has been up to this time a little ahead of them.

Then the guide explains that now is the time for those who walk to take the short road, if they so choose, to see the waterfall and great, overhanging rocks.

Some of the party have already gone on; the path is quite distinct, there is no danger. Cyril looks down it, and then up at Edna, and meets her eyes above looking down wistfully.

"Which will you do," he asks; "vill you take ze narrow road," the guide beautifully remarks, "or stick to the pony?"

"I should like to walk."

"Hurrah! says the pony, and so say I," says Cyril; and he lifts her off.

"Keep to the right," says the guide, as they commence the descent, "and do not leave ze track, shentleman. We will await you at ze bottom."

And then the equestrian cavalcade disappears.

"Ah, this is better," says Edna, laughing. "Do you know—I can confess now—that I didn't like the look of that pony? Hadn't he an odd way with his ears?"

"Poor beast!" laughs Cyril, "there wasn't an inch of vice in him from nose to tail. Dab half-a-dozen black spots on him, and he'd have done for a rocking-horse. Yes, this is better."

It is, the guide says, quite safe, but it is rather steep; and after they have "chopped"—no other word will explain the sort of quick half run half walk that is necessary—down for a little while, the path gets steeper and more uneven; and once Edna's foot slips slightly.

They have been going independently of each other till now, Edna seeming rather shy of accepting any assistance; but now Cyril holds out his hand, and without a word she puts hers into it.

"Hold fast," he says, and her little fingers cling tight. "That's better—now we shall get on. I'll admit this is glorious scenery, now we're alone, and Miss Robinson and the guidebook is out of sight and hearing; simply glorious—almost as nice as England," he adds.

Edna smiles.

"Are you laughing at me again? Isn't it delightful—I am so glad the pony has gone!"

"Look at the lake shadowed by that cloud!" says Cyril.

Edna glances down and then looks up quickly shading her eyes with her hands, and Cyril, who is watching her face, sees it grow suddenly grave.

"Hadn't we better overtake the others?"

"You can't go any faster than you are going unless you roll. What is the matter—rain?"

She shakes her head.

"Mist."

"All right!" responds Cyril, with the cheerful indifference of ignorance. "You've got your ulster."

Edna laughs softly.

"That wouldn't help us to find our way."

"I see," he says. "Mind that stone. What's that moving down there—our party? Yes; there is no fear of losing them—if we cut off the corner we shall keep them in sight."

It is a very palpable corner, at a distance; but it would have been wiser to keep to the path, perhaps, for when they are half across the near cut they are brought up by a rock, and have to make a detour. They can still see the heads of their party beneath them, five or ten minutes will bring them together; but in less than five minutes the thick cloud comes stealing across the blue, and the mist is gradually blotting out the scene.

"I expected this," said Edna, cheerfully. "We must be quick."

"Let us wait until you have pulled the collar of your ulster round your throat," Cyril says, as the fleecy cloud-shower settles on them.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 37.)

Prize Winners in January Contest!

THOSE of our readers who won a January Cash Prize in COMFORT'S Seventh Grand Prize Contest will find their names somewhere in this list. These prizes have already been paid to the winners and now we are almost ready to pay the February Prizes. The names of the winners in our February Contest will be printed in April COMFORT. All who have not yet entered this Cash Prize Contest should remember that there is still two months of it left. Each month's contest is separate and distinct from another and has a separate list of Cash Prizes which are paid promptly at the end of the month. At the end of the two remaining months we will also pay a list of Grand Prizes. Every Monthly Prize you win helps you win one of the Grand Prizes. These Monthly Cash Prizes and Grand Cash Prizes are extra and in addition to the premiums we give you. You are sure to get a premium for every club you send in and in addition any Monthly Prize you win is paid to you promptly at the end of the month in which you win it. All of our readers who have not yet done so should by all means enter now for the March prizes. It costs you nothing to try. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose. Read all about this Grand Cash Prize offer on another page. Also write us for our latest Premium Catalogue. We want to show you what splendid premiums we will give you in addition to any prize money which you may win. And while you are waiting for the catalogue start securing a club of subscriptions to be placed to your credit on the March Prizes.

We Have Paid The Following Prizes for January!

The 44 contestants whose names appear below have been paid the following January Monthly Cash Prizes. Many of them won a January prize DOUBLED OR THRIBBLED.

Mrs. Alice Warner, Minn.,	1st Prize doubled	$60.00
Henry N. McCord, Ga.,	2nd Prize doubled	40.00
Macon A. Green, Tenn.,	3rd Prize doubled	20.00
E. Wagoner, Ill.,	4th Prize doubled	10.00
Miss Almena R. Hartpence, Pa.,	5th prize	5.00
Sibyl Pharis, Kans.,	6th Prize thribbled	15.00
Mrs. Mary F. Crothers, Ill.,	7th Prize doubled	6.00
Miss Florence Burtz, Ala.,	8th Prize	3.00
Mrs. Ruth Crow, Tenn.,	9th Prize doubled	6.00
Carl Sjungberg, Wyo.,	10th Prize	3.00
Mrs. George [illegible]tz, Kans.,	11th Prize doubled	4.00
Ada Humphrey, Ky.,	12th Prize	2.00
Mrs. Clara Brown, Pa.,	13th Prize	2.00
Mrs. Adam Scharrar, N. J.,	14th Prize doubled	4.00
Mrs. Lezim Verrier, Wash.,	15th Prize doubled	4.00
Miss Agnes Pitts, Mich.,	16th Prize	2.00
Mrs. Chapen Terris, Atla.,	17th Prize	2.00
Mrs. Geo F. Grussing, Minn.,	18th Prize	2.00

The Next Three Received a $1.00 Monthly Prize Doubled!

D. L. Havens, Pa., Clara B. West, Conn., Mrs. Mary Wood, Mont.

The Next 23 Received A $1.00 Monthly Prize Single!

Mr. Norman Borgen, Wis.; Mrs. P. E. Johnson, Fla.; Harry E. Brouse, Pa; Mrs. M. A. Pearl, Conn.; Miss Ruth L. Costley, Maine,; Mrs. R. E. Chambers, Ga.; Annie Hale, Oregon; Eva Clair Moon, N. Y.; Herman Gabler, Missouri; Mrs. Pearl Riley, Miss.; Alice Williams, Ga.; Mr. Frank Syling, Pa.; Mrs. Oscar Hile, Missouri; Florence Barrington, Wash.; Harris Hazelton, N. Y.; Mrs. Fred Myers, Idaho.; Mattie B. Boggs, Ga.; Mrs. Alta Cundiff, Oregon; Mrs. Blanche Flagle, Texas; Mrs. Norman Boyer, Mich.; Julia Carter, N. C.; Mrs. L. E. McCarver, N. C.; Mrs. T. E. Vinson, Kans.

We Paid Each Of These Women A $1.00 Consolation Prize!

Mrs. C. A. Hood, W. Va.; Mary E. McConnell, Missouri; Mrs. D. V. Ruckman, Indiana; Mrs. Bessie Raymond, Iowa; Mary Coleman, Ohio; Mollie Ehrler, Texas; Mrs. H. C. Williams, Tenn.; Irma Dice, Kans.; Miss Mary Manwarren, Iowa; Mrs. Bettie Anderson, N. C.; Mrs. Jas. Kelly, Pa.; Mrs. Mary Webner, N. J.; Sadie Denham, Missouri; Mrs. Elsie Simmons, Ohio; Mrs. W. C. Criner, W. Va.; Amanda Kitchen, W. Va.; Mrs. J. L. Hicks, Missouri; Mary Breeden, Missouri; Mrs. R. C. Stone, Pa.; Mrs. Eliza J. Bagley, Ohio; Aileen M. Shepherd, Missouri; Miss Natalie Bodem, Calif.; Mrs. N. A. Lusk, Texas; Mrs. Vesta Hayes, Calif.; Mrs. Harvey Powell, Fla.; Mrs. Alice Marsh, Ky.; Ora B. Mohon, Ky.; Mrs. C. M. Gary, Va.; Mrs. C. F. Connell, Nebr.; Mary E. Well, Ark.; Manda Courtney, Okla.; Mrs. Jane Melott, Ohio; Marion Woods, Missouri; Mrs. Bessie Price, W. Va.; Miss Ella Spry, Ky.; Clara Bryant, W. Va.; Callie Dennis, Okla.; Mrs. Jeffie Mosley, Texas.; Tesse Black, Kans.; Florence Heath, Kans.; Mrs. Georgia Perkins, Texas; Mrs. Prentice Beach, Pa.; Mrs. Clara V. Fish, W. Va.; Maggie J. Lees, Mass.; Miss Wilma Lewis, Iowa; Mrs. Mark Hall, Mich.; Katie Frye, Pa.; Mrs. Claud Leffler, Indiana; Juanita Q. Torrez, N. Mex.; Miss Marie Neuffer, Ill.; Mrs. Geo. Redmond, N. Y.; Mrs. Paul Jerman, Missouri; Mrs. Wilson Kemp, Va.; Miss Blanche Meredith, Kans.; Miss Adah Dill, Colo.; Miss M. Jayne, Ala.; Nellie Aergerter, Missouri; Mrs. G. H. Holt, Tenn.; Mrs. Zora A. Hicks, Miss.; Miss Mary Sanders, Va.; Mrs. Hade Kerley, N. C.; Miss Katie McWilliams, Missouri; Miss Alice Helman, Mich.; Miss Norma Thompson, Ohio; Mrs. Nora Schoenberger, Ohio; Mrs. H. Lake, Wis.; Mrs. J. D. Sullivan, Oregon; Susan Zackmire, Indiana; Mrs. R. C. Logue, N. Y.; Miss Agnes Moore, Nebr.; Ruth L. Tyler, N. Y.; Mrs. Cassie Atkins, Ill.; Beatrice Cairns, Mich.; Mrs. Jane O. James, La.; Mrs. C. W. Norwood, Okla. Thelma Legg, Wash.; Mrs. Jennie Hayes, Ohio; Mrs. Henry Hoyem, N. Dak.; Mrs. A. A. Mahnke, Mich.; Mrs. Emma Boyless, Ohio; Mrs. Myrtle Keith, Ill.; Emma Jane Ward, Ohio; Miss Mary Jefferson, Indiana; Mrs. L. R. Bates, Fla.; Mrs. Rosa Boles, Indiana; Mrs. Lizzie Wolf, Ark.; Mrs. Ellis Corwin, Minn.; Miss Emily McDowell, N. J.; Miss Robbie Eubank, Texas; Miss Julia Bartholomew, N. Y.; Mrs. S. W. Gerow, Mich.; Miss Pluma Haywood, N. Y.; Mrs. Mariette Loomis, N. Y.; Miss Frances M. Brough, Ohio.; Genevieve Caron, Kans.; Cora Merryman, Tenn.; Lillie Mullins, Ky.; Miss Bernice Elrod, Tenn.; Gladys Moore, Tenn.; Mrs. Noah Putman, Va.

Start Your Club Now And Enter For A March Prize!

Will You Introduce These Styles For Us, If You Get

Your Suit FREE

Wear Next Season's Style NOW

Here we go again, breaking all records, for new, nobby, ahead-of-the-time styles. Be the first in your town to wear a suit that is ahead of the time. Earn it while you wear it; we send the suit complete; you can make big money too; there is

$50 to $100 a Week

in it for you. Drop us a postal for our advance book, select the styles you want and the cloth; let us prove how you can get

Your Suit FREE

Don't wait. Don't delay. Write right away. A postal will do. We send everything the day your request is received. We pay express on everything. Get busy. Simply send us a postal with your name and address on it.

Paragon Tailoring Co.
Dept. 307 CHICAGO

WATCH RING and CHAIN FREE
SELLING NEEDLE BOOKS

We positively give FREE a STEM WIND, STEM SET, RICHLY ENGRAVED WATCH, equal in appearance to Solid Gold Watch, Guaranteed 5 yrs. & Beautiful Im. Diamond Ring for selling only 20 Needle Books at 10c. Each book contains 5 packs needles and 8 darning needles. Order 20 books, when sold send us $2, we will send you Watch, Chain & Ring. Willard Watch Co. Dep 853 Chicago

FREE Handsome Gold Filled Signet Ring Guaranteed for 3 Years. To introduce our bargain sheet of fine gold filled rings, we will send this ring, any size and initial, upon receipt of only 10c to help pay advertising. THE AUCTION CO., Dept. 302 Attleboro, Mass.

HIGH POWER AIR RIFLE FREE

For distributing only 8 sets of Art pictures on special offer of 25c per set. Just send name. Robert Currier, Mgr. Dept G19 Chicago

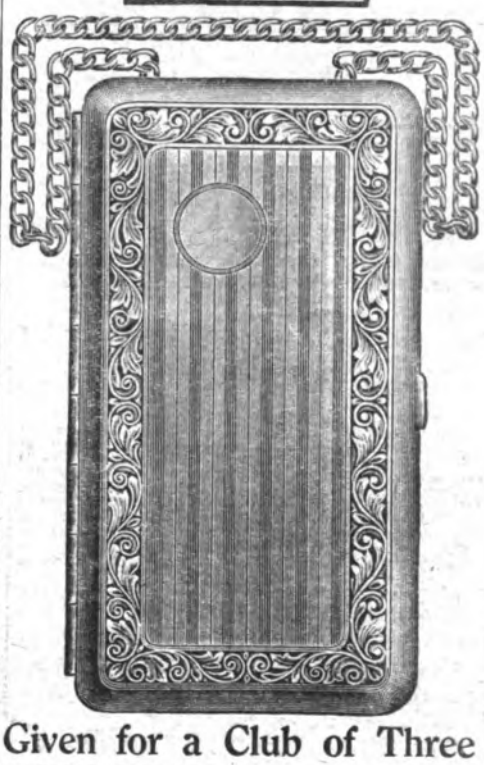
Be a Ventriloquist Throw your voice in the next room, down cellar, under the bed, etc. Imitate dog, bird, cat, etc. Fool your friends. Get our Ventrilophone, fits roof of mouth, cannot be seen. Boys and girls can use it. Wonderful invention. Sent with full directions and 32 page book on the Art of Ventriloquism. All for 10 cents. STAR CO., 31 Clinton St., CHICAGO

GET THIS FASHIONABLE

ROSEBUD-PENDANT IT IS FREE

ROSEBUD Jewelry is the most popular this season, and the pendant we offer you is very neat and attractive. Our illustration shows the design very clearly and is of exact size. The two brilliants are set in rings of rose-colored imitation-coral, firmly linked together. To the lower one is attached a beautiful moulded rosebud of the same material. This pendant may be worn on either a gold or silver neck-chain.

HAPPY HOURS



is a monthly paper filled with the best and most delightful serial and short stories we can buy. In addition there are household departments with "tried and true" receipts, helpful editorials, up-to-date fashions. In order to place our popular story and household paper before new readers we are making this wonderful introductory offer.

WRITE NOW Send us your name and address with ten cents in stamps or silver for a 3-months' trial subscription to Happy Hours and we will send you free and postpaid this Fashionable Rosebud Pendant. (Please mention Premium No. 1555).

Publishers HAPPY HOURS, 301 Chapel St., Augusta, Maine.

The Latest Vanity Case

Premium No. 711

Given for a Club of Three

EVERY lady and girl should have one of these handsome German Silver Vanity Cases because it is the latest style and design having a thin Model case like that of a thin model watch. As shown in illustration the outside of the case is beautifully Embossed and if you want to you can have your jeweller engrave your Monogram initials in the little round panel which is perfectly plain and bright polished. This case is very light, weighing a little over over 3 ounces but it is of good size being 4½ inches long and 2½ inches wide with a 12-inch chain. On the inside of the case on one side is a place for visiting cards, bills, postage stamps, etc., etc., and on the other side is a powder puff in a little compartment which closes with a hinged cover, a good sized mirror, a compartment for nickels and another one for dimes. This new case is one of the prettiest designs we have yet seen so we have bought a quantity of them to give away among COMFORT readers. We will send you one of them if you will accept the following

Club Offer. For a club of only three 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you this Vanity Case free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 711.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Do You Want THIS PONY?

Can You Supply the Missing Letters in His Name?

M—J—R

This pony—with cart and harness too—will be given to some boy or girl who joins the Pony Club. Here is a hint: If you can't guess the missing letters yourself, perhaps you know some one who has been a soldier. The name is a military title.

To Join the Pony Club and Get 1,000 Votes, Clip the Coupon

Set your brains to work and fill out the pony's name right now. You are just as smart as the boys and girls who win ponies every year in the Pony Club. Clip the Coupon and send your name and address to the Pony Man right away and get the Free Votes and become one of the first members of the Pony Club. The Pony Man will send you pony pictures and tell you all about the other boys and girls who have won Shetland ponies. It will take but a few seconds to fill out the Coupon, and think what a grand reward you may get! Act quick.

Pony Man, Farm and Fireside 3
Springfield, Ohio

I think the pony's name is_____ Send me his picture and give me 1,000 Votes, also a Certificate of Membership in your Pony Club. I want a Shetland Pony, so please tell me how to get one without spending a cent.

Name_____ R. F._____

State_____ P. O._____

1000 Shot Steel Air RIFLE GIVEN — Hamilton 22 Cal. Hunting RIFLE Without Cost

BOYS! We give choice of four Guns (on 4 Easy Plans) for selling our New "Healena"—The Salve that Heals—at 25 cents a box. WE TRUST YOU. Order 6 Boxes Magic Healing "Healena" today, we send promptly. Easy to sell because it is a necessity in every home. When sold, send us our $1.50 and select your Gun, according to one of the four plans, as you are entitled, in our big list. Extra Gift—just for promptness, so order today.

WAVERLY SUPPLY CO., Box 242 Monongahela Pa.

WATCH RING & CHAIN FREE

We give beautifully engraved, latest style, thin model, ladies' small or gents' size hunting or open case WATCH. Fine time keeper, guaranteed 6 years, solid composition metal case, looks and wears like gold. Also Im. Diamond Ring and Handsome Chain, ALL FREE. Just order 20 pkgs. of our high grade gold-eyed needles, sell at 10c each. Silver aluminum Thimble free with each pkg. Extra present if you order now.

IDEAL WATCH CO. Dept. M433 ELMIRA, N.Y.

Boys! WATER PISTOL 25c

This large handsome nickel plated Water Pistol shoots accurately 30 feet, shape of 6-shot Repeater. Give your friends a shower bath and have loads of fun. Perfectly harmless and great sport. Postpaid 25c. Address STAR CO., 37 Clinton St., CHICAGO.

BIG DOLL and Outfit FREE

This beautiful doll with real hair, complete wardrobe of 14 pieces, lace dresses, hat, muff, scarf, etc. All free, prepaid for selling only 6 boxes Mentho-Nova Salve (great healer). Easy to sell. Order today and get five-year signet ring FREE.

U. S. Supply Co., Dept. 902 Greenville, Pa.

Old Coins WANTED, $1 to $600 paid for hundreds of coins dated before 1894. Send 10c for our ill. Coin Value Book. It may mean your fortune. OLD COIN CO., 302 EAST 51st ST., CHICAGO

"Kross-Keys" Puzzle

PERHAPS you think you are good at solving puzzles but here is a new one that will keep you guessing for a while. It can be done in six seconds but the chances are it will take you six hours, if not longer, to "get it." We will of course send you directions how to do it, but if you are "game" you will not even look at them. You will work it out yourself if it takes a week. As its name implies this puzzle consists of two keys on a key-ring. To all appearances they are locked together in such a manner that it would seem to be a perfectly hopeless task to try to separate them. But as we said before, it can be done and you can do it in a few seconds after you know how. "Kross-Keys" is new—just out—entirely different from any other puzzle ever invented and in our opinion beats every other puzzle we have ever seen.

Thousands of them are being sold in the stores and by agents on the streets in the cities. Any energetic man, woman, boy or girl can make good money selling "Kross-Keys" puzzle in their respective neighborhoods because it is something that sells on sight. We are going to give you an opportunity to first secure one of these puzzles for yourself. Then after you see it and try it, we know that you will want more of them to sell to your friends and neighbors at a good profit. We will supply the puzzles free, you can easily sell them for 10 cents apiece and every cent you take in will be 100% clear profit to you.

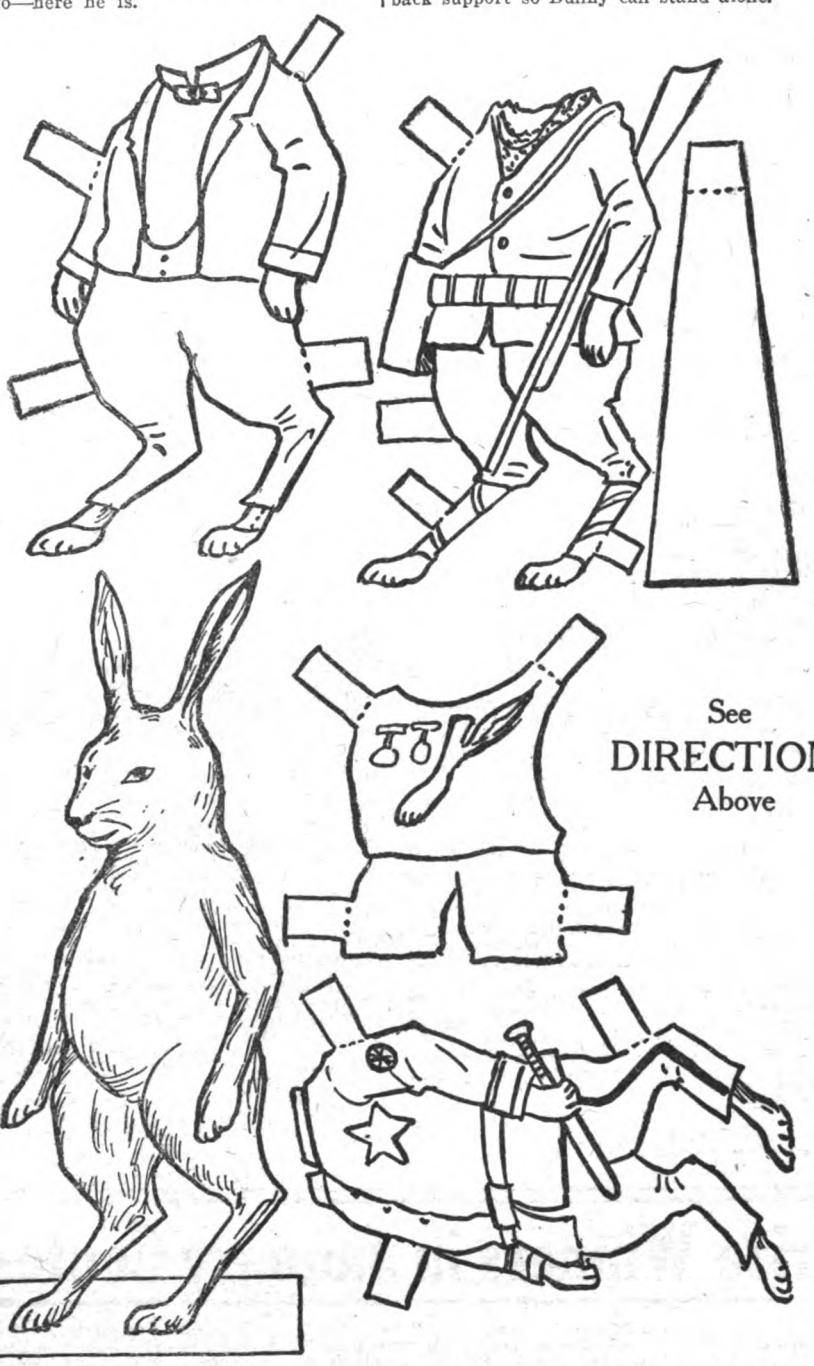
FREE OFFER

This Is "IT"

Premium No. 7221

OFFER NO. 7221 A. For one new 15-month subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents, we will send you one "Kross-Keys" puzzle with directions free by Parcel Post prepaid.

OFFER NO. 7221 B. For your own subscription, or renewal or extension of your present subscription for one year at 25 cents and 10 cents additional (35 cents in all) we will send you one "Kross-Keys" Puzzle with directions by Parcel Post prepaid.



Special For a club of three 15-month subscriptions at 25 cents each, we will send you one half dozen puzzles, or for a club of five 15-month subscriptions we will send you one dozen by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7221.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Bunny Rabbit Dolly

HOW happy I am to greet all you little children with such happy faces and shining eyes. I want to give you all a big hug and kiss and then seat you on my knee to have a nice talk. How did you enjoy dressing up the Teddy Bear doll we had in January COMFORT? A great number of you tots and some of your mammas wrote kind notes in which you expressed yourselves as very well pleased, and asked that the cut-out feature be continued. Of course, I gladly consented, but in thinking the matter over I could not decide just what kind of a dolly you would like best. Then a happy thought came to me. I knew everyone of you liked Bunny Rabbit, so why not draw him up and have some cute little suits to cut out and put on him. No sooner said then done, and, presto—here he is.

DIRECTIONS:—Before you do any cutting at all paste the picture on cardboard and put a heavy weight such as a large book on it so that it will dry, flat and smooth. The white of an egg is good paste or you can use the common cooked mixture of flour and water. Mucilage is not very good for this. Press first upon the middle and work toward the outer edges gradually to smooth it out. The surplus paste that is squeezed out must be wiped up before the sheets are placed under the book. Cut with shears and bend back the little wing like tabs to hold the dress on. A nice effect is produced by tinting the costumes with water colors, crayons or chalk. The small end of the long tapering piece should be stuck to the doll's back and bent away at the dotted line. This is for a back support so Bunny can stand alone.

See DIRECTIONS Above

Story about Bunny Rabbit

Once there was a little girl who lived away out on a farm in a lonely region where there were no other children with whom she could play. To make matters worse she did not even have a doll because they were many miles from a store and, too, her parents were too poor to buy her one. Her heart just ached for a dolly and lots of times she was so lonesome that she would cry herself to sleep under the big maple tree that grew in the yard. One autumn day as she lay sleeping amid the dead leaves with tears still showing on her cheeks a little bunny rabbit, whose mother had been shot by a hunter, came hopping along and snuggled up against her soft, warm cheek and went to sleep. The child was having a beautiful dream and did not awaken. She dreamed that while she was playing all alone and sighing for a dolly, a real live bunny rabbit came up to her and adopted her for a mother. This made her feel so happy that she awoke with a start, and sure enough there was the furry creature sleeping right beside her. With a glad cry, she began to fondle and pet him, and soon they were the best of friends. With the help of her mother, she made some dresses for him and they made him look a good deal like the picture I have drawn for you.

UNCLE JOHN.

Cubby Bear and the Baby Bunnies

By Lena B. Ellingwood

Copyright, 1915, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

"I HAVE come to ask a favor of you," said Bunny Rabbit, one sunny September day.

"What is it?" asked little Cubby Bear. "I am always glad to do kind things for my friends."

"I knew it, and that is why I came to you. I have to go away to be gone a night and a day, and my Baby Bunnies must not be left alone. Could you stay with them, Cubby Bear?"

"I would love to take care of them if Mamma Bruin is willing. I will ask her."

Mamma Bruin was glad to have her little Cubby Bear kind and helpful, and said he might go.

When Bunny Rabbit had kissed the Baby Bunnies three times around, and gone hurrying away, Cubby Bear gathered the little ones around him and told them stories. He felt quite grown up and important. His heart swelled with pride to think that Bunny Rabbit had thought him old enough and wise enough to be left alone in charge of the dear little Bunnies!

He fed them carefully, washed their little faces and hung their little bibs away on the nail in the corner.

"Now, please take us walking," said one.

"Yes," cried the others, "we love to go walking! We will be very, very good, and not slap or pinch one another all day if you will take us!"

So good little Cubby Bear, wanting to make them happy, took them walking. Soon they came to the Big Brook. Busy Beaver and Molly Muskrat were swimming in the sparkling water.

"Come and play with us, Cubby Bear!" they called.

"Oh, no! I cannot play," said Cubby Bear. "Can you not see that I am taking care of these Baby Bunnies? Bunny Rabbit has gone away to stay a night and a day."

"Let the Baby Bunnies play too," cried merry Molly Muskrat. "I will teach them to swim, and it will be great fun!"

"Yes, yes, we will swim!" two Baby Bunnies said with glee, but the other Baby Bunnies said:

"No, no, we will sit on the bank and watch."

Cubby Bear sat on the bank, too, while Busy Beaver took one Baby Bunny and Molly Muskrat took the other, to teach them to swim. They all laughed a great deal, and were very happy.

The September air was warm and beautiful, and a tiny breeze blew in and out among the leaves, which kept up a gentle whispering.

By and by Cubby Bear said, "Come now, we must go home, for it will soon be supper-time."

The Baby Bunnies politely thanked Busy Beaver and Molly Muskrat for their good time, but shivered as the little breeze touched their wet fur.

Baby Bunnies should not be shivery and wet," thought Cubb Bear. Feeling a little troubled, he took them in their little cart and hurried to their home, where he made a good fire and put them to bed.

"Too early, too early!" they wailed. "We want to sit up and watch the pretty, pretty fire!"

In the night little Cubby Bear woke, and rubbed his eyes sleepily. What was it he heard?

One of the Baby Bunnies was coughing—a big, choking cough. Then another Baby Bunny coughed—a bigger, harder cough!

Cubby Bear was wide awake now. The two Baby Bunnies had the croup! And they were the two who had gone swimming in the Big Brook!

Oh, oh, what should he do? He could not leave them, poor, sick, choking babies, to go for help. Never had Cubby Bear been in such trouble as this!

Then he heard the voice of a night bird calling. "Whippoorwill! Whippoorwill! Whippoorwill!"

"Oh, I will ask Brownie Whippoorwill to go for Squilly Porcupine, who is a good doctor, and will know what to do for choky, coughy Bunny Babies!"

Brownie Whippoorwill stopped his lonesome song and kindly went for the doctor, who lived not far away.

Such a long, unhappy night it was!

"You will stay with me until Bunny Rabbit gets back, please, Dr. Squilly?" asked little Cubby Bear, and Squilly Porcupine stayed.

When Bunny Rabbit came home next day the little Bunnies were almost well, and were playing "Bean porridge hot," sitting in their little cradle. When he heard how sick they had been, tears were in his eyes as he held Cubby Bear's paw in both of his.

"How good you are, Cubby Bear!" he said. "Only think—if it had not been for you, my Baby Bunnies might have died! Some little bears would have been afraid, and left little sick Bunnies all alone. Oh, Cubby Bear, you are a hero, a real hero!"

Cubby Bear could not look into Bunny Rabbit's eyes. Cubby Bear was blushing guiltily. He liked to be praised—he did not want to tell Bunny Rabbit that the babies were sick because he had not taken good care of them! But he must tell! It would be no better than a lie to say nothing.

Then little Cubby Bear was a hero, because he told the truth when it was hard.

"No, no, Bunny Rabbit," he said. "Do not praise me. I was not good! I let your babies play in the Big Brook, and they were shivery and wet. Oh, you will always hate me now!"

"I shall never hate you," answered Bunny Rabbit. "You are a dear, good little Cubby Bear, and I shall always love you!"

"We love Cubby Bear, too!" cried the Baby Bunnies, "and we want him to stay with us all times when you go away!"

Made-to-Measure

Express Prepaid $2.75

Pants cut in the latest style. Made-to-your individual measure. Fit, workmanship and wear guaranteed.

No Extra Charge for peg tops, no matter how extreme you order them.

Agents Wanted A good live hustler in every town to take orders for our celebrated made-to-measure clothes. Samples of all the latest materials FREE.

We Pay Big Money to our agents everywhere. Turn your spare time into cash by taking orders for our stylish clothes. Write today for beautiful FREE outfit.

The Progress Tailoring Co., Dept. 800, Chicago

BE A DETECTIVE Earn from $150.00 to $300.00 per month; travel over the world. Write C. T. LUDWIG, 121 Westover Building, Kansas City, Mo.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D.C. Advice and books free. Rates reasonable. Highest references. Best services.

FREE Gold Bracelet and Ring Both for selling 6 boxes Mentho-Nova Salve (great healer) at 25c. Write for it. Satisfaction guaranteed.

U. S. Supply Co., Dept. 602 Greenville, Pa.

SILK ALL Fancy Colors—Large PIECES—ALL PURE SILK. Waste taken out; best sort for quilts, cushions, etc. Big lot, 10c. 3 for 25c, 7 for 50c, 1 lb. $1.00. Postpaid. S. G. Abernethy, Box 638, Myrtle, Miss.

ECZEMA Is Only Skin Deep No internal medicine will cure ECZEMA. Only by the application of Cranolene can the Eczema microbe be destroyed. You pay us no money until you say you are cured. WRITE TODAY. MILLS CHEMICAL CO., 414 Mills Bldg., GIRARD, KANSAS

APPENDICITIS If you have been threatened or have ever had pains in the right side or in the abdomen, write for valuable Book of Information FREE GALLSTONE REMEDY CO., Dept. A-49, 219 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.

X-RAY KATHODOSCOPE. Latest curiosity. Everybody wants it; tells the time on watch through cloth. Apparently see best girl, fellow, objects through cloth, wood or stone, any distance, all climates; lasts lifetime; always ready for use. Price, 25c. Stamps or Silver. X-RAY MFG. CO., 132 E. 23rd, New York City

Throw Your VOICE!

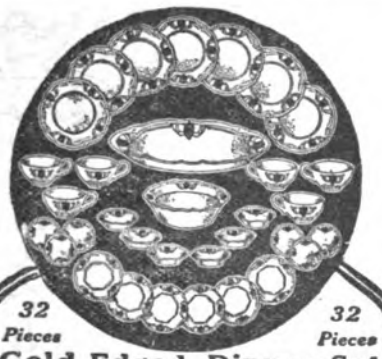
Into the next room, down cellar or anywhere, Fool your friends, lots of fun. The Ventrilophone is a little instrument that fits in the mouth and cannot be seen. Boys or Girls can use it. Also Complete instructions on use of Ventrilophone & Art of Ventriloquism. Price 10cts

ROYAL NOV. CO. Box 38 So. Norwalk, Conn

FITS A sample of my remedy has cured cases of Falling Sickness, or Epilepsy. Prompt relief guaranteed. I PAY EXPRESSAGE on FREE TRIAL BOTTLE, if you cut out and RETURN advertisement. Sworn statements and hundreds of testimonials on file. Give AGE and FULL PARTICULARS. Dr. F. Harvey Roof, Dept. 1326, Station N., New York

Sweaters Free

For MEN, BOYS and small Children



We Are Giving Away All Free a Beautiful Sweater,

for men, women or children, to anyone selling only Six of our 25-cent Oxien Porous Plasters. We send the Six Oxien Porous Plasters to your address without money from you. After you sell them for 25 cents each you return us the money, $1.50 in all collected and the Sweater will be sent you. We do this to advertise our Wonderful Oxien Porous Plasters that have for a quarter century prevented and relieved thousands of ills including Rheumatism, Lame Back, Coughs, Pneumonia, Sprains, Kidney troubles, Weak Heart and Stomach disorders.

The Sweater we send you is perfect fitting, closely woven of high-grade yarns. May be washed at home without injury to color and will keep its shape. Order by chest measure, men, women and children's sizes in colors Brown, Navy, Cardinal and Gray.

Say you want to sell the Six Oxien 25-cent Porous Plasters and we will send same day we receive your order. Address THE GIANT OXIE COMPANY, 24 Willow Street, Augusta, Maine.

32 Pieces 32 Pieces

Gold Edged Dinner Set
For a Few Hours Easy Work

OUR 19th SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Pure white, high grade china. One of the richest looking, most stylish Dinner Sets on the market. Guaranteed not to craze. Will add beauty to any table. Merely give away FREE 12 beautiful Art Pictures 16x20 in. (sold for $1.00 each in many stores) with 12 cans of White Cloverine Salve, which you sell at 25c each. Send us the $3.00 collected and the set is yours. A doctor discovered "Cloverine." Millions using it for Cuts, Eczema, Catarrh, Colds, Piles, etc. You can also earn Watches, fine Jewelry, Bed Spreads, Blankets, Musical Instruments, Silverware. Large premium catalog. Be first in your town. Everybody buys 2 to 3 boxes when you show pictures. Address at once.

Wilson Chemical Co. Dept. 224 Tyrone, Pa.

LIQUOR HABIT CONQUERED

No more misery. Get rid of the drink habit in 3 days.

After being a heavy drinker for years, I was saved and providentially came into possession of the true Remedy for overcoming alcoholism. The drinker who wants to quit forever, getting rid of the awful craving, can easily do so, losing no time and enjoying life better than ever before. Marvelous success. Safe, reliable, medically indorsed.

Drinkers Secretly Saved

If a person is addicted so strongly he (or she) has lost desire to be rescued, he can be treated secretly; will become disgusted with odor and taste of liquor. Legions of testimonials verifying genuineness of my method. Joyous news for drinkers and for mothers, wives, etc., contained in my Book. Mailed, plain wrapper, free. Keep this adv. or pass it on. Address:
EDW. J. WOODS. R 147. Station E, NewYork, N.Y.

GYPSY Fortune Teller
And Dream Book

Know thy future. Will you be successful in Love, Marriage, Health, Wealth, and Business. Tells fortunes by all methods, cards, palmistry, tea cup, zodiacology, etc. Gives lucky and unlucky days. Interprets dreams. A large book by mail for TEN CENTS.
Earn money telling fortunes.
ROYAL PUB. CO., Dept. 47. So. Norwalk, Conn.

STOPS FALSE TEETH TROUBLE
Sore gums prevented and false teeth held firmly and comfortably in the mouth with WILSON'S COREGA
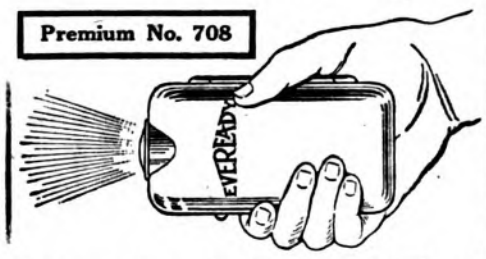
An antiseptic, odorless, tasteless and harmless adhesive powder. Dentists prescribe it. 50c, $1.00, $2.00 postpaid on receipt of price. Send for Free Trial Sample.
Corega Chemical Co. 407 Charles Bldg. Cleveland, O.
Send for Free Sample



THE BEE CELL SUPPORTER
A BOON TO WOMANKIND

Made from the purest, softest rubber. Six cups or faces render misplacement absolutely impossible. Endorsed by the medical profession. Send us $2.00 and we will mail you postpaid in plain package. Money back if not entirely satisfactory. Write for descriptive circular. It's FREE.
The Bee Cell Co., Dept. A, White Bldg., Buffalo, N. Y.

Fits
I have treated Fits, Epilepsy and Falling Sickness with remarkable success for over 20 years. Many who had given up all hope say my medicine cured them. To prove my ability I will send any sufferer a free two weeks treatment. If you, a friend or relative suffer, send me name, age, address and describe case.
Dr. Fred E. Grant
Dept. 122, Kansas City, Mo.

Pocket Flashlight
Premium No. 708

Given For A Club Of Three

THERE are so many occasions when a flashlight is a necessity it would be impossible to name them all but there is one thing sure—it is the handiest and safest means of illuminating ever devised. We offer here one of the best pocket flashlights made. It is known as the "Eveready," which is certainly an appropriate name as it is always ready when you want to use it. But the greatest feature of this flashlight is its safety around inflammable material. In the house it lights up the darkest rooms or closets, dark corners in the basement, in the garret; it may be used around gasoline, or powder, in the stable, in the barn, even in the hay mow, and there is not the slightest danger of fire. It throws a shaft of steady brilliance right in the teeth of wind or rain. The mere pressure of your finger starts and stops the light at your will and it is so small and compact that you can carry it around in your vest pocket where it does not take up any more room than a cigarette box. The "Eveready" is beautifully finished in polished nickel with a hinged bottom which opens to replace the battery and is equipped with a push button as well as a sliding switch for a flash or continuous light. It is equipped with a Tungsten battery and bulb and gives a surprisingly powerful bright light and the battery with average use will last from two to four months. When one battery becomes exhausted you can easily buy another one anywhere as they are on sale in every city and town in the United States. Or, if you prefer, we will furnish you with additional batteries free of cost in return for a few subscriptions to COMFORT. We will send you this flashlight with battery and bulb complete, ready for business as soon as you receive it, upon the terms of the following

CLUB OFFER. For a club of only three 15-month subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you one "Eveready" flashlight as described above free by Parcel Post prepaid. (Premium No. 708.) We can also supply you with extra batteries for the "Eveready" at the rate of one battery free for a club of two 15-month subscriptions at 25 cents each. (Premium No. 709.)

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

The Family Doctor

So many inquiries are received from COMFORT subscribers concerning the health of the family that this column will be devoted to answering them. The remedies and advice here given are intended only for simple cases; serious cases should be addressed to physicians, not to us.

Address The Family Doctor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

NOTICE.—As the privileges of this and all other departments of COMFORT are for subscribers only, no attention will be given any inquiry which does not bear the writer's correct name and address. Initials only, or a fictitious name, if requested, will appear in the published answer, but the inquiry must invariably be signed by the writer's true name.

L. J. R., Huntsville, Ala.—The pains in your back, shoulder, sides and abdomen may have been from strain originally, but they are rather neuralgic now as a result of the weakness. Neuralgia is a very difficult ailment to handle and any definite cure for it is not known. Hot applications over the seat of pain will be of benefit, or chloroform liniment applied on a cloth and held tight until it almost blisters, then removed for a minute, will be found a good remedy to have handy for use at any time. If the pain is persistent, lasting over a day, take a five grain tablet of salicylate of soda morning, noon and night, for two days. Don't continue it as it will do your digestion more harm than it will do your neuralgia good. By the way, have you any indigeston? Nerves respond to that very quickly and neuralgic pains will follow, especially about the sides, back and abdomen.

M. B., Walthill, Nebr.—The chances are that the quantity of galega is too small to be injurious, but in the case of all drugs, whenever you have any doubt of the efficacy of one, stop using it. Galega, or goat's rue, in an over-dose is poison and deadly.

O. B., Hebron, N. Dak.—Try red precipitate ointment on your frost bites. Better have a doctor examine them and see if they are not chilblains requiring more particular treatment.

Mrs. A. E., Bonita, Ariz.—After being frozen half to death in a mining camp and exposed for a long time to the cold besides, you must expect to have a great variety of rheumatic and neuralgic pains, with the chances that they never will leave you. No definite remedy can be given because conditions vary. Part of your trouble is careless eating and you have indigestion. Stop the coffee drinking and go on a diet of milk, rice, eggs, stewed fruit, brown bread and cold slaw as a salad. Chew every mouthful to a pulp before swallowing and once or twice a week take a dose of Epsom salts, strong, in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

W. S. L., Bonner, Mont.—The trouble with your back is an affection of the intercostal and chest nerves which is in your case mild lumbago. It results from cold or dampness but just why and just what to do with it puzzles most doctors. Chloroform liniment applied on a cloth until it almost blisters and removed for a minute affords temporary relief. So also will hot, wet applications. But lumbago is too serious an ailment for anyone to attempt self-cure and the sufferer should get a physician's treatment at once. It may be staved off if the person is of good health otherwise, but there must be no delay in going after it promptly and properly. With your weight it will give you much pain and trouble if you neglect it.

Mrs. A. P., Douglas, Alaska.—The cold, damp climate of your part of Alaska would give a stone statue catarrh and unless your husband gets into the interior where the climate is dry, he can't be cured and it is a waste of money to buy medicine or pay doctors. Our advice is to leave Alaska and go to Colorado or Arizona, where the air is dry, if his catarrh continues to grow worse. That huge mountain of damp darkness across the Channel from Douglas is enough to give a man catarrh just to look at it every day in the year.

Miss L. M., Berryburg, W. Va.—It isn't uric acid that makes the pains in your joints and the shrinking in your arms and the numb feelings and the dull pains all over your body, it is simple ignorance of how you should live. You don't eat the right kind of food and you don't eat right what you do eat and you don't follow any of the rules of health that you should know something about and live according to. Ignorance of yourself is what ails you more than anything else, and it is what ails more COMFORT readers than anything else. Now go to a doctor, tell him how you ache and pain and ask him not to give you medicine, but to tell you how you ought to live to have the least amount of ills of the body. You are bound to have some, but with a fair constitution, you should keep them at the minimum if you will learn how and use the knowledge you acquire. One trouble with people who know is that they won't do what they know is right and will do what they know is wrong. Try our advice for six months and see how much better you will feel and will be.

